Woodsley's face was ashy-white. His bravado had deserted him. His politeness had vanished. Crestfallen, he dropped his head and tried to sneak away.

"Halt! Stop there!" It was John who spoke, and he quickly stepped in front of the departing man.

"You don't intend to detain me, sir?" Woodsley anxiously asked.

"Yes. You will remain here the rest of the day, at any rate."

Woodsley reached for his pistol.

Eddles drew his.

"Better let that be."

Woodsley glared ferociously at his enemy.

"Why am I thus forcibly detained here?" he demanded. "A day of reckoning will surely come, and this insult will be avenged."

"Hold up your hands. Hold them up!"

"Henry," said John, after Woodsley had sullenly complied with his command, "please relieve Mr. Woodsley of any arms he may possess."

Henry Arno, who had stepped from the house, came briskly forward and soon was in possession of a heavy seven-shot revolver, one of the latest pattern. The arm was untarnished, showing that it had been a recent purchase.

"Our friend goes finely armed, it seems," said Arno. "It appears he anticipated trouble."

Woodsley's teeth ground together and a curse escaped his lips.

Jeff now put in an appearance. He came almost unnoticed. A broad grin of innocence was on his face as he approached Edom Woodsley.

"Yer hoss am done ready, Marse Woodsley." And he took off his hat and bowed low his wooly head.

"Go away, you cursed nigger," he angrily replied.

"Yer frien' dar 'pears sick, Marse Woodsley," continued the undaunted Jeff, pointing to the prostrate form near them.

"He's no friend of mine, you black nigger."

"Go away, Jeff," commanded his master.

Jeff readily complied, but could not refrain from having another word.

"What fer yer leff 'im in de brush near de road when yer come ter de house? Why didn't yer done fetch 'im up when yer come?"

John gave the negro a look that was intended to be severe, but the cute fellow saw beneath it one of ill-disguised approbation.

Jeff's last speech was intended more for his master's ears than Woodsley's. This was the method he took to acquaint him of the fact that both men had come to the plantation together, and that the whole thing had been planned by them. From what Jeff said, John believed that he knew more of the two men than he had already made known.

Henry Arno was requested to take charge of the prisoner, for such he was for the present. He was conducted into the mansion, and taken to and locked in the garret for safe keeping. He was informed that in case he tried to escape, or made trouble, a fate like that of the man below awaited him.

John ordered the hands to take the dead man—for he was dead, shot through the heart—and bury him.

Jeff was called in and questioned.

"Yes, Marse John, I seed de men a comin' up de Wire Road togedder. Dey didn't see me, kase I drap in de bush near ter der road what lead ter der house. De men came widin er few yards an' stop.

"Dey was er talkin' of you, sah. Marse Woodsley say: 'I'll go up ter de house an' call de gentlemn out, an' yer can come up an' arrest 'im an' we'll hab an easy time wid der res'.'

"'Shall I kill der cuss?' ax de udder man.

"'Not ef yer kin help it,' said Marse Woodsley.

"'Why?' ax der man.

"'Bekase I don' done want 'im killed, leastwise not now,' Woodsley tole 'im.

"'Look 'er here, Woodsley, I kent take no foolishness. Ef he act mean, down come die house, sure's yer bo'n. I don' take no chances.' Fore God, Marse Eddles, dose am de words dem fellers said."

"I am glad you overheard them, Jeff, and I thank you for telling me. Did you see any one else—some one with a rifle?"

"No, Marse John, not anudder posson."

"What were you doing down at the road, Jeff?"

"Huntin', sah."

"Hunting! Hunting what?"

"De ole brack an' white cow. She dune work off las' night, an' so I's lookin' fer her dis mornin'."

"Jeff, some friend of mine saved my life this morning, and I want to find out who he is. I'll give you this," holding out a shining gold coin, "if you will find the man. Ask the hands if they saw him."

Jeff was eying a figure in the carpet. When his master ceased speaking he did not look up, but turned toward the door.

Before the slave reached the door it dawned upon John's mind that that individual had never returned the rifle that he had given him to guard the premises with.

"Jeff?"

"Sah?"

"Did you have a gun with you while you were hunting the cow?"

"I did, sah."

"And you came up to the stables then?"

"Yes, sah."

"Did you lend your gun to any one, Jeff?"

"No, sah. I nebber parts wid my weepons."

"Jeff, did you fire that shot?"

There was no answer.

John Eddles rose from his seat, his face betraying his great agitation. He reached down and took the dusky hand of his faithful slave in his. His voice trembled with emotion as he addressed the colored man before him.

"Jeff," he said, "I know you are the man. I know that you have saved my life this day. Empty praise in such a case is valueless, and while I give you the thankfulness of an overflowing heart, I give you from this time on what is of more value—your personal freedom. No human being has the authority to command you from this day on. And, while you are free, Jeff, remember that whenever you want a friend or a favor, you cannot appeal to any one with more certainty of assistance than to John Eddles."

It was not the coin that he had intended for Jeff that he let slip into his hand, but another, a large yellow one.

Tears of joy came unbidden to the eyes of the colored man as his thankful master poured forth his words of gratitude upon him.

There was something peculiar about Jeff, Eddles thought, for he hung around and appeared unhappy, even with the knowledge of his freedom. He went from the house to the stables, and from the stables to the house again. His head hung down, and he had a dejected air generally.

CHAPTER VII.

THE ATTACK.

The entire household noticed the unusual manner of the restless ex-slave, and Lillie called John's attention to the matter.

"Brother, something is wrong with Jeff; he isn't acting naturally. I would see what is wrong with him."

"Jeff," said John, as that individual again approached, "you appear dejected. Is anything wrong?"

"Marse John," and Jeff sighed, "does dis yer freedom mean dat yer's got no mo in-trust in me?"

"That's it exactly, Jeff. You are your own master now."

"Den dat are freedom done make me lebe all my ole frien's. Dis nigger hev freedom, but no home. Marse John, ef I isn't a no 'count nigger yer ken hev de freedom, an' I'll lib wid dem what I lubs."

This was something unexpected—something unusual. For a slave to refuse his freedom when offered it, and willingly return to slavery, was not a common occurrence.

John was perplexed.

"Jeff," he said, after turning the matter over in his mind, "I have given you your freedom. That freedom is yours. You will never be a slave again. If you like your present home sufficiently well to remain with us, we will gladly let you share it while we have one. You can have charge of the hands, and I will pay you for your services. Is that enough, Jeff?"

Still he did not appear satisfied, but beckoning John aside, he had a low, confidential talk with him. When the two separated John was smiling, and almost a halo of happiness was around the face of the negro. He was changed. His step was elastic—he had renewed his youth. Not a word was said about the conversation, and no one but John and Jeff knew its import.

As the day wore on anxiety was more perceptible in the faces of the inhabitants of the mansion. While there was no visible danger, yet these people seemed to feel the danger that menaced them. Every approach leading to the mansion was closely watched, and when a negro came running up from the road, the whites of his eyes showing with fear, as he exclaimed: "Dey's er cumin'! Dey's er cumin'!" it was nothing more than had been expected, and even the ladies heaved sighs of relief from great anxiety, although they knew that the visitors would create trouble.

John requested the ladies to take refuge in the cellar as a safe refuge from stray bullets, in case of an attack, but not one would comply with the request, and they all remained and were comparatively calm, but pale.

As the men turned from the Wire Road John, who was watching, commenced to count: "One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight—there are more than I expected. The rascals are continually getting accessions to their ranks."

They turned the corner and came on up the dusty road in pairs. They wore the clothes of the Arkansas citizen, and carried all sorts of weapons. They made a fair military display for so few men, and the Eddles people would have enjoyed the sight if it had not been for having a knowledge of their purpose. When the men had got within hailing distance they stopped.

"Halloo!"

No attention was paid it, and after a short pause the call was repeated.

"Halloo!"

John partially opened the door and looked out.

"What do you want?"

"Is Woodsley here?"

"Yes. What do you want of him?"

"Tell him to come hyar."

"He can't go. Any message you have for him I will deliver."

The rattling of glass in the gable of the building was heard, and a voice from above called out:

"Captain, I'm a prisoner! Eddles has locked me up! Kill the skunk and let me loose."

Henry Arno bounded up the stairs. Unlocking the door and striding rapidly forward to where the prisoner was appealing to the bushwhackers for freedom, he grasped that unfortunate man by the collar and threw him in a heap in the corner.

"If you dare cry out, or show yourself again at that window, I'll blow what little brains you have out," said Arno, shaking his fist in his fallen foe's face.

"Come out, Mr. Eddles; we want to talk with yer," said the Captain in a persuasive tone.

"You can talk with me from where you are; or, if you prefer, come in."

This appeared to be as fair as the Captain could wish.

"Come, boys, we'll go in." And they began to dismount.

"No, you don't. Just one at a time. I've got no business with those others. If you want to talk, come in."

"Boys, give it to the sneaking hound!" the Captain yelled.

The mansion door closed with a bang, and none too soon, for at once the rattling of shot and bullets against the mansion began, and the heavy oaken door was pierced in many places.

An instant later a single shot from the house replied and one bushwhacker ceased hostilities. John rushed for his rifle. Springing to a window he took aim at one of the enemy, and as he fired a blood-curdling yell broke forth above the din, and—John turned away from the window.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

COMPLIMENTARY.

"I was reading a compilation of statistics the other day, and it cited a statement made by a prominent wiseacre that it is an actual fact here in America our greatest and smartest men never live to grow old," said a country shyster to a city attorney. "I wonder if it is so?"

"Well, even if it is, the fact should not trouble you in the least; it ought to encourage you with the idea that you will live to be a hundred years old, at least," returned his colleague.

WAR REMINISCENCES.

Old Settlers Rehearsing the Stirring Scenes Through Which They Passed.

Anecdotes of the Battle-Field, the Camp-Fire, and the Merry March.

Memorial.

BY MANDA L. CROCKER.

Draw near, with measured step draw near,
Oh, Liberty, thy sons lie here!
Come closer now, and softly tread;
We're with our loved and honored dead.
Comrades—husband, father, son!
Sweetly resting—marching done,
Proudly resting—laurels won!
Twined for aye around each head.

Other comrades of those years
Bestow with us love's tribute—tears,
And unfurl close by your side
The flag you followed e'er with pride;
And on which your closing eyes
Looked their last neath Southern skies;
And which to-day triumphant flies
Because our loved ones fought and died.

O'er all the fair and blessed North,
Where now the quicken'd year springs forth,
And sunny South, where proudly waves
The stars and stripes, are soldiers' graves!
And each sacred resting place,
Tho' it be lost to mortal trace,
God remembers in His grace;
His love our loved ones safely saves.

From out our homes, in years agone,
Father, husband, lover, son
Proudly went, 'mid prayers and tears,
Followed by love's hopes and fears,
Faithful to their country's call;
Went to conquer, or to fall
Though the triumph meant a pall!
Valiant hearts in perils years.

Did the hardships underwent
In march, in field, in jail, in tent;
Tired, hungry, footsore, sick,
They faltered not at "double-quick."
Yea! and though the bayonet
With their life was warm and wet
As they fell—'twas bravely met
'Mid the crimson carnage thick!

Plodded there in heat and dust,
Breathing broken prayers of trust,
Giving loved ones all to God,
They dyed with life-blood all the sod!
Out across the soldier's life—
Without mother, sister, wife;
Went they from the gory strife,
And our own were but a clod!

On and on the battle swept,
And the weary soldiers slept,
With the blood-stained fingers cold
Grasping letters, worn and old;
Clasping all they had of home,
To which, now, they ne'er would come,
And hear the welcome of their own,
This is the story war has told.

Well they've kept their country's trust,
Buried love, and honored dust!
They had counted all the cost—
They, our loved, but not our lost;
Yea! brave and true, here at your feet,
Where the spring and summer meet,
Bring we offerings, fair and sweet,
Thoughts of God—He loved you most!

Oh, valiant dead! once more we come
To beautify your peaceful home;
Ye who cannot come to ours—
We bring you love, and tears and flowers
All o'er the land, this sunny May,
We strew the flowers o'er Blue and Gray;
Together, cross and crown we lay,
In Northern hills, in Southern bowers!

—Chicago Ledger.

THE SCOUTING PARTY.

BY W. R. FALL.

"Lieutenant Ware will report with a detachment at Kentucky Division Hospital for special duty. J. WALKER,

"Major Commanding Scouts."

Having repaired to the point designated, I was greeted by the Major with, "How many men mounted?"

"Twenty-seven?"

"Do you or any of the men know the country to the right of General Bragg's position?"

"No; but Major McCann has a battalion of Tennesseans on the right, and his boys are familiar with every path between Murfreesboro and the Cumberland River. No doubt he will gladly favor you with a competent guide."

"Take your men out by way of the Lewisburg pike. I will see Major McCann and request that he will send a party toward our right front. Go as far as you can with safety around our left wing. You had better report to Colonel Allen, to let him know your object, and give him the signals, lest you should encounter a detachment from his command."

It should be mention that Colonel Allen had, in command of his own regiment, a battalion commanded by Major Alexander, and two or three detached companies lately found in Kentucky, posted his men on our extreme left front.

"Learn what movements are in progress, and note as well the whereabouts of the enemy's wagon train. We have information that General Rosecrans has retired his wagon train to the north of the Cumberland. Ascertain what measures are afoot for supplying the enemy—whether the supply trains are heavily guarded, and whether artillery and munitions are being brought forward from Nashville.

"Should favorable opportunity present, report to Colonel Allen; but don't rashly expose your men—restrain them."

"Do you see these?"—touching some of Dr. Scott's cases of instruments with one hand, and pointing to piles of lint and other hospital appliances with his saber—"better these than capture!

"I will expect you to report by six a. m. to-morrow. Ride."

Thus instructed and left to my own resources, but little time elapsed before we were well on the road, moving at a good round pace, as our horses were now fresh and ready to go.

Still they were kept well in hand, for we knew that all their strength and courage would be called into requisition before the morrow's dawn.

Colonel Allen's bivouac was located but a short distance rearward of the position held by him in the morning, while his videttes were posted well in advance.

After a short conference with Colonel Allen, during which it was arranged that he should hold two companies in readiness "to meet contingencies," we left his quarters, passed the videttes well to the north of his position, and made a wide detour to the left, that we might not encounter a scouting party detailed by the enemy, and thus prematurely uncover our movement.

That our advance might not be exposed to detection, great care was necessary, since any noise would betray our presence.

To avoid this two well-mounted, cautious men were sent some distance in advance, with instructions to keep parallel with the turnpike, and at about two hundred yards to the west of it, until the house of Mr. Brown was reached.

At this place a second dirt road led across the turnpike and into and through Mr. Brown's inclosures on the east.

Upon reaching this cross-road we learned that "a company of Federal cavalry had been there a short time before, but it had retired to the north on the approach of darkness."

To be assured that our progress would not be intercepted, five dismounted men were led to the point so recently occupied by the enemy, and thence along the turnpike one-half mile further northward.

Upon finding that the enemy had been so far withdrawn as to permit our advance, we crossed the Lewisburg turnpike, and quietly picked our way toward the rear of the enemy's right wing.

Now still greater caution became necessary; and, to avoid encounter with stragglers and roving "contrabands"—however intelligent—we followed the natural depressions which tended toward the small creeks which in flood-time poured their fullness into the Cumberland River.

Frequent halts were made, that we might carefully observe each hill-top in front of us, as well as to listen for hoof-strokes or other indications of the enemy's presence.

The heavens were overcast with threatening clouds, and every sign promised a heavy rainfall at an early hour.

If we can gain the turnpike which leads from Nashville to Triune before the rain begins, we may hope for the accomplishment of our mission in time to retire from our perilous position to one of comparative safety, thence to Murfreesboro "to report at six o'clock in the morning."

"Remember those" (the surgeon's instruments) "are better than capture."

We did not go there to be "captured," consequently every precaution for the avoidance of such catastrophe was closely observed.

At about eight hundred yards from our present position ran the pike which we desired to reach.

From this point we might return; for, to cross the turnpike would result only in intensifying the danger of our position, as we would not only be required to continue guard against meeting roving bodies of the enemy, but we must also be doubly careful against encountering the troops which would be sent around Rosecrans' left under Major McCann.

A ravine, running parallel with the turnpike at about two hundred yards' distance, furnished cover for our troop.

From this ravine two dismounted men were led toward the turnpike. We were soon convinced that a movement was in progress, and hastened to the vicinity of the road, along the edge of which a dense growth of cedars furnished ample cover for our safe approach.

The weary teamsters, all unsuspecting the proximity of the hated guerrillas, drove their jaded teams listlessly along, muttering drowsy curses upon the contingencies of war, which so relentlessly urged upon them doubly hazardous duty.

Under the shade of the friendly cedars we lay quietly and counted the wagons which were bearing supplies to the men whom the doughty Rosecrans was about to hurl upon Bragg's command, which was already exhausted by repeated changes of position.

Twenty-five wagons—surely this is not all?

No, others are at hand, and—we are soon convinced that burdens heavier than commissary wagons are being borne to the front.

Here are field batteries, ammunition wagons, and caissons in a heterogeneous mass—pushing ahead to pass the subsistence wagons; for General Rosecrans feels the want of more artillery on his left wing.

These are followed by forage wagons, and an occasional sutler who is urged forward, in spite of rain and the perils of a midnight move, in the hope of turning an honest penny.

What an opportunity is here presented to an enterprising officer who is desirous of delaying supplies for the enemy! But, Jerusalem, here comes a regiment of cavalry!

They are just opposite to us when—"Halt!" rings out in a clear, manly voice.

An officer dismounts and exclaims: "I'm pretty well tired out, as I have been in the saddle since two o'clock this morning."

"What time have you, Captain?"

"Twenty minutes past ten, Colonel."

"Well, as we must remain here till the next train closes up, I'll take a seat on this stone. It's too convenient and inviting to be neglected."

"I wish old Rosey would keep his supply trains nearer to the front, for they are in no danger from Bragg!"

"Braxton seems more intent on a 'masterly retreat,' such as he made after the battle at Perryville, Ky., than upon winning a good fight!"

"But, I'd hate to see Rosey get Bragg into a corner, where he couldn't run, for it's my opinion he'd make the fur fly; and, if he had the men, he'd at least pluck some of the leaves from our Rose's wreath!"

"But there comes the train and we must move."

"Thank fortune, this is the last train for to-night, as I'm worn out."

"Forward!"

And thus the facetious Colonel rode off through the gloom, little dreaming that he had spent the last ten minutes within reach of the muzzles of three good Colt's revolvers, directed by as many good shots!

After this last train had passed our position, and its escort had moved out of hearing, we hurried back to our comrades, who had been impatiently, anxiously, awaiting our return.

The command, "Right about—march," was given, and we began to retrace our steps.

We had ridden several miles, when we concluded to take the dirt road (crossed during our advance) which led diagonally to and crossed the Lewisburg turnpike at a point between Mr. Brown's and Colonel Allen's position—much nearer to the latter—from which we were yet some miles distant.

This road was narrow, and from its rough condition we imagined that the enemy was unlikely to use it for any reason.

We had taken the road, and had proceeded to a point within a few hundred yards of its intersection by the turnpike, when we halted to reconnoiter.

On the pike a body of cavalry was observed to be carefully feeling its way toward Colonel Allen's position.

Supposing this troop to be a part of Colonel A.'s command returning from a reconnoissance, we continued to advance, still cautiously, trusting that the noise made by the hoof-strokes of their own horses on the macadamized road would conceal our approach.

We had reached a depression which crossed the dirt road at about fifty yards from the turnpike, when the rear guard of the force in our front halted.

Affairs were becoming interesting, and were destined to grow more and more so at no distant period, for a flash of lightning not only revealed our presence to the troops in our front, but at the same time we were made aware of the proximity of a troop in our rear!

Still, each party was undecided as to the proper belongings of the other.

The troop in our rear, being on considerably higher ground, and at a greater distance, had not yet discovered us, while we were certain that none of "our men" should be in our rear.

"Poiner, with thirteen men, will face to the rear!" was commanded, in a low tone.

Noiselessly as this movement was executed, it was heard by the troop in our front, and the demand, "Who comes?" quickly followed.

The challenge was heard by the troop that had been slowly approaching our rear, and they quickly halted.

"Who comes?" again from the pike.

"Is that you, Harry?" we ask.

"No—yes!" was replied.

"They are Yanks, boys! Bend low on your horses' necks, and—charge!"

Instantly the stillness is broken, as each squad of our troop rushes at the foe in its front, by the sharp crack of Colt's revolvers and the heavy boom of the death-dealing shotgun, accompanied by the yells of our eager riders.

The enemy, being surprised, made but feeble resistance; and, as they were brushed out of our path, we crossed the pike, firing to the right and left at the fragments of the company which had barred our passage.

By the flashes of lightning we saw five dead or dying troopers lying on the turnpike.

Poiner's squad had dashed at the troop in its front, as it was turning horses in the narrow road.

Pursuit was kept up by Poiner's squad until the gate at Mr. Brown's, through which we had passed earlier at night, was reached.

Here Poiner crossed the pike, making his way to Mr. Brown's house, thence through inclosures to the dirt road which had led the remainder of our troop across the Lewisburg turnpike.

Our force was soon reassembled, when each member rejoiced most heartily that no serious hurt had been received by either of his comrades.

There is perhaps no pursuit which so cordially binds the friendship of man for man as the life led by scouts.

Each man must not only depend upon himself, but he must feel secure in his trust in the nerve and steadfastness of each of his comrades.

He must know—in a dash at the enemy, where he is likely to be carried beyond some individual—that watchful eyes and steady hands are ready to guard him against any attack which may be made by an enemy.

From the prisoners we learned that, on their arrival at Mr. Brown's, they had been apprised, by an "intelligent contraband," of our movement, who volunteered his information as follows:

"A lot of rebels wen' fru dat ar gate jis' a while ago, an' ain't got back yit.

"Golly! massa, go fru dat ar gate an' cotch de las' one ob 'em. I'll hole open de gate for you. Cotch de las' one ob em, an' lem' me a hoss an' I'll go 'long wid you an' sho' you de way."

A detachment had been ordered to follow our footsteps as far as the pike road, at an intersection of the dirt road, where the troop would be expected to join the regiment sent forward to reconnoiter Colonel Allen's position.

The enemy did not suspect our motive, but seemed satisfied that we had returned to quarters by, or were possibly on, this dirt road, and blindly followed their negro guide—who deserted them in haste when he found himself in such close proximity to "de secesh."

Thus were we delivered, for the time being, from the "hands of the Philistines," and arrived safe at Murfreesboro in time to "report at six o'clock" to our Major.

Colonel Martin.

John A. Martin was born March 10, 1839, at Brownsville, Fayette County, Pennsylvania. While a mere lad he learned the trade of printing in the office of the Brownsville Clipper. In the spring of 1857 he went to Pittsburgh and worked at his trade a short time. In October of the same year he emigrated to Kansas, and purchased the Squatter Sovereign in February. During the summer of 1861 he assisted in organizing the Eighth Kansas Infantry, of which he was appointed Lieutenant Colonel. Early in 1862 he was appointed Provost Marshal of Leavenworth, and in March of the same year his regiment was ordered to Corinth, Miss., and thereafter during the whole war it served in the Army of the Cumberland. Lieutenant Colonel Martin was promoted to be Colonel on the 1st of November, 1862, and was Provost Marshal of Nashville, Tenn., from December, 1862, to June, 1863. The regiment under his command took part in the battles of Perryville, Ky., and Lancaster, Ky.; the campaign against Tullahoma and Chattanooga; the battle of Chickamauga; the siege of Chattanooga; the storming of Mission Ridge; the campaign in Eastern Tennessee in the winter of 1863-'4; the campaign from Chattanooga to Atlanta, and the subsequent pursuit of Hood northward. Colonel Martin commanded the Third Brigade during the siege of Chattanooga, and commanded the First Brigade, Third Division, Fourth Army Corps, from August, 1864, until the muster out at Pulaski, Tenn., Nov. 17, 1864. Returning home, he resumed control of the Atchison Champion early in January, 1865.

Devil's Den.

General H. J. Hunt thus gives his experience in Devil's Den on the second day of the Gettysburg fight:

Smith's position at Devil's Den gave him a favorable oblique fire, and as he did not reply I proceeded to the Den. Finding the acclivity steep and rocky I dismounted and tied my horse to a tree before crossing the valley. I was alone—a not infrequent and an awkward thing for a General who had to keep up communications with every part of a battle-field and with the General-in-chief. On climbing to the summit I found that Smith had just got his guns, one by one, over the rocks and chasms into an excellent position. After pointing out to me the advancing lines of the enemy he opened, and very effectively. Many guns were immediately turned on him, relieving so far the rest of the line. Telling him he would probably lose his battery I left to seek for infantry support, very doubtful if I would find my horse, for the storm of shell bursting over the place was enough to drive any animal wild. On reaching the foot of the cliff I found myself in a plight at once ludicrous, painful and dangerous. A herd of horned cattle had been driven into the valley between Devil's Den and Round Top, from which they could not escape. A shell had exploded in the body of one of them, tearing it to pieces; others were torn and wounded. All were stampeded, bellowing and rushing in their terror, first to one side and then to the other; to escape the shells that were bursting over and among them. Cross I must, and in doing so I had my most trying experience of the battle of Gettysburg. Luckily, the poor beasts were as much frightened as I was, but their rage was subdued by terror, and they were good enough to let me pass through scot-free, but "badly demoralized." However, my horse was safe. I mounted, and, in the busy excitement that followed, almost forgot my scare.

Russell A. Alger.

Russell A. Alger was born in Ohio, Feb. 27, 1836. His parents died when he was eleven years old, and for the next seven years he worked on a farm, getting some schooling at Richfield Academy in the winters. Then he entered a law office, and in 1859 was admitted to the bar. Bad health caused him to relinquish his profession, and in 1861 he moved to Grand Rapids to go into the lumber business there. In the same year he entered the Second Michigan Cavalry. Next year he was wounded at the battle of Booneville, Miss., and soon after promoted to be Major of the regiment. October 16, 1862, he was appointed Lieutenant Colonel of the Sixth Michigan Cavalry, and June 2, 1863, Colonel of the Fifth Michigan Cavalry, his regiment being part of Custer's famous cavalry brigade. July 6, 1863, he was wounded at the battle of Boonesborough, Md. Altogether he took part in sixty-six battles and skirmishes. He was brevetted Brigadier General and Major General "for gallant and meritorious services in the field." In 1865 the General removed to Detroit and engaged extensively in the lumber business. He is now one of the largest lumber operators in the State of Michigan, and is interested in many enterprises. General Alger was elected Governor of Michigan on the Republican ticket Nov. 4, 1884.

TRANSPARENT nails with light red mark a cheerful, gentle, and amiable disposition. Lovers with transparent nails usually carry their passion to the verge of madness.

PITH AND POINT.

HE does a driving business—The cabman.

LEGAL-TENDER—A lawyer's clerk.—Pretzel's Weekly.

"GARMENTS without buttons" are advertised. Evidently the cast-off clothing of bachelors who don't know how to handle thread and needle.

"JOSEPHINE," said a lady to her servant, "you have cracked another cup, I see." "Yes, madam, and luckily it just makes out the dozen; it was the only whole one left out of the lot."

WE learn from a scientific journal that "all modern high explosives are now almost universally exploded by the agency of electricity." There is one notable exception. Coal oil is still exploded by the agency of the hired girl and a cook-stove.—Jersey City Journal.

A BOOK published recently is entitled, "How to Become a Public Speaker." Books of this kind are not greatly needed in this age. There are enough of public speakers. What the times demand is a book entitled, "How to Prevent Public Speakers from Speaking."—Boston Courier.

A CORRESPONDENT of the New York Morning Journal thinks that there is something in the American air that inclines people to chew. Men chew tobacco and women chew gum. It is probably because America is a free country where people do pretty much as they chews.—Boston Courier.

"AND what does your costume represent?" said Chauncey DePew to a young lady at a fancy ball, whose dress began too late and ended too soon. "O! This is an idea of my own, you know. I am the New York Central." "So I see. The Fast Limited, at the lowest Cut Rates, I imagine," replied the wit.—Town Topics.

AMATEUR tenor (who has been abroad)—Ah! my man, you are an eye doctor, I understand. Doctor—I am an oculist, sir. "Yes; well, what I want to know is whether there is any way to prevent the eyes from filling with water while singing." "None that I know of except to steel your heart against the sufferings of the audience."

MISS ETHEL—Have you seen the new American book of heraldry? Miss Blanche—No; have you? "Not yet, but I have sent for it; you ought to get one, too, and see if your name is in." "That would only be a waste of money; I know it is in. It is in every book." "Is it?" "Yes; my name is Smith, you know."—Omaha World.

CATHARINE OWENS has published a book called "Ten Dollars Enough." She may think so now; but by the time she gets all the jet trimming and overskirt, she will find that about $10 more is necessary, not including the dressmaker's bill. Ten dollars is enough for the material, but the trimming and the making cost like sixty.

"AND so your dear Uncle David is dead? Was he sick long?" "Not a great while, but he was a great sufferer. Everything, however, was done for him that was possible." "Then of course you are all satisfied with his medical treatment?" "O, yes; that is to say, all of us except cousin John. Uncle David didn't leave John anything but the family Bible."—Boston Transcript.

AN old tramp who had agreed to saw wood for half an hour for his breakfast from a Baltimore woman, quit at the seventh stick and said: "Madam, I have struck for more breakfast and less wood; are you willing to arbitrate?" "Certainly," she replied, and she left the case in the hands of her bulldog, who ran the tramp half a mile and decided that a lockout was inevitable.

Insect Mimicry.

There is a certain butterfly, says the Cornhill Magazine, in the Malay Archipelago which always rests among dead or dry leaves, and has itself leaf-like wings, all spotted over at intervals with wee speckles to imitate the tiny spots of fungi on the foliage it resembles. The well-known stick and leaf insects from the same rich neighborhood, in like manner exactly imitate the twigs and leaves of the forest among which they lurk; some of them look for all the world like little bits of walking bamboo, while others appear in all varieties of hue, as if opening buds and full-blown leaves and pieces of yellow foliage sprinkled with the tints and mold of decay had of a sudden raised themselves erect upon six legs and begun incontinently to perambulate the Malayan woodlands, like vegetable Frankensteins in all their glory. The larva of one such deceptive insect, observed in Nicaragua by sharp-eyed Mr. Belt, appeared at first sight like a mere fragment of the moss on which it rested, its body being all prolonged into thread-like green filaments, precisely imitating the foliage around it. And there are also common flies which secure protection for themselves by growing into the counterfeit presentment of wasps or hornets, and so obtaining immunity from the attacks of birds or animals. Many of these curious mimetic insects are banded with yellow and black in the very image of their stinging originals, and have their tails sharpened, in terrorem, into a pretended sting, to give point and verisimilitude to the deceptive resemblance. More curious still, certain South American butterflies, of a perfectly inoffensive and edible family, mimicing every spot and line of color of sundry other butterflies of an utterly unrelated and fundamentally dissimilar type, but of so disagreeable taste as never to be eaten by birds or lizards.

His Last Words.

"What were the dying words of poor Maj. Junket, the editor of the Snake Hollow Corker?" was asked of the clergyman present when the Major breathed his last.

"Well," he replied, "I will read them to you—I don't understand them myself—but he spoke very slowly and I wrote them down. He seemed to be very much troubled for some time and then he said: 'Tell Mr. Harcourt he'd better run off an extra quire this week—may need 'em to send to friends, and don't publish any poetry about me, and set that editorial double-leaded in which I do up the Scooter man about who has the most job work, and don't forget about those ads. of Dr. Sagehen's Catarrhal Cavorter, and Fielder's Consumption Cure, and Howler's Hair Persuader, and Prof. Cemetery's Celebrated Rough on Life Salve; and put them all top column, preceding my obituary and call attention to them editorially and locally. Ask him to be very particular about these.'"—Dakota Bell.

IRATE old gentleman—Mary, what was that noise I heard in the kitchen? Mary—Faith! an' little Oi know, unless yez heard Mike's countenance dhrop when Oi refused him a kiss at partin'. —Texas Siftings.

IN FAR-OFF LANDS.

Women in Cuba—Women in India—Women Under the Crescent.

First we were introduced to the Captain General of Cuba. Then he brought in his daughter, a typical Spanish girl, and one of the most beautiful women I have ever seen. She was about twenty years of age, had a rich, fair complexion, and her very motion was grace. She was quite accomplished, and spoke French fluently and English fairly well. Mrs. Gen. McCook, one of the French scholars of the party, carried on quite a conversation with her, and shortly after this the young lady brought in her baby, a little coffee-colored tot of 5 months, whose bright black eyes looked soberly from one Senator to another, and, finally, seemed most pleased with Senator Palmer. Palmer took it from its mother during the visit, and jumped it up and down with all the skill of a grandmother nurse. The baby laughed at him, and it did not cry during our whole visit. It was a rather smart baby of its age, and the ladies remarked that it was wearing short clothes at five months—rather sooner than among the Americans. Its feet were dressed in little white kid shoes of the finest texture, and out of the tops of these, showing against its fat olive-brown little legs, peeped silk stockings of a pale-blue. The short dress was of white cambric, and the mother herself wore a lawn such as any American girl would think fit for everyday working wear. The grandfather, the Captain General, was evidently highly pleased with the attention it received, and he is, I doubt not, as doting as most grandfathers.—Havana letter, in Cleveland Leader.

HOME NOT MUCH OF A HEAVEN.

Now for an idea of a Hindoo woman's home life. She lives in a small room almost destitute. The floor and walls are of clay, with no ornamentation of any sort, and the least furniture possible. Every morning she has to pray, not for herself—as she is taught she has no soul—but for her husband, for rain, and for general blessings. Then she spends two or three hours preparing the breakfast. She doesn't eat with her husband, but, perhaps, fans him at his repast. During the daytime she either sleeps, gossips with the other women, or sometimes a reader reads to them from the lives of the gods. At night they prepare their husband's meal in the same manner. They are not protected against the weather and dampness, nor are they properly fed and clothed. The rich live the same as the poor. If sick they are deemed cursed by the gods, and are taken to the stable and left alone. The only food they can get is left by stealth. Thousands die of neglect. The first day that a Hindoo boy abuses his mother is a festive occasion with his father, who boasts of it to his friends. To be a widow is the sum of unhappiness. She is especially cursed by the gods. As the husband dies half a dozen barbers' wives rush upon her and tear the jewelry from her ears and nose. Behind the funeral cortege she follows, surrounded by these fiends, who throw her in the water. If she drowns they say she was a good wife after all.—A traveler, in Macon (Ga.) Telegraph.

LOVE UNDER THE CRESCENT.

Turkish girls are promised usually when they are very young, even at a tender age, when they are only 2 or 3 years old. If the young bride should happen to die before her marriage, or be required for the Sultan's harem—for it may be premised that this is a case that breaks all engagements, and is esteemed as a great honor by parents—the intended husband is not expected to weep over what he loses, for he has never seen it. When the young girl reaches her 12th or 13th year, or somewhat later, her 14th year, she receives the nuptial blessing, and the husband cannot see the face of his wife until after that ceremony. No woman, not even the wife, takes part in the solemnity of marriage, which is effected by proxy, delegated to an uncle or to and elder brother, often with a full beard, who plays the role of the bride. The parents of the couple sign the contract before the Imaum of their quarter, in the presence of a few friends, who act as witnesses. The nuptials are then celebrated by the families with a calmness and gravity that would be as suitable for a funeral as for a wedding.—Cosmopolitan.

A JAPANESE HUSBAND NOT OFTEN HEARD OF.

Generally speaking the Japanese men make kind and affectionate husbands, and the women make virtuous and exemplary wives and mothers; and the children are certainly the happiest little imps in the world; their parents fondle and spoil them most effectually, and at the same time never losing their control over them. The husband has absolute control over the person of his wife; at the same time, one never sees a man strike a woman in Japan; yet there is considerable pinching and slapping done on occasions when those strange and ungovernable spells of exasperating ugliness known as tantrums settle down upon their matrimonial horizon. On these occasions there is considerable free hitting, biting, and scratching indulged in on both sides of the house; but the greater strength of the husband invariably leaves him master of the situation, and the belligerent household speedily resumes its serene and happy course.—Brooklyn Magazine.

How Omaha Was Named.

There are several legends as to how this city was given the name of "Omaha." By some of the old-timers it is claimed that the name was suggested by Jesse Lowe. "Omaha" was the name of a tribe of Indians in the immediate vicinity. The meaning of the name, it is claimed, is "above the water." The tradition is that two tribes of Indians had, a great many years ago, met on the Missouri River, and had engaged in a hostile encounter, in which all on one side were killed but one, who had been thrown into the river. Rising suddenly from what was thought to be a watery grave, he lifted his head above the surface, and pronounced the word "Omaha" which had never been heard before. Those who heard it adopted it as the name of their tribe. Another story is that the town was named after a white man who was an Indian doctor, and who took the name of Omaha from the tribe of Indians of that name. Mr. James C. Savery, who in early days was a prominent citizen of Iowa, and built the Savery House at Des Moines, tells an interesting story in connection with the naming of this city. Mr. Savery, who is now a resident of Montana, while on his way East recently, said to a member of the Bee staff: "Col. James Redfield, of Albany, was really the projector of Omaha. He and eleven others went into the Council Bluffs and Omaha Ferry Company, each putting in $400. Col. Redfield borrowed his $400 and got me to indorse for him. The company then plotted the town. When Redfield's note came due he couldn't pay it, and he then offered me his share of the town site, but I declined to accept it. There was a white crank, with long hair, who claimed to be an Indian doctor, and went by the name of Omaha. One night at the Pacific House, in Council Bluffs, while the town-site men were on a drunk, it was agreed to call the new town Omaha after this crank Indian doctor. That's how Omaha got her name. In due time Col. Redfield sold his interest at cost. He was a Colonel in the Union army of the war of the rebellion and was killed on the field of battle."—Omaha Bee.

Senator Nye's Dilemma.

A number of years ago Major James Haggerty, of New York, accompanied by Senator Nye, of Nevada, was engaged in stumping Connecticut. One Saturday evening they found themselves in a quiet little village. That night they were to address the assembled suffragists on the political issues of the day.

There being no public hall it was arranged that the speaking should take place in the village church. The audience was composed principally of the people who filled the sacred edifice on Sundays—plain, honest, religious country people, peculiar to the land of steady habits.

Senator Nye was the first to speak. He was a large, fine-looking man, and he spoke with a great deal of eloquence. He "orated" for several hours, and so effectively and exhaustively that, owing to the lateness of the hour, Major Haggerty concluded to make only a few brief remarks.

In closing his speech Senator Nye regretted that he could not spend the Sabbath in the quiet little village, as he was compelled to go on to New York that night. He was very much distressed that circumstances compelled him to forego the privilege of spending the Sabbath in that typical New England village. In expressing his regret he used the following language:

"I wish that I could remain with you over the Sabbath, my dear friends. I wish I could see your old men and maidens, your young men and your toddling children, your husbands and wives, repair to the house of God on the morrow. I wish I could join you in praise and prayer to the Most High. Such sacred scenes would recall the happy days of my innocent childhood. They would remind me of my—my—sainted mother, on whose grave the grass has been growing for the past twenty years"—and the speaker buried his face in his handkerchief, while his whole frame shook with emotion. Sobs were heard in different parts of the house, and several hard-faced old codgers passed the backs of their horny hands across their eyes.

The speech made a profound impression, more particularly on the reception committee, who were all members of the church, and who crowded around and pressed the eloquent speaker's hand.

The committee accompanied the gifted orator and Major Haggerty to their hotel. On reaching the hotel Senator Nye said:

"Landlord, when does the next train leave for New York?"

Before the landlord could reply, one of the deacons, a venerable old man, folded his hands, and said solemnly:

"I am happy to inform you, Senator, that no more trains pass through this town to-night. The next train leaves Monday morning at 8 a. m."

"W-h-a-t?" gasped Nye, "have I got to stay here over Sunday? Why the thought is maddening. It would kill me. Haggerty, you have got to go to New York to-night, haven't you?" he added, turning to Haggerty, who, with uplifted eyes, and an expression that can only be seen on the faces of the saints painted by the old masters, replied:

"O, no, Senator Nye; I could not think of traveling on Sunday, as my early training would prevent me from thus desecrating the Sabbath. I desire to visit the sanctuary to see the old men and maidens flock to the house of God."

"O, you d——d hypocrite!" hissed Nye in a stage whisper.

There is reason to believe that the good effect of Nye's speech was entirely nullified by his indiscreet expressions when he discovered that his expressed yearning to spend the Sabbath in the village was likely to be realized.—Texas Siftings.

A Few Quotations.

If there is a modern drama in existence in which none of the following sentences is found, we would be glad to know its name:

Unhand me, villain!
Not another word.
I am lost!
All is lost!
Back again to the old homestead.
To-morrow all the world will know that D'Arcy O'Brion is a bankrupt!
You have pronounced your own doom.
Fly, ere it is too late!
Curses on ye all!
Is it thus that we meet after all these years?
No resource is left me but death.
Mandeville Snooks, you are in my power!
Man, man, have you no pity?
Would you know my story? Listen!
Reginald! Reginald! Great heavens, he is gone!
Aha! you tremble!
This, then, is the end of all.
Would that I were dead!
Hector Reilley, you see before you a desperate man.
If you have no pity for me, at least consider her.
And this is the man I called my friend!
You have sent for me—I am here.
Oh, Percy, how I have longed for this meeting!
Can he suspect?
Villain, you have betrayed me!
Have you no mercy?
She must, she shall be mine!
So, so! all my schemes prosper.
The priceless heritage of an untarnished name.
You cast me off—so be it.
For years I have waited for this hour.
Wretch! would you strike a woman?
Who will save me?—Tid Bits.

Not Yet.

"Does this road desire to be exempt from the long-and-short-haul provisions of the Interstate Bill?" asked the reporter as he entered the President's office.

"Well, not quite yet. We are now engaged in stealing three miles of street and four acres of ground of the city, and have fifty-two suits for injuries to passengers to defend, and we are not exactly prepared to meet the Commissioners yet."—Wall Street News.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

PROF. TYNDALL says the sky is indebted for its blue color to the particles floating in the air.

IT is reported that a depth of over 5,200 feet has been reached in boring at Schladerbach, near Halle.

A NEW adulteration of butter has been invented. By adding gelatine, which absorbs ten times its weight of water, the consistency of the butter is retained and the water adulteration is not noticeable.

OUT of 15,000 earthquakes observed on coast lines, the German seismologist, Kluge, found that only 124 were accompanied by sea waves, although a very large proportion of the shocks had probably originated under the sea.

OUT of some 10,000 species of birds recognized by ornithologists, there are 859 species and sub-species which make their home in North America. There are also eighty-two others which find their way to this continent as stragglers from other countries.

AN English company has perfected its arrangements for providing sick chambers with telephones. The object is to give persons suffering from contagious diseases a chance to talk with their friends. Speaking tubes are inadmissible on account of the infectious nature of the breath.

IT is stated that the specimens of clay from the Royal Society's borings in the Nile delta have not at present yielded any but "derived" fossils; but beds of gravel found at a depth of 120 feet show that the whole surface was formerly 120 feet higher, and was that of an ordinary river valley.

AN English physicist has, it is said, made a perfect pendulum by suspending a lead shot by a single fiber of cocoon silk in a vacuum produced by a Sprengel pump. The shot, one-sixteenth of an inch in diameter, weighs one-third of a gram, is suspended by a two-foot fiber, and is placed in a tube three-quarters of an inch internal diameter. It has a vibrational range of a quarter of an inch on each side of mid-position, the vacuum being equivalent to one-tenth of a millionth of an atmosphere.

M. LEON ESQUILLE has perfected a marvelous invention in electricity and photography. By speaking into a photophone transmitter, which consists of a highly-polished diaphragm, reflecting a ray of light, this ray of light is set into vibration, and a photograph is made of it on a traveling band of sensitized paper. Now comes the wonderful part. If the image of this photograph tracing is projected by means of an electric arc or oxyhydrogen light upon a selenium receiver, the original speech is then heard. It is evident that there is no limit to the development of this peculiar combination of methods.

RECENT weather charts of the British Meteorological Council show that during the entire autumn a permanent area of high barometer is situated in the mid-Atlantic south of the parallel of forty degrees. North of this, low-pressure tracks are very frequent. Many of the storms originate over the United States, and they often gather force after starting on their eastward course over the Atlantic, sometimes even entirely crossing the ocean. The vicinity of Newfoundland, where hot and cold waters meet, and there are great differences of air-temperature in a very small area, has a great influence upon the weather of the Atlantic and of the British Islands. Here are formed many storms, while some are here stopped and suddenly broken up.

The Marriage of Cousins.

From the physician's point of view, the evidence from the animal world is important. Here there is almost consensus, that, while the effect of "in-and-in breeding" is to intensify points, in the long run it is opposed to vigor of constitution. It is to be remembered that every breeder takes care to exclude any animals with any known morbid tendency, while, on the contrary, in the genus homo, as Dr. Clouston remarks, there seems to be "a special tendency for members of neurotic families to intermarry." The result of this will be that in some portions of the population the offspring of such marriages will show the evil results of it to an unusual extent. And thus we find that in rural, and especially in mountainous districts, where the population is small and fixed, the comparative amount of idiocy is greater than elsewhere. Statistical information is inadequate on the subject; the motion to include it in the census returns of England was rejected "amidst the scornful laughter of the House, on the ground that the idle curiosity of speculative philosophers was not to be gratified." In France the returns have given rise to various estimates (varying from 9-10 to 2¼ or 3 per cent.) of the frequency of consanguineous marriages. Mr. G. H. Darwin came to the conclusion that in London 1½ per cent. of all marriages were between first cousins, in suburban districts 2 per cent., and in rural districts 2¼ per cent.

If, now, we ascertain the ratio of idiots and insane patients that are the offspring of such marriages to the total number of patients in the asylums, we will have some means of estimating the results of consanguinity. From quite an extended series of records it is concluded that the ratio just referred to in the idiot asylums is from 3 to 5 per cent., hence "first-cousin marriages, at any rate, are to some extent favorable to the production of idiot children." But this conclusion must be tempered by the consideration that in a large number of such cases of idiocy and imbecility other causes for this condition are present; and this consideration leads Dr. A. Mitchell to the opinion that "under favorable conditions of life the apparent ill effects of consanguineous marriages were frequently almost nil, while, if the children were ill-fed, badly housed and clothed, the evil might become very marked." From such facts and figures we may conclude that first-cousin marriages should, as a rule, be discouraged; but that, if close scrutiny reveals no heritable weakness, neurotic or otherwise, the banns need not invariably be forbidden.—Science.

Meanest Kind of Meanness.

Mean Man—You seem disturbed about something, Mr. O'Goolligan?

Mr. O'Goolligan—It just makes me blood boil to hear of the eviction in Oirland.

Mean Man—Then you don't believe in evicting tenants who won't pay?

Mr. O'Goolligan—The bloody landlourd what ud do that should be dynamited, that's what Oi say.

Mean Man—I am glad you feel that way, Mr. O'Goolligan, because your agent has just rented me one of your houses.—Tid Bits.

ZOLA'S ordinary income exceeds $60,000 a year. Thiers sold his history for $100,000.

Clear the Way

Without loss of time, when the intestinal canal is blocked up in consequence of constipation, chronic or temporary. It should be borne in mind that this ailment is prone to become lasting and obstinate, and breed other and worse complaints. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the precise remedy to remove the obstruction effectually, but without drenching or weakening the blockaded bowels, a consequence always to be apprehended from the use of violent laxatives, which are among the most pernicious of the cheap nostrums swallowed by the credulous and misinformed. The test of experience, and of the medical fraternity, sanctions the claims of this standard aperient. Not only as a source of relief and permanent regularity to the bowels, liver, and stomach, but as a means of remedying and preventing kidney and bladder troubles and fever and ague, it is without a peer.

Birds of Yesterday.

A number of large and interesting birds have become extinct within recent times. Of these the epiornis, of Madagascar, was probably the largest. Fossil fragments indicate that this creature was at least twelve feet in height, with a weight five or six times as great as that of the ostrich. Specimens of its eggs have been found, and measure nearly thirteen and a half inches in largest diameter by nine inches in smallest diameter, with a capacity of nearly eight quarts. The moa, or dinornis, of New Zealand, was also larger than any bird now living, its height having been ten or twelve feet. Its "drumstick" was thirty to thirty-two inches long, and its eggs so large that a hat would make a good egg-cup for them. The famous dodo, fifty-pound bird of Mauritius, was once well known to the Dutch, but has not been reported as seen during the last two hundred years. The solitaire is another exterminated bird of the same island. The great auk, of the North Sea, is supposed to have become extinct since 1844. These are a few of the latest disappearances of the bird world; other large species are fast diminishing in numbers, and soon the Australian emu and New Zealand apteryx, for example, will have passed away also.

CARL OTTO SCHOENRICH, Captain Oriole Yacht Club, Baltimore, Md., writes: "The club, during practice cruise, used St. Jacobs Oil, and it cured several cases of sprains and bruises." Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere.

An Excess of Politeness.

A correspondent of the Philadelphia Record tells how a polite physician says good-afternoon to a Mexican senora who thinks she is ill enough to have his professional advice. Here is the dialogue:

"Madam! (this by the bedside) I am at your service."

"Mil gracias, Senor Doctor."

"Madame! (this at the foot of the bed) know me for your most humble servant."

"Good-morning, Senor Doctor, amigo mio."

"Madame! (here he stoops beside a table) I kiss your feet."

"Senor Doctor, I kiss your hand."

"Madame! (this near the door) my poor house and all in it, myself, though useless, and all that I have are yours."

"Mil gracias, Senor Doctor."

He turns around and opens the door, again turning as he does so, saying, "Adios, madame! Your most humble servant."

"Adios, Doctor, amigo mio."

He goes out, partly closes the door, but reopens it to put in his head and fire a parting shot:

"Adios, madame! at your service."

A VETERAN, Mr. George McKona, Ashburnham, Mass., writes: "While suffering with chronic rheumatism (result of Andersonville), I used St. Jacobs Oil, which gave immediate relief." Sold by druggists and dealers.

Will Power.

"Do you know, young man," he said, solemnly, "that the constant use of whisky destroys the will power?" "No, sir," replied the youth, incredulously, "it increases the will power. I heard a man say last Sunday morning, as he found a side door locked, that he proposed to have a drink if he had to try every saloon from Harlem Bridge to Sandy Hook. And he meant it, too. Talk about will power!"—New York Sun.

A NOVEL and valuable application of photography has been made by the Century Company, combining the complete preservation of valuable copy against accidental loss or injury by fire or otherwise with the greatest convenience in storage and handling. Over 25,000 sheets of copy of a work on its way through the press, with interlineations, corrections and additions, have been photographed on a reduced scale of only 1½x2 inches to the page, but easily legible upon magnification.

WHAT can be more disagreeable, more disgusting, than to sit in a room with a person who is troubled with catarrh, and has to keep coughing and clearing his or her throat of the mucus which drops into it? Such persons are always to be pitied if they try to cure themselves and fail. But if they get Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy there need be no failure.

IT is odd that the wages of sin remain just the same as they were when the hours were shorter.

THE bowels may be regulated, and the stomach strengthened, with Ayer's Pills.

THE man who loses his footing on a toboggan chute generally becomes a backslider.

Locate

In a Live Town. Cash bonus paid to all kinds of manufacturing enterprises. Live men in all kinds of businesses wanted. Address BANK OF VALLEY, Valley, Douglas Co., Nebraska.

A Husband's Greatest Blessing

Is a strong, healthy, vigorous wife, with a clear, handsome complexion. These can all be acquired by using Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic.

FOR dyspepsia, indigestion, depression of spirits, and general debility in their various forms; also as a preventive against fever and ague and other intermittent fevers, the "Ferro-Phosphorated Elixir of Calisaya," made by Hazard, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic, and for patients recovering from fever and other sickness it has no equal.

EVERY town of 700 or more inhabitants can support a local newspaper, and should have one. Full particulars regarding cost of material, how to run the paper, and make money out of it, will be furnished any one who will take the trouble to communicate with PRACTICAL PRINTER, Box 491, Chicago, Ill.

PISO'S Remedy for Catarrh is agreeable to use. It is not a liquid or a snuff. 50c.

What Good the Mosquito Does.

A writer in the Springfield Republican claims to have found out the useful point of the mosquito. He says: "I found out the real mission of the pest by putting a lot of the wigglers into a hogshead of water and filling another hogshead, into which no wigglers were put. The second body of water soon became foul, while the first remained sweet, showing that our swamps would more often become sources of disease were they not infested with mosquitoes."

A Sad Case of Poisoning

[illegible]

A LAWN party is pleasant enough until it begins to rain. Then it becomes a forlorn party.

* * * * Rupture radically cured also pile tumors and fistula. Pamphlet of particulars 10 cents in stamps. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

THEY are trying to suppress the whip factories on the ground that they deal in lickers.

EVERY one is perfectly satisfied who uses Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers.

THE author of the saying that "you must always take a man as you find him," was a policeman.

It Is Economy

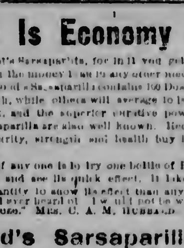
To buy Hood's Sarsaparilla, for in it you get more real value for the money than in any other medicine. A bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla contains 100 Doses and lasts a month, while others will average to last not over a week. And the superior curative powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are also well known. Hence for economy, purity, strength and health buy Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"All I ask of any one is to try one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and see its quick effect. It takes less time and quantity to show its effect than any other preparation I ever heard of. I would not be without it in the house." MRS. C. A. M. HUBBARD, North Chili, N. Y.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar



THE CHEAPEST AND BEST MEDICINE FOR FAMILY USE IN THE WORLD! CURES ALL PAINS. Internal or External. 50c a Bottle. SOLD BY DRUGGISTS.

DR. RADWAY'S PILLS

[illegible] Price, 25 cents per box. Sold by all druggists.

DYSPEPSIA!

DR. RADWAY'S PILLS are a cure for this complaint. [illegible]

RADWAY'S

SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT,

A positive cure for Scrofula and all Blood and Skin Diseases.

RADWAY & CO., N. Y.

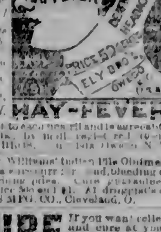
$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50, FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Address Brewster's Safety Rein Holder, Holly, Mich.

[illegible]

OLD CHRONIC PILES—[illegible]

ELY'S CREAM BALM

I had catarrh for three years. My nose would bleed. I thought the sores would never heal. Ely's Cream Balm has cured me.—Mrs. M. A. Jackson, Portsmouth, N. H.



A particle is applied into each nostril and is agreeable. Price 50 cts. at Druggists; by mail, registered, 60 cts. Circulars free. ELY BROS., Druggists, Owego, N. Y.

PILES Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is a sure cure for blind, bleeding, and itching piles. Cure guaranteed. [illegible] WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Cleveland, O.

RUPTURE If you want relief and cure at your home, send for Dr. J. A. Sherman's circular of instructions. 294 Broadway, New York.

WARNER'S FEATHERBONE [illegible] FEATHERBONE COMPANY, Three Oaks, Mich.

ADVERTISERS or others, who wish to examine this paper, or obtain estimates on advertising space when in Chicago, will find it on file at 45 to 49 Randolph St., the Advertising Agency of LORD & THOMAS.

AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHY. [illegible]

DETECTIVES Wanted in every County. Shrewd men to act under our instructions in our Secret Service. Experience not necessary. Send stamp for particulars. GRANNAN DETECTIVE BUREAU, 44 Arcade, Cincinnati, O.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH

PENNYROYAL PILLS

The Original and Only Genuine. [illegible] Sold by Druggists everywhere. Ask for "Chichester's English" Pennyroyal Pills. Take no other.

OAKLAWN

The Great Nursery of

PERCHERON HORSES.

200 Imported Brood Mares Of Choicest Families.

LARGE NUMBERS, All Ages, both Sexes, IN STOCK.

300 to 400 IMPORTED ANNUALLY [illegible] M. W. DUNHAM, Wayne, DuPage Co., Illinois.

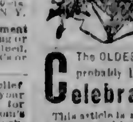
PENSIONS [illegible]

PATENTS [illegible]

Milo B. Stevens & Co.

PENSIONS. Metropolitan Block, Chicago, Ills.

JONES



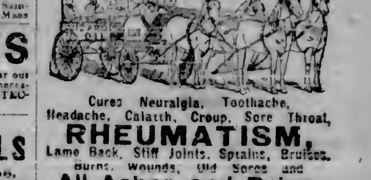
PAYS the FREIGHT [illegible] $60. [illegible] JONES OF BINGHAMTON, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

The OLDEST MEDICINE in the WORLD is probably Dr. Isaac Thompson's

Celebrated Eye Water

[illegible] John L. Thompson, Sons & Co., TROY, N. Y.

WIZARD OIL FOR PAIN



Cures Neuralgia, Toothache, Headache, Catarrh, Croup, Sore Throat, RHEUMATISM, Lame Back, Stiff Joints, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Wounds, Old Sores and All Aches and Pains. [illegible] It Cures You. That's the Idea! Sold by Druggists. 50 cts. Song Book mailed free. Address WIZARD OIL COMPANY CHICAGO.

HARTER'S THE ONLY TRUE IRON TONIC

Will purify the BLOOD, regulate the LIVER and KIDNEYS, and Restore the HEALTH and VIGOR of YOUTH. [illegible]

LADIES [illegible] DR. HARTER'S LIVER PILLS [illegible] THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

TOWER'S FISH BRAND SLICKER The Best Waterproof Coat. [illegible]

LIVER, BLOOD AND LUNG DISEASES.

LIVER DISEASE AND HEART TROUBLE. — Mrs. MARY A. MCCLURE, Columbus, Kans., writes: [illegible]

GENERAL DEBILITY. — Mrs. PARMELIA BRUNDAGE, of 161 Lock Street, Lockport, N. Y., writes: [illegible]

LIVER DISEASE. — Mrs. I. V. WEBBER, of Yorkshire, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., writes: [illegible]

INVIGORATES THE SYSTEM. [illegible]

Chronic Diarrhea Cured.—D. LAZARRE, Esq., [illegible]

"THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits and bodily health and vigor will be established. [illegible]

INDIGESTION, BOILS, BLOTCHES. — Rev. F. ASBURY HOWELL, Pastor of the M. E. Church, of Silverton, N. J., says: [illegible]

A TERRIBLE AFFLICTION. [illegible]

HIP-JOINT DISEASE. — Mrs. IDA M. STRONG, of Ainsworth, Ind., writes: [illegible]

CONSUMPTION, WEAK LUNGS, SPITTING OF BLOOD.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY cures Consumption (which is Scrofula of the Lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating and nutritive properties. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. [illegible]

GIVEN UP TO DIE. — Consumption.—Mrs. EDWARD NEWTON, of Harrowsmith, Ont., writes: [illegible]

WASTED TO A SKELETON. — Consumption and Heart Disease. [illegible]

BLEEDING FROM LUNGS. — JOSEPH F. MCFARLAND, Esq., Athens, La., writes: [illegible]

Golden Medical Discovery is Sold by Druggists. Price $1.00 per Bottle, or Six Bottles for $5.00.

WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors, No. 663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

Eclectic Shorthand [illegible]

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times." Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

[illegible]

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, JUNE 8, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

Gen. Belknap, who retired from the office of Secretary of War under a cloud, now lives in Washington. He practices law, lives quietly, but comfortably, and is one of the most popular men at the capital. He dresses faultlessly, is large and handsome, with a full short beard that was once a light red, but now half gray, and is generous to a fault. He never speaks of any one, is genial and generous, and an entertaining conversationalist. His friends say he will some day be completely vindicated.

These who have been watching the events of the last two or three years now say that all the signs of the times point to extraordinary business activity during the present year. Indeed the long expected boom seems to be on the way at last. It may not be noticeable in every locality, but it is on the way nevertheless. Men yet out of employment should read the newspapers and keep posted about what is going on. It is a good idea to keep a sharp lookout for opportunities. No man is justified in sitting idle while there are chances to earn good wages—if not at one place then at another. Every man should endeavor to make hay while the sun of industrial prosperity is shining brightly.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: The country never knew her noble sons until the war. Their names are without number. The spirit of Lincoln pervades all the literature of the nation for 30 years, as do his devout heart, prophetic mind, intellectual clearness, singleness of purpose, and typical sympathy and large patriotism. That roster of these heroes is incomplete that omits any soldier patriot, from the commander-in-chief to the humblest private in the rear ranks. Their fame is the heritage of all humanity. The day which reveals all things alone can declare the nobility of these men, and of these men who are sleeping under the mounds in National cemeteries and nameless graves.

It is learned from an exchange that one evening recently a meteor fell with a tremendous noise near Lowmanville, N. Y. Robert Wells, a farmer living near Lowmanville, says that shortly after his return from Elmira, at 11 o'clock that night, he was startled by hearing a loud, roaring sound, and looking up he saw a large meteor descending toward the earth. As it rushed through the air its brilliancy was dazzling. When it appeared to be almost overhead it dropped apparently a thousand rods from his house. But in the morning he ascertained that it had fallen in a field nearly a mile away. All that could be discerned of it was a hole in the ground, irregular in shape and about twenty feet deep. It was forty feet across the top, but as the earth had fallen in around the edges, it is probable that the meteor is much smaller than the opening. It was very kind in the meteor to fall in the open field. Had it struck a city or town there's no knowing what damage it might have caused.

The New York Sun has the following editorial condemning the policy of the administration, especially of the Treasury Department: "A year ago the rate of interest in this market for money on call was two per cent; it is now 5 per cent. A year ago the surplus reserve in the banks was $13,801,175; last Saturday it was $4,657,200. A year ago the gold and legal tender balances in the United States Treasury were together, $181,054,345; to day they are $204,758,861, and are increasing at the rate of $2,000,000 per week. Last year money was not in active demand until after Aug. 1; this year it has been active ever since March 1. In the face of these facts, it is no wonder that the mercantile community are beginning to be anxious about the condition of the money market, and to apprehend a severe stringency so soon as the movement of this year's crops begins. The call of the remaining 3 per cents which mature July 1, will release at that date only about $2,000,000 of the money now locked up in the treasury, and secretary Fairchild gives no intimation of what he intends to do thereafter. He may anticipate the payment of interest on the public debt; he may purchase bonds in the open market, or he may allow all the receipts of public money except for customs, to remain on deposit in depository banks. In any or all of these ways he has full power to relieve the approaching stringency, but whether he will do so is a conundrum nobody can guess. Meanwhile the responsibility for any financial trouble rests upon the President. He can order the Secretary to do what is needed whenever he pleases."

President Cleveland has subscribed $10 to the Grant Monument fund. Put it on the slate.

EDUCATIONAL.

All communications on educational topics should be addressed to Prof. H. M. Enos, Superintendent of the Charlevoix Schools.

Report of Ironton Schools for Month Ending June 2, 1887.

NUMBER ENROLLED.
Grammar Department,	25
Primary Department,	40
Total,	65
NUMBER BELONGING.
Grammar Department,	25
Primary Department,	36
Total,	61
DAYS ATTENDANCE.
Grammar Department,	417.5
Primary Department,	636.5
Total,	1,054
AVERAGE DAILY ATTENDANCE.
Grammar Department,	22
Primary Department,	34
Total,	56
ATTENDANCE, PER CENT. OF NUMBER BELONGING.
Grammar Department,	88
Primary Department,	93
Average,	91

Results of regular monthly examinations are as follows, 100 being the maximum:

A Grade—Nellie Noyes, 95; Walter Bird, 95; Lewis Hammond, 93; Cassie Box, 93; Gerwin Parish, 95.

B Grade—Mary Bayer, 92; Jennie Hunt, 82; Martha Saunders, 84; Nettie Waldron, 90; Mary Maroney, 75; Agnes Fox, 85; Wilbur King, 88; Bertie King, 88; Frankie Box, 85; Bertie Waldron, 75; Matthew Saunders, 81; Eddie Williams, 87.

C Grade—Johnnie Fox, 83; Archie Miller, 89; Emma Bird, 85; Susie Schoffen, 93; Lizzie Garland, 88; Hester Saunders, 82.

A Grade, Primary—Sophia Otashquabeno, 94; Nickie Schoffen, 92; Johnnie Mitchell, 90; Amie Compton, 89; Geo. Garland, 77; Thos. Maroney, 87;

B Grade, Primary 1st Division—Adolph Christianson, 77; Isabel Tumoth, 83; Eliza Stewart, 79; Mary Zeitler, 80; Eva Zeither, 75; Rosa Myers, 86; Frank Lenore, 84; Willie Hunt, 86, Nettie Jackson, 95.

The New Education.

A recent writer, speaking of what he is pleased to assume as the "New Education," makes the following strictures:

"The pupil's attention is coaxed by supplying a perpetual fascination through devices or personal favor."

"Teachers come down to amuse below the mental capacity of the pupil."

"Everything is brought ready-made to the mind. There are no difficulties. It is goody on a spoon. Sugar candy teaching.

"Arithmetic is becoming number-work; geography, place-lessons; grammar, language lessons; spelling, talking with the pencil: technical terms and difficult words, baby talk and nursery gabble. Courses of study are overhauled, so that the simple may precede the complex, and each teacher grades her work with the same view." He pours out his desire for the years, for the good old times when pupils began the study of arithmetic and other branches by learning a series of definitions. He says: "I was taught that arithmetic is the science of numbers and the art of computation. To make this perfectly clear, I had further to learn that science is knowledge systematized and explained. I have never forgotten these definitions, and I think I never will, though it took years to make them full of meaning. That was the day of the old education, when the mind was early furnished with a store of true and matured forms to which a growing experience gave greater significance; the day of faith in text-books and lesson-hearing." After this, our old teacher says, "came a new day—true, very dark educationally, but very acceptable to the superficial teacher; no more memorizing; out with the text-books; in with the objects—splints, beans, shoe-pegs, corn, sand, stones numeral frames, charts, globes, pictures, colors, moulding boards, anything and everything—the more the merrier. The child will now learn by doing. All over the country the festive educator beamed with joy as he heralded the era of 'things before words.' 'Create a need for a term before giving it.' 'Never tell a child anything it can find out for itself.

Our author closes his plaint by stating that the mistaken devotees of the new education "make the teacher a variety show of 'sounding brass and and tinkling cymbal,' and the child 'pleased with a rattle and tickled with a splint.' "

"Pupils in arithmetic should be first thoroughly grounded in the fundamental principles, and the rules applied practically. Set the boys to measure the wood pile, ascertain the dimensions of the room, and work out a hundred other problems upon things within sight. When the power to handle these tangible problems has been acquired thoroughly, the use of the symbols will come easily and naturally.

Northern Michigan News.

Six stores and one residence fell victims to the devouring flames at St. Ignace, May 26.

The fruit prospects were never better in the Grand Traverse region at this time of the year than now.

Oli Olson, long in the employ of the Pine Lake Iron Co's store, has gone to his native home, Denmark.

Darrah's cut of long timber banked at Clarion, is being hauled over the G. R. & I. to the Harbor, where it is boomed and rafted.

A. K. Smith & Co. of Clarion, manufacturers of wooden bowls, are shipping more bowls than ever before since the factory was started.

A young man whose name is supposed to be Charles Ables, was found drowned in Grass river, Antrim county, on Saturday, May 21st.

We hear that Ben. F. Ingalls has disposed of his saloon property at Boyne City, and contemplates moving to Alabama for his wife's health.

The Muskegon News says that it is rumored that M. F. Quaintance, formerly of Petoskey, is to be transferred from Muskegon to some other point, but does not say where.

The steamer Time, which has been running on the inland lakes back of Elk Rapids, is to be put on the inland route between Cheboygan and Petoskey. Capt. Charles Garland will be master of her and takes her to Cheboygan in a few days to be fitted out for her work.

There is a place on Silver lake, on the west side, a little south of where the Marsh mill used to stand, where natural gas escapes in considerable quantities. The road passes along the shore of the lake and at the place where the gas escapes crosses an arm of shoal water running back several rods into the land. A turnpike and causway crosses this shoal and it is here that the gas comes up through the water in large bubbles, which ignite readily when a lighted match is applied, bursting into a large flame. This together with the manifestations on the bay is almost proof positive that Traverse City stands over a supply of oil or natural gas, that needs only to be tapped to be made available.—Traverse Bay Eagle.

Boyne Falls Gazette: Dr. G. W. Crouter, of Charlevoix, was here Saturday canvassing scrip for the purpose of erecting a telephone wire between here, East Jordan, Dwight's Landing, Boyne City and Horton's Bay. The inhabitants quickly took up $215 worth, which with $300 taken at East Jordan and $75 at Dwight's Landing leaves less than half of the necessary $1000 to be raised in the other two towns. * * * J. W. Barnes has obtained a contract to clear and fence four miles of railroad, leading south of the cattle guard that side of the depot. Contracts for clearing and fencing the entire distance from Mancelona to Petoskey have been taken up and the work will be proceeded with at once.

East Jordan Enterprise: The steamer Cummings carried one hundred and fifty people from East Jordan, South Arm and Dwight's, to Rock Elm on Sunday to attend the meeting held in the grove by the Rev. Mr. Grover. The Clara Belle also brought a large number from Advance and Horton's Bay, and when combined with the crowd already gathered they made quite a concourse. After a fine sermon by Mr. Grover the ordinance of baptism by immersion, was administered to fifteen persons.——H. Haladay sold his farm of forty acres near Advance, to John Heher, for $1,000 cash. Mr. Halladay contemplates moving to New York.——While at Charlevoix last Monday, W. McMillen, of this place, met two of his old comrades, in fact members of his own company, that he had not seen nor heard of since the war. They were C. T. Boucher and Nelson Ainslie, of Charlevoix. They supposed McMillen was dead, and as matter of course a lively greeting took place.——Jeff Weikel and Benb Glenn now have two deer in their Zoological Garden.

Petoskey Record: It will be remembered that the residence of Mr. Tobias Wise was burglarized last fall and four watches and certificates of deposit for a large amount taken. The certificates of deposit were of course valueless as payment was stopped, but in spite of all efforts on the part of the officers no clue was obtained which even justified suspicion. It is now evident that the burglar was and is a resident of Petoskey, and it is further evident that in spite of his crime he retains some conscience and good feeling. On Sunday, May 22nd, Mr. Wise and family were suddenly and terribly afflicted in the loss of their son George by the Coral disaster. On Friday morning the watches—somewhat tarnished by evident burial in the earth, were found wrapped up in a package and deposited on the porch of his residence on Mitchell street. While the burglar was bad enough to steal, he shared in the universal sympathy, and sought in this way to manifest his feeling.

President Cleveland and his wife are taking a vacation in the Adirondacks, and thus far seem to have had more bites from musquitoes and black flies than from trout.

Announcement is made that Mr. Blaine sails for Europe this week. What will the Democrats and Mugwumps do then, poor things? For without doubt he has some deep-laid scheme on hand of which they know not.

The acquittal of a man who killed a member of a charivari party in Alpena county is another warning against that barbaric and vulgar custom. Juries are apt to pronounce that the killing of a charivari ruffian serves him right.

With protection planting itself in every section of the country by diversified industries, it is time to stop the free trade babble. It is no more in accord with the genius of our institutions than is the anarchy of Herr Most, and both strike at every vital energy of a people whose whole wealth and grandeur are in their industry.

The law forbids any pensioner bargaining, selling or promising his quarterly pension to any dealer or person before it has been paid, and on the other hand, are forbidden to accept the same in any manner as security or otherwise. The line is fixed at $100 for any violation of the act and is equal upon the soldier and the dealer.

The New York Sun evidently does not believe that Mr. Cleveland can be elected to a second term, even if the office-holding machine succeeds in forcing his renomination, for it says: "The only certain way in which the South could retain Mr. Cleveland as their executive, would be to establish another government and make him the more or less permanent head thereof; but acts of that sort do not enter into the calculations of modern statesmen, and such a one is not likely to be seriously considered now, even for Mr. Cleveland's sake."

Detroit Tribune: Some of the amendments made to the Bates bill in the Senate are less restrictive than many of the friends of the measure would like to see incorporated, especially those with reference to penalties and sureties. It is to be hoped that friends of the bill will be able to prevent its being sent to the morgue by the amendment route. In the House a decided sentiment in favor of local option by counties was brought out in committee of the whole. The temperance people of the state desire to see practical measures adopted for the diminution of the drink evil.

The State Game and Fish Warden and his deputies in various parts of the State are doing much good in protecting the game and fish. Many arrests for the violation of the game laws have been made, the violators convicted and fined. The State is spending thousands of dollars every year in propagating fish and replenishing the streams and lakes of the state by planting the young fry, and it is right that this work should be protected. Representative Perkins, chairman of the House committee on fisheries, has accomplished a good work by getting a bill through to give further protection to the fish industry of our state. The great difficulty is in seeing that these various laws are enforced. While the Game and Fish Warden bill appears to provide for the enforcement of these protective laws, it has a weak spot in the proviso that the Boards of Supervisors shall provide for the compensation of the deputy warden in the respective counties. This they have done in some counties, while in others, and in many of them, no provision has been made, and it cannot be expected that the deputies will devote their time to looking after violations of the law without being compensated.

Bank of

Charlevoix,

W. F. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security

Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers

Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to Speculate with ones own money, is folly; that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking

Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors; and, believing that it furnishes unusual guarantees, therefore,

This Bank Invites

People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will

Borrow Investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking

Productive employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes,

Now earning Five per cent. yearly Interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

Probate Order.

State of Michigan, county of Charlevoix ss. At a session of the Probate court for said county, held at the Probate office, in the village of Boyne City on the 13th day of May in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty seven. Present, James A. Keat, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Josiah Gibson, deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Elizabeth Gibson asking that an administrator be appointed [illegible] said estate. Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the [illegible] day of June next, at one o'clock in the afternoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are requested to appear at a session of court, then to be holden in the Probate Office in the Village of Boyne City, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted: And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

JAMES A. KEAT, Judge of Probate.

(A true copy.)

Mortgage Sale.

A mortgage dated January 12th, 1881 executed by Andrew Holmes and Mery Holmes (his wife), to the Wayne County Savings Bank of Detroit, Michigan, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Charlevoix County, Michigan, January 17th, 1881, in liber 7 of mortgages on page 382, upon which the whole amount is due and unpaid to wit: The sum of one hundred and twelve and thirteen one [illegible] dollars ($112.13) for the recovery of which no suit or proceedings at law have been commenced, will be foreclosed under the power of sale therein contained by a statutory sale of the premises described therein as lot number one in section number fourteen, town number thirty-four north of range eight west (except five acres from the north east corner) containing fifty acres (according to the government survey) of land in Charlevoix County, Michigan to the highest bidder, at the front door of the county building (so called) in the village of Boyne City, in the county of Charlevoix (that being the place of holding the circuit court for the county of Charlevoix), at 12 o'clock noon, Friday, June 17th, 1887.

Dated March 22d, 1887.

WAYNE COUNTY SAVINGS BANK, of Detroit, Mortgagee.

D. P. PAGE, Attorney for Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a certain indenture of Mortgage bearing date Nov. 15th, A. D. 1881, made by and between Albert Dukenville, bachelor of Charlevoix county, Michigan, party of the first part, to Morgan Curtis of Kalamazoo county, Michigan, party of the second part, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, on the 19th day of Nov. A. D. 1881 in Liber 5 of Mortgages at page 437 and by which default the power of sale in said Mortgage contained, has become operative, and no suit or proceedings either in law or equity having been instituted to collect the amount due on said Mortgage, and there being due thereon the sum of one hundred and sixty-five dollars, therefore the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described in said Mortgage on the 19th day of July A. D. 1887, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day by sale at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the County building, in the village of Boyne City, and county of Charlevoix, (that being the place for holding the Circuit court for the county of Charlevoix, wherein the lands described in said mortgage are situated), of the mortgaged premises described in said Mortgage or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount due on said Mortgage. The premises described in said Mortgage are as follows: the south east quarter of the north east quarter of section thirty-two, of town thirty-two north of range five west, Charlevoix county, Michigan.

Dated Kalkaska, Mich., April the 19th, A. D., 1887.

A. A. BLEAZBY, Atty for Mortgagee. MORGAN CURTIS, Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in a certain indenture of Mortgage bearing date December the first, 1880, made by and between David Norton and Hannah Norton, his wife of Charlevoix, Michigan, party of the first part, to Mary E. Manley, of Wayne county, New York, party of the second part, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Charlevoix county, Michigan, on the second day of Feb. A. D. 1881, in Liber 8 of Mortgages at page 220, and upon which there is now due and unpaid the sum of seventy-two dollars and no action having been taken either in law or equity to collect the same; therefore the said Mortgage will be foreclosed under the power of sale therein contained by statutory sale of the premises therein described at the front door of the County building in the village of Boyne City, and county of Charlevoix, (that being the place for holding the Circuit court for the county of Charlevoix, in which said county, the lands described in said Mortgage are situated), at ten o'clock in the forenoon of the 19th day of July, A. D. 1887. The premises described in said mortgage are as follows: the north-east quarter of the south-west quarter and the north-west quarter of the south-east quarter of section twenty-four of town thirty-three, north of range seven west, Charlevoix county state of Michigan, said premises will be sold subject to the principal sum of Eight hundred dollars yet to become due on said Mortgage together with the accruing interest thereon.

Dated Kalkaska, Mich., April the 16th, A. D. 1887.

A. A. BLEAZBY, Atty for Mortgagee. MARY E. MANLEY, Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a certain indenture of mortgage bearing date the 13th day of December, A. D. 1881, executed by Richard Lake and Phebe E. Lake (his wife), of Charlevoix County, State of Michigan, to Otis Ross, of South Haven, Van Buren County, State of Michigan, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, in liber "4" of mortgages on page 491 on the 11th day of March, A. D. 1882, by which default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative and upon which said mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of two thousand [illegible] hundred and sixty dollars and thirty-two cents ([illegible]) for principal and interest, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the amount now due, or any part thereof, now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided there will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House in the village of Boyne City, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan (that being the place for holding the Circuit Court for said County of Charlevoix), on Thursday the 30th day of June, A. D. 1887, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon of said day the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to satisfy the amount due upon said mortgage together with the costs and charges of sale and interest to wit: The south west quarter (¼) and the north west quarter (¼) and the north east quarter (¼) of the south east quarter (¼) of section No. twenty-three (23) in township No. thirty-three (33) north of range No. seven (7) west, containing three hundred and sixty acres according to the United States survey. Also the north half (½) of the north east quarter (¼) of section No. twenty-seven (27) in township No. thirty-three (33) north range No. seven (7) west containing eighty acres according to the United States survey in the County of Charlevoix in the State of Michigan.

Dated March 7, 1887.

JAMES H. JOHNSON, Attorney for Mortgagee. OTIS ROSS, Mortgagee.

W. A. REYNARD,

Has just received at his Fruit Store in the Lewis Block, a choice line of

Vegetables and Fruits

OF ALL KINDS,

TO WHICH OTHERS WILL BE ADDED IN SEASON.

I will also keep in stock a full line of

Tobaccos and Cigars.

Butter and Eggs a Specialty.

CHARLEVOIX

Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Henry Bennett, John Nicholls, A. R. Upright, F. A. Smith, O. D. Wood, A. Buttars, A. Fox.

CAPITAL, ... $25,000
SURPLUS, ... 2,000

The liabilities of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art. 3174, Sec. 40 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:

NATIONAL PARK BANK, New York.
COMMERCIAL NAT. BANK, Chicago.
NAT. CITY BANK, Grand Rapids.
DETROIT NAT. BANK, Detroit.

Notice of Dissolution.

The Co-partnership heretofore existing between the undersigned in the name of Rosenthal & Son is this day dissolved by mutual consent. The business will be hence conducted by Alick Rosenthal to whom all indebtedness of said firm will be paid.

SAMUEL ROSENTHAL.
ALICK ROSENTHAL.

Dated Charlevoix, May 5th 1887.

CROSS & SONS.,

Buy and Sell all kinds of

Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.

Charlevoix, - Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY,

Photographer.

In Bradbeer's Gallery.

Photographs of all sizes taken.

Old Pictures copied and enlarged.

CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

New JEWELRY AND SILVER WARE.

I have just received a very fine stock of

Watches, Chains, Pins, Clocks, Silver-Ware, etc

which I will sell at Prices lower than the same goods can be purchased outside.

Did it ever occur to you that by patronizing home Merchants you were benefiting yourselves?

All classes of Repairing done quickly.

C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,

ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR,

—ON—

Chalevoix Summer Resorts.

I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.

I employ only first-class workmen, both

Carpenters and Painters.

Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention

J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

Fox & Miller

Offer a

Mammoth Stock

OF

BOOTS, SHOES

and other

FOOT WEAR,

--AT--

LOWER PRICES

Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a FIRST-CLASS SHOEMAKER,

And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

The Kalamazoo

"DAILY TELEGRAPH."

Contains the Associated Press Dispatches

Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.

Charlevoix, Mich.

Manufacturers of and Wholesale and Retail Dealers

3 EXTRA GRADES OF

FLOUR

Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

We will exchange work for farmers on short notice.

M. LITNEY. JOS. STEIMEL

Litney & Steimel

LIVERY,

And Feed Barn

Charlevoix, Mich.

Good Rigs at Lowest Rates.

It Pays to Buy the

BEST BOATS!

The large number of boats I have built for resorters, are advertisements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.

I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the

LEAST MONEY!

All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.

LEAVE ORDERS

with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.

Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.

J. BEAUVAIS.

BOOTS & SHOES

Have you seen our $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00 Gents Shoes?

If not do so at once. They are made solid throughout even to the counter. You'll have no trouble with these goods running over at the heel.

These goods cannot be equalled in the county

Either in style, quality or price. We will take pains this season to have in stock goods that will suit all. New ad. soon on Ladies' Fine Shoes of latest styles New York, Common Sense, and London Toes.

Ladies Look Out

For the new line of latest style goods that is on the road for

D. SHERWOOD & CO.

A. J. McLEOD,

Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at

Wholesale or Retail

All kinds of

FRESH MEATS,

SALT PORK,

SMOKED & SALTED

HAMS,

Dried and Smoked

BACON, DRIED BEEF,

Bologna, Head Cheese,

Sausage.

Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.

Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.

A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S

MARKET

Is supplied with

All Kinds Of

MEATS

At Lowest Prices.

CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.

Corner of State & Mason sts.,

JOHN McCABE.

Washburn & Ackert.

FOUNDREYMEN, MACHINISTS,

And Manufacturers of The

Charlevoix Plow.

Take The Sentinel.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law. Office in Buttars' Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PAILTHORPE & GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon, 4 doors west of Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office at residence, Main st. Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 113, meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

MASONIC.—Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M. Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Post office.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake Lodge No. 291, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

K. O. T. M.—Resort Tent No. 138, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' Hall.

I. O. L.—True Blues No. 157, meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. 101, R. A. M. meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 36, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of the members, during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.

President—Byron Sec.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller.
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strang.
Financial Secretary—B. Suffield.
Treasurer—Albert E. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. D. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. Lee Iddings, W. A. Brown and O. Y. Cook.
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. E. Barthelomew, M. J. Stockman, H. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, R. W. Miller, S. M. Sec, W. G. [illegible], M. Clark, H. Berdan.

All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequalled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the traveling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids Stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,
Lorenzo Cook, Manager
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only 100 feet to Steamboat Landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE,
W. C. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Fitted up with a view to the Comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central Location.

PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and Dock work solicited at any point between Traverse City and Mackinac. L. E. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

MUNROE'S STEAM PILE DRIVER. Dock owners and Builders, look to your interest. Contracts taken and dock work solicited at any point between Sault St Marie and Grand Haven. Correspondence promptly attended to. Address, JOHN MUNROE, Jr., Gen'l Manager, South Arm, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. E. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. (Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.)

DENTIST

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office in Weed's Drug Store, Charlevoix, Mich.

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R.

"Mackinac Short Line."

Only direct line between the east and south and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Going West read down			Going East read up
	3 45 pm	Detroit	11 10 am
7 00 am	6 50 am	St Ignace	8 30 pm	5 55 pm
10 25	8 52	Newberry	6 21	2 05
12 20	9 40	Seney	5 35	12 35
	10 42	Reedsboro	4 16
3 25	11 31	Au Train	3 25	9 05
5 30	12 40	Marquette	2 15	7 00
	12 50 pm	Marquette	2 00 pm
	1 55	Ishpeming	12 58
	4 10	L'Anse	10 40
	5 35	Houghton	9 20
	6 35	Calumet	8 15

Connections made with M T Co's boats, M C & G R & I R R & M R & O
E. W. ALLEN, Gen Pass Agt, Marquette

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad

IN EFFECT SEPTEMBER 27, 1886.

(Trains run on Central Standard Time.)

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	No 6	No 8	No 4
Mackinaw City Lv	7 15 a m	9 30 p m
Petoskey	8 34	10 51
Boyne Falls	9 18	11 35
Mancelona	10 18	12 30
Walton June	11 50	1 50	5 15 p m
Cadillac Ar	12 40	2 50	6 10
Cadillac Lv	12 45	6 05	6 20
Le Roy	1 24	6 46	7 07
Reed City Ar	1 55	7 20	7 40
Reed City Lv	2 15	7 45	8 00
Big Rapids	2 46	8 11	8 33
Stanwood	3 05	8 30	8 53
Howard City	3 35	9 03	9 26
D G H & M Cross	4 10	10 15	10 35
Grand Rapids Ar	4 55	10 30	10 50
Grand Rapids Lv	7 15	5 15	11 45
Plainwell	8 38	6 41	1 12
Kalamazoo Ar	9 05	7 10	1 40
Kalamazoo Lv	9 10	7 30	2 00
Sturgis	10 27	8 59	3 28
Ft Wayne Ar	12 40	11 20	6 00
Ft Wayne Lv	1 00	11 40
Richmond	4 30	3 50
Cincinnati Ar	7 30	7 25

GOING NORTH.

STATIONS	No 3	No 5	No 7
Cincinnati, leave	7 35 a m	7 20 p m
Richmond	10 56	10 00
Fort Wayne Ar	1 50	1 15
Fort Wayne Lv	2 10	2 09
Sturgis	4 24	3 25
Kalamazoo Ar	5 45	5 55
Kalamazoo Lv	5 50	7 20
Plainwell	6 16	7 48
Grand Rapids Ar	7 40	9 20
Grand Rapids Lv	11 20	4 55
D., G., H., & M. cross	11 45	5 10
Howard City	12 50	6 18
Stanwood	1 22	6 4[illegible]
Big Rapids	1 40	7 09
Reed City Ar	2 15	7 40
Reed City Lv	2 35	8 00
Le Roy	3 06	8 33
Cadillac Ar	3 45	9 15
Cadillac Lv	3 55	9 40
Walton June	4 42	10 25
Mancelona	6 16	11 50
Boyne Falls	6 56	12 35
Petoskey	7 50	1 30
Mackinaw City	9 50	2 55

C. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass. Agent.

DREAM OF THE BLIND.

At What Age May a Child Lose All Memory of the Visible World?

Among the papers read before the biographical section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science was one on "The Dreams of the Blind," by Dr. Joseph Jastrow of Philadelphia. The object of the paper was to determine the extreme age at which a child may become blind and yet lose all memory of the visible world, so that it no longer sees in its dreams.

"Almost all dreams of normal persons," the paper says, "are sight dreams, and a dream is often spoken of as a vision. The blind are deprived of this most important sense; but if they have not been born blind they may remember enough of what they have seen to enable them to imagine how things look, and when the imagination has free play in sleep to picture themselves as in full possession of all their senses. Physiologists would explain this by saying that during the years in which they saw a certain part of the brain has become educated to receive and interpret all these messages which the eye sends, and that when this part of the brain acts spontaneously in sleep the person dreams of seeing. Such a portion of the brain would be called the sight center.

"If now we find out the latest age at which blindness may set in and yet the person keep on dreaming of seeing, we will find out the time it takes for this sight center to develop, for of course it is not present in the newborn infant. For this purpose about 200 blind persons of both sexes were questioned at the institution for the blind in Philadelphia and Baltimore, and it was found that those who became blind before their fifth year never dreamed of seeing; of those whose sight was lost between the fifth and seventh year some did and some did not see in their dreams; while all whose eyesight was destroyed after the seventh year had quite as vivid dream visions as seeing people. The fifth to the seventh year is thus shown to be the critical period. This period corresponds with the age which authorities assign as the limit at which a child becoming deaf will also become dumb, and also with the age of one's earliest continuous memory of one's self.

"It is interesting to note that blind persons dream quite as frequently as normal people, and that with those who do not see in their dreams hearing plays the principal part. When dreaming of home, for instance, they will hear their father's voice or their sister singing, and perhaps will feel the familiar objects in the room, and thus know they are at home. We, in such a case, would see it all."—Philadelphia Press.

Health "Dont's."

Don't neglect your house-drains, nor the drainage about your house. The first condition of family health is a dry and sweet atmosphere. With dry walls, a dry cellar, and drains that carry off refuse without letting in foul gases, half the battle for good health is won.

Don't let your wells or springs be infected by drainage or from other causes. Pure drinking water is indispensable for health at home or anywhere.

Don't keep the sun out of your living or sleeping-rooms. Sunlight is absolutely necessary for a right condition of the atmosphere that we breathe, and for our bodily well-being.

Don't sleep in the same flannels that you wear during the day.

Don't wear thin socks or light-soled shoes in cold or wet weather.

Don't catch cold. Catching cold is much more preventable than is generally supposed. A person in good physical condition is not liable to colds, and will not fall victim to them unless he is grossly careless. Keep the feet warm and dry, the head cool, the bowels and chest well protected; avoid exposure with an empty stomach; take care not to cool off too rapidly when heated; keep out of draughts; wear flannels; and with the exercise of a little common sense in various emergencies, colds will be rare. If colds were a penal offense we should soon find a way to prevent them.

Don't neglect personal cleanliness, but use the bath with moderation and in accordance with your general health. The daily cold bath is right enough with the rugged, but it is a great tax upon the vitality of persons not in the best health, and should be abandoned if the results are not found to be favorable, and tepid water used instead. Each man in these things should be a judge for himself; that which is excellent for one is often hurtful for another.

Don't have much confidence in the curative nature of drugs. Remember that Dr. Good-Habits, Dr. Diet and Dr. Exercise are the best doctors in the world.—Youth's Companion.

To Prevent Rabies.

More than half a century ago a French chemist and surgeon declared that "chlorine has the power of decomposing and destroying the deadly poison of the saliva of the mad dogs." The truth of that statement has been reaffirmed repeatedly by physicians and others since it was then published, but is evidently known by few people. The remedy is prepared and applied as a wash by dissolving two tablespoonfuls of chloruret of lime in half a pint of water, and with it instantly and repeatedly bathing the bitten part. The liquid is absorbed and the poison decomposed. Dr. Worthington, of Annapolis, recommended years ago the giving of chlorine internally and hypodermically. He says: "It is a stimulant and astringent, in the first case helping to raise the vital powers, and in the second case lessening the capillity of the circulation, and retarding the dissemination of the poison through the economy. If chloride of lime applied to the wound will decompose the virus with which it comes in contact it is reasonable to assume that some of it will be absorbed by the vessels, and decompose the virus in the circulation. If this is a fair assumption it is plausible, practicable, and possible to meet the poison within the system and destroy it." The remedy above described is so cheap, readily available, and simple in its application externally that no family need be without a supply ready for instant use. It has been known to be effective when applied within six hours after the infliction of the bite.

"Roscoe Conkling," said a Maiden lane jeweler the other day, "has a broad mind. He is not only a great lawyer, but his general information is great. He has a great many chains and charms, and he calls them all keepsakes. He asks questions about the jewelry business which prove that he knows what he is talking about. The other day, when he ordered a pair of sleeve-buttons, he drew a diagram showing just the size and thickness he wanted them made. No jeweler could have drawn it more clearly or more correctly."

A Long-Neglected Sense.

Isn't it a little singular, don't you think," said Dr. H. R. Allen, "that the nose, the organ of smelling, has, through all the long centuries, been neglected in the matter of education? All the other senses, save alone that of smelling, are cultivated and improved. Take that of sight, which has been aided and educated by means of the microscope and telescope, not to speak of spectacles, which overcome visual deficiencies and continue old eyes in useful employment to the last moment of existence. If you have a daughter with a piano, or neighbors similarly endowed, you know what has been done in educating the touch. By educating the finger tips the blind are enabled to read. The senses of hearing and of taste are both educated.

"Take the practical arts. What a blessing a plumber or health officer would be with a nose trained to his business. What a sweet boon a specialist would be who, with a sniff or two in the suspected locality, would be able to say, 'this is malaria,' 'that's scarlatina,' 'here's typhoid fever.' Isn't it strange that this last quarter of the nineteenth century, big with great inventions, has done nothing for this long-neglected sense? Then the shape of the nose, it is not unlikely that it has greatly degenerated in form from what it once was. Take an old coin of Rome or Greece, and you will readily satisfy yourself that this is no mere assumption. Roman and Grecian noses of pure types are now exceedingly rare. These distinctive types are merging into a conglomerate nose. It is said that character depends largely upon the form of the nose. Why, then leave so much to chance? Why not train up a nose in the way it should go?

"If a person has a good nose, a nose of character, he usually, like the blue china, endeavors to live up to it. To elevate the race, then, would it not be well to begin with the nose? I have little doubt a pug nose has, in many cases, been more burdensome than the proverbial millstone. Many a boy of good intentions has perhaps been turned aside from the path of high endeavor by discovering the formative period that his nose was a pug or of some other plebian form. Many, it is true, have been able to rise above such a discouraging endowment, but no one can compute the thousands who have fallen after a noble but ineffectual struggle against a nose."

TIME CARDS OF STEAMERS

STANDARD TIME.

Charlevoix and East Jordan.

STR. NORTH STAR, ... CAPT. MAT THOMPSON
Leaving Charlevoix at 6:30 a m and 1:30 p m and returning leave East Jordan for Charlevoix at 9:30 am and 4 p m, touching at intermediate points both ways.

Boyne City and Charlevoix.

STR. CLARA BELLE, ... CAPT. GEO. JEPSON.
Leave Boyne City at 6:30 a. m. and 1:00 p. m. and Charlevoix at 9:30 a. m., and 5 p. m. connecting with the Friant and Cummings to and from Petoskey, Touching at way parts.

Charlevoix and Boyne City.

STR. JOSEPH GORDON .... CAPT. LEWIS GEARD.
Leave Charlevoix at 6:30 a. m. and 1 p. m., and Boyne City at 9:30 a.m., 4 p. m., touching at way ports

Harbor Springs, Charlevoix & E. Jordan.

STR. THOS. FRIANT .... CAPT. R. VANDERHOEF.
MORNING: Leave Harbor Springs, 7:30; Petoskey, 8:00; Charlevoix, 9:30; arrive, East Jordan 11:30. AFTERNOON: Leave East Jordan 1:30; Charlevoix, 4:00; Petoskey, 5:30; arrive, Harbor Spring, 6:00

East Jordan, Charlevoix & Harbor Spgs.

LOU A. CUMMINGS, ... CAPT. W. A. SNYDER.
MORNING: Leave East Jordan 7 a. m.; Charlevoix, 9; Petoskey, 11; arrive at Harbor Springs 11:30. AFTERNOON: Leave Harbor Springs, 1 p. m.; Petoskey, 1:30; Charlevoix, 3; arrive at East Jordan, 5:30 p. m.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN LINE.

PROP. CHAMPLAIN .... Capt. Edw. Carey.
Going North, Chicago Tuesdays 8 p m; Charlevoix, Thursdays 11 p m; Cheboygan, Fridays 2:30 p m. Going South, Cheboygan, Fridays 5 p m; Charlevoix, Saturdays 2:30 p m; Milwaukee, Mondays 5 p m; Chicago, Mondays 11 p m.

PROP. LAWRENCE .... Capt Geo. Thorp.
Going North, Chicago, Fridays 8 p m; Charlevoix, Sundays 3 p m; Cheboygan, Mondays 9 a m. Going South, Cheboygan, Mondays 4 p m; Charlevoix, Tuesdays 8 a m; Milwaukee, Wednesdays 4 p m; Chicago, Thursdays 12 m.

Upright & Emrey, agents, Charlevoix.

HANNAH, LAY & CO'S BOATS.

CITY OF GRAND RAPIDS .... Capt. O. E. Wilbur.
Going North, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays: Leave Traverse City 7 a m; Northport 9:30; Charlevoix 11:30; Petoskey 1:30 p m; Harbor Springs 2; Cross Village 4:30; Mackinac Island 7:15 arriving at St. Ignace 8:20.
Going South, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays: Leave St. Ignace 6:30 a m; Mackinac Island 7; Cross Village 10:15; Harbor Springs 12:45 p m; Petoskey 1:45; Charlevoix 2:45; Northport 5:15 p m, arriving at Traverse City at 7:45 p m.

J. L. Hunt & Co., Agents, Charlevoix.

Very Remarkable Recovery.

Mr. Geo. V. Willing, of Manchester, Mich., writes: "My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone. She used two Bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved that she is able now to do her own work."

Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of testimonials attest their great curative powers. Only fifty cents a bottle at Dr. G. W. Crouter's

Excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Tex., by the remarkable recovery of Mr. J. E. Corley, who was so helpless he could not turn in bed, or raise his head; everybody said he was dying of Consumption. A trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes of Pills and two bottles of the Discovery, he was well and had gained in flesh thirty-six pounds. Trial Bottles of this Great Discovery for Consumption free at Dr. G. W. Crouter's

Old papers for sale at this office.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix. tf

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter

Pan-Zama Balm

THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES. The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Trouble to which womankind is heir—$1 per box of one month's treatment. Reliable Lady Agents can make money for themselves and become benefactors to their race by engaging in the sale of this remedy. For medicine and particulars, Address PAN-ZAMA MED CO., Frankfort, Ind.

W. H. FRANCIS

FURNITURE

—AND—

JOBBING SHOP,

Will also do

Contracting & Building,

in Charlevoix, and Summer Resorts.

I keep in my shop a full set of hand and foot power machinery which enables me to do jobbing, repairing etc. on short notice.

Shop on South Terrace,

Opposite Sheriff Berdan's residence.

NEW SHOP!

All kinds of

Blacksmithing,

At the

Shop in the Foundry Building.

Horseshoeing a specialty.

ALL WORK GUARANTEED.

M. SCOTT.

MILLINERY,

FANCY GOODS,

DRESS-MAKING.

We have just opened a large line of Spring and Summer Millinery and Fancy Goods to which we invite your attention.

DRESS-MAKING done on the TAILOR SYSTEM. The best work done at the lowest rates

ALDRICH SISTERS.

Ingleside Building.

MERCHANT

TAILORING.

I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.

Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.

Call and see me. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,

C. H. Maddaugh.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S

LIVERY STABLE

CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.

Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

Farming Lands

500,000 ACRES

Of Splendid

MICHIGAN LANDS

For Sale By The

G. R. & I. R. R.

50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.

These lands are timbered with beach and maple [illegible] and other wood and are accessible to best markets

By Water and Rail

And are in a state unequalled for health, well watered and contiguous to the great fruit raising section of Michigan

The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad runs through the center of the grant. The part of Michigan in which these lands are situated is

Not a Wilderness by any Means.

It contains a population of 250,000 souls and is rapidly filling up with settlers from almost every state in the Union

Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold.

Send for English or German Pamphlet, Address

W. H. HUGHART, Commissioner,

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.

TITLE PERFECT.

CHARLEVOIX

Manufacturing Co.

Charlevoix, Mich.,

Manufacturers of

Sash and Doors,

Blinds, Mouldings etc.

NEWELL

Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails

kept in stock.

Window & Door Frames made to order.

All Kinds of

Building Material

Kept constantly on hand.

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS,

Furnished on application.

Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building

Correspondence solicited.

MARVELOUS PRICES!

BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away. The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, and all are printed from good type upon good paper. They treat of a great variety of subjects, and we think no one can examine the list without finding therein many that he or she would like to possess. In cloth-bound form these books would cost $1.00 each. [illegible]

1. The Widow Bedott Papers. [illegible]
2. Winter Evening Recreations, [illegible]
3. Back to the Old Home. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Hidden Perils," etc.
4. Dialogues, Recitations and Readings, a large and choice collection for school exhibitions and public and private entertainments.
5. The Standard Letter Writer for Ladies and Gentlemen, a complete guide to correspondence, giving plain directions for the composition of letters of every kind, with innumerable forms and examples.
6. The Frozen Deep. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
7. Red Court Farm. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne," etc.
8. The Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott. "The Lady of the Lake" is a romance in verse, and of all the works of Scott, none is more beautiful than this.
9. In Cupid's Net. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
10. Amos Barton. A Novel. By George Eliot, author of "Adam Bede," "The Mill on the Floss," etc.
11. Lady Gwendoline's Dream. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
12. The Mystery of the Holly Tree. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
13. The Budget of Wit, Humor and Fun, a large collection of the funny stories, sketches, anecdotes, poems, and jokes.
14. John Bowerbank's Wife. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
15. The Gray Woman. A Novel. By Mrs Gaskell, author of "Mary Barton," etc.
16. Sixteen Complete Stories by Popular Authors, embracing love, humorous and detective stories, stories of society life, of adventure, of railway life, etc., all very interesting.
17. Jasper Dane's Secret. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Aurora Floyd," etc.
18. Fancy Work for Home Adornment, an entirely new work upon this subject, containing easy and practical instructions for making fancy baskets, wall pockets, brackets, needle work, embroidery, etc., etc., profusely and elegantly illustrated.
19. Grimm's Fairy Stories for the Young. The finest collection of fairy stories published. The children are delighted with them.
20. Manual of Etiquette for Ladies and Gentlemen, a guide to politeness and good breeding, giving the rules of modern etiquette for all occasions.
21. Useful Knowledge for the Million, a handy book of useful information for all, upon many and various subjects.
22. The Home Cook Book and Family Physician, containing hundreds of excellent cooking recipes and hints to housekeepers, also telling how to cure all common ailments by simple home remedies.
23. Manners and Customs in Far Away Lands, a very interesting and instructive book of travels, describing the peculiar life, habits, manners and customs of the people of foreign countries.
24. 37 Popular Ballads. Same size as sheet music. Words of all the old and new songs.
25. Called Back. A Novel. By Hugh Conway.
26. At the World's Mercy. A Novel. By Florence Warden, author of "The House on the Marsh," etc.
27. Mildred Trevanion. A Novel. By "The Duchess," author of "Molly Bawn," etc.
28. Dark Days. A Novel. By the author of "Called Back."
29. Shadows on the Snow. A Novel. By B. L. Farjeon, author of "Bread and Cheese and Kisses," etc.
30. Leoline. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Brenda Yorke," etc.
31. Gabriel's Marriage. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "No Name," etc.
32. Reaping the Whirlwind. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Old Middleton's Money," etc.
33. Dudley Carleon. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Lady Audley's Secret," etc.
34. A Golden Dawn. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
35. Valerie's Fate. A Novel. By Mrs. Alexander, author of "The Wooing O't," etc.
36. Sister Rose. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
37. Anne. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne."
38. The Laurel Bush. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
39. Robinson Crusoe. A thrilling narrative by Daniel De Foe, describing the adventures of a castaway in the South Pacific Ocean.
40. How to Make Poultry Pay. A practical and instructive series of articles by Mr. P. H. Jacobs, Poultry Editor of "The Farm and Garden," Phila. Illustrated.
41. Parlor Magic and Chemical Experiments, a book which tells how to perform hundreds of amusing tricks in magic and instructive experiments with simple agents.
42. Gems of the Poets, containing charming selections from Tennyson, Longfellow, Whittier, Byron, Shelley, Moore, Bryant, and many others.
43. Building Plans for Practical, Low-cost Houses. A full description and plans of Eight modern houses, ranging in price from $500 to $4500. Illustrated.
44. Anecdotes of Public Men—Washington, Franklin, Webster, Clay, Tilden, Lincoln, Scott, Grant, Garfield, Gladstone, Butler, Hancock, Lee, and all the leading men of the century.
45. Æsop's Fables. The work of an ancient genius. Children have read them for centuries, and grown people quote them every day.

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.

We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $3.00; or we will send any five for 25 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of

"SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

GRENADES.

Two Sizes—Pints and Quarts.

Over Sixty Millions Sold.

PRICES.

Pints, - Per Doz., $10.00.
Quarts, - " " 15.00.

"STAR"

Tubular Fire Extinguisher.

Glass Tube, 19x2½ in. Holds 1 quart.

In this device we combine the BEST QUALITIES of our famous Grenades with the NEW feature of having an article that can be used by Sprinkling. It is designed especially for use in Passenger Coaches and Dwellings. It is elegant as ornamentation. It is cheap and reliable. No rust; no corrosion possible.

Plain, $12.00 per doz.
Ornamt'd, 15.00 per doz.

The "Star" EXTINGUISHER

Holds 6 gallons, and will force a stream through 6 feet of hose 45 feet with our pump, which is the best ever made. Needs no attention until used. Will not freeze, explode or get out of order. No rust or corrosion. Can be used by anyone.

Price, $80.00 Each.

"STAR" CHEMICAL.

Just what is needed in every village, lumber yard, warehouse, etc. Fully equipped with Hose, Ax, Crow Bar, Lantern, etc. It is cheap, and reliable. Wt. 450 lbs.

PRICE. $200.00 EACH.

Four years of practical use have demonstrated these to be the only reliable and thoroughly efficient Fire appliances made. We use the same chemical liquid in all, and guarantee fully. Liberal discounts to agents. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The HARDEN HAND GRENADE CO.

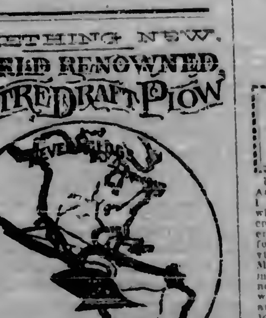
81 & 53 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Take The Sentinel.

SOMETHING NEW.

WORLD RENOWNED

CENTRE DRAFT PLOW



The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are, that it

1st. NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d. TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.

The Beam is not bolted to the landside, but by means of a steel [illegible] is put directly in the Centre of the Line of Draft, making a steady light running plow, and one that cannot be Clogged. See one before you buy.

If your Agent has none write us for price.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS,

RACINE, Wis.

Good PAINT

An example of survival of the fittest is the established Reputation, Popularity and Superiority of the SHERWIN-WILLIAMS COLORED LEADS.

Also St. LOUIS WHITE LEAD.

FOR SALE ONLY BY L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

DRUGS and STATIONERY,

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

A Large and Complete New Line JUST RECEIVED.

EVERYTHING YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

The only News stand in town.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN

Boiler Works!

Builder and Manufacturer of

BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.

Sheet Iron Work given special attention.

MARINE WORK a specialty.

HENRY BARTH, Prop.

Charlevoix, Mich.

AUTOMATIC

Single Thread Sewing Machines

will absolutely take the place of Shuttle Machines. No woman ever wants a Shuttle Machine after trying an Automatic.

Address, 78 W. 23d St., New York City.

CURES

Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, Whooping Cough, Quinzy, Sore Throat, Consumption, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Diseases.

YOUNG'S COUGH SYRUP

Sold by all druggists. Price, 25c., 50c. and $1.00.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

160 Acres in MARION

Township For Sale at a Bargain, Terms to suit.

MONEY TO LOAN ON

Approved Real Estate Security.

THEODORE R. CHAPIN

Boyne City.

FRANK E. WOODS

Bath & Barber Rooms

Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd fellows Block.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS.

Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.

If you want a quiet place to get a shave, hair dress or bath call and see me.

JAY L. PRICE.

1-3 OFF SALE!

At Miss Spaulding's MILLINERY ROOMS,

I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.

Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $5.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed felt hat in the store.

Come early and secure a Bargain.

MISS L. SPAULDING.

For Finest

JOB WORK,

Patronize The Sentinel.

JAS. A. GELLICK,

Dealer in

Choice Wines,

Fine Liquors

EXCELLENT CIGARS.

We call Special Attention to our

Old Kentucky Sour Mash

WHISKIES.

We also keep continually on draught

Milwaukee

Export and lager Beer.

Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN

WORDS BY WIRE.

The Latest News by Telegraph from All Parts of the World

Political Gossip, Railroad Notes, Personal Mention, and Occurrences of Lesser Note.

LATEST DISPATCHES.

MOB LAW.

Lynching in Indiana of the Davis Brothers, Who Perpetrated an Atrocious Outrage.

A LOUISVILLE dispatch of Thursday [illegible]

UNITED STATES FINANCES.

FIVE YEARS.

Commerce.

CURRENT EVENTS.

EAST.

PROF. CHARLES SIEDHOFF and wife, Matilda, aged 91 and 92, tired of a long life and futile struggle with destitution, committed suicide Tuesday afternoon at Union Hill, N. J. Siedhoff, it is said, was professor of chemistry in Heidelberg University, Germany, thirty-five years ago. He had supported himself by writing for newspapers, making translations, and occasionally lecturing on chemistry and electricity. These means failed, and he and his wife had lived in filth and squalor of late. Officers found him and his wife lying dead on the floor, and a letter saying they had taken that deadliest of poisons, cyanide of potassium.

THE New York World of Wednesday prints an elaborate account of a visit made by a correspondent to Mr. Blaine at his home, in Augusta, Me., and afterward at his cottage at Bar Harbor, in the course of which Mr. Blaine gave fully his plans for the forthcoming trip, discussed the false reports of his failing health, and referred at length to the work he has bestowed upon the books just finished. He says his visit [illegible]

WEST.

SOUTH.

WASHINGTON.

POLITICS.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

[illegible] that it could unite with his road on a $1 rate to New York without violating the law.

THE Interstate Commerce Commission has ordered the Georgia Central Railway to answer the complaint of the colored minister Council, in Alabama, who charges that he was thrown out of a first-class car after paying a first-class fare. William H. Council, an Alabama colored man and a Democrat, has filed a complaint with the commission that he was ejected from a first-class railroad car on account of his color. The iron and steel manufacturers of Pittsburgh will make an appeal to the Pittsburgh Commerce Commission from the classification of certain specialties made by the Trunk-Lines Commission at a recent meeting held in New York. The classification is in the nature of a reduction on fifth-class articles, but did not include hoops, bands, and sheet-iron fencing, plain wires, axles, springs, links, and pins. These articles have heretofore been considered in the fifth class, and the manufacturers claim that to not include them in the reduction is a gross discrimination.

GENERAL.

THE General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church of North America as- [illegible]

FOREIGN.

LAWYER CLIFTON'S RIDE.

A Reprieve for a Felon Received After the Black Cap Is Drawn.

The Hanging Indefinitely Postponed, and the Criminal Overcome with Joy.

[Savannah (Ga.) special.]

The following are the exciting details of the saving of Leggett's life, for his death has not yet been compassed, though his neck has been in the hangman's noose.

William Clifton, his faithful attorney, received on Wednesday night—or rather Thursday morning—telegrams from Governor Gordon informing him of Leggett's respite for thirty days. These he started with for Tatnall County on Thursday afternoon. It was generally understood throughout the county that the execution would take place in the forenoon of the next day. The sun was not two hours high when people began arriving in the town, some on foot, others on horseback, and [illegible]

THE FOURTH OF JULY.

General Master Workman Powderly's Timely Letter to the Knights of Labor.

Labor and Industrial Notes.

[illegible] cousin. In Iowa General Weaver has taken the field. A State convention will be held in Ohio on July 4 to nominate State officers. Columbus is the point. The Henry George wing of the Labor party will hold a convention in Cincinnati on the same day. South Carolina has 30 mills, 4,600 looms, and 230,000 spindles.

The next convention of the Cigarmakers' International Union will be held at New York.

The labor agitations in Great Britain are assuming larger dimensions, particularly in mining, iron-working, and in the engineering trades. The coal miners in Northumberland have been on strike several months for 12½ per cent. advance. The equivalent of $150,000 has been expended in benefits upon the membership. Never before has there been so much agitation among British workmen of all crafts with reference to emigration.

The leading officers of the Farmers' National Alliance are in correspondence with the leaders of the labor political movement.

Several of the Western barbed wire fence manufacturers are having a hard time of it. Two or three have failed, and seven or eight are in a tight place. Manufacturing capacity has been too greatly extended.

The manufacturers of special machinery in several of the larger machinery centers, [illegible]

THE BASE-BALL RECORD.

But Little Change in the Standing of the Professional Clubs.

Chicago Still Wants New Pitchers—Other Diamond News—A Lawn-Tennis Craze.

[CHICAGO CORRESPONDENCE.]

Two weeks ago Detroit had the call as a permanent winning club so completely that many predicted a clear walk-away for the Wolverines, and a consequently flat and uninteresting race for the League pennant. This opinion was entertained by Detroiters not only, but by admirers of the game everywhere, and perhaps such an opinion was warranted to a considerable extent. Detroit has played a magnificent game from the outset, and if heavy batting will win, which is not improbable under the new rules, the belief that the Wolverines will fly the flag [illegible]

THE CHICAGO CLUB.

THE NEW YORK CLUB.

A LAWN TENNIS CRAZE.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Notes on the Lesson for June 12—"The Commandments."

[From Chicago Standard. By Rev. J. M. Coon.]

The lesson for the above date will be found in the first eleven verses of the twentieth chapter of Exodus. Time, 1491 B. C., soon after last lesson. Place, Mount Sinai, in the southern part of the peninsula of Arabia.

SPECIAL MENTION.

Mount Sinai. There is still difference of opinion in locating this mountain. The old theory was that Jebel Musa, "the mountain of Moses," was the peak; but it was soon seen that this was a mistake. [illegible] most general consent, Ras Sufsafeh, three miles to the north, was accepted. For example, Palmer says of this: No one who examines it with special reference to the Bible account of the proclamation of the law [illegible] with the details of the narrative. The plain [illegible] Rahah, from the level character. There are fully 400 acres of the plain proper, exactly facing the mount, and sloping down to it with just such a gentle incline as would best enable a large number of people to see at once. The area of 400 acres would accommodate with ease about two millions of spectators, at the ample allowance of a square yard each; and be- [illegible]

NATIONAL ENCAMPMENT.

Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage's Stirring Address

To the Militiamen from Thirty-One States and Territories in Camp at Washington—Drilled Soldiery Superior to the Undrilled.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Soldiers of the national drill listened this afternoon to a sermon by the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D. Soldiers from thirty-one States and Territories were present, and nineteen Governors and their staffs. Washington is full of strangers attendant upon the national drill, having for its object improvement in military science, which began May 23 and will close to-morrow. The music before and after the sermon this afternoon was conducted by military bands. Dr. Talmage's texts were taken from I Chronicles xii, 33: "Fifty thousand which could keep rank;" and Judges xx, 16: "Every one could sling stones at a hair breadth and not miss." The preacher said:

Companies of infantry, cavalry, artillery, and Zouaves, please notice the first Scripture passage applauds the soldiers of Zebulun because they were disciplined troops. They may have been inefficient [illegible]

[illegible] tenor, the soprano in the grand march of the Union.

I congratulate you, the officers and soldiers of the National encampment, that if a foreign attack should at any time be made you would be ready, and there would be millions of the drilled men of north and south, like the men of my first text, which could keep rank, and like the men of my second text, that would not miss a hair breadth.

At this National drill, when thirty-one states of the Union are represented, and between the decorations of the graves of the southern dead, which took place a few days ago, and the decorations of the northern dead, which shall take place to-morrow, I would stir the Christian patriotism and gratitude not only of this soldiery here present, but of all the people, by putting before them the difference between these times, when the soldiers of all sections meet in peace, and the times when they meet in contest. Contrast the feeling of sectional bitterness in 1862 with the feeling of sectional unity in 1887. At the first date the south had banished the national air, "The Star Spangled Banner," and the north had banished the popular air of "Way Down South in Dixie." The northern people were "mudsills" and the southern people were "white trash." The more southern people were killed in battle the better the north liked it. The more northern people were killed in battle the [illegible]

[illegible] often contract those awful absences and filial and brotherly and loverly heartbreaks with your present residence, which is the dearest place you will find this side of Heaven. The place where your children were born is the place where you want to die. To write the figures of 1862 I set up your crystals, crystals of tears. To write the figures of 1887 I stand up four members of your household, flashes of rosy cheeks and flaxen hair, if I can get them to stand still long enough.

Contrast also the religious opportunities of twenty years ago with now. Often on the march from Sunday morn till night, or commanded by officers who considered the name of God and Christ of no use except to swear by. Sometimes the drum-head, the pulpit and you standing in heat or cold, all the surroundings of military life having a tendency to make you reckless. No privacy for prayer or Bible reading. No sound of church bells. Sabbaths spent far away from the place where you were brought up. Now, the choicest sanctuaries, easy pew, all Christian surroundings, the air full of God and Christ, and heaven and doxology. Three mountains lifting themselves into the holy light—Mount Sinai thundering its law, Mount Calvary pleading the sacrifice, Mount Pisgah displaying the promised land.

Contrast the national condition: 1862, spending money by the millions in devastation of property and life; 1887, the finances so reconstructed that all the stock [illegible]

Danger of Delay.

SITUATION IN KENTUCKY.

A Chance for Republican Success in the Coming State Election.

[Covington (Ky.) special.]

There is actual danger that the Democratic party will lose Kentucky this year. The condition of affairs in this State warrants the conclusion that the Republicans have a fair chance of success. Never before have the Democrats been in such a demoralized condition. When the Democrats assumed control of the State twenty years ago Kentucky was free from debt, with a balance of $1,000,000. At the present time the surplus has not only been exhausted, but the people are facing a deficit of $1,500,000, and there is no satisfactory explanation of how the money has been expended. The policy pursued by the party in power has retarded the material progress of the State, and even the Democrats acknowledge that the Republicans have a strong argument against them in contrasting the condition of Kentucky with other States. A large element in the northeastern part of the State is opposed to Cleveland's administration. They are led by Congressman Taulbee, who represents one of the mountain districts. In the Democratic convention which nominated Buckner for Governor Taulbee had a large following in refusing [illegible]

Premature Cleveland Boomers.

Fighting Pharaoh.

AMONG THE RATTLESNAKES.

Hair-Raising Stories of Adventures with Deadly Serpents.

A lady gave some reminiscences of Arkansas in the presence of a Cincinnati Enquirer reporter, and as there were several army people about the talk became interesting on this head. She said:

"I was in the army about seventeen years, moved from post to pillar, and yet on the whole I look back at it with pleasure. We were children of nature, dependent on our husbands, and our husbands were brave men doing their duty.

"I have stood beside my husband in new quarters, which he had just come to occupy for the year, and have seen him stand on the little porch and shoot five great rattlesnakes at a salute."

"Oh, rattlesnakes," said another; "don't talk about them. When I had my little baby in Texas and was not strong enough to get out of bed, I heard something moving around the floor of our hut, and I put my hand out and it touched a rattlesnake. He retreated under the bed, and the way that thing rattled rings in my ears yet. It was no slight, unconscious, nervous rattle, but the loud watchman's alarm of the rep- [illegible]

A Heart Worth Winning.

AT THE CAPITAL.

The Senate at Work on the Liquor Tax Bill—The New Bank Bill Passed—University and Industrial Home Appropriations—Delinquent Tax Bill Knocked Out—Mere Mention.

LANSING, May 30, 1887.

Perhaps as much interest centers on the pending liquor tax bill and what its final fate will be as on any other measure that has been or is before the present Legislature.

THE BATES HIGH-TAX BILL, that passed the House two weeks ago by exactly the necessary of votes required ... out the two who tried to vote for it by proxy, was considered by the liquor traffic committee of the Senate for the two weeks since, and after making eighty amendments to it—without, however, cutting down either the high tax provision contained in section 1 of the bill or the increased bonds required—it was reported, ordered re-printed, and its consideration made a special order for the 27th, with the agreement that its consideration should continue each afternoon until completed. Senator Hubbell announced at the opening of the discussion when the time came to take it up that he was not opposed to the general provisions of the bill, but wanted to help perfect it so that it should be the best possible law, should put the most and best restrictions around the business, and be the most [illegible]

THE NEW BANK BILL.

UNIVERSITY APPROPRIATIONS.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

The bill to abolish bucket-shops passed the Senate May 25. It is very strong in its provisions, providing a penalty of not less than $500 for the first offense and six months in the county jail for the second. [illegible]

New Boys Buy Base-Balls.

Pulse Beats.

"NEW HOME" Sewing Machines.

Our Agent will soon begin the canvass of Charlevoix and Vicinity, for the sale of the "NEW HOME" Machine, fully warranted and sold on easy terms. The Machine may be seen at the Millinery Store of Litney & Carr, of Charlevoix.

"SMITH AMERICAN," "CHASE" and "EARHUFF" ORGANS FOR SALE at LOWEST PRICES.

DUNHAM & SUTTON, EAST JORDAN.

Charlevoix Sentinel.
Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, JUNE 8, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

Northern Michigan.

Geo. W. Childs has been appointed postmaster at Bay View, vice J. J. Howard, removed.

The teachers' institute for Antrim county will be held at Bellaire during the week beginning August 1.

The toothpick factory at Harbor Springs caught fire the other day, but the fire was extinguished without any damage.

One steamer unloaded about 600 Italian emigrants at Escanaba last week to engage in work on the new railroads in the northern peninsula.

Mr. Alden E. Cross and Miss Hettie Mudge, both of Central Lake township, were married at the parsonage in Norwood May 24 by Rev. B. H. Whitman.

Petoskey Record: Bert Cole will have charge of the drug store and business on Howard street, and will be ably assisted by S. B. Calkins, who is a competent pharmacist.

Mr. C. W. Caskey, the energetic and pushing contractor and lumberman, of Harbor Springs, will remove to Petoskey, after the summer vacation on Mackinaw Island where he has a fine cottage.

The Jordan River house is now the "Central" with W. J. Weikel, prop., and A. E. Alexander, clerk. It has been re-fitted and the extensive acquaintance of the above gentlemen, ensures their success.

Two and a half millions of shingles are docked at St. Ignace awaiting transportation to southern markets. They make a comfortable pile and would keep out a heap of rain, as one of the local wags put it.

The Marquette Mining Journal denies that there was $7,000,000 worth of property burned during the recent fires in the Upper Peninsula, as the Detroit Evening Journal stated, and ridicules the statement that eight persons were burned to death. But one man lost his life and that man, John Casey, of Lake Linden, who was drunk.

Clarion dispatches to Grand Rapids Telegram-Herald say: Business is booming here at present. The mills are running full crews. Blood Bros.' woodenware factory cannot fill their orders, although running to their full capacity. A. K. Smith & Co.'s wooden bowl factory are shipping more this season than any previous year since the factory has been running. Lots are selling fast, and several buildings are in process of erection.

Bellaire Breeze: S. H. Beardslee, locating engineer D., C. & E. R. R., and the balance of the surveying party are at the Inter-Lake evenings now. * * Atwood is to have another store soon. Calvin and Albert Supernaw are putting up a new building and expect to put in a stock of groceries. Willie Supernaw, a son of Albert, will have charge of the store. There is to be an office on the second floor for the use of Dr. L. M. Kanagy.

The Sault Ste. Marie council granted a charter to Francis I. Walker, George Dawson, D. B. Henderson and others of the booming burg for the privilege of laying gas mains in the streets of the village. The News says work on the plant will begin inside of ninety days and will be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible. Over three miles of mains and laterals will be required to meet the demands and it is estimated that the entire plant will cost $75,000.

A bill has been filed in the circuit court in chancery of this county for foreclosure and sale of the realty, including the old furnace, water power, store, dock, etc., of the Leland Iron Co., now dubbed the "Iron Star Furnace Co." If this results in bringing into requisition the excellent water power at this place, and in utilizing and vitalizing the furnace and the many natural advantages that Leland possesses as a commercial point, and which have so long languished under present management, it will usher in a new era of prosperity for this village.—Leelenaw Enterprise.

East Jordan dispatch of the 30th, to Grand Rapids Democrat: Friday afternoon fire was discovered in the roof of Glenn & Porter's saw mill. Several barrels of water, usually kept on the roof, were used promptly on the fire, being emptied on the roof. This kept the fire in check until the fire hose could be laid by the employes and the arrival of citizens who formed a bucket line to the lake and by hard work saved the mill with damage only to the roof. It is supposed that the fire caught from the smoke stack, which does not afford a spark arrester. The mill was insured only last week, that being the first time they had ever carried any insurance on it. Had the mill burned it would have been difficult to save the main business portion of the village, as the peculiar location of this mill makes the fire risk in our village extra hazardous and comparatively little insurance can be had for our business men.

—Everybody should attend the school entertainment Friday night.

Another Old Settler Gone.

On Saturday, Mrs. Hugh Miller of this township, departed this life, at her home, aged 67 years, after a long illness, and was buried Sunday afternoon, from the family residence.

The death of Mrs. Miller takes from us another one of those who link the present with the remotely early days of the Pine Lake region as a white settlement.

With her husband and family she moved from St. Lawrence county, N. Y., to her new home, in May, 1858, —29 years ago—arriving on Pine Lake the 20th day of the month.

Although her life has not been exempt from the hard toil incident to settlement in a new country, she was fortunate in being the matron of a family embracing those elements which made a happy home. Together they labored for each other's comfort and happiness these many years, until, in the hour of her dissolution she could die in the consciousness of a well spent life. Her otherwise happy life has been thrice within our memory marred by the death of daughters, two of them young ladies, and the third the wife of Horace Hull.

She was a lady of whom no evil could be said—faithful to her family; true to herself, and prepared to die.

Ironton.

Our schools are closed this week, the teachers being at the State Institute at Boyne City.

A school exhibition in District No. 2, this township, on June 24th, Miss May Papinaw, teacher.

Duaine Parish is on the war path, or peddler's path, with a full-fledged tinware wagon. He is buying rags and selling tinware. We meekly suggest that he add leather goggles to the outfit, and avert another turnover like that of Saturday evening. It spoils eggs, butter and tinware to mix them.

John Speidel has added a creamery to his dairy.

Read educational column for report of schools.

Presiding Elder Stinchcomb held service and preached to a full house in the M. E. church Sunday evening.

On Saturday last a twelve pound boy came to the home of Mr. and Mrs John Ashmore, making them happy.

On our way to the school exhibition in District No. 5, we made a few observations, and gleaned, among other things the following facts: It also occurred to us that they might be of interest to your readers in this section. While the towns of our county are developing rapidly under the influence of manufacturing and other industries, our citizens who pushed into the bush to clear up farms have been equally active. In our visit to the south-western portion of this township, after passing Capt. Williams' and Mr. Tunoth's farms, and extricating ourself from the mosquitoes in the big swamp, we came upon the Campbell farm, having passed Mr. Burns' snug home, with a clearing of 25 acres. Lance and family were away to the picnic, and so we enjoyed a lone view of one of the prettiest farms in the township, with a beautiful orchard, garden and yard on the corner of his 60 acre clearing.

On the left, as we pointed for the arm, was Paul Chartrand's 25 acres of cultivated fields with their comfortable buildings.

Nearer the lake, and adjoining Mr. Chartrand's, is Ava Smith's farm. Ava for a number of years has been at the helm of township matters, and says it has seriously interfered with his farm duties. But we noticed nice fields and a good orchard.

Across the way is Henry Nowland's comfortable house and barn, which is made lonely for Henry by the death of his wife, whom he buried last winter. The farm and orchard are in excellent condition.

Turning south at Ava's corner, we passed the Parish boys' farm on our left, consisting of 55 acres cleared, and upon which stood 37 acres of wheat, the sight of which would startle a southern Michigan farmer who has never seen that grain grow in this region. The winter wheat was unexceptionally good.

On our left we passed the Ferris farm. Mr. Ferris is sick this spring, and as a result the farm is not into crops.

Next is John Spidell's 30-acre clearing with a new house, and a barn 35x46, where the exhibition was held.

Being early, our friend Charlie Beckteil took us on South to the town line and showed us the Swain Peyton farm, consisting of 25 acres, on which there is a house surrounded by neat grounds. Mr. Peyton is building a new barn, 36x46 feet, with a basement.

Charlie also called our attention to a piece of wheat on his own farm, west of John Spidell's, where he intends building himself a house and clearing up the farm as fast as possible.

While looking westward, our thoughts drifted to our friend John Miller. He bought the Robb farm, two years ago, and now has over 100 acres under the plow, with splendid buildings and stock.

Opposite him is the Badgerow farm of 70 acres. The crops are nearly all in, and the verdure and vigor of their appearance is not only pleasing but inspiring, and bespeaks a bountiful harvest for the worthy sowers.

We were entertained by a regular old fashioned exhibition of early fame, consisting of one hundred pounds fun to the square inch, with no escapement. The pupils showed a careful training; as Miss Lewis expected no reward except the gratification of success she was surely and amply paid.

Religious.

M. E. Church.

If I miss you from the Bible reading Tuesday evening, I say they surely will be out on Thursday evening at 7:30 to general prayer meeting. If then you do not come, I mourn over the loss you have sustained, and pray for more time that your work may be done when He calls.

Your pastor,
W. H. M.

Congregational Church.

Rev. C. F. VanAuken is expected to supply the pulpit next Sunday morning at 10:30.

Sunday school at 12 o'clock. Prof. H. M. Enos, Supt.

Young people's meeting Tuesday evenings, at 7:30.

Regular prayer meeting Thursday evening, at 7:30.

Episcopal Church.

The Rev. Campbell Fair, D. D., a prominent clergyman recently from Baltimore, now Rector of St. Mark's Church Grand Rapids, has accepted an invitation to officiate for Christ Church Mission on Sunday next, at Bartholomew's hall. Hours of service: Morning prayer and sermon at 10:30; half hour catechetical instruction on coming to Christ in baptism and confirmation, at 8 o'clock, p. m., followed by evening prayer and sermon. Candidates for either are expected and requested to be at this service, that their names may be taken and preparation made for the administration of the sacrament of baptism on Sunday, the 19th, by Rev. J. W. Bancroft, and the Apostolic Rite of Confirmation by Bishop Gillespie, on Sunday, the 26th. All are cordially invited. W. P. BROWN, Warden.

Elsewhere.

Children's day will be observed next Sabbath, at the M. E. church, at 10:30 o'clock. A good time is expected.

Preaching at the evening service.

Charlevoix County Pharmaceutical Association.

Pursuant to call, the druggists of Charlevoix county met at Dr. Crouters office, last Wednesday, to organize a county pharmaceutical association. The following druggists were present: H. W. Willard, M. D., L. C. Madison, F. C. Warne, M. D., Geo. W Beaman, of East Jordan, H. H. Eaton of Boyne Falls, F. G. Hines, Perry Weed, G. W. Crouter, G. W. Wilson, of Charlevoix, John M. Harris, of Ironton, E. F. Allen, of Boyne City.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Dr. H. W. Willard, president; F. G. Hines, vice president; G. W. Crouter, secretary; Perry Weed, treasurer. The president, vice president, and secretary were constituted a board of censors.

Board of trustees—Dr. H. W. Willard, F. C. Warne, H. H. Eaton, E. F. Allen, and L. C. Madison.

Committee on pharmacy—G. W. Beaman, J. M. Harris, G. W. Wilson.

Committee on trade matters—E. F. Allen, G. W. Beaman, F. G. Hines.

Committee on legislation—G. W. Crouter, F. C. Warne, E. F. Allen.

The constitution and by-laws of the Grand Rapids pharmaceutical society were adopted.

Future annual meetings will be held the first Monday in June; regular monthly meetings to be held on the first of each month.

A. Campeau's, formerly the Dodd's mill, south of Williamsburg, was wholly destroyed by fire, early Friday morning.

Alvah Runnells has been visiting Sault Ste. Marie, and says he finds that during the recent boom many persons sold their property at a big price, investing the proceeds in options. The boom has petered, Mr. Runnells says, and it is his belief that unless another syndicate rescues the town hundreds of people will be made bankrupt.

In the prize drill at Washington, Orchard Lake cadets were awarded the first prize—$1,000; the committee allowing them 98 out of a possible 100 points.

The Fountain City House is being painted with the Sherwin Williams Paint. Mr. Charles Swallow is doing the work.

Household Effects for Sale.

I will sell my furniture and household goods at private sale at any time prior to July 1st.
MRS. GENEVRA GUYLES.

Land for Sale.

I have 5 acres just east of the cemetery, one mile from town, nearly all cleared, which I will sell cheap for cash, or approved paper. Address
JAMES METCALF, Charlevoix.

Probate Notice.

State of Michigan, County of Charlevoix, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for said county, held at the Probate office, in the Village of Boyne City, on the 6th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven. Present, James A. Keat, Judge of Probate. In the Matter of the Estate of John West, late of Chicago, Ill., deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of John Joseph West, and Edward Albert West, and alleging that duly authenticated copies of the last will and testament of said deceased, and of the probate thereof, have been duly filed in said court, showing that said will has been duly admitted to probate in the County of Cook and State of Illinois, and praying that a time and place for hearing said petition be fixed, and due notice thereof be given to all persons interested, and that such copy of said will be allowed, filed and recorded in said Court, as and for the last will and testament of said deceased. Thereupon it is ordered, that Tuesday, the 5th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the Village of Boyne City, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted; and it is further ordered, that said petitioners give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

A true copy.
JAMES A. KEAT, Judge of Probate.
614

Attention Firemen!

We will have this (Wednesday) evening a dry practice, on Thursday evening an engine practice, and on Monday evening a drill before the business, or regular meeting. Let us all be in our place at each of these meeting at 7 o'clock sharp.
O. S. WASHBURN.

A New Potato Bug Exterminator.

F. G. Hines & Co. have accepted the agency of a new article called 'Bug Finish,' which is destined to have a monstrous sale, and is guaranteed to give entire satisfaction. It is cheap, only 5 cents per pound. Special rates on large quantities. Requires no mixing, is ready for use dry. One pound will go as far as ten pounds of plaster or Paris green, as mixed by the farmer and is therefore cheaper, and saves the trouble and danger of mixing and using Paris green. It was used last season on the State Agricultural college farm at Lansing. The manager wrote the manufacturers that it gave good satisfaction on garden and farm. The mixture is cheaper than any other used for the purpose.

Petoskey has a prospect of a brick opera house.

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

Fresh Butter at lowest price, at Jefferies' Bakery.

TO RENT. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent, Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

FOR SALE—One farm wagon nearly new, one second hand delivery wagon, and three village lots on Antrim st. All very cheap. J. L. HURD.

Itch, Prairie Mange and Scratches of every kind cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Use no other. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix

The ladies are cordially invited to call and examine the large display of millinery including pattern hats and bonnets together with novelties in ribbons, gauzes, flowers, etc. As it is to be a season of novelties it will pay you to call now and often, upon Mrs. Litney & Carr.

POSITIVELY THE FINEST LINE OF

CLOTHING

AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS YOU EVER SAW IN CHARLEVOIX,

JUST RECEIVED FOR SUMMER WEAR.

Prices are unusually low this Spring and if you need anything in my line, just step in.

Now is a Grand Time To Obtain Bargains.

GEO. W. MILLER.

GOOD BYE SPRING! WELCOME SUMMER!

A. T. WASHBURNE AND CO.

Our Grand Summer Opening!

Was A Great Success.

Second Invoice Of Summer Goods

NOW ON THE ROAD.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

Successors to F. W. CRAINE & CO.

REFITTED!

Our store is nearly completed and we cordially invite our friends and patrons to call and inspect a choice assortment of new

DRY GOODS & GROCERIES

New Goods arriving nearly every day. Our stock of Groceries is the Largest, Choicest, Cleanest, and our Prices the Lowest. We're busy and haven't got arranged yet, but we want to see you just as we are.

J. L. HURD & CO.

NEW DRY GOODS,
NEW CLOTHING,
NEW TRUNKS, ETC.

--AT--

ALICK ROSENTHALs

I WANT YOU TO COME AND SEE ME IN MY NEW STORE

In The LEWIS Block.

My new stock is much the largest we have ever carried and at lower prices

CALL and be convinced of the truth of this remark.

DON'T FORGET THE PLACE.

ALICK ROSENTHAL,

Successor to ROSENTHAL & SON.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XIX. NO.--7 CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 15, 1887. WHOLE NO. 916

"BUG FINISH!"

The new Potato Bug exterminator. We warrant it to give satisfaction. Very cheap. All ready for use. Requires no mixing. Try it.

STRICTLY PURE PARIS GREEN

We have in stock the purest article to be found in the market. It's sure death every time. Buy no other.

Sure Death To Currant Worms!

For these pests we have a pure article of White Hellebone. When ever used it acts like magic not leaving a worm on the bush.

PURE DALMATION INSECT POWDER

The best thing for Flies and other insects.

A trial of any of the above is bound to prove satisfactory,

F. G. HINES & CO.
Druggists.

Emrey Bros.

are on deck this Spring with a complete stock of

General Merchandise, AT LOWEST PRICES

WE ARE DETERMINED TO DO A STRICTLY CASH BUSINESS, AND THUS ARE ENABLED TO UNDERSELL FIRMS GIVING CREDIT.

IT WILL BE FOR YOUR PROFIT TO CALL AND GET PRICES.

Boots and Shoes THE GREATEST BARGAINS EVER OFFERED IN THIS COUNTY.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

We call especial attention to our complete stock of

WALL PAPER.

The time has arrived when you need it. We are now receiving a fresh Spring stock embracing all the latest styles. We warrant you lowest prices.

Special Patterns ordered from samples if you wish.

OUR SPRING ASSORTMENT OF

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

now being received is the finest we ever offered

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in

FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN

BOOTS and SHOES.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces

EVERYTHING

usually found in a General Store.

Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours,

Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

Save Your Dollars

AND BUY HARDWARE

OF STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

Aiming to keep a complete stock, it is our honest endeavor to sell all goods at lowest living prices, for the reason that we court the attention and patronage of every cash customer in Charlevoix County, who wants to save money by making a dollar go as far as possible. Try us if you happen to be one of those who have not already done so. We are preparing a SURPRISE for YOU. Do not fail to come to our store and see us if possible, every time you come to Charlevoix. You are under no obligation to buy if you don't want to. We are always glad to answer inquiries regarding anything in our line. We want to help you and want your help and patronage to that end.

We call your attention to PAINTS &c.

ALSO PLEASE REMEMBER THAT THE JEWEL STOVES

ARE THE BEST, THE WORLD'S BEST!

Resp'y, STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

The Best Groceries At The Lowest Prices

ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF

A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

New Furniture

AT S. M. SEE & SONS!

We have just received an entirely new stock of Furniture of every discription.

Dealing exclusively in Furniture we are confident we can make it an object to all wishing to buy to call and inspect our stock.

UNDERTAKING A Specialty.

J. MILO EATON'S

REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE, AND LOAN OFFICE.

The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice

Wait A Minute!

WHY NOT TRADE AT

WILLSEE & CO'S

Where there is always on hand a complete line of GROCERIES, PROVISIONS, FLOUR & FEED.

A Great Bargain in Canned Goods. Best Cash Price paid for Country Produce.

TELEPHONE Orders promptly delivered.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY

SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, - Michigan.

Address all business correspondence to the firm

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year - $1.50 | Six months - $.75
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—The wild strawberries are due this week.

—Dan Jerrne, Sheriff, was in St. Louis, last week.

—Miss Esther Buttars is expected back, Saturday, to remain.

—The yacht Coral of Petoskey, is again seen on Little Traverse bay.

—Geo. W. Miller is in Chicago stocking up with summer clothing.

—Hon. A. B. Turner is here enjoying himself among the trout streams.

—Henry Barth left last Thursday on a business trip to Manistee and Chicago.

—Charlevoix extends a cordial gilt-edge invitation to Traverse City, to come and help us celebrate July 4th.

—Mrs. M. P. Burns of Traverse City visited her son, Horace S. Harsha, last week, returning to Traverse, Saturday.

—The summer resorts of Michigan may expect to do the largest business this year they have ever done.—Telegram Herald.

—Ralph Washburn of the 9th Grade, has not missed a word at spelling exercise during the last two terms of school.

—Mr. John Buttars of Port Austin, a brother of Hon. A. Buttars, was visiting relatives here last week on his way to Sault Ste. Marie.

—W. F. Empey of East Jordan, was in town Tuesday, when he took the boat for Sault Ste. Marie to deliver a team of horses he had sold there.

—Congressman Anderson of Kansas, has arrived and is domiciled on his yacht. He won't talk politics and eschews every other subject but that of fish.

—Miss Hattie Atchison left Sunday on the Champlain for the southern part of California, where she has a sister living and will make that state her future home.

—Miss May Waterbury returned to Ionia, Monday. She has secured a position in the public schools of that city and her Charlevoix pupils and friends will miss her this fall.

—The yacht Iolanthe, which was sold recently to Toledo parties for $500, was delivered last Sunday to the Commodore of the Ohio Yacht Club, who came up after her. This trim cutter will be missed by the resorters.

—Mr. Stillman Parker and Mrs. Sarah Kimball were married Monday morning, June 13th, by Rev. W. G. Clark, at the home of Mr. Wright Ripley. They left on the Grand Rapids for a lake trip to Port Austin, Mrs. Parker's former home, and other points east.

—Miss Mary Scroggie, who has served the telephone exchange so acceptably for the past two years left the office Saturday for a months vacation. She will visit Sarnia and other Canadian cities during her trip. Her place in the meantime will be occupied by Miss Ada Goss.

—W. C. Newman has greatly improved his bridge guard, one of which is in use on the bridge here. Its movements are more in keeping with those of "old Jim," as it were, minus the limp—more thoughtful, and less impetuous; rising from its hiding place with more regard for the rules of decorum and less inclination to provoke profanity. It behaves much better and should be duplicated on the other end.

—Mr. Will McLennan of Charlevoix, who has been attending the University at Evanston, Ills., for the past 7 years, graduates next week Thursday. We are proud to record the fact that Will has carried off the class honors, having been chosen class orator. Among the crowded audience which will applaud him on class-day, he will have no more earnest well-wishers and sincere friends than are found in Charlevoix, his old home.

—Elk Rapids Progress: The Charlevoix Journal evidently does not like our criticism on patents and resorts to personalities and lying in support of them. We will admit that the Journal would amount to very little without them. If it were possible for them to print as able a paper as the SENTINEL locally and editorially, we would advise them to lop off the patents, but patents allow many inferior newspaper men in the field.

—Six months ago M. F. Quaintance, who had looked after the interests of the railroad here with such entire satisfaction to the company for so many years, was transferred to Muskegon. He finds, however, that there is no place like Petoskey, and returns to his old home to-morrow, taking charge of the station Monday morning. Mr. Dell Phelps has given entire satisfaction as agent since Mr. Q. left, and although he is entitled to something better than a subordinate position, our citizens will selfishly hope he may be retained here.—Independent.

—Monroe's steam pile-driver is at work on the bridge approach.

—Al Washburne left Friday for Detroit and Cadillac on business.

—Mrs. A. H. Bennett of Traverse City, Sundayed at the Fountain City House.

—The steamer Friant has a handsome new awning over her upper deck, forward.

—L. D. Bartholomew & Co. have another attractive pictorial advertisement this week. Read it.

—The tail feathers of the American eagle will be dyed a brilliant vermillion at Charlevoix, July 4th.

—Sir Edward Hutchinson enjoyed a sail in Beauvais' sloop yacht Friday, as far as Smithson's lumber yard.

—An effort has been made to connect Bellaire with the telephone line that runs from Charlevoix to Traverse City.

—Wm. Alheit was sent Monday, to the county jail by Justice McLeod, for procuring whiskey for a common drunkard.

—Rosenthal & Son have a large line of Indian baskets and bark work in the See block, with Miss Ellie Berdan as sales-lady.

—The school entertainment paid all expenses, the balance due on the organ, and has $25 deposited in the bank for future use.

—Elk Rapids talks of a big 4th of July celebration. Traverse City will not celebrate at home; suppose we all shut up shop and go over.—Herald.

—Alic Rosenthal says he can fit any body in the clothing line. Last week he took an order for a size 52 coat and vest, and it wasn't for Frank Myers either.

—Married, Rice—Walker. Mr. W. H. Rice and Miss Mary Alice Walker, both of Norwood. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. G. Clark at his residence in Charlevoix, June 9, 1887.

—The funds have been nearly all subscribed and the details perfected for making the coming 4th of July celebration the grandest thing of the kind ever witnessed in Northern Michigan.

—Capt. Berdan, Overseer of Highways, is doing some excellent work on the roads about the town. One good job is on the angle running south through the U. & H. addition at the foot of Antrim street. The old "state road" is to be taken up.

—Rev. W. R. Stinchcomb, Traverse City, was in town Tuesday, on his way home from Charlevoix. He says the latter place is putting on her best looks for summer, which is apt to bring every one who wishes to see one of the most charming villages in Northern Michigan. We are struck on Charlevoix.—Progress.

—Although we read regularly that bright little sheet, the Boyne Falls Gazette, we did not know until recently that our friend H. H. Eaton was one of the editors. Therefore when that gentleman called at our sanctum recently, we did not receive him with that rare and captivating hospitality for which on occasions of that kind we are so distinguished. Pardon, Brother Eaton.

—The school exhibition Friday evening of last week, was in all respects an improvement over any previous effort of Superintendent Enos, and may be said, in a degree to mark the progress of the school for the year. Although these exhibitions are not expected to be a showing of proficiency in the elements taught the pupils in the public schools, they do exhibit proofs of a culture which is an outcome of careful training. The programme Friday evening embraced exercises suited to the talent of the various departments, and was well rendered, the audience, which was large, giving frequent evidences of its pleasure and appreciation. Prof. Enos has thus closed another successful year as Superintendent of the Charlevoix School; that he is a zealous, able and painstaking educator is more evident than ever, and there should no question arise as to his retention. His assistants, Misses Gage, Waterbury, Nelson and O'Neill have all ably assisted him, and—well, the whole crowd of them should be retained, and the present excellent reputation of our school sustained.

—A ride of fourteen miles and return behind a pair of Litney & Steimel's fine roadsters, on a beautiful afternoon, over hard, dry roads, through the verdure and blossom of the maple forest, and through the green fields, is a luxury. Such a treat we enjoyed Saturday, through Norwood, into Banks, halting at Atwood and chatting briefly with the folks; returning as far as the home of Hon. Richard Knight, and taking tea with Uncle Dick and his wife, and enjoying a brief siesta under a tree over looking as fine a panorama of nature as ever the eye dwelt upon. A cozy home, this of Mr. Knight's, on an eminence over-looking the farm of H. W. Beach with its magnificent orchard—to the left, Antrim, and beyond the beautiful bay and broad lake, visible for miles north and south. Nothing in the Rocky mountains or along the Hudson can excel it for natural beauty. Back home we came as the sun was setting, through the terraced village of Norwood, flying by the farm houses as the cows were coming home, catching a glimpse of O. D. Hilton's beautiful new Gothic residence through the trees, entering Charlevoix as the twilight came. It is a grand drive. Go thou and do likewise.

—A fine shower this morning.

—Come to Charlevoix the Fourth!

—Mrs. Josiah Gibson of Hayes has removed to Louisville, Ky.

—Miss Anna Zorn of Cheboygan is the guest of Miss Emma Todd for a few days.

—The new soda fountain of F. G. Hines & Co., of which mention was made recently, has arrived.

—Miss Ella Finchman, of Petoskey, is preparing herself for missionary labors in Bulgaria.

—A. D. Cruickshank, left yesterday for Sault Ste. Marie and other points in the upper peninsula, to be absent a fortnight.

—Now is the time to make preparations to attend the celebration at Charlevoix the 4th. It will be a rouser, and don't you forget it.

—Parties wishing to travel by the Detroit & Cleveland line of steamers can buy tickets and receive information regarding the time cards of the various boats, of Emrey Bros. the Charlevoix agents.

—Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Stockman left yesterday for Evanston to witness the commencement exercises at the Northwestern University. They will justly take an almost parental interest in the graduation of Mr. Will E. McLennan.

—The entertainment given here last week by the Royce & Lansing Bell Ringers gave universal satisfaction. It was as happily a conceived and perfectly executed evenings enjoyment as was ever listened to in Charlevoix and the crowded house that greeted them would all be on hand again were they to re-appear to-morrow.

—Mr. William McCollum of Norwood died yesterday morning, aged 75. He was a brother-in-law of Supervisor Harris of Norwood township and Hon. Geo. Willard of Battle Creek. Mr. McCollum was well known among the pioneers of Battle Creek, he having moved there in 1837. In 1877 he moved to Norwood. For 25 years he has been a sufferer from rheumatism. The funeral will occur to-morrow.

—Chicago Inter-Ocean: A private letter from a ——street real estate operator, now luxuriating at Charlevoix, says: "If building operations are quiet in Chicago, the chips are flying here and the many new roofs that are to go up the present season would astonish you. Bashfulness and one other reason have thus far prevented me from writing you from this pet fishing resort. The plain reason is that the splendid black bass and speckled trout fishing is only an 'incidental,' as it were, at our place. There is lots of fun in that (fish) line and we have all we want, but after all the family man requires in a summer resort more than simply good fishing—he wants a place where he can take the whole family, and can see every one from dear old grandma down to the wee little "latest arrival," gaining both health and strength with every breath of the dry, cool, and delightful air. He wants a place where he can rest and where mosquitoes will not bother him and hay-fever is unknown, to recuperate his wasted powers. The business and professional men in Chicago do not work too hard, but we work too long at a time. We do not take recreation enough. We could accomplish more and our life insurance would cost us less if we would go fishing oftener. In the opinion of the writer, the club-house and grounds of the Chicago Summer Resort Company, at Charlevoix, Mich., offer the very finest opportunity for a good, jolly, sensible vacation. There is no other place like it. If you take your family there once, your children will insist on going again, summer after summer."

Charlevoix Summer Resort Items.

The furniture for the new hotel arrived last week.

The Belvedere is completed and will be opened about the 20th.

Mr. Caleb Woodbury of Boston, brother of Mr. J. P. Woodbury, is here.

Miss Green and a friend from Ionia came Thursday and are in their cottage.

The Belvedere lot is being graded. Now is a good time to cremate that fence monstrosity.

Hoyt Parmelee is general manager of the Parmelee Publishing Co. with headquarters at DesMoines, Iowa.

Prof. Stuart, late of the Chicago University, has leased the Woodard cottage and will be up the 25th of this month with his family.

The Stockbridge cottage (former Kirkpatrick) is receiving a new coat of paint and a number of improvements, including iron cresting.

Publish it not in Petoskey and tell it not in the streets of Harbor Point, but only one new cottage is being built on the resort this spring.

Rev. Robt. Jones of Kalamazoo, Mrs. Jones and Miss Jones will occupy the Ranney cottage this summer and Kalamazoo's genial mayor will smoke his cigars on the Belvedere porches this season.

The mammoth new hotel on Mackinac Island will be a benefit rather than otherwise, to the resort patronage of Charlevoix. More tourists will visit this region this season than ever before and to visit the northern Michigan resorts and omit Charlevoix would be like the play of Cleveland with Dan Lamont left out.

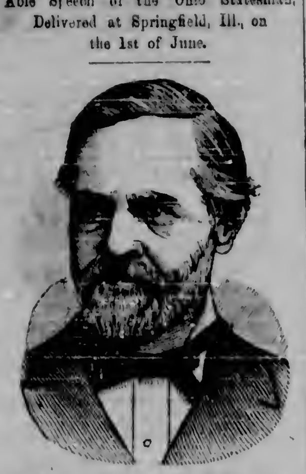
PRINCIPLES AND TENDENCIES.

Senator Sherman on the Past and Future of the Two Great Parties.

What the Republican Party Has Done and What the Democratic Party Has Not Done.

The Duty of the Republican Party in the Next Campaign—True Nationalism.

Able Speech of the Ohio Statesman, Delivered at Springfield, Ill., on the 1st of June.



Fellow Citizens, Ladies, and Gentlemen—What you desire of me, I presume, is a statement of my view of the principles and tendencies of the two great political parties of the country, for they must be tested by these and not by independent opinions or partial differences which always exist. These principles are the natural outgrowth of the contest over the institution of slavery that has continued since the commencement of the Government, but it was not until the repeal of the Missouri Compromise, and the great debate that occurred in Illinois between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas, that the philosophy of slavery was fully presented before popular audiences. It was this debate that led to the nomination of Mr. Lincoln, and made him the first Republican President of the United States.

Then also was shown the destructive tendencies of the institution of slavery and its mastery over the Democratic party, because Mr. Douglas would not agree to its extreme demand, it courts, and in many cases was admitted by the press and people of the South and defended. ... This is the basis of their power. Without the terror and ostracism I have described, several of these States, governed by their interests and convictions, enlightened by free discussion, emancipated in fact as well as in name, would be as thoroughly Republican as Illinois. It is said that this is raising the bloody shirt; renewing the animosities of the war. I deny it. ... soldiers. What I speak of is not the work of soldiers, but of cowards and criminals, not in war, but in peace. I pity the man who cannot distinguish between the duty of soldiers and self imposed cruelties and barbarous methods born of slavery.

What has been the course of the Democratic party of the North while these events have been going on? At first there was a doubt and denial, but now no honest man can doubt, unless wilfully ignorant. No Democrat with a spark of manhood who hates these methods can shield himself behind doubt or disbelief.

And, fellow citizens, this is not a thing of the past. It is a continuing fact. It is a fact today. There is not an intelligent man in this broad land, of either party, who does not know that Mr. Cleveland is now President of the United States by virtue of including murder, arson, ballot-box stuffing, forgery and perjury, but for which James G. Blaine would now be in his place. There has not been a moment since the adoption of the fifteenth amendment when, if there could have been a fair election for President, a majority of the constitutional voters of at least five of the Southern States would not have voted for the Republican nominee.

CRIMES AGAINST THE ELECTIVE FRANCHISE,

The poison of the success of these methods has already affected the election in some of the great cities of the North, especially in Chicago and Cincinnati, where, under the lead of Mackin and Tosney, the criminal classes adopted some of the meanest of crimes to control elections. Why should they not? If crime should be resorted to by the white Democrats of the South to cheat and intimidate poor negroes in the South, why should not white Democrats of the North be permitted to resort to forgery and perjury to peacefully change the result of an election in the North? Why discriminate against Mackin and Tosney by sending them to the penitentiary while sending Democrats of the South, by means of like offenses, to the Senate and the House, and to represent the great Republic in foreign courts?

But it is said that the Republican party was in power while these crimes were committed; why did it not prevent or punish them? This question should be fairly and frankly answered. When, by the defection of Andrew Johnson, the South was encouraged to commence the policy of intimidation, the Republican party was utterly helpless to resist it. It was during his administration, and with the sympathy of the Democratic party, that the massacre of colored people in New Orleans, and riots and violence in different portions of the South occurred, and especially the organization and the cruel and brutal work of the Kuklux Klan, and other secret oath-bound associations took place. It was under the shadow of that the election of 1868 occurred. It was to defeat Gen. Grant that the two wings of the Democratic party flapped together, one led by Boss Tweed, of New York, and his election forgeries and dead beats, the other by the Kuklux Klans. In spite of all this, however, Gen. Grant was elected President of the United States. It was then the Republican party in Congress proposed ...

THESE TRAGIC EVENTS

force, and corruption, and this was the cause of its fall. So in ours. If by the boldest frauds and crimes, instead of the popular will, it will be the end of free government. The mission of the Republican party will never end until every legal voter can cast one honest vote, and no more, and have that vote counted.

ELECTIONS ARE CONTROLLED

I do not wish to utter one word to revive the animosities of the war. That was fought out manfully and bravely by the two contending parties with such courage as to inspire the respect of each side for the other, and to its logical conclusion of the complete success of the Union cause. All that I ask is that the defeated party will honorably fulfill the terms of their surrender, and that the results of the war may be respected and observed with honor by Confederates, and firmly, but with charity and kindness, by Union soldiers and citizens. For this I appeal alike to Confederate and Union soldiers, to the blue and the gray, so that when passion and prejudice disappear, both sides will stand by each other in the improvement and development of our great and united country.

And this, fellow-citizens, brings me to the vital controlling difference between the two great parties now as during the war. From the beginning of the Government one theory tended to belittle, degrade, and lessen the authority of the National Union. It favored a strict construction of the Constitution; it construed it like an indictment or a penal bond, every doubt was to be resolved against it. To them it was a contract which any State might throw off at its pleasure. They called this

THE RIGHT OF SECESSION.

They called this government a confederacy. The Democratic party in later years felt under the absolute dominion of this theory. When they undertook in 1861 to put their theories in practice, they expressly called their government a Confederate government, and by their constitution they made slavery and the right of secession their corner stones, with Jefferson Davis as their chief.

The opposite theory was that the government formed by our fathers was a National Government, that the constitution was an indissoluble bond of union, defining the powers of the government, to be construed liberally, so as to carry into effect the purposes of its framers; that this was an ordinance, not of the States, but of the people, to promote a more perfect Union; to preserve the blessings of liberty for themselves and their posterity. They were Unionists; they believed in the growth and strength and power of the Republic. The Republican party is the representative of this theory. It marshalled the Union forces for the preservation of the Union, and against secession. It preserved the Union. But for it the American Republic would have been a thing of the past. For twenty-four years it administered the executive branch of the government on these lines. It was this that enabled the Republican party to confer upon the United States the inestimable benefits of a national currency, the homestead policy, the protection and diversity of our industries, the vast extension of our railroads and internal improvements. It is this marked difference between the two parties that lies at the foundation of all questions of public policy.

The future opens before us an infinite variety of questions which will turn on the extent of National authority. The revenues must be reduced.

THIS THE REPUBLICAN PARTY DID

many times since the war, and carefully selected for repeal or reduction taxes on home production and duties on articles that did not compete with home industry. We added to the free lists; made free from all duty more than one-third in value of all the articles of merchandise imported from foreign countries, including all articles in common use among our people which could not be produced here, including tea and coffee. We levied a duty on the remaining two-thirds sufficient to raise all the revenue needed, almost exclusively on articles that competed with home ...

HUSHING THE TEMPEST.

Dr. Talmage's Sermon at the Brooklyn Tabernacle.

Followers of Christ Must Not Always Expect Smooth Sailing—The Church Is Not Injured by Revivals—Reminiscence of the Late Rev. John Livingston.

BROOKLYN, June 5.—The Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D. D., preached in the Tabernacle this morning a sermon entitled "The Tempest." Service began with the exposition of appropriate passages of Scripture, after which the great congregation sang the hymn:

"Heaven is my fatherland, Heaven is my home."

The text was Mark iv. 36-39, describing Christ stilling the tempest. He said:

Tiberias, Galilee, Gennesaret — three names for the same lake. No other gem ever had so beautiful a setting. It lay in a scene of great luxuriance: the surrounding hills high, terraced, sloped, groved, so many hanging gardens of beauty, the waters rumbling down between rocks of gray and red limestone, flashing from the hills and bounding into the sea. On the shore were castles, armed towers, Roman baths, everything attractive and beautiful; all styles of vegetation in shorter space than in almost any other space in all the world, from the palm tree of the forest to the trees of rigorous climate.

It seemed as if the Lord had launched one wave of beauty on all the scene, and it hung and swung from rock and hill and oleander. Roman gentlemen in pleasure boats sailing the lake, and countrymen in fish smacks coming down to drop their nets, pass each other with nod and shout and laughter, or swinging idly at their moorings. Oh, what a wonderful, what a beautiful lake!

It seems as if we shall have a quiet night. Not a leaf winked in the air; not a ripple disturbed the face of Gennesaret; but there seems to be a little excitement up the beach, and we hasten to see what it is. ...

hung to death on a pillar. St. Matthew had his life dashed out with a halbert. St. Mark was dragged to death through the streets. St. James, the Less, was beaten to death with a fuller's club. St. Thomas was struck through with a spear. They did not find following Christ smooth sailing. Oh, how they were all tossed with the tempest! John Huss in the fire; Hugh McKail in the hour of martyrdom; the Albigenses, the Waldenses, the Scotch Covenanters—did they find it smooth sailing?

But why go to history when I can come into this audience to-day and find a score of illustrations of the truth of this subject. That young man in the store trying to serve God, while his employer scoffs at Christianity, the young men in the same store antagonistic to the Christian religion, teasing him, tormenting him about his religion, trying all in their power to get him mad, saying: "You're a pretty Christian." Does this young man find it smooth sailing when he tries to follow Christ? Here is a Christian girl. Her father despises the Christian religion; her mother despises the Christian religion; her brothers and sisters scoff at the Christian religion; she can hardly find a quiet place in which to say her prayers. Did she find it smooth sailing when she tried to follow Jesus Christ? Oh, no! All who would live the life of the Christian religion must suffer persecution. If you do not find it in one way you will get it in another way.

The question was asked: "Who are those nearest the throne?" and the answer came back: "These are they who came up out of great tribulation;" great flailing, as the original has it; great flailing, great pounding, "and had their robes washed and made white in the blood of the lamb." Oh, do not be disheartened! Oh, child of God! take courage. You are in glorious companionship. God will see you through all these trials, and he will deliver you.

My subject also impresses me with the fact that good people sometimes get very much frightened.

In the tones of these disciples as they rushed into the back part of the boat, I find they are frightened almost to death. They ...

my grief; hush all my temptation; hush all my sin." A man, a man; a God, a God.

I learn once more from this subject that Christ can hush a tempest.

It did seem as if everything must go to ruin. The disciples had given up the idea of managing the ship; the crew were entirely demoralized; yet Christ rises, and He puts His foot on the storm and it crouches at his feet. Oh, yes, Christ can hush the tempest.

You have had trouble. Perhaps it was the little child taken away from you—the sweetest child of the household, the one who asked the most curious questions, and stood around you with the greatest fondness, and the spade cut down through your bleeding heart. Perhaps it was an only son, and your heart has ever since been like a desolated castle, the owls of the night hooting among the falling arches and the crumbling stairways.

Perhaps it was an aged mother. You always went to her with your troubles. She was in your home to welcome your children into life, and when they died she was there to pity you; the old hand will do you no more kindness; that white lock of hair you put away in the casket, or in the locket, didn't look as it usually did when she brushed it away from her wrinkled brow in the home circle or in the country church. Or your property gone. You said: "I have so much bank stock, I have so many Government securities, I have so many farms"—all gone, all gone.

Why, sir, all the storms that ever trampled their thunders, all the shipwrecks have not been worse than this to you. Yet you have not been completely overthrown. Why? Christ hushed the tempest. Your little one was taken away. Christ says: "I have that little one in my keeping. I can care for him as well as you can, better than you can, O bereaved mother!" Hushing the tempest. When your property went away God said: "There are treasures in heaven, in banks that never break." Jesus hushing the tempest.

There is one storm into which we will all have to run. The moment when we let go of this life, and try to take hold of the next, we will want all the grace possible. ...

LILLIE EDDLES;

—OR,—

ABDUCTED BY THE BUSH-WHACKERS.

A Story of the War in the Southwest.

BY ARVIDE O. BALDWIN.

CHAPTER VII.—CONTINUED.

Shot after shot was given the attacking party, and as they were at a disadvantage they soon showed signs of weakening. John noticed that some of the men turned about and shot at the stable window, and during the lull he could hear the crack of a rifle in that direction. He had missed Jeff before the fight, but he now knew where he was. That individual was doing warlike duties on his own account.

No one could tell who was doing the execution; whether it was Henry, who kept his gun warm with continual firing; or John, who tried to make his shots count among the dodging enemy; or Jeff, from his position in the stable, from whence the slow but regular crack of his gun could be heard.

The two elder ladies (for Arno's mother was also there) were sitting side by side with their faces buried in their arms trying to shut out the horrible rattle of the guns and the breaking of the glass in the windows.

Laura Arno was leaning over her mother seeking sympathy, and trying to give it.

Lillie was going from one to the other of their defenders, doing what little she could to assist them in their brave resistance. Two bright spots of red appeared in her otherwise pale face, and her eyes shone with an unnatural fire as her stately figure traversed the floor without any apparent fear, although an occasional missile that came through the windows came unpleasantly near. During the heat of the battle Henry felt a sting in his left arm, and by the peculiar burning sensation knew he must be hurt, but as the member yet continued serviceable he paid no attention to it.

The fire gradually grew less on the part of the assailants, and in a short time half of their number were incapacitated for further active service—at least for the present. ...

pointing in the direction of the fire. "It may not be the gang that was here, but it is the work of some of the same class of villains."

"This thing is terrible!" exclaimed the ladies. "God pity the helpless!"

John's teeth were grinding together, but he said not a word.

In a few moments more another fire sprung up near the first, but not so large. There was no need to be told that it was the work of the murderous bushwhackers; that they were firing their neighbors' buildings was but too evident to our friends. It made them tremble with apprehension, for they did not know how soon their lovely home might be laid in ashes, and they left without a place to shelter themselves from the elements.

Jeff came in and passed through into the kitchen. He carried his old gun swung under his arm, and his hat was placed on the back part of his wooly head. The negro had an air of contentment and seemed to be in his element.

When he returned he carried in his hand a small muslin sack, or "poke," as they call the article in Arkansas, and it was well filled with edibles.

"Marse John!"

"Well, Jeff what now?"

"I's gwine ter lebe yer!" And he motioned for John to give him another private interview.

That gentleman had now more confidence in, and respect for, the negro before him than he had in the whole race before, and it was with alacrity that he stepped from the group to hear what the colored man had to tell him.

"Jeff, do you really intend to leave us?" John anxiously asked.

"Yes, but I wants ter tole yer 'bout it, so 'at yer may know what I's gwine ter, an' ef I don't come back yer'l know 'case why." And he then proceeded to tell John of his proposed trip. He was going to start that night for the river. He had been raised in that part of the country and was familiar with it. He wanted to do a "little hunting there," he said. He proposed to find their camp and see how the bushwhackers lived at home. He would try and find out what he could in regard to their plans, and would not return until he had accomplished something.

John liked the plan well enough, but it seemed too dangerous, and he tried to persuade the faithful man to abandon the project, but to no avail.

Sylva was peeping through the kitchen door-way, and Jeff cast a tender glance in that direction. In another moment he was gone. A cloud settled over the face of John as he saw his dusky friend depart, for he had begun to appreciate his services, and the spirit, although under a dark covering, that impelled him to risk his life for his friends. Vigilance was deemed necessary now, and a continual watch was kept about the premises.

Two nights and a day had passed away and nothing of an exciting nature had occurred, nor had Jeff returned from the river. As daylight came on the second day ...

Mr. JOHN GUTMON, Sherman, Ky., writes: "I have used St. Jacobs Oil for ten years. It always cured the toothache in about ten minutes." Sold by Druggists and Dealers.

Reward of Virtue.

Omaha Dame—My dear, elopements are becoming so common that I am dreadfully worried about our daughter, she is so romantic, you know. Husband—Don't be afraid; I'm on the lookout for anything of that sort. "Well, the paper tells of a pretty girl in College Corner, Ind., who eloped on Sunday while the family were at church." "George! I never thought of that; did she get away?" "Well, no; her father saw the couple as they drove past the church, gave chase, and got her back; but if it had been our daughter, dear, we wouldn't have had any such good luck." "I'd like to know why?" "Why, you are always asleep in the church, you know."—Omaha World.

Is It Not Singular

That consumptives should be the least apprehensive of their own condition, while all their friends are urging and beseeching them to be more careful about exposure and overdoing? It may well be considered one of the most alarming symptoms of the disease, where the patient is reckless and will not believe that he is in danger. Reader, if you are in this condition, do not neglect the only means of recovery. Avoid exposure and fatigue, be regular in your habits, and use faithfully of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." It has saved thousands who were steadily failing.

"A GOOD wife is the guide-post of life," says Tid-Bits. That's so; and the guide-post she uses on a refractory husband is the rolling-pin.—Boston Courier.

Beautiful Women

Are made pallid and unattractive by functional irregularities which Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" will infallibly cure. Thousands of testimonials. By druggists.

YOU never hear of a strike among astronomers. The business is always looking up.

Endurance of Society People.

A prominent society lady of Washington, being asked by the Prince of Wales, "Why is it you people here manifest so little fatigue from dancing, receptions, etc.?" replied, "Why, you see, we Americans regain the vitality wasted in these dissipations by using Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic."

PURE Cod Liver Oil made from selected livers on the sea-shore by Hazard, Hazard & Co., New York. It is absolutely pure and sweet. Patients who have once taken it prefer ...

It Won't Bake Bread

In other words, we do not claim that Hood's Sarsaparilla will do impossibilities. We tell you plainly what it has done, and submit proofs from sources of unquestioned reliability, and ask you frankly if you are suffering from any disease or affection caused or promoted by impure blood or low state of the system, to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Our experience warrants us in assuring you that you will not be disappointed in the result.

"My wife thinks there is nothing like Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we are never without it in the house." F. H. LATIMER, Syracuse, N. Y.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

Ingrowing Toe Nails cured without pain, without cutting. Sent by mail on receipt of $1 by L. Tenner, Druggist, Plymouth, Ind. Reference, F. N. Bank, Plymouth.

PENSIONS, Officer's pay, bounty procured; deserters relieved. 21 years' practice. Success or no fee. Write for circulars and new laws.

PATENTS R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Instructions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 17 years' experience.

BEST ROOFING Any one can apply it. Catalogue & samples Free. ESTAB 1866. W. H. FAY & CO. Camden, N. J. Also St. LOUIS, MINNEAPOLIS, OMAHA. NO TAR

$350 Will pay for a complete newspaper outfit of type and presses upon which to print a newspaper in a town of 700 or more inhabitants. The same will be sold upon easy terms. For particulars in detail, address PRACTICAL PRINTER, Box 497, Chicago, Ill.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH
PENNYROYAL PILLS
The Original and Only Genuine.
Safe and always Reliable. Beware of worthless imitations. Ladies, ask your Druggist for "Chichester's English" and take no other, or inclose 4c. (stamps) to us for particulars in letter by return mail. NAME PAPER. CHICHESTER CHEMICAL CO., 2818 Madison Square, Philada., Pa. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Ask for "Chichester's English" Pennyroyal Pills. Take no other.

PENSIONS

RUPTURE

ADVERTISERS ... on advertising space when in Chicago, will find it on file at 45 to 49 Randolph St., the Advertising Agency of LORD & THOMAS.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for TANSILL'S PUNCH 5¢

Everybody wants "Tansill's Punch" to clear now; they were always good, but of late they have improved. I heartily approve of your way of doing business. You are sure to hold and increase your trade. A. ... Druggist, Chicago, Ill.
Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

FOR SALE.

A good second-hand 9x13 Aldine Job Press, with Steam Fixtures and Fountain. This is a first-class Press in every particular, is in splendid condition and will be sold at a bargain. For further particulars address NEWSPAPER UNION, 271 & 273 Franklin St., Chicago, Ill.

Cures Neuralgia, Toothache, Headache, Catarrh, Croup, Sore Throat, RHEUMATISM, Lame Back, Stiff Joints, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Wounds, Old Sores and All Aches and Pains. ... It Cures You. That's the Idea! Sold by Druggists. 50 cts. ... Address WIZARD OIL COMPANY CHICAGO.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.
CATARRH
Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

TOWER'S FISH BRAND SLICKER Is The Best Waterproof Coat Ever Made.

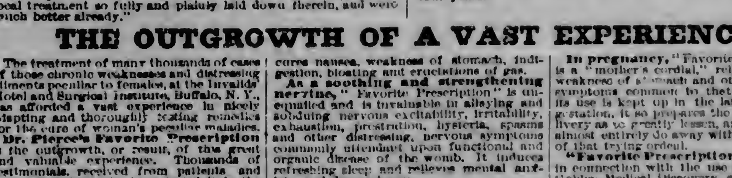
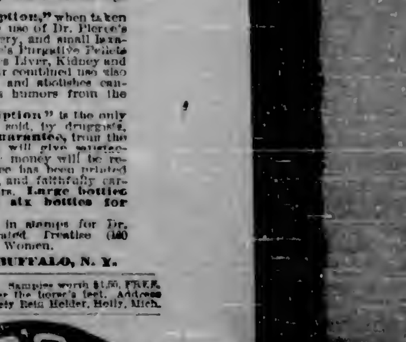
TREATING THE WRONG DISEASE.

THE OUTGROWTH OF A VAST EXPERIENCE.





For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times." Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, JUNE 15, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

John L. Sullivan is reported to have put $400 on the contribution plate when he attended church in Leadville, Col., recently. The plate is exhibited as proof.

The State Senate is lopping off here and there, and trimming the liquor bill until its own father would not know it. All this may result in a fine piece of sculpture or in a legislative monstrosity. We shall see.

Sunday-playing of base ball is meeting with strong opposition in all the leading cities. There is a feeling among the best friends of the sport that either the national game or the Sunday playing of it must go.

The authorities wish it to be understood that the law expressly forbids the spearing of fish in Michigan inland waters on and after June 1, and the Game and Fish Warden proposes to inflict the severest penalty on all transgressors.

The New York Tribune and all the leading republican papers of New York state are earnest advocates of progressive temperance legislation and temperance reform. They are rapidly massing a solid republican front against the "saloon in politics."

The Congregationalist grimly suggests the following as an appropriate name for some churches: "The Society for the Promotion of Picnics, Progressive Euchre Parties and Theatrical Entertainments, Successor to the Antioch Disciples' Association of Christian Character and Gospel Work.

The bill creating a board of trustees to receive and hold in trust for the State the title to the Lincoln homestead in Springfield, appointing a custodian therefor, and making an appropriation to repair and keep in a state of preservation the residence and relics, passed the Illinois House, Thursday.

William A. Wheeler had been Vice-President of the United States, and lived an honorable life. When he died the flags on the Government buildings at Washington were not half-masted. Contrasted with the respect shown to the memory of the Rebel Jake Thompson, this action shows the nice democratic appreciation of the fitness of things.

The Socialists who want land can be accommodated for a while yet. There are still 9,000,000 acres of public lands in Colorado, 12,000,000 in Arizonia, 30,000,000 in California, 49,000,000 in Dakota, 7,000,000 in Florida, 44,000,000 in Idaho, 7,000,000 in Minnesota, 41,000,000 in Utah, 20,000,000 in Washington Territory, and some millions of acres in other states and territories. No need to go to Mexico for land just yet.

The New York World is a democratic paper with decidedly independent views, and it sometimes lifts up a great unwelcome truth for its party to gaze at. It does this when it says that "the liquor sellers interfere far too much for the public good in the management of political parties. It says also: "If they are made eligible to membership in the knights of labor they will control that organization within less than a year. If the knights are wise they will keep even the tip of that camel's nose out of their tent."

The State W. C. T. U. seems to think that the "third party," which polled in the neighborhood of 18,000 votes last April, is the only party that did anything for the prohibition amendment. We judge so from the fact that the W. C. T. U. has resolved to lend its influence to the third party. This is grateful recognition of the 130,000 or more republican votes cast for the prohibition amendment. The action of the W. C. T. U. in this particular is only another urgent invitation to the temperance sentiment of the State to remain permanently divided.

Statistics show that about twenty thousand people are annually destroyed in India by animals, and of these nineteen out of twenty are said to be bitten by snakes. The number of human victims tends to increase, in spite of the fact that the number of wild beasts and snakes destroyed has doubled in the last ten years and that the government reward paid for their extermination has risen proportionately. Next to the venomous reptiles, tigers claim most victims. Ten years ago, wolves, mostly in the north west provinces, killed five times as many people as of late years; but the extermination of wolves seems to be going on rapidly. Leopards are the alleged cause of death to about two hundred human beings annually. Apart from the loss of human life, the returns show an annual destruction of ... thousand head of cattle ...

Northern Michigan News.

The Kensington house at Harbor Springs, will be opened to-day.

The machinery for J. Lesh & Co's. mill, at Harbor Springs, has arrived.

Strawberries are ripening in Northern Michigan, and will be an unusually bountiful crop.

The Commercial House at Gaylord was destroyed by fire last week. Loss $4,000; no insurance.

The Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic road's iron ore dock at St. Ignace is being fitted up to work its full capacity.

The St. Ignace Manufacturing Company is erecting two large new buildings in connection with their veneering mills.

Tuesday of last week the Petoskey and Harbor Springs base ball clubs met, with the result of 15 to 14 in favor of Petoskey.

At the meeting of the East Jordan council recently, two liquor bonds were accepted; those of A. B. Nicholas and H. Welkel.

A Mancelona lady boasts of having hatched ninety chickens from seven hens in five weeks, and that three of the fowl are now laying.

S. G. Isaman has been busy the past few days platting an addition to the village of South Arm. He has platted 80 lots which will be for sale.

According to our Kalkaska exchange the stave factory at that place is not to be removed to Manton, but the proprietors are to put up and operate a branch institution at that place.

The principal events at the Methodist Resort Grounds at Bay View, come off this season as follows: State Camp-Meeting, July 19-25; Ministerial Union, July 25-27; Bay View Assembly, July 27-August-11. For this last, an elaborate programme has been prepared, which is published in the Bay View Assembly Herald.

The surveying party of the Detroit, Charlevoix & Escanaba railroad has reached Bellaire and a grand banquet was given it by the business men's association of that place Saturday evening. The occasion was one long to be remembered and did great credit to the town. Distinguished citizens of Kalkaska, Charlevoix and Mancelona were present and toasts were announced by Geo. W. Albrecht and responded to by citizens and visitors without distinction. It is hoped that the event thus celebrated will be followed by the successful completion of the road. Superintendent Beardslee of the surveying party, an experienced railroader, pronounces the route the prettiest and most paying of any he ever run, and says the road can be built ready for the rails for $8,000 per mile. He will complete it from Charlevoix to Kalkaska in six months, if the sinews of war are supplied.—Detroit Evening News.

Unless the present difficulty about securing transportation for iron ore is quickly obviated, the mines of none of the four great ranges of the Lake Superior iron district will be able to ship as much ore this season as they estimated at the opening of navigation. Already the shipments are far behind what they should be. None of the mines are able to get as many cars as they need to take the ore from the mines to the dock. A requisition for 500 cars frequently brings only 125, and when the ore is got to the docks there is a difficulty in finding carriers by lake. Last year the Lake Superior iron district produced 3,500,000 tons of ore, as against 2,225,000 tons in '85, in round numbers. Last year, with an increase of a million and a quarter tons in output, lake freights advanced and carriers were hard to charter. This year the estimated output was 5,500,000 tons, or two million tons more than last. Judging from the difficulty experienced so far, it may be safely said that the output of the Lake Superior mines for '87 will fall considerably short of 5,000,000 tons.

The editor of the Petoskey Record visited Mackinac Island recently and last week gave an account of the new hotel, from which we clip the following: "The great building is situated west of the fort about half a mile, and about the same distance from the village, and stands upon a natural terrace fronting the straits. The view from its grand portico is simply magnificent, the eye sweeping down the whole length of the south passage to Cheboygan and Lake Huron, westward through the straights out into Lake Michigan, and eastward past Round Island and Bois Blanc through the north passage into the northern reaches of Lake Huron. There is no finer water view in the United States than will be enjoyed by the guests of this superb summer resort. Hundreds of hammers are at work nailing together the parts of the immense structure which is over 600 feet in length with a magnificent portico supported on columns, 500 feet long, 25 feet wide and rising to a height of two stories. Far up in the air seven full stories high the framework of the roof is being covered in by the carpenters, while hundreds of others are finishing off the rooms below.

EDUCATIONAL.

All communications on educational topics should be addressed to Prof. H. M. Foss, Superintendent of the Charlevoix Schools.

THE SCHOOLS.

Report of Charlevoix Schools for the Term ending June 10th, 1887.

TOTAL NO. DIFFERENT PUPILS ENROLLED AND NOT TRANSFERRED.
1st Department,	67
2nd Department,	51
3d Department,	42
4th Department,	41
5th Grammar Section,	30
5th High School,	29
Total,	260

AVERAGE NO. BELONGING.
1st Department,	52.4
2nd Department,	45
3d Department,	35.5
4th Department,	37.8
5th Dep't Grammar Section,	26
5th Dep't High School,	25
Average,	221.7

DAYS ATTENDANCE.
1st Department,	2377½
2nd Department,	2138½
3d Department,	1653½
4th Department,	1780
5th Dep't Grammar Section,	1212½
5th Dep't High School,	1150½
Total,	10,312½

DAYS LOST BY ABSENCE.
1st Department,	165
2nd Department,	123
3d Department,	125
4th Department,	90½
5th Dep't Grammar Section,	45
5th Dep't High School,	30½
Total,	579

AVERAGE ATTENDANCE.
1st Department,	48½
2nd Department,	43½
3d Department,	33¾
4th Department,	36¼
5th Dep't Grammar Section,	24¼
5th Dep't High School,	23½
Average,	210¾

CASES TARDY.
1st Department,	69
2nd Department,	55
3d Department,	9
4th Department,	11
5th Dep't Grammar School,	5
5th Dep't High School,	2
Total,	151

ATTENDANCE, AND PUNCTUALITY, PER CENT OF NUMBER BELONGING.
1st Department,	96.7
2nd Department,	96
3d Department,	96.1
4th Department,	97.4
5th Dep't Grammar Section,	98
5th Dep't High School,	98.5
Total,	97.5

NAMES OF PUPILS NEITHER ABSENT NOR TARDY FOR THE ENTIRE SPRING TERM

First Department—Edith Aitchison, Mattie Brink, Ernest Brown, George Emrey, Cora Lawrence, Ralph Newman, Frank Ripley, Mabel Ward.

Second Department—Katie Kirkpatrick, Altie Brink, Minnie Krebbs, Maggie Mossington, Frank Lawrence, Wellie Mossington, Forest Bartholomew.

Third Department—Mattie Lamereaux, Minnie Nowland, Frank Gelken, Edith Lewis, Gertie Myers, Lillie Newman, Walter Krebbs, Hiram Ross, Ida Cook.

Fourth Department—Winnie Bartholomew, Lettie Moore, Cloie McCartney, Eva Swalls, Carl Clifford.

Fifth Department, Gram. Section—Chancey Upright, George Newman.

Fifth Department, High School—Blanche Bartholomew, Phila Wood, Edith Hawkins, Elmira Glass, Edith Mason, Lulu Carter, Pearl Dart, Katie Smith, Ralph Washburn.

Summary for the Entire Year.

NO. DIFFERENT PUPILS ENROLLED.
1st Department,	81
2nd Department,	60
3d Department,	46
4th Department,	47
5th Dep't Grammar Section,	33
5th Dep't High School,	42
Total,	309

AVERAGE ATTENDANCE FOR YEAR.
1st Department,	37.8
2nd Department,	40.1
3d Department,	33.6
4th Department,	40.6
5th Dept., Grammar Section,	25.4
5th Dept., High School,	29.9
Average,	207.6

AVERAGE NO. BELONGING.
1st Department,	41.3
2nd Department,	42
3d Department,	31
4th Department,	40
5th Dept., Grammar Section,	26.5
5th Dept., High School,	31.2
Average,	213.1

DAYS ABSENCE.
1st Department,	541½
2nd Department,	527½
3d Department,	311½
4th Department,	367
5th Dept., Grammar Section,	152½
5th Dept., High School,	151½
Total,	2051½

TARDY CASES.
1st Department,	178
2nd Department,	195
3d Department,	47
4th Department,	54
5th Dep't Grammar Section,	21
5th Department, High School,	22
Total,	517

ATTENDANCE AND PUNCTUALITY, PER CENT. OF NO. BELONGING.
1st Department,	95
2nd Department,	95.1
3d Department,	97 x
4th Department,	97.1
5th Dept. Grammar Section,	98 x
5th Dept. High School,	98.4
Average,	[illegible]

Roll of Honor.

The following named pupils have been present and punctual every day during the entire year:

Blanche Bartholomew,	11th	Grade
Ralph Washburn,	9th	"
Chancey Upright,	8th	"
George Newman,	7th	"
Winnifred Bartholomew,	4th	Dep't.
Lillian Eaton,	4th	"
Eva Swalls,	4th	"
Minnie Nowland,	3rd	"
Frank Geiken,	3rd	"
Gertrude Myers,	3rd	"
Lillie Newman,	3rd	"
Aggie Kirkpatrick,	2d	"
Mattie Brink,	1st	"

Asylum Matters.

From the Grand Traverse Herald.

A vast amount of work has been done on the asylum grounds since last fall. This institution is laboring under many disadvantages that the other asylums have long ago overcome. Both Kalamazoo and Pontiac now have large and valuable farms under cultivation from which they derive a large revenue. The Traverse City asylum, has, as yet, comparatively little available land. A few years will remedy this, but the funds of the institution will not permit a large expenditure in this direction in any one year. The work must, therefore, go forward somewhat slowly, and not in a manner most desirable. The labor must, mainly, be that of the patients, and while many of these are able to work, the hours are necessarily short, and their work is of a somewhat desultory nature, and there is so much to be done in so many different places at once—grading, fencing, plowing, planting, logging, stumping, and a hundred other matters, that the work seems to go on slowly; but the aggregate is a good deal.

Since last fall 50 acres of new chopping has been made, and most of this has now been burned and a good portion of it logged, and some put into spring crops. In clearing this land the available timber has been sold or cut into lumber for fencing the farm; about 25,000 posts have been cut, some which have been sold and the rest kept for fencing use on the grounds; some 2,600 cords of wood has been cut and will be used at the asylum, thus saving coal. Considerable stumping has been done and the lower lands, in the old clearing, have been ditched and tile is now being laid. A large amount of grading has been done in front of the building, lawns are being made, and a little has been done in the way of ornamenting the grounds. A good deal of fencing has been done and shade trees have been set along all the drives in front of the building.

The legislature has finally made an appropriation for the purchase of the 40-acre lot in front of the asylum building, and adjoining the town plat. Work has already begun on this. The entire tract will be stumped and a neat fence will enclose it. There will be a great change in the appearance of this piece before fall.

The asylum is now overcrowded on the male side. The male wards now contain 258 patients and the female wards 233. Whenever a male patient is received now, some other male patient must be sent home to make room for the new arrival. Of course a limit must soon be reached, for the time must soon come when there will be no more such patients who can be safely sent away. Then the counties must care, as best they can, for their insane. The female side still has room for about 20 patients. A bill is pending in the legislature making appropriation for finishing off the attics into wards, and for building a detached cottage for 50 males. The attics will accommodate 25 males and 25 females. Should this bill pass it will give relief for a while. Should it fail to pass, the counties in this district will very soon have to provide for their insane as they best can, for there will be no room here. This district contains 51 counties, and every one of them is deeply interested in the passage of this bill.

Bank of Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security

Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers

Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to Speculate with ones own money, is folly; that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking

Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors; and, believing that it furnishes unusual guarantee, therefore,

This Bank Invites

People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will

Borrow investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking

Productive employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments will find attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes.

Now earning Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

Mortgage Sale.

A mortgage dated January 12th, 1883 executed by Andrew Holmes and Mary Holmes (his wife), to the Wayne County Savings Bank of Detroit, Michigan, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Charlevoix County, Michigan, January 17th, 1883, in liber 7 of mortgages on page 382, upon which the whole amount is due and unpaid to wit: The sum of one hundred and twelve and thirteen one hundredths dollars ($112.13) for the recovery of which no suit or proceedings at law have been commenced, will be foreclosed under the power of sale therein contained by a statutory sale of the premises described therein as lot number one in section number fourteen, town number thirty-four north of range eight west (except five acres from the north east corner) containing fifty acres (according to the government survey) of land in Charlevoix County, Michigan to the highest bidder, at the front door of the county building (so called) in the village of Boyne City, in the county of Charlevoix (that being the place of holding the circuit court for the county of Charlevoix), at 12 o'clock noon, Friday, June 17th, 1887.

Dated March 22d, 1887.
WAYNE COUNTY SAVINGS BANK, of Detroit, Mortgagee.
D. C. PAGE, Attorney for Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a certain indenture of Mortgage bearing date Nov. 15th A. D. 1881, made by and between Albert Jubenville, bachelor of Charlevoix county, Michigan, party of the first part, to Morgan Curtis of Kalamazoo county, Michigan, party of the second part, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, on the 29th day of Nov. A. D. 1881 in Liber 5 of Mortgages at page 437 and by which default the power of sale in said Mortgage contained, has become operative and no suit or proceedings either in law or equity having been instituted to collect the amount due on said Mortgage, and there being due thereon the sum of One hundred and sixty-five dollars, therefore the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described in said Mortgage on the 19th day of July A. D. 1887, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day by sale at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the County building, in the village of Boyne City, and county of Charlevoix, (that being the place for holding the Circuit court for the county of Charlevoix, wherein the lands described in said mortgage are situated), of the mortgaged premises described in said Mortgage or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount due on said Mortgage. The premises described in said Mortgage are as follows, the south east quarter of the north east quarter of section thirty-two, of town thirty-two north of range five west, Charlevoix county, Michigan.

Dated Kalkaska, Mich., April the 18th, A. D. 1887.
A. A. BLEAZBY, Atty for Mortgagee. MORGAN CURTIS, Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in a certain indenture of Mortgage bearing date December the first, 1883, made by and between David Norton and Hanah Norton, his wife of Charlevoix, Michigan, party of the first part, to Mary E Manley, of Wayne county, New York, party of the second part, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Charlevoix county, Michigan, on the second day of Feb. A. D. 1884, in Liber 8 of Mortgages at page 220, and upon which there is now due and unpaid the sum of seventy-two dollars and no action having been taken either in law or equity to collect the same; therefore the said Mortgage will be foreclosed under the power of sale therein contained by statutory sale of the premises therein described at the front door of the County building, in the village of Boyne City, and county of Charlevoix, (that being the place for holding the Circuit court for the county of Charlevoix, in which said county the lands described in said Mortgage are situated), at ten o'clock in the forenoon of the 19th day of July, A. D. 1887. The premises described in said mortgage are as follows: the north-east quarter of the south-east quarter and the north-west quarter of the south east quarter of section twenty-four of town thirty-three, north of range seven west, Charlevoix county state of Michigan, said premises will be sold subject to the principal sum of Eight hundred dollars yet to become due on said Mortgage together with the accruing interest thereon.

Dated Kalkaska, Mich., April the 18th, A. D. 1887.
A. A. BLEAZBY, Atty for Mortgagee. MARY E. MANLEY, Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a certain indenture of mortgage bearing date the 15th day of December, A. D. 1881, executed by Richard Lake and Phebe E. Lake (his wife), of Charlevoix County, State of Michigan, to Otis Ross, of South Haven, Van Buren County, State of Michigan, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, in liber "4" of mortgages on page 494 on the 11th day of March, A. D. 1882, by which default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative and upon which said mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of two thousand nine hundred and sixty dollars and thirty-two cents ($2,960.32) for principal, and interest, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the amount now due, or any part thereof, now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided there will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House in the village of Boyne City, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan (that being the place for holding the Circuit Court for said County of Charlevoix), on Thursday the 30th day of June, A. D. 1887, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon of said day the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to satisfy the amount due upon said mortgage together with the costs and charges of sale and interest to wit. The south west quarter (¼) and the north west quarter (¼) of the south east quarter (¼) of section No. twenty-three (23) in township No. thirty-three (33) north of range No. seven (7) west, containing three hundred and sixty acres according to the United States survey. Also the north half (½) of the north east quarter (¼) of section No. twenty-seven (27) in township No. thirty-three (33) north range No. seven (7) west containing eighty acres according to the United States survey in the County of Charlevoix in the State of Michigan.

Dated March 7, 1887.
JAMES H. JOHNSON, Attorney for Mortgagee. OTIS ROSS, Mortgagee.

Probate Notice.

State of Michigan, County of Charlevoix, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for said county, held at the Probate office, in the Village of Boyne City, on the 6th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven. Present, James A. Keat, Judge of Probate. In the Matter of the Estate of John West, late of Chicago, Ill., deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of John Joseph West, and Robert West, and alleging that duly authenticated copies of the last will and testament of said deceased and of the probate thereof, have been duly ... showing that said will has been duly admitted to probate in the County of Cook, State of Illinois, and praying that a time and place be ... fixed, and due notice be given to all persons interested, and that said will and testament ... allowed, filed and recorded in ... Thereupon it is ordered, that Tuesday the ... day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the Village of Boyne City, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted; and it is further ordered, that said petitioners give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

A true copy.
JAMES A. KEAT, Judge of Probate.

CHARLEVOIX Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan

Henry Bennett, Pres. John Nicholls, Vice Pres. F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Henry Bennett, John Nicholls, A. R. Upright, O. D. Wood, A. Buttars, A. Fox, F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL, ... $25,000
SURPLUS, ... 2,000

The liabilities of stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art. 3 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate ... of Banking business extended to our customers, on terms as favorable as are consistent with safe ...

Drafts drawn on the leading commercial cities of the world, in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved ... Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:
NATIONAL PARK BANK, New York.
COMMERCIAL NAT. BANK, Chicago.
NAT. CITY BANK, Grand Rapids.
DETROIT NAT. BANK, Detroit.

W. A. REYNARD,

Has just received at his Fruit Store in the Lewis Block, a choice line of

Vegetables and Fruits

OF ALL KINDS,

TO WHICH OTHERS WILL BE ADDED IN SEASON.

I will also keep in stock a full line of

Tobaccos and Cigars.

Butter and Eggs a Specialty.

CROSS & SONS.,

Buy and Sell all kinds of

Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.

Charlevoix, - Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY,

Photographer.

In Bradbeer's Gallery.

Photographs of all sizes taken.

Old Pictures copied and enlarged.

CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

New JEWELRY AND SILVER WARE.

I have just received a very fine stock of

Watches, Chains, Pins, Clocks, Silver-Ware, etc

which I will sell at Prices lower than the same goods can be purchased outside.

Did it ever occur to you that by patronizing home Merchants you were benefiting yourselves?

All classes of Repairing done quickly.

C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,

ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR,

—ON—

Chalevoix Summer Resorts.

I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.

I employ only first-class workmen, both

Carpenters and Painters.

Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention

J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

Fox & Miller

Offer a

Mammoth Stock

OF

BOOTS, SHOES

and other

FOOT WEAR,

—AT—

LOWER PRICES

Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a

FIRST-CLASS

SHOEMAKER,

And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

The Kalamazoo

"DAILY TELEGRAPH."

Contains the Associated Press Dispatches

Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.

Charlevoix, Mich.

Manufacturers and Wholesale and Retail Dealers

3 EXTRA GRADES OF

FLOUR

Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

M. LITNEY. JOS. STEIMEL

Litney & Steimel

LIVERY,

And Feed Barn

Charlevoix, Mich.

Good Rigs at Lowest Rates.

It Pays to Buy the

BEST BOATS!

The large number of boats I have built for resorters, are advertisements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.

I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the

LEAST MONEY!

All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.

LEAVE ORDERS

with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.

Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.

J. BEAUVAIS.

BOOTS & SHOES

Have you seen our $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00 Gents Shoes?

If not do so at once. They are made solid throughout even to the counter. You'll have no trouble with these goods running over at the heel.

These goods cannot be equalled in the county

Either in style, quality or price. We will take pains this season to have in stock goods that will suit all. New ad. soon on Ladies' Fine Shoes of latest styles New York, Common Sense, and London Toes.

Ladies Look Out

For the new line of latest style goods that is on the road for

D. SHERWOOD & CO.

A. J. McLEOD,

Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at

Wholesale or Retail

All kinds of

FRESH MEATS,

SALT PORK,

SMOKED & SALTED

HAMS,

Dried and Smoked

BACON, DRIED BEEF,

Bologna, Head Cheese, Sausage.

Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.

Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.

A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S

MARKET

Is supplied with

All Kinds Of

MEATS

At Lowest Prices.

CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.

Corner of State & Mason sts.,

JOHN McCABE.

Washburn & Ackert,

FOUNDREYMEN, MACHINISTS,

And Manufacturers of The

Charlevoix Plow,

Take The Sentinel.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix Mich.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law. Office in Buttars Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PAILTHORP & GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon, 4 doors west of Inglesid e, Charlevoix, Mich

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office at residence, Main st. Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 119, meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

MASONIC.—Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F & A. M Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Post-office.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake Lodge No. 293, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' hall

K. O. T. M.—Resort Tent No. 138, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' Hall.

L. O. L.—True Blues No. 157, meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. 104, R. A. M., meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 136, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of the members, during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.

President—Byron Sec.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller.
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strong
Financial Secretary—B. Suffield.
Treasurer—Albert E. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. D. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. Lee Iddings, W. A. Brown and C. Y. Cook.
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. R. Bartholomew, M. J. Stockman, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, B. W. Miller, S. M. Sea, W. C. Newman, E. M. Clark, H. Berdan.

All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequalled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,

RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.

Charlevoix, - - - Mich.

Every convenience for the traveling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids Stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,

Lorenzo Cook, Manager

Charlevoix, - - - Mich.

The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only 100 feet to Steamboat landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE.

WIT AND HUMOR.

Joseph was the first politician. He had a coat of many colors.

It is said that bees can predict weather. They can certainly make it hot where they are.

When a man buys a porous plaster he generally sticks to his bargain.—Burlington Free Press.

Scientists know there is no God, but they are more or less in doubt about the sea-serpent.—Puck.

An unmarried grocer must of necessity be behind the times because he has to mate to ketch up.—Life.

Judging from the tightness of the article it isn't every girl who can laugh in her sleeve nowadays.

When a young woman refuses to return a man's love she does not make herself liable to arrest for petty larceny.

There is said to be a volcano in New Zealand that slings out mud. All it needs is an editor-in-chief and an office towel to become a regulation campaign organ.

Mamma—Henry, I've a surprise for you. Papa—Indeed. Mamma—Yes; baby has cut his eye tooth. Papa—Gracious me! what a dreadful accident.—Judge.

"Did you hear that Tompkins had failed?" "Has he? I knew he has been in bad odor for some time." "It's all right now, for he hasn't got a cent."—N. Y. Sun.

When you run across a polite railroad official you can generally make up your mind that there is a parallel road somewhere in the neighborhood.—New Haven News.

It is supposed that if the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" troupes now on the road should organize themselves into a political party they could sweep the country.—New Haven News.

Paris gossips say that De Lesseps has an $8,000 bath-tub in his house. It is probably a small section of his Panama canal boarded up at the ends and fitted out with a piece of fire-hose.

"Where have you been all summer, Brown?" "Lake George." "What did you do there?" "Went fishing." "Catch anything?" "Don't know yet; but she threatens a breach of promise suit."

"There is one thing," said Yellowly, "that shows the glory of this country. Every man has it in his power to make his daughter a lady." "How is that?" asked Brownley. "He can make her a saleslady."

"What is the greatest work of creation?" asked the teacher; and little Johnny, whose mind was still full of the Odd-Fellows' parade, promptly responded, "The drum-major."—Boston Transcript.

It is said that the lady who wrote "In the Gloaming" made $3,000 out of it. There are a good many young ladies who sing it and who do not seem to make much out of it.—Burlington Free Press.

It is said that the human race is destined to be bald and toothless. This need not alarm the people seriously. A great many have been born that way, and the race is none the worse for it.—Lowell Times.

The Rev. E. G. Hay of Pottsville, Pa., goes to his appointments among the hills of Schuylkill county on a bicycle—the first instance, we believe, in which that vehicle has been used for the transportation ...

... ma, it was where the minister told about somebody's taking somebody else 'apart;' but he didn't tell why it was done or how he was put together again."—Harper's Bazar.

At the seaside. Mrs. Levy—Shacob, shoost look at dose peautiful waves how dey rises and falls. Mr. Levy—Repecca, don't I have told you already sometimes dat I don't vant to hear apout dose fluctuashuns? I vants to hear noddings at all apout dot money market vile I vas dot seaside out?

Brown's only son and heir, who had arrived at the mature age of 8, was pestering his father for permission to smoke. "Only a wee little cigarette," pleaded the youngster. "Oh, yes, cigarettes!" retorted the author of his being; "you commence with cigarettes and end with volcanoes."

It will soon happen that when the head of the house goes to the family Bible to find consolation for affliction he will exclaim: "Dog gone it, Maria, what's all this?" And then the daughter of the household will admit that the first edition of autumn leaves has gone to press.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Prices in Paris.

One may live in Paris as he sees fit to live or has means to live. Here, however, as everywhere else in the world, prices have steadily gone up, and the franc will buy less in the market than formerly, and even at its reduced rate can not obtain the same quality either of food or drink as formerly. I had the opportunity the other day of comparing the carte des vins of the Cafe Anglais of 1866 with that of the present year, and found every item upon it advanced from 30 to 50 per cent. The apartments for which I paid 300 francs a month in 1873 are now held at 500, and a little entre sol, which twenty years ago cost me 6 francs a day, I found upon inquiry held at 10, although I should consider it dear at half the money. The ladies tell me it is even so at the Magazin de Louvre and the Bon Marche. Cheap wearing apparel has gone out of fashion. Woolens are dearer here than in Louisville, and on neither side of the Seine can any of the old-time bargains be picked up. To be sure, the French have mastered the arts of dress, millinery, and cooking, and we shall seek in vain for such taste and style as prevail here in these particulars. But they have learned to charge for their superior decorative skill, and a little money is as unhandy in Paris as in London.

TIME CARDS OF STEAMERS

STANDARD TIME.

Charlevoix and East Jordan.

STR. NORTH STAR, ... CAPT. ... THOMPSON

Leaving Charlevoix at 6:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. and returning leave East Jordan for Charlevoix at 9:30 am and 4 p m, touching at intermediate points both ways.

Boyne City and Charlevoix.

STR. CLARA BELLE, ... CAPT. GEO. JEPSON,

Leave Boyne City at 6:30 a. m. and 1:00 p. m. and Charlevoix at 9:30 a. m., and 3 p m, connecting with the Friant and Cummings to and from Petoskey, Touching at way ports.

Charlevoix and Boyne City.

STR. JOSEPH GORDON .... CAPT. LEWIS GIRARD,

Leave Charlevoix at 6:30 a. m. and 1 p. m., and Boyne City at 6:30 a.m., 4 p. m., touching at way ports

Harbor Springs, Charlevoix & E. Jordan.

STR. THOS FRIANT, ... CAPT. R. VANDERHOEF.

MORNING: Leave Harbor Springs, 7:30; Petoskey, 8:00; Charlevoix, 9:30; arrive, East Jordan 11:30. AFTERNOON: Leave East Jordan 1:30; Charlevoix, 4:00; Petoskey, 5:35; arrive, Harbor Spring, 6:00

East Jordan, Charlevoix & Harbor Spgs.

LOU A. CUMMINGS, ... CAPT. W. A. SNYDER.

A Walking Skeleton.

Mr. E. Springer, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., writes: "I was afflicted with lung fever and abscess on lungs, and reduced to a walking Skeleton. Got a free trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which did me so much good that I bought a dollar bottle. After using three bottles, found myself once more a man, completely restored to health, with a hearty appetite, and a gain in flesh of 48 lbs." Call at Dr. G. W. Crouter's and Crouter & Harris' Drug Store and get a free trial bottle of this certain cure for all Lung Diseases. Large bottles $1.

Thousands Say So.

Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints. Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Dr. G. W. Crouter

Old papers for sale at this office.

THAT HACKING COUGH can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's Cure. We guarantee it.

WILL YOU SUFFER with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS, made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you.

CATARRH CURED, health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Nasal injector free. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

Land for Sale.

I have 5 acres just east of the cemetery, one mile from town, nearly all cleared, which I will sell cheap for cash, or approved paper. Address JAMES METCALF, Charlevoix.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter

W. H. FRANCIS

FURNITURE

—AND—

JOBBING SHOP.

Will also do

Contracting & Building,

in Charlevoix, and Summer Resorts.

I keep in my shop a full set of hand and foot power machinery which enables me to do jobbing, repairing etc. on short notice.

Shop on South Terrace,

Opposite Sheriff Berdan's residence.

MILLINERY,

FANCY GOODS,

DRESS-MAKING.

We have just opened a large line of Spring and Summer Millinery and Fancy Goods to which we invite your attention.

DRESS-MAKING done on the TAILOR SYSTEM The best work done at the lowest rates.

ALDRICH SISTERS.

Ingleside Building.

MERCHANT

TAILORING.

I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.

Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.

Call and see me. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,

C. H. Maddaugh.

CHARLEVOIX

Manufacturing Co.

Charlevoix, Mich.,

Manufacturers of

Sash and Doors,

Blinds, Mouldings etc.

NEWELL

Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails

kept in stock.

Window & Door Frames made to order.

All Kinds of

Building Material

Kept constantly on hand.

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS.

Furnished on application.

Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building

Correspondence solicited.

"MARVELOUS PRICES!

BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.

We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $2.00; or we will send any five for 25 cts. or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of "SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

GRENADES.

Two Sizes—Pints and Quarts.

Over Sixty Millions Sold.

PRICES.
Pints, - Per Doz., $10.00.
Quarts, - " 15.00.

"STAR" Tubular Fire Extinguisher.

Plain, $12.00 per doz.
Ornam't'd, 15.00 per doz.

The "Star" EXTINGUISHER

Price, $80.00 Each.

"STAR" CHEMICAL.

THE HARDEN HAND GRENADE CO.

61 & 53 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Take The Sentinel.

SOMETHING NEW.

WORLD RENOWNED CENTRE DRAFT PLOW

The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are, that it
1st. NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d. TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.

J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS, RACINE, WIS.

EUREKA!

The New Trahern Force Pump

A GREAT SUCCESS.

NEW STOCK

—OF—

"Sherwin-Williams"

"Sherwin-Williams"

"Sherwin-Williams"

PAINTS.

For Sale Only By

L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO

JOB AND TIN WORK

DRUGS and STATIONERY,

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

A Large and Complete New Line

JUST RECEIVED.

EVERYTHING

YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

The only News stand in town.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN

Boiler Works!

Builder and Manufacturer of

BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.

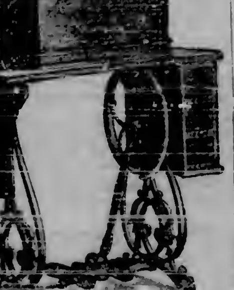
Sheet Iron Work given special attention.

MARINE WORK

a specialty.

HENRY BARTH, Prop.

Charlevoix, Mich.



AUTOMATIC

Single Thread Sewing Machines

will absolutely take the place of Shuttle Machines. No woman ever wants a Shuttle Machine after trying an Automatic.

Address, 23 W. 23d St., New York City.

CURES

Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, Whooping Cough, Quinzy, Sore Throat, Consumption, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Diseases.

YOUNG'S COUGH SYRUP

Sold by all druggists. Price, 25c., 50c. and $1.00 Large bottles sent free on receipt of price.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Pan-Zama Balm

THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Trouble to which womankind is heir—$1 per box of one month's treatment. Reliable Lady Agents can make money for themselves and become benefactors to their race by engaging in the sale of this remedy. For medicine and particulars, Address PAN-ZAMA MED. CO., Frankfort, Ind.

160 Acres in MARION

Township For Sale at a Bargain, Terms to suit.

MONEY TO LOAN ON

Approved Real Estate Security.

THEODORE R. CHAPIN

Boyne City.

FRANK E. WOODS

Bath & Barber Rooms

Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd fellows Block.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS.

Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.

If you want a quiet place to get a shave, hair dress or bath call and see me.

JAY L. PRICE.

NEW SHOP!

All kinds of

Blacksmithing,

At the

Shop in the Foundry Building.

Horseshoeing a specialty.

ALL WORK GUARANTEED.

M. SCOTT.

1-3 OFF SALE!

At Miss Spaulding's

MILLINERY ROOMS,

I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.

Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $3.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed felt hat in the store.

Come early and secure a Bargain.

MISS L. SPAULDING.

JAS. A. GELLICK,

Dealer in

Choice Wines,

Fine Liquors

EXCELLENT CIGARS.

We call Special Attention to our

Old Kentucky Sour Mash

WHISKIES.

We also keep continually on draught

Milwaukee

Export and lager Beer.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, JUNE 16, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH, EDITOR
ED F. PARMELEE, ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

John L. Sullivan is reported to have put $400 on the contribution plate when he attended church in Leadville, Col., recently. The plate is exhibited as proof.

The State Senate is lopping off here and there, and trimming the liquor bill until its own father would not know it. All this may result in a fine piece of sculpture or in a legislative monstrosity. We shall see.

Sunday-playing of base ball is meeting with strong opposition in all the leading cities. There is a feeling among the best friends of the sport that either the national game or the Sunday playing of it must go.

The authorities wish it to be understood that the law expressly forbids the spearing of fish in Michigan inland waters on and after June 1, and the Game and Fish Warden proposes to inflict the severest penalty on all transgressors.

The New York Tribune and all the leading republican papers of New York state are earnest advocates of progressive temperance legislation and temperance reform. They are rapidly massing a solid republican front against the "saloon in politics."

The Congregationalist grimly suggests the following as an appropriate name for some churches: "The Society for the Promotion of Picnics, Progressive Euchre Parties and Theatrical Entertainments, Successor to the Antioch Disciples' Association of Christian Character and Gospel Work.

The bill creating a board of trustees to receive and hold in trust for the State the title to the Lincoln homestead in Springfield, appointing a custodian therefor, and making an appropriation to repair and keep in a state of preservation the residence and relics, passed the Illinois House, Thursday.

William A. Wheeler had been Vice-President of the United States, and lived an honorable life. When he died the flags on the Government buildings at Washington were not half-masted. Contrasted with the respect shown to the memory of the Rebel Jake Thompson, this action shows the nice democratic appreciation of the fitness of things.

The Socialists who want land can be accommodated for a while yet. There are still 9,000,000 acres of public lands in Colorado, 12,000,000 in Arizonia, 30,000,000 in California, 49,000,000 in Dakota, 7,000,000 in Florida, 44,000,000 in Idaho, 7,000,000 in Minnesota, 41,000,000 in Utah, 20,000,000 in Washington Territory, and some millions of acres in other states and territories. No need to go to Mexico for land just yet.

The New York World is a democratic paper with decidedly independent views, and it sometimes lifts up a great unwelcome truth for its party to gaze at. It does this when it says that "the liquor sellers interfere far too much for the public good in the management of political parties. It says also: "If they are made eligible to membership in the knights of labor they will control that organization within less than a year. If the knights are wise they will keep even the tip of that camel's nose out of their tent."

The State W. C. T. U. seems to think that the "third party," which polled in the neighborhood of 18,000 votes last April, is the only party that did anything for the prohibition amendment. We judge so from the fact that the W. C. T. U. has resolved to lend its influence to the third party. This is grateful recognition of the 130,000 or more republican votes cast for the prohibition amendment. The action of the W. C. T. U. in this particular is only another urgent invitation to the temperance sentiment of the State to remain permanently divided.

Statistics show that about twenty thousand people are annually destroyed in India by animals, and of these nineteen out of twenty are said to be bitten by snakes. The number of human victims tends to increase, in spite of the fact that the number of wild beasts and snakes destroyed has doubled in the last ten years and that the government reward paid for their extermination has risen proportionately. Next to the venomous reptiles, tigers claim most victims. Ten years ago, wolves, mostly in the north west provinces, killed five times as many people as of late years; but the extermination of wolves seems to be going on rapidly. Leopards are the alleged cause of death to about two hundred human beings annually. Apart from the loss of human life, the returns show an annual destruction of fifty thousand head of cattle.

Northern Michigan News.

The Kensington house at Harbor Springs, will be opened to-day.

The machinery for J. Leah & Co's. mill, at Harbor Springs, has arrived.

Strawberries are ripening in Northern Michigan, and will be an unusually beautiful crop.

The Commercial House at Gaylord was destroyed by fire last week. Loss $4,000; no insurance.

The Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic road's iron ore dock at St. Ignace is being fitted up to work its full capacity.

The St. Ignace Manufacturing Company is erecting two large new buildings in connection with their veneering mills.

Tuesday of last week the Petoskey and Harbor Springs base ball clubs met, with the result of 15 to 14 in favor of Petoskey.

At the meeting of the East Jordan council recently, two liquor bonds were accepted; those of A. B. Nicholas and H. Weikel.

A Mancelona lady boasts of having hatched ninety chickens from seven hens in five weeks, and that three of the fowl are now laying.

S. G. Isaman has been busy the past few days platting an addition to the village of South Arm. He has platted 80 lots which will be for sale.

According to our Kalkaska exchange the stave factory at that place is not to be removed to Manton, but the proprietors are to put up and operate a branch institution at that place.

The principal events at the Methodist Resort Grounds at Bay View, come off this season as follows: State Camp-Meeting, July 19-25; Ministerial Union, July 25-27; Bay View Assembly, July 27-August-11. For this last, an elaborate programme has been prepared, which is published in the Bay View Assembly Herald.

The surveying party of the Detroit, Charlevoix & Escanaba railroad has reached Bellaire and a grand banquet was given it by the business men's association of that place Saturday evening. The occasion was one long to be remembered and did great credit to the town. Distinguished citizens of Kalkaska, Charlevoix and Mancelona were present and toasts were announced by Geo. W. Albrecht and responded to by citizens and visitors without distinction. It is hoped that the event thus celebrated will be followed by the successful completion of the road. Superintendent Beardslee of the surveying party, an experienced railroader, pronounces the route the prettiest and most paying of any he ever run, and says the road can be built ready for the rails for $8,000 per mile. He will complete it from Charlevoix to Kalkaska in six months, if the sinews of war are supplied.—Detroit Evening News.

Unless the present difficulty about securing transportation for iron ore is quickly obviated, the mines of none of the four great ranges of the Lake Superior iron district will be able to ship as much ore this season as they estimated at the opening of navigation. Already the shipments are far behind what they should be. None of the mines are able to get as many cars as they need to take the ore from the mines to the dock. A requisition for 300 cars frequently brings only 125, and when the ore is got to the docks there is a difficulty in finding carriers by lake. Last year the Lake Superior iron district produced 3,500,000 tons of ore, as against 2,225,000 tons in '85, in round numbers. Last year, with an increase of a million and a quarter tons in output, lake freights advanced and carriers were hard to charter. This year the estimated output was 5,500,000 tons, or two million tons more than last. Judging from the difficulty experienced so far, it may be safely said that the output of the Lake Superior mines for '87 will fall considerably short of 5,000,000 tons.

The editor of the Petoskey Record visited Mackinac Island recently and last week gave an account of the new hotel, from which we clip the following: "The great building is situated west of the fort about half a mile, and about the same distance from the village, and stands upon a natural terrace fronting the straits. The view from its grand portico is simply magnificent, the eye sweeping down the whole length of the south passage to Cheboygan and Lake Huron, westward through the straights out into Lake Michigan, and eastward past Round Island and Bois Blanc through the north passage into the northern reaches of Lake Huron. There is no finer water view in the United States than will be enjoyed by the guests of this superb summer resort. Hundreds of hammers are at work nailing together the parts of the immense structure which is over 600 feet in length with a magnificent portico supported on columns, 600 feet long, 25 feet wide and rising to a height of two stories. Far up in the air seven full stories high the framework of the roof is being covered in by the carpenters, while hundreds of others are finishing off the rooms below.

EDUCATIONAL.

All communications on educational topics should be addressed to Prof. H. M. Enos, Superintendent of the Charlevoix Schools.

THE SCHOOLS.

Report of Charlevoix Schools for the Term ending June 10th, 1887.

TOTAL NO. DIFFERENT PUPILS ENROLLED AND NOT TRANSFERRED.
1st Department	67
2nd Department	51
3d Department	42
4th Department	41
5th Grammar Section	30
5th High School	29
Total	260

AVERAGE NO. BELONGING.
1st Department	52.4
2nd Department	45
3d Department	35.5
4th Department	37.8
5th Dep't Grammar Section	26
5th Dep't High School	25
Average	221.7

DAYS ATTENDANCE.
1st Department	2377½
2nd Department	2138½
3d Department	1653½
4th Department	1780
5th Dep't Grammar Section	1212½
5th Dep't High School	1150½
Total	10,312½

DAYS LOST BY ABSENCE.
1st Department	165
2nd Department	123
3d Department	125
4th Department	90½
5th Dep't Grammar Section	45
5th Dep't High School	30½
Total	579

AVERAGE ATTENDANCE.
1st Department	48½
2nd Department	43½
3d Department	33¾
4th Department	36¼
5th Dep't Grammar Section	24¾
5th Dep't High School	23½
Average	210¾

CASES TARDY.
1st Department	69
2nd Department	55
3d Department	9
4th Department	11
5th Dep't Grammar School	5
5th Dep't High School	2
Total	151

ATTENDANCE, AND PUNCTUALITY, PER CENT OF NUMBER BELONGING.
1st Department	96.7
2nd Department	96
3d Department	96.1
4th Department	97.4
5th Dep't Grammar Section	98
5th Dep't High School	98.5
Total	97.5

NAMES OF PUPILS NEITHER ABSENT NOR TARDY FOR THE ENTIRE SPRING TERM

First Department—Edith Atchinson, Mattie Brink, Ernest Brown, George Emrey, Cora Lawrence, Ralph Newman, Frank Ripley, Mabel Ward.

Second Department—Katie Kirkpatrick, Altie Brink, Minnie Krebbs, Maggie Mossington, Frank Lawrence, Wellie Mossington, Forest Bartholomew.

Third Department—Mattie Lamereaux, Minnie Nowland, Frank Geiken, Edith Lewis, Gertie Myers, Lillie Newman, Walter Krebbs, Hiram Ross, Ida Cook.

Fourth Department—Winnie Bartholomew, Lottie Moore, Clois McCartney, Eva Swails, Carl Clifford.

Fifth Department, Gram. Section—Chancey Upright, George Newman.

Fifth Department, High School—Blanche Bartholomew, Phila Wood, Edith Hawkins, Elmira Glass, Edith Mason, Lulu Carter, Pearl Dart, Katie Smith, Ralph Washburn.

Summary for the Entire Year.

NO. DIFFERENT PUPILS ENROLLED.
1st Department	81
2nd Department	60
3d Department	46
4th Department	47
5th Dep't Grammar Section	33
5th Dep't High School	42
Total	309

AVERAGE ATTENDANCE FOR YEAR.
1st Department	37.8
2nd Department	40.1
3d Department	33.6
4th Department	40.6
5th Dept., Grammar Section	25 ½
5th Dept., High School	29.9
Average	207.6

AVERAGE NO. BELONGING.
1st Department	41.3
2nd Department	42 ½
3d Department	31 ½
4th Department	40
5th Dept., Grammar Section	25.5
5th Dept., High School	31.2
Average	213.1

DAYS ABSENCE.
1st Department	541½
2nd Department	527½
3d Department	311½
4th Department	367
5th Dept., Grammar Section	152½
5th Dept., High School	151½
Total	2051½

TARDY CASES.
1st Department	178
2nd Department	195
3d Department	47
4th Department	54
5th Dep't Grammar Section	21
5th Department, High School	22
Total	517

ATTENDANCE AND PUNCTUALITY, PER CENT. OF NO. BELONGING.
1st Department	95.—
2nd Department	95.1
3d Department	97.x
4th Department	97.1
5th Dept. Grammar Section	98.x
5th Dept. High School	98.4
Average	96.6

Roll of Honor.

The following named pupils have been present and punctual every day during the entire year:

BLANCHE BARTHOLOMEW	11th	Grade
RALPH WASHBURN	9th	"
CHANCEY UPRIGHT	8th	"
GEORGE NEWMAN	7th	"
WINNIFRED BARTHOLOMEW	4th	Dep't.
LILLIAN EATON	4th	"
EVA SWAILS	4th	"
MINNIE NOWLAND	3rd	"
FRANK GEIKEN	3rd	"
GERTRUDE MYERS	3rd	"
LILLIE NEWMAN	3rd	"
AGGIE KIRKPATRICK	2d	"
MATTIE BRINK	1st	"

Asylum Matters.

From the Grand Traverse Herald.

A vast amount of work has been done on the asylum grounds since last fall. This institution is laboring under many disadvantages that the other asylums have long ago overcome. Both Kalamazoo and Pontiac now have large and valuable farms under cultivation from which they derive a large revenue. The Traverse City asylum, has, as yet, comparatively little available land. A few years will remedy this, but the funds of the institution will not permit a large expenditure in this direction in any one year. The work must, therefore, go forward somewhat slowly, and not in a manner most desirable. The labor must, mainly, be that of the patients, and while many of these are able to work, the hours are necessarily short, and their work is of a somewhat desultory nature, and there is so much to be done in so many different places at once—grading, fencing, plowing, planting, logging, stumping, and a hundred other matters, that the work seems to go on slowly; but the aggregate is a good deal.

Since last fall 50 acres of new chopping has been made, and most of this has now been burned and a good portion of it logged, and some put into spring crops. In clearing this land the available timber has been sold or cut into lumber for fencing the farm; about 25,000 posts have been cut, some which have been sold and the rest kept for fencing use on the grounds; some 2,600 cords of wood has been cut and will be used at the asylum, thus saving coal. Considerable stumping has been done and the lower lands, in the old clearing, have been ditched and tile is now being laid. A large amount of grading has been done in front of the building, lawns are being made, and a little has been done in the way of ornamenting the grounds. A good deal of fencing has been done and shade trees have been set along all the drives in front of the building.

The legislature has finally made an appropriation for the purchase of the 40-acre lot in front of the asylum building, and adjoining the town plat. Work has already begun on this. The entire tract will be stumped and a neat fence will enclose it. There will be a great change in the appearance of this piece before fall.

The asylum is now overcrowded on the male side. The male wards now contain 258 patients and the female wards 233. Whenever a male patient is received now, some other male patient must be sent home to make room for the new arrival. Of course a limit must soon be reached, for the time must soon come when there will be no more such patients who can be safely sent away. Then the counties must care, as best they can, for their insane. The female side still has room for about 20 patients. A bill is pending in the legislature making appropriation for finishing off the attics into wards, and for building a detached cottage for 50 males. The attics will accommodate 25 males and 25 females. Should this bill pass it will give relief for a while. Should it fail to pass, the counties in this district will very soon have to provide for their insane as they best can, for there will be no room here. This district contains 51 counties, and every one of them is deeply interested in the passage of this bill.

Bank of Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security

Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers

Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to Speculate with unknown money, is folly; that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking

Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors; and, believing that it involves unusual guarantees, therefore,

This Bank Invites

People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will

Borrow Investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking

Productive employment for money, and desiring to secure the experience and results of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes,

Now earning Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes attain investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

Mortgage Sale.

A mortgage dated January 12th, 1881 executed by Andrew H. Jones and Mary H. Jones (his wife), to the Wayne County Savings Bank of Detroit, Michigan, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Charlevoix County, Michigan, January 17th, 1883, in liber 7 of mortgages on page 382, upon which [illegible] ... at 12 o'clock noon, Friday, June 17th, 1887.

Dated March 22d, 1887.
WAYNE COUNTY SAVINGS BANK, of Detroit, Mortgagee.
D. C. PAGE, Attorney for Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a certain indenture of Mortgage bearing date Nov. 15th A. D. 1881, made by and between Albert Jubenville, bachelor of Charlevoix county, Michigan, party of the first part, to Morgan Curtis of Kalamazoo county, Michigan, party of the second part, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, on the 19th day of Nov. A. D. 1881 in liber 5 of Mortgages at page 427 [illegible] ... on the 19th day of July A. D. 1887, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day by sale at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the County building, in the village of Boyne City, and county of Charlevoix [illegible] ...

Dated Kalkaska, Mich., April the 18th, A. D. 1887.
A. A. BLEAZBY, Atty for Mortgagee. MORGAN CURTIS, Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in a certain indenture of Mortgage bearing date December the first, 1883, made by and between David Norton and Hanah Norton, his wife of Charlevoix, Michigan, party of the first part, to Mary E. Manley, of Wayne county, New York, party of the second part, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Charlevoix county, Michigan, on the second day of Feb. A. D. 1884, in Liber 9 of Mortgages at page 220 [illegible] ... at ten o'clock in the forenoon of the 13th day of July, A. D. 1887 [illegible] ...

Dated Kalkaska, Mich., April the 18th, A. D. 1887.
A. A. BLEAZBY, Atty for Mortgagee. MARY E. MANLEY, Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a certain indenture of mortgage bearing date the 13th day of December, A. D. 1881, executed by Richard Lake and Phebe E. Lake (his wife), of Charlevoix County, State of Michigan, to Otis Ross, of South Haven, Van Buren County, State of Michigan, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, in liber "4" of mortgages on page 491 on the 11th day of March, A. D. 1882 [illegible] ... there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of two thousand nine hundred and sixty dollars and thirty-two cents ($2,960.32) [illegible] ... on Thursday the 30th day of June, A. D. 1887 [illegible] ...

Dated March 7, 1887.
JAMES H. JOHNSON, Attorney for Mortgagee. OTIS ROSS, Mortgagee.

Probate Notice.

State of Michigan, County of Charlevoix, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for said county, held at the Probate office, in the Village of Boyne City, on the 6th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven. Present, James A. Keat, Judge of Probate. In the Matter of the Estate of John West, late of Chicago, Ill., deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of John Joseph West, and Edward Albert West, and alleging that duly authenticated copies of the last will and testament of said deceased, and of the probate thereof, have been duly filed in said court, showing that said will has been duly admitted to probate in the County of Cook and State of Illinois, and praying that a time and place for hearing said petition be fixed, and due notice thereof be given to all persons interested, and that such copy of said will be allowed, filed and recorded in said Court, as and for the last will and testament of said deceased. Thereupon it is ordered, that Tuesday, the 5th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the Village of Boyne City, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted; and it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

A true copy. JAMES A. KEAT, Judge of Probate.

CHARLEVOIX Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Henry Bennett, O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls, A. Buttars,
A. R. Upright, A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL, $25,000
SURPLUS, 2,000

The liabilities of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art. 3174, Sec. 49 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:
NATIONAL PARK BANK - New York.
COMMERCIAL NAT. BANK - Chicago.
NAT. CITY BANK - Grand Rapids.
DETROIT NAT. BANK - Detroit.

W. A. REYNARD,

Has just received at his Fruit Store in the Lewis Block, a choice line of

Vegetables and Fruits

OF ALL KINDS,

TO WHICH OTHERS WILL BE ADDED IN SEASON.

I will also keep in stock a full line of

Tobaccos and Cigars.

Butter and Eggs a Specialty.

CROSS & SONS.,

Buy and Sell all kinds of

Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.

Charlevoix, - Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY,

Photographer.

In Bradbeer's Gallery.

Photographs of all sizes taken.

Old Pictures copied and enlarged.

CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

New JEWELRY AND SILVER WARE.

I have just received a very fine stock of

Watches, Chains, Pins, Clocks, Silver-Ware, etc

which I will sell at Prices lower than the same goods can be purchased outside.

Did it ever occur to you that by patronizing home Merchants you were benefiting yourselves?

All classes of Repairing done quickly.

C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,

ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR,

—ON—

Chalevoix Summer Resorts.

I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.

I employ only first-class workmen, both

Carpenters and Painters.

Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention

J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

Fox & Miller

Offer a

Mammoth Stock

OF

BOOTS, SHOES

and other

FOOT WEAR,

--AT--

LOWER PRICES

Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a FIRST-CLASS SHOEMAKER,

And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

The Kalamazoo "DAILY TELEGRAPH."

Contains the Associated Press Dispatches

Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.

Charlevoix, Mich.

Manufacturers of and Wholesale and Retail Dealers

3 EXTRA GRADES OF FLOUR

Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

M. LITNEY. JOS. STEIMEL

Litney & Steimel

LIVERY, And Feed Barn

Charlevoix, Mich.

Good Rigs at Lowest Rates.

It Pays to Buy the BEST BOATS!

The large number of boats I have built for resorters, are advertisements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.

I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the

LEAST MONEY!

All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.

LEAVE ORDERS

with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.

Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.

J. BEAUVAIS.

BOOTS & SHOES

Have you seen our $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00 Gents Shoes?

If not do so at once. They are made solid throughout even to the counter. You'll have no trouble with these goods running over at the heel.

These goods cannot be equalled in the county

Either in style, quality or price. We will take pains this season to have in stock goods that will suit all. New ad. soon on Ladies' Fine Shoes of latest styles New York, Common Sense, and London Toes.

Ladies Look Out

For the new line of latest style goods that is on the road for

D. SHERWOOD & CO.

A. J. McLEOD,

Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at

Wholesale or Retail

All kinds of

FRESH MEATS,

SALT PORK,

SMOKED & SALTED

HAMS,

Dried and Smoked BACON, DRIED BEEF, Bologna, Head Cheese, Sausage.

Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.

Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.

A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S MARKET

Is supplied with

All Kinds Of MEATS

At Lowest Prices.

CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.

Corner of State & Mason sts.,

JOHN McCABE.

Washburn & Ackert,

FOUNDREYMEN,

MACHINISTS,

And Manufacturers of The

Charlevoix Plow,

Take The Sentinel.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED. W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix Mich.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law. Offices in Buttars' Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

FAIRTHORNE & GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon, 4 doors west of Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office at residence, Main st. Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 110, meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

MASONIC.—Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Post-office.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake Lodge No. 293, meets second and Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

K. O. T. M.—Resort Tent No. 138, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' Hall.

L. O. L.—True Blues No. 157, meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. 104, R. A. M. meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 136, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of the members, during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.

President—Myron See.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller.
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strong
Financial Secretary—R. Sutfield.
Treasurer—Albert E. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. D. Cruikshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—R. Lee Iddings, W. A. Brown and C. Y. Cook
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, M. J. Stockman, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, R. W. Miller, S. M. See, W. C. Newman, E. M. Clark, H. Bordan.

All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequalled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the traveling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids Stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,
Lorenzo Cook, Manager
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only 100 feet to Steamboat landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE.
W. C. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Fitted up with a view to the Comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central Location

PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and Dock work solicited at any point between Traverse City and Mackinaw. L. E. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

MUNROE'S STEAM PILE DRIVER. Dock owners and Builders, look to your interest. Contracts taken and dock work solicited at any point between Sault St. Marie and Grand Haven. Correspondence promptly attended to. Address,
JOHN MUNROE, Jr., Gen'l Manager, South Arm, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. R. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. [Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.]

DENTIST

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office in Weed's Drug Store, Charlevoix, Mich.

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R

"Mackinac Short Line."

Only direct line between the east and south and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Going West read down			Going East read up
	5 45 p m	Detroit	11 10 am
7 00 am	6 50 am	St Ignace	8 30 pm	5 55 pm
10 23	8 52	Newberry	6 21	4 00
12 20	9 40	Seney	5 15	12 35
	10 42	Reedsboro	4 15
3 25	11 31	Au Train	3 25	9 05
5 30	12 40	Marquette	2 15	7 00
	12 50pm	Marquette	2 00 pm
	1 55	Ishpeming	12 58
	4 10	L'Anse	10 40
	5 30	Houghton	9 20
	6 35	Calumet	8 15

Connections made with M T Co's boats, M C & G R & I R R & M R & D
E. W. ALLEN, Gen Pass Agt, Marquette

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad

IN EFFECT SEPTEMBER 27, 1886.

(Trains run on Central Standard Time.)

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.		No 6	No 8	No 4
Mackinaw City	Lv	7 15 a m	9 30 p m
Petoskey		8 41	10 51
Boyne Falls		9 16	11 30
Mancelona		10 18	12 30
Walton Junc		11 50	1 50	5 15 p m
Cadillac	Ar	12 40	2 50	6 10
	Lv	12 45	6 05	6 30
Le Roy		1 24	6 46	7 07
Reed City	Ar	1 55	7 20	7 40
	Lv	2 15	7 45	8 00
Big Rapids		2 46	8 11	8 30
Stanwood		3 05	8 30	8 55
Howard City		3 33	9 01	9 26
D G H & M Cross		4 40	10 15	10 55
Grand Rapids	Ar	4 55	10 30	10 50
	Lv	7 15	5 15	11 45
Plainwell		8 36	6 43	1 12
Kalamazoo	Ar	9 05	7 10	1 40
	Lv	9 10	7 30	2 00
Sturgis		10 27	8 58	3 28
Ft Wayne	Ar	12 40	11 20	6 00
	Lv	1 00	11 45
Richmond		4 30	3 35
Cincinnati	Ar	7 30	7 25

GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.		No 3	No 5	No 7
Cincinnati	Leave	7 35 a m	7 20 p m
Richmond		10 20	10 00
Fort Wayne	Ar	1 50	1 15
	Lv	2 10	3 00
Sturgis		4 24	5 25
Kalamazoo	Ar	5 45	6 55
	Lv	5 50	7 20
Plainwell		6 16	7 48
Grand Rapids	Ar	7 40	9 20
	Lv	11 36	4 65
D., G., H., & M cross		11 45	5 10
Howard City		12 52	6 18
Stanwood		1 22	6 48
Big Rapids		1 45	7 09
Reed City	Ar	2 15	7 40
	Lv	2 35	8 00
Le Roy		3 05	9 33
Cadillac	Ar	3 35	9 10
	Lv	3 55	9 30
Walton Junc		4 45	10 25
Mancelona		6 10	11 50
Boyne Falls		7 00	12 52
Petoskey		7 40	1 30
Mackinaw City		8 55	3 00

C. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass. Agent.

WIT AND HUMOR.

Joseph was the first politician. He had a coat of many colors.

It is said that bees can predict weather. They can certainly make it hot where they are.

When a man buys a porous plaster he generally sticks to his bargain.—Burlington Free Press.

Scientists know there is no God, but they are more or less in doubt about the sea-serpent.—Puck.

An unmarried grocer must of necessity be behind the times because he has to mate to ketch up.—Life.

Judging from the tightness of the article it isn't every girl who can laugh in her sleeve nowadays.

When a young woman refuses to return a man's love she does not make herself liable to arrest for petty larceny.

There is said to be a volcano in New Zealand that slings out mud. All it needs is an editor-in-chief and an office towel to become a regulation campaign organ.

Mamma—Henry, I've a surprise for you. Papa—Indeed. Mamma—Yes; baby has cut his eye teeth. Papa—Gracious me! what a dreadful accident.—Judge.

"Did you hear that Tompkins had failed?" "Has he? I knew he has been in bad odor for some time." "It's all right now, for he hasn't got a cent." —N. Y. Sun.

When you run across a polite railroad official you can generally make up your mind that there is a parallel road somewhere in the neighborhood.—New Haven News.

It is supposed that if the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" troupes now on the road should organize themselves into a political party they could sweep the country.—New Haven News.

Paris gossips say that De Lesseps has an $8,000 bath-tub in his house. It is probably a small section of his Panama canal boarded up at the ends and fitted out with a piece of fire-hose.

"Where have you been all summer, Brown?" "Lake George." "What did you do there?" "Went fishing." "Catch anything?" "Don't know yet; but she threatens a breach of promise suit."

"There is one thing," said Yellowly, "that shows the glory of this country. Every man has it in his power to make his daughter a lady." "How is that?" asked Brownley. "He can make her a saleslady."

"What is the greatest work of creation?" asked the teacher; and little Johnny, whose mind was still full of the Odd-Fellows' parade, promptly responded, "The drum-major."—Boston Transcript.

It is said that the lady who wrote "In the Gloaming" made $3,000 out of it. There are a good many young ladies who sing it and who do not seem to make much out of it.—Burlington Free Press.

It is said that the human race is destined to be bald and toothless. This need not alarm the people seriously. A great many have been born that way, and the race is none the worse for it.—Lowell Times.

The Rev. E. G. Hay of Pottsville, Pa., goes to his appointments among the hills of Schuylkill county on a bicycle—the first instance, we believe, in which that vehicle has been used for the transportation of hay.

The man who goes around telling people how many thousand dollars they can save by not smoking cigars is the same man who has to hunt through his clothes to find the ticket for his ulster. —New Haven News.

"Ah, you have just returned from Germany?" "Yes. I also went by Bayreuth." "The dence you did! The country of the Wagnerite!" "Yes; but it was in a railroad car, with cotton stuffed in both ears."—French Fun.

"Has Maj. Snaffles been in this evening, steward?" "No, sir, he's not been here for a month, sir." "Is his absence due to sickness?" "No, sir, but his bills is due to the treasurer; which I think it's the reason, sir."—Life.

The story comes from Boston of a dude who, having been asked to say grace at a formal spread at which he took a leading part, bowed his head slightly, languidly lowered his eyelids, and murmured, "Oh, Lord, thanks—awfully!"

"What nonsense!" exclaimed Brown, looking over the bill of fare; "what do they want to put all this French here for?" "Why," replied Flagg, "I think it very appropriate." "And why so?" "Simply to match the foreign matter in the food."

"Did you pass the civil-service examination?" "I don't know yet, but I got the right answers to some questions." "Which ones were those?" "I answered all right when they asked me what my name was and what state I was born in."

Willie Freshington—Wouldn't it be nice if we could stroll together this way always? Miss Hunter—This is so sudden, Mr. Freshington! You had better speak to mamma. Willie F.—Yes; but, say, hadn't I better speak to my mother first?—Rambler.

Maude—Do you believe the story about a Washington belle at the White Sulphur springs taking off her slipper, filling it with champagne, and a young Washington lawyer drinking it? Augustus—I guess it's so. Some men will drink liquor out of anything.

She—Why, Charles! How can you call Miss James plain? I wish I was half as good-looking as she is. He—You are Hattie, and you know it. At last advices Hattie was endeavoring to decide whether she ought to be pleased or offended at the compliment.

"How is your husband, Mrs. Fiancane?" "Nicely, thank you; he's down in the country for a short time." "I presume you hear from him right along?" "O, yes, every week; he's one of the promptest men with the alimony I ever met in my life."—Tid-Bits.

Monsieur is a noted miser. His wife says to him: "My dear, is it not time to think of Jules' education?" "Yes, but it costs too much." "Do you not know of a good school that is cheap?" "Certainly." "Which one?" "The school of adversity."—French Fun.

Wife—What do you think of the idea of my taking German lessons, my dear? Husband—I would advise you to do as you think best, of course; but my private opinion is that you get along so famously in English that to take up a second language seems wildly superfluous.

The child who makes the acquaintance of the maternal slipper may have the satisfaction of knowing that its mother once underwent the same operation at the hands of its grandmother. This is one of the reasons why children are so fond of their grandparents.

"Now come and tell me, dearie, what was the most interesting thing in the sermon this morning." "Why, mamma, it was where the minister told about somebody's taking somebody else 'apart;' but he didn't tell why it was done or how he was put together again." —Harper's Bazar.

At the seaside: Mrs. Levy—Shacob, shoos look at does peautiful waves, how dey rises and falls. Mr. Levy—Repecca, don't I have told you already sometimes dat I don't vant to hear apout dose fluctuashuns? I vants to hear noddings at all apout dot money market vile I vas dot seaside out?

Brown's only son and heir, who had arrived at the mature age of 8, was pestering his father for permission to smoke. "Only a wee little cigarette," pleaded the youngster. "Oh, yes, cigarettes!" retorted the author of his being; "you commence with cigarettes and end with volcanoes."

It will soon happen that when the head of the house goes to the family Bible to find consolation for affliction he will exclaim: "Dog gone it, Maria, what's all this?" And then the daughter of the household will admit that the first edition of autumn leaves has gone to press.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Prices in Paris.

One may live in Paris as he sees fit to live or has means to live. Here, however, as everywhere else in the world, prices have steadily gone up, and the franc will buy less in the market than formerly, and even at its reduced rate can not obtain the same quality either of food or drink as formerly. I had the opportunity the other day of comparing the carte des vins of the Cafe Anglais of 1866 with that of the present year, and found every item upon it advanced from 30 to 50 per cent. The apartments for which I paid 300 francs a month in 1873 are now held at 500, and a little entre sol, which twenty years ago cost me 6 francs a day, I found upon inquiry held at 10, although I should consider it dear at half the money. The ladies tell me it is even so at the Magazin du Louvre and the Bon Marche. Cheap wearing apparel has gone out of fashion. Woolens are dearer here than in Louisville, and on neither side of the Seine can any of the old-time bargains be picked up. To be sure, the French have mastered the arts of dress, millinery, and cooking, and we shall seek in vain for such taste and style as provail here in these particulars. But they have learned to charge for their superior decorative skill, and a little money is as unhandy in Paris as in London

TIME CARDS OF STEAMERS

STANDARD TIME.

Charlevoix and East Jordan.

STR. NORTH STAR, ...CAPT. MEL THOMPSON
Leaving Charlevoix at 6:30 a m and 1:30 p m and returning leave East Jordan for Charlevoix at 9:30 am and 4 p m, touching at intermediate points both ways.

Boyne City and Charlevoix.

STR. CLARA BELLE, ...CAPT. GEO. JUDSON.
Leave Boyne City at 6:30 a. m. and 1:00 p. m. and Charlevoix at 9:30 a. m., and 3 p. m. connecting with the Friant and Cummings to and from Petoskey, Touching at way ports.

Charlevoix and Boyne City.

STR. JOSEPH GORDON..........CAPT. LEWIS GUARD.
Leave Charlevoix at 6:30 a. m. and 1 p. m., and Boyne City at 9:30 a. m., 4 p. m., touching at way ports

Harbor Springs, Charlevoix & E. Jordan.

STR. THOS. FRIANT, ...CAPT. R. VANDERHOFF.
MORNING. Leave Harbor Springs, 7:30; Petoskey, 8:00; Charlevoix, 9:30; arrive, East Jordan 11:30. AFTERNOON: Leave East Jordan 1:30; Charlevoix, 4:00; Petoskey, 5:30; arrive, Harbor Spring, 6:00

East Jordan, Charlevoix & Harbor Spgs.

LOU A. CUMMINGS, ...CAPT. W. A. SNYDER.
MORNING: Leave East Jordan 7 a. m.; Charlevoix, 9; Petoskey, 11; arrive at Harbor Springs 11:30. AFTERNOON: Leave Harbor Springs, 1 p. m.; Petoskey, 1:30; Charlevoix, 3; arrive at East Jordan, 5:30 p. m.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN LINE.

PROP. CHAMPLAIN..........Capt. EDW. CASEY.
Going North, Chicago Tuesdays 8 p m; Charlevoix, Thursdays 11 p m; Cheboygan, Fridays 2:30 p m. Going South, Cheboygan, Fridays 5 p m; Charlevoix, Saturdays 2:30 p m; Milwaukee, Mondays 3 p m; Chicago, Mondays 11 p m.

PROP. LAWRENCE..........Capt. GEO. THORP.
Going North, Chicago, Fridays 8 p m; Charlevoix, Sundays 3 p m; Cheboygan, Mondays 9 a m. Going South, Cheboygan, Mondays 4 p m; Charlevoix, Tuesdays 8 a m; Milwaukee, Wednesdays 4 p m; Chicago, Thursdays 12 m.

Emrey Bros., agents, Charlevoix.

HANNAH, LAY & CO'S BOATS.

CITY OF GRAND RAPIDS, ...Capt. O. E. WILBER.
Going North, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays: Leave Traverse City 7 a m; Northport 9:30, Charlevoix 11:30; Petoskey 1:30 p m; Harbor Springs 2; Cross Village 4:30; Mackinac Island 7:45 arriving at St. Ignace 8:20
Going South, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays: Leave St. Ignace 6:00 a m, Mackinac Island Cross Village 10:15; Harbor Springs 12:45 p m. Petoskey 1:15; Charlevoix 2:45; Northport 5:15 p m, arriving at Traverse City at 7:45 p m.

J. L. Hull & Co., Agents, Charlevoix.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S

LIVERY STABLE

CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.

Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

Farming Lands

500,000 ACRES

Of Splendid

MICHIGAN LANDS

For Sale By The

G. R. & I. R. R.

50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.

These lands are timbered with beach and maple elm and other wood and are accessible to best markets

By Water and Rail

And are in a state unequalled for health, well watered and contiguous to the great fruit raising section of Michigan

The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad runs through the center of the grant. The part of Michigan in which these lands are situated is

Not a Wilderness by any Means.

It contains a population of 250,000 souls and is rapidly filling up with settlers from almost every state in the Union

Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold.

Send for English or German Pamphlet, Address

W. H. HUGHART, Commissioner,

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.

TITLE PERFECT.

A Walking Skeleton.

Mr. E. Springer, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., writes: "I was afflicted with lung fever and abscess on lungs, and reduced to a walking Skeleton. Got a free trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which did me so much good that I bought a dollar bottle. After using three bottles, found myself once more a man, completely restored to health, with a hearty appetite, and a gain in flesh of 48 lbs." Call at Dr. G. W. Crouter's and Crouter & Harris' Drug Store and get a free trial bottle of this certain cure for all Lung Diseases. Large bottles $1.

Thousands Say So.

Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints. Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Dr. G. W. Crouter

Old papers for sale at this office.

THAT HACKING COUGH can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's Cure. We guarantee it.

WILL YOU SUFFER with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS, made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you.

CATARRH CURED, health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Nasal injector free Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

Land for Sale.

I have 5 acres just east of the cemetery, one mile from town, nearly all cleared, which I will sell cheap for cash, or approved paper. Address
JAMES METCALF, Charlevoix.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter

W. H. FRANCIS

FURNITURE

—AND—

JOBBING SHOP,

Will also do

Contracting & Building,

In Charlevoix and Summer Resorts.

I keep in my shop a full set of hand and foot power machinery which enables me to do jobbing, repairing etc. on short notice.

Shop on South Terrace,

Opposite Sheriff Berdan's residence.

MILLINERY,

FANCY GOODS,

DRESS-MAKING.

We have just opened a large line of Spring and Summer Millinery and Fancy Goods to which we invite your attention.

DRESS-MAKING done on the TAILOR SYSTEM. The best work done at the lowest rates

ALDRICH SISTERS.

Ingleside Building.

MERCHANT TAILORING.

I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.

Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.

Call and see me, Satisfation Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,

C. H. Maddaugh.

CHARLEVOIX

Manufacturing Co.

Charlevoix, Mich.,

Manufacturers of

Sash and Doors,

Blinds, Mouldings etc.

NEWELL

Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails

kept in stock.

Window & Door Frames made to order.

All Kinds of

Building Material

Kept constantly on hand.

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS,

Furnished on application.

Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building

Correspondence solicited.

"MARVELOUS PRICES!

BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away.

[illegible]

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.

We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $2.00; or we will send any five for 25 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of "SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

GRENADES.

Two Sizes—Pints and Quarts.

Over Sixty Millions Sold.

PRICES.

Pints, - Per Doz., $10.00
Quarts, " " 15.00

"STAR" Tubular Fire Extinguisher.

Glass Tube, 13x2½ In. Holds 1 quart.

In this device we combine the BEST QUALITIES of our famous Grenades with the NEW feature of having an article that can be used by Sprinkling. It is designed especially for use in Passenger Coaches and Dwellings. It is elegant in ornamentation. It is cheap and reliable. No rust; no corrosion possible.

Plain, $12.00 per doz.
Ornamt'd, 15.00 per doz.

The "Star" EXTINGUISHER

Holds 5 gallons, and will force a stream through 6 feet of lines 45 feet with our pump, which is the best ever made. Needs no attention until used. Will not freeze, explode or get out of order. No rust or corrosion. Can be used by anyone.

Price, $80.00 Each.

"STAR" CHEMICAL.

Just what is needed in every village, lumber yard, warehouse, etc. Fully equipped with Hose, Ax, Crow Bar, Lantern, etc. It is cheap, and reliable. Wt. 450 lbs.

PRICE.

$200.00 EACH.

Four years of practical use have demonstrated these to be the only reliable and thoroughly efficient Hand Fire appliances made. We use the same chemical liquid in all, and guarantee fully. Liberal discounts to agents. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The HARDEN HAND GRENADE CO.

51 & 53 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Take The Sentinel.

SOMETHING NEW.

WORLD RENOWNED CENTRE DRAFT PLOW

The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are, that it

1st. NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d. TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.

The Beam is not bolted to the landside, but—by means of a steel frog—is set directly in the Centre of the Line of Draft, making a steady light running plow, and one that cannot be Clogged. See one before you buy

If your Agent has none write us for price.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS, RACINE, Wis.

EUREKA!

The New Trahern Force Pump

A GREAT SUCCESS.

NEW STOCK

—OF—

"Sherwin-Williams"

"Sherwin-Williams"

"Sherwin-Williams"

PAINTS.

For Sale Only By

L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO

JOB AND TIN WORK

DRUGS and STATIONERY,

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

A Large and Complete New Line

JUST RECEIVED.

EVERYTHING

YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

The only News stand in town.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN

Boiler Works!

Builder and Manufacturer of

BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.

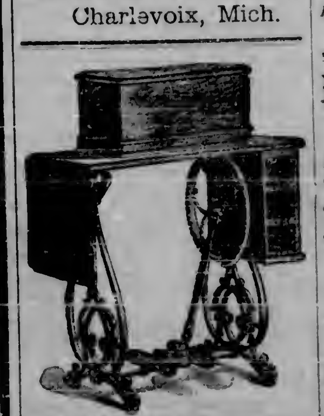
Sheet Iron Work given special attention.

MARINE WORK

a specialty.

HENRY BARTH, Prop.

Charlevoix, Mich.



AUTOMATIC

Single Thread Sewing Machines

will absolutely take the place of Shuttle Machines. No woman ever wants a Shuttle Machine after trying an Automatic.

Address,

72 W. 23d St., New York City.

CURES

Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, Whooping Cough, Quinzy, Sore Throat, Consumption, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Diseases.

YOUNG'S COUGH SYRUP

Dansville, Mich. Aug. 15, 1874.—I was attacked with a severe cold and threatened with lung fever while on a visit to Hudson, Mich., about a month ago, so much so that I was unable to fill an appointment to preach on account of my severe coughing, but managed to get home and immediately took some of Dr. F. A. Young's Cough & Lung Syrup) and in the house, and my cough left me as soon as I commenced taking it, and I find permanent relief when I am attacked by cough or lung complaint. REV. ROBT. COPE.

Howell, Mich., Dec. 20, 1874.—I have tried Dr. F. A. Young's Cough and Lung Syrup for more than a year, as I had occasion, as a remedy for Colds and Coughs, and found it a reliable medicine. I have used his Ague and Fever Syrup in my family with the best of success, curing my mother (whose age was over seventy years) of one of the hardest attacks of Fever and Ague, after the second chill and fever. I take pleasure in recommending the above remedies to all who need them. REV. S. B. KIMMEL.

Sold by all druggists. Price, 25c., 50c. and $1.00. Large bottles sent free on receipt of price.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Pan-Zama Balm

THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Trouble to which womankind is heir—$1 per box of one month's treatment. Reliable Lady Agents can make money for themselves and become benefactors to their race by engaging in the sale of this remedy. For medicine and particulars, Address PAN-ZAMA MED. CO., Frankfort, Ind.

160 Acres in MARION

Township For Sale at a Bargain, Terms to suit.

MONEY TO LOAN ON

Approved Real Estate Security.

THEODORE R. CHAPIN

Boyne City.

FRANK E. WOODS

Bath & Barber Rooms

Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd fellows Block.

BATH & BARBER

ROOMS.

Hot and Cold baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.

If you want a quiet place to get a shave, hair dress or bath call and see me.

JAY L. PRICE

NEW SHOP!

All kinds of

Blacksmithing,

At the

Shop in the Foundry Building.

Horseshoeing a specialty.

ALL WORK GUARANTEED.

M. SCOTT.

1-3 OFF SALE!

At Miss Spaulding's

MILLINERY ROOMS,

I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.

Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $3.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed felt hat in the store.

Come early and secure a Bargain.

MISS L. SPAULDING.

JAS. A. GELLICK,

Dealer in

Choice Wines,

Fine Liquors

EXCELLENT CIGARS.

We call Special Attention to our

Old Kentucky Sour Mash

WHISKIES.

We also keep continually on draught

Milwaukee

Export and lager Beer.

Bridge St., first door south of Sentinel

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN.

THE NEWS.

Intelligence Gathered In by Wire from Every Quarter of the Nation.

Also a Few News Sandwiches from Lands Beyond the Broad Ocean.

LATEST DISPATCHES.

DAVITT'S WIFE IS LOYAL.

If Her Husband is Arrested, She Will Speak in His Stead.

A Dublin dispatch says that "Michael Davitt made another speech at Bodyke Wednesday. He said he had received a letter from Mrs. Davitt intimating that if he should be arrested she would speak at the evictions in his stead. For the last eight years he had counseled moderation. The [illegible]

CURRENT EVENTS.

EAST.

The funeral of the late ex-Vice President Wheeler was largely attended at Malone, N. Y., on Tuesday. Business in the village was universally suspended during the ceremonies. The pall bearers were old friends and neighbors of the dead statesman.

Editor William O'Brien was tendered a reception and banquet at New York Tuesday night. Among the distinguished persons present were Charles A. Dana, Governor Green, of New Jersey; Bishop Farrell, and ex-Mayor Grace. Mr. O'Brien, in his speech, condemned the persons who took part in the Saturday night meeting, alleging that they were not Irish Nationalists, and being especially severe on Mr. McMakin. After midnight Mr. O'Brien, escorted by the Sixty-ninth Regiment, marched to the White Star docks, where he was safely put aboard the Adriatic, which sailed a few hours later.

The death from apoplexy is recorded of Supreme Judge William Murray, of Delhi, N. Y., and Chauncey F. Cleveland, ex-Governor of Connecticut.

WEST.

As the result of a contest over a tree claim near Huron, Dakota, Simeon Nel- [illegible]

[illegible] by the Treasury. Less is said of the inter-state law, pending the decision of the commission as to a continuance of suspension. Reports are cheering as to crops, business, collections, and the supply of money. There were 150 failures in the United States and Canada for the week, a decrease of twenty-five from the preceding week. Failures are steadily diminishing throughout the country, especially in the West.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

There are rumors that the Interstate Commerce Commission will interpret the law under which it acts as permitting roads to make special rates at points where there is water competition.

An answer has been received by the Interstate Commerce Commission from the Chicago and Grand Trunk Railroad Company to the complaint of the Michigan Central Railroad Company against it for selling tickets to commercial travelers at a lower rate than that given to the public generally. The Chicago and Grand Trunk admits the sale of tickets and the other facts stated by the complainant. It holds that the form of ticket sold commercial travelers is in the form of a special contract, by which the company is relieved from some part of the liability subject to which it transports other passengers, and it is claimed that this limitation constitutes a sufficient reason for the discrimination in favor of commercial travelers. It is also stated that the travelers constitute a distinct class of the railroad [illegible]

THE NATIONAL GAME.

The Race for the Base-Ball Championship—Standing of the Various Clubs.

Detroit and Boston Neck and Neck—Notes and Gossip of the Game.

[CHICAGO CORRESPONDENCE.]

Since the date of my last letter the Chicago team has made a spurt in its race for the pennant that has aroused the hopes of its admirers in this city, and the interest of lovers of the game throughout the country. The good work began, as I stated last week, at Philadelphia, when we took two games of the series from the Philadelphia lads. It was continued at Boston, when after a close fight in the opening game of the series, we beat Mike Kelly and his braves the following day, and but for rain would probably have taken two games of the series there instead of one. At New York the following week, we took two games out of three from the Giants upon the latter's own stamping grounds, and then we surprised the world by going to Detroit and beating the heavy hitters of the League two straight games with such scores as 4 to 2 and 2 to 1. That is ball-playing good enough to suit any one. Should [illegible]

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

Official Statement from the United States Treasurer—The Reduction for May.

[illegible]

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

[illegible]

AT THE CAPITAL.

[illegible]

STAMPING OUT PLEURO-PNEUMONIA

The Commissioner of Agriculture Asks the Co-operation of the Railroads.

[illegible]

ANOTHER HUGE MONOPOLY.

A Gigantic Combination of All Rubber Manufacturers to Run the Trade.

[illegible]

"THE OLD ROMAN."

[illegible]

WAR ANNALS.

Old Soldiers of Both Armies Fighting Their Battles Over Again.

Anecdotes of the Battle-field, the Weary March, and the Cheerful Camp-fire.

Two Graves.

BY A VETERAN.

She rests in peace, with pale hands folded,
Beneath the willows that guard her well,
Sweet rest and peace together molded
For her, the pale, sad asphodel.

No more of pain, no more of sighing,
Nor weary nights, nor darkened days;
The white flower in earth's bosom lying
Shall bloom no more in shadowed ways.

The winter snows shall lie upon her,
The summer grasses lily wave,
While weeping friends shall sadly honor
The dust within that lowly grave.

And, far away, he, too, is sleeping—
The soldier whom she gave with pain
To manly toil 'n war's red reaping,
But called not from the field again.

No more of strife, no more of clamor,
The battle's shock, the storm of woe;
Above him rolled the fiery glamour,
But calmly rests the brave below.

Give them sweet sleep, O God in heaven,
And refuge with the saints above,
Who mingled with their country's leaven
Their lives, their hopes, their sacred love!

—Chicago Ledger.

[illegible]

A little flour, salt and water, a good rail fire, a long-handled skillet, a little pork grease, and one is ready for business. Warm the pan, pour in the bag oil, douse in the batter, let it sizzle a bit, then give it a shake, a twitch and a flop, and over it goes into the fire, unless you are an artist.

On this occasion the cakes were soon cooked, and the large-hearted, generous sergeant cheerfully shared his good fortune and feast with a goodly number of his comrades and some of the officers' mess. That was a delightful repast, heartily eaten, and praised by all. One or two of the boys, however, remarked the cakes did not appear much lighter than those made without soda.

Supper over, the men composing the mess stood around the camp fire talking over the events of the day and prospects of the morrow, satisfied with their surroundings, and even jolly. In a few moments there was a lull in the conversation; the boys were less blithesome and more uncomfortable than usual. A deathly pallor was observed in faces which but a moment before were wreathed in smiles. Sergeant White stole silently away, while Sergeant Snow was seen retreating into the woods in another direction, followed soon after by Collins, Hyman, Shore and the balance, and such another entertainment, consisting entirely of vomiting, was seldom gotten up on so short notice. Oh! the hee-ups and the hoo-ups, the tears and groans of that sick squad will very likely never be forgotten. It was the event of the campaign in the way of gastronomic achievements. It was good-by to supper, and to much of the inner mechanism of the mortal corporosity.

[illegible]

and cold chisel, he sat down in the middle of the floor, took the bomb between his legs, placed the chisel on the brass screw at the point, and gave it a smart lick with the hammer. The next instant the atmosphere was dense with disintegrated blacksmith-shop. A section of the batting roof had business over in another county, and a chunk of the side wall went down to visit a neighboring camp. Pieces of iron and steel that were once tools took an immediate vacation and fled to parts unknown. In short, the shop was demolished."

"But what of the man?" we asked of Colonel McGill.

"He's the chap I was coming to. When the boys rushed over to see what was the matter, there he sat, bolt upright in the midst of the debris, with his legs straddled out, a hammer in one hand and a cold-chisel in the other, and trying to spit a hair off the end of his tongue. 'By gosh,' he said, as he slowly crawled to his feet, 'I guess the folks 't home'll have to get along 'thout that shell.'

General Burnside.

General Ambrose E. Burnside was born at Liberty, Ind., May 23, 1824. He graduated at West Point in 1847, and was immediately stationed at Fort Adams, Newport, R. I. He was subsequently sent to New Mexico, where he commanded a squadron of cavalry. Having invented a breech-loading rifle, he resigned his commission in 1853 and established a manufactory for constructing his guns in Rhode Island.

In 1861 he was appointed Colonel of the First Regiment of Rhode Island Volunteers, which marched to Washington four days after the call for volunteers by the President. In January, 1862, he was placed in command of an expedition to North Carolina and captured Roanoke Island, Newbern, and Beaufort. He commanded a brigade in the battle of Bull Run, after which he was made a Brigadier General.

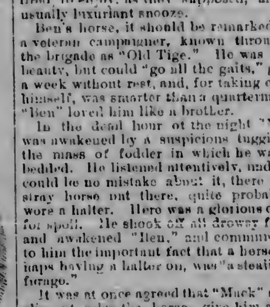
During the Confederate invasion of Maryland General Burnside was under the command of General McClellan; gained the battle of South Mountain, September 14, 1862; commanded the left wing of the army at Antietam. On November 7 he succeeded McClellan in the command of the [illegible]

General A. P. Hill.

[illegible] Hill was one of the con[illegible] the late war on the [illegible] He was born in Cul[illegible] [illegible]ia, about 1825, and [illegible]ersburg April 2, 1865. [illegible]ated at West Point [illegible]ith distinction in the [illegible] in the Florida wars. [illegible] was connected with



[illegible]rvey. He resigned his [illegible]enant in March, 1861, [illegible] Confederate service. He [illegible] all of the campaigns [illegible]ia, being present as [illegible] of Bull Run, and at [illegible] he was made a Major [illegible]so in the seven days' [illegible]; was at Cedar Moun[illegible] [illegible] Antietam; at Fred[illegible] [illegible] Chancellorsville. At the [illegible] succeeded to the com[illegible] [illegible]orps. He was also in [illegible]

Old Tige.

[illegible] Knoxville, and vigilant to retard every Federal advance, was not only engaged in constant, arduous service, but subjected to the severest privations. A certain Tennessee regiment, which was generally on the extreme front, adopted a camp rule to the effect that whenever a horse broke loose and strayed from his own proper part of the camp, the party upon whom he trespassed—especially if he were caught making free with the precious forage—should have the right to confiscate the halter worn by the said horse. Inasmuch as good serviceable halters were scarce, the privilege was rigorously exercised.

One night "Mack" and "Ben," two young fellows belonging to the same "mess," and inseparable companions, had collected an extra quantity of excellent fodder. After giving an ample "feed" to each of their horses, they disposed of the residue so as to make them a snug, warm bed, and retired to enjoy, as they supposed, an unusually luxuriant snooze.

Ben's horse, it should be remarked, was a veteran campaigner, known throughout the brigade as "Old Tige." He was not a beauty, but could "go all the gaits," gallop a week without rest, and, for taking care of himself, was smarter than a quartermaster. "Ben" loved him like a brother.

In the dead hour of the night "Mack" was awakened by a suspicious tugging at the mass of fodder in which he was imbedded. He listened attentively, and there could be no mistake about it, there was a stray horse out there, quite probably he wore a halter. Here was a glorious chance for spoil. He shook off all drowsy feeling and awakened "Ben," and communicated to him the important fact that a horse, perhaps having a halter on, was "a stealin' our forage."

It was at once agreed that "Mack" should slip out, seize the horse, give him a good hiding, that he might learn to conduct himself better in the future, and, as a matter of course, confiscate the halter. It was as dark as a wolf's mouth, but "Mack" groped his way to the back of the shanty, and, without difficulty, captured the trespasser.

"Now tie him up and belt him good," said "Ben." "Teach him how to come foolin' around here, eatin' up Old Tige's feed." "Mack," having procured a stout brush, proceeded to "belt" him. To judge from the vigorous snorting and cavorting with which the previously docile animal received the monitory lesson, it both amazed and disgusted him. "Now shake off his halter," suggested "Ben," when the "belting" was finished. "Old Tige's halter is gett'n' mighty threadbare and weak." [illegible]

BILL NYE.

The Great Humorist Tells About Raising Tobacco in North Carolina.

No doubt some of the finest flavored smoking tobacco in the world is grown in this region and manufactured in this state, writes Bill Nye from Asheville, N. C. It is a bright and beautiful golden color, as thin as tissue paper, and smells well while in the act of yielding itself to the devouring element.

Tobacco has been know to our race for about four centuries, and during that time it has made wonderful strides.

It is sad to think of the suffering that existed throughout the length and breadth of the land before tobacco was discovered.

Tobacco is grown upon the rich, red hillsides of North Carolina and Virginia by means of agriculture. The Venetian-red soil of the South has to be fertilized before it will produce much tobacco. The best fertilizer is the handiwork of Signor Guano, of Peru, whose works are very popular in the South.

The soil is then tickled with the hoe, and African humorists who can amuse a plantation in this way readily command a salary of about $7 per month.

Fertilizing is quite expensive, and it requires a good crop to get even on the year's expenditures for labor, fertilizers, etc. One man I heard of the other day sold his crop two weeks ago, and still lacked $4.85 of having enough [illegible]

[illegible]

after the fire, and [illegible] came into court he [illegible] to swear to an alibi. [illegible] that he intended [illegible] draw Mr. Lincoln [illegible] which it really did, [illegible] had opportunity to [illegible] but as soon as the [illegible] the alarm was raised [illegible] failed him, and he [illegible] took him into custod[illegible]

"I didn't do it, [illegible] didn't!"

He had a wicked-l[illegible] single-barreled pist[illegible] written instructions [illegible] certain mysterious [illegible] City. We couldn't [illegible] found it best to [illegible] once and to remain [illegible] war.—Detroit Free [Press.]

The Women [of Mexico.]

In point of ami[ability] [illegible] manner, and affecti[illegible] no women in the [illegible] with those of Mexic[o] [illegible]

[illegible]

TOMB OF FRANCISCO PIZARRO.

[illegible]

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Notes on the Lesson for June 19—"The Commandments."

[illegible]

"NEW HOME" Sewing Machines.

Our Agent will soon begin the canvass of Charlevoix and Vicinity, for the sale of the "NEW HOME" Machine, fully warranted and sold on easy terms. The Machine may be seen at the Millinery Store of Litney & Carr, of Charlevoix.

"SMITH AMERICAN," "CHASE" and "EARHUFF" ORGANS FOR SALE at LOWEST PRICES.

DUNHAM & SUTTON, EAST JORDAN.

Charlevoix Sentinel.
Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, JUNE 15, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

Northern Michigan.

Kalkaska is talking water works.

The new depot at Petoskey is to be completed July 1st.

Williamsburg has raised $2,000 for the Elk Rapids and Kalkaska railroad.

Mrs. St. John's pension, East Jordan, is $1,700 back pay and $12 per month.

Elk Rapids is going to celebrate and celebrate big and whoop'er up the way it ought to be whooped.

The railroad surveyors are now about four miles out from Bellaire on their way to Kalkaska.—Breeze.

The teachers institute for Antrim county will be held at Bellaire during the week beginning August 1st.

Jas. R. Hayes the manager of the Arlington Hotel arrived at Petoskey last week. The house will open June 25.

J. E. Greilick of Traverse City, is furnishing a good deal of finishing material for the great hotel at Mackinac island.

Circuit Court for Antrim county convenes at Bellaire Tuesday, June 21, to try Alexander Henry on a charge of manslaughter.

A company has been formed at Grayling to experiment with raising cattle in northern Michigan. They will herd 100 head near that place.

Prof. Ewing of Petoskey has been tendered the position of principal of the preparatory department of the Presbyterian college at Wooster, O.

Fire has hurt the David Ward and White & Friant pine east of Kalkaska, and may necessitate lumbering it at once. This would help Kalkaska.

Frankfort people have so great faith in the water from their mineral well that they actually use it themselves, and affirm that it is good for what ails them.

John Monroe of East Jordan has purchased the engine and boiler of the wrecked steamer Mermaid at Northport. He will use the machinery on a steam pile driver.

The Quincy Rock House and the Drum House were struck by lightning at Houghton, Wednesday morning and totally destroyed. Loss, $60,000; insurance unknown.

Experienced officers, $100,000 capital and a new bank building constitute the features of the new Sault Ste. Marie national bank, which will be ready for business by July 1.

The postoffice at Wequetonsing, discontinued last fall, has been re-established, and manager LaForce reappointed P. M. The office will not be opened until July 1st, however.

The northern Michigan pensions granted last week were: Frank Shoon, Petoskey; John O. Shryock, Advance; Joseph Cooper, Old Mission. Reissue and increase, Philetus Wheeler, Kalkaska.

The State Board of Pharmacy will hold a special session in Petoskey on July 15th and 16th for the examination of candidates. This will accommodate many in northern Michigan and save them much expense.—Record.

The West Michigan press association will hold their annual meeting at Manistee June 22-24, and will include an excursion to Onekama and another to Frankfort. "The boys" and their wives are going to have a bang-up good time.

Supt. Marks, of the Petoskey fish hatchery, has left for southern Michigan with the fish car, containing between eight and ten million young wall-eyed pike, which will be planted in seventeen of the best lakes in the southern counties.

Within two weeks after Lake Linden was wiped from the surface of the earth, the generous people of the country had contributed $40,000 toward providing shelter, clothing and food for the destitute and the most urgent needs for the homeless people have been supplied.

At last work is begun on the extension of the Toledo, Ann Arbor & Cadillac railroad from Mt. Pleasant to Cadillac. Trains will be running there about Nov. 1. Negotiations are pending between this company and the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad for a union depot there at the intersection of the two roads. The new road has adopted a route entering the city from the southeast.

Grand Traverse Herald: Our people were surprised, last Thursday, to learn of the sudden death, that morning, of J. R. Lamoreaux, near his home, on the peninsula. He, accompanied by his daughter, started out on the bay, in a row boat, to meet the steamer Onekama, but missed her in the fog, and returned to shore. A moment after he remarked that he felt faint, and almost immediately expired. Mr. Lamoreaux was a highly respected citizen. He had occupied several offices of trust at Grand Rapids, that of deputy sheriff of Kent county among these. The remains were taken to Grand Rapids for burial.

The D. C. & E. R. R. Banquet.

Bellaire people banquetted the D. C. & E. engineer corps a week ago Saturday, and the Kalkaska Leader of last week has a column and a half review of the very successful affair. It says: "Mr. Geo. W. Albrecht officiated as toastmaster, and seemed to be the right man in the right place. After all had been seated at the tables, Mr. Roswell Leavitt, delivered an address of welcome, which was responded to by H. S. Beardslee, the chief of the survey party. His remarks were brief and to the point, and in substance were to the effect that he had found an easy, practicable and cheap route, better than he expected, and that granted the money were furnished him he would find the men and put the road through before snow comes. This statement was received with applause, and then the heavy business of the evening, the bonquet, was tackled. After all had gorged themselves, or at least enjoyed the opportunity, cigars were passed and the literary part of the programme was taken up.

"The Accepted Time" was the first sentiment, but the gentleman selected for the response was conspicuous for his absence, and after a few incidental remarks on the theme in question by Mr. Albrecht, Alf. G. Drake was called upon to respond to the toast "Business Men's Association," which he did in a few well chosen remarks. "Village Improvements" called forth a practical talk from C. S. Guile, of Bellaire; while in the absence of the gentleman whose name was down for a response to the toast, "The D. C. & E. R. R.," C. C. Jencks was called upon to fill the vacancy, and though the call was entirely unexpected, he proved equal to the emergency, and made a neat little speech. "From Whence Came You?" the next sentiment, was not responded to, the gentleman to whom it was assigned being on the sick list. "What Came You Here to Do?" called forth a few well chosen remarks from S. B. Owen, of Bellaire; and then Prof. Diamond, of the same place, talked a few moments about "The World on Wheels." "The Press," fell to the lot of J. N. Tinklepaugh, who responded in his usual unhappy manner, and both he and the afflicted audience were glad when it was finished. "The Off Ox," fell to the lot of C. Densmore, of Bellaire, who was on hand to put a yoke on the critter. "The Rising Generation of Our Place" was handled by Prof. J. B. Allen, of Charlevoix, who is with the survey party. "The Sinews of War" had been assigned to A. A. Bleazby, but he being absent, W. B. Perkins was pressed into the service, and though having no time for preparation, Mr. P. hastily corralled his ideas and handled his subject in a very nice manner. Then came more cigars, a selection by the band and midnight, and the company dispersed.

Marine Jottings.

After July 1st. the City of Grand Rapids will change her time to opposite days from at present. She will go south instead of north on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and north on the other week days.

Clearances for the week ending yesterday evening:

11—Schr W. H. Dunham, 150,000 ft hardwood lumber, Glenn & Porter, to Chicago.
11—Schr Florence M. Smith, 63 cords wood, C. B. & Co. to Milwaukee.
13—Schr Stampede, 280,000 ft hardwood lumber P. L. L. to Chicago.
13—Schr L. B. Shepard, 200,000 ft hardwood lumber Glenn & Porter to Chicago.
1[illegible]—Schr Contest, [illegible] wood, [illegible] bark [illegible] to Kenosha.

Norwood Notes.

The schr M. L. Collins loaded with lumber on Monday.

School closed on Thursday.

Childrens Day was appropriately observed by the Sunday School on Sunday last.

Bertha Harris, who has been in Minnesota for the past year, returned on Friday.

Wallace McIntyre returned last week, having just graduated from the Commercial college at Battle Creek.

The resorters begin to put in an appearance. Mrs. Cummings of Chicago, being the first arrival.

The fishing troubles between Canada and the United States are breaking out near home. One day last week, Customs Inspector Frazer, of Victoria Harbor, Georgian Bay, swooped down on S. H. Davis & Co.'s plant, seized the six boats and four tons of fish which had just been put on the Remora for shipment to Alpena. The agent offered to give bonds for the removal of the fish. Frazer refused to accept bonds and refused to show his authority for the seizure, and on the following day the fish were sold to one Anderson. S. H. Davis & Co. are naturally indignant. They are $400 out, and were unable to supply their customers with whitefish. They claim that their boat, the Remora, has fulfilled all the requirements of the Canadian law, and that they were merely exercising the right of purchase enjoyed by everybody in all civilized countries.

Carl Schurz, who broke his leg last winter, still goes on crutches. He is also still quite lame politically.

SCHOONER WANTED—10 to 20 tons to charter for season. Must be in good condition and fully equipped for cruise. Will buy if all is satisfactory. Address description to U. S. N. Co., Box 179, Traverse City, Mich.

Religious.

Baptist Church.

During the meeting of the Grand Traverse Baptist Association now in session with the Baptist church of this place, the following subjects will be discussed: State, Home, and Foreign Missions; Sunday school work; Woman's mission work, and various other matters pertaining to Christian work. The people of Charlevoix are cordially invited to attend all the sessions. The annual sermon by Rev. H. H. Hewitt of St. Ignace, will be preached this (Wednesday) afternoon at 2:15 o'clock, and followed by the reading of letters from the churches. At 7:30 P. M. there will be a sermon followed by a missionary conference. Thursday's program has not been finally arranged as to exact time when the various topics will be discussed. All the meetings will be interesting and profitable, closing with Thursday evening's session.

M. E. Church.

Subject of Tuesday evening Bible reading, "Hold Fast." Don't forget the time, 7:30 p. m.

Thursday evening affords an opportunity to draw the "water of life" from the well of Salvation. Come with us to the Fountain of Truth.

Friday evening, Teachers' meeting at the parsonage.

Saturday evening, quarterly conference meets at parsonage.

Sunday morning services as usual followed by Sunday School.

Commence your week of mingled toil and pleasure by waiting on God in his Holy Temple. W. H. MCC.

Episcopal Church.

On Sunday next at 5 o'clock p. m. Rev. J. W. Bancroft will hold Divine service with lecture or sermon and administer the sacrament of Baptism in the Congregational church. "Let whosoever will, come."

Rev. J. W. Bancroft will hold service and meet for personal examination and advice, and to take the names of all candidates for baptism and confirmation. The parents and sponsors of the children and every one who will come, are invited to meet with us at Green's Hall at 7:30 p. m. on Friday next. Come all and come early.

Congregational Church.

Rev. C. F. VanAuken will return this week and will preach next Sunday morning at 10:30.

Young peoples meeting Tuesday evening. Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7:30.

Elsewhere.

J. S. Smithson will speak at the Barnard school house, Sunday, June 19th.

Rev. W. G. Clark will conduct Children's Day exercises at Ironton next Sunday at 2:30 p. m.

Preaching next Sabbath at Johnson's at 11 o'clock A. M. and at 3:30 o'clock P. M. Rev. Bro. Thurston is expected to fill both appointments.

Loyal Legion will meet at Green's hall Saturday, at 3 o'clock. An especial invitation is extended to temperance people to come and help carry on the work of interesting the young against the evil of intemperance.

The Ironton M. E. church, and Sabbath school enjoyed Childrens Day, last Sabbath, June 12th. The day was delightful, the program good, and those taking a part in the services did well. The whole service was executed with great credit to all. The pastor preached at night, baptised and received on probation.

The new M. E. church at East Jordan, so long on the way is to be completed this week and dedicated for Divine service, on Sunday June 26th. The dedicatory sermon will be preached by Rev. W. H. McCartney of Charlevoix, at 10:30 A. M. The dedication supper will take place in the skating rink on Friday evening, June 24. A cordial invitation is extended to all our friends.

Ironton.

The wood in the yard is all gone and the tug must tow enough to keep the kilns going.

John Peterson has been re-fitting his house, grounds and store.

John Moorehouse was home from East Jordan, where he is in the restaurant business, over Sunday.

Strawberry and ice cream social by H. H. society on Friday evening.

The friends of Mary Friel will be glad to learn that she has so far recovered as to be able to walk across the street. It was feared for a long time that she could not recover.

We neglected to mention last week that Mrs. Purvis was enjoying a visit from her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Mosher, of Tillotsonburg, Canada. Also her brother, Joseph Mosher, of the same place, and Mr. and Mrs. Fairbairn of Quebec. Mrs. Fairbairn is a sister of Mrs. Purvis. The latter will remain if the prospects seem inviting.

Rev. Mr. Smithson preached in the Congregational church on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Friels has occupied the Mannay house.

And now the Misses Lenzens, Geneva and Cassie Box are happy—a bran new organ, a present from their papa did it. We have forgotten the name, but it's a good instrument.

A bit of soda dropped into the cavity of an aching tooth will afford relief sometimes.

Colt Strayed.

A year old, brown male colt. One white hind foot, other partly white. Will pay liberally for any information.

J. J. BENNETT, Charlevoix.

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

Fresh Butter at lowest price, at Jefferies' Bakery.

TO RENT. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent, Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

FOR SALE—One farm wagon nearly new, one second hand delivery wagon, and three village lots on Antrim st. All very cheap. J. L. HURD.

Itch, Prairie Mange and Scratches of every kind cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Use no other. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix.

The ladies are cordially invited to call and examine the large display of millinery including pattern hats and bonnets together with novelties in ribbons, gauzes, flowers, etc. As it is to be a season of novelties it will pay you to call now and often, upon Mrs. Litney & Carr.

Household Effects for Sale.

I will sell my furniture and household goods at private sale at any time prior to July 1st.
MRS. GENEVRA GEYLES.

Fire Works! Fire Works!

A LARGE STOCK and MORE ON THE ROAD.

ROCKETS from one ounce to two pounds. Roman Candles, one to ten balls; China Fly Wheels, Triangles, Vertical Wheels, Pin Wheels, Mines and Stars, [illegible] sizes, including the immense cannon cracker; Flags, etc., all at very low figures at
O. W. SMITH'S,
Opposite Bridge St. House.

POSITIVELY THE FINEST LINE OF

CLOTHING

AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS YOU EVER SAW IN CHARLEVOIX,

JUST RECEIVED FOR SUMMER WEAR.

Prices are unusually low this Spring and if you need anything in my line, just step in.

Now is a Grand Time To Obtain Bargains.

GEO. W. MILLER.

GOOD BYE SPRING! WELCOME SUMMER!

A. T. WASHBURNE AND CO.

Our Grand Summer Opening!

Was A Great Success.

Second Invoice Of Summer Goods

NOW ON THE ROAD.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

Successors to F. W. CRAINE & CO.

REFITTED!

Our store is nearly completed and we cordially invite our friends and patrons to call and inspect a choice assortment of new

DRY GOODS & GROCERIES

New Goods arriving nearly every day. Our stock of Groceries is the Largest, Choicest, Cleanest, and our Prices the Lowest. We're busy and haven't got arranged yet, but we want to see you just as we are.

J. L. HURD & CO.

NEW DRY GOODS,
NEW CLOTHING,
NEW TRUNKS, ETC.

--AT--

ALICK ROSENTHALs

I WANT YOU TO COME AND SEE ME IN MY NEW STORE

In The LEWIS Block.

My new stock is much the largest we have ever carried and at lower prices

CALL and be convinced of the truth of this remark.

DON'T FORGET THE PLACE.

ALICK ROSENTHAL,
Successor to ROSENTHAL & SON.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XIX. NO.--8 CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22, 1887. WHOLE NO. 917

"BUG FINISH!"

The new Potato Bug exterminator. We warrant it to give satisfaction. Very cheap. All ready for use. Requires no mixing. Try it.

STRICTLY PURE PARIS GREEN

We have in stock the purest article to be found in the market. It's sure death every time. Buy no other.

Sure Death To Currant Worms!

For these pests we have a pure article of White Hellebore. When ever used it acts like magic not leaving a worm on the bush.

PURE DALMATION INSECT POWDER

The best thing for Flies and other insects.

A trial of any of the above is bound to prove satisfactory.

F. G. HINES & CO.
Druggists.

Emrey Bros.

are on deck this Spring with a complete stock of

General Merchandise, AT LOWEST PRICES

WE ARE DETERMINED TO DO A STRICTLY CASH BUSINESS, AND THUS ARE ENABLED TO UNDERSELL FIRMS GIVING CREDIT.

IT WILL BE FOR YOUR PROFIT TO CALL AND GET PRICES.

Boots and Shoes

THE GREATEST BARGAINS EVER OFFERED IN THIS COUNTY.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

We call especial attention to our complete stock of

WALL PAPER.

The time has arrived when you need it. We are now receiving a fresh Spring stock embracing all the latest styles. We warrant you lowest prices.

Special Patterns ordered from samples if you wish.

OUR SUMMER ASSORTMENT OF

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

now being received is the finest we ever offered.

TEAS

of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES OF FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in

FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN

BOOTS and SHOES.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces

EVERYTHING

usually found in a General Store.

Remember

Our Goods are the Best.
Our Prices the Lowest.
Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours.

Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY

SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, - Michigan.

Address all business correspondence to the firm

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year - $1 50 | Six months - $.75
Invariably in Advance.

22 LIVES LOST

The Steamer Champlain Destroyed By Fire.

THE STORIES OF SURVIVORS.

Three Charlevoix Passengers Lost Within Six Miles of Home.

Like a thunderbolt from the azure blue of heaven there came upon Charlevoix last Friday morning a calamity the most terrible and appaling, the most soul harrowing, that Northern Michigan has ever been called upon to suffer, and has but few parallels in the history of like events.

On Tuesday night, the propeller Champlain, of the Northern Michigan Line, left Chicago for Cheboygan and intermediate ports. The weather was good and the steamer, after touching at the other usual ports, reached Norwood about 10:30 p. m. on Thursday evening, leaving at about 11 p. m. The Captain and second mate were on their watch forward; the passengers for Charlevoix were passing the evening pleasantly in the cabin, or preparing to disembark; the steamer was bowling along at eleven miles an hour, with not a thought of danger in the mind of any one of the 57 people on board.

Suddenly, when the steamer was nearly abreast of Fisherman's Island the Captain was startled by seeing the engineer rush on deck along the side passage, with his clothes on fire. The Captain directed him to go upon the hurricane deck and jump into the water-tank, which he did. The next warning the Captain had was seeing the flames issuing from around the smoke stack.

In the cabin, the passengers were first startled by hearing an unusual noise among the men on the main deck below, and then came the startling alarm

"The boat is on fire!"

To return to the deck. The Captain gave orders to stop the engine, but when the engineer returned to his post, already horribly burned, the engine-room was enveloped in flames, and the throttle could not be reached. The Captain then turned to lower the life boats, but the flames had shut him from the after boats. The forward boats and the life raft were lowered but soon lost, owing to the undiminished speed of the steamer.

The terror and confusion that now prevailed can better be imagined than described. The passengers, finding all hope of escape lost to them, secured life preservers, and prepared for the worst. The steamer had been headed for the Island, but before she struck, the work of destruction had been completed. The flames swept the doomed craft like a besom of destruction. One by one the passengers and crew jumped into the lake, the Captain being the last, and the struggle for life begun.

Then amid prayers and shouts and cries for help, with the glare of the burning steamer lighting the water the island and the distant shore, twenty-two souls went out from their earthly tabernacle. The gray haired father, the aged mother, the vigorous youth, and the curly headed darlings, together went into eternity.

THE LOST.

MRS. ELLA COOPER SMITH, of Charlevoix.
ROBERT WILKS, of Charlevoix.
GEORGE WRISLEY, of Charlevoix.
J. J. ROGERS, U. S. Hospital Steward, Ft. Mackinac.
MR. ROGERS' SON, aged 7.
CAPT. LUCAS, of Petoskey.
WM. SANSOM, of Streator, Ills.
Clerk HENRY BRENNAN, of Chicago.
MR. RUSSELL, agent Jackson Corset Co., Jackson, Mich.
MRS. MARY FALLS, near Manistique.
MISS LULU WILLARD, aged 18, her daughter.
MRS. M. KEHOE of Chicago, formerly of Charlevoix.
JACK HARTLEY, second cook, of Chicago.
ED. WILKINS, cabin boy, Madison Wis.
2d. FIREMAN, name unknown, Chicago.
TWO DAUGHTERS of Steward Beans, aged 3 and 5.
MR. SCHAUB of Rochester, Wis.
ANDREW TOPASAW, WM. KOOKOSH, JONAH NODAY, GEORGE OOEMONGEA'DO, Indian deck hands, Suttons Bay.

The passengers and members of the crew who constitute

THE SAVED ARE

Geo. W. Miller, Miss Mary Wakefield, Mrs. Harrison Bedford, Wm. Stevens, Antoine Sharrow, and Frank Wrisley, (son of George Wrisley) all of Charlevoix.

Mrs. Jackson Ingalls and Miss Ella Wilson of Petoskey.

W. B. Albright, of Sherwin-Williams Co., Mrs. Kehoe's little daughter, of Chicago.

Mr. Falls of Bear Lake, brother-in-law of the Mrs. Falls' drowned.

R. Wittmann, agent Berger & Sons, Milwaukee.

Capt. Casey, Steward Martin Bean and wife; John McCaffery, 1st engineer, badly burned; Henry Bean, porter; P. Katon, first cook; Warne, 2d engineer; Roy Hazleton, waiter; Mary Kane, stewardess; one white deck hand and Jas. Markey, watchman, all of Chicago.

1st mate Harry Bishop and his son S. Bishop, wheelsman, of Pulaski, N. Y.

2d mate Jas. Thorp of Prescott, Ont.

Jas. Barr, wheelsman, Cheboygan.

Chas. Lachone, 1st fireman, Mackinac.

Six Indian deck hands from Elk Rapids.

Out of the 57 souls on board 22 were lost and 34 are known to be saved.

None but eye witnesses can fully realize the horror of the scenes upon the fated vessel, and in the water on that terrible night. Mrs. H. Bedford and her doomed sister parted upon the deck, the former to go first into the water, and was bravely rescued by James Barr, of Cheboygan, a wheelsman. Mrs. Ella Smith, the gentle and loving lady, the true Christian woman, the affectionate and faithful friend, knelt upon the deck, with the flames creeping upon her, and committed herself into the hands of the Heavenly Father, whom she trusted. Then she leaped into the lake. She, with nearly all the rest, had been provided with life preservers, and as she struck the water her head was seen to drop to one side, and without doubt the gentle spirit took its flight without further struggle. All were striving to reach the Island a mile distant, but one after another, as life preservers, some of them poorly adjusted or imperfectly fastened, failed to do their work, drowned with the shores of the Island within their view.

Steward Bean and wife had each taken one of the little girls, aged 3 and 5, and sprung into the water, striking out bravely to save themselves and their darlings. Soon Mrs. B. saw that the youngest child, upon her arm was dead and that she must relinquish it in order to save her own life. Sadly she dropped the little one into the water and turned to her husband and remaining darling. Its eyes were closed and its head resting upon its father, and thinking that it too had died, said to his wife that the body of the other child must be left. The child opened its eyes and looking into her papa's face said:

"Papa, I don't want to die yet."

Again the father renewed his struggle for life with his darling upon his shoulder. The second cook soon relieved him of the child, but both were among the lost.

On shore at Smithson's camp, the shrieking whistle of the steamer awoke the slumbering people, and the red flames revealed to them the full and terrible import of the signal. A schooner was at the pier, the crew of which were awakened by Geo. Burns, and with her yawl, manned by them, and another boat manned by Burns himself, they went quickly to the rescue.

Five, including the Captain, reached the shore of the Island, the others were picked up by the boats. Capt. Casey and the others were taken from the Island to the main shore, from whence the brave Captain returned with the rescuers after others.

Miss Mary Wakefield of this place, proved herself a brave and noble girl in this trying hour, at the thought of which even stout manly hearts sink. Mrs. Kehoe, her friend and traveling companion was going down, with her child in her arms; Mary seized the child and taking its clothing in her teeth reached the island in safety. The porter, Henry Bean, when he left the steamer had divested himself of all his clothing but drawers and shirt, thinking he could swim to better advantage. In this condition he reached the Island, chilled and exhausted. Miss Wakefield took from her person her skirts and wrapped about him, no doubt saving his life. This same Beau went ashore upon the same fender with Mrs. Jackson Ingalls, a Christian lady well known here, who, when the young man was crying for help, at his request prayed for him—there in the chill waters, prayed that if lost he might be accepted of the Father, and if saved become His follower.

The survivors were soon congregated in the large log buildings at Smithson's camp and Charlevoix notified by telephone of the disaster. Soon tugs by water and vehicles by road were on the way there, carrying physicians, and the necessary aid. All were soon transferred here but engineer McCaffrey, who was so badly burned that he could not be removed.

Later in the morning the fish boat of John O'Neill picked up the bodies of Mrs. Smith and Captain Lucas and brought them in.

Charlevoix that terrible morning was indeed a place of mourning. The disaster had entered three Charlevoix homes and with them, the entire community mourned. The Champlain was towed to the piers, and the village steam fire engine called into requisition to extinguish the still burning hull. The piers were crowded until she was towed into Round Lake and put upon the bottom near Campbell's yard.

RECOVERY OF THE BODIES.

Friday afternoon a tug brought in the bodies of Rogers, Brennan, Russell, Wilkins and Hartley, and the vacant store building owned by Stockman was converted into a morgue where the bodies were placed and identified by survivors. They were there in the shape they were found, some partially divested of clothing, others fully dressed; with arms stiffened in various shapes, one with hands clasped as if in prayer. The body of Mr Russell was taken in charge by Knights Templar, embalmed and shipped to his friends in Jackson. That of Rogers was packed in ice and forwarded to his friends in Mackinaw; that of Brennan was shipped in like manner to friends, and those of Wilkins and Hartley were buried here with religious services at the graves by local pastors.

Saturday the bodies of Wilks, Wrisley, Schaub, Sansom and the fireman were brought in. The remains of Sansom were taken in charge by his father who arrived yesterday; the fireman and Mr. Schaub were buried, the latter by his son, of Boyne City. All had brief services at the graves. The bodies of Wilks and Wrisley were turned over to their families here.

Sunday, the steamer Onekama found two bodies floating in the bay and brought them here. They proved to be those of Mrs. Falls and the little three year old daughter of the steward. It was a scene to move the stoutest heart when the steward went on board the tug and recognized the remains of his darling. The little hands were clasped upon its breast and upon a finger of its left hand was a pretty gold ring. Many a sigh escaped from feeling hearts as the remains were uncovered. These last two were taken in charge by the ladies, prepared for interment and given Christian burial on Monday afternoon.

A SAD SUNDAY.

"I am the Resurrection and the Life," were the words which twice disturbed the stillness of waiting congregations at the M. E. church on Sunday as the solemn corteges entered.

At ten o'clock the funeral of Mrs. Ella Cooper Smith occurred. Never in the history of Charlevoix has there been such spontaneous manifestations of sincere sorrow as were shown at the funeral of this excellent lady. The floral tributes were elaborate and eloquent. At each angle of the altar-rail columns of ferns arose to a height of five feet, capped by wreaths; potted plants and boquets covered the altar-rail; an arched gate-way eight feet high, with the "gates ajar," all of ferns, opened upon a white background, covered with drooping flowers and beautifully arranged plants, while upon the casket of black and silver, "At Rest," worked in violets into a floral pillow rested beside a cross. The pastor took no text, but touchingly spoke of the beautiful life that had gone out, of the blessed dead who die in the Lord, and left his message with the living. Silently and solemnly the remains of this loved one were followed to the grave. Ella Cooper Smith was the second daughter of Richard and Marietta Cooper, of this place, and was 25 years of age. Her life from early childhood has been spent in Charlevoix. Her childhood, maidenhood and widowhood have always been adorned by a character amiable and lovely. She was "Ella" to everybody, always the same generous hearted, kind and sympathizing woman. She was a consistent member of the M. E. church and always zealous in church and Sunday School work. The Historical Society embraced her name in its membership, and its meetings were always graced by her presence. Although the grief of the parents, sisters and brother is measureless, they are compassed about by a multitude of hearts which throb in sympathy with them.

A SECOND FUNERAL BELL

at two o'clock called the sorrowing from their homes to pay the last sad rites to the mortal remains of Robert Wilks. The church still remained decorated, and every pew was filled. Again the pastor briefly, but touchingly spoke his words of consolation and the casket was borne to the cemetery. Robert Wilks was a member of the M. E. church, a good citizen, and a kind husband and father. He was 60 years of age and has resided here four years, having removed here from Flint. He leaves a wife and four daughters.

GEORGE WRISLEY

was buried from his residence at noon, Rev. W. G. Clark conducting the services. Mr. Wrisley was an upright and industrious citizen and a skillful mechanic.

MR. SCHAUB,

who was temporarily interred here Sunday, was aged 53 years and a resident of Walworth county, Wis. He was a farmer and a local Methodist preacher, and was on his way to visit his son, J. C. Schaub, of Boyne City. He had contemplated this trip for six years, and had been dreading it, having an inbred fear of traveling on the water. The son was compelled to bury the father, and from the grave hastened to the side of his mother afar across the lake to console her in this severe hour of trial.

MRS. MICHAEL KEHOE.

The loss of this estimable lady comes as a personal bereavement to many warm friends in Charlevoix. Although her home was in Chicago, every summer found her here among old friends. Eighteen years ago Capt. Michael Kehoe and wife were residents of Charlevoix. Later they removed to Chicago, where they have resided since. The Captain for many years sailed the schooner T. W. Ferry, but for the past three years has been in the grocery business. The writer of this knows personally of the happy and pleasant home in the great city. More than once we have enjoyed her kind hospitality there, and many, many times has her cordial smile greeted us as she reached this quiet retreat from the hot and dusty city. She was a lady of rare grace and kindness of heart. She leaves a husband and adopted daughter. Capt. Kehoe arrived from Chicago, Saturday.

THE CAUSE.

From the consideration of the direful results of this terrible calamity, our thoughts revert to the probable cause. As we write a legal investigation is in progress which may throw light upon the subject, but the most plausible theory is that a lamp in the fireman's room exploded or was knocked over and ignited inflammable material. It seems, also, that the flames reached the engine-room while the engineer was temporarily out. Returning, he found the engine-room in flames, and in trying to stop the engine was burned and rushed on deck as above recorded. Had the steamer been stopped at once, there is reason to believe that every life would have been saved. Just at this point seems to lie the responsibility for the disaster. The horrible reality once upon them the officers acted like men, Capt. Casey especially proving himself a hero and worthy of the authority given him.

THE STEAMER.

The propeller Champlain was A 2, 456 tons, Lloyds register. She was one of the original Chamberlain fleet of 22 steamers constituting the Northern Transportation Company's line plying between Chicago and Ogdensburg. They were a uniform line of compact, well-built canal steamers, of good power, and speedy. For many years this line was a popular means of travel from east to west, until the enlargement of the canal brought into competition with them larger steamers, when Chamberlain was compelled to break up his line, retaining however the Champlain and St. Albans. The spring of 1881, the latter steamer went down in the ice off Milwaukee uninsured, which broke the financial back of the old man, and he sold the Champlain to Seymour & Klein who had already secured the Lawrence, and the Northern Michigan line was constituted. The Champlain was valued at $30,000 at the time of her loss, and had a fire risk of $20,000. Since 1881 she has been rebuilt and improved to the extent of $20,000, she was originally built at Ogdensburg in 1870, at a cost of $55,000. She was commanded by Capt. Edward Casey, who was educated in the employ of the old Northern Transportation Co., and left that service in the capacity of first mate. His first command was the St. Albans, which he lost, as above related, on the first hour of his first trip of captain, through no fault of his, however. He has commanded the Champlain since 1883. He has always been considered a skillful pilot. His conduct on that fateful night, of June 16th, was the conduct of a brave and clear-headed man.

ENGINEER MCCAFFREY

lies at the Fountain City House with his arms, hands and feet horribly burned. Dr. Carlstein thinks there is no doubt of his recovery.

MANAGER BURKE

was interviewed by our reporter yesterday. He said: "Our plans for the future? Well, we have nothing to do with the remains of the Champlain. They belong to the insurance company. You can say, as good if not a better boat than the Champlain will be put in her place at once, as negotiations for the charter of a steamer are now in progress. It has all along been our intention to increase our facilities next winter. This disaster will make no change in our plans regarding that. We shall come out in the spring of 1888 in better shape than ever.

STORIES OF SURVIVORS.

We consider it unnecessary to cumber our space with personal interviews with survivors, as all tell about the same story. W. B. Albright, the commercial traveler, makes the following statement: "We all passed a very pleasant day and evening. Just before midnight while Mr. Russell, Mrs. Smith and her sister and myself were in the cabin we heard the most unearthly shrieks. I afterwards learned that it was the poor engineer, who rushed up to the upper deck with his clothes on fire. I ran out, and seeing the boat was all on fire, returned to the cabin and told the ladies that we would have to go out on the bow and get life preservers on. An attempt was made to lower the boat, but we were running so fast it could not be done. The flames kept crowding us more and more out upon the bow. In less time than you can imagine, the fire came so close that we had to jump into the water. George Miller was the first to jump, and others followed. I said to Mr. Russell: 'When you get ready to go tell me, and I will follow you.' I pulled the jackstaff out. He said: 'I am ready; it is too hot for me here,' and jumped. We struck away from the boat to get out of the heat, which was so intense I had to put my head under two or three times. It was an awful sight to see the steamer wrapped in flames with the smoke and fire rolling up and sweeping down over the water in every direction. People were struggling for life and crying out for help. My life preserver worked so far up on the back of my head that I could hardly keep my head out of water. Mr. Russell and myself struck out for shore as well as we could, clinging to the jackstaff. He became chilled through and in spite of all I could say he became discouraged. Finally he said he should perish with the cold if he did not get back to the wreck where it was warmer and started back. That was the last time I saw him until I saw his corpse on the sand at daybreak. After I had been in the water about an hour two boats passed me but they were loaded and did not come to my assistance. On the second trip one of the boats came near me again and I begged them to take me in, but the boat was loaded so deep and was leaking so badly that they did not dare do so and would have left me if George Miller had not recognized my voice and insisted on their picking me up. All who were not rowing kept at work bailing, but in spite of all we could do the boat was nearly full of water when we reached the island."

NOTES.

Next to the scenes of death and sorrow, attending the disaster, the most touching story is that of the McKeel family. Mr. R. M. McKeel was expected here from Chicago. His wife preceded him and when news of the disaster reached her ears her anxiety was great. She wired to Chicago to find if her husband was there. But the volume of business on the wire delayed it, and no answer came. Then came the report from the Island that Mr. McKeel's body had been found and would be sent up. Mrs. McKeel was told of this in the telegraph office, and her grief was touching in the extreme. Kind lady friends took her home. Still she would not give up hope. Saturday afternoon the operator handed her a dispatch, "I am here safe."

Messrs. Wilkes and Wrisley (lost) and Sharrow and Fred Wrisley, (saved) took the steamer at Frankfort, where they had been in the employ of L. E. Allen on the harbor work. Mr. Allen and Mrs. Allen's brother had intended to come on the Champlain, but owing to a little unfinished work they had concluded to remain for the Lawrence.

W. S. Johnson, of Sutton's Bay, is in town. On Thursday evening as the Champlain lay at the dock he concluded he would come over. But while he was getting ready to come the steamer left him.

The young son of Mr. Rogers, of Mackinaw, was noted for his beauty and intelligence. When his father leaped with him into the lake, the lad laughed as gaily as if it was a bath they were taking. No doubt, with the confiding nature of childhood, he expected to be taken ashore safely in the arms of his father.

Capt. Casey was the last to think of a life preserver. When he went to his room for one the flames drove him back upon the deck, where he found three lying, one of which he fastened upon himself and jumped.

Several horses were burned, among them were 4 belonging to Wm. Stevens of this place, for which he paid $500.

The following are some of the losses on freight:

Geo. Miller, clothing, $2,000.
Belvedere house, mattresses, $100.
Thos. Quinlan, $1,200; Rose & Shafer, $150; McOmber, Smith & Co., $200, Petoskey.

THE INVESTIGATION.

The investigation, in progress as we go to press, has brought out no evidence of neglect or inefficiency on the part of any officer.

Cards of Thanks.

To those friends and neighbors who have been so kind to us in our great bereavement, we wish to extend our heartfelt thanks.
MRS. GEO. WRISLEY AND SONS.

We desire to extend our grateful thanks to our friends and neighbors for their sympathy and help extended to us in the hour of our great bereavement.
MRS ROB'T WILKS AND DAUGHTER.

We desire in the midst of our deep sorrow to thank the people of Charlevoix for their unbounded sympathy and kindness.
MR. AND MRS. R. COOPER.

BOYNE CITY, MICH., June 20, 1887.

Editors SENTINEL:—The good people of your town were so very kind to Mr. Schaub in his great sorrow, we wish to return our heartfelt thanks in a space in your paper. My husband has gone to carry the sad tidings home, where he will find mother, three brothers and three sisters to mourn the loss of a kind Christian father and husband, whose counsel will be greatly missed.
MRS. J. C. SCHAUB.

Religious.

M. E. Church.

Search the scripture with us on Tuesday evening.

Unite in prayer on Thursday evening.

Teachers meet on Friday evening.

Sabbath morning Brother Smithson will preach for us at the usual hour. Sunday school at 12.

Episcopal Church.

Rev. G. D. Gillespie, Bishop of Western Michigan, visits Christ Church Mission on Sunday next 10:30 a. m. in Bartholomew's Hall.

Rev. Bancroft will meet the entire class of candidates for confirmation, this (Wednesday) evening in Green's Hall.

Marine Jottings.

The little steamer Time which has been plying on the inland lakes back of Elk Rapids is to be put on the inland route this season between Oden and Mullet Lake. The Northern Belle will run as a ferry at the "Soo," and the Mary, her old consort will work at the "Soo" also.

Traverse Herald: A steamboat is an awkward thing to feel sentimental over, but when the whistle of the City of Traverse blew last evening for the last time, there was many a hearty and half sad "good-bye old boat!" spoken and thought in town and country as far as the sound awoke the echoes. One by one the links of the chain that bind us to the old days of Traverse City separate and fall away, and in the changes that are about to come, all of the past will soon be only a memory. Meanwhile good luck to "the City." May she meet always only smooth seas and favorable winds and may she sail the blue water of the lakes for many prosperous years.

The Petoskey cornet band are about to have new uniforms donated to them by the citizens.

A-WEARY.

BY MANDA L. CROCKER.

I reach my weary, empty hands
Across the tide that's coming in—
Across the sorrow, pain, and sin
They beckon me to far-off lands.

And Marah's waters round my feet,
A rolling tidal, dark and strong
A cruel, cold, deep tide of wrong,
That shuts me from the fountains sweet.

The hearth, the home without a song,
All helpless, now, I stand beside,
And look across the surges wide,
And feel the crushing weight of wrong.

'Tis oh, to taste the fountains sweet!
'Tis oh, to rid my life of woe!
'Tis oh, the happiness to know,
Where kindred souls in rapture meet.

But Marah's waters bathe my feet,
And o'er it all a wordless dread
Ever stares at me like the wicked dead,
And makes the terrors all complete.

LILLIE EDDLES;

—OR,—

ABDUCTED BY THE BUSHWHACKERS.

A Story of the War in the Southwest.

BY ARVIDE O. BALDWIN.

CHAPTER X.

THE ABDUCTION.

When everything was ready and they all appeared calmer, John saw Laura, and requested her to tell him all. He wished to know the worst and know it all.

"Before it seemed as if I could not bear it, but now I feel that I must know," he said.

Laura, with her eyes red from weeping, proceeded to tell him, in as few words as possible, all that transpired from the time the men left home in the morning until they returned.

"You had not been gone a half hour," she began, "before six men were seen approach-up the rocks until they reached a deep recess that had been made by a large stone being misplaced. Once in this recess they felt that it was impossible for any body of men to dislodge them from it with firearms.

[illegible]

It was so happily situated that it commanded a view of the bushwhackers' camp, and John believed that it would be better to at once visit the neighborhood of the camp and see if the captive maiden was there, and discover the strength of the enemy they had to contend with.

When he told Jeff of his plan, that individual insisted on being the one to run the risk, but John wanted to see for himself, and so he would not listen to it.

"I'll be back in an hour, at the latest," he said, as he climbed down.

Jeff watched his master until he had disappeared in the darkness.

John passed up and across the river again and proceeded stealthily down opposite the camp. When he was near enough to see the flickering of the dying fire, he got on his hands and knees, and, keeping the brush and rocks between him and his foes, crept cautiously forward. He did not stop until he was within a hundred feet of the camp.

Sitting on a log with his back toward our friend was the sentinel.

They had not been subjected to enough of danger yet to make them watchful, and that fellow who had been selected for this night's watch over his fellow-rascals' slumbers was nodding in a very unsoldier-like manner. Stretched about upon the dry ground in the cavern under the foot of the bluff that these men had selected for their camp were, perhaps, a dozen men.

Nearly everything to "make home pleasant" was scattered promiscuously about. These were the spoils of their nefarious business that honest citizens had been plundered of.

Lillie was not there. He soon became convinced of that. But where could she be?

On one side of the fire, upon a fairly comfortable pallet, he recognized the form of that person whom he hated above all others—Edom Woodsley.

He could barely control the desire to send a bullet into the black heart of that unprincipled man, but he was not here this time for revenge. It was for a more laudable purpose; but he felt that it might not be long before he would return, and under different circumstances.

When he was satisfied that those for whom he was seeking were not there he immediately retraced his steps and returned to the rocks where he had left Jeff.

CHAPTER XI.

THE ALTERNATIVE.

What was his astonishment to find that

[illegible]

GREAT GUNS.

Soldiers' Stirring Stories of Solid Shot, Screaming Shells,

Big Battles, Bursting Bombs, Buzzing Bullets, and Bright Bayonets.

The Prophet of the Camp.

[illegible]

Out on First Campaign.

[illegible]

Loss of the Sultana.

[illegible]

A Logan Anecdote.

[illegible]

Colonel Pierce.

[illegible]

Harbor by a Yankee Spy.

[illegible]

General D. H. Hill.

[illegible]

A Wet Day for Bummers.

[illegible]

PITH AND POINT.

[illegible]

A Whole Valley.

[illegible]

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

[illegible]

The Gila Monster.

[illegible]

The Giant Growth of a Grain of Gossip.

[illegible]

Gorgeous Head-Coverings of Mexican Women.

[illegible]

BILL NYE AND BIG HATS.

[illegible]

Some Other Time.

[illegible]

Common Words.

[illegible]

A Mania for Betting.

[illegible]

The Late William R. Travers.

[illegible]

Edward Atkinson on Profits.

[illegible]

Something Left.

[illegible]

An Indolent Negro.

[illegible]

Trading in Alaska.

[illegible]

The Hard Lot of Russian Recruits.

[illegible]

An African Letter.

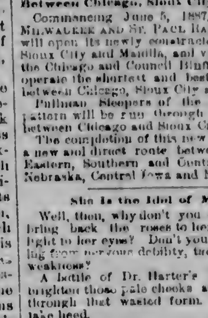
[illegible]

"The Blood is the Life."

[illegible]

NEW SHORT LINE

[illegible]



PAIN REMEDY

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF

EARTH, SEA & SKY

ADVERTISERS

LORD & THOMAS.

OPIUM

MORPHINE AND TOBACCO HABITS CURED AT HOME.

OAKLAWN

PERCHERON HORSES.

All Run Down

Hood's Sarsaparilla

100 Doses One Dollar

SLICKER

WHAT AILS YOU?

[illegible]

CURES ALL HUMORS,

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

CONSUMPTION,

Liver, Blood, and Lungs.

PENSIONS PATENTS

DETECTIVES

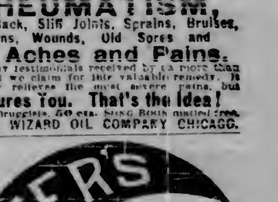
PENSIONS.

JONES

WIZARD OIL FOR PAIN

RHEUMATISM,

HARTER'S IRON TONIC



LADIES

PILES

PENNYROYAL PILLS

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times."

Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, JUNE 22, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

Would Harper's Weekly be kind enough to name a republican—just one—who would be acceptable to the "independent" as a presidential candidate?

They need a new gate at Castle Garden—one that will shut out the criminals and paupers which our neighbors over the brine are so anxious to unload over here.

The House concurred in the senate amendments to the Burr local option bill Thursday, and the Governor will sign it without delay, and Charlevoix county will wrestle with local option this fall, or next spring.

A man out west has learned something new in politics, as a result of women voting. He bet a hat with his wife against her candidate, and she won the bet. But when he discovered that she picked out a hat which cost $35, his eyes opened, and he straightway swore off betting hats on election without rigid conditions in writing as to the maximum price of the hat.

The Free Press suggests that the liquor men of Wayne county may carry the local option law, and thus under the non-enforcement of prohibition, sell liquor without paying their taxes. There is a kind of tradition that liquor sellers prefer prohibition to any other regulation of their traffic; but the money and energy they spend trying to defeat it in every state where it is proposed, does not look as if they took very kindly to it.

The New York World—democratic, remember—says it is rumored that President Cleveland has been buying suburban property near Washington for speculative purposes. This accords perfectly with previous reports regarding certain improvements directed to be made by the authorities in the vicinity of the president's Washington property. Evidently the president is making the most of his opportunity.

Now that Wm. E. Chandler has been declared duly elected United States senator, it is in order to congratulate the republicans of New Hampshire on the result of the contest. Wm. E. Chandler is an able and an honest man, and his republicanism is the kind that never gets weak or discouraged. He has been abused and maligned, perhaps, more than any other man in his state, simply because he is a man of strong convictions and of courage to stand by them. In the senate we shall see Mr. Chandler a conspicuous figure and a useful member.

Pension Agent McKinstry says: "God bless Gen. Black and President Cleveland for giving the boys their pensions." Neither of these men made the pension laws, though one of them has vetoed a great many pension bills. If McKinstry will amend his motion and ask God to bless the republican party for giving the boys their pensions we think his petition will be heard. Because Gen. Black happened to be a temporary democrat spout to a perpetual republican spring, they who drink thereat are not going to give all the credit to the spout. It was the republican party that opened the channel in that direction and built the reservoir, hence it is proper to call it a republican spring. Surely the fountain head of the government never would have found such an outlet with Grover Cleveland superintendent of the water works.

The Washington Capitol gives currency to a report that the president has promised Adjutant-General Johnstone Jones of North Carolina, that all of the flags taken from the Southern States during the late war should be returned to those States at an early date. This resolve on the part of the President "is mainly due to the instrumentality of Adjutant-General Drumm, a thoroughly National man who wishes to withdraw from public gaze all mementoes of internecine strife." The Rebel flags and other trophies captured by the Union armies were withdrawn from "the public gaze" several years ago, but it is scarcely probable that the President has promised to return them to the States. Section 218 of the Revised Statutes requires the Secretary of War from time to time to cause "to be collected and transmitted to the seat of Government all such flags, standards and colors as are taken by the army from the enemies of the United States." The Secretary of War would have no better right to return to the late Rebel States the flags captured when they were waging war against the United States than he would have to return to Great Britain the British standards captured in 1812-14, or to Mexico the flags taken by the army during the war with that country.

EDUCATIONAL

All communications on educational topics should be addressed to Prof. H. M. Fuss, Superintendent of the Charlevoix Schools.

Doings of the Annual State Institute for Charlevoix County, at Boyne City, Commencing June 6.

The total enrollment numbered 53, ladies 44, gentlemen 9. Number holding first grade certificates, 4, second grade, 2; third grade, 35; without experience, 13; having normal instruction, 5. Average attendance each half day, 40.6. Percentage of attendance on total enrollment, 76.6.

The following subjects were treated by the conductor, Capt. Henry A. Ford: Science of Teaching, Science of Knowledge, Orthography, Dictionary Work, Grammar, Geography, Geography and History of Charlevoix County, and Civil Government. Mrs. Kate Brearly Ford treated on Musical Exercises for Schools, Recreations, School Management, Basis of Primary Work, The District School, and General History.

The reputation of Capt. and Mrs. Ford is such that it is unnecessary to comment on the quality of work done. They were the conductors of the Second Institute of the present system, held in the state, (the first was held by Prof. McGlough, of the agricultural college in Osceola county, June, 1877.) Prof. and Mrs. Ford have been in the work ever since, in this and other states.

Charlevoix teachers are surely remembered by the state dep't, as the first workers of the state are sent us each year.

On Tuesday evening, Prof. Ford lectured to a crowded house, on Scientific Temperance Teaching, and on Wednesday eve., Mrs. Ford addressed a large audience, on The Practical Education of Our Daughters. On Tuesday evening, a social and literary entertainment was given by the teachers.

Every exercise tended directly to advancement of the practical culture of the teachers.

Thanks of the institute are due to the citizens of Boyne City for kind interest and hospitality. Especially we would mention the Presbyterian society and Miss Sarah Lou. Jones for the furnishing of musical entertainments.

Our animated verdict is that the institute is fast fixing its "grip."

The following is a list of those present during the week: Boyne City, Mrs. S. P. Jones, Misses Ida M. Garner, Lizzie Watson, Stella Kane, Minnie A. Kane, Lillian Mills, Sarah Lou Jones, Helen M. Beal, Florence McCarty, Attie D. Crane, Ella Lloyd, Levina J. Thompson, Madge L. Tainter, Agnes Migent, Lulu Morgan, Minnie Morgan, Bertha Thompson, Lulu Maud Thatcher, Grace Goodwin, Lizzie Hubbard, Etta Stevenson, Messrs. Joseph E. Webster, Chas. H. Pierce, Willis I. Herron, Forest W. Hill. Charlevoix,—Mrs. M. N. Pope, Misses Anna Cooper, Mary Cooper, Ada Cooper, Gladys Jefferies, Mattie O'Neil, Elenor Adams. Boyne Falls,—J. Ed. Waldron, Wm. J. Pearson, Earnest A. Robinson, Bertha Magee, Lulu M. House. South Arm,—Georgie Kitson, Anna Keat, Lillie Isaman. Bay Springs,—Edith Cole, Mabel Pickering. Ironton,—J. M. Harris, Nellie Noyes. Clarion,—Amelia Martin, Edith Barnes. East Jordan,—Alice M. Glenn, Maud Loveday. Horton's Bay,—Mrs. L. M. Babcock, Miss M. C. Gish. Dot,—Allen C Madien.

SUMMER SCHOOL.

Teachers' Review Term of the Michigan Normal College, Flint, Mich.

The teachers' review term of the Michigan Normal College, located in Flint, Mich., is the most thorough, popular and complete summer school in the land. Hundreds of teachers, and those preparing to teach, attend from all parts of this and other states. Actual necessary expenses only $24.00. Send your own and the address of your friends and circulars containing full particulars will be sent. Address
J. C. STOWELL, Principal,
Flint, Mich.

Bank of
Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security
Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers
Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to Speculate with one's own money, is folly; that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking
Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors; and, believing that it furnishes unusual guarantees, therefore,

This Bank Invites
People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will
Borrow Investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking
Productive employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes,
Now earning Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

Save Your Dollars
AND BUY HARDWARE
OF STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

Aiming to keep a complete stock, it is our honest endeavor to sell all goods at lowest living prices, for the reason that we court the attention and patronage of every cash customer in Charlevoix County, who wants to save money by making a dollar go as far as possible. Try us if you happen to be one of those who have not already done so. We are preparing a SURPRISE for YOU. Do not fail to come to our store and see us if possible, every time you come to Charlevoix. You are under no obligation to buy if you don't want to. We are always glad to answer inquiries regarding anything in our line. We want to help you and want your help and patronage to that end.

We call your attention to PAINTS &c.

ALSO PLEASE REMEMBER THAT THE JEWEL STOVES

ARE THE BEST, THE WORLD'S BEST!

Resp'y, STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

The Best Groceries
At The Lowest Prices
ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF
A. E. MASON.
I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

New Furniture
AT S. M. SEE & SONS!

We have just received an entirely new stock of Furniture of every discription.

Dealing exclusively in Furniture we are confident we can make it an object to all wishing to buy to call and inspect our stock.

UNDERTAKING A Specialty.

J. MILO EATON'S
REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE, AND LOAN OFFICE.
The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice

Wait A Minute!
WHY NOT TRADE AT
WILL SEE & CO'S
Where there is always on hand a complete line of GROCERIES, PROVISIONS, FLOUR & FEED.
A Great Bargain in Canned Goods. Best Cash Price paid for Country Produce.
TELEPHONE Orders promptly delivered.

Extra Copies of
THE SENTINEL
FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Mortgage Sale.

A mortgage dated January 12th, 1883 executed by Andrew Holmes and Mary Holmes (his wife), to the Wayne County Savings Bank of Detroit, Michigan, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Charlevoix County, Michigan, January 17th, 1883, in Liber 7 of mortgages on page 282, upon which the whole amount is due and unpaid to wit: [illegible] which no suit or proceedings at law [illegible] mortgage will be foreclosed under the power of sale therein contained by a statutory sale of the premises described therein as lot number one in section number fourteen, town number thirty-four north of range eight west (except [illegible] acres from the north east corner) containing [illegible] acres (according to the government survey) of land in Charlevoix County, Michigan to the highest bidder, at the front door of the county building (so called) in the village of Boyne City, in the county of Charlevoix (that being the place of holding the circuit court for the county of Charlevoix), at 12 o'clock noon, Friday, June 17th, 1887.

Dated March 22d, 1887.
WAYNE COUNTY SAVINGS BANK, of Detroit, Mortgagee.
P. P. PAGE, Attorney for Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a certain Indenture of Mortgage bearing date Nov. 15th A. D. 1881, made by and between Albert Aubenville, batchelor of Charlevoix county, Michigan, party of the first part, to Morgan Curtis of Kalamazoo county, Michigan, party of the second part, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, on the 13th day of Nov., A. D. 1881 in Liber 5 of Mortgages at page 437 and by which default the power of sale in said Mortgage contained, has become operative and no suit or proceedings either in law or equity having been instituted to collect the amount due on said Mortgage, and there being due thereon the sum of one hundred and sixty-five dollars, therefore the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described in said Mortgage on the 19th day of July A. D. 1887, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day by sale at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the County building, in the village of Boyne City, and county of Charlevoix, (that being the place for holding the Circuit court for the county of Charlevoix), wherein the lands described in said mortgage are situated), of the mortgaged premises described in said Mortgage or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount due on said Mortgage. The premises described in said Mortgage are as follows: the south east quarter of the north east quarter of section thirty-two, of town thirty-two north of range five west, Charlevoix county, Michigan.

Dated Kalkaska, Mich., April the 19th, A. D. 1887.
A. A. BLEAZBY, Atty for Mortgagee. MORGAN CURTIS, Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in a certain indenture of Mortgage bearing date December the first, 1883, made by and between David Norton and Hanah Norton, his wife of Charlevoix, Michigan, party of the first part, to Mary E. Manley, of Wayne county, New York, party of the second part, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Charlevoix county, Michigan, on the second day of Feb. A. D. 1884, in Liber 8 of Mortgages at page 220, and upon which there is now due and unpaid the sum of seventy-two dollars and no action having been taken either in law or equity to collect the same; therefore the said Mortgage will be foreclosed under the power of sale therein contained by statutory sale of the premises therein described at the front door of the County building in the village of Boyne City, and county of Charlevoix, (that being the place for holding the Circuit court for the county of Charlevoix, in which said county, the lands described in said Mortgage are situated), at ten o'clock in the forenoon of the 19th day of July, A. D. 1887. The premises described in said mortgage are as follows: the north-east quarter of the south-west quarter and the north-west quarter of the south-east quarter of section twenty-four of town thirty-three, north of range seven west, Charlevoix county state of Michigan, said premises will be sold subject to the principal sum of Eight hundred dollars yet to become due on said Mortgage together with the accruing interest thereon.

Dated Kalkaska, Mich., April the 18th, A. D. 1887.
A. A. BLEAZBY, Atty for Mortgagee. MARY E. MANLEY, Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a certain indenture of mortgage bearing date the 13th day of December, A. D. 1881, executed by Richard Lake and Phebe E. Lake (his wife), of Charlevoix County, State of Michigan, to Otis Ross, of South Haven, Van Buren County, State of Michigan, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, in liber "1" of mortgages on page 491 on the 11th day of March, A. D. 1882, by which default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative and upon which said mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of two thousand nine hundred and sixty dollars and thirty-two cents ($2,960.32) for principal and interest, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the amount now due, or any part thereof, now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided there will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House in the village of Boyne City, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan (that being the place for holding the Circuit Court for said County of Charlevoix), on Thursday the 30th day of June, A. D. 1887, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon of said day the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to satisfy the amount due upon said mortgage together with the costs and charges of sale and interest to wit: The south west quarter (¼) and the north west quarter (¼) and the north east quarter (¼) of the south east quarter (¼) of section No. twenty-three (23) in township No. thirty-three (33) north of range No. seven (7) west, containing three hundred and sixty acres according to the United States survey. Also the north half (½) of the north east quarter (¼) of section No. twenty-seven (27) in township No. thirty-three (33) north range No. seven (7) west containing eighty acres according to the United States survey in the County of Charlevoix in the State of Michigan.

Dated March 7, 1887.
OTIS ROSS, Mortgagee.
JAMES H. JOHNSON, Attorney for Mortgagee.

Probate Notice.

State of Michigan, County of Charlevoix, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for said county, held at the Probate office, in the Village of Boyne City, on the 8th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven. Present, James A. Keat, Judge of Probate. In the Matter of the Estate of John West late of Chicago, Ill., deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of John Joseph West, and Edward Albert West, and alleging that duly authenticated copies of the last will and testament of said deceased, and of the probate thereof, have been duly filed in said court, showing that said will has been duly admitted to probate in the County of Cook and State of Illinois, and praying that a time and place for hearing said petition be fixed, and due notice thereof be given to all persons interested, and that such copy of said will be allowed, filed and recorded in said Court, as and for the last will and testament of said deceased. Thereupon it is ordered, that Tuesday, the 5th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the Village of Boyne City, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted; and it is further ordered, that said petitioners give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

A true copy.
JAMES A. KEAT, Judge of Probate.

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Henry Bennett, O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls, A. Butlars,
A. R. Upright, A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL, ... $25,000
SURPLUS, ... 2,000

The liabilities of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art. 3174, Sec. 40 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:
NATIONAL PARK BANK - - - New York.
COMMERCIAL NAT. BANK - - - Chicago.
NAT. CITY BANK - - - Grand Rapids.
DETROIT NAT. BANK - - - Detroit.

W. A. REYNARD,
Has just received at his Fruit Store in the Lewis Block, a choice line of Vegetables and Fruits
OF ALL KINDS,
TO WHICH OTHERS WILL BE ADDED IN SEASON.
I will also keep in stock a full line of
Tobaccos and Cigars.
Butter and Eggs a Specialty.

CROSS & SONS.,
Buy and Sell all kinds of
Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.
Charlevoix, - Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY,
Photographer.
In Bradbeer's Gallery.
Photographs of all sizes taken.
Old Pictures copied and enlarged.
CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

New JEWELRY AND SILVER WARE.
I have just received a very fine stock of
Watches, Chains, Pins, Clocks, Silver-Ware, etc
which I will sell at Prices lower than the same goods can be purchased outside.
Did it ever occur to you that by patronizing home Merchants you were benefiting yourselves?
All classes of Repairing done quickly.
C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,
ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR,
—ON—
Chalevoix Summer Resorts.
I have the Plans of 30 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.
I employ only first-class Workmen, both
Carpenters and Painters.
Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention.
J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

Fox & Miller
Offer a
Mammoth Stock
OF
BOOTS, SHOES
and other
FOOT WEAR,
—AT—
LOWER PRICES
Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a FIRST-CLASS SHOEMAKER,
And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

The Kalamazoo
"DAILY TELEGRAPH."
Contains the Associated Press Dispatches
Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.
Charlevoix, Mich.
[illegible] Wholesale and Retail Dealers
3 EXTRA GRADES OF
FLOUR
Feed, Corn Meal, Graham
We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

M. LITNEY. JOS. STEIMEL

Litney & Steimel
LIVERY,
And Feed Barn
Charlevoix, Mich.
Good Rigs at Lowest Rates.

It Pays to Buy the
BEST BOATS!
The large number of boats I have built for resorters, are advertisements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.
I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the
LEAST MONEY!
All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.
LEAVE ORDERS
with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.
Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.
J. BEAUVAIS.

BOOTS & SHOES
Have you seen our $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00 Gents Shoes?
If not do so at once. They are made solid throughout even to the counter. You'll have no trouble with these goods running over at the heel.
These goods cannot be equalled in the county
Either in style, quality or price. We will take pains this season to have in stock goods that will suit all. New ad. soon on Ladies' Fine Shoes, of latest styles New York, Common Sense, and London Toes.

Ladies Look Out
For the new line of latest style goods that is on the road for
D. SHERWOOD & CO.

A. J. McLEOD,
Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at Wholesale or Retail
All kinds of
FRESH MEATS,
SALT PORK,
SMOKED & SALTED
HAMS,
Dried and Smoked
BACON, DRIED BEEF, Bologna, Head Cheese, Sausage.
Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.
Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.
A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S
MARKET
Is supplied with
All Kinds Of
MEATS
At Lowest Prices.
CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.
Corner of State & Mason sts.,
JOHN McCABE.

Washburn & Ackert,
FOUNDREYMEN, MACHINISTS,
And Manufacturers of The
Charlevoix Plow.

Take The Sentinel.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law. Office in Butlars' Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PALTHORPE & GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon, 4 doors west of Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office at residence, Main st. Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 119, meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows' Hall.

MASONIC.—Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M. Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Postoffice.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake Lodge No. 293, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

K. O. T. M.—Resort Tent No. 138, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' Hall.

L. O. L.—True Blues No. 157, meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. 104, R. A. M. meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 136, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of the members, during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.

President—Byron See.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller.
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strang.
Financial Secretary—R. Suffield.
Treasurer—Albert E. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. D. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. Lee Iddings, W. A. Brown and C. Y. Cook.
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, M. J. Stockman, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, B. W. Miller, S. M. See, W. C. Newman, E. M. Clark, J. Berdan.

All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequalled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the travelling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids Stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,
Lorenzo Cook, Manager
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only 150 feet to Steamboat Landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE.
W. C. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Fitted up with a view to the Comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central Location.

PILE DRIVER.

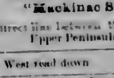
ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and Dock work solicited at any point between Traverse City and Mackinaw. L. E. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

MUNROE'S STEAM PILE DRIVER. Dock owners and Builders, look to your interest. Contracts taken and dock work solicited at any point between Sault St Marie and Grand Haven. Correspondence promptly attended to. Address,
JOHN MUNROE, Jr., Gen'l Manager, South Arm, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. R. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. [Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.]

DENTIST



N. J. PERRY, Dentist.
Office in Weed's Drug Store,
Charlevoix, Mich.

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R.
"Mackinac Short Line."
Only direct line between the East and South and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Going West read down			Going East read up
	5 40 p m	Detroit	11 10 a m
7 (steam)	6 50 a m	St Ignace	8 30 p m	5 55 p m
10 25	8 52	Newberry	6 21	2 05
12 20	9 49	Seney	5 15	12 35
	10 42	Reedsboro	4 15
3 25	11 31	Au Train	3 25	9 05
5 30	12 40	Marquette	2 15	7 00
	12 50 pm	Marquette	2 00 pm
	1 55	Ishpeming	12 58
	4 10	L'Anse	10 40
	5 30	Houghton	9 20
	6 35	Calumet	8 15

Connections made with M T Co's boats, M C & G R & I R R & M H & O
E. W. ALLEN Gen Pass Agt, Marquette

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad
IN EFFECT SEPTEMBER 27, 1886.
(Trains run on Central Standard Time.)

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	No 6	No 8	No 4
Mackinaw City ...Lv	7 35 a m	9 30 p m
Petoskey	8 24	10 51
Boyne Falls	9 16	11 50
Mancelona	10 18	12 30
Walton Junc	11 50	1 50	5 15 p m
Cadillac ...Ar	12 40	2 50	6 30
Cadillac ...Lv	12 45	6 05	6 30
Le Roy	1 21	6 46	7 07
Reed City ...Ar	1 55	7 20	7 40
Reed City ...Lv	2 15	7 45	8 00
Big Rapids	2 48	8 11	8 33
Stanwood	3 05	8 30	8 55
Howard City	3 33	9 03	9 26
D G H & M Cross	4 40	10 15	10 35
Grand Rapids ...Ar	4 55	10 30	10 50
Grand Rapids ...Lv	7 15	5 15	11 45
Plainwell	8 36	6 43	1 12
Kalamazoo ...Ar	9 05	7 10	1 40
Kalamazoo ...Lv	9 10	7 30	2 00
Sturgis	10 27	8 59	3 28
Ft Wayne ...Ar	12 40	11 20	6 00
Ft Wayne ...Lv	1 00	11 45
Richmond	4 20	3 35
Cincinnati ...Ar	7 30	7 25

GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.	No 3	No 5	No 7
Cincinnati, leave	7 35 a m	7 20 p m
Richmond	10 20	10 00
Fort Wayne ...Ar	1 50	1 15
Fort Wayne ...Lv	2 10	3 00
Sturgis	4 24	5 25
Kalamazoo ...Ar	5 45	6 55
Kalamazoo ...Lv	5 50	7 20
Plainwell	6 10	7 48
Grand Rapids ...Ar	7 10	9 20
Grand Rapids ...Lv	11 30	9 50
D., G., H., & M. cross	11 45	10 10
Howard City	12 52	6 18
Stanwood	1 22	6 48
Big Rapids	1 43	7 09
Reed City ...Ar	2 15	7 40
Reed City ...Lv	2 35	8 00
Le Roy	3 10	8 33
Cadillac ...Ar	3 45	9 10
Cadillac ...Lv	3 50	9 30
Walton Junc	4 45	10 25
Mancelona	6 16	11 50
Boyne Falls	7 13	12 50
Petoskey	7 10	1 50
Mackinaw City	9 50	2 55

C. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass. Agent

Northern Michigan News.

Mrs. A. Westgate of East Jordan, has a geranium that is 7½ feet high.

The Michigan Pharmaceutical Association will hold their annual meeting in Petoskey July 12, 13 and 14. A special excursion of the members from Detroit and south-western Michigan with their ladies, will leave Detroit on July 9th on the steamer City of Mackinac.

Petoskey Democrat: Work upon the new depot is progressing rapidly and when completed will be the most handsome frame building in town. The managers of the road are to be complimented upon their efforts in giving the traveling public so commodious a building.

At last accounts the surveyors on the D. C. & E. R. R. had made about half the distance between Bellaire and Kalkaska. We were in error last week in stating that they would reach this place this Saturday. Saturday of next week would have been nearer right.—Kalkaska Leader, 16th.

Chicago parties are at Northport making arrangements for the erection of a creamery at that place at an early date. They contemplate an establishment that will utilize the cream from not less than 400 cows, and with facilities for using that of 1,000. They will put wagons on the road and take up the cream in Lelanaw, Leland, Sutton's Bay, Centreville and Bingham Townships daily. The projectors of the enterprise claim to be able to pay as much for the cream as the farmers could secure for the butter, thus saving the latter all the worry and trouble of butter making. The plant, with franchise, will cost about $5,000.

Petoskey Record: Al. Peck has bought of Jesse Tracy the city bill boards.——A postal card from Mr. Lockwood informs us that the summer schedule on the G. R. & I. will go into effect Sunday, June 19th.——Miss Inie M. Gage, who has been teaching in the Charlevoix high school, returned on Monday, the schools having closed on the 10th inst.——Sam Thatcher, the jolly clerk of Charlevoix county, is making a special study of the Scriptures, with the view of teaching a Boyne City bible class. We would like to hear him conduct the exercises once.——Now that the new depot approaches completion people can see and appreciate the provisions made for the comfort of the crowds during the summer season. The 213 feet of covered platform and porches round the building will afford room for many hundreds of people.—Some of the small steamers that ply on the beautiful surface of Pine Lake have the most blood curdling whistles ever heard by mortal ears. The awful wail as it rises and falls knocks the Irish banshee into a cocked hat, gives a man the "shivers" on the hottest day. They ought to be prohibited.

The editor of the East Jordan Enterprise has been looking over the saw mills at the head of the arm with the following result: At Sweet's mill we found quite a number of men busily engaged making shingles. Mr. Sweet has put in a circular saw with which he saws ties, shingle bolts and lumber. It is quite an industry and they seemed to be disposing of cedar timber at a pretty lively rate. H. B. Severance had not yet finished his contract and had a gang of men in in the same building making heading. One great improvement here was a device for loading ties on vessels by steam. A line of shafting running from the mill to the dock, which operates an endless chain, such as are used to elevate logs into a mill from the water, and they are dumped on to the deck of the vessel. By the use of this machine the labor of from four to six men is saved while loading vessels. The whole is under the supervision of Mr. Geo. C. Sweet, who understands his business, and seems to be making it a success.——At the "Meech Mill" at the end of the bridge which is operated by Glenn & Porter, everything was humming. Hemlock lumber was being turned out at the rate of 35,000 feet per day, besides sawing the shingle timber for the shingle mill with the same saw. Cedar shingles were being turned out at the rate of 40,000 per day. The thing of particular interest to us here was the engine, which is the best and largest on Pine Lake. Engineer Potter showed us through the engine room and we were satisfied in regard to the above assertion when we left. ——At Glenn & Porter's mill, things were going about as usual, it being a well known fact that this mill turns out as much hardwood lumber in the course of a year as any mill in Northern Michigan. They run about eleven months out of a year and cut an average of 30,000 feet of hardwood lumber each day. We are sorry that there is still one large mill that lies idle; we are very well fitted out, but want more. We shall in the near future gather more complete information from these institutions, and give our readers some figures that will surprise them, in the way of the amount these firms pay out each year for material, labor, etc.

Colt Strayed.

A year old, brown mule colt. One white hind foot, other partly white. Will pay liberally for any information.
J. J. BENNETT, Charlevoix.

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

Fresh Butter at lowest price, at Jefferies' Bakery.

TO RENT. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

FOR SALE—One farm wagon nearly new, one second hand delivery wagon, and three village lots on Antrim st. All very cheap. J. L. HURD.

Itch, Prairie Mange and Scratches of every kind cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Use no other. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix

The ladies are cordially invited to call and examine the large display of millinery including pattern hats and bonnets together with novelties in ribbons, gauzes, flowers, etc. As it is to be a season of novelties it will pay you to call now and often, upon Mrs. Litney & Carr.

Fire Works! Fire Works!
A LARGE STOCK and MORE ON THE ROAD.
ROCKETS from one ounce to two pounds. Roman Candles, one to ten balls; China Fly Wheels, Triangles, Vertical Wheels, Mines and Stars, Pin Wheels, Fire Crackers, in three sizes, including the immense cannon cracker: Flags, etc., all at very low figures at O. W. SMITH'S,
Opposite Bridge St. House.

TIME CARDS OF STEAMERS
STANDARD TIME.

Charlevoix and East Jordan.
STR. NORTH STAR, ... CAPT. MEL THOMPSON
Leaving Charlevoix at 6:30 a m and 1:30 p m and returning leave East Jordan for Charlevoix at 9:30 am and 4 p m, touching at intermediate points both ways.

Boyne City and Charlevoix.
STR. CLARA BELLE, ... CAPT. GEO. JEPSON.
Leave Boyne City at 6:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. and Charlevoix at 9:30 a. m., and 3 p. m. connecting with the Friant and Cummings to and from Petoskey. Touching at way ports.

Charlevoix and Boyne City.
STR. JOSEPH GORDON, ... CAPT. LEWIS GUARD.
Leave Charlevoix at 6:30 a. m. and 1 p. m., and Boyne City at 9:30 a. m., 4 p. m., touching at way ports

Harbor Springs, Charlevoix & E. Jordan.
STR. THOS. FRIANT, ... CAPT. R. VANDLENEDE.
MORNING: Leave Harbor Springs, 7:20; Petoskey, 8:00; Charlevoix, 9:30; arrive, East Jordan 11:30.
AFTERNOON: Leave East Jordan 1:30; Charlevoix, 4:00; Petoskey, 5:30; arrive, Harbor Spring, 6:00

East Jordan, Charlevoix & Harbor Spgs.
LOU A. CUMMINGS, ... CAPT. W. A. SNYDER.
MORNING: Leave East Jordan 7 a. m.; Charlevoix, 9; Petoskey, 11; arrive at Harbor Springs 11:30.
AFTERNOON: Leave Harbor Springs, 1 p. m.; Petoskey, 1:30; Charlevoix, 3; arrive at East Jordan, 5:30 p. m.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN LINE.
PROP. CHAMPLAIN .... Capt. EDW. CASEY.
Going North, Chicago Tuesdays 8 p m; Charlevoix, Thursdays 11 p m; Cheboygan, Fridays 2:30 p m.
Going South, Cheboygan, Fridays 8 p m; Charlevoix, Saturdays 2:30 p m; Milwaukee, Mondays 3 p m; Chicago, Mondays 11 p m.
PROP. LAWRENCE .... Capt. GEO. THORP.
Going North, Chicago, Fridays 8 p m, Charlevoix, Sundays 3 p m; Cheboygan, Mondays 9 a m.
Going South, Cheboygan, Mondays 4 p m; Charlevoix, Tuesdays 8 a m; Milwaukee, Wednesdays 4 p m; Chicago, Thursdays 12 m.
Emrey Bros., agents, Charlevoix.

HANNAH, LAY & CO'S BOATS.
CITY OF GRAND RAPIDS, ... Capt. O. E. WILKES.
Going North, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays: Leave Traverse City 7 a m; Northport 9:30, Charlevoix 11:30; Petoskey 1:30 p m; Harbor Springs 2; Cross Village 4:30; Mackinac Island 7:45 arriving at St. Ignace 8:20
Going South, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays: Leave St. Ignace 6:00 a m; Mackinac Island [illegible]; Cross Village 10:15; Harbor Springs 12:45 p m; Petoskey 1:15; Charlevoix 2:45, Northport 5.15 p m, arriving at Traverse City at 7:45 p m.
J. L. Hurd & Co., Agents, Charlevoix.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S
LIVERY STABLE
CHARLEVOIX.
The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.
Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.
Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

Farming Lands
500,000 ACRES
Of Splendid
MICHIGAN LANDS
For Sale By The
G. R. & I. R. R.
50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.
These lands are timbered with beach and maple elm and other wood and are accessible to best markets
By Water and Rail
And are in a state unequalled for health, well watered and contiguous to the great fruit raising section of Michigan.
The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad runs through the center of the grant. The part of Michigan in which these lands are situated is
Not a Wilderness by any Means.
It contains a population of 250,000 souls and is rapidly filling up with settlers from almost every state in the Union.
Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold.
Send for English or German Pamphlet, Address
W. H. HUGHART, Commissioner,
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.
TITLE PERFECT.

A Captain's Fortunate Discovery.

Capt. Coleman, schr. Weymouth, plying between Atlantic City and N. Y., had been troubled with a cough so that he was unable to sleep, and was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It not only gave him instant relief, but allayed the extreme soreness in his breast. His children were similarly affected and a single dose had the same happy effect. Dr. King's New Discovery is now the standard remedy in the Coleman household and on board the schooner. Free Trial Bottles of this Standard Remedy at Dr. G. W. Crouter's Drug Store.

These Are Solid Facts.

The best blood purifier and system regulator ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity, truly is Electric Bitters. Inactivity of the Liver, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Weak Kidneys, or any disease of the urinary organs, or whoever requires an appetizer, tonic or mild stimulant, will always find Electric Bitters the best and only certain cure known. They act surely and quickly, every bottle guaranteed to give entire satisfaction or money refunded. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Old papers for sale at this office.

FOR LAME BACK, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cents.

SHILOH'S COUGH and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures Consumption. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

SHILOH'S VITALIZER is what you need for Constipation, Loss of Appetite, Dizziness, and all symptoms of Dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents a bottle.

CROUP, WHOOPING COUGH and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

Land for Sale.

I have 5 acres just east of the cemetery, one mile from town, nearly all cleared, which I will sell cheap for cash, or approved paper. Address
JAMES METCALF, Charlevoix.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter

W. H. FRANCIS
FURNITURE
—AND—
JOBBING SHOP.
Will also do
Contracting & Building,
In Charlevoix, and Summer Resorts.
I keep in my shop a full set of hand and foot power machinery which enables me to do jobbing, repairing etc. on short notice.
Shop on South Terrace,
Opposite Sheriff Berdan's residence.

MILLINERY,
FANCY GOODS,
DRESS-MAKING.
We have just opened a large line of Spring and Summer Millinery and Fancy Goods to which we invite your attention.
DRESS-MAKING done on the TAILOR SYSTEM. The best work done at the lowest rates.
ALDRICH SISTERS.
Ingleside Building.

MERCHANT
TAILORING.
I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.
Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.
Call and see me. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,
C. H. Maddaugh.

CHARLEVOIX
Manufacturing Co.
Charlevoix, Mich.,
Manufacturers of
Sash and Doors,
Blinds, Mouldings etc.
NEWELL
Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails
kept in stock.
Window & Door Frames made to order.
All Kinds of
Building Material
Kept constantly on hand.
PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS,
Furnished on application.
Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building
Correspondence solicited.

"MARVELOUS PRICES!
BOOKS FOR THE MILLION
Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away. The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, and all are printed from good type upon good paper. [illegible]
1. The Widow Bedott Papers. [illegible]
2. Winter Evening Recreations, a large collection of Acting Charades, Tableaux, Games, Puzzles, etc., for social gatherings, private theatricals, and evenings at home.
3. Back to the Old Home. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Hidden Perils."
4. Dialogues, Recitations and Readings, a large and choice collection for school exhibitions and public and private entertainments.
5. The Standard Letter Writer for Ladies and Gentlemen, a complete guide to correspondence, giving plain directions for the composition of letters of every kind, with innumerable forms and examples.
6. The Frozen Deep. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
7. Red Court Farm. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne," etc.
8. The Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott. "The Lady of the Lake" is a romance in verse, and of all the works of Scott none is more beautiful than this.
9. In Cupid's Net. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
10. Amos Barton. A Novel. By George Eliot, author of "Adam Bede," "The Mill on the Floss," etc.
11. Lady Gwendoline's Dream. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
12. The Mystery of the Holly Tree. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
13. The Budget of Wit, Humor and Fun, a large collection of the funny stories, sketches, anecdotes, poems, and jokes.
14. John Bowerbank's Wife. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
15. The Gray Woman. A Novel. By Mrs Gaskell, author of "Mary Barton," etc.
16. Sixteen Complete Stories by Popular Authors, embracing love, humorous and detective stories, stories of society life, of adventure, of railway life, etc., all very interesting.
17. Jasper Dane's Secret. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Aurora Floyd," etc.
18. Fancy Work for Home Adornment, an entirely new work upon this subject, containing easy and practical instructions for making fancy baskets, wall pockets, brackets, needle work, embroidery, etc., etc., profusely and elegantly illustrated.
19. Grimm's Fairy Stories for the Young. The finest collection of fairy stories published. The children are delighted with them.
20. Manual of Etiquette for Ladies and Gentlemen, a guide to politeness and good breeding, giving the rules of modern etiquette for all occasions.
21. Useful Knowledge for the Million, a handy book of useful information for all, upon many and various subjects.
22. The Home Cook Book and Family Physician, containing hundreds of excellent cooking recipes and hints to housekeepers, also telling how to cure all common ailments by simple home remedies.
23. Manners and Customs in Far Away Lands, a very interesting and instructive book of travels describing the peculiar life, habits, manners and customs of the people of foreign countries.
24. 87 Popular Ballads. Same size as sheet music. Words of all the old and new songs.
25. Called Back. A Novel. By Hugh Conway.
26. At the World's Mercy. A Novel. By Florence Warden, author of "The House on the Marsh," etc.
27. Mildred Trevanion. A Novel. By "The Duchess," author of "Molly Bawn," etc.
28. Dark Days. A Novel. By the author of "Called Back."
29. Shadows on the Snow. A Novel. By B. L. Farjeon, author of "Bread-and-Cheese-and-Kisses," etc.
30. Leoline. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Brenda Yorke."
31. Gabriel's Marriage. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "No Name," etc.
32. Reaping the Whirlwind. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Old Middleton's Money," etc.
33. Dudley Carleon. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Lady Audley's Secret," etc.
34. A Golden Dawn. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
35. Valerie's Fate. A Novel. By Mrs. Alexander, author of "The Wooing O't," etc.
36. Sister Rose. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
37. Anne. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne."
38. The Laurel Bush. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
39. Robinson Crusoe. A thrilling narrative by Daniel De Foe, describing the adventures of a castaway in the South Pacific Ocean.
40. How to Make Poultry Pay. A practical and instructive series of articles by Mr. P. H. Jacobs, Poultry Editor of "The Farm and Garden," Phila.; illustrated.
41. Parlor Magic and Chemical Experiments, a book which tells how to perform hundreds of amusing tricks in magic and instructive experiments with simple agents.
42. Gems of the Poets, containing charming selections from Tennyson, Longfellow, Whittier, Byron, Shelley, Moore, Bryant, and many others.
43. Building Plans for Practical, Low-cost Houses. A full description and plans of Eight modern houses, ranging in price from $500 to $4500. Illustrated.
44. Anecdotes of Public Men—Washington, Franklin, Webster, Clay, Tilden, Lincoln, Scott, Grant, Garfield, Gladstone, Butler, Hancock, Lee, and all the leading men of the century.
45. Æsop's Fables. The work of an ancient genius. Children have read them for centuries, and grown people quote them every day.

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.
We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $2.00; or we will send any five for 25 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of "SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

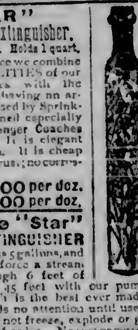
GRENADES,
Two Sizes—Pints and Quarts.
Over Sixty Millions Sold.
PRICES.
Pints, - Per Doz., $10.00.
Quarts, - " " 15.00.

"STAR"
Tubular Fire Extinguisher,
Glass Tube, 19x2½ in. Holds 1 quart.
In this device we combine the BEST QUALITIES of our famous Grenades with the NEW feature of having an article that can be used by Sprinkling. It is designed especially for use in Passenger Coaches and Dwellings. It is elegant in ornamentation. It is cheap and reliable. No rust; no corrosion possible.
Plain, $12.00 per doz.
Ornamt'd, 15.00 per doz.



The "Star" EXTINGUISHER
Holds 5 gallons, and will force a stream through 6 feet of hose 45 feet with our pump, which is the best ever made. Needs no attention until used. Will not freeze, explode or get out of order. No rust or corrosion. Can be used by anyone.
Price, $30.00 Each.

"STAR" CHEMICAL.

Just what is needed in every village, lumber yard, ware house, etc. Fully equipped with Hose, Ax, Crow Bar, Lantern, etc. It is cheap, and reliable. [illegible]
PRICE.
$200.00 EACH.

Four years of practical use have demonstrated these to be the only reliable and thoroughly efficient Hand Fire appliances made. We use the same chemical liquid in all, and guarantee fully. Liberal discounts to agents. Send for circulars and testimonials.
The HARDEN HAND GRENADE CO.
51 & 53 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Take The Sentinel.

SOMETHING NEW.
WORLD RENOWNED
CENTRE DRAFT PLOW

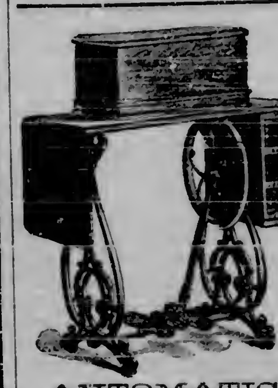
The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are, that it
1st. NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d. TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.
The Beam is not bolted to the landside, but—by means of a steel frog—is set directly in the Centre of the Line of Draft, making a steady light running plow, and one that cannot be Clogged. See one before you buy.
If your Agent has none write us for price.
MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS,
RACINE, Wis.

EUREKA!
The New Trahern Force Pump
A GREAT SUCCESS.

NEW STOCK
OF
"Sherwin-Williams"
"Sherwin-Williams"
"Sherwin-Williams"
PAINTS.
For Sale Only By
L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO
JOB AND TIN WORK.

DRUGS and STATIONERY,
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.
A Large and Complete New Line
JUST RECEIVED.
EVERYTHING
YOU CAN THINK OF.
You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.
PERRY WEED.
The only News stand in town.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN
Boiler Works!
Builder and Manufacturer of
BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.
Sheet Iron Work given special attention.
MARINE WORK a specialty.
HENRY BARTH, Prop.
Charlevoix, Mich.



AUTOMATIC
Single Thread Sewing Machines
will absolutely take the place of Shuttle Machines. No woman ever wants a Shuttle Machine after trying an Automatic.
Address,
72 W. 23d St., New York City.

CURES
Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, Whooping Cough, Quinzy, Sore Throat, Consumption, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Diseases.

YOUNG'S
COUGH
SYRUP

Dansville, Mich. Aug. 15, 1874.—I was attacked with a severe cold and threatened with lung fever while on a visit to Hudson, Mich., about a month ago, so much so that I was unable to fill an appointment to preach on account of severe coughing, but managed to get home, and immediately took some of Dr. E. A. Young's Cough & Lung Syrup I had in the house, and my cough left me as soon as I commenced taking it and I find permanent relief when I am attacked by cough or lung complaint.
REV. ROBT. COPE.

Howell, Mich., Oct. 25, 1874.—I have tried Dr. E. A. Young's Cough and Lung Syrup for more than a year, as I had occasion, as a remedy for Colds and Coughs, and found it a reliable medicine. I have used his Ague and Liver Syrup in my family with the best of success, curing my mother (whose age was over seventy years) of one of the hardest attacks of Fever and Ague, after the second chill and fever. I take pleasure in recommending the above remedies to all who need them.
REV. S. B. KIMMELL.

Sold by all druggists. Price, 25c., 50c. and $1.00. Large bottles sent free on receipt of price.
W. JOHNSTON & CO.,
DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Pan-Zania Balm
THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES. The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Trouble to which womankind is heir—$1 per box of one month's treatment. Reliable lady Agents can make money for themselves and become benefactors to their race by engaging in the sale of this remedy. For medicine and particulars, Address
PAN-ZANIA MED. CO., Frankfort, Ind.

100 Acres in MARION
Township For Sale at a Bargain, Terms to suit.
MONEY TO LOAN ON
Approved Real Estate Security.
THEODORE R. CHAPIN
Boyne City.

FRANK E. WOODS
Bath & Barber Rooms
Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd fellows Block.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS.
Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.
If you want a quiet place to get a shave, hair dress or bath call and see me.
JAY L. PRICE.

NEW SHOP!
All kinds of Blacksmithing,
At the
Shop in the Foundry Building.
Horseshoeing a specialty.
ALL WORK GUARANTEED.
M. SCOTT.

1-3 OFF SALE!
At Miss Spaulding's
MILLINERY ROOMS,
I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.
Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $3.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed felt hat in the shop.
Come early and secure a Bargain.
MISS L. SPAULDING.

JAS. A. GELLICK,
Dealer in
Choice Wines,
Fine Liquors
EXCELLENT CIGARS.
We call Special Attention to our
Old Kentucky Sour Mash WHISKIES.
We also keep continually on draught
Milwaukee Export and lager Beer.
Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

THE WIDE WORLD.

A Catalogue of the Week's Important Occurrences Concisely Summarized.

Intelligence by Electric Wire from Every Quarter of the Civilized World.

LATEST DISPATCHES.

LONG AND SHORT HAULS.

The Interstate Commission Gives a Decision Regarding the Fourth Section.

THE unanimous decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the question of continuing the order suspending the operation of the long and short haul clause of the law over the different roads throughout the country that had applied and obtained temporary relief was made public on Thursday. The order for temporary relief made in favor of the Louisville and Nashville Road will be allowed to remain in force until the day originally limited for its expiration. On the other applications for relief, coming from the transcontinental lines, from the Southern, Southwestern, Northern, Eastern, and Western lines, forty-five in all, it is decided that the temporary orders which have been made in some of these petitions will, in like manner, be permitted to remain in force until the expiration of the time originally limited in each. No further order, the Commission says, will be made upon any of the petitions, for although some two or three of the cases may not, by the facts recited in the applications for relief be brought strictly within the principles discussed in the decision, yet they all present what are claimed to be different circumstances and conditions, adequate to authorize exceptions to the general rule; and if the petitioners are persuaded that the fact is as they represent, they should act under the statute accordingly. The Commission devotes considerable space to a discussion of the proper construction of the long and short haul clause of the act, and the duty of the Commission in affording relief to petitioners by suspending this provision of the law, and sums up its conclusion in the following language:

The charging or receiving the greater compensation for the shorter than for the longer haul is forbidden only when both are under substantially similar circumstances and conditions, and therefore if in any case the carrier, without first obtaining an order of relief, shall depart from the general rule, its doing so will not alone convict it of illegality, since if the circumstances and conditions of the two hauls are dissimilar the statute is not violated. Should an interested party dispute that the action of the carrier was warranted, an issue would be presented for adjudication, and the risks of that adjudication the carrier would necessarily assume. The latter clause in the same section, which empowers the Commission to make orders for relief in its discretion, does not in doing so restrict it to a finding of circumstances and conditions strictly dissimilar, but seems intended to give a discretionary authority for cases that could not be well indicated in advance by general designation, while the cases which upon their face should be acted upon as clearly exceptional would be left for adjudication when the action of the carrier was challenged. The statute becomes, on this construction, practical, and this section may be enforced without serious embarrassment.

CHICAGO WHEAT PANIC.

Numerous Failures on the Board of Trade—Wheat Drops to 69 Cents, the Lowest Price in Twenty-five Years.

IN the Chicago wheat market the situation was chaotic and exciting on Wednesday. A number of additional failures were announced, a nervous state of affairs was witnessed, and the day was simply crowded with sensational developments. The situation on the Board of Trade was briefly thus: Kershaw & Co. announced in the morning that they would pay up, they having received money from Cincinnati. The supply, which was about $300,000, was not big enough, however, and before noon they had suspended. Before and after this fifteen firms failed, J. B. McCleary & Co. being among the prominent ones. The Chicago Tribune of Thursday, in an editorial on the collapsed wheat deal, says:

The standard grade of wheat for delivery during the current month sold yesterday in this market for 69 cents per bushel. This is the lowest point touched in Chicago since the year 1862, and it was reached only by virtue of a decline which must have been a terrible one to the unfortunate holders. The drop of the present week amounts to about 23 cents per bushel, which entails a loss of about $3,600,000 in the selling value of the wheat in store, to say nothing of the corresponding shrinkage on an untold number of millions of bushels that had been bought for delivery this month and a smaller decline in longer futures. The break carried the market down to about the figure allowed by the banks to the parties who borrowed money on the property, and this fact induced good buying by men who think it must be worth at least that much. In other words, there is pretty good reason to believe that the storm is over, though the commercial atmosphere will be unsettled for some time to come, and it will be several days before all the wrecks are cleared away. And the list of those wrecks is a long one.

Commerce.

CATTLE were steady at the Chicago Stock Yards Wednesday, with smaller receipts, the best selling at $4.90 per one hundred pounds. Hogs were off 5 to 10 cents, owing to large receipts and a poor demand, and none went above $5.25, fully seven thousand remaining unsold. The best sheep sold up to $4.50, and some lambs brought $5. Wheat for June delivery sold at 69 cents per bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday, the lowest point touched in that market since 1862. Latest market quotations:

NEW YORK.
CATTLE	$ 4.50	@ 5.75
HOGS	5.25	@ 5.75
WHEAT—No. 1 White	.96	@ .96½
No. 2 Red	.95	@ .96
CORN—No 2	.48	@ .48½
OATS—White	.37	@ .41
PORK—New Mess	15.75	@ 16.25
CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice to Prime Steers	4.75	@ 5.25
Medium	4.00	@ 4.50
Common	3.50	@ 4.00
HOGS—Shipping	4.75	@ 5.25
FLOUR—Winter Wheat	4.25	@ 4.75
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	.92	@ .92½
CORN—No. 2	.37	@ .37½
OATS—No. 2	.25	@ .25½
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	.16	@ .17
Fine Dairy	.12	@ .14
CHEESE—Full Cream, cheddars	.08	@ .08½
Full Cream, new	.08	@ .08½
EGGS—Fresh	.13	@ .13½
POTATOES—Choice, new	1.00	@ 1.25
PORK—Mess	21.75	@ 22.25
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—Cash	.80½	@ .81
CORN—No. 3	.37	@ .38
OATS—No. 2 White	.30	@ .30½
RYE—No. 1	.57	@ .58
PORK—Mess	13.75	@ 14.25
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 2	.80	@ .80½
CORN—Mixed	.35	@ .35½
OATS—Mixed	.27	@ .27½
PORK—New Mess	14.75	@ 15.25
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—No. 2	.88	@ .89
CORN—No. 2	.39	@ .41
OATS	.28	@ .96
DETROIT.
BEEF CATTLE	3.00	@ 4.75
HOGS	3.25	@ 4.25
SHEEP	3.50	@ 4.75
WHEAT—Michigan Red	.87	@ .88
CORN—No. 2	.39	@ .40
OATS—White	.33	@ .33½
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.85	@ .86
CORN—No. 2	.41	@ .41½
OATS—No. 2	.29	@ .30
PORK—Mess	15.00	@ 15.50
LIVE HOGS	4.75	@ 5.50
BUFFALO.
WHEAT—No. 1 White	.91	@ .91½
CORN—No. 2 Yellow	.43	@ .44
CATTLE	4.50	@ 5.00

CURRENT EVENTS.

EAST.

A LYNN (Mass.) dispatch announces the death of Hon. James N Buffum. He was an early worker in the abolition ranks with Garrison and Phillips. When Fred Douglass was dragged out of a car on the Eastern Railroad on account of his color Mr. Buffum heroically fought the mob. He and Douglass went to England in 1845 to protest against the Free Church of Scotland keeping the money contributed to it by the slaveholders of America, and held anti-slavery meetings in Scotland.

THERE was a panic in the Coffee Exchange at New York Monday, prices falling 3 cents from Saturday's closing quotations, showing a decline from 21.30 cents two weeks ago to fifteen cents, or over 6¼ cents per pound. Three firms suspended—B. G. Arnold & Co., Norton, Woyl & Bevan, and Mackay & Small. The latter owe about $200,000, while B. G. Arnold's liabilities are estimated at $1,000,000. Brokers for "bull" operators precipitated the panic, while the "bears" made efforts to sustain prices.

THE statue to Nathan Hale, made by the authority of the State of Connecticut, to be placed in the Capitol building at Hartford, was on Tuesday formally delivered by the commission to the State. It is a bronze figure of heroic size.

WEST.

PETER BETTERS, a negro who murderously assaulted Martha Thomas, colored, aged 75, at Jamestown, Ohio, was hunted down by a mob, captured, and hanged in the fair ground to one of the trees which were bent down by the cyclone which devastated that region some time ago. Betters was found hanging to the tree the following morning, cold and dead. It is generally known that the work was quietly done by the infuriated citizens of Jamestown in the dead of night, strict secrecy being sworn on the spot by the avengers.

THE corner in wheat which had existed at Chicago since March came to a disastrous end on Tuesday, the phenomenal break of 18¼ cents closing the books of the clique and bringing Chicago prices once more in line with those of the other markets of the world. The excitement on the Board of Trade floor was intense. Such a shouting, yelling, screaming mob is seldom seen, and as an occasional visitor in the gallery said, "it did appear as if bedlam had broken loose." No wonder, ruin staring them in the face and only those who could yell and scream loudest could get any kind of recognition sufficient to draw notice to the fact that they also had a few small samples to dispose of to any buyer that wanted them. Three commission houses—M. Rosenfeld & Co., Hamill & Brine, and E. W. Baily—were forced to suspend. Their losses will aggregate from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000. The interesting story of the corner is thus summarized by the Chicago Inter Ocean of Wednesday:

Ever since last April there has been a syndicate of capitalists which has sought to run a successful corner in wheat. The deal began with the May option, and when delivery day came around several million bushels were dumped into the laps of the brokers or representatives of this clique. Maurice Rosenfeld & Co., C. J. Kershaw & Co., Irwin, Green & Co., were looked upon as the agents employed to handle the business for the syndicate. The deal was transferred to June, and millions of bushels of wheat were bought to keep up this option. Prices advanced, and the shorts laughed at the idea of any clique attempting to corner the grain of the Northwest, the market of the world. When June delivery day arrived the clique brokers took all the grain that was offered to them. Of course margins were in demand, and the banks were called upon to make advances on the grain in store. These advances were based upon a price not exceeding 60 cents per bushel, but it locked up millions of dollars in the business. As June advanced the clique saw that they had undertaken to move a mountain, and they used every effort to prevent the arrival of the great crops of wheat from Dakota. A corner in storage was effected and the railroads were blocked. Road after road served notice that no more wheat would be shipped to Chicago. This brought the shorts to the front with a vengeance. There are 1,900 members of the Board of Trade. About 500 of these are non-combatants. Of the remaining 1,400 about 1,200 trade in wheat, and of these 1,200 not more than 200 are on the bull side of the deal. The other 1,000 are what are known as shorts. They are more or less small dealers, and do a commission business. Their customers in the Northwest seeing the market going up and prices high, ordered them to sell the stuff, being well aware that they could not hope to get a touch better price for their wheat. When the roads became blocked these customers began to write letters expostulating with their agents for not pushing the matter. These shorts then went to the directors and made complaints, and the result was that the directors took up the matter and determined to crush out the clique in so far as the corner in storage and blocking of the railroads was concerned. The farmers and shippers throughout the Northwest were advised that they could demand that the railroads should take their grain for shipment to Chicago. The railroads, seeing that the war was liable to hurt them, began to cry out, and the result was that the syndicate took fright.

MATTHEW BAPP, a St. Joseph (Mo.) farmer, went to his door Tuesday morning, during a violent storm, and was struck by a bolt of lightning. He fell dead in his wife's arms.

SOUTH.

CRAIG TOLLINER, a desperado and murderer of Rowan County, Kentucky, is now a Judge of the county. Only twenty votes were cast for him, but no one dared to vote against him. Since his election he has had most of his enemies arrested. In the attempted arrest of two boys named Logan both were killed, and the people are now talking of lynching the Judge.

A CHATTANOOGA (Tenn.) dispatch reports that five men had been killed and many wounded by the explosion of a dynamite cartridge at the Inman mines, four miles from that place. The explosion occurred in the mines of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railway Company, where most of the employes are convicts. The company of late has been employing English miners, and it is said these were the victims of the explosion.

Dago Joe, a half-breed, who killed Walter Haynes, a young white boy, at Shelby Depot, Miss., on the 18th of May, was taken by a mob from the officers, who were conveying him from Duncan Station, Miss., to the jail at Austin, and hanged to a tree, on Monday last.

WASHINGTON.

THE War Department at Washington issued regulations to govern the distribution of the annual appropriation for arms and equipments of the militia. The quota of the $400,000 appropriated to which the Western States are entitled is as follows: Illinois, $20,276; Indiana, $13,324; Iowa, $11,981; Kansas, $8,294; Michigan, $11,981; Minnesota, $6,451; Missouri, $14,746; Nebraska, $468; Nevada, $2,764; Ohio, $21,198; Oregon, $2,764; Wisconsin, $10,138; Dakota, $2,764.

THE National Pension Committee of the G. A. R. has prepared a new bill to take the place of the one vetoed by President Cleveland, for the relief of the disabled and suffering veterans of the late war.

A WASHINGTON dispatch says there is some uneasiness in naval circles over the prospects for bidding on the cruisers ordered by the last Congress. Only one firm of ship-builders has yet applied for the plans of the cruisers. The backwardness of the contractors in coming forward is attributed to the advancing prices of materials. It is thought that the two seventeen hundred ton gunboats will be constructed by Cramp & Sons of Philadelphia.

A WASHINGTON dispatch denies that President Cleveland intends to make the circuit of the Western fairs next fall. He will attend the Grand Army celebration at St. Louis, and will probably make brief stops at Cincinnati, Louisville, Chicago, and Omaha going and coming. It is also stated that he contemplates a fortnight's shooting in the Adirondacks late in the summer.

POLITICS.

A joint Legislative convention was held at Concord, N. H., for the choice of State officers, the following being elected: Secretary of State, A. B. Thompson, of Concord; State Treasurer, Solon A. Carter, of Concord; State Printer, John B. Clark, of Manchester; Commissary General, A. S. Twitchell, of Gorham.

THE New Hampshire Legislature on Tuesday voted for United States Senator. The ballot in the Senate resulted as follows: Harry Bingham (Dem.), 9; William E. Chandler (Rep.), 15. In the House Chandler received 165 votes to 142 cast for his opponents. He was therefore declared elected to fill the unexpired term of Senator Pike.

LABOR.

THE iron manufacturers assert they will resist any claim for an advance of wages made by the Amalgamated Association, but are willing to sign last year's scale. The workmen will demand an increase of about 11 per cent. The date of the conference between committees of the employers and men has not yet been fixed.

THE great coke strike in Pennsylvania is a thing of the past, the employers having made an unconditional surrender. By the middle of the week it is expected that all the works will be in operation again with a full complement of hands.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

THE Minnesota Board of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners has transmitted to the Interstate Commission a petition and complaint against the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad from the Farmington, Northfield, Faribault, and Owatonna boards of trade. The complaint, which is indorsed by the Minnesota Business Men's Association, charges the road with charging shippers living in the towns mentioned a higher rate on millstuffs to points in Wisconsin, Iowa and Illinois than it receives from persons living at St. Paul, Minneapolis, Stillwater, Menomonee, Chippewa Falls, and Eau Claire for like service. It is alleged that the railroad charges 7½ cents a hundred for the transportation of millstuffs from St. Paul to points on the Mississippi River, while it charges 18 cents on like traffic. As a result of these unjust charges many flour mills in these towns have been closed, and large numbers of men thrown out of employment.

William Brown, who represents the Chicago and Alton and Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific in the case of complaint against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for its refusal to exchange passenger traffic with the complaining roads, appeared before the Interstate Commission and asked if there was any method of compelling the Pennsylvania Company to produce certain papers in its possession deemed necessary in the hearing. He was told the Pennsylvania Company would be requested to produce any papers or documents deemed of importance, and if the corporation should refuse to do so upon request, a compulsory process would be issued.

GENERAL.

GENERAL SHERMAN has written an open letter to General Noble and Colonel Dyer, of St. Louis, relative to the Grand Army muddle in the matter of the President's contemplated visit to St. Louis. The General says the President should be warmly welcomed and loyally treated. The Grand Army posts of Des Moines have indorsed General Tuttle's action as commander for Iowa in protesting against having President Cleveland review the Grand Army at St. Louis. They say the President should send a substitute, and, if possible, the person who represented him in the army during the war.

THE annual meeting of the American Bankers' Association will be held at Pittsburgh Oct. 12 and 13 next.

A WINNIPEG (Manitoba) telegram says the residence of James Edwards, a farmer living near that city, was burned, and three children—aged 7, 12, and 14 years—perished in the flames. Edwards and his wife, with two other children, were forced to jump from an upper window.

IN the Ontario House of Commons at Ottawa, on Monday, after a protracted debate, Mr. Cargill's amendment for the repeal of the Scott act, the local option law now in force in sixty-eight counties in Canada, was negatived by 145 to 47. A division followed on Mr. Girouard's amendment to allow the sale of beer and light wines in Scott-act counties. This was voted down by a majority of 88. The division on the main motion in favor of prohibition with the foregoing amendment was then taken, and the motion was negatived by 42 majority.

A PANAMA dispatch says: "The Voz um de Antioquia reports a landslide on the El Pedrero farm, in Concordia, burying Sig. Pedro A. Restrepo, his wife, and nine children and the servants in the house. In all sixteen persons were killed."

A MONTREAL special says: The Canadian Pacific Railway Telegraph Company has collected crop reports from all points of the Northwest and Manitoba, and with hardly a single exception the prospects are said to be very much better than last year. A plentiful harvest is expected.

FOREIGN.

A CABLE dispatch states that a military force has been dispatched to North Wales to suppress the "tithe riots." These riots are caused by the efforts of the clergy of the Established Church to enforce payment of the tithes to which the law entitles them. A vast majority of the Welsh are dissenters, and their opposition to this tax has been increasing of late years, under the pressure of "hard times," until they have repeatedly offered violent resistance to the collection. The disestablishment movement in Wales is already formidable, and is gaining strength rapidly. Once the Irish question is out of the way—if that time ever comes—the question of disestablishment in Wales will become a prominent issue in British politics. Meantime the disturbed condition of the principality will doubtless compel some attention from Parliament.

THE town of Vernome, in Toorkistan, Asia, has been almost destroyed by an earthquake. One hundred and twenty-five persons were killed, and an equal number injured. The shocks continue at intervals.

THE details of the Queen's jubilee procession have been all arranged, says a London dispatch of Monday. Her Majesty will be gorgeously arrayed in all the royal finery and will ride in the procession in an open carriage, so that all of her subjects can see her....Mr. Parnell, it is alleged, has virtually given up the control of his party, the recent turbulent scenes in the House of Commons, as opposed to Mr. Parnell's moderate action, being cited as a proof of the allegation....Sir Henry Alfred Tichborne, the heir to the Tichborne estates, attained his majority on Monday, and the event was celebrated by a week's festivities in the Tichborne neighborhood....The eviction war still goes on in Ireland, hundreds of tenants being thrown on the roadside daily....An epidemic of cholera is making havoc among the French troops at Tonquin....It is believed the European war scare is over for a year at least.

IT is reported by cable that the British Government intends to prosecute Michael Davitt and Mr. Joseph Richard Cox, Nationalist member of Parliament for East Clare, for their conduct in inciting the Lodyke tenants to resist eviction.

FIFTY YEARS A QUEEN.

Fiftieth Anniversary of the Coronation of Britain's Ruler.

Her Majesty at 18 and at 68—Incidents of Her Long Reign.

About the only topic discussed in London, except the Irish question, which is always with us, is the approaching Jubilee, writes Mr. Robert P. Porter from London. Although I have been in the country less than a week, the very word Jubilee has become distasteful. Everything you buy is labeled Jubilee. Your suspenders, your collars, your cuffs, your cravats, your hat, your toothbrush, have a crown and the word Jubilee worked or painted upon them. Columns of the daily journals are devoted to advertising word competitions and other devices for extracting the pennies, the shillings and the pounds from the pockets of a loyal people for Jubilee purposes. The present may be termed a period of assessment.

The pictures accompanying this article are from the two best photographs attainable, showing her Majesty in her early girlhood, and as she last sat to a photographer immediately after the Duke of Albany's wedding.

Fifty Years a Queen.

Victoria Alexandria, Queen of Great Britain and Ireland and Empress of India, only child of the late Duke of Kent and of the Princess Louisa Victoria, of Saxe-Coburg, was born at Kensington Palace, May 24, 1819, her parents, who had been residing abroad, having hastened to England in order that their child might "be born a Briton." Her father died Jan. 23, 1820. Until within a few weeks of her elevation to the throne, her life was spent in comparative retirement, varied only by tours through the United Kingdom. Queen Victoria succeeded her uncle, William IV., June 20, 1837, as Victoria, and her coronation was celebrated in Westminster Abbey, June 28, 1838. She was married Feb. 10, 1840, to Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg Gotha, by whom she had issue first, Victoria Adelaide Mary Louisa, born Nov. 21, 1840, (married Jan. 25, 1858; second, Albert Edward, Prince of QUEEN VICTORIA AT 18.

Wales, born Nov. 9, 1841; married March 10, 1863; third, Alice Maude Mary, born April 15, 1843, married July 11, 1862 (she died Dec. 14, 1878); fourth, Alfred Ernest Albert, born August 6, 1844, married Jan. 23, 1874; fifth, Helena Augusta Victoria, born May 26, 1846, married July 5, 1866; sixth, Louisa Caroline Alberta, born March 18, 1848, married March 21, 1871; seventh, Arthur William Patrick Albert, born May 1, 1850, married in March, 1879; eighth, Leopold George Albert, born April 7, 1853, married in April, 1882; ninth, Beatrice Mary Victoria, born April 14, 1857, married July 23, 1885. Her Majesty is the pattern of a woman in all the relations of life. Her mother died March 16, 1861, followed by the sudden death of the Prince Consort, Dec. 14.

Victoria's Domestic Relations.

Victoria was in her eighteenth year when she became Queen. William IV. died on June 20, and the English dignitaries went before daylight to announce to Princess Victoria her accession, and it is related that she came out in her night dress, a shawl around her and her feet in slippers, and it was at once decided to call a privy council meeting for 11 o'clock in the forenoon, when the new Queen took the coronation oath. The public coronation, and the most brilliant pageantry of modern times, did not take place until the next June, and on the 28th day of that month, 1838, the great ceremonies took place. According to royal etiquette it is necessary for the Queen to make the first suggestion of marriage. This she did late in 1839, and in February, 1840, she was married to her cousin. They had long been lovers, and they were a most devoted couple. The Prince Consort died suddenly in 1861, leaving nine children, seven of whom are still alive. The Queen was utterly disconsolate, and for years lived in the closest seclusion. In fact she so closely secluded herself that her subjects have found a great deal of fault with her on this ground. During her married life the Queen spent nearly all of the time at Balmoral, their country seat in the highlands of Scotland.

The royal residence, as established by law and usage, is Windsor Castle. This palace is east of Windsor, a city of 12,000 inhabitants, twenty-three miles from London. This castle was the home of the Saxon kings as long as 1,000 years ago. The castle proper was founded by William the Conqueror, but almost entirely rebuilt by order of Edward III., the architect being the noted William of Wykeham, and, in 1824-'8, the edifice was finally and completely remodeled under the direction of Sir Geoffrey Wyatville. Half a mile from Windsor Castle is the small palace of Frogmore, which was the residence of Queen Charlotte and of Queen Victoria's mother, the Duchess of Kent. Despite the royal splendors of Windsor, the Queen is much fonder of her Balmoral home, where she still spends the most of her time. The palace is in the midst of a tract of 100,000 acres and is located in the parish of Crathie, Aberdeenshire, on the banks of the river Dee. The Queen's daughter Beatrice has been her constant companion for many years, and since her marriage to Prince Battenburg has remained almost as near to her. At Balmoral the Queen lives quietly, walks and rides around her great estate, reads and studies, attends to state matters, visits the cottages, keeps a minute diary, and lays aside royal etiquette to a large extent. She has few visitors, except the Prince and Princess of Wales and her numerous grandchildren. The Queen has seven living children, thirty-one grandchildren, and six great grandchildren. There are only a half dozen attendants and a dozen servants at Balmoral, and little or no excitement.

WINDSOR CASTLE.

QUEEN VICTORIA AT THE AGE OF 68 YEARS.

The Royal Household.

There is a big force of attendants, probably 1,000, at Windsor Castle. At the head of the household forces is the Lord Steward, with a salary of £10,000 a year, appointed by the Prime Minister, and therefore a political official. He is commander-in-chief of every employe in the household, except the ladies directly about the person of the Queen, the religious staff and the stable corps. He appears at court on state occasions, and appoints all his subordinates. His lieutenant is the master of the household, who receives £1,200 a year, and has a private secretary at a good salary. Next comes the lord treasurer of the household, who pays the bills and gets a salary of £1,000 a year. These three constitute the board of green cloth, and sit as judges of all offenses committed in the palace; and to assist them and keep the record they have one secretary at $1,500 a year (as it would be in American money) and three accounting clerks at $1,000 each. Then there is the clerk of the kitchen at $2,500 a year, the chef at the same, and his four assistant cooks at $1,750 each, the chief confectioner at $2,000 and his assistant at $1,200, the chief table decker at $2,500, the table decker at ... and his assistants at salaries somewhat less. There are also yeomen of the plate and of the linen room and a variety of ladies of the maids, lamp-lighters, boys of chamber, coal department all the way to the persons. Directly about her Majesty's person are the mistress of the robes, the groom of the robes, the keeper of the private purse, or financial secretary to the Queen, eight maids of honor, as many bed-chamber women, and numerous maids for other functions—all these under control of the lord chamberlain, who receives $10,000 a year and is assisted by the groom of the stole. Next in rank are the ladies directly on the Queen and the gentlemen of the private household and the gentlemen in waiting, as many grooms, and divers gentlemen ushers: Eight lords in waiting, as many grooms in waiting and ber, grooms of the privy chamber, gentlemen of the great chamber, grooms of the back stairs. In short, life at this court, even in the most ordinary times, is carried on with such ponderous machinery and routine that it almost makes one tired to hear of it. But, in addition to all these, there are two distinct sets of officials for extraordinary occasions, with independent functions and different rules of ceremonial and etiquette. At the head of one of these is the marshal of the ceremonies. He manages the etiquette of the state occasions and conducts foreign ambassadors to the Queen's presence. The other is the court of the Marshalsea, which has legal jurisdiction of all crimes and misdemeanors committed within the Queen's private domain. It is a regular court of justice, with the same general law as other English courts, but with far more ceremony, and vastly more expense in proportion to the work it does. The knight marshal, who is the same as sheriff or police to this court, is a tolerably important personage with $2,500 a year, and has eight deputies, besides a few servants and secretaries. The foregoing gives but a mere outline of the system. There are departments of music, amusement, medicine, charity, and literature, in all of which liberal salaries are paid. Buckingham Palace, the London royal residence, is also maintained on an elaborate scale.

FRONT VIEW OF BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

Life at Balmoral.

The life of her Majesty is marked by three stages—her youth, her married life, and her widowhood. Each is bound to each by the tie of a consistent growth passing through those experiences which are typical of God's education of His children, whether high or low, rich or poor. Her childhood, with its wise education, is very much the key to her after-life. Possessed naturally of a quick intellectual capacity and an unusually accurate memory, a taste for music and the arts, and a deeply affectionate heart, she was admirably brought up by her mother, the Duchess of Kent, on whom the training of the future Queen devolved from her infancy. If the education was as high as it was possible to afford a young and intelligent spirit, the moral influences were equally beneficial. The young Princess, instead of being isolated within the formalities of a court, was allowed to become acquainted with the wants and sufferings of the poor, and to indulge her sympathies by giving them personal help. The contrast was a great one between the Court of George IV., or even that of William, and the truly English home where the Duchess of Kent nurtured this sweet life in all that was simple, loving, and pure. There could scarcely have been a better school for an affectionate nature.

Without touching on the earlier period of her reign, which was not without many incidents of interest, we turn to the married years of the Queen as to a bright and sunny memory.

The Queen's married life was ideally perfect. She married the man she loved, and each year deepened her early attachment into an admiration, a reverence and a pride which elevated her love into consecration. There was no home in England made more beautiful by all that was tender, cultured, and noble, than that in which "the blameless prince" fulfilled his heroic career of duty, and shed the bright light of his joyous, affectionate, and keenly intellectual life. There were fewer homes in which a greater amount of trying and anxious work was more systematically accomplished, or in which there was a more exquisite blending of hard thinking with the enjoyment of the fine arts and the fullness of loving family happiness.

PRINCE ALBERT VICTOR.

It is when we come to this bright time, so full of fresh interest and of a delightful freedom, that we have the advantages of the Queen's own "Leaves from the Journal of Our Life in the Highlands." Her visit to Edinburgh in 1842, and the drive by Birnam and Aberfeld to Taymouth, and the splendor of the reception, when amid the cheers of a thousand Highlanders and the wild notes of the bagpipes, she was welcomed by Lord Breadalbane, evidently stirred every feeling of romance. "It seemed," she wrote, "as if a great chieftain of olden feudal times was receiving his sovereign." It appeared like a new world when, throwing off for a time the restrictions of state, she found herself at Blair two years afterward, climbing the great hills of Athol, and from the top of Tulloch looking forth on the panorama of mountain and glen. "It was quite romantic; here we were with only this Highlander behind us holding the ponies; not a house, not a creature near us but the pretty Highland sheep, with their horns and black faces. It was the most delightful, most romantic ride and walk I ever had." These early visits to Scotland inspired her with her love of the Highlands and the Highlanders. She found there quite a world of poetry. The majestic scenery, the fresh, bracing air, the picturesqueness of the kilted gillies, the piping and the dancing, and the long days among the heather, recalled scenes which Sir Walter Scott has glorified for all time, and which are specially identified with the fortunes of the unhappy Stuarts.

We do not wonder at the attachment felt by the royal pair for Balmoral. The Highlands have a charm which every healthy mind must acknowledge. The sportsman and the tourist confess it when they rush from the crowded town and the cares of business, or from the tamer beauties of cultured lands, to enjoy a "bath of liberty" on the fresh seas and lochs of the Western Hebrides or among the vast solitude of the Grampians.

SANDRINGHAM PALACE.

It was here that the Queen and the Prince Consort enjoyed for more than twelve years a delightful freedom, mingling with their people, devising the wisest methods for insuring their well-being, going with them to worship in their plain (very plain!) parish church, and being to each and all unaffectedly sincere friends. Every spot around soon became consecrated by some sweet association. Her life at Balmoral, since her great sorrow, maintains, as far as may be, the traditions of the happy past.

A NATION'S PREFERRED CREDITORS.

[From Senator Woolson's Memorial Day Speech at Oskaloosa, Iowa.]

It requires no word painting to recall vividly the scenes of 1861 and the years following. In Mahaska and the other neighboring counties of our State, and over all the Nation, these scenes were reproduced, as company after company faced southward, amid the tears, the prayers and fervent farewells of loved ones. What would result in the individual cases of these brave hearts; who would return and who would molder beneath Southern sod was known only to Him who ordereth our ways.

Fellow citizens, you well remember the promises made to the boys as they left home, family and prospects behind and went forth at the call of duty. Is it forgotten how you assured them that, whatever the issue of the war, if they fell, their wives, their children, or their dependent parents should be well cared for; if they survived, and the hardships of soldier life should impair their usefulness, or sickness or wounds lessen their ability to support themselves, a grateful nation would gladly make full provision for their comfortable maintenance. These promises were made in all sincerity. You meant what you said. In some directions these promises have been fulfilled. But not to the full letter or spirit. The pension list of the Government is large, its amount reaching into the millions. But so was the army upon which it is based. A million of armed men facing another armed million, furnish a basis for pension computation such as the world never gave before. While the Government has been widening and broadening its pension lists it has not yet reached the point where the boundary line should be finally placed. The advance is slowly made. Justice in this respect is tardy. No other offense on the part of the Government is so rank—for no other dereliction of duty should the citizen so hang his head in grief, as to-day there live—are forced to live, under the shelter of the poor-houses of the country, surrounded with paupers and tramps—men who wore the blue in the war for the suppression of the rebellion. I denounce it as a burning shame, that this Republic is compelling thousands of its brave defenders, in their old age and infirmities, to seek the friendly roof of the public alms-house.

I grant that the Government does much in the way of Soldiers' Homes. But what possible excuse can satisfy the honest conscience of the country for the compulsory association of the worn out, decrepit soldiers with the average public pauper? If the finances of the country were impoverished there might possibly be less ground for positive complaint. But the Treasury vaults are fairly groaning under the burden of the millions they contain. Hundreds upon hundreds of millions lie idle within the Treasury walls. And yet the wisdom of our Government finds its development in condemning to poor-house charities not only the soldiers already there, but the long list of others on the way, who, because of loss of evidence connecting present disability with service, or because the disability has appeared since discharge, are unable to bring their cases within the general pension laws. These preferred creditors of the Government deserve speedy justice. The approaching Congress must enact some sufficient pension law—sufficient to take from these poor-houses our disabled comrades and enable them to pass in respectable surroundings their declining days. Unless it shall enact such a law, and if necessary maintain it by the requisite two-thirds vote, it will not meet the just expectations of the people. The country cannot afford to be otherwise. Other wars may come. Calls for volunteers may again become necessary. The nation cannot afford in advance to notify those whom it asks to volunteer in defense of the flag, that it will not protect and care for them and theirs to the best of its ability. From a merely mercenary standpoint, measured by the low standard of dollars and cents, this pension is far cheaper than maintaining, as in the Old World, a large standing army. To make its volunteer force—its reserve corps of citizen soldiery—most effective, the nation must prove it gratitude, its willingness to stand by its volunteers, not only while in the ranks, but when disabled and infirm after service is completed.

Comrades, isn't the demand we make reasonable? Are we not justified in declaring that we and the country at large demand that a pension law be promptly passed, with promises so compulsive that no soldier who imperiled his life for the Union in the hardships and struggles of those years shall, on next Memorial Day, be compelled, unless as a result of his own vicious habits, to place himself under pauper associations and poor-house protection.

What "Reform" Does for Cleveland.

President Grover Cleveland and his advisers in those quiet moments when they look each other in the face and speak candidly, must thank their lucky stars for the value of "reform" to the administration making a "clean sweep."

Wholesale removals at the start would have roused the public, dislocated the machinery of Government and squandered patronage on the men who had given Grover Cleveland one term and who would have small power in giving him another. But mark the perfect work of "reform" and consider how good its end is.

By waiting and practicing "reform" every Internal Revenue Collector but one has been removed, and a clean sweep has been made in this great machine which networks every whisky, every beer, and every tobacco State, with agents big and little. "Reform" has made a "clean sweep" possible in all the Presidential postoffices but a hundred or so, and so long as the hundred include New York, the papers are silent. Yet in the political game the pawns win every time. The New York postoffice never has controlled delegates to a national convention; but the postoffices in the interior cities are always able to influence their choice. Assistant Postmaster General Stevenson recently owned up to 35,000 new Democratic postmasters in the lesser places paying less than $1,000 a year. By autumn 40,000 to 45,000 of the 52,000 will be Democrats. If this is not a "clean sweep," what is it? Yet under the sacred shadow of "reform," this great change has come over the land like a summer cloud. The custom-houses, with here and there one on the outermost fringe, are all Democratic. The great bulk of appointed officers have changed in succession many when they would do the most good, in the third year of the President's term.

By the time the work of choosing delegates to the next National Convention is over the change will be complete. The "clean sweep" will have come. A President elected on a pledge that the offices should no longer be "public spoils" will have distributed nine-tenths of them in his own party.

And every mugwump in the land, in a spirit "not of criticism but of confidence," will be saying: "For what we have received may we be truly thankful."—Philadelphia Press.

He Represents the Administration.

The Democratic Constitution of Atlanta indignantly remarks: "There can be no doubt that the Democratic party of this country has a tremendous load to carry in the person of Phelps, American Minister to England. He is the most ridiculous flunkey conceivable—the most unmitigated snob the Republic has yet produced." Quite true. Mr. Phelps is the most unmitigated snob and flunkey conceivable, but we must protest that it is the Democratic party and not the Republic which produced him. Notwithstanding he is so odious and unworthy a representative of the United States, he is kept in his present position by Mr. Cleveland, who thus becomes responsible for the disgrace. As long as papers like the Constitution insist on indorsing the administration whenever it needs their help they must expect to share in the odium and disgrace of its disreputable appointments.—Iowa State Register.

ST. STEPHEN.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

AT THE CAPITAL.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

"NEW HOME" Sewing Machines.

Our Agent will soon begin the canvass of Charlevoix and Vicinity, for the sale of the ''NEW HOME'' Machine, fully warranted and sold on easy terms, The Machine may be seen at the Millinery Store of Litney & Carr, of Charlevoix.

"SMITH AMERICAN," "CHASE" and "EARHUFF" ORGANS FOR SALE at LOWEST PRICES.

DUNHAM & SUTTON, EAST JORDAN.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, JUNE 22, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

Local News.

—Levi House was granted a pension, Friday.

—Pat O'Neil returned from Wisconsin, Friday.

—N. H. Blatchford and family of Chicago, are expected to-day for the season.

—C. H. Hill of Woodstock, Ont., is the guest of the junior editor for a few days.

—Mrs. Chettie Cooper and Miss Hughes of Elk Rapids, visited Miss Spaulding last week.

—The ladies of the M. E. church will give a strawberry, cake and coffee social next Monday evening.

—Rosenthal & Son, dealers in Indian basket and bark work, call your attention to a new advertisement.

—Dan Way has photographs of the remains of the steamer Champlain on sale at Hines & Co.'s drug store.

—We call attention to the new advertisements of G. W. Miller, Alick Rosenthal and A. T. Washburne & Co.

—Messrs Corbett, Norton, Martin, Fogg and Cruickshank, were enjoying a private legal excursion to the "Soo" last week.

—Liberal prizes will be given for the G. A. R. prize drill and for the base ball tournament, July 4th, at Charlevoix.

—The Charlevoix minstrels will give a dance at opera hall, Monday afternoon and evening, July 4th. Music by Carr & Wheat's orchestra.

—Large crowds from Boyne City, East Jordan, Petoskey and Harbor Springs were here Saturday and Sunday to see the remains of the steamer Champlain.

—Preparations are being made for a grand celebration at Charlevoix on the Fourth of July. Money sufficient is raised to make it a big success. Particulars next week.

—Mel Livingstone returned from Manistique, Wednesday. Tom Nelson now has his case on the Manistique Sun. Mel is a first-class printer and is open to engagements.

—Mr. A. L. Faulkner, editor of the Traverse Journal, who was a delegate to the Baptist convention here last week, was a welcome caller at the SENTINEL office. Come again.

—The village newspaper is a photograph of the town where it is printed, and is the only evidence its foreign readers have of the town's prosperity. Every business firm should be represented by a standing advertisement, be it large or small, that strangers may get a good impression of the business interests of the place. —Detroit Dash.

Bay View is having a tremendous boom. On May 10th thirty-seven new cottages were either being erected or were planned and the number of new ones will reach between fifty and seventy-five this year. A double railway track has been laid through the grounds from Petoskey and a side walk is expected to connect the two places. Astonishing activity prevails everywhere, and Bay View is being made ready for the largest and most delightful season in its history.

—Grand Rapids Telegram-Herald: "Where shall I go for the summer?" is the question asked by many fair residents of the Valley City, and truly the answer is a hard one to decide. There is the enchanting north with its manifold attractions of pure air, broad expanse of silver lake, and miles of forest primeval, but there are many who anticipate remaining at home, making only an occasional trip down to the Haven, Ottawa, Inter-Laken Park, which, by the way, should be patronized for its remarkably musical name, if for nothing else, or to some one of the other hundred resorts within easy reach of home. The Grand Hotel at Mackinac Island is to entertain some very distinguished guests, and Charlevoix lays claim annually to a real English nobleman. Michigan is almost one vast resort, dotted as it is with cunning lakelets and charming beaches. One need never go out of the State for rest and recreation.

One of the meanest, most cruel and dastardly acts ever perpetrated in Leelanaw county, was committed in Sutton's Bay township last Saturday. H. M Cole, a well known and honored citizen of Sutton's Bay, having some five or more head of cattle running on the highway, was shocked to see three of them return home last Sunday morning, chopped and haggled in a manner that beggars all description. An examination revealed the fact that an ax had actually been used in the cowardly work; and at every blow, the blade had been driven to the handle. Further search was instituted when the remaining two were found dead, having been cut and carved in only a still more ugly manner. We understand Mr. Cole is not in the dark as to the guilty parties, and that they will soon be brought to justice.—Enterprise.

Charlevoix Summer Resort Items.

The annual meeting occurs July 19th.

Dr. Kendall Brock of Kalamazoo, came Saturday.

Arriving resorters are all loud in their praises of the New Belvedere.

Ed West came up on the Lawrence Monday. His mother and sister follow soon.

J. P. Hart will add a tower and other improvements to the Den Bleyker cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Ives and little grand-daughters expect to go north this week, and will summer in their charming cottage at Charlevoix.—Telegram Herald.

Mrs. L. J. Heaton opened her cottage last week. Her friend Mrs. Sabine is with her. Miss Mary is expected Saturday, and the perenially jovial Jim, (pardon the familiarity) in two weeks.

The rates at the new Belvedere will be: board and rooms for $2.00 and $2.50 per day, according to room, with a special rate to members for table board. Table board, by the week, $6.00. Special rates to children under 10 years of age.

S. A. Holmes, of Kalamazoo, the manager of the New Belvedere, arrived Thursday, with his wife and Mrs. Smith, and eleven waiters from Kalamazoo. Mr. Holmes will make a genial and competent manager, and is just the man for the place. He also possesses a mind that appreciates the fact that it is a good thing all around to patronize Charlevoix business men as far as possible.

Speaking of reduced rates for the summer, the Resort annual says: The Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad Company, the Detroit, Lansing & Northern Co., and the Michigan Central Co., have granted the customary half-fare rate to members of our Association who live within the state. As to the place of residence they make the following express statement: "We are unable to extend the reduced rate to members residing outside of the state, as the business would come under the inter-state law, and we do not think its provisions will allow it. Tourist rates will, however, be in effect, open to all applicants, at all points on our line, which your members outside of the state can take advantage of. These rates are about one and one-third fare" These roads will sell round trip tickets for one fare to members of our Resort, residing within the state, upon proper certificates, which may be obtained of the secretary.

The resort annual was issued last week. Secretary Haskell is following in the footsteps of his energetic predecessor and gets out a highly creditable hand-book. Under the head of "Attractions at Charevoix," we clip as follows: No resort in Northern Michigan offers attractions superior to those at Charlevoix. Although the engine's whistle and smoke do not yet disturb the peace of this sequestered spot, yet it is very easy of approach. The traveler, arriving weary and dust-enshrouded at Petoskey or Traverse City, can step on board one of the large Hannah, Lay & Co. steamers, or the graceful Friant, or the Lou Cummings, and enjoy the invigorating breezes of Lake Michigan, with nothing to remind him of the fatigue he has lately endured.

To one approaching the resorts of Charlevoix, an air of quiet is one of the most noticable features. The noiseless glide of the steamer as she enters the village by its liquid highway, and the lazy swing of the drawbridge, suggest a quiet sought in vain at some more fashionable resorts. And then the absence of the vociferous cab-men, fruit and news venders, boot-blacks and organ-grinders, confirm the impression that at last Elysium has been discovered.

However let no one suppose that Charlevoix is a "dead town," which can offer no attractions to the summer tourist. Its society comprises the representative families from all parts of Michigan and many of the principal cities of Ohio and Illinois. Many who are accustomed to spend the winter months in the Sunny South or Far West, most gladly turn their faces toward their cottages at Charlevoix with the return of summer's heat.

In another respect Charlevoix is surpassed by no northern resort; namely in its boating facilities. The waters of Round and Pine Lakes bathe the shores of the resort grounds and offer a safe sporting place for children and those who wish to row or sail for pleasure; while the unbroken swell or tossing white-caps of Lake Michigan are within easy reach of those more skilled in the use of the oar and helm.

Again, Charlevoix is by no means behind her sister resorts in the inducements she can offer to those who love to sport with the finny tribe. The Jordan—a name well known to northern fishermen is but a two hours ride by steamer from Charlevoix, at the opposite end of Pine Lake. Boats can be procured at Charlevoix, and guides who will pole the sportsman up the Jordan as far as he may wish to go. There he may find good accommodations for a night or longer, and by day have nothing to do but sit in his boat and "land" the "speckled beauties." Or several smaller streams are found nearer the resort grounds, where the timid trout may be taken by the skillful angler.

In a word, rest and recreation, social enjoyments, rowing, sailing and fishing are but part of the attractions which Charlevoix can offer to the prospective traveler.

One of the chief attractions at Charlevoix, for 1887, will be the new Club House, of which more will be said in the following pages. The members of the Association are to be congratulated upon the fact that this long-felt want is now supplied.

However the attractions at Charlevoix need not to be recounted to the members of our Association. The fact that we look forward eagerly to each opening season is sufficient proof of the magnetic influence of the Resort over us. We would not look elsewhere if we could. But it is with the wish that many of our friends may join the charmed circle, that we have given this enumeration.

The question of the permanency of the resort leases having arisen, the special committee appointed report that

1. Any corporation in this state, whose existence is limited by the law under which it was organized, can renew its life by a simple vote of its members, and by complying with the same forms of law as when it became a corporation,—each stockholder being entitled to one vote only.

2. Many organizations are restricted by the terms under which they are incorporated, to an existence of thirty years, with liberty to renew their existence.

3. Many other organizations are not thus restricted. The Charlevoix Summer Resort was incorporated under the provisions of Act. No. 122, of the year 1877, which places no limitation as to continued existence in the Association which it incorporates.

4. We find in the laws relating to corporations in general, nothing which limits the existence of our Association, except that the state reserves to itself the right to annul our charter and dissolve our Association for cause. If, however, any provision of the constitution or any statutes of the state limit our existence to thirty years, it remains in the power of the majority of the stockholders and lot holders to renew our charter.

5. Our Association can secure its own dissolution only by an appeal to some court of equity upon the vote of a majority of the directors. The application for a hearing must be made at least three months before it can be granted, and a notice of the hearing with the reasons therefor must be published. After a due hearing, if the court finds that the dissolution will be beneficial to the stockholders, and not injurious to the public, a decree for dissolution must be granted

In view of these facts we conclude that no lease holder can suffer from the danger of the dissolution of this Association.

If any lease holder desires any further security, we recommend that on the payment of fifty dollars for each lot, a bond for a deed be given to any lot holder, the bond to be signed by the president and secretary of the Association and the deed to be delivered on the dissolution of the corporation.

Northern Michigan.

There are 308 pupils enrolled at the Mancelona school.

The Petoskey high school holds its commencement exercises July 1st.

Many, many acres are being planted to potatoes by the farmers of Antrim county.

C. W. Caskey, of Harbor Springs, has shipped 23 car loads of sand for the hotel at Mackinac Island.

R. A. McGregor, of Minneapolis, has been appointed national bank examiner for Minnesota, northern Wisconsin and northern Michigan.

Kalkaska is arranging for a celebration of the completion of the survey of the D. C. & E. R. R. to that place, in an appropriate manner.

Ida P. Peterson, who murdered her sleeping husband at Herkins last March, will be tried at the next term of the Circuit court before Judge C. B. Grant, at Escanaba. The evidence is very strong against the woman.

A large crowd were in attendance at the Catholic Corpus Christi celebration here on Sunday, many from abroad. The church, school building and grounds were nicely decorated with evergreens, flowers, etc., and the exercises were quite interesting.—Harbor Springs Republican.

On Wednesday last Sheriff Handy conveyed Mrs. John Coulter, of Mancelona, to the asylum at Traverse City, and on Friday took Miss Hebden of Central Lake, to the same institution. Both had previously had an examination before the probate court and been adjudged insane.—Bellaire Breeze.

Messrs. Ames, Ely & Landdist have found Hematite ore on the Brass Wire property, between Negaunee and Ishpeming. The great importance of this discovery is that it connects the Negaunee and Ishpeming mines in both north and south veins, showing that the ore formation in the district is continuous and without break or fault.

Take Notice.

By a vote of the Company every Fireman is requested to have present next Monday evening his own and any other badge he may have.

O. S. WASHBURN.

—Jerome Heath has returned from Mackinac Island.

—A number of relics were found in the hull of the Champlain.

We are told that the surveyors are at work running the line for the Kalkaska & Elk Rapids branch, and also that they have already made half the distance between the two points.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent. Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

A. O. D. McCabe killed his first critter in Charlevoix in 1866. Recently he has again gone into the meat market at the corner of State and Mason streets, and will sell you meat at from 6cts up to 12½cts.

SCHOONER WANTED—10 to 20 tons to charter for season. Must be in good condition and fully equipped for cruise. Will buy if all is satisfactory. Address description to U. S. N. Co., Box 479, Traverse City, Mich.

NOTICE.

The late Champlain disaster has placed me in close financial circumstances. Therefore it is necessary for me to collect all outstanding indebtedness. All Owing me will please call and pay.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Rosenthal & Son

continue business at the old stand in the See Block, IN THE LINE OF Indian Basket & and Bark Work.

Call and look over our Stock.

ROSENTHAL & SON.

POSITIVELY THE FINEST LINE OF

CLOTHING

AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS YOU EVER SAW IN CHARLEVOIX,

JUST RECEIVED FOR SUMMER WEAR.

Prices are unusually low this Spring and if you need anything in my line, just step in.

Now is a Grand Time To Obtain Bargains.

GEO. W. MILLER.

A. T. WASHBURNE AND CO.

OUR SECOND INVOICE OF SUMMER GOODS HAS ARRIVED.

We wish to call especial attention to the elegant line of wash goods now on our counters, as we never before have received such an assortment. We are confident they will be appreciated by all.

NEW EMBROIDERIES, LACES and LINENS. Our line of Corsets and Corset Waists is excelled nowhere in the state. See what we can give you for 25 cents in a Corset.

NEW DRESS GOODS, CARPETS, FANCY GOODS

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

Successors to F. W. CRAINE & CO.

REFITTED!

Our store is nearly completed and we cordially invite our friends and patrons to call and inspect a choice assortment of new

DRY GOODS & GROCERIES

New Goods arriving nearly every day. Our stock of Groceries is the Largest, Choicest, Cleanest, and our Prices the Lowest. We're busy and haven't got arranged yet, but we want to see you just as we are.

J. L. HURD & CO.

GRAND

CELEBRATION!

--AT--

ALICK ROSENTHALs

For the next 2 weeks.

A fine new stock to select from in all departments. I have been receiving new goods every day since I moved to the Lewis Block, and my stock cannot be excelled.

PARASOLS. An elegant stock at Lowest Prices.

MY STOCK OF

CLOTHING!

is complete and I'm bound to suit you in both Price and Quality.

DON'T FORGET THE PLACE.

In The LEWIS Block.

NEAR THE BRIDGE.

ALICK ROSENTHAL.

P. S. ALL SUMMER GOODS GREATLY REDUCED IN PRICE FOR 2 WEEKS.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XIX. NO. 9 | CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 29, 1887. | WHOLE NO. 918

Jno C Miller mar21 8

"BUG FINISH!"

The new Potato Bug exterminator. We warrant it to give satisfaction. Very cheap. All ready for use. Requires no mixing. Try it.

STRICTLY PURE PARIS GREEN

We have in stock the purest article to be found in the market. It's sure death every time. Buy no other.

Sure Death To Currant Worms!

For these pests we have a pure article of White Hellebore. When ever used it is labor maybe not leaving a worm on the bush.

PURE DALMATION INSECT POWDER

The best thing for Flies and other insects.

A trial of any of the above is bound to prove satisfactory.

F. G. HINES & CO. Druggists.

Emrey Bros.

are on deck this Spring with a complete stock of

General Merchandise, AT LOWEST PRICES

WE ARE DETERMINED TO DO A STRICTLY CASH BUSINESS, AND THUS ARE ENABLED TO UNDERSELL FIRMS GIVING CREDIT.

IT WILL BE FOR YOUR PROFIT TO CALL AND GET PRICES.

Boots and Shoes THE GREATEST BARGAINS EVER OFFERED IN THIS COUNTY.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

We call especial attention to our complete stock of

WALL PAPER.

The time has arrived when you need it. We are now receiving a fresh Spring stock embracing all the latest styles. We warrant you lowest prices.

Special Patterns ordered from samples if you wish.

OUR SUMMER ASSORTMENT OF

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

now being received is the finest we ever offered

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES OF FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in

FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN

BOOTS and SHOES.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces

EVERYTHING

usually found in a General Store.

Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours.

Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

Save Your Dollars

AND BUY HARDWARE

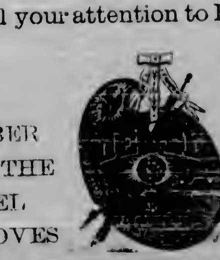
OF STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

Aiming to keep a complete stock, it is our honest endeavor to sell all goods at lowest living prices, for the reason that we court the attention and patronage of every cash customer in Charlevoix County, who wants to save money by making a dollar go as far as possible.

Try us if you happen to be one of those who have not already done so. We are preparing a SURPRISE for YOU. Do not fail to come to our store and see us if possible, every time you come to Charlevoix. You are under no obligation to buy if you don't want to. We are always glad to answer inquiries regarding anything in our line. We want to help you and want your help and patronage to that end.

We call your attention to PAINTS &c.

ALSO PLEASE REMEMBER THAT THE JEWEL STOVES ARE THE BEST, THE WORLD'S BEST!



Resp'y, STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

The Best Groceries

At The Lowest Prices

ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF

A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

New Furniture

AT S. M. SEE & SONS!

We have just received an entirely new stock of Furniture of every discription.

Dealing exclusively in Furniture we are confident we can make it an object to all wishing to buy to call and inspect our stock.

UNDERTAKING A Specialty.

J. MILO EATON'S

REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE, AND LOAN OFFICE.

The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice

Wait A Minute!

WHY NOT TRADE AT

WILL SEE & CO'S

Where there is always on hand a complete line of GROCERIES, PROVISIONS, FLOUR & FEED.

A Great Bargain in Canned Goods. Best Cash Price paid for Country Produce.

TELEPHONE Orders promptly delivered.

THE DISASTER

Additional Particulars Regarding The Burned Champlain.

THE STORIES OF SURVIVORS.

On Wednesday afternoon last, the coroners' jury concluded their inquest on the victims of the Champlain disaster and rendered their verdict to Justice McLeod. The verdict recites that the parties named came to their death by drowning or exposure in consequence of the burning of the steamer, and further: "In the opinion of the jury, the fire originated and gained headway through the negligence or carelessness of some party or parties unknown to the jury, and that thereafter no blame is imputed to the officers regarding their efforts to save the lives of the passengers and crew." The jury was composed as follows: H. M. Enos, foreman; Hudson Bacon, E. B. Hodge, J. L. Hurd, Nelson Ainslie, J. T. Kirkpatrick.

A feature of the Champlain disaster which has not yet been touched upon, is the situation at Smithson's camp on that fatal 17th of June. Dr. J. A. Carlstein was interviewed recently on that subject. He said: "I was called out at about three o'clock by a messenger from Smithson's camp, who broke the fearful news to me, and after gathering myself and my instrument case together, we entered the buggy and started. I have made many rapid rides, but this one was as lively as any I ever made. The gray dawn of morning appeared as we started, and we not only trotted but ran the horses until we came to the wood road where even a trot was impossible. I reached the camp covered with mud from head to foot. I was shown into the men's sleeping quarters where were gathered most of the male survivors. As I was washing myself some one came up behind me and placed a hand upon my shoulder. I turned and George Miller stood facing me. I could have boohooed right out very easily as I beheld him, but I did not. George looked hard. My first thought after arriving was of those upon the beach, but when informed that all that were left there were beyond hope of recussitation, I turned my attention toward engineer McCaffrey and the fireman, whom I found in the next "shanty" just adjoining, which constituted the dining-room and living quarters of Mr. Shores and family. McCaffrey's first words to me were to attend to his fireman first. Brave fellow; the fireman was not burned a hundredth part as badly as he was himself. As I examined him he insisted upon my going to his fireman. I began to dress his horrible burns and found the burned flesh upon his right arm rolled up in ridges. I asked him what was the cause of it and he said he "carried poor Brennan ashore on that arm." Just think of it! Burned almost to death, and yet saving a life—as far as he knew then—(Brennan died on the beach). The rescued ladies were in this building being well cared for. I inquired for Capt. Casey and they told me he was out in a boat endeavoring to save lives. I did not see him until I arrived back at Charlevoix. He came in with the tug which brought the wreck. Yes, McCaffrey was terribly burned and for a week after the disaster I was somewhat doubtful of the result and think now if it had not been for the cool weather of last week it would have gone hard with the poor fellow. Of course I know nothing about it, but I venture the opinion that Capt. Casey and engineer McCaffrey are hereafter "wedded." The brave Captain has been my only assistant in dressing the wounds, which took from four to five hours at a time, and he was one of the best assistants I ever had in like cases, not excepting those within my own profession.

From the Inter-Ocean.

Capt. Jacob Hansen, and the gallant crew of the schooner Racine, arrived at this port yesterday, from Smithson's pier, near Charlevoix, the scene of the Champlain holocaust. Capt. Hansen is permitted to tell his own story, which he does as follows:

"I arrived at Smithson's pier at 4 o'clock, Thursday, June 16. The pier lies just to the south of Charlevoix. We began loading at once. Being pretty well fagged out, I ordered my men to turn in at 8 o'clock. My original idea was to get through and out on the lake before daylight, but I saw that the job could not be accomplished, and as I stated before, all hands took to their bunks, and got some rest. I was as tired as I could be, and I slept like a log. About one o'clock I was awakened by a man rushing down the companionway and gasping, 'ship afire!' I jumped up out of bed and ran to the deck. Off to the southwest, over our starboard bow, a mile and a half from where we lay a sight met my eyes that chills me whenever I recall it to my mind. I at first could not make out whether the burning vessel was a steamer or a schooner. The flames rose high in air; the crackling of the timbers sounded like a thousand heavy trucks driving over a rough cobble-way. I looked and looked, and finally made out that the big spar rising above the lashing of the flames was nothing more or less than a steamer's smoke stack in a white heat. The yawl was up on the davits alongside of me, and I lowered it. I was just about to shove off with my steward when a man came panting down to the boat and said: "It's the Champlain, and there are a hundred people aboard!" I stood rooted to the spot. I happened to recollect, however that in making a landing at this place the previous day I noticed a big pond flat boat about half a mile to the northward. All the crew were awake by this time. I ordered my steward to put out to the reef, and told him I would join him with the flat. This flat was one of those great big concerns used to carry fish and nets, and capable of keeping a half hundred people afloat. The people of Smithson's camp had been pretty well aroused, and I picked out three of a dozen volunteers to take out with me in the flat to the reef where the vessel was burning. We ran down the beach as rapidly as our legs would carry us. The flat was drawn out of the water, and laying wrong side up on the sand. We turned her over and launched her, and all four of us got into her. We had barely shoved off when she began leaking like a seive, and it was all we could do to keep her from swamping by using two big pails to bail her out. To add to this we had only one oar to scull her with. Well, we headed her for Fisherman's Island. We had gotten about half way between the island and the main land when I saw my steward's yawl, crowded down to the gunwales in the water, with eight persons on board, make a landing at the island. To get to the scene of the disaster we had to pass close by and he cried out to me for matches. He said the people were freezing, and he wanted the matches to light a fire with the brush on the island. There wasn't such an article nearer than the main land, and I called to him to do the best he could, and pull out again. He bustled the people out, and the two boats went out side by side. About twenty rods from the steamer, and just ahead of us, I heard a cry for help. We pulled in the direction from which the cry came, and picked up the man Stevens. As soon as we got him over the side he fell exhausted in the bottom of the boat. He'd barely been gotten aboard when off on our port quarter I saw the apparently lifeless body of another man. When we got alongside of him I saw that his life-preserver had slipped below his waist, and that his feet were above while his head was below the water. We dragged him over the side. This was a man named Russell. We picked up four Indians in a group a minute later, and then, just as we were about to return, I caught a glimpse of a sight that I will remember as long as I live. Up close to the side of the burning vessel in the water I saw a young woman with a child. She was holding it up on her shoulder with one hand and clinging to a fender suspended from the rail with the other. Our flat was utterly useless, and the yawl was filled to its utmost capacity. All hands stood still and aghast at the sight before us. Thirty rods only were between us and the young woman. I heard the child cry with fright. The girl had by this time guided the fender along the side to a place where the flames were darting out. I saw at a glance what she was after, and a moment later had the gleeful satisfaction of seeing the bite of the fender severed, the flames eating it off. Down it came alongside the brave girl. She then took the young one, planted it firmly on the heavy beam, held it in position by catching its dress in her teeth, and then struck out for shore, pushing the log and young one before her. Well, sir, she swam toward us, and throwing a line over the stern of the yawl I told one of the Indians to jump overboard and drag along behind. She overheard the order and cried, "Don't, I'm all right," and sure enough she put out her dainty arms with such will that she was soon alongside our bow. The little one was still crying lustily, and she was trying to quiet it by forcing a song out between her chattering teeth, swimming away all the while as coolly and deliberately as if it was anything but a matter of life and death. The two got to the island as we did, and I saw that the little heroine was none other than Macy Wakefield of Charlevoix, and that the infant was Mrs. Mary Keough's child, Mrs. Keough had gone down, and as she was sinking Miss Wakefield wrested the child out of its mother's arms.

"When we had landed all in sight on the island, I pulled across to the main land for some dry matches to build a fire. The night was awful cold, and the men and women we pulled out of the lake were lying about on the sand shaking like aspen leaves. When I got within hailing distance of Smithson's landing I saw the shore lined with the populace of the place. I was asked to bring the survivors ashore, and so I returned. As I stepped up on the island I was told that Brennan, the clerk, was dying. Two of my men picked him up and carried him toward the boat. He died as his body touched the bottom of the boat. It was just about this time that I first saw Captain Casey. I thought he was lost, sure. Coming down the beach toward us, with the body of a young girl in his arms the big body of the captain, ran at a dog trot. The girl was from Petoskey and unconscious. He gave her into our hands, and then ran off at full speed in the direction from which he had come. He had left Russell down below a bit, and with him thrown across his shoulders, Captain Casey again appeared. He dropped him down on the ground, ran in and reappeared with a heavy log, over which he began rolling the unconscious man. But he was too far gone, and died while Captain Casey was trying to revive him. We laid his dead body alongside that of Clerk Brennan, and taking four others aboard, pulled across to the main land. Here a fire had been build on the shore and logs rolled up for the survivors to seat themselves on. Smithson's camp distinguished herself in throwing open her doors to the survivors of the horror, and nothing was too good for them. We got all ashore in three loads. By this time the day began to break, and in the grim of the early dawn five bodies were washed ashore on the breast of the billows. Later in the day two fisherman picked up the dead body of Mrs. Smith. The next day I again went out to the island and found four more bodies. When I left fourteen bodies had been recovered, and there remained three women, three children, and four of the eight Indians unaccounted for."

Steward Wendt, of the Racine, on his three trips out picked up four of the eight Indians, clinging to a fender, then the engineer, McCaffrey, Steward LeRoe and wife, a merchant of Charlevoix, clinging to the steamer's flag-staff, the watchman and four others on two fenders lashed together and the others were picked up individually.

Peter Canden, the chief cook of the lost Champlain, tells a story full of harrowing details. "Just forward of the mess-room, and on the port side of the vessel," said he, "I was lying fast asleep in the lower berth when the fire broke out. Over me, in the upper bunk, my assistant, John Hartley, slept. It was about 12:30 o'clock when I was awakened by Hartley. He appeared to be rooted to the floor before me. He could do nothing but shake me, and appeared to have lost the power of speech. I am very easily awakened, and as soon as he laid his hand on me I sat bolt upright in bed. Despite this fact, he shook and shook me. By the light of the dimly burning lamp, I saw his face was ashy white. I thought the man had gone daft. I tried to disengage his hand, which had grasped my arm, but he held on like a vice. 'For God's sake, man, what's the matter?' I had barely uttered the last word when a shriek of 'Fire!' caught my ear coming from the saloon. I jumped up and by main force freed his hold, and ran out into the cabin. All was confusion. Men and women were running about like mad. Just to the right of my room I saw Mr. Falls throw his weight against the door of the stateroom containing his sister-in-law and niece. From within the cry came, 'What's the matter?' Mr. Falls' answer was another lunge against the door and it then gave way. He had three life preservers across his arm, and, bidding each of his relatives to put one on, he adjusted his own. This all occurred in less than a minute. I ran back, and hurriedly throwing a coat across my shoulders ran out to the side of the hurricane deck. Aft, about the smokestack, everything was ablaze. The wind was blowing over her stern and urging the fire forward. We were going through the water at a fearful pace. My first impulse was to adjust a life preserver and jump into the lake. I changed my mind, and ran out on the promenade deck. The natural impulse to get as far away from the flames as possible had crowded the promenade deck forward at the bow. The flames lit up the gathering forward, and the expressions on some of the faces assembled in that narrow space I shall never forget. Some were wringing their hands, crying for help; others clasped their hands above their heads in silent prayer. One lady, Mrs. Ella Cooper, could be heard above the din in the Lord's Prayer. It is impossible to give the faintest idea of the scene. It cannot be told or painted. Now and then a leap and a splash in the water below told the story of a soul gone to its maker. It was not until we struck the reef that anything like a system was accepted by the affrighted passengers. Then one by one clamored over the side, down the hawser which had been lowered, and into the shallow water over the reef on which the vessel had struck. The men for the most part, were dressed, but the women were scantily attired. All but about ten had left the vessel when I let myself down on one of the forward fenders. Captain Casey, Mate Bishop and his son, the wheelsman, were among those left on board when I went over the side on the fender. When I had gotten well down on the log, I whipped out my knife and cut the bight which held the fender into position. I held on tight and the fender and I struck the water together. All about me the passengers were struggling in the water. I pushed the fender toward a group of three to my left, and these caught hold of it. The water was very cold, and to get some warmth from the burning vessel we shoved the fender down alongside the stern, where the flames had pretty well subsided, but the glowing embers sent out a comforting heat. We had been in this position about forty minutes—it appeared as many hours—when two yawl boats were discovered by the light of the vessel rounding the point at Fisherman's Island. They first picked up the people clinging to life-preservers, and afterward those on the fenders.

NOTES.

There is little probability that more than the 22 lives mentioned last week were lost. The survivors all agree that only the 57 people enumerated in our last number were on the boat, hence no more than 22 could have been lost as 35 are known to have been saved.

(Continued on 8th Page.)

OLD SAWS 'N RHYME.

Actions speak louder than words ever do;
You can't eat your cake and hold on to it too.

When the cat is away then the little mice play;
Where there is a will there is always a way.

One's deep in the mud as the other in mire;
Don't jump from the frying pan into the fire.

There's no use of crying o'er milk that is spilt;
No accuser is needed by conscience of guilt.

There must be some fire wherever is smoke;
The pitcher goes oft to the well till it's broke.

By rogues falling out honest men get their due;
Whoever it fits he must put on the shoe.

All work and no play will make Jack a dull boy;
A thing of much beauty is ever a joy.

A half loaf is better than no bread at all;
And pride always goeth before a sad fall.

Fast bind and fast find; have two strings to your bow,
Contentment is better than riches, we know.

The devil finds work for hands idle to do.
A miss is as good as a mile is to you.

You speak of the devil—he's sure to appear;
You can't make a silk purse from out a sow's ear.

A man by his company always is known;
Who lives in glass houses shouldn't not throw a stone.

When the blind leads the blind both will fall in the ditch,
It's better born lucky than being born rich.

Little pitchers have big ears, burnt child dreads the fire,
Though speaking the truth no one credits a liar.

Speech may be silver but silence is gold;
There's never a fool like the fool who is old.

LILLIE EDDLES;

—OR,—

ABDUCTED BY THE BUSH-WHACKERS.

A Story of the War in the Southwest.

BY ARVIDE O. BALDWIN.

[CONTINUED.]

The sentinel was not fifty feet away from John. His gun was carefully raised and a deadly aim taken. For an instant there was a death-like stillness and then a quick, sharp whistle pierced the night-air, and the next instant the report of two guns almost simultaneously rang out, and reverberated among the hills.

Each sprang for his man, but it was unnecessary, the bullets had done their work.

A scream of terror was heard from within, and then all was still.

John grasped a huge stone, and in a twinkling the door was knocked from its hinges. There was no time to lose now. The camp was, no doubt, already aroused, and would soon be upon them.

John caught his half-fainting sister and carried her out to the horses, Sylva and Jeff following after. The night air soon revived the frightened girl, and as quickly as possible the captive and the maid were placed upon horses, and John and Jeff mounted theirs. Then the race for life and liberty began.

They traveled directly up the valley down which they had come, and into which they had driven the bushwhackers' horses. When they had reached that point, they found the animals quietly feeding. They kept them in front and continued on up the valley.

John knew that if he could keep their horses from them until they had a good start ahead, it would be impossible for their enemies to overtake them.

It luckily happened that the valley in which they were was one of the large ones, and reached nearly to the divide. They were pleased to know that, for it was far easier to travel, and without the danger of going astray there would be on the tops of the ridges with their many branches.

When the little party had reached to nearly the divide they allowed the riderless horses to drift out to either side, where they left them.

They soon were again on the Wire Road, but John took the precaution to send Jeff on ahead to see that no wire-traps was stretched across their way. The remainder of the trip to the plantation was uneventful, and they arrived at the mansion safe but tired.

The poor, tired Lillie was hugged and caressed until the quiet of the little log prison would have been a relief.

Sylva was also remembered, and the faithful negress wept with joy at the praise and thankfulness bestowed upon her.

Henry Arno had recovered from his fall sufficiently to sit up, and he claimed that he was as well as ever. He felt disappointed to think that others should be the ones to rescue his lady-love from the bushwhackers, but he informed that young lady that the greatest misery of his life was to know that she was in captivity and he not able to go to the rescue.

Henry's apology was accepted, although as they told him, it was entirely unnecessary, and all retired to rest, feeling thankful and happy, for they knew that it was impossible for the river bushwhackers to reach the plantation before morning.

Morning came and went, and soon the day was past and gone, and not a strange person had made his appearance around the plantation.

The inmates feared the night, but when that also was passed in peace they began to experience relief, but they were not to be lulled into a sense of security and then taken unawares.

The day opened extremely hot and oppressive. Not a leaf was stirring on the branches, and the heated air could be seen rising in waves from the parched earth. Although the mansion was well situated to receive the benefit of any cooling breeze, and the trees surrounding it broke the direct rays of the scorching sun, yet the people seemed smothered and oppressed.

Not a cloud was to be seen in the brazen-looking sky. The birds were voiceless and gaping in the foliage, and the animals were lolling in the barn-yard.

As night approached, our friends hoped for a breeze to cool the heated air, but the stillness of death was over everything. There was a dark streak across the sky in the northwest, and when the sun passed behind the lower end of it an unearthly gloom settled over the earth.

The stillness was unbroken, not a night-bird was heard. The ticking of the tall clock was a relief to our friends, for no one felt like talking.

As darkness approached, a low rumbling, resembling the continuous firing of artillery, was heard in the distance. Broken clouds scudded across the heavens from the direction of the approaching storm.

The people were waiting with fear and anxiety, knowing that its force must be terrible when it struck them.

A faint light began to glimmer about the mansion, and rapidly grew larger until the lightness of the day was around, except upon the south side where the deep shadow of the huge building reached out across the plantation.

"The house is on fire! The house is on fire!" was passed from one to another, as the paleness of death stole over their horror-stricken faces.

Here was a new danger, and one that was a common table. How could they combat this new element that their foes were fighting them with?

John was determined to know the worst, so he passed out at the door and round to the corner where he could see the fire. As soon as he emerged from the darkness a volley of shots, from the timber to the north, greeted him, and he beat a hasty retreat, but not until he saw a huge pile of blazing straw against the building. The tongues of the flames were reaching up to, and over the roof, like some huge demon, and the fate of the mansion seemed sealed.

As John turned to go a puff of air struck his face and the flames shot up far over the roof. The thunder began to sound more distinctly, and a few drops of rain pattered against the house. Then came another gust of wind, and the flames enveloped the mansion like a mantle. Then again came stillness, only relieved by the crackling of the fire.

Nothing now but the intervention of providence could save the building from destruction.

A faint hope buoyed up the inmates. What they had so feared in the early evening, they now looked to for their only help.

For an instant the entire heavens were ablaze with electricity, and a deafening peal of thunder shook the very foundation of the structure, and made the frightened people crouch in terror. A mournful sound followed like the groaning of some great monster, and then the storm struck the house. Then the flood-gates of heaven were opened and the rain poured down in torrents.

The lightning was continuous, and the crash of thunder that followed deafening.

Gradually the light waned and in a few minutes the fire was extinguished. For an hour the elements continued battling above the drenched earth, and then the storm departed as quickly as it had come, and the people who were thus providentially saved by the opportune interference of nature believed that "God fights the battles of the just."

The bushwhackers must have had a similar thought, for they slunk away and left the persecuted people to enjoy another quiet night.

Our friends had been acting entirely on the defensive, but this began to grow monotonous, and John and Henry concluded that unless the bushwhackers continued to press matters, they would change the order of things.

A few days had passed away, and our friends had not seen anything more of their enemies. They believed that it was only a question of time when the rascals would again put in an appearance, and they kept a continual watch for them.

One day two men rode up to the mansion gate and asked to see the proprietor.

Two guns were leveled at the strangers from the windows, and John with his rifle walked out on the porch.

"Who are you, and what do you want?" he demanded.

"We're friends, and are hunting a place to stop," was the reply.

"Well, lay down your guns and come up to the house."

They readily complied, and left their guns leaning against the fence, and strolled leisurely up the path, but kept a watch upon the Wire Road from which they had come.

As they came up the steps one of the strangers—who was poorly dressed, but possessed of a fair-looking countenance, with honest gray eyes, which looked unflinchingly under John's searching gaze—reached out his long, bony hand and took that of our hero with such fervor that it made that young man wince.

"Mr. Eddles, I 'spose?"

"Yes, sir; and your name?

"William Gunn. Folks call me Bill, though."

"Glad to meet you, Mr. Gunn. If you are a friendly 'guy,' you are perfectly welcome, but we don't want any 'son-of-a-gun' here these times," John remarked, seemingly in play, but wholly in earnest.

"If I am correctly informed, you have been over the Wire Road a great deal lately, and I have reason to believe that we have traveled the same road before," the stranger replied, paying no attention to the light remarks of our hero.

A few quick flashes of the hands of the two men, and there was a mystic tie, a confidence, established between them that nothing could shake.

John then turned to the other stranger, who stood smiling at the actions of the two men before him.

"And this man?" John asked.

"He's all right. I vouch for him," the stranger answered, and the three entered the house.

CHAPTER XIII.

AN ATTACK IN THE REAR.

The two men were introduced to the family and were cordially received.

When Jeff was reached in the introduction the men looked inquiringly at John.

"A better friend, nor a whiter man, never lived than this one, and no one could slight me nor hurt me more than to hurt him. He has saved my life, and he is my friend." And John Eddles placed his hand on the shoulder of the faithful colored man.

Jeff bowed low to the new men, and when they reached out their hands he took them with a fervor that convinced them of the warm heart of the negro.

After they were seated the first speaker, Bill, began and told our friends why he was here.

"I came down here from the North a year ago," he said, "to try and get what I could out of a small estate my brother left at his death, a few months before. This friend of mine wanted to come South, thinking that this climate might help his lungs, which were weak, and so we come together.

"There were certain persons who had already secured most of the movable property, and when I came and demanded it, they would not deliver it without due process of law, and some of them carried the suits along until this trouble came upon us, when they defied me, and afterward proceeded to force me to leave the country, which I strongly object to. They have made it hot for both of us, and in more ways than one, for we have been shot at, and have had to repeatedly run for our lives, and, to cap the climax, they burned our buildings, and we had no place to shelter us. We accidentally heard of you, and of the trouble you were having with the same or other gangs of cut-throats, and we concluded to come and offer our services, and unitedly fight them."

"What is your loss is our gain, then," said John "for all we need now is additional men, and we can repel all their attacks. We shall consider it a favor if you will remain with us."

"We will try and not be in the way. And it may be I can get some consolation yet, if I can't get anything else," said the stranger, as a quiet smile stole over his countenance.

The men's horses were attended to and their arms brought in. They proved to be quiet unobtrusive people, and the Eddles family considered them a good acquisition. The younger stranger, whose name was Sim Dorn, was in poor health, which made it unpleasant for him, and no doubt made him more quiet than he otherwise would have been.

John had been planning to go to the river again, but this time upon a different errand from that which took him there on a former occasion.

The thing that worried John in regard to this trip was how to be positive that the bushwhackers were in camp.

This puzzle bothered him until darkness set in on the second day after the arrival of their new friends, when he saw, to the southwest of the Cross-Hollows Road, a large fire throwing its light brightly into the heavens above it.

"There they are again," said Henry, as he pointed in the direction of the fire.

"Yes," said John, "we know they are not at home now, at any rate."

"Marse John, less go fer de 'Jolier Road. Dey's boun' ter be dar, an' dat'll gib us er git ter de ribber."

"That's a good idea, Jeff, we'll go. Henry and Mr. Dorn will guard the house and Mr. Gunn and Jeff and I will go to the Cross-Hollows Road, and meet the rascals as they go on down to their camp."

Henry objected to the plan, but John would insist on his staying at the residence; so he reluctantly consented, and the three men hurriedly saddled their horses and were soon on their way to the road that led to the river. They were not long in reaching a point at which they left their animals secured in a thick cluster of trees. They then went on foot until they got to a place about a hundred yards below where the roads united. The reason they selected that particular locality was because they could see the bushwhackers when they left the Wire Road in going down, and another reason was that here the valley was not over fifty feet broad, and afforded an excellent opportunity to get in some work at the proper time.

Five minutes passed, and then ten, but no person came in sight. A half-hour went slowly by, and our friends began to be impatient. Forty-five minutes had fled and—

"There they come!" whispered John.

As the others looked, they saw a body of men slowly and quietly filing along. They reached the Hollows Road, but kept right on past it and up the Wire Road.

Our friends looked at each other in surprise. This was a turn in affairs that was unexpected.

"I know what the scoundrels mean!" John exclaimed, "Follow me and we'll yet beat them at their little game."

Getting their horses they rode slowly after the men that had preceded them. They would occasionally see the crowd in the distance, but they kept far in the rear, and as much as possible in the shadows, that they might not be discovered. When they had turned the corner that showed the road clear for some distance in front of the mansion, they saw that the gang had halted a few hundred yards beyond.

They were crowded together in a mass, and appeared to be consulting. After a little time spent in the road, they vanished into the woods that led to the back of the building on the north.

They all now knew that the mansion was once more to be assailed.

When the three men got opposite the plantation gate they opened it and turned in their horses. The gate was then closed, the men crossed the road, in the shadow of the trees, went past the mansion until they had arrived at the spot where the bushwhackers had left the road, when they hastily crossed it, and making a detour came up so that the rear of the great building was easily seen through the trees.

A few dark forms could be seen flitting about in the dim light, and our friends knew they were up to some devilish scheme.

A bunch of men not ten yards away could be seen, and John determined to try and get near them. Taking the shadows of friendly trees, the three men stealthily crawled forward until they had reached a pile of dead brush only a few yards distant from the six men, who were awaiting the action of their comrades, who now could be seen sneaking close up to the building.

"We 'uns tried to burn up the cuss, toller night, but the rain kum and put out ther fire for us. Goramighty, how it rained!" said one of the gang.

"Is the Captin fixin' ther charge, or is it Woodsley?" inquired another.

"It's the Captin, and he'll blow the devil outen the ole ranch," was the reply.

John reached over and whispered in Gunn's ear. "Take the left one;" then turning to Jeff he whispered, "take the right-hand one," and raised his own gun.

"What 'n the dence is that? I heerd a bush snap!" said one of the gang.

"O, yer skeered! Yer afeard——"

But the sentence was never finished, for the reports of three guns resounded through the woods, and three men fell in a heap on the ground, mortally wounded.

As soon as the smoke arose so that the aim was sure, two more shots were given them, and then those that were able fled precipitately. In a moment more four men were seen running toward our friends. When they arrived at the spot where their comrades had been, and they saw the forms lying before them, they seemed dazed.

Once more the three guns belched forth their fire and metal, and two more of the bushwhackers dropped in their tracks, and the other two fled with the speed of the wind toward the road.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Worth Remembering.

Modern poets mix much water with their ink.—Goethe.

The thirst of desire is never filled nor satisfied.—Cicero.

There is a woman at the beginning of all great things.—Lamartine.

The crutch of time accomplishes more than the club of Hercules.—Balthaser Gracian.

Agitation is the marshaling of the conscience of a nation to mold its laws.—Sir R. Peel.

What we call our despair is often only the painful eagerness of unfed hopes.—George Eliot.

The path of genius is not less obstructed with disappointment than that of ambition.—Voltaire.

It is impossible for that man to despair who remembers that his helper is omnipotent.—Jeremy Taylor.

A man's nature runs either to herbs or weeds; therefore, let him seasonably water the one and destroy the other.—Bacon.

Talent, lying in the understanding, is often inherited; genius, being the act of reason or imagination, rarely or never.—Coleridge.

Of all the riches that we hug, of all the pleasures we enjoy, we may carry no more out of this world than out of a dream.—Bonnell.

He who is false to present duty breaks a thread in the loom, and will find the flaw when he may have forgotten the cause.—Beecher.

The primal duties shine forth like stars; the charities that soothe and heal and bless are scattered forth at the foot of man like flowers.—Wordsworth.

Liberty is the right to do what the laws allow; and if a citizen could do what they forbid it would be no longer liberty, because others would have the same powers.—Montesquieu.

All experience had shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed.—Jefferson.

A tender-hearted and compassionate disposition which inclines men to pity and feel the misfortunes of others, and which is even for its own sake incapable of involving any man in ruin and misery, is of all tempers of mind the most amiable; and, though it seldom receives much honor, is worthy of the highest.—Fielding.

Mistakes in Language.

The professor of English literature at Wellesley College has prepared the following list of words and phrases to be avoided in conversation and writing:

Guess, for suppose or think.
Fix, for arrange or prepare.
Ride and drive, interchangeably.
Real, as an adverb, instead of really, as real good.
Some, for somewhat. I have studied some.
Some ten days, for about ten days.
Storms, for rains.
Try an experiment, for make an experiment.
Singular subject with contracted plural verb, as she don't skate well.
Plural pronoun with singular antecedent: every man or woman should do their duty.
Expect, for suspect.
First-rate, as an adverb.
Had rather, for would rather.
Right away, for immediately.
Party, for person.
Promise, for assure.
Posted, for informed.
Post graduate, for graduate.
Depot, for station.
Nice, indiscriminately.
Stopping, for staying.
Try and do, for try to do.
Cunning, for small.
Cute, for acute.
Funny, for odd.
Above, for foregoing.
Looks good enough, for well enough.
Somebody else's, for somebody's else.
Like, for as.
Not as good, for not so good.
Feel badly, for feel bad.
Feel good, for feel well.
Between seven, for among seven.
Seldom or ever, for seldom if ever, or seldom or never.
More than you think, for more than you think.
These kind, for this kind.
Nicely, in reply to inquiring for health.
Healthy, for wholesome.
Just as soon, for just as lief.
Kind of, to indicate a moderate degree.
The matter of, instead of the matter with.

BULLETS AND BAYONETS.

Stormy Scenes, Amusing Anecdotes, and Interesting Incidents of the Late War.

Bloody Battles, Buzzing Bullets, Bright Bayonets and Buggy Beds.

In the Wilderness.

BY A VETERAN.

Where the tangled chaparral
Hid the horrors we ran all,
Day by day they wrestled there,
In the murky, sulph'rous air
Locked together, Blue and Gray,
In that gladiators' fray.

Crash of muskets only came
From those lines of ceaseless flame,
Yet a tireless clamor rose
From that strife of desperate foes,
While Destruction walked his round
O'er that sick and shuddering ground.

Wholesale killing. Who shall tell
Half that fiery work of hell!
Who, the laughing and the pain
Of the thousands slowly slain!
Still they fought and wrestled there
With a grand, supreme despair!

Lines all bloody, bent and torn,
Fought and struggled there at morn,
When the blessed darkness came
Still they wrestled, just the same,
Still our Chieftain gave the shout,
"On this line we'll fight it out."

Requiem and peace with ye,
Souls of heroes there set free!
Precious, priceless sacrifice
In the rescued nation's eyes,
Days of woe and dire distress,
Fighting in the Wilderness!

Saving Washington.

Sunday, July 10, 1864, was a black day for the capital of this nation, and everybody in it, from President Lincoln down. It was feared, and with good reason, that the next day would see the Confederate flag flying from the lofty dome of the Capitol.

By what a very narrow chance Washington escaped capture at that time—a matter of hours instead of days—is not generally known. My regiment was among the troops that were reaching the periled city as fast as steam could bring them, and therefore I had good opportunity to know what a tremendous danger the nation escaped in those critical days.

Some people, taking a very narrow view of the military situation at that time, have said: "Well, suppose Washington had fallen? The enemy could not have held it. There would have been a flurry for a few days, and then the city would have been evacuated."

Whether General Early could have held it or not, as a permanent possession, is of little consequence. He could certainly have held it long enough to have disheartened, if not demoralized, the whole North. Grant would have been compelled to detach troops enough to retake it, and it would have been necessary to raise the siege of Richmond and Petersburg, or to greatly protract that siege. We may fairly imagine the effect that would have been produced in Europe by the news that Washington was in the hands of the Confederates. It was not yet too late in the war to talk seriously about recognizing the Southern Confederacy—it would not have been too late for France and England, at least—after such a blow as that.

On the whole, it is difficult to think of a time of greater danger to the Union cause than that presented itself on that very Black Sunday at Washington, July 10, 1864.

The people who were within its defenses just then will remember something of it.

For about a week railroad and telegraph communication with the North had been cut off. The supply of provisions was running short. The forts around the city were poorly garrisoned by a scanty force, some of whom were veterans and others were hundred-day militia. Clerks in the departments and employes of the quartermaster General were hurriedly armed and sent out to do duty as soldiers against the Confederate veterans of a dozen campaigns. A gunboat lay at the wharf in the Potomac, with steam up, ready to take the President and other high officers of the Government down to Fortress Monroe as soon as the danger should become imminent. The danger was certainly getting to be imminent enough! From Fort Stevens, which is in plain sight of the capitol, the garrison saw that Sunday, away off on the north roads, the clouds of dust arising from the hoofs of McCausland's cavalry, which was the advance of General Early's army. During that day and the next the deep columns of the Confederates, marching through torturing heat and dust, were getting into position outside the fortifications, and by evening of the 11th the garrisons of the north forts looked over upon fifteen thousand of the enemy.

How, it will be asked, could they ever have been permitted to get there? How was it possible for Washington to have been menaced in this way, during the last year of the war? And how did reinforcements happen to arrive in the very nick of time, and where did they come from?

The story reads like romance; is more entertaining than romance, because it is the truth. Probably if somebody should write a novel, and put into it the military events that happened in far distant regions of this country during the previous few weeks, which directly influenced the menace and relief of Washington at that time, the people would say the whole thing was impossible.

But truth is, and ever will be, stranger than fiction.

Let me tell that story with exact truth about dates, names, and persons. It is not necessary to mention my corps by way of censure; the plain facts show that some eminent people did not know near as much about the situation of affairs as they should have known.

Let us go back to the 30th day of June, about two weeks before.

Down on the banks of the Mississippi, at Morganza, above Port Hudson on the other side, the Nineteenth Army Corps was resting from the fatigues of the Red River campaign. We had been there over a month. An order came—suddenly, as such orders always did—to pull up and go aboard steamers immediately. We did so, and it was not till we were out of the Mississippi, and steaming across the Gulf, that we realized that we were coming North.

But when the orders for this movement left Washington, about ten days before, there was no thought that there was any danger in that quarter. Our corps was to report to Fortress Monroe, when it would be sent up to City Point, to be put in somewhere on the lines of that weary, dragging siege.

At the same time—June 30—the Sixth Corps lay in camp near Petersburg, never dreaming of the astonishing orders they were to receive.

And at Washington the garrisons of the forts did their routine duty, never suspecting that there were any dogs of the stars and bars nearer than Petersburg. And Secretary Stanton and General Halleck were much concerned to know how Grant was getting on; and there was no end of telegraphing every day between City Point and Washington.

Now, to bring up the threads of the story, we must go back to the 20th of May previous, when General Hunter took command in the Shenandoah Valley, and started to march up it with a small army. This was according to Grant's plan of making a simultaneous advance everywhere upon the Confederates.

No Union infantry ever went so far in that direction as did Hunter's. He fought a successful battle at Piedmont, destroyed a great deal of the enemy's war material, pushed through the gaps of the Blue Ridge, and sat down before Lynchburg. The movement was a grand success, so far, but it had reached the end of its rope. This little army was far off in the very heart of the Confederacy, with Richmond between it and Washington, without any base, and without supplies. If Hunter could have taken Lynchburg, he could not have held it; he would have been overwhelmed by detachments from Lee's army. But he could not take Lynchburg; it was heavily re-enforced by railroad the same day that he invested it. He found it necessary to retreat.

But when he came to look for a line of retreat, he discovered that the Shenandoah Valley was barred to him. General Early, with seventeen thousand men, had crossed the mountains ahead of him, and was waiting to give him battle should he come that way.

Out of ammunition, out of supplies of all kinds, Hunter was in no shape to fight. The question with him was not whether he could whip Early's fresh army; it was, whether he could save his own.

He did the best, by probably the only course open to him. He made a wide detour away west into the mountains of West Virginia, retreating hundreds of miles through the Kanawha Valley, and finally by the Ohio River, and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, to the Upper Potomac. It was a hard, painful march, and his men suffered everything from fatigue and hunger. Of course, this army was out of the fight, so far as concerned Washington. While Early was crossing the Potomac, Hunter was ascending the Ohio and descending the Kanawha, on his long back-door route home.

And now General Lee saw his chance, and promptly seized it.

For once, the Shenandoah Valley was entirely clear of Union troops, except some insignificant garrisons at Martinsburg and Harper's Ferry. There was no army whatever covering Washington by this route; there was nothing to defend it but its own garrison, which was not equal to an attack in great force. Never had there been such an opportunity to relieve Richmond and Petersburg by threatening Washington. He would send Early with his "foot cavalry" the length of the valley, to the Potomac; then he would be in rear of Washington, and by a rapid march might seize it.

The scheme was a dazzling one for the Confederacy, and it came perilously near success.

Let us now follow Early's march on Washington for about seven days.

On the 27th of June he was at Staunton; on the 2d of July at Winchester, sending his cavalry to raid and break up the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and destroy Government stores. The Union forces at Martinsburg and other points retired into Maryland, after some sharp fighting, and on July 5 Early crossed the Potomac at Shepherdstown.

The strangest part of this affair is the sublime confidence that General Halleck and Secretary Stanton felt and expressed that Washington was in no danger. Neither of them could be made to believe that a Confederate army was in Maryland, until the fact was plain to everybody.

They might have learned the truth a week earlier than they did had they believed the reports which General Sigel sent them from about Harper's Ferry. But they had no confidence at all in the dispatches that announced that the enemy was near the Potomac in force.

No doubt General Grant's assurances that General Lee had not detached any part of his army, caused the Washington people to feel secure.

Grant was woefully misled by his "Secret Service"—an institution of so-called "spies" and "scouts," which proved upon other occasions than this that it was an arrant humbug.

On the night of July 3, Grant telegraphed to Washington: "Early's corps is now here."

On that day Early was fighting at and occupying Martinsburg, two hundred miles off!

On the 5th of July, Secretary Stanton complacently wrote to Governor Curtin: "It seems to be a raiding expedition by some of the partisan robbers that infest that region."

On that day Early's army was crossing the Potomac into Maryland!

And just about this time Grant became convinced by what he heard from Maryland—not by anything his "Secret Service" told him—that the enemy was across the Potomac in force. He dispatched a division of the Sixth Corps to Baltimore by boats.

It reached there just in time to go out with the other troops that were at Baltimore, the whole not making more than six thousand, under General Lew Wallace, and meet Early's army on its way to Washington, at Monocacy Junction, near Frederick. A desperate and bloody battle followed. The Union forces were outnumbered three to one, and defeat was certain; but the sacrifice there made saved Washington. It put back Early's advance one golden day. Without that one day's grace Washington would have surely fallen!

The battle of Monocacy occurred July 9th. Wallace, with the remains of his force, fell back on Baltimore, and Early swooped down on Washington. His cavalry had passed clear around Baltimore, cutting the railroads and capturing trains. We left Early's army in front of Washington, coming down upon it from the north. A dash past the forts, if attempted soon enough, could have cost much blood; but it would have been successful.

It was now July 11th. Some important things had been happening.

On the night of the battle of Monocacy, the astounding news went to City Point by telegraph. Grant instantly ordered the two remaining divisions of the Sixth Corps to march to the Point, and embark for Washington.

By daylight of the 10th, they were steaming down the James. And Early's cavalry was even then in sight of the dome of the Capitol! And New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, did not know for whole days what flag was flying over Washington!

But now other Union troops were rapidly coming upon the scene. Steamer after steamer was putting into Hampton Roads, bearing the Nineteenth Corps; frantic telegrams from Washington awaited them, ordering everything instantly up the Potomac. Not an anchor was dropped; not a soldier went ashore at the Fortress. Up steam was the order, and away to menaced Washington!

It was just after noon of the 11th that the ocean steamer Crescent, bearing General Emory and headquarters of the Nineteenth Corps, reached the Sixth street wharf. The steamer also carried the One Hundred and Fifty-third New York, and four companies of the One Hundred and Fourteenth.

This was the advance of the Nineteenth Corps, being about eight hundred men. The other steamers were not far behind.

At the same hour the two divisions of the Sixth Corps, which had left City Point on the morning of the 10th, were also disembarking at the wharf.

A tall figure, a gaunt, careworn face, was there to greet the incoming soldiers. Eminent men, high military officers stood near him. He had some crackers in his hands, and munched them as he stood.

The blue blouses poured over the gangplanks of the steamers, muskets on their shoulders. The sharp voices of the First Sergeants were heard, "Fall in, company!"

The soldiers got sight of that face, crowned with a high hat, elevated by the height of the man clear above the crowd. Few of them had seen it before; but nobody could mistake it.

"Why, it's Lincoln!"

"Where?"

"There see!"

"By thunder, it is! I'm going to speak to him."

They crowded around him, the soldiers from the Army of the Potomac and from distant Louisiana together; they grasped his hands and greeted him with a kind of shy enthusiasm—these men who loved him.

Strong Abraham Lincoln, bearing the burdens of a nation, was powerfully affected in that moment. His homely face beamed with kindness as he greeted his soldiers.

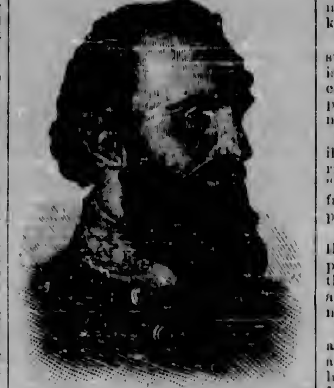
"God bless you, boys—I knew you'd come!" he said. "I guess we're safe now."

On Seventh street the soldiers marched, amid the cheers and shouts of the multitude that thronged the city. The booming of cannon hastened their steps; Fort Stevens was shelling Rodes' division. The eight hundred of the Nineteenth Corps were directed to Fort Saunders, where they held a line of rifle-pits; the Sixth went straight out from Fort Stevens and fought a battle that afternoon with the enemy in sight of the Capitol.

The next day Early retired toward the Potomac. The golden hour for attacking Washington was past; the city was saved. It was never threatened again during the war.—James Franklin Fitts, in Chicago Ledger.

Stonewall Jackson.

General Thomas Jonathan Jackson was born at Clarksburg, Va., Jan. 21, 1824, and died at Guinea Station, near Fredericksburg, May 10, 1863. He graduated at West Point in 1846, and served in the war with Mexico, in which he was brevetted as Captain and Major for gallant services at Contreras and Churubusco.



He also served in the Seminole war. In 1852 he resigned his commission in the army and was elected Professor of Natural Philosophy and Instructor in Artillery Tactics in the Virginia Military Academy, at Lexington.

At the opening of the late war he entered the Confederate service with the rank of Major, and was placed in command at Harper's Ferry. He was soon made Brigadier General, and took a prominent part in the first battle of Bull Run, on July 21, 1861. His gallant conduct in that fight, standing up against odds, gave him the sobriquet of Stonewall Jackson.

In the spring of 1862 General Jackson was in command in the Shenandoah Valley, where, by his celerity and skill, he foiled greatly superior forces under Banks, Fremont, Shields, and McDowell. He afterward joined the army of General Lee, and took a leading part in the battles of Cold Harbor and Malvern Hill. Soon after he was made Major General, and placed in command of nearly half of General Lee's army, and was an active participant in the second Bull Run battle. In the Antietam campaign General Jackson, by his rapid movements, captured 11,000 men at Harper's Ferry on September 15, and by a forced march joined General Lee, and took part in the battle of Antietam on September 17. After the battle of Chancellorsville, May 2, 1863, while on a reconnoissance he was fired upon by his own soldiers, who supposed the party to be Federal scouts, and died from wounds received. Stonewall Jackson was considered the most brilliant commander developed by the war of the rebellion on the Confederate side.—Chicago Ledger.

A Chicken Story.

The Twenty-fifth Wisconsin and two or three others had been sent off on a raid. In the afternoon the marching column was attacked by the Confederates, and Col. Rusk was ordered to take a small force and drive the enemy away. There was a swamp, thickly grown with small trees and bushes, through which these troops had to march. There seemed to be some hesitancy about entering the swamp. A sergeant said, "Colonel, I can take these men through there," and he did so. Colonel Rusk and several other officers, half an hour after the enemy had been scattered, were riding past a farm-house, when they discovered some of the soldiers doing lively work in the way of capturing poultry. The lady of the house rushed up to Rusk and asked, excitedly:

"Are these your men, Colonel?"

"They are, madam."

"Well, I wish you would tell them not to steal my chickens."

"Madam, your chickens are perfectly safe. The sergeant over there is in charge of these men, and he will allow no plundering. Why, madam, that sergeant is a Methodist minister, and would not permit anything of the kind to be done."

The lady threw up her hands and said, "A Methodist minister! Oh, Lord, I shan't have a chicken left."

James B. Kimball.

James B. Kimball, the newly appointed Director of the Mint, was born in Salem, Mass., in 1836. He graduated at Harvard University and at the Mining School of Freiberg, Saxony, and in 1857 graduated with the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at the famous University of Gottingen. During the war he served as Assistant Adjutant General on the staffs of Generals Patrick, McClellan, Burnside, Hooker, and Meade, respectively. His reputation as a mining engineer and metallurgist is established and widespread. At one time Dr. Kimball was Vice President of the American Institute of Mining Engineers. When he received his present appointment he was Professor of Economic Geology at Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa. He is President of the Everitt Iron Company, Pennsylvania.

The disposition to exaggerate developed early in the soldier's career, and continued with him to the last. It was a recruit fresh from the farm who remarked of a precocious drummer boy that he must be the chap that ran away from home when fifteen months old because he heard his parents intended to call him Horatio, and who advised a comrade with big feet, who wished for a boot-jack, to go back to the forks of the road and pull his boots off. Another recruit gets credit for this: An Indiana regiment was in camp near Indianapolis for some weeks before going to the front. After joining the army in the field it was rumored that a large number of letters for members of the regiment had been detained in the Indianapolis postoffice. "What will be done with them?" said one soldier to another; "Oh, I suppose," said the other, "they will be sent to the dead-letter office and we can get them when we are killed."

PITH AND POINT.

The first thing in a boot is the last.

The main-spring of time—March, April, and May.

Why should not ducks be allowed on doctors' premises? Because they make such personal remarks.

Amid all the mutations of time it has never yet been discovered why a lawyer calls any legal document a brief.

"Riches have wings," and it's no use to invent a flying machine for poor people, as they couldn't buy it.—Newman Independent.

"What's the trouble here, Mickey?" "Don't you know? There's a street car th-up." "O, I see. That's why so many people are standing around in knots."—Philadelphia Call.

An Austin man sent one dollar in answer to an advertisement which promised for that amount to tell "Why I became a Mason," and he received the reply, "Because I didn't want to be a shoemaker."—Texas Siftings.

A Baptist minister was once asked how it was that he consented to the marriage of his daughter to a Presbyterian. "Well my dear friend," he replied, "as far as I have been able to discover, Cupid never studied theology."

"Say, my friend, where did you get that black eye?" "Fell against a (the) post." "Ah, my dear sir, I'm afraid that your black eye is the trademark of a drunkard." "No, sir; taint trademark—nothing but a post-mark."

"What is a good test of a diamond?" asks a correspondent. About as good a test as any is to ask the jeweler you buy it of what he will take it back for. If he will offer half as much as it costs it is apt to be a genuine stone.—N. Y. Graphic.

A Franklin County fellow has won a bet by eating sixteen pies in twenty minutes. There are some men that find glory in a performance in which every little pig is their equal and every big hog their superior.—Pittsburgh Bulletin.

Wife of a rich rural Californian at her first grand dinner. The Colonel offers his arm: "I am to have the pleasure of taking you out to dinner, Mrs. A." Rich rural wife: "Go 'long with you; my husband is here; take your own wife!"—Puck.

Husband (looking round impatiently for his boots)—My dear, will you be so kind and condescending as to inform me where in thunder my boots have been put? Wife (with bitter sarcasm)—You will find them just where you left them when you came in at 2 o'clock this morning—at the foot of the stairs.

"A DEAD GIVE-AWAY."

He was a bridegroom newly made—a wedding tourist he;
His bride sat in the waiting-room, as sweet as sweet could be;
Yet one would think that he had been a husband half his life
As on the register he wrote: "J. Percy Nowe and wife."
But as he raised his shiny hat, that showed no mark of age,
A shower of rice fell from within upon the open page.
"Enough!" the jeweled clerk exclaimed, and brushed away the rice.
"John, bridal chamber No. 4 (two charge him double price)."
—Life.

"My friends," said a clergyman in a Dakota town which is enjoying a boom, as he arose in the pulpit, "we will dispense with the services this morning and give our attention to a work of greater importance. As you are probably all aware, a party of eastern capitalists arrived in the city last night with a view to investing in real estate, and we will now consider ourselves dismissed and go down to the hotel and work them. We want to hustle right along too, before some of those revivalists from Plugtown get hold of them and shove off some of their swamp lands onto them.—Dakota Bell.

Mary Stuart's Amusements.

Our sketch of Mary Stuart would not be complete if we limited ourselves to the more serious side of her character merely. If she did not deserve the reputation for utter thoughtlessness and frivolity which some of her puritanical contemporaries have given her, she was undoubtedly fond of amusements, says a writer in the Gentleman's Magazine for March. The memoirs and correspondence of the time often show her seeking recreation in popular sports and pastimes; indeed, Randolph describes life at the Scottish court for the first two years after her return from France as one continual round of "feasts, banqueting, masking, running at the ring, and such like." It was to Mary, as Knox testifies, that the introduction into Scotland of those primitive dramatic performances known as masques or triumphs was due. They soon became so popular that they formed the chief entertainment at every festival. The Queen herself and her attendants, particularly the four Maries, often took part in them, either acting in mere dumb show, or reciting the verses which the elegant pen of Buchanan supplied, and singing the songs which Rizzio composed, and of which the melodies may very possibly be those which, wedded to more modern verse, are still popular among the Scottish peasantry. Not only were these masques performed in the large halls of the feudal castles, but in the open air also, near the little lake at the foot of Arthur's Seat. It may cause some astonishment at the present day to find not only the maids of honor, but the Queen herself assuming the dress of the other sex in these masquerades. Yet the Diurnal of Occurrents records, without expressing either indignation or even astonishment at the fact, that "the Queen's grace and all her Maries and ladies were all clad in men's apparel" in the "maskery or mumschance" given one Sunday evening in honor of the French Ambassador.

A Dog's Gratitude.

An engineer on the Rock Island Railroad tells this story of the gratitude of a dog:

"While running along Joliet I saw a fine big black dog stuck fast under an old farm gate by the side of the track. He was howling piteously, and I stopped my engine and went to his assistance. He was wild with gratitude, licked my hand, and wanted to follow me into the cab. Every day after that I would see him sitting beside the track and wagging his tail as my train went by. Several weeks later the train was running a great speed, being behind time, just at daybreak. The dog stood on the track ahead barking furiously. As we drew near he moved ahead, but continued his antics. I supposed, of course, that he would leave the track, but he did not, and the train ran over him and ground him to pieces. We stopped the train and were astonished at finding a short distance ahead an obstruction on the track that would surely have derailed the train had we struck it at full speed."

Agitation is the marshaling of the conscience of a nation to mold its laws.—Sir R. Peel.

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

BY BEN: PERLEY POORE.

Senator Benton always asserted that he had a right to state what he did and said in executive session. When, after the Mexican war, he had resisted the nomination of Brigadier-Gen. Kearney as Major General by brevet, because of his treatment of Col. Fremont, Mr. Benton gave to a reporter some resolutions which he had prepared, denouncing Gen. Kearney, saying: "Take these, if you please, sir, and print them. I give them to you in the presence of these witnesses. I desire that they be promulgated to the country." The resolutions were taken by the correspondent and duly printed.

A few days afterwards, Mr. Butler made a motion that the galleries be cleared and the doors closed, for the purpose of enabling him to make a motion concerning the violation of certain executive proceedings. Every one knew that Mr. Benton had avowed the publication of his resolutions against Gen. Kearney, avowed it and glorified in it, and defied all objections to it. An altercation of an hour followed, with excited remarks made under the cover of discussing the question of order, the perpetual sneers and jeers of Mr. Benton, his hundred interjectional exclamations, his final pompous declaration that he threw upon Mr. Butler the necessity of saying what he did, that he was ready to meet the Senator from Missouri anywhere. Mr. Benton, although his defiance was thus accepted, continued to assert that the man who charged him with doing anything dishonorable was a liar in his throat. One cannot conceive the violence and defiance which he threw into his manner, his emphasis and gesticulations. Never did he better merit his sobriquet "The Mad Buffalo of the Plains."

John Taliaferro, who represented a Virginia district in Congress from 1801 to 1843, with two brief intervals, was during the last year of his term the same man that he was when he was the confidential adviser of Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, the same man that he was when he opposed the administration of the elder Adams. Col. Taliaferro had always lived liberally, and had enjoyed, as much as any man that ever lived, social pleasures, in all their approved forms. At a supper party he was asked what his secret was. He replied that he had never known disease, that he had never made but one meal a day, that if he took supper he did not dine, that he had risen early, had always used exercise, and never on horseback when he could go on foot; and that under all circumstances, he had preserved an equality of temper. His rule was never to suffer that which was past to prey upon his mind, to enjoy what Providence sent him, and to trust to the future. He finally served as librarian of the Treasury Department, and died in 1853, aged 85.

The battle of Bull Run was the real commencement of the war, as it showed that the time for compromise was past. This was what the abolitionists had longed for, as they had feared that some amicable adjustment of the national troubles would have been made at the Peace Congress, and their organs shouted, "On to Richmond!" although military men were unanimous in their opposition to a forward movement. At last Gen. McDowell reluctantly consented to advance, and having found that the enemy's works commanding the fords could not be carried by assault without a great loss, concentrated his forces at Centreville, and advanced by the flank around the fords to attack the Confederates at Manassas. The advancing columns of Union soldiers, with glistening bayonets, gay flags and bands performing patriotic airs, moved through the primeval forests of the Old Dominion. They were accompanied by a crowd of spectators, who had driven out from Washington to witness the fight, as they would have gone to witness a horse-race or a game of base-ball. The Union officers, smarting under the insinuations of politicians that they dared not fight, gallantly led their undisciplined commands into the range of the enemy's guns, where they fought like veterans. At first it was thought that victory had perched on the Union flags, but the decimated Confederates received fresh courage from the arrival of reinforcements, and the tide of battle was turned in their favor. A retreat was ordered, which soon became a disgraceful rout, and it was impossible to control men who had lost all presence of mind and only longed for absence of body.

The Confederates were in no condition to follow up the victory which they had gained and to press on to Washington, and the defeat secured the support of every loyal man in the Northern States for the Union cause, whatever his previous political convictions might have been. Practical issues were presented, and there was no time for hesitation or indecision. To use the words of Stephen A. Douglas in his last public speech: "The conspiracy is now known, armies have been raised, war is levied to accomplish it. There are only two sides to the question. Every man must be for the United States or against it. There can be no neutrals in this war; only republicans or traitors."

Clark Mills, the sculptor, used to narrate how Mr. Browere, a New York sculptor, attempted to take a cast in plaster of the head of Thomas Jefferson. The family of the ex-President were opposed to it, but he finally consented, saying that he could not find it in his heart to refuse a man so trifling a favor who had come so far. He was placed on his back on a sofa, one of his hands grasping a chair which stood in front. Not dreaming of any danger, his family could not bear to see him with the plaster over his face, and therefore were not present; and his faithful Burwell was the only person beside the artist in the room. There was some defect in the arrangements made to permit him breathing, and Mr. Jefferson came near suffocating. He was too weak to rise or relieve himself, and his feeble struggles were unnoticed or unheeded by his Parrhasius. The sufferer finally bethought himself of the chair on which his hand rested. He raised it as far as he was able and struck it on the floor. Burwell became conscious of his situation and sprang furiously forward. The artist shattered his cast in an instant. The family now reached the room, and Browere looked as if he thought their arrival most opportune, for though Burwell was supporting his master in his arms, the fierce glare of the African eye boded danger. Browere was permitted to pick up his fragments of plaster and carry them off, but whether he ever put them together to represent features emaciated with age and debility, and writhing in suffocation, Mills did not know.

John Quincy Adams, in the closing years of his life, attended the Sunday-morning services at the Second Presbyterian Church when he was at Washington, when his health permitted. No distance, no storm, prevented; he was an all-day hearer. The great snow-storm of February, 1846, which closed nearly all the churches in the country, did not keep Mr. Adams from the house of God. He was one of thirteen persons present in the Second Presbyterian Church at Washington, and returned home through the deep snow on foot at the close of the service.

Mr. Adams said to the pastor of this church, Rev. M. H. Smith, "I hold in great distrust all my early opinions on religion. As I advance in life I feel more and more distrust of all self-formed opinions. I throw myself back upon the simple word of God. I receive what that teaches. I go where that leads. I should not, I suppose, be considered fully orthodox, according to the standard of the Presbyterian Church. I am edified by its ministry."

Henry Clay, when he visited New York the last time, expressed a wish to renew his acquaintance with Albert Gallatin, which had been broken off after a debate in which harsh words were used. A venerable age was admonishing both of them that their time on earth was not for many years. Mr. Clay, with the generous enthusiasm inherent in his very nature, resolved, it seemed, so soon as he arrived in the city, to discharge, as one of his earliest and most pleasing duties, that of an apology to Mr. Gallatin for the severity of his remarks provoked during the unguarded heat of a warm debate. The imagination can easily draw the picture of two renowned statesmen thus coming together, the one frankly to confess and to ask pardon for an error. It was indeed a spectacle worthy of the gods, and no man can describe, even if imagination can picture it.

Stalking an Indian Baby.

I had often longed for a good picture of a Navajo baby in its native plains, and here was an opportunity not to be lost, writes an enthusiastic amateur photographer in Nature, describing a visit to an Indian village. So, stepping a few feet out of the way, in an instant I had my instrument in position, focused on the path, and, with instantaneous snap ready, I stood quietly for my subject to pass. On he toddled, until he came within about thirty feet of me, where he stopped, and, to my surprise, seemed to fully take in the situation.

At this stage I feel quite sure that one of our babies, especially at this tender age, would have begun to cry, and more than likely retraced its steps to the hut from whence it had issued. Not so, however, this infant Navajo; and mark the difference. He steadily watched my every movement, and was evidently determined to reach the lower hut. Very cautiously leaving the path on the side farthest from me, he was, in the next instant, behind one of the sage brushes, which was something over a foot taller than the baby. From this position he peered through the leafless twigs at me to see what I would do about it. A little annoyed at this turn in affairs I threw the focusing cloth over my head and turned the instrument on him. Taking advantage of this temporary concealment of my head, he ran, thoroughly baby-fashion, to the next lower brush, a distance of some ten feet, where hiding as before, he crouched down and stared at me like a young lynx through the twigs. He now looked for all the world the young Indian cub at bay, with all the native instincts of his ancestors on the alert, and making use of all the strategy his baby mind could muster. It was a wonderfully interesting picture to study; but, fearing that I would lose a permanent memento of it, I turned to lift my instrument, with the view of taking a much nearer position, when again facing the brush where I had last seen the baby, it was to my great surprise not there, but had scampered to the next lower one, in the direction of the hut for which it was bound.

I ran upon its last place of concealment, holding my camera in such a way that I could immediately place the tripod in position, which I succeeded in doing, with the lens leveled directly at its head and not three feet from it. It now stood up to the full extent of its baby height, and giving vent to a genuine infantile bawl, it made a break for the final point of its destination, for there was nothing else left for it to do. It is almost needless to add that before I could focus and insert a plate my Navajo baby was out of range.—Boston Herald.

The Appetite of Birds.

Of all animals birds possess the quickest motions, the most energetic respiration, and the warmest blood, and they consequently undergo the most rapid change of substance and need the most food. Although few creatures are so pleasing to the esthetic tastes of a poetically inclined person as birds, the breeder knows that most of them are to be looked upon as hearty or excessive eaters. Any one who closely observes birds and their conduct will soon remark that all their thoughts and efforts, aside from the few days they spend in wooing and their short periods of resting, are directed to getting something to eat. With what restless earnestness do titmice plunge through the bushes and the trees! Not a leaf is uninvestigated, every chink in the bark is examined for whatever eatable it may be hiding, and a sharp look is cast into every joint of a branch. How industriously does the ousel turn and thrash the leaves on the ground of the woods all the day long, spying its game with a glance of its sharp eye, and snapping it up on the instant! After observing a few such incidents we can easily believe the stories that are related of the fish-eating powers of the cormorant and of the fruit-eating birds that are able to consume three times their weight every day.—Popular Science Monthly.

Getting Even.

Stranger—What is the most powerful bomb you can make for me?

Anarchist—Well, sir, give me money and time enough and I can construct an implement of devastation which would shake the whole city of New York like a house of cards!

Stranger—Would it make much noise?

Anarchist—My dear sir, the concussion would be felt for hundreds of miles!

Stranger—You don't say so! My friend, you can build me one of the machines, and have it done next Saturday night, if possible.

Anarchist—Excuse me, sir; are you a Socialist?

Stranger—Not to any great extent; but I live next door to a fashionable church with a bell-ringing sexton. I want to play a little joke on him when he starts the circus on Sunday morning.—Puck.

Bret Harte was a very active book agent in 1849 and 1850.

The Prison Barber.

I was on the levee at New Orleans one day in the summer of 1868, watching a steamer take on the last of her cargo for up the river. A great many passengers were going up, and a number of colored people. One of the latter, who was two-thirds white and about 20 years of age, and as trim in figure as any lady you ever saw, halted for a moment before going aboard to speak to a couple of lady friends. They were chatting away of her marriage, which had occurred a fortnight before, when a well-dressed, half-drunken middle-aged man came along on his way to the gang-plank and the boat. As he reached the three women he put his arm around the bride and lifted her off the ground. Perhaps he only meant it for a joke, but it was a rude one, and she resented it by calling him a white trash loafer.

"Eh? What!" he exclaimed, firing up at once. "You are to cussed proud for a nigger, you are! You need toning down!"

"You go on!" she replied, drawing away from him.

"Eh? Wench! I think I'll do the toning myself."

With that he threw his arm around her, lifted her on his hip and set out to carry her aboard the steamer, which lay outside the wharf-boat. The woman struggled and screamed, while the man laughed and chuckled, and everybody's attention was attracted. In carrying her from the wharf-boat to the steamer his foot struck some object in the path and both went down together, but he fell on the plank and she between the two boats. The current caught and carried her down and sucked her under the boat, and though the body was fished out in ten minutes, it was lifeless. Just as it had been brought to the wharf-boat the husband of the dead bride came down the levee. When he understood what had occurred it seemed as if he would go raving mad. It was a quarter of an hour before he was calm enough to understand how it happened. The man who promoted the accident stood by, pretty well sobered, but exhibiting no sorrow, and by and by the husband walked up to him, face as white as snow and revealing his great mental agony, and said:

"You have blighted my life, and I swear to have your life if I hunt for it a lifetime!"

He was hustled away by friends, the steamer blew her whistle and cast off, and that was the end of chapter first.

How I came to be sent to a certain Southern State prison in the year 1872 is none of the reader's business. I went there in the company of a man who had stabbed another over a game of cards. He was a full-whiskered, vicious looking chap, and an utter stranger to me. We were both received at once, and both sent to the barber's at once. His turn in the chair came first, there being but one barber in the room at that time. I sat on a bench to wait, and while waiting I studied the face of the barber, which had a familiar look to me. He was a quadroon, and it took me about five minutes to identify him as the husband of the woman drowned off the wharf-boat four years before. Little by little his features came back to memory, and by and by I knew that he was the man. What strange chance had brought us together and in such a place?

Pretty soon I noticed that the barber was greatly agitated. He was very pale, his hands trembled, and he paused now and then to draw a long breath. The man in the chair cursed him for his carelessness, and the guard spoke sharply and asked if he was sick. This seemed to brace him up a bit, and he went ahead until the man's face was bare. I was then I looked at it and knew that I had seen it before, though I could not recall time or place. I was trying to remember, when the barber stepped back, took a brief survey, and with a motion swift as lightning, drew the razor across the prisoner's throat with the exclamation:

"You are the one! You killed my wife and sent me here!"

The guard and I started up, but before we could prevent it the barber slashed his own throat and fell to the floor to die inside of three minutes. The man in the chair did not live that long, as the stroke almost severed his head from his body. He was, indeed, the same man. I might not have recognized him, but he could not escape the keen-eyed vengeance of the husband whose every hour was given up to thought of revenge for his desolation.—Detroit Free Press.

Young Men and Single Life.

It is undoubtedly true that a single life is not without its advantages for some. There are hundreds of young men, as there are a like number of young women, to whom a married life would be unsuitable and unwise. It is an inexcusable sin for any young man of hereditary ill-health or deformity to assume marriage, and to such a one single life has advantages, even though it holds out few pleasures. But that young man who is possessed with every bodily and mental equipment, and who marries not, fails in one of the most palpable duties of life. He deprives himself of life's most refined and exalted pleasures, of some of its strongest incentives to virtue and activity, and sets an example unworthy of imitation. Nothing has, or should have, a greater restraining or moralizing influence to a young man than marriage. If he remains unmarried, he lays himself open to alluring vices that have no place in his eye or mind when his attentions and affections are centered upon a devoted wife. Marriage changes the current of a man's feelings, and gives him a center for his thoughts, his affections, and his acts. It renders him more virtuous, more wise, and is an incentive to put forth his best exertions to attain position in commercial and social circles. It is conceded that marriage will increase the cares of a young man which he would not encounter if he remained single, but it must be granted, on the other hand that it heightens the pleasures of life. If marriage, in some instances within our knowledge, has seemed to be but a hindrance to certain success, the countless instances must not be forgotten where it has proved to be the incentive which has called forth the best part of man's nature, rescued him from selfish apathy, and inspired in him those generous principles and high resolves which have helped to develop him into a character known, loved, and honored by all within the sphere of its influence. Matrimony, it is true, is chargeable with numberless solicitudes and responsibilities, and this all young men should fully understand before entering upon it, but it is also full of joy and happiness that is unknown to the bachelor.—Brooklyn Magazine.

Liberty is the right to do what the laws allow; and if a citizen could do what they forbid it would be no longer liberty, because others would have the same power.—Montesquieu.

Living Ladies of the White House.

Mrs. Grover Cleveland.

Mrs. Julia Gardiner Tyler, widow of President Tyler.

Mrs. James K. Polk, widow of President Polk.

Mrs. Rutherford B. Hayes, wife of ex-President Hayes, who was there four years.

Miss Rose Elizabeth Cleveland, who had the place for fifteen months.

Mrs. Julia Dent Grant, ex-President Grant's widow, who lived eight years in the White House.

Mrs. James A. Garfield, widow of President Garfield, who lived only six months in the Executive Mansion.

Mrs. Harriet Lane Johnson, the niece of President Buchanan, who was for four years the mistress of the Executive Mansion.

Mrs. Ellen Arthur McElroy, the late ex-President Arthur's sister, who was the lady of the White House during several months of each of the three years and a half while he was President.

Mrs. Patterson, the daughter of President Johnson, who, the wife of the latter being old and not in very good health, jointly with her sister, Mrs. Stover, now dead, did the honors of the White House while their father was President.

Mrs. Semple, step-daughter of Mrs. Tyler and now an inmate of the Louise Home, in Washington City, who during the period between her own mother's death, about September, 1842, and the marriage of her father in 1844, was the head of his household in the President's mansion, a longer period than her step-mother held that place, who was married in June, 1844, and left the White House with her husband when his term expired, in March, 1845.

Though Shaken Like a Leaf

By the most trivial causes, weak nerves are easily susceptible of invigoration, a term which also imports, in this instance, quietude. The nervous have but to use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters systematically to overcome that super-sensitiveness of the human sensorium, which is subversive of all bodily comfort and mental tranquillity, and which reacts most hurtfully upon the system. The difficulty underlying this, as well as many other ailments, is imperfect assimilation, no less than incomplete digestion of the food. In the discharge of both of the digestive and assimilative functions, the Bitters are the most potent, the most reliable auxiliary. As this both regains vigor and regularity by its aid, the brain and nervous system are also benefited. Persons subject to the influence of malaria, dyspeptic and rheumatic invalids, and persons whose kidneys are inactive, should, also, use the Bitters.

How to Build Chimneys.

For those parts of a chimney which are supported throughout, stone may, under some circumstances, says the American Architect, be admissible, but brick is always preferable for the purpose. The abutments of a chimney should be tied into the walls by wrought-iron bars, of sufficient number and strength, turned up and down at the ends, and built into the jambs for several inches on each side. No part of the flue should be of less thickness than half brick, or four and one-half inches. Where slabs of stone or slate are placed level with a floor before the opening of a chimney, they should invariably be laid in sound mortar, cement, or other incombustible and nonconducting substances, and it should be at a distance of not less than four and one-half inches from the joists, flooring, or other woodwork. A chimney built only up to the roof, and stopping at that point is always dangerous. Every chimney in a house should be perfectly separate and distinct from every other chimney, from the hearth to the external opening. Chimneys may safely be built in stacks, but they should on no account have any connection with the stacks. Brick-work around the flues should not be less than four and one-half inches thick in any part. By the code Napoleon it was not permitted to build a chimney against the wall of an adjoining house without isolating it by an intermediate wall of sufficient thickness to prevent heat passing to the neighboring premises.

Moxie and Nervous Women.

Its effect is said to quite remarkable, though the Moxie plant, which is all of it that can produce the result, is as tasteless and harmless as grass. The nervous, weakly women flock after it like mad, and it is said by them to stop nervousness at once, and give them double powers of endurance, while it neither acts like nor leaves a reaction like a stimulant, but leaves its effects like a medicine. It is said to remove nervous and other complaints by making the nerves strong enough to control the functions of the body properly when the cause of ill-health disappears, while medicine forces the functions of the body, leaving the nerves weak from being compelled to overtask. We hope our druggists will keep full stocks.

Contents of a Confederate Musket.

Charles Folsom, of Boscawen, traded recently with J. Edwin Gage, the gunsmith of this city, for two old army muskets, which were called in the trade worth about $1 each. Folsom took the muskets home, and offered to give one of them to a neighbor for a day's work. The night before he was to get rid of it he set about fixing it up a little, in the course of which he detected a rattle about the stock. In seeking for the cause of the noise he removed the lock, then the barrel, and finally the strip of iron on the butt of the stock. This disclosed the secret. The butt had been neatly hollowed out, making a good-sized treasure-box. In it were six 50-cent silver coins, three 25-cent ones, two $20 bills of Confederate money, a musket ball, and a letter. The latter was written by the wife of a Confederate soldier to her husband, and described a visit by the Yankees a short time before, and the capture by them of her father. Its sentiments were evidently those of the women of the Confederacy. It spoke of returning the money he had sent her, as she could do nothing with it, and this was doubtless the money found with the letter. The musket was purchased with a lot of others, and had evidently been captured after its bearer had fallen in battle.—Concord (N. H.) Monitor.

Mr. John Roff, champion bicyclist of the world, living at Sydney, Australia, says: "After riding 1,000 miles against time St. Jacobs Oil removed all fatigue and pains."

The Boston and Albany Railroad cars are now lighted electrically by a new method, which promises to be a success. Each car is fitted up with ten incandescent lamps of twenty-five candle power, while the platform is lighted by another lamp. The power of light is derived from two storage batteries or accumulators placed in suitable receptacles under the car, and these storage batteries are said to be sufficient to supply the lights eight and a half hours. It is claimed that the great objection to storage batteries heretofore has been their short life, but that Mr. Julien has invented a new metal for the supporting plates whereby the life of the battery is almost indefinitely prolonged; indeed, that experiments have shown that after eighteen months' use they are as healthy and serviceable as when they were made.

MEXICAN POLITENESS.

Mr. Fred Ober relates how, when he went to Mexico first, an exceedingly bashful young bachelor, profuse offers of gifts by way of politeness embarrassed him considerably. Riding beside his guide, soon after landing, he happened to express admiration for the horse the latter rode, and inquired if it were his own. "Si, senor," replied the man, "and yours also." He ventured but one more question that day, hours later, in the house of the muchacha who prepared their supper, when he thoughtlessly asked the guide if she were his sweetheart. "Yes, my friend, he answered, "and yours also." That silenced him for a long time, until one day, chancing to meet a more child, with beautiful, oval face and large, dark eyes, who could not have been more than 14 years old, affectionately tending a baby, he asked, in surprise, if it were hers. "Si, senor," came the ready answer, "and yours also!"

In Mexico it is considered more polite to say senorita (miss) instead of senora (Mrs.), even to married ladies, and the matron of the house, though bent with her weight of threescore years and ten, is always spoken of by her servants as "La Nina"—the little girl. This last custom is still more common in Cuba, where the old negresses, who spend all their lives in the family, are accustomed to call their young mistresses ninas, and never change the name at any age. In Mexico, however, the diminutive signifies rather a term of endearment than any reference to age or size.

In Mexico all ladies address one another, and are usually addressed by gentlemen, by their given names. It is at first rather startling to a stranger to be so familiarly spoken to by those whom one has seen but once or twice, but things must be taken as they are meant, and no undue familiarity being intended, none should be imagined. To take offense would be to imitate the Italian mentioned by Lady Blessington, who thought he had made a conquest of a fair English woman, though somewhat shocked by her forwardness, because in an indifferent note to him she had signed herself "yours truly."

A Mexican gentleman who had just purchased a very handsome set of London harness, hearing it admired by a Frenchman, carelessly gave the customary answer: "It is quite at your disposal," and was answered by a profusion of bows and ready acceptance of the offer. The only difficulty with the Frenchman appeared to be whether or not he could carry it home under his cloak, which he finally did.

Gentlemen in Mexico embrace when they meet, and often actually kiss each other. A not unpleasant sight is to see two lusty fellows giving one another a hearty hug—though you know that within the hour they may be carving each other with their stilettos.

All associations of base-ball players use St. Jacobs Oil for sprains, bruises, pains, and aches. Indeed all athletic clubs and individual members use it for the same.

The Most Healthy People.

It has been shown in an interesting paper read before the Royal Statistical Society that the mortality in the professional and independent classes is much less than in the laboring classes. The most healthy persons are clergymen, farmers, and gardeners; the most unhealthy inn and hotel servants, general laborers, and fruit-sellers. Infant mortality is many times as great in the general-service class as in the professional and independent class. "All mechanical work is injurious to the health" is not to be deduced from these conclusions.

A Wonderful Freak of Nature is sometimes exhibited in our public exhibitions. When we gaze upon some of the peculiar freaks Dame Nature occasionally indulges in, our minds revert back to the creation of man, "who is so fearfully and wonderfully made." The mysteries of his nature have been unraveled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, and through the knowledge of those mysteries he has been able to prepare his "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a specific for all blood taints, poisons, and humors, such as scrofula, pimples, blotches, eruptions, swellings, tumors, ulcers, and kindred affections. By druggists.

Age before beauty—A piece of spring chicken on a pretty girl's plate.

Throw the Powder Overboard.

Were thrilling words, spoken at a time of great danger. The lives of all on the vessel depended upon prompt action. Your life may be blessed and prolonged by the prompt use of Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic for that blood trouble.

Mensman's Peptonized Beef Tonic, the only preparation of beef containing its entire nutritious properties. It contains blood-making, force-generating, and life-sustaining properties; invaluable for indigestion, dyspepsia, nervous prostration, and all forms of general debility; also in all enfeebled conditions, whether the result of exhaustion, nervous prostration, overwork, or acute disease, particularly if resulting from pulmonary complaints. Caswell, Hazard & Co., proprietors, New York. Sold by druggists.

Lyon's Patent Metallic Stiffeners prevent boots and shoes from running over, ripping in the seams or wearing unevenly on the heels.

Relief is immediate, and a cure sure. Piso's Remedy for Catarrh. 50 cents.

What Everybody Says

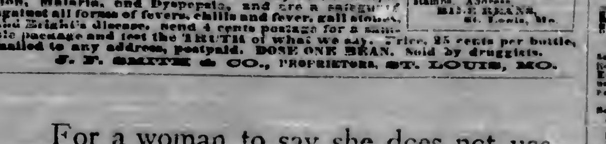
Must be true. And the unanimous praise which people who have used it give Hood's Sarsaparilla should convince those who have never tried this medicine of its great curative powers. If you suffer from impure blood, that tired feeling, dyspepsia, sick headache, or kidney and liver complaints, give Hood's Sarsaparilla a fair trial and you will be greatly benefited.

"My wife has had very poor health for a long time, suffering from indigestion, poor appetite, and constant headache. She found no relief till she tried Hood's Sarsaparilla. She is now taking the third bottle, and never felt better in her life." G. Somerville, Moreland, Cook Co., Ill.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar



This represents a healthy life. Throughout its various scenes.

Just such a life as they enjoy Who use the Smith's Pills Beans.

Smith's BILE BEANS purify the blood, by acting directly and promptly on the Liver, Skin and Kidneys. They consist of a vegetable combination that has no equal in medical science. They cure Constipation, Malaria, and Dyspepsia, and are a safeguard against all forms of fevers, chills and fever, gall stones, and Bright's disease. Send 4 cents postage for a sample package and test the TRUTH of what we say. Price, 25 cents per bottle, mailed to any address, postpaid. DOSE ONE BEAN. Sold by druggists.

J. F. SMITH & CO., PROPRIETORS, ST. LOUIS, MO.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times."

Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

$500 Not Called For.

It seems strange that it is necessary to persuade men that you can cure their disease by offering a premium to the man who fails to receive benefit. And yet Dr. Sage undoubtedly cured thousands of cases of obstinate catarrh with his "Catarrh Remedy," who would never have applied to him if it had not been for his offer of the above sum for an incurable case. Who is the next bidder for cure or cash?

If you want to buy a thermometer, we advise you to wait until next winter. They will be lower then.

A Bonanza Mine

Of health is to be found in Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," to the merits of which, as a remedy for female weakness and kindred affections, thousands testify.

The green grocer in London is one who sells vegetables. In this country he is one who trusts.

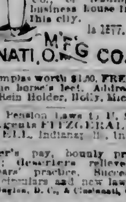
Dressmaking.

Many Dressmakers find it very difficult to secure well-fitting dresses for their patrons. The harsh, stiff bones and steels that they have been obliged to use for Dress Stays are very disagreeable for many ladies to wear, and at best they break so soon that the beauty and fit of the dress is very soon destroyed. The invention of a new Dress Stay which is soft and pliable, yielding to every movement of the body, giving the wearer perfect ease, and also proving itself to be absolutely unbreakable, has made quite a new departure in Dressmaking. Warren's Featherbone is the name of this new Stay.

It is made from quills, and is an entirely new invention, having been manufactured only about three years; but it is now largely used by dressmakers in all the large cities and many of the larger towns throughout the United States.

The manner by which it is attached to the dress waist is a new feature in dressmaking, and is patented by the inventor of the Featherbone. This method consists in attaching the dress stay to the seam by sewing directly through the Featherbone, which attaches the stay to the seam all along the entire length, entirely preventing the formation of any wrinkles, and giving a smooth and elegant finish to the dress that cannot be secured by any other stay. It being so soft, a very close fitting garment can be made, and yet be comfortable to the wearer.

It is said that perspiration and even laundering does not injure it in the least. It is sold by the yard, made in black and white and all colors, so that white dresses or waists and any color of dress lining may be matched as desired. It is finished in three different coverings—thread-covered, cloth-covered, and an elegant satin-covered, which makes as fine a finish as could be desired for the finest dresses. In short, this new dress stay possesses apparently all the advantages that anyone can wish for, and not only comes at a time when whalebone is rapidly disappearing, but is proving itself superior to whalebone in every respect. No wonder that it is so rapidly commending itself to dressmakers and dress-wearers.



$3 PANTS. $3 SHOES.

HANDSOME, STYLISH PANTS made to order in the latest style. Perfect Fit guaranteed or money refunded. For samples of cloth and a foot tape measure (worth 10c.) send 2 2c. stamps. Circulars Free. Established 1877.

OUR FULL SEAMLESS SHOES beat the world. Made in sizes and styles to please. Perfect fit guaranteed. We refer to any Bank, Express Co., or leading business house in this city.

THE HUNTER MFG CO. CINCINNATI, O.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50, FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Address Brewster's Safety Rein Holder, Holly, Mich.

PENSIONS Send for Pension Laws to U. S. Claim Agents FITZGERALD & POWELL, Indianapolis, Ind.

PENSIONS, Officer's pay, bounty procured; deserters relieved. 21 years' practice. Success or no fee. Write for circulars and new laws. A. W. McCormick & Son, Washington, D. C., & Cincinnati, O.

ADVERTISERS or others who wish to examine this paper, or obtain estimates on advertising space when in Chicago will find it on file at 45 to 49 Randolph St., the Advertising Agency of LORD & THOMAS.

WARREN'S FEATHERBONE DRESS STAY: Soft, pliable and absolutely unbreakable. Standard quality, 15 cents per yard; Cloth-covered, 20 cents; Satin-covered, 25 cents. For sale everywhere. Try it. WARREN FEATHERBONE COMPANY, Three Oaks, Mich.

BEST ROOFING Send for Price List. Catalogue and Samples Free! Write at once. NO TAR. ESTAB. 1866. W. H. FAY & CO., Camden, N. J. Also St. Louis, Minneapolis, Omaha.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for TANSILL'S PUNCH 5¢

It is the unanimous opinion of my customers that your "Tansill's Punch" is the best 5c cigar they have ever smoked. Many claim that it is as good as the majority of those at 10c. John A. Davis, Druggist, Milwaukee, Wis. Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago. MENTION THIS PAPER when writing to advertisers.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

FOR HORSES.

Uvilla, W. Va., Nov. 17, 1886.

Recently I bought a young horse. He was taken very ill with Pneumonia. I tried to think of something to relieve him. Concluded what was good for man would be good for the horse. So I got a bottle of Piso's Cure and gave him half of it through the nostrils. This helped him, and I continued giving same doses night and morning until I had used two bottles. The horse has become perfectly sound. I can recommend Piso's Cure for the horse as well as for man.

N. S. J. STRIDER.

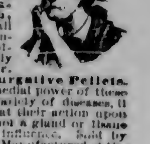
PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. The Original LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

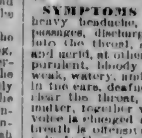
BEWARE OF IMITATIONS. ALWAYS ASK FOR DR. PIERCE'S PELLETS, OR LITTLE SUGAR-COATED PILLS.

Being entirely vegetable, they operate without disturbance to the system, diet, or occupation. Put up in glass vials, hermetically sealed. Always fresh and reliable. As a laxative, alterative, or purgative, these little Pellets give the most perfect satisfaction.

SICK HEADACHE,



Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may truthfully be said that their action upon the system is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative influence. Sold by druggists, 25 cents a vial. Manufactured at the Chemical Laboratory of WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.



$500 REWARD

is offered by the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, for a case of Chronic Nasal Catarrh which they cannot cure.

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH.—Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; the eyes are weak, watery, and inflamed; there is ringing in the ears, deafness, hacking or coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, together with scabs from ulcers; the voice is changed and has a nasal twang; the breath is offensive; smell and taste are impaired; there is a sensation of dizziness, with mental depression, a hacking cough and general debility. Only a few of the above-named symptoms are likely to be present in any one case. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive and dangerous, or less understood by physicians.

By its mild, soothing, and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases of Catarrh, "cold in the head," Coryza, and Catarrhal Headache.

Sold by druggists everywhere; 50 cents.

"Untold Agony from Catarrh."

Prof. W. Hausner, the famous mesmerist, of Ithaca, N. Y., writes: "Some ten years ago I suffered untold agony from chronic nasal catarrh. My family physician gave me up as incurable, and said I must die. My case was such a bad one, that every day, towards sunset, my voice would become so hoarse I could barely speak above a whisper. In the morning my coughing and clearing of my throat would almost strangle me. By the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, in three months, I was a well man, and the cure has been permanent."

"Constantly Hawking and Spitting."

Thomas J. Rushing, Esq., 2902 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I was a great sufferer from catarrh for three years. At times I could hardly breathe, and was constantly hawking and spitting, and for the last eight months could not breathe through the nostrils. I thought nothing could be done for me. Luckily, I was advised to try Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and I am now a well man. I believe it to be the only sure remedy for catarrh now manufactured, and one has only to give it a fair trial to experience astounding results and a permanent cure."

Three Bottles Cure Catarrh.

Eli Robbins, Runyan P. O., Columbia Co., Pa., says: "My daughter had catarrh when she was five years old, very badly. I saw Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy advertised, and procured a bottle for her, and soon saw that it helped her; a third bottle effected a permanent cure. She is now eighteen years old and sound and hearty."

PATENTS [illegible] Instructions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 17 years' experience.

PEN & PENCIL STAMP WITH YOUR NAME COMPLETE 40cts. with Agents' Circulars and Name 50cts. We will send this Stamp complete with your name on it in neat Rubber Type, with a bottle of Indelible or Colored Ink for 40 cts. in stamps. Three for One Dollar with address 10cts extra. Address NORTHWESTERN STAMP WORKS, MILWAUKEE, WIS. or CHICAGO, ILL. MENTION THIS PAPER when writing to advertisers.

NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC Boston, Mass.

THE LARGEST and BEST EQUIPPED in the WORLD—[illegible] Full Term begins [illegible] E. TOURJEE, Director, Franklin Sq., BOSTON, Mass. MENTION THIS PAPER when writing to advertisers.

$350 We will pay for a complete newspaper outfit of type and presses upon which to print a newspaper in a town of 500 or more inhabitants. The same will be sold upon easy terms. For particulars in detail, address PRACTICAL PRINTER, Box 497, Chicago, Ill.

HARTER'S THE ONLY TRUE IRON TONIC

[illegible]

LADIES Suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex will find in DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC a safe, speedy cure. Gives a clear, healthy complexion. All attempts at counterfeiting only add to its popularity. Do not experiment—get ORIGINAL AND BEST.

Dr. HARTER'S LIVER PILLS Cure Constipation, Liver Complaint and Sick Headache. Sample Dose and Dream Book mailed on receipt of two cents in postage.

THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

WIZARD OIL FOR PAIN

Cures Neuralgia, Toothache, Headache, Catarrh, Croup, Sore Throat, RHEUMATISM, Lame Back, Stiff Joints, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Wounds, Old Sores and All Aches and Pains.

The many testimonials received by us more than prove all we claim for this valuable remedy. It not only relieves the most severe pains, but It Cures You. That's the Idea! Sold by Druggists. 50 cents. Song Book mailed free. Address WIZARD OIL COMPANY CHICAGO.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES. A sure relief for ASTHMA. Price 35 cts. by mail. Stowell & Co. Charlestown, Mass.

MENTION THIS PAPER when writing to advertisers.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH PENNYROYAL PILLS

The Original and Only Genuine. [illegible]

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest. CATARRH Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

C. N. U. No. 26—87

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, JUNE 29, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

The men who are wearing cork legs and empty sleeves didn't relish the idea of sending back the rebel battle flags.

Yes, "the President has back-bone," but "the boys in blue" sent an electrical current along it that made his spine as pliable as a rubber band.

Fifty-three thousand five hundred and thirty-four cattle were marketed in Chicago last week, the greatest number ever received at the Union Stock Yards in one week.

Ex-Secretary Windom declares that another "irrepressible conflict" is upon us, and says that "the Nation cannot remain one-half drunk and one-half sober any more than it could remain one-half slave and one-half free.

This Democratic administration is consistent in wanting to send "the captured Rebel flags back to the States from which they were taken." If that party could have had its way they never would have been taken.

The order about the flags disclosed the nature and the animus of Cleveland and his Secretary of War. He was pelted on all sides till he felt constrained to revoke it; but crawled through the small hole of confessing ignorance of the law.

A Missouri farmer got out of bed during a thunder storm, opened a door, looked out, and was immediately struck dead by lightning. The moral of this seems to be that when a man goes to bed he should stay there until it is time to get up, especially while a thunder storm is raging.

The so-called local option bill—which is not really a local but a county-option bill—has become a law, and the people of this State will have opportunity to give it a full trial, and learn how it works. The counties which do not try it will not have much reason to complain, whatever may be the outcome in those where it shall be adopted.—Eagle.

The North Atlantic squadron, under command of Admiral Luce is to take a cruise in the Canadian waters. He has been instructed to look after the interests of American fishermen and to prevent any collision with the American authorities. Admiral Luce will make a full report on the condition of affairs at the Canadian fishing grounds, and as to the relations between the American and Canadian fishermen, especially as to the treatment of the former by the officers of vessels ordered by the Canadian Government to enforce its laws.

The President, in backing down from his rebel-flag order, does not express the least shade of regret for what he had done. "I am of the opinion," he writes to Secretary Endicott, "that the return of these flags in the manner thus contemplated is not authorized by existing law nor justified as an executive act." He would be glad enough of the chance to serve his ex-Confederate advisers, but there seems to be a foolish sentiment against him on this point, and on the whole it is better that "any direction as to the final disposition of the flags should originate with Congress."

A summary of the work of the Michigan fishermen on the lakes for 1886 has just been completed by Secretary Kellogg, of the Michigan fish commission. Of 435 blanks sent out only 180 were returned filled out, a smaller percentage of reports than last year. They show 24 steamers, 104 sailing vessels, 418 pound boats and skiffs engaged in the business. The catch for the year was valued at $214,806.99. The pounds of fish caught foot up in round numbers as follows: Whitefish, 2,652,325; trout, 1,122,986; herring, 1,173,912; bass, 251,695; sturgeon, 440,978; pickerel, 514,624; black-fins, 34,000; other kinds, 201,621. Of that fine, imported Russian fish, caviare, 62,924 pounds resulted from the roe of sturgeon.

Two years ago when the Grand Army held its National Encampment at Portland, Me., the local committee invited Mr. Blaine to assist in formally reviewing the parade. The Grand Army officials took exception to this, explaining that Mr. Blaine's prominence as a partisan meaning, and the invitation was thereupon withdrawn and Mr. Blaine took no part in the ceremony. No particular comment or indignation was excited. The action was regarded simply as in accordance with the general policy of keeping the Grand Army organization, as such, divorced from partisan politics. Now, however, when the veterans are protesting against a clumsy attempt to use the Grand Army to boom Cleveland at the coming St. Louis encampment, great indignation prevades the Democratic and Confederate breast.

Secretary Lamar, if the Boston Herald is good authority, will be appointed to succeed the late Justice Wood on the Supreme bench, and Senator Ransom will be made Secretary of the Interior. These changes may not be made at once, but are likely to occur in the course of the summer.

Gov. Fitzhugh Lee of Virginia is to deliver a Fourth of July oration before the Tammany crowd in New York. With tears in his eyes he will glorify the union, soar with the eagle, thank heaven that the war is over, and then go back and swing the bourbons into line and appeal to them in the name of the south and Robert E. Lee to vote the way they shot.

There are several Democratic editors in the land who wish they had not been so previous with their defenses of the President's original order about the Confederate flags. That sudden revocation rather put them in a hole, so to speak. However, many of them find comfort in revamping some of their old "bloody shirt" stuff and making it do duty again.

New York has a law requiring hotels and restaurants using bogus butter to hang up cards conspicuously bearing the inscription "Oleomargarine Used Here." Now, if the general public are as fond of that article as the manufacturers would have us believe, there will hereafter be no difficulty in getting what is wanted and distinctively oleomargarine places ought to be very popular.

The Detroit Tribune inquires: "Why has the President never shown any respect whatever for the Nation's dead, even on Memorial Day? Why does he refuse to take part in or attend Memorial services, when his only excuse is a fish pole and a box of bait?" Because they are none of his funeral. He was not one of the soldiers and has no sympathy with nor for them. Ask a harder question.

There is wild talk in the Dominion Parliament about efforts of United States consuls to secure emigration from that country to ours. That is absurd. The truth is, the United States does not need to make any efforts in that direction, even were it so disposed. Canadians do not have to be coaxed over the border. They come of their own free will, not even waiting for an invitation.

At several of the American jubilee banquets every allusion to home rule for Ireland was loudly applauded. It was so in Chicago and it was so in New York. When Mayor Hewitt said at the banquet in the latter city that he hoped to live to see the day "when the Queen would crown the many noble acts of her reign by granting a Parliament in Dublin" the sentiment was, we are told, "greeted with an outburst of applause." Those who cheered were mostly American citizens of British birth, who have learned to appreciate the advantages of home rule.

The Louisville Courier-Journal says Kentucky will be the first state to vote on the "flag issue" this fall, and appeals to the old rebel sentiment of that state to "respond to the challenge" of the northern howlers by giving Rebel General Buckner the biggest majority that any democratic candidate for governor ever received in old Kaintuck. Watterson, himself half copperhead and half rebel, has his war paint on, and it is getting hot and running all over his clothes. Somebody send him a little tin gun and a bigger canteen. The Gyasticutis is loose and the rebel flags are still at Washington.

It is a grand period of British history which the English people are now celebrating—the Victorian era. That nation has many faults—what nation has not?—of the period of fifty years just ended of Victoria's reign; still it has been an era of progress and of great achievements, materially and politically. British treatment of Ireland and the Irish remains a dark spot; but on the whole Britian has much to be proud of, and it is an inspiring spectacle, that of the English people with enthusiastic loyalty celebrating the Queen's Jubilee as the Nation's Jubilee also, that of fifty years of extraordinary prosperity and progress. The Queen's personality in her long reign has not been conspicuously prominent; but she has been the Queen, both discreet and womanly, with keen discernment of political tides, scrupulous observance of her constitutional rights and authority, an exemplar of the noblest virtues of the English home. Hence, though other and more popular forces than monarchy have been operating, it is but a natural compliment that the English proudly speak of the period as the Victorian Half Century, thus by common consent magnifying the dignity of her office and the wisdom of her reign. Only three reigns in English history have exceeded in length that of Victoria, and she bids fair to round out the nineteenth century. It is to be hoped that no great national convulsion may disturb the repose of her eventide of life.

Northern Michigan News.

The big Mackinaw hotel takes 30,000 yards of Brussells carpeting.

Sault Ste. Marie will spend $5,000 this summer in advertising their booming town with printer's ink. Sensible people.

Paul Chartrand, of Eveline, one of the early settlers of Charlevoix county, has sold his farm and intends to locate in Oregon.

Mrs. A. Cameron, of Torch Lake, and one of the early settlers of Antrim county, mother of the Cameron Brothers, died at her home recently, and was buried at Elk Rapids.

Chas. S. Hampton, of—Emmet Co., will deliver the oration at East Jordan on the Fourth, and the other towns of the county are trying to get up something big to counteract the disastrous effect.

Williamsburg has raised $2,000 for the Elk Rapids and Kalkaska railroad, and the Progress thinks the farmers along the route between Elk Rapids and Kalkaska ought to be able to raise $8,000 more.

Thus far this season nearly 100,000 tons more of iron ore have been shipped from the upper peninsula than during the corresponding period last year. Escanaba has shipped 379,000 tons, or more than half the entire lot.

Boyne Falls Gazette: Mrs. Ella Smith, one of the victims of the Champlain disaster, at one time resided at Boyne Falls. Mr. Smith kept store where L. F. Davoll & Co. now are and he and Mrs. Smith lived at the back part of the drug store.

Enterprise: D. H. Jerrue lost a pair of five-year old valuable horses on the steamer Champlain. They were valued at $500 and were being shipped to D. C. Page Petoskey. It was a complete loss to Dan as he was to deliver the horses in Petoskey.

Cheboyganites have raised $1,000 to put into ball players, and are scouring the state for a good battery and other players. They are not going to let Petoskey down them so easy next time, if they can prevent it with cold cash.

The Western Michigan Press Association was at Frankfort on Friday, and Capt. Penfold telegraphed to Charlevoix: "For heaven's sake send one good looking editor down." He couldn't go on account of being on the Fourth of July musical committee.

A Reed City man didn't like something that appeared in the Clarion recently, and called in to "lick the editor." Bert Trumbull, the lively editor was in, and the disgruntled citizen discovered the fact after he had been used as a mop in cleaning up the floor.

Record. Fell's shingle mill has been removed from its location on Bear Creek south of town, and is now in the center of a large cedar tract in Springvale township. It is said that within two miles of the mill there is cedar enough to keep the mill running for several years.

Some scoundrel, according to the Enterprise, killed two cattle belonging to Mr. H. M. Cole, of Sutton's Bay township, and shacked and horribly mangled three more of them. The dastardly work was done with an axe apparently, and if the indignant neighbors could get hold of the miscreant he would have a hard time of it. And he should.

East Jordan Enterprise: On Sunday morning about 3 o'clock, the house of Wm. Madill was burned at the head of Intermediate lake. The family barely escaping with their lives. The family consisting of Wm. Madill wife and two children, had been away from home the day previous and returned late. About the above named time they awoke finding themselves almost suffocated with smoke. Mr. Madill took one of the children and jumped from the window, they being upstairs. The other child ran toward the stairway and was rescued by Mrs. Madill just as it was about falling into the flames before it. They succeeded in jumping from the window.

Lelanaw Enterprise: Many residents of this county will recollect the trial of John H. Deuster and August Pleiss, 12 years ago, for the murder of one Peter Peterson, in a fourth of July row which occurred in John H. Deuster's saloon in Sutton's Bay. The latter since deceased, was, after two trials conducted by Prosecuting Attorney Cutler, convicted of manslaughter, whereupon the other defendant, Pleiss, whom the evidence pointed at as the man who struck the fatal blow, pleaded guilty and both were sentenced. During the progress of the trial a man called "Bottle" or Bartel, seemed to have been a prominent figure in the fight, but the evidence failed to fasten any guilty participation upon him. "Bottie," whose true name was Bartel Wm. Schmidt, recently died, and on his death bed he, by a written statement to the priest, confessed that he had struck the fatal blow that took young Peterson's life. This is only another illustration of the uncertainty of circumstantial evidence.

The Orangemen are to celebrate the 12th of July at Boyne City.

The ferry business is somewhat overdone at the Soo, there being five boats running.

The Mancelona Herald shows up one subscriber with a $50 subscription paid in advance, and another with $15, but recommends one or two years in advance as being the proper length of time to pay, as a rush of subscribers of the kind first mentioned might prove too much of a temptation for a prolonged excursion through Canada.

Boyne Citizen: As the "Battle of the Boyne" will be celebrated here on the 12th of July, it has been deemed best not to attempt two celebrations, and our citizens will assist our sister towns in their celebration on the 4th. The band will either go to Charlevoix or East Jordan. Petoskey will have an oration from Chas. R. Whitman, of Ypsilanti, a most eloquent speaker, and Charlie Hampton assures the people at East Jordan that his oration is harmless, as it has been used before with no fatal results.

Petoskey Independent: In the game of base ball last Tuesday, Petoskey won by a score of 4 to 3. The game abounded in rank errors and brilliant plays on both sides with cleaner fielding to the credit of Harbor Springs. The inability of our boys to hit Vogle, Petoskey's left handed pitcher, was the only thing that saved the game. Better luck next time, however. They cant have a new pitcher every time, and once the boys 'get on' to his pitching they'll hit him hard. Full report of game elsewhere.

Banks news, from the Breeze: Mr. David Blissett raises a barn Wednesday of this week; size 36x50.—Mr. W. C. Byers is visiting his old home and friends in Ashland county, Ohio.——The Atwood school has 50 scholars enrolled, 22 of whom are in the First Reader.——Hon. R. Knight is building a hay barn on his farm adjoining Mr. Beach's farm.—Mrs. H. W. Beach is back on her farm again and is preparing to erect a new barn, 44x50 feet.——Mr. Ethan H. Jolliffe left the first of the week, on the steamer Lawrence, for a short visit in Palmyra, Wis.

Alba correspondent of the Breeze: The "boom" is now at Alba. Work is going on at a lively rate on the new railroad which will give us an outlet east to the Michigan Central railroad. The new railroad has Frederick, on the M. C. R. R., for its eastern terminus, and will be built at once from that place to Alba, but its final western terminus is to be at some point on Pine lake. Mr. D. Ward, of Detroit, is building the road alone. Several miles of the road are already graded. Mr. Ward speaks enthusiastically of Alba's future, saying that it is in the center of the best tract of farming land north of Reed City, and that there is more good timber in the vicinity of Alba than at any other point on the G. R. & I. railroad, thus making it the best point for all kinds of wood manufactures. Alba will soon be the commercial center of Antrim county.

Fire Works! Fire Works!

A LARGE STOCK and MORE ON THE ROAD.

ROCKETS from one ounce to two pounds. Roman Candles, one to ten balls; China Fly Wheels, Triangles, Vertical Wheels, Mines and Stars, Pin Wheels, Fire Crackers, in three sizes, including the immense cannon cracker; Flags, etc., all at very low figures at O. W. SMITH'S, Opposite Bridge St. House.

Bank of
Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security

Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers

Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to Speculate with ones own money, is folly; that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking

Is the question of first importance to both bankers and Depositors; and, believing that it furnishes unusual guarantees, therefore,

This Bank Invites

People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will

Borrow Investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking

Productive employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank.

Investment Notes,

Now earning Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

Probate Notice.

State of Michigan County of Charlevoix, ss. Notice is hereby given, that by an order of the Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix, made on the 13th day of June, A. D. 1887, six months from that date were allowed for creditors to present their claims against the estate of Josiah Gibson, late of said County, and that all creditors of said deceased are required to present their claims to said Probate Court, at the Probate office in the Village of Boyne City, for examination and allowance, on or before the second day of January next, and that such claims will be heard before said Court on Monday, the 6th day of September, and on Monday the 2d day of January next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of each of those days.

Dated, June 13th, A. D. 1887.
901] JAMES A. KEAT, Judge of Probate.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a certain indenture of Mortgage bearing date Nov. 15th A. D. 1881, made by and between Albert Jubeaville, bachelor of Charlevoix county, Michigan, party of the first part, to Morgan Curtis of Kalamazoo county, Michigan, party of the second part, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, on the 19th day of Nov. A. D. 1881 in Liber 5 of Mortgages at page 437 and by which default the power of sale in said Mortgage contained, has become operative and no suit or proceedings either in law or equity having been instituted to collect the amount due on said Mortgage, and there being due thereon the sum of One hundred and sixty-five dollars, therefore the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described in said Mortgage on the 19th day of July A. D. 1887, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day by sale at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the County building, in the village of Boyne City, and county of Charlevoix, (that being the place for holding the Circuit court for the county of Charlevoix, wherein the lands described in said mortgage are situated), of the mortgaged premises described in said Mortgage or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount due on said Mortgage. The premises described in said Mortgage are as follows: the south east quarter of the north east quarter of section thirty-two, of town thirty-two north of range five west, Charlevoix county, Michigan.

Dated Kalkaska, Mich., April the 18th, A. D., 1887.
A. A. BLEAZBY, MORGAN CURTIS,
Atty for Mortgagee. Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in a certain indenture of Mortgage bearing date December the first, 1883, made by and between David Norton and Hannah Norton, his wife of Charlevoix, Michigan, party of the first part, to Mary E. Manley, of Wayne county, New York, party of the second part, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Charlevoix county, Michigan, on the second day of Feb. A. D. 1884, in Liber 9 of Mortgages at page 220, and upon which there is now due and unpaid the sum of seventy-two dollars and no action having been taken either in law or equity to collect the same; therefore the said Mortgage will be foreclosed under the power of sale therein contained by statutory sale of the premises therein described at the front door of the County building in the village of Boyne City, and county of Charlevoix, (that being the place for holding the Circuit court for the county of Charlevoix, in which said county, the lands described in said Mortgage are situated), at ten o'clock in the forenoon of the 19th day of July, A. D. 1887. The premises described in said mortgage are as follows: the north-east quarter of the south-west quarter and the north-west quarter of the south-east quarter of section twenty-four of town thirty-three, north of range seven west, Charlevoix county state of Michigan, said premises will be sold subject to the principal sum of Eight hundred dollars yet to become due on said Mortgage together with the accruing interest thereon.

Dated Kalkaska, Mich., April the 18th, A. D. 1887.
A. A. BLEAZBY, MARY E. MANLEY,
Atty for Mortgagee. Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a certain indenture of mortgage bearing date the 13th day of December, A. D. 1881, executed by Richard Lake and Phebe E. Lake (his wife), of Charlevoix County, State of Michigan, to Otis Ross, of South Haven, Van Buren County, State of Michigan, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, in liber "4" of mortgages on page 435 on the 11th day of March, A. D. 1882, by which default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative and upon which said mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of two thousand nine hundred and sixty dollars and thirty-two cents ($2,960.32) for principal and interest, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the amount now due, or any part thereof, now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided there will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House in the village of Boyne City, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan (that being the place for holding the Circuit Court for said County of Charlevoix), on Thursday the 30th day of June, A. D. 1887, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon of said day the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to satisfy the amount due upon said mortgage together with the costs and charges of sale and interest to wit: The south west quarter (¼) and the north west quarter (¼) and the north east quarter (¼) of the south east quarter (¼) of section No. twenty-three (23) in township No. thirty-three (33) north of range No. seven (7) west, containing three hundred and sixty acres according to the United States survey. Also the south half (½) of the north east quarter (¼) of section No. twenty-seven (27) in township No. thirty-three (33) north range No. seven (7) west containing eighty acres according to the United States survey in the County of Charlevoix in the State of Michigan.

Dated March 7, 1887. OTIS ROSS,
JAMES H. JOHNSON, Mortgagee.
Attorney for Mortgagee.

Probate Notice.

State of Michigan, County of Charlevoix, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for said county, held at the Probate office, in the Village of Boyne City, on the 6th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven. Present, James A. Keat, Judge of Probate. In the Matter of the Estate of John West, late of Chicago, Ill. deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of John Joseph West, and Edward Albert West, and alleging that duly authenticated copies of the last will and testament of said deceased, and of the probate thereof, have been duly filed in said court, showing that said will has been duly admitted to probate in the County of Cook and State of Illinois, and praying that a time and place for hearing said petition be fixed, and due notice thereof be given to all persons interested, and that such copy of said will be allowed, filed and recorded in said Court, as and for the last will and testament of said deceased. Thereupon it is ordered, that Tuesday, the 5th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the Village of Boyne City, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. And it is further ordered, that said petitioners give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

A true copy.
JAMES A. KEAT,
611 Judge of Probate.

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Henry Bennett, O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls, A. Buttars
A. R. Upright A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL, ... $25,000
SURPLUS, ... 2,000

The liabilities of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art. 3174, Sec. 40 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:
National Park Bank - - - New York.
Commercial Nat. Bank - - - Chicago.
Nat. City Bank - - - Grand Rapids.
Detroit Nat. Bank - - - Detroit.

W. A. REYNARD,

Has just received at his Fruit Store in the Lewis Block, a choice line of

Vegetables and Fruits

OF ALL KINDS,

TO WHICH OTHERS WILL BE ADDED IN SEASON.

I will also keep in stock a full line of

Tobaccos and Cigars.

Butter and Eggs a Specialty.

Itch, Prairie Mange and Scratches of every kind cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Use no other. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix

CROSS & SONS.,
Buy and Sell all kinds of
Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.
Charlevoix, - Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY,
Photographer.
In Bradbeer's Gallery.
Photographs of all sizes taken.
Old Pictures copied and enlarged.
CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

New JEWELRY AND SILVER WARE.

I have just received a very fine stock of
Watches, Chains, Pins, Clocks, Silver-Ware, etc
which I will sell at Prices lower than the same goods can be purchased outside.

Did it ever occur to you that by patronizing home Merchants you were benefiting yourselves?

All classes of Repairing done quickly.

C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,

ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR,
—ON—
Chalevoix Summer Resorts.

I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.

I employ only first-class workmen, both

Carpenters and Painters.

Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention

J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

Fox & Miller

Offer a
Mammoth Stock
OF
BOOTS, SHOES
and other
FOOT WEAR,
--AT--
LOWER PRICES
Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a FIRST-CLASS SHOEMAKER, And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

The Kalamazoo
"DAILY TELEGRAPH."
Contains the Associated Press Dispatches
Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.

Charlevoix, Mich.

Manufacturers of and Wholesale and Retail Dealer

3 EXTRA GRADES OF
FLOUR
Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

M. LITNEY. JOS. STEIMEL

Litney & Steimel

LIVERY,
And Feed Barn
Charlevoix, Mich.
Good Rigs at Lowest Rates.

It Pays to Buy the
BEST BOATS!

The large number of boats I have built for resorters, are advertisements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.

I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the

LEAST MONEY!

All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.

LEAVE ORDERS

with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.

Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.

J. BEAUVAIS.

BOOTS & SHOES

Have you seen our $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00 Gents Shoes?

If not do so at once. They are made solid throughout even to the counter. You'll have no trouble with these goods running over at the heel.

These goods cannot be equalled in the county

Either in style, quality or price. We will take pains this season to have in stock goods that will suit all. New ad. soon on Ladies' Fine Shoes of latest styles New York, Common Sense, and London Toes.

Ladies Look Out

For the new line of latest style goods that is on the road for

D. SHERWOOD & CO.

A. J. McLEOD,

Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at

Wholesale or Retail

All kinds of

FRESH MEATS,
SALT PORK,
SMOKED & SALTED
HAMS,
Dried and Smoked
BACON, DRIED BEEF,
Bologna, Head Cheese,
Sausage.

Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.

Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.

A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S
MARKET
Is supplied with
All Kinds Of
MEATS
At Lowest Prices.
CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.
Corner of State & Mason sts.,
JOHN McCABE.

Washburn & Ackert.
FOUNDREYMEN,
MACHINISTS,
And Manufacturers of The
Charlevoix Plow.

Take The Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law. Office in Buttars' Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PAILTHORPE & GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PIGSTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon, 4 doors west of Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office at residence, Main st. Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 119, meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

MASONIC.—Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M. Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Post-office.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake lodge No. 293, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

K. O. T. M.—Resort Tent No. 138, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' Hall.

L. O. L.—True Blues No. 157, meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. 101, R. A. M., meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 156, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of the members during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.
President—Byron See.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller.
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strang.
Financial Secretary—R. Duffield.
Treasurer—Albert E. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. B. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. Lee Iddings, W. A. Brown and C. Y. Cook.
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, M. J. Stockman, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, R. W. Miller, S. M. See, W. C. Newman, E. M. Clark, H. Berdan.
All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequalled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the traveling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids Stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,
Lorenzo Cook, Manager
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only 100 feet to Steamboat Landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE.
W. C. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Fitted up with a view to the Comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central Location.

PILE DRIVER.

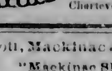
ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and Dock work solicited at any point between Traverse City and Mackinaw. L. E. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

MUNROE'S STEAM PILE DRIVER. Dock owners and Builders, look to your interest. Contracts taken and dock work solicited at any point between Sault St Marie and Grand Haven. Correspondence promptly attended to. Address,
JOHN MUNROE, Jr., Gen'l Manager,
South Arm, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. R. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. (Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.)

DENTIST.



N. J. PERRY, Dentist, Office in Ward's Drug Store, Charlevoix, Mich.

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R.

"Mackinac Short Line."

Only direct line between the east and south and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Going West read down		Station	Going East read up
	5 45 pm	Detroit	11 10 am
7 00 am	6 50 am	St Ignace	8 30 pm	5 55 pm
10 25	8 52	Newberry	6 21	2 05
12 20	9 40	Seney	5 15	12 35
	10 42	Reedsboro	4 15
3 25	11 31	Au Train	3 25	9 05
5 30	12 40	Marquette	2 15	7 00
	12 50 pm	Marquette	2 00 pm
	1 55	Ishpeming	12 58
	4 10	L'Anse	10 40
	5 30	Houghton	9 20
	6 35	Calumet	8 15

Connections made with M T Co boats, M C & G R & I R R & M H & O

E. W. ALLEN, Gen Pass Agt, Marquette

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad

IN EFFECT SEPTEMBER 27, 1886.

(Trains run on Central Standard Time.)

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	No 6	No 8	No 4
Mackinaw City Lv	7 15 a m	9 30 p m
Petoskey	8 04	10 51
Boyne Falls	9 10	11 30
Mancelona	10 18	12 30
Walton Junc	11 50	1 50	5 15 p m
Cadillac Ar	12 40	2 50	6 10
Cadillac Lv	12 45	6 05	6 30
Le Roy	1 24	6 46	7 07
Reed City Ar	1 55	7 20	7 40
Reed City Lv	2 15	7 45	8 03
Big Rapids	2 40	8 11	8 31
Stanwood	3 01	8 30	8 55
Howard City	3 33	9 03	9 28
D G H & M Cross	4 40	10 15	10 35
Grand Rapids Ar	4 55	10 30	10 50
Grand Rapids Lv	7 15	5 15	11 45
Plainwell	8 36	6 41	1 12
Kalamazoo Ar	9 03	7 10	1 40
Kalamazoo Lv	9 10	7 30	2 00
Sturgis	10 27	8 59	3 28
Ft Wayne Ar	12 40	11 20	6 00
Ft Wayne Lv	1 00	11 45
Richmond	4 30	[illegible]
Cincinnati Ar	7 30	7 25

GOING NORTH.

STATIONS	No 5	No 3	No 7
Cincinnati, leave	7 35 a m	7 20 p m
Richmond	10 25	[illegible]
Fort Wayne Ar	1 50	1 15
Fort Wayne Lv	2 10	3 00
Sturgis	4 21	5 25
Kalamazoo Ar	5 45	6 55
Kalamazoo Lv	5 50	7 20
Plainwell	6 16	7 48
Grand Rapids Ar	7 40	9 20
Grand Rapids Lv	11 30	4 55
D, G., H., & M cross	11 45	5 10
Howard City	12 52	6 18
Stanwood	1 22	6 48
Big Rapids	1 43	7 09
Reed City Ar	2 16	7 40
Reed City Lv	2 35	8 00
Le Roy	3 03	8 33
Cadillac Ar	3 35	[illegible]
Cadillac Lv	[illegible]	9 30
Walton Junc	4 45	10 25
Mancelona	6 10	11 50
Boyne Falls	7 15	12 52
Petoskey	7 40	1 30
Mackinaw City	9 00	2 55

C. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass. Agent.

EUROPEAN ARMIES.

All Europe Breaking Down Under the Weight of Her Standing Armies.

Well and truly may Europe be described as breaking down under the weight of her armor, says the London Telegraph. The collective aggregate of the army and navy estimates of her five great powers amounted last year to £150,000,000. At the head of the list stood Russia, with £47,000,000 charged to her credit, while France stood second with £34,000,000. Great Britain comes next with £32,000,000, for which she gets a much smaller return than an expenditure of £23,000,000 confers upon Germany, and of £14,000,000 upon the Austrian empire. We will not ask what the five great European powers might do with the vast annual revenue which they now spend in this way, or what might be effected by the prodigious masses of men in the prime of life who now follow the drum or handle the marlinspike, were they to devote their energies to useful and productive labor. One pregnant illustration may be adduced to show what the cost of insurance against foreign attack or domestic disturbance means to the most fortunately situated, the wealthiest and most civilized continent in the world. The United States as a powerful and progressive community can not be surpassed, and they boast a population which will very soon be double that of Great Britain and Ireland. Their lucky geographical position enables them, however, to be satisfied with a standing army which never exceeds thirty thousand men, and sometimes falls considerably short of that number. The navy, again, is merely nominal, and is far surpassed in strength by that of the puny republic of Chili. The consequence is that within less than a quarter of a century they have been able to reduce their national debt—the offspring of their stupendous civil war—from over three thousand millions of dollars in 1865 to less than thirteen hundred millions in 1886. The annual charge for the American army and navy combined amounts to about twelve million pounds. Had it been possible for Great Britain to spend no more upon her fighting resources during the last forty years, and to devote twenty millions annually to reducing her national debt, it would have disappeared by this time. As matters now stand, the opening year of the twentieth century will probably see the United States free from any kind of national indebtedness. Take the opposite of countries not remote from rivals. The nominal strength of the Russian army is 2,300,000 men on a war footing, and nearly 800,000 on a peace footing. The effective strength of the French army under colors is about 510,000 soldiers, but in time of war, including all reserves, it amounts to a total of 3,750,000 men. In 1884 the German army, on a peace footing, consisted of 430,000 privates and nearly 20,000 officers; while on a war footing the total strength amounts to 1,500,000 privates and 36,000 officers, exclusive of the landsturm. Finally, the Austro-Hungarian empire shows 270,000 men and 17,500 officers upon a peace footing, and can muster 1,050,000 privates and 32,000 officers in time of war.

Dress of the English Swell.

This is the great shooting season for Great Britain, and the Highlands are full of gentlemen hunting. I have seen hundreds of men on their way to their estates for this purpose, and the boats and cars are full of men dressed for the moors. There is more individuality of dress in England and Scotland than in America. Every man has his suit cut to please himself, and a favorite costume is a short sack coat, pantaloons rather full above the knee and fastened tight around the leg just above the calf. Then a pair of long thick woolen stockings come up to where the knee breeches end, and the feet are clad in strong shoes. This makes a very stylish costume, if the wearer is tall and has good legs. It is worn everywhere, and even gentlemen going about with ladies on the street are so clad. Add to this a helmet cap or a derby, and you have a pretty fair idea of one class of Scotch or English dress. Many of the swells about the watering places wear clothes of colors as bright as those of Dolly Varden's, and I have seen some young men clad in wide red and blue stripes of soft flannel, others in suits as white as snow, and others in jackets of plush and velvet. There seems to be a much larger class of gentlemen of leisure here than with us, and in the Trossachs and about Loch Lomond, where I went to sail through the region made famous by Sir Walter Scott, I rode for miles and miles without hearing the word business once.—Cor. Cleveland Leader.

At Wheeling recently a young man, a stranger, went into a saloon where a peculiar game was in progress. A man put a little piece of paper on the wall, and then each fellow was blindfolded tight, turned around three times by the others, and then a cane given him and he tried to touch the paper. The fellow that missed it widest was to set 'em up. The young man's turn came and he was blindfolded. He jabbed at the paper. "How's that?" he inquired. There was no answer. He pulled off the handkerchief and found that the crowd had gone. He left, thinking it a queer joke, and did not discover for some time that his pocket had been relieved of $20.

The following private note from Mr. Ruskin, dated at his home near London, seems full of sadness and pathos. He says: "Life is really too disgustingly short, one has only got one's materials together by the time one can no more use them. But let me say, once for all, in closing this fragment of work, old and new, that I beg my friends very earnestly never to mind paragraphs about me in the public papers. My illnesses, so called, are only brought on by vexation or worry (for which said friends are often themselves in no small degree answerable, and leave me, after a few weeks of wandering thought, much the same as I was before, only a little sadder and wiser!—probably, if I am spared till I am seventy, I shall be as sad and wise as I ever wish to be, and will try to keep so to the end."

A Boston newspaper man says that Greenough's statue of Franklin in that city is worth studying, because it illustrates a theory for which the sculptor had the authority of the great physiognomist, Lavater. It is that each side of the human face represents different phases of human nature, man being a dual animal, with a double set of characteristics. On one side of the bronze face of Franklin Greenough has depicted the expression of the man of science who drew the lightning from the clouds; on the other he has represented the features of the author of the homely philosophy embodied in "Poor Richard's Almanac."

Hard on Shaw.

"I see Capt. Shaw, the London fire chief, is again inflicting himself upon this country," said Chief Engineer Evans the other day. "He is the worst cockney snob I have ever met. He wrote to me some time ago to get a description of our system here, and I had plans and sketches made of engine-house, No. 2, which were beautifully accurate, and worth about $250. Clerk Witten, of the chief of police's office, made them, and spent a good deal of time and hard work over them. I sent the plans on to Shaw, but never received an acknowledgment. Some time after I met Shaw in Cincinnati, and, going up to him, said: 'Captain, I am chief Evans, of Pittsburg, and sent you some plans a short time ago.'

"Shaw, who on account of his attire you would take to be crazy, stared down at me vacantly for a moment, and then drawled out: 'Aw, ye know, you here in America have nothing like we 'ave in London, ye know, nothing at all!' I braced up to him and said: 'Capt. Shaw, you go to ——;' and then I turned around and walked off.

"Shaw is the same fellow that got up in the last American engineers' convention and said that the Chicago fire would never have occurred if the department had used hand-engines. Nice kind of a man that to draw $36,000 a year, eh?" —Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Gypsy chief recently had an elegant chariot manufactured at Baltimore. The body of the vehicle, which overhangs the wheels, is divided into two apartments, the back portion being reserved for sleeping and the front to be used as a sitting place while traveling. The seats are ornamented with checker boards, a favorite game of this romantic people. The whole interior is of polished poplar, and besides having places for clothes there is a secret recess for money or valuables which would tantalize a professional thief to locate. The windows are of cut and stained glass, and folding doors are used to securely close up the whole wagon. The painting of the whole wagon is very beautiful, designs representing commerce and the arts being employed, and the whole outside body is covered with gold and silver stars. This handsome vehicle is valued at $900.

In 1871-2 there existed in Germany 311 sugar factories, which worked 2,250,918 tons of beet-roots and produced 186,446 tons of raw sugar and 63,892 tons of molasses; in 1884-5 there existed 408 factories, which worked 10,402,688 tons of beet-roots and produced 10,402,688 tons of raw sugar and 259,700 tons of molasses.

TIME CARDS OF STEAMERS

STANDARD TIME.

Charlevoix and East Jordan.
STR. NORTH STAR, ...Capt. Mel. Thompson
Leaving Charlevoix at 6:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. and returning leave East Jordan for Charlevoix at 9:30 am and 4 p m, touching at intermediate points both ways.

Boyne City and Charlevoix.
STR. CLARA BELLE, ...Capt. Geo. Jetson,
Leave Boyne City at 6:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. and Charlevoix at 9:30 a. m., and 3 p. m. connecting with the Friant and Cummings to and from Petoskey, Touching at way ports.

Charlevoix and Boyne City.
STR. JOSEPH GORDON ....Capt. Lewis Guard.
Leave Charlevoix at 6:30 a. m. and 1 p. m., and Boyne City at 9:30 a.m., 4 p. m., touching at way ports

Harbor Springs, Charlevoix & E. Jordan.
STR. THOS. FRIANT, ...Capt. R. Vanderveer.
MORNING: Leave Harbor Springs, 7:30; Petoskey, 8:00; Charlevoix, 9:30; arrive, East Jordan 11:30.
AFTERNOON: Leave East Jordan 1:30, Charlevoix, 4:00; Petoskey, 5:30; arrive, Harbor Spring, 6:00

East Jordan, Charlevoix & Harbor Spgs.
LOU A. CUMMINGS, ...Capt. W. A. SNYDER.
MORNING: Leave East Jordan 7 a. m.; Charlevoix, 9; Petoskey, 11; arrive at Harbor Springs 11:30.
AFTERNOON: Leave Harbor Springs, 1 p. m.; Petoskey, 1:30; Charlevoix, 3; arrive at East Jordan, 5:30 p. m.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN LINE.
PROP. LAWRENCE, ...Capt. Geo. Thone,
Going North, Chicago, Fridays 8 p m; Charlevoix, Sundays 3 p m; Cheboygan, Mondays 1 a m
Going South, Cheboygan, Mondays 4 p m; Charlevoix, Tuesdays 5 a m, Milwaukee, Wednesdays 4 p m; Chicago, Thursdays 12 m.
Emrey Bros., agents, Charlevoix.

HANNAH, LAY & CO'S BOATS.
CITY OF GRAND RAPIDS, ...Capt. O. E. Wilber.
Going North, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays: Leave Traverse City 7 a m; Northport 9:30; Charlevoix 11:30; Petoskey 1:30 p m; Harbor Springs 2; Cross Village 4:30; Mackinac Island 7:45 arriving at St Ignace 8:20
Going South, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, leave St. Ignace 6:00 a m; Mackinac Island; Cross Village 10:15; Harbor Springs 12:15 p m; Petoskey 1:15; Charlevoix 2:45; Northport 5:15 p m, arriving at Traverse City at 7:45 p m.
J. L. Hurd & Co., Agents, Charlevoix.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S
LIVERY STABLE
CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.

Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

Farming Lands

500,000 ACRES
Of Splendid
MICHIGAN LANDS
For Sale By The
G. R. & I. R. R.
60,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.

These lands are timbered with beach and maple elm and other wood and are accessible to best markets

By Water and Rail

And are in a state unequalled for health, well watered and contiguous to the great fruit raising section of Michigan.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad runs through the center of the grant. The part of Michigan in which these lands are situated is

Not a Wilderness by any Means.

It contains a population of 250,000 souls and is rapidly filling up with settlers from almost every state in the Union

Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold.

Send for English or German Pamphlet, Address

W. H. HUGHART, Commissioner,

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.

TITLE PERFECT.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c per box by Dr. G. W. Crouter

Good Results in Every Case.

D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, did so and was entirely cured by use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all Coughs and Colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this Wonderful Discovery. Trial Bottles free at Dr. G. W. Crouter's

THE REV. GEO. H. THAYER, of Bourbon, Ind., says: "Both myself and wife owe our lives to SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE."

ARE YOU MADE miserable by Indigestion, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Yellow Skin? Shiloh's Vitalizer is a positive cure. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

WHY WILL YOU Cough when Shiloh's Cure will give you immediate relief. Price 10 cents 50 cts. and $1.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY—a positive cure for Catarrh, Diptheria, and Canker Mouth. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

Land for Sale.

I have 5 acres just east of the cemetery, one mile from town, nearly all cleared, which I will sell cheap for cash, or approved paper. Address
JAMES METCALF, Charlevoix.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter chapped hands chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter

W. H. FRANCIS
FURNITURE
—AND—
JOBBING SHOP,
Will also do
Contracting & Building,
In Charlevoix, and Summer Resorts.

I keep in my shop a full set of hand and foot power machinery which enables me to do Jobbing, repairing etc. on short notice.

Shop on South Terrace,
Opposite Sheriff Berdan's residence.

MILLINERY,
FANCY GOODS,
DRESS-MAKING.

We have just opened a large line of Spring and Summer Millinery and Fancy Goods to which we invite your attention.

DRESS MAKING done on the TAILOR SYSTEM The best work done at the lowest rates.

ALDRICH SISTERS.

Ingleside Building.

MERCHANT
TAILORING.

I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.

Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.

Call and see me. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,

C. H. Maddaugh.

CHARLEVOIX
Manufacturing Co.
Charlevoix, Mich.,
Manufacturers of
Sash and Doors,
Blinds, Mouldings etc.
NEWELL
Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails
kept in stock.
Window & Door Frames made to order.
All Kinds of
Building Material
Kept constantly on hand.
PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS,
Furnished on application.
Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building
Correspondence solicited.

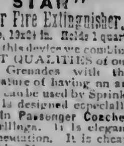
"MARVELOUS PRICES!"
BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away. The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, and all are printed from good type upon good paper. They treat of a great variety of subjects, and we think no one can examine the list without finding therein many that he or she would like to possess. In cloth-bound form these books would cost $1.00 each. Each book is complete in itself.

1. The Widow Bedott Papers. This is the book over which your grandmothers laughed till they cried, and it is just as funny to-day as ever it was.
2. Winter Evening Recreations, a large collection of Acting Charades, Tableaux, Games, Puzzles, etc., for social gatherings, private theatricals, and evenings at home.
3. Back to the Old Home. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Hidden Perils," etc.
4. Dialogues, Recitations and Readings, a large and choice collection for school exhibitions and public and private entertainments.
5. The Standard Letter Writer for Ladies and Gentlemen, a complete guide to correspondence, giving plain directions for the composition of letters of every kind, with innumerable forms and examples.
6. The Frozen Deep. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
7. Red Court Farm. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne," etc.
8. The Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott. "The Lady of the Lake" is a romance in verse, and of all the works of Scott none is more beautiful than this.
9. In Cupid's Net. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
10. Amos Barton. A Novel. By George Eliot, author of "Adam Bede," "The Mill on the Floss," etc.
11. Lady Gwendoline's Dream. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
12. The Mystery of the Holly Tree. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
13. The Budget of Wit, Humor and Fun, a large collection of the funny stories, sketches, anecdotes, poems, and jokes.
14. John Bowerbank's Wife. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
15. The Gray Woman. A Novel. By Mrs. Gaskell, author of "Mary Barton," etc.
16. Sixteen Complete Stories by Popular Authors, embracing love, humorous and detective stories, stories of society life, of adventure, of railway life, etc., all very interesting.
17. Jasper Dane's Secret. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Aurora Floyd," etc.
18. Fancy Work for Home Adornment, an entirely new work upon this subject, containing easy and practical instructions for making fancy baskets, wall pockets, brackets, needle work, embroidery, etc., etc., profusely and elegantly illustrated.
19. Grimm's Fairy Stories for the Young. The finest collection of fairy stories published. The children are delighted with them.
20. Manual of Etiquette for Ladies and Gentlemen, a guide to politeness and good breeding, giving the rules of modern etiquette for all occasions.
21. Useful Knowledge for the Million, a handy book of useful information for all, upon many and various subjects.
22. The Home Cook Book and Family Physician, containing hundreds of excellent cooking recipes and hints to housekeepers, also telling how to cure all common ailments by simple home remedies.
23. Manners and Customs in Far Away Lands, a very interesting and instructive book of travels, describing the peculiar life, habits, manners and customs of the people of foreign countries.
24. 57 Popular Ballads. Same size as sheet music. Words of all the old and new songs.
25. Called Back. A Novel. By Hugh Conway.
26. At the World's Mercy. A Novel. By Florence Warden, author of "The House on the Marsh," etc.
27. Mildred Trevanion. A Novel. By "The Duchess," author of "Molly Bawn," etc.
28. Dark Days. A Novel. By the author of "Called Back."
29. Shadows on the Snow. A Novel. By B. L. Farjeon, author of "Bread-and-Cheese-and-Kisses," etc.
30. Leoline. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Brenda Yorke."
31. Gabriel's Marriage. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "No Name," etc.
32. Reaping the Whirlwind. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Old Middleton's Money," etc.
33. Dudley Carleon. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Lady Audley's Secret," etc.
34. A Golden Dawn. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
35. Valerie's Fate. A Novel. By Mrs. Alexander, author of "The Wooing O't," etc.
36. Sister Rose. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
37. Anne. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne."
38. The Laurel Bush. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
39. Robinson Crusoe. A thrilling narrative by Daniel De Foe, describing the adventures of a castaway in the South Pacific Ocean.
40. How to Make Poultry Pay. A practical and instructive series of articles by Mr. P. H. Jacobs, Poultry Editor of "The Farm and Garden," Phila.; illustrated.
41. Parlor Magic and Chemical Experiments, a book which tells how to perform hundreds of amusing tricks in magic and instructive experiments with simple agents.
42. Gems of the Poets, containing charming selections from Tennyson, Longfellow, Whittier, Byron, Shelley, Moore, Bryant, and many others.
43. Building Plans for Practical, Low-cost Houses. A full description and plans of Eight modern houses, ranging in price from $500 to $4500. Illustrated.
44. Anecdotes of Public Men—Washington, Franklin, Webster, Clay, Tilden, Lincoln, Scott, Grant, Garfield, Gladstone, Butler, Hancock, Lee, and all the leading men of the century.
45. Æsop's Fables. The work of an ancient genius. Children have read them for centuries, and grown people quote them every day.

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.

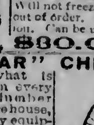
We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $3.00, or we will send any five for 25 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of "SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.



GRENADES!
Two Sizes—Pints and Quarts.
Over Sixty Millions Sold.
PRICES.
Pints, - Per Doz., $10.00
Quarts, - " " 15.00.

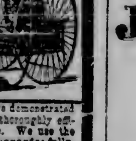
"STAR"
Tubular Fire Extinguisher.
Glass Tube, 19x2½ in. Holds 1 quart.

In this device we combine the BEST QUALITIES of our famous Grenades with the NEW feature of having an article that can be used by Sprinkling. It is designed especially for use in Passenger Coaches and Dwellings. It is elegant in ornamentation. It is cheap and reliable. No rust; no corrosion possible.
Plain, $12.00 per doz.
Ornamt'd, 15.00 per doz.



The "Star"
EXTINGUISHER
Holds 5 gallons, and will force a stream through 6 feet of hose 45 feet with our pump, which is the best ever made. Needs no attention until used. Will not freeze, explode or get out of order. No rust or corrosion. Can be used by anyone.
Price, $30.00 Each.

"STAR" CHEMICAL.



Just what is needed in every village, lumber yard, warehouse, etc. Fully equipped with Hose, Ax, Crow Bar, Lantern, etc. It is cheap, and reliable. Wt. 450 lbs.
PRICE.
$200.00 EACH.

Four years of practical use have demonstrated these to be the only reliable and thoroughly efficient Hand Fire appliances made. We use the same chemical liquid in all, and guarantee fully. Liberal discounts to agents. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The HARDEN HAND GRENADE CO.
51 & 53 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Take The Sentinel.

SOMETHING NEW.
WORLD RENOWNED
CENTRE DRAFT PLOW

The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are, that it
1st. NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d. TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.

The Beam is not bolted to the landside, but—by means of a steel frog—is set directly in the Centre of the Line of Draft, making a steady light running plow, and one that cannot be Clogged. See one before you buy.

If your Agent has none write us for price.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS,
RACINE, Wis.

EUREKA!

The New Trahern Force Pump
A GREAT SUCCESS.

NEW STOCK
—OF—
"Sherwin-Williams"
"Sherwin-Williams"
PAINTS.
For Sale Only By
L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO

JOB AND TIN WORK.

DRUGS and STATIONERY,
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

A Large and Complete New Line
JUST RECEIVED.
EVERYTHING
YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

The only News stand in town.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN
Boiler Works!

Builder and Manufacturer of

BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.

Sheet Iron Work given special attention.

MARINE WORK a specialty.

HENRY BARTH, Prop.
Charlevoix, Mich.

For Finest

JOB WORK,

Patronize The Sentinel.

CURES

Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, Whooping Cough, Quinzy, Sore Throat, Consumption, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Diseases.

YOUNG'S
COUGH
SYRUP

Dansville, Mich. Aug. 15, 1874. I was attacked with a severe cold and threatened with lung fever while on a visit in Hudson, Mich., about a month ago, so much so that I was unable to fill an appointment to preach on account of my severe coughing, but managed to get home, and immediately took some of Dr. E. A. Young's Cough & Lung Syrup that I had in the house, and my cough left me as soon as I commenced taking it, and I find permanent relief when I am attacked by cough or lung complaint.
REV. ROBT. COPE.

Howell, Mich., Oct. 26, 1874. I have tried Dr. E. A. Young's Cough and Lung Syrup for more than a year, and had occasion as a remedy for Colds and Coughs, and found it a reliable medicine. I have used his Ague and Liver Syrup in my family with the best of success, curing my mother (whose age was over seventy years) of one of the hardest attacks of Fever and Ague, after the second chill and fever. I take pleasure in recommending the above remedies to all who need them.
REV. S. H. KIMWELL.

Sold by all druggists. Price, 25c., 50c. and $1.00 Large bottles sent free on receipt of price.
W. JOHNSTON & CO.,
DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Pan Zama Balm

THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES. The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Trouble to which womankind is heir—$1 per box of one month's treatment. Reliable Lady Agents can make money for themselves and become benefactors to their race by engaging in the sale of this remedy. For medicine and particulars, Address
PAN-ZAMA MED. CO.,
Frankfort, Ind.

160 Acres in MARION
Township For Sale at a Bargain, Terms to suit.

MONEY TO LOAN ON
Approved Real Estate Security.
THEODORE R. CHAPIN
Boyne City.

FRANK E. WOODS
Bath & Barber Rooms
Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd fellows Block.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS.
Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.
If you want a quiet place to get a shave, hair dress or bath call and see me.
JAY L. PRICE.

NEW SHOP!
All kinds of Blacksmithing,
At the
Shop in the Foundry Building.
Horseshoeing a specialty.
ALL WORK GUARANTEED.
M. SCOTT.

1-3 OFF SALE!
At Miss Spaulding's
MILLINERY ROOMS,

I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.

Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $8.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed felt hat in the store.

Come early and secure a Bargain.

MISS L. SPAULDING.

JAS. A. GELLICK,
Dealer in
Choice Wines,
Fine Liquors
EXCELLENT CIGARS.

We call Special Attention to our
Old Kentucky Sour Mash
WHISKIES.

We also keep continually on draught
Milwaukee
Export and lager Beer.

Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

THE NEWS GRIST.

Important Happenings in Every Quarter of the Civilized Globe.

The Very Latest Intelligence Flashed Over the Telegraphic Wires.

LATEST DISPATCHES.

DESPERADOES SHOT DEAD.

End of the Rowan County (Ky.) Vendetta—Craig Tolliver and His Gang Slain While Resisting Arrest.

CRAIG TOLLIVER, Jay Tolliver, Bud Tolliver, and J. R. Cooper, of the famous outlaw band that has terrorized Rowan County, Ky., for three months past, were shot down in the streets of Morehead, the county seat, on Wednesday last. A Louisville dispatch gives the following particulars of the sanguinary affair:

On Tuesday Tolliver, who was recently chosen Police Judge under fear, received notice by mail that an armed force would kill him unless he left the town, if it had to burn Morehead to do it. One hundred armed horsemen surrounded the village of a dozen houses, and commanded the women, children, and peaceable citizens to come out and Tolliver's crowd to surrender. They sent a telegraph operator to stop the approaching train at the next siding and hold the other. Tolliver, instead of surrendering, opened fire from the hotel. A battle ensued, in which the Tollivers and Cooper were killed and one of the Sheriff's posse wounded. The feud out of which the tragedy grows began at the August election in 1884, when Cook Humphrey, Republican candidate for Sheriff, defeated Sam Goodan, a Democrat, by a majority of 12. A saloon fight occurred in which John Martin was badly hurt. He claimed that Lloyd Tolliver and John Day beat him with clubs. Shooting followed, in which ...

CURRENT EVENTS.

EAST.

PROFESSOR MARK HOPKINS, ex-President of Williams College, died at North Adams, Mass., on Friday. Mr. Hopkins, who was by many looked upon as the foremost theologian of the country, was born at Stockbridge, Mass., Feb. 4, 1802, graduated in 1824 at the college of which he was subsequently President, and later began practicing medicine in New York. In 1830 he was chosen Professor of Rhetoric and Moral Philosophy at the College, becoming President in 1836. Twenty-six years later he resigned the Presidency, but retained the professorship. Professor Hopkins was the author of a number of philosophical works. His manly piety, great intellect, and humor were strongly felt by every student who came under his influence. It was Dr. Hopkins who first conceived the idea of illustrating mental and moral science by means of diagrams, and so simplifying the most abstruse subjects.

HENRY V. LESLIE, the secretary of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal Company, who with J. A. ..., the treasurer, embezzled over ..., was arrested at Philadelphia.

WEST.

A CHICAGO dispatch of Monday says: William J. McGarigle, ex-chief of Police and present Warden of the County Hospital, and Edward McDonald, engineer of the County Hospital, spent Sunday behind the bars of the county jail as the result of the long "boodle" trial, the jury having found both of them guilty and sentenced each to three years' imprisonment. The trial lasted seven weeks. The jury met Saturday. Judge Shepard delivered the court's charge to the jury, and the twelve men retired to the grand jury room to decide upon the verdict. ... in their belief of the guilt of the accused, but were about equally divided in regard to the term of punishment ... three years. The maximum penalty ... law is three years' imprisonment ... fine, but money punishment ... into the deliberations ... verdict was soon reached ...

... Gov. Foraker, of Ohio, ... be returned to ... to enjoin the ... flags to the Governor ... States, Gen. H. V. ... Samuel Shellabarger, Hon. George S. ... to take charge ... expected to ... or a mandamus ... Court of ... afternoon, but ... receipt of a necessary ... Ohio. The papers ... that the Secretary ... dispose of public ... of law. The ... made further action ... necessary." The ... of Ohio and Iowa ... indignation of ... Republic over the ... flags had the effect ... throughout the ... of Wisconsin, ... President Cleveland ... trophies, if surrendered ... up to the States ... recaptured. Gov. ... also wired his ... scheme was "an ... and an outrage ..."

ABDUL HAMID.

His Fear of Plots—A Ruler Who Reads Petitions.

The present Sultan is a man who sits quaking in his kiosk at Yildiz with his nerves all unstrung from fear of plots and his ears wide open to every suggestion for securing, not the safety of his dominions, but his own personal safety, writes a correspondent. To see him go to the mosque on a Friday in a closed carriage is a humiliating spectacle to old Turkish officers, who remember how proudly Abdul Medjid and Abdul Aziz used to ride on horseback through crowded streets to St. Sophia.

THE WORLD OF SPORT.

Base-Ball—Chicago Making a Fine Showing in the Pennant Race.

The Recent Games with the Heavy Hitters from Detroit and Their Result.

[CHICAGO CORRESPONDENCE.]

CHICAGO, June 21.—The eighth week of the League championship games has come and gone, and the teams in the race have settled down to their work in a style that presages one of the greatest struggles for championship honors ever recorded in the history of the game professionally. Beyond all question last week's games with Detroit were the most interesting ever seen at White Stocking Park, and the magnificent batting of both teams during the series gave the fielders work enough to make every game lively beyond description from start to finish. On leaving the grand stand after Friday's game your correspondent met a base-ball enthusiast, who boasts of not having missed a game upon the home grounds in seven years.

"Well, what do you think of Detroit?" I asked him.

VICTORIA'S JUBILEE.

The Long Reign of England's Sovereign Impressively Celebrated in London.

A Magnificent Procession from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey and Back.

QUEEN VICTORIA and her London subjects were favored with delightful weather on the jubilee day of her fifty-first year upon England's throne, says a London dispatch. The sun rose upon a delightfully clear and bright atmosphere, and his rays were tempered throughout the day by a cooling and refreshing breeze. Thousands upon thousands of people spent the night, as many of them had spent the night before, under the open sky, lunching whenever and wherever they could find edibles for sale. It seemed as if all London had been transformed into an enormous moonlight picnic party, and when day broke the crowd was already so dense along the route of the jubilee procession that it was hard to see how any body of troops could thread its way through so dense a gathering. Yet for over four hours the crowd kept growing denser and denser, but good feeling was so general that no disturbances of any kind occurred, and people swayed to and fro with the ...

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Notes on the Lesson for July 3—"The Infant Jesus."

[From the Chicago Standard. By Rev. J. M. Coon.]

The lesson is found in the first twelve verses of the second chapter of Matthew. The time was about B. C. 4. His birth was so much earlier than the date first fixed. Place—Bethlehem. See under Special Mention.

SPECIAL MENTION.

(1.) The gospel of Matthew. Its author. This was Matthew, the publican, as all agree. For account of his call to be a disciple see Matt. ix., 9; Mark ii., 14; Luke v., 27, 28. He is characteristically modest in his personal references. "Seventeen independent witnesses of the first four centuries attest its genuineness." (Schaff.)

(2.) Its purpose. Matthew wrote for the Jews in Palestine. Therefore he deals so much with Old Testament prophecy, proving its fulfillment in Christ. He traces the plan of God in redemption, as found in the history of the Jews, showing Jesus to correspond, in life and character and claim, to the Messiah of the Old Testament.

(3.) Date of its composition. This is not known certainly, but it was probably near the middle of the first century. It is generally admitted to be the first written of the four gospels, though coming later than the Acts and Paul's epistles.

(4.) Its key-word. According to W. F. Cratis, the key-word of this gospel is "fulfilled" ...

MUNICIPAL CRIME.

How Dr. Talmage Proposes to Decrease It.

A Filthy City Always a Wicked City—The Newspapers of a Place a Test of Its Morality—Compulsory Education Advocated.

BROOKLYN, June 19.—This morning at the Tabernacle the Rev. T. De Witt Talmage read, previous to the sermon, portions of Scripture descriptive of ancient cities and gave out the hymn:

"Fields are white, the harvest waiting;
Who will bear the sheaves away?"

His text was, "And the men of the city said unto Elisha, Behold, I pray thee, the situation of this city is pleasant, as my Lord seeth; but the water is naught, and the ground barren. And he said, Bring me a new cruse, and put salt therein. And they brought it to him. And he went forth unto the spring of the waters, and cast the salt in there, and said, thus saith the Lord, I have healed these waters; there shall not be from thence any more death or barren land. So the waters were healed unto this day." II. Kings ii, 19-22.

Dr. Talmage said: It is difficult to estimate how much of the prosperity and health of a city are dependent upon good water. The time when through well laid pipes and from safe reservoir an abundance ...

... thousands of little ones through our streets who are crying for the bread of knowledge and intelligence. Shall we not give it to them? The officers of the law ought to go down into the cellars, and up into the garrets, and bring out these benighted little ones and put them under educational influences; after they have passed through the bath and under the comb, putting before them the spelling book, and teaching them to read the Lord's Prayer and the sermon on the mount: "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of Heaven." Our city ought to be father and mother both to these outcast little ones. As a recipe for the cure of much of the woe, and want and crime of our city, I give the words which Thorwaldsen had chiseled on the open scroll in the hand of the statue of John Gutenberg, the inventor of the art of printing: "Let there be light!"

Still further: Reformatory societies are an important element in the rectification of the public fountain. Without calling any of them by name, I refer more especially to those which recognize the physical as well as the moral woes of the world. There was pathos and a great deal of common sense in what the poor woman said to Dr. Guthrie when he was telling her what a very good woman she ought to be. "Oh," she said, "if you were as hungry and cold as I am, you could think of nothing else." I believe the great want of our city is the Gospel and something to eat. Faith and ...

... already been made, made by the hand of God; and when these shall come at last with songs and rejoicing, it will take a very broad banner to hold the names of all the battlefields on which they got the victory.

Some years ago a roughly-clad, ragged boy came into my brother's office in New York and said: "Mr. Talmage, lend me $5." My brother said: "Who are you?" The boy replied: "I am nobody. Lend me $5." "What do you want to do with $5?" "Well," the boy replied, "my mother is sick and poor and I want to go into the newspaper business, and I shall get a home for her and will pay you back." My brother gave him the $5, of course never expecting to see it again; but he said: "When will you pay it?" "I will pay it in six months, sir." Time went by, and one day a lad came into my brother's office and said: "There's your $5." "What do you mean? What $5?" inquired my brother. "Don't you remember that a boy came in here six months ago and wanted to borrow $5 to go into the newspaper business?" "Oh, yes, I remember; are you the lad?" "Yes," he replied, "I have got along nicely. I have got a nice home for my mother (she is sick yet) and I am as well clothed as you are, and there's your $5." Oh, was he not worth saving? Why, that lad is worth fifty such boys as I have sometimes seen moving in elegant circles, never put to any use for God or man. Worth saving! I go ...

CLEVELAND AND THE G. A. R.

The Position of the Iowa Grand Army Boys—Gen. Tuttle Misrepresented.

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

The mugwump and Democratic papers are misrepresenting outrageously the action taken in St. Louis by Gen. Tuttle and the reasons given by the Grand Army posts in Iowa for their indorsement of the General's opposition to a review of the G. A. R. parade by Cleveland. Tuttle is represented as a swashbuckler who has sought to attract attention to himself by proposing that the old soldiers should openly insult Cleveland if the latter should attend the encampment. These are gross falsehoods. Gen. Tuttle—"Old Tut," as the Iowa soldiers call him—is known to thousands of veterans throughout the West as a modest, brave, cool-headed, plain-spoken man—one who would not under any circumstances propose such a thing as offering an insult to the President. Tuttle went to St. Louis in his capacity as Division Commander of the Grand Army for Iowa, and to his astonishment found that the St. Louis Citizens' Committee had made preparations to use the encampment to boom Cleveland and give ...

... didate. Nearly 7,000 voters voted for George who voted for no candidate for any other office. The loss to the Republicans was 23 per cent., and to the Democrats 31 per cent. Had the new movement extended to State officers the result would have been as follows:

Daniels, 461,018 less 18,5..	442,467
Peckham, 468,81. less 11,821	426,291
Republican majority	15,173

This calculation is, of course, based on the assumption that the movement is confined to New York City; but it is no longer thus confined. The United Labor party now has a complete organization in every district in Brooklyn, which has also been a Democratic city, and the probability is that it will draw from both the old political organizations in proportions similar to those shown in this city, thus increasing the disaster of the Democratic party.

The last election placed the Labor party third in the race and left it facing the Democratic party as its only real antagonist. The new party with but an impromptu organization, and believed by all outside its own ranks to be doomed to inevitable defeat, polled over 68,000 votes in 1886. It is now organized in every election district, and has never permitted its efforts or its enthusiasm to flag for a moment. There is every reason to believe that it will sweep the city this year, and certainly any hope the Republicans may have had last fall of ...

AT THE CAPITAL.

Important Liquor Legislation—The Senate Passes the Local Option and High Tax Bills—State Constabulary Bill Lost.

LANSING, June 20, 1887.

The Senate took definite action last week on the three important matters of liquor legislation that have been pending ever since the failure of prohibition at the April election, and succeeded in passing two, while the third lacked two votes of passing.

WILL TRY PROHIBITION.

The first gun for prohibition (in a new form) was fired by the Senate on the 15th, the Burr local option bill that recently passed the House coming up on a special order. A strong effort was made by Senator Hubbell to reduce the districts that might vote for or against prohibition from counties to townships, but it failed, as did one by Senator Sharp to make all cities of 5,000 and over separate districts. Both amendments were voted down, 11 for and 15 against. Other amendments, offered to perfect and smooth up the bill, but not to change it, were made; and then, after a long discussion, in which Senators Edwards, Holbrook, Giddings, Howell, J. W. Babcock, Westgate, Moon, Fox, and Mayo all ...

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

THE Senate spent the entire day in committee of the whole on the liquor tax bill on the 14th, and amended it in various ways, the most important amendments being one permitting dealers to secure sureties anywhere in the township instead of the village, giving the County Treasurer 1 per cent. of the tax for collection instead of ... only, effecting counties with large cities in them and lowering the tax from $... to $300, which is the figure at present. One of the most radical changes from present school laws was made by the passage of the Senate bill by the House amending sundry sections of the law relating to the examination of teachers and superintendents of schools, and the duties of Township Clerk and County Clerk concerning school rates. It provides that the County Board of School Examiners, which is decreased to two members, elected by township Chairman of School Inspectors, with the Judge of Probate, shall select a Secretary who shall act in the general capacity as inspector of the schools of the county, having duties very similar to those of the County Superintendent in many States. The examiners may select a Secretary who is not a resident of the State. The Secretary shall be an ex-officio member of the County Board, and its executive officer. He shall visit all schools in the county at least once each year. The Secretary shall receive such compensation as the County Board of Supervisors shall determine, but it shall not be less than $300 for each organized district in the county, nor more than $1,500. The Secretary may be removed for immorality, incompetency, or neglect of duty by the same officers who elected him, and in case of a vacancy a new selection is made by the two examiners acting with the Probate Judge. It is a very radical change, and affects all the State except ...

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY

SMITH & PARMELEE,

Charlevoix, - Michigan.

Address all business correspondence to the firm

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One year - $1 50 | Six months - $.75

Invariably in Advance.

CHARLEVOIX, JUNE 29, 1887.

The Champlain Disaster.

NOTES.

The body of Mr. Roger's little boy was found near Petoskey Friday and sent to Mackinaw.

All the bodies, except those of the four Indians, have been found. Four bodies were found between 25 and 35 miles from the scene of the disaster.

Geo. Miller recovered 15 suits of clothing from the bottom of the Champlain, damaged only by water.

Engineer McCaffrey's mother arrived from Manistee on Friday, and is at the bedside of her boy.

On Thursday last the bodies of steward Bean's eldest child and Miss Willard were found near Middle Village and forwarded here, where their funerals occurred the following day. The body of Mrs. Kehoe was found the same evening near Petoskey and was taken to Chicago by her husband.

The wreck of the Champlain still lies on the bottom on the east side of the harbor. The insurance adjustors was here last week. The hull remains the property of the Northern Michigan line, and will be sold by them. She is said to be worth about $4,000 as she lies.

Capt. Ed Casey, late master of the propeller Champlain, has been offered and accepted the command of a large new steamship being built by Wolfe & Davidson, at Milwaukee. She is a four-master, 308 feet long, and will be ready Aug. 15th. She will run between Chicago and Buffalo. Captain Casey's many friends congratulate him on his appointment.

Engineer McCaffrey, who has been lying at the Fountain City House for two weeks, was the engineer of the propeller Champlain when she broke her valve stem in the middle of Lake Michigan in 1881, in a heavy sea. Mr. Seymour, one of her owners, was master, and the boat was in a hard fix. Engineer McCaffrey, amid all the excitement, went quietly to work saying not a word in reply to Captain or passengers and made a "mend" that astonished steamboat men everywhere. With a file he "dove-tailed" the broken pieces of the stem, fitted in a brass key and in three hours had her going, and took her into Milwaukee. The mended valve stem is now exhibited in a Chicago machine shop as one of the most ingenious pieces of work on record, and done under most trying circumstances.

Petoskey Record: On last Sunday, a great concourse of people assembled to do honor to the memory of a brave and noble man, Captain George Lucas, lost in the burning of the Champlain off Charlevoix. Captain Lucas was a man whom everybody loved, and who had not an enemy in the whole community. He was born in Ashtabula, Ohio, and when twelve years of age went on a whaling voyage of three years to the Pacific ocean. On his return after a short vacation he shipped again, and was absent in the north Pacific and Sandwich Islands for four years more. When he returned from his last voyage he settled in Buffalo, N. Y., and for 28 years was master of lake crafts, some being among the finest on the lakes and several of which he owned himself. Three years ago he sold his vessel, the Young America and settled in Petoskey, where has since resided, engaged for the first two years as dock master, and in the boat livery business, and the past year as partner in the firm of Hazleton & Pettis, manufacturing English root beer and home made bread. He boarded the Champlain on Thursday at Elk Rapids to return to Petoskey and when the alarm of fire was given with perfect coolness and self possession assisted the officers of the boat in preventing a panic, and in putting life preservers on the passengers. When at last the deck was cleared, and the heat almost unbearable, he hastily threw a life preserver around him and preceeded Captain Casey into the water. The latter says that when Captain Lucas went over the side he was fully dressed, and, as the body when found, was divested of shoes and pantaloons, it is presumed that finding himself impeded in swimming by the extra weight he took them off, and that having been very hot before going into the ice cold water was seized with cramps while struggling to disincumber himself and his life preserver being badly adjusted, he was unable to hold his face out of the water. It is altogether probable that had he lost no time in helping others, but promptly taken to the water he would have been alive to-day. But everybody who knew Captain Lucas knows how impossible it would be for him to do a thing of that kind, for he was an ideal sailor, brave, tender hearted and generous. Rarely was he ever seen at work in front of his place of business on Howard street without the company of children, black and white, who gathered round him with an instinctive confidence, and they all loved him. Among our people he was known as an honorable, upright, clean handed and clean hearted man, with frank and genial manners, and was a universal favorite. He left behind him two sons and a daughter by his first marriage—the former sailors, and the latter recently married to Fred House, of Grand Rapids, and a wife and two little boys who reside here.

Cull shingles and lumber for sale cheap, or will exchange for farm produce. Apply at Burns & Scroggie's livery barn. tf

Local News.

—The Charlevoix Kindergarten closed Friday.

—John McCabe's new meat market building is up.

—Notice the change in J. L. Hurd & Co's advertisement.

—The steam dredge began work on the lower channel Friday.

—Mrs. J. L. Hurd returned from Southern Michigan, yesterday.

—A large amount of local and county matter is laid over until next week.

—Miss Esther Buttars returned this morning from her long visit at Port Austin.

—Graves & Lamphear with their assistants, re-painted five resort cottages and dwellings last week.

—Greilick Bros. of Traverse City, were here last Thursday, looking at the wrecked propeller Champlain.

—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smithson of Wichita, Kansas, are spending a few halcyon weeks under the parental roof.

—Will N. Moore of East Jordan, has been appointed Circuit Court Commissioner by the Governor in place of F. E. Fogg, resigned.

—The arrangements for the celebration at Charlevoix are nearly perfected. It will be the biggest celebration ever witnessed in northern Michigan.

—With an elegant new Tuft's soda fountain and an unusually large and choice line of confectionery, Frank Hines & Co.'s drug store is a popular place of resort.

—Frank E. Fogg left yesterday for the Upper Peninsula to locate. He will probably settle down in Bessemer. Mr. Fogg is a good lawyer, a zealous republican, a genial fellow and as a hustler in politics has few equals. He will be missed in the county.

—Lewis Miller, of this place, was married at Cadillac, on the 22d to Miss Thirza Whitcomb, sister of Mrs. Amos Fox and Mrs. Ida Miller. They returned here the 23d. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Miller unite in extending congratulations and good wishes.

—Boyne Citizen: A very quiet wedding occurred yesterday at Dr. Sanderson's residence, the participants being Miss Lou Marshall, sister of Mrs. Sanderson, and Mr. Ben Weaver, our efficient Deputy Register. The Rev. John Redpath performed the ceremony, only the relatives being present, and the happy couple took the afternoon boat for Charlevoix, where they will reside.

—Grand Traverse Herald: Our readers will remember the series of educational articles written early in the spring, for the Herald, by Prof. R. C. Enos, of Leland. These articles attracted a good deal of attention, and have been and are now being republished in some of the leading educational journals of the country. Among these are the New York School Journal, and the New York Teachers' Institute. The New Orleans Progressive Teacher made two of these articles the leading articles in the May and June numbers of that journal, and Prof. Enos has been given a regular department in the last named journal and made state editor for Michigan.

Religious.

M. E. Church.

The sin of saying and doing nothing will be the theme of Bible reading next Tuesday evening.

Thursday evening we meet to pray and praise Him in whom we live, move and have our being.

Teachers' meeting Friday evening.

Sunday morning service at the usual hour. Preaching by the pastor; S. S. at 12. W. H. MC.

The sermon upon "Systematic Giving" by J. S. Smithson at the M. E. church Sunday, resulted in a large collection. Mr. Smithson firmly believes in the principle that "as you give you shall live," and grows accordingly.

Congregational Church.

Prayer and Praise meeting as usual Thursday evening.

Sunday morning services conducted by the Rev. C. F. Van Auken. Baptism and receiving members into the church. COM.

Episcopal Church.

Rev. Frederick Lee of Maryland, will hold service with sermon, at Opera Hall on Sunday next 10:30 a. m. and 3:30 p. m., and in Green's Hall Friday on evening this week at 7:30 p. m. Come everybody.

Elsewhere.

J. S. Smithson will preach at the Hilton School house Sunday, July 10.

The East Jordan Methodist church was dedicated last Sunday morning. After the prayer by Rev. A. L. Thurston and reading of the scriptures by Rev. J. Burdge, the Rev. W. H. McCartney delivered the discourse. The Presiding Elder stated that the church had cost $2,200 and that there yet remained unpaid $806. In a short time $900 was raised and the building was dedicated free from debt. Eighty one partook of the communion. East Jordan Methodists have a church edifice of which they may well feel proud.

Charlevoix Summer Resort Items.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. West, Miss Mary West and Lizzie Schonman came Friday. We regret to state that Mrs. West is so ill that visitors are not permitted to see her.

Mrs. O. M. Allen, Miss Fannie Allen and Dee L. Allen arrived Friday.

Miss Mary Heaton has joined her mother at the Heaton cottage.

D. A. Waterman of Detroit, auditor of the M. C. R. R., came Thursday with his family. Mr. Waterman is the kind of a resorter that's always welcome to the best there is on this earth.

Last week the cottages of Messrs Bondeman, Stockbridge, Willcox and Wilson, were re-painted.

W. B. Moore and family of East Saginaw, are here.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Henry Bennett, President of the Charlevoix Savings Bank, Dies in His Chair.

On Monday evening at seven o'clock Henry Bennett, President of the Charlevoix Savings Bank, died suddenly of cerebral apoplexy. Mr. Bennett had just returned from milking, and seated himself in a rocking chair, apparently in his usual good health. One of the family soon noticed a deathly palor on his countenance, and calling to him received no reply. He was dead. Some days ago Mr. Bennett received a fall, injuring his side, and he had been complaining of a distress, but was apparently recovering, and had resumed his usual activity.

Henry Bennett was born in Griswold, Conn., June 12, 1813. His boyhood days were spent in New England, and in 1838 he removed West, locating in Hartford, Ohio, where he adopted farming as his calling until 1859, acquiring a competency. In that year he retired from his farm and became quite extensively engaged in real estate, and coal mining transactions, investing in bank stock in several banks. He was for several years a director in the Warren Savings Bank and a stockholder in the Trumbul County National Bank. In 1883 he removed here, and at once entered prominently into financial affairs. He was one of the original stockholders of the Charlevoix Savings Bank and elected President of that institution when organized, which position he held at the time of his death.

Mr. Bennett was in his make up a typical New England character; of sterling integrity; methodical and precise in business, and always the same cool-headed and even tempered man. He died as he lived—quietly, without a struggle. Mr. Bennett was the oldest member of a family of 14 children, only four of which survive him. He leaves a widow and four children—D. R. Bennett, of Dighton, Kas., Mrs. Orvis D. Wood, Mrs. Fred A. Smith and Miss Hettie Bennett, of this place. He has lost three sons, one of whom was killed at the battle of Murphreesboro.

The funeral will occur at the residence, Friday, 2 p. m.

Hazings from Hayes.

Vegetation is two weeks earlier than usual.

Clover hay will be made in a few days.

Strawberries will be a heavy crop this season.

Col. O. T. Booth moved on his farm last week and intends to make it one of the best farms in the town.

Robert Wilks of Charlevoix, who perished in the Champlain disaster, was father of Mrs. Frank Kane of Hayes.

Thomas Goodrich of Carpenter, is teaching the Maple Grove school.

Ironton.

Dan Woolnough, son of Capt. Woolnough, came up from Racine on Thursday to take his place as mate on the Narragansett.

Oley Olson, late member of the clerking force in the Company's store, is in Seattle, Washington Territory.

The H. H. Society captured $19 at their social on Friday evening, also a good social time.

The strawberry festival receipts at the Congregational church on Friday evening were about $40.

The exhibition in the Hillegas school house was a success, the pupils acquitting themselves credibly and reflecting credit upon themselves and their training.

Friday is the last day of school for this year. The pupils will have their annual picnic in the grove back of the school house. A short programme will be offered and an effort made to have an enjoyable and profitable time. It is hoped the patrons and friends of the schools will encourage the pupils and teachers by their presence as has been their custom in the past.

Resolutions of the Charlevoix Historical Society.

WHEREAS, in the burning of the propeller "Champlain" off this port on the 17th instant, the Charlevoix Historical Society lost one of its brightest members, most useful, ever ready and willing workers for its success. Therefore Resolved that in the death of Mrs. Ella Cooper Smith, (which appalling fact darted upon us like the meteor from an unclouded sky, without warning or admonition) this Society has sustained a severe and irreparable loss and each member thereof a personal bereavement. That we most sincerely tender to the afflicted parents and relatives our heartfelt sympathy and condolence in this trying hour of calamity and sorrow, and can only direct them to Him who has promised to care for those who put their trust in Him and who alone can heal the broken hearted.

Resolved that the preamble and resolutions be transcribed in the records of this Society, and that an engrossed copy be presented to the bereaved family of deceased and published in the village papers.

MRS. MAGGIE WASHBURNE,
MRS. OLEVIA M. CARLSTEIN,
MISS ALICE COCHRAN,
Special Committee.

The above preamble and resolutions were adopted at a special meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society on June 24, 1887.

E. H. GREEN, President.
LUNA WASHBURNE, Sec'y pro tem.

Fresh Butter at lowest price, at Jefferies' Bakery.

L. D. Bartholomew & Co., are agents for a new saw gummer.

TO RENT. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

A large stock of oranges and lemons at wholesale at the Pagoda.

O. W. SMITH.

The ladies are cordially invited to call and examine the large display of millinery including pattern hats and bonnets together with novelties in ribbons, gauzes, flowers, etc. As it is to be a season of novelties it will pay you to call now and often, upon Mrs. Litney & Carr.

—A week ago Sunday the funeral of Capt. Lucas, lost in the Champlain disaster, was held in Petoskey, and was very largely attended.

J. L. Newberry of Petoskey, is agent for and offers for sale, the lots on Schoffen's addition to Ironton, at low prices and easy terms. Perfect titles given. He will also sell, or exchange for property in Petoskey, his house and lot on Main street, Charlevoix. 3w

ICE CREAM PAR EXCELLENCE.

We would respectfully inform the public that we have at considerable expense, prepared and suitably furnished our Band Pagoda as an Ice Cream parlor, and have placed it at the head of all similar institutions in Charlevoix. It will be open for the use of the public at all times save on Wednesday evenings, when there will be a Grand Concert by the Band. Our cream will be as good as can be made. Just received a large lot of Ice Cream Packages holding from one quart to one or more gallons, which will be loaned to customers for safely carrying cream to their homes. The quality of our cream speaks for itself. Our stock of foreign and domestic Fruits is always large and of the best quality. We carry as fine a line of confectionery, nuts, etc., as can be found in town.

Respectfully,
O. W. SMITH

NOTICE.

The late Champlain disaster has placed me in close financial circumstances. Therefore it is necessary for me to collect all outstanding indebtedness. All Owing me will please call and pay.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Rosenthal & Son

continue business at the old stand in the See Block,

IN THE LINE OF

Indian Basket & and Bark Work.

Call and look over our Stock.

ROSENTHAL & SON.

POSITIVELY THE FINEST LINE OF

CLOTHING

AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS YOU EVER SAW IN CHARLEVOIX,

JUST RECEIVED FOR SUMMER WEAR.

Prices are unusually low this Spring and if you need anything in my line, just step in.

Now is a Grand Time To Obtain Bargains.

GEO. W. MILLER.

A. T. WASHBURNE AND CO.

OUR SECOND INVOICE OF SUMMER GOODS HAS ARRIVED.

We wish to call especial attention to the elegant line of wash goods now on our counters, as we never before have received such an assortment. We are confident they will be appreciated by all.

NEW EMBROIDERIES, LACES and LINENS. Our line of Corsets and Corset Waists is excelled nowhere in the state. See what we can give you for 25 cents in a Corset.

NEW DRESS GOODS, CARPETS, FANCY GOODS

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

Successors to F. W. CRAINE & CO.

REFITTED!

Our store is fully completed and we cordially invite our friends and patrons to call and inspect a choice assortment of new

DRY GOODS & GROCERIES

new Goods arriving nearly every day. Our stock of Groceries is the Largest, Choicest, Cleanest, and our Prices the Lowest. We're busy and haven't got arranged yet, but we want to see you just as we are.

J. L. HURD & CO.

GRAND

CELEBRATION!

--AT--

ALICK ROSENTHALs

For the next 2 weeks.

A fine new stock to select from in all departments. I have been receiving new goods every day since I moved to the Lewis Block, and my stock cannot be excelled.

PARASOLS: An elegant stock at Lowest Prices.

MY STOCK OF

CLOTHING!

is complete and I'm bound to suit you in both Price and Quality.

DON'T FORGET THE PLACE.

In The LEWIS Block.

NEAR THE BRIDGE.

ALICK ROSENTHAL.

P. S. ALL SUMMER GOODS GREATLY REDUCED IN PRICE FOR 2 WEEKS.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XIX. NO.--10 CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, JULY 6, 1887. WHOLE NO. 919

"BUG FINISH!"

The new Potato Bug exterminator. We warrant it to give satisfaction. Very cheap. All ready for use. Requires no mixing. Try it.

STRICTLY PURE PARIS GREEN

We have in stock the purest article to be found in the market. It's sure death every time. Buy no other.

Sure Death To Currant Worms!

For these pests we have a pure article of White Hellebone. When ever used it acts like magic not leaving a worm on the bush.

PURE DALMATION INSECT POWDER

The best thing for Flies and other insects.

A trial of any of the above is bound to prove satisfactory.

F. G. HINES & CO.
Druggists.

Emrey Bros.

are on deck this Spring with a complete stock of

General Merchandise, AT LOWEST PRICES

WE ARE DETERMINED TO DO A STRICTLY CASH BUSINESS, AND THUS ARE ENABLED TO UNDERSELL FIRMS GIVING CREDIT.

IT WILL BE FOR YOUR PROFIT TO CALL AND GET PRICES.

Boots and Shoes THE GREATEST BARGAINS EVER OFFERED IN THIS COUNTY.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

We call especial attention to our complete stock of

WALL PAPER.

The time has arrived when you need it. We are now receiving a fresh Spring stock embracing all the latest styles. We warrant you lowest prices.

Special Patterns ordered from samples if you wish.

OUR SUMMER ASSORTMENT OF

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

now being received is the finest we ever offered

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in

FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN

BOOTS and SHOES.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces

EVERYTHING

usually found in a General Store.

Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours,

Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

Save Your Dollars

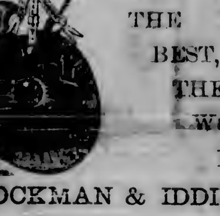
AND BUY HARDWARE

OF STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

Aiming to keep a complete stock, it is our honest endeavor to sell all goods at lowest living prices, for the reason that we court the attention and patronage of every cash customer in Charlevoix County, who wants to save money by making a dollar go as far as possible. Try us if you happen to be one of those who have not already done so. We are preparing a SURPRISE for YOU. Do not fail to come to our store and see us if possible, every time you come to Charlevoix. You are under no obligation to buy if you don't want to. We are always glad to answer inquiries regarding anything in our line. We want to help you and want your help and patronage to that end.

We call your attention to PAINTS &c.

ALSO PLEASE REMEMBER THAT THE JEWEL STOVES



ARE THE BEST, THE WORLD'S BEST!

Resp'y, STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

The Best Groceries

At The Lowest Prices

ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF

A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

New Furniture

AT S. M. SEE & SONS!

We have just received an entirely new stock of Furniture of every discription.

Dealing exclusively in Furniture we are confident we can make it an object to all wishing to buy to call and inspect our stock.

UNDERTAKING A Specialty.

J. MILO EATON'S

REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE, AND LOAN OFFICE.

The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice

WANTED!

Everyone to know that we are here and doing Business, and will do just as we agree to by one and all. We keep

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS, FLOUR AND FEED, CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

Choice Butter and Fresh Eggs a Specialty. Call on us or order by Telephone.

WILL SEE & CO.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY

SMITH & PARMELEE,

Charlevoix, - Michigan.

Address all business correspondence to the firm

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One year - $1 50 | Six months - $.75

Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—Hon. M. C. Burch, of Grand Rapids, is in town.

—See L. D. Bartholomew & Co.'s new advertisement in this issue.

—The Petoskey Independent office is now lighted with electric lights.

—Miss Fannie Hannan, is a guest of her uncle, Capt. Harrison Berdan.

—Misses Mary Scroggie and Katie Schoffen are visiting friends in Cheboygan.

—Frank G. White of Mancelona, is spending a few days here with his brother Nelson.

—C. Buys of South Haven, is here on a summer's visit to his daughter, Mrs. H. B. Bacon.

—The Pine Lake Iron Co.'s furnace turned out 1789 tons of iron for the 30 days of June.

—Will See & Co., the popular grocers, have a new advertisement this week for your perusal.

—A six-foot sidewalk is being constructed the entire length of State street, on the west side.

—Prof. Ralph Enos, of Leland, is in town, and will spend a portion of his vacation with his parents.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frank McGilbeney, of the McGilbeney family, were the guests of Fred Smith yesterday.

—The propeller City of Grand Rapids has changed her order of running, exactly reversing her trips.

—Capt. Carroll, of Horton's Bay, is seriously ill with strangulated hernia, with chances against recovery.

—Harmon H. Kimebaugh and Mary J. Buller were married on the 4th inst., by Rev. C. F. VanAuken.

—Farmers are congratulating themselves on the fact that crops are better than for the past four years.

—A serious stabbing affray occurred at Ironton last week. For particulars, see Ironton correspondence.

—Misses Hattie Thompson, Lulu Bessie, Dodie and Bay Delamar, of South Haven, are visiting at H. Bacon's.

—Thos. F. Nelson, formerly proprietor of the East Jordan Enterprise, is now working on the Manistique Sunday Sun.

—Charles Wilson of Chicago and Miss Katie Whitley of this place were married on the 29th ult. by Rev. C. F. VanAuken at his home.

—The Orangemen of this district expect to have a grand time at Boyne City July 12th. Several speakers of prominence are advertised.

—Rev. J. J. Kanagy has accepted the call of his congregation at Vanderbilt for six months longer, but at present is at his home here on a short vacation.

—Traverse City people are getting a little nervous over the arrival in town of a supposed heir to the ground on which the city stands. His name is Boardman.

—Capt. Casey, late of the propeller Champlain, leaves for Milwaukee today or to-morrow, and engineer McCaffrey goes to his home in Manistee nearly recovered.

—Prof. Kathain, the veteran piano tuner, has been here during the past two weeks, and has tuned 23 pianos, besides repairing several organs. He goes to Petoskey from here. The Professor can be relied upon as entirely capable and trustworthy. When the country is infested with snide tuners, piano owners should avail themselves of an opportunity like this to secure good work. The SENTINEL vouches for Prof. Kathain.

—The steamer Cummings, which has been running opposite trips with the steamer Friant, between East Jordan and Petoskey, has entered upon a new arrangement which will be very acceptable, and, we doubt not, prove beneficial to Charlevoix people. Hereafter, she will confine her trips between Charlevoix and the north end of the route. Leaving Petoskey on the arrival of the 5 p. m. train and remaining here over night; leaving Charlevoix going north at 7 a. m. and one p. m. The arrangement is one which should receive encouragement from Charlevoix people, both residents and resorters.

The Fourth in Charlevoix.

The almost inevitable Fourth of July rain storm got in its work Monday forenoon. It came down steadily until noon, when the sun came out and the balance of the day was fair but hot.

The crowd was large, Charlevoix was full—full of patriotic enthusiasm, good nature and—mud. There were no drunks on the streets excepting two Indians, who were promptly locked up by Marshal See.

Notwithstanding the rain and mud, Baxter Post, G. A. R., as they did in by-gone years, marched through it all to the music of the fife and drum.

The fire department, in their new uniforms and with their glistening steamer, gave a parade and drill, stretching a line of hose, uncoupling and connecting in 32 seconds, through mud nearly to their ankles. They afterward went through a "wet practise," and did themselves proud.

The ball game was the event of the day, and occupied three hours of the afternoon. The game resulted in a victory for Charlevoix over Boyne City by a score of 17 to 4.

Taken altogether, the celebration was a success.

The Railroad Survey.

The surveying party of the D. C. & E. R. R., are in from their labors, having finished the survey to Kalkaska, on the G. R. & I.

Engineer Beardslee tells our reporter that the entire route is better than he anticipated, even through the Rapid river country. He is now engaged in making a map and profile of the route, which will be placed before the Board of Directors at an early day, after which the continuation of the survey to some point on the M. C. R. R. will be considered.

Our reporter remarked: "Mr. Beardslee, we hope to see you at the head of a corps of construction inside of six months."

"I hope to be at it in two months," was his reply.

Henry Bennett's Funeral.

On Friday afternoon last, the remains of Mr. Bennett were consigned to their last resting place. The funeral occurred at the residence, and was attended by our citizens generally, who filled the spacious rooms and verandas.

The scripture reading by Rev. J. T. Iddings was from John 14, and a selection from 2d Corinthians; the choir sang beautifully the anthem, "There is a Calm for those Who Weep," and following prayer, Mr. Bennett's favorite hymn, "Wait, O, My Soul," was sung.

The sermon, by Rev. C. F. VanAuken, from 2d Cor., 5—1, and the the choir closed with the anthem, "Beyond the Smiling and the Weeping." The services were solemn and touching." Dwight R. Bennett, son of the deceased, arrived from Kansas in time to attend the funeral.

The remains reposed in a beautiful and costly casket, and, notwithstanding the extremely warm weather and unusual time between death and interment, the features retained their life-like expression, under the careful preparation of Undertaker See.

Card of Thanks.

Editors SENTINEL: I wish to return my sincere thanks to the good and kind people of Charlevoix for their sympathy and manly efforts in recovering my beloved son, Wm. J. Sansom. Respectfully,

HENRY SANSOM,
Streator, Ills.

At the Prohibition meeting the other evening one of the speakers said: The best Prohibitionists have come from the Republicans and will do so in the future." This is a mistake. The best Prohibitionists remain in the Republican party, and will do so in the future. They are the men who not only feel strongly but see clearly. The feel strongly the need of temperance reform, and they see clearly that no permanent good can ever be effected through tinkering with a third-party movement which only succeed in helping the Democratic allies of the Rum Power.—New York Tribune.

Moved by uncle Sam, seconded by the American Eagle, endorsed by the Grand Army of the Republic: If any man attempts to haul away any flags from the War Department shoot him on several spots.—New York Tribune.

—An extra passenger train was placed on the G. R. & I. road June 27th.

—Alick Rosenthal will have a new "ad" next week.

Religious.

M. E. Church.

Remember that you will be sadly missed if you are not at the Bible reading on Tuesday evening.

Let us pray together on Thursday evening that we may rejoice the rest of the week together.

Friday evening I desire to see all the teachers of the Sunday School on important business.

Next Sabbath morning services at usual hour. Sunday School following.

Gospel meeting at the Hall in the evening. W. H. MEC.

Elsewhere.

Preaching by the Pastor at the Ironton M. E. church next Sabbath morning and evening.

Children's Day was celebrated last Sabbath by the Sabbath school at Black's school house, and although the day was unpropitious, the exercises were good, each doing his or her part with great credit.

Congregational Church.

Let every member of the Congregational church be present at the Thursday evening prayer meeting this week.

Rev. J. B. Parmelee, of Wilmington, Del., will preach at the Congregational church next Sunday at 10:30 in the morning

Episcopal Church.

Evening prayer and half hour Bible study in the Opera Hall, at 3 o'clock p. m., Sunday. Subject, "Having come to Christ by repentance, faith, and obedience, what lack I yet."—St. Matthew 19th. Come all and bring your Bibles.

Ironton.

The new ore dock is under way.

Miss Bertha Mills of Charlevoix, has a musical class in town.

The Narragansett is on a trip to Buffalo with 575 tons of iron.

The furnace will be banked for a week waiting for a supply of coal.

Mr. Geo. Marshall of East Jordan has moved into the Downey house.

Pat Scanlon is now foundryman, John having general oversight of all the work.

Our people divided between East Jordan and Charlevoix for celebration.

The furnace ushered in the Fourth with a 15 minutes blow from the big whistle.

One hundred of the parents and friends of the pupils joined them in their picnic and closing exercises on Friday, making the whole a splendid success and giving the pupils an impetus which will not be lost.

Wm. Henry, a farmer on the peninsula, was the victim of a Kentuckian's knife on Thursday evening last while coming from Boyne City. Both parties were in a wagon with others when a dispute arose, probably too much whiskey the cause, and Lee Brown the "Kentuck" severely cut Henry in several places and it was feared for a time he would bleed to death. The officers are after Brown and he will probably be brought to justice. Henry will recover.

IRONTON SCHOOLS.

Report of Ironton schools for the month ending July 1st: Whole number enrolled, 58. Grammar Department, 23; Primary, 35. Average Attendance, 44.5. Grammar Department, 20; Primary, 24.5. Per cent. of attendance to number enrolled: Grammar Department, 85; Primary, 70; total, 77.5

Results of examinations for month as follows: Grammar Department, A. Grade — Nellie Noyes, 96; Mary Kneudson, 89; Nellie Hammond, 92; Cassie Box, 92; Gerwin Parish, 94; Walter Bird, 97; Lewis Hammond, 95. B. Grade: Peter Kneudson, 70; Wilber King, 79; Bertie King, 95; Bertie Waldron, 88; Frankie Box, 75; Eddie Williams, 94; Mary Boyer, 91; Agnes Fox, 79; Nettie Waldron, 96; Martha Saunders, 81, Jennie Hunt, 87. C. Grade: Susie Schoffen, 92, Archie Miller, 86; Emma Bird, 89; Lizzie Garland, 87; Hester Saunders, 88. Primary Department, A. Grade: Nettie Jackson, 90; Amy Compton, 90; Harry Purvis, 85; Nickie Schoffen, 96; George Garland, 86; John Mitchell, 93; Thomas Maroney, 100; Nellie Scanlon, 90; Mary Holland, 85.

Summary of the schools for the year: Whole number of days attendance, 9,910.5. Grammar Department, 4,644; Primary, 5,266.5. Average daily attendance, 57.8. Grammar Department, 27.2; Primary, 30.6.

The Manistique Sun says letters received from Prof. O. B. Weed, formerly of this place, state that he is now permanently located at No. 53 Grand River street, Detroit.

(I told them to write me once every day
Of the wife and the baby so dear)."

Proud Billy McCoy, with emotion ill hid,
Grasps the message and reads it, his brow,
So lately suffused with the flush of wild joy,
Is as white as Death's marble, just now
He reels to the floor, with the telegram clutched
In his grasp; kind hearts comfort essay,
And they read the sad tidings: "Your beautiful boy
And your sweet, loving wife died to-day."

—American Commercial Traveler.

LILLIE EDDLES;

—OR,—

ABDUCTED BY THE BUSH-WHACKERS.

A Story of the War in the Southwest.

BY [illegible]VIDE O BALDWIN.

[CONTINUED.]

"The house, the house! Quick or they're lost!" said John, springing over the brush and flying to the dwelling. The others followed, and arrived just in time to see John grasp the sizzling fuse, tear it from its fastening and throw it from him. In another moment the house would have been blown to pieces, for the villains had pried from the foundation a stone and placed in the cavity a keg of powder, and when John reached the burning fuse it was almost beyond his reach.

[illegible]

SHOT AND SHELL.

Old Veterans' Reminiscences of the War of the Rebellion.

Embracing Anecdotes of Actual Experience and Colloquial Acquisition.

Sheridan in the Saddle.

BY A [illegible].

Blow bugles, beat sheepskin—the campaign's begun!
The leader is mounted—now look out for fun!
To the march, take the route, horse, foot, and dragoon!
There's fight in the air—it'll come this way soon.

No place now for cowards, no skulks wanted here;
The men for the front never look to the rear
With a soldier's stout heart and a loyal good-will.
Remember you're fighting with brave Little Phil!

March! march! hit the roads, through the fields, up the pike,
He'll show you, good soldier, what fighting is like.
Carbines at the front are now blazing away;
Soon musket and cannon will join in the fray.

And where the fierce tides of the battle run red,
Where freely the blood of his soldiers is shed,
At the front you will find him—there, taking his fill
Of fighting, you'll never miss grand Little Phil!

The Soldier's Reprieve.

Kind reader, has it ever been your fortune to witness a military execution? To see the condemned criminal shot to death by musketry while kneeling upon his own coffin, or swing from a temporary gibbet into eternity? It has been mine, and I cannot recall those horrible scenes even now without a shudder.

In the autumn of 1863 an incident occurred in the regiment to which I belonged (the One Hundred and Twenty-second New York Volunteers), which so clearly illustrates the magnanimity of our noble Lincoln that I think it worthy of record.

[illegible]

General Leonidas Polk.

Leonidas Polk was born in Raleigh, N. C. He graduated at the military academy at West Point in 1827, and was appointed Brevet Second Lieutenant of artillery, December 1, 1827. [illegible]

At the breaking out of the war he entered the Confederate service with the rank of Major General, and was placed in command of the district of the valley of the Mississippi, from [illegible]

[illegible]

Blue Jackets' Charge at Fort Fisher.

[illegible]

A Confederate Opinion of Grant's Whiskers.

[illegible]

Incidents of Signal Corps Service.

[illegible]

Hints on Early Education.

[illegible]

How Michael Was Vaccinated.

[illegible]

PITH AND POINT.

[illegible]

AS REPUBLICANS PREDICTED.

[illegible]

BUTLER AND THE FLAGS.

The Proposed Return of Captured Rebel Banners Severely Criticised by Gen. Butler.

[Boston special.]

The first dinner of the famous Butler Club was held Saturday afternoon. Of course the General was there, the central figure for an admiring remnant of the people's party of 1884, with a goodly sprinkling of the warriors in his previous campaigns. Seventy-six Butlerites in all marched in to dinner. Butler, very naturally, was the principal speaker, and no one paid much attention to what others said, although Col. Plympton's definition of the simon-pure Butler man woke up the boys. Here are the traits of the Butler man as defined by the Colonel: "Decided and aggressive views on all questions; personal loyalty and devotion to the grand old man; contempt for cant and pharisaism in anything; loyalty to the principles of the republican form of government and the right of the people to rule; opposition to whatever threatens this, [illegible]

[illegible] eagerness to recognize the Bourbons of the past, he took up men like Lawton and Jackson, who had never cared enough for the favor of the Government to ask the pardon which it had offered to give, until they found the disability a bar to their office-seeking ambitions. But those were of the type of men whom Mr. Cleveland selected to represent the majesty of the American Union, and the dignity and loyalty of American citizenship. Wherever they might go abroad their presence, mute though it be, would tell the story that, in one country at least, treason was rewarded with the confidence, the favor and the honors which most nations reserve for those who needed not to be transformed from traitors to loyal subjects. Not only this, but for every Union soldier appointed to office at home Mr. Cleveland appointed three men who had been rebel soldiers or rebel sympathizers. Instead of showing at least equal honor to the men who wore the blue, he turned out the old soldiers of the Union, and turned in the men who wore the gray. The greater part of the general offices in the departments at Washington, as well as in the foreign service, were filled from the South, as a Copperhead's tribute of honor to the "lost cause." Thus again [illegible]

MECHANICAL.

THE word temper has two distinct meanings among steel makers. Applied to steel not hardened, the temper is said to be mild, medium, or high, according to the amount of carbon the steel contains; thus we recognize and use daily in the crucible-steel business tempers, each so distinct from the other in the fractured ingots that there is no uncertainty in their selection and separation.

THERE is a difference in the driving effect of a light hammer when compared with the blows of a heavy one, or a rusty machine bolt would not remain to be riveted all out of shape, when a six-pound sledge would take everything before it. The driving effect from any source seems to require time to act in order to extend a great way into the material. This is noticed in heading up a rivet, where the metal can be worked down into a cone-shaped head by the upsetting effects of a sharp blow, which will be crippled [illegible]

THE WORTH OF YEARS.

Illustrious People Who Have Lived Long and Retained Their Usefulness.

[From the Home Journal.]

A well-known physician points out how foolish it is to imagine that the period of old age is not one to be desired, that it is a period of much weariness both of mind and body, and devoid of all enjoyment. "If attention," he says, "has been paid to the health during youth and adult life, so that old age is reached in comparative strength and vigor, there will be much enjoyment in these latter years. Natural constitution, the circumstances into which a man is born, as well as the condition under which his life-work has to be done, have also their place in the result; but the laws of health, as they are better understood, tend not only to increase of years but to increase of happiness."

But what are we to reckon as the declining period of man's existence? The point at which old age taps us on [illegible]

A Multitude of Ailments.

[illegible]

Plymouth Church's Slave.

Plymouth Church [illegible]

Life in the Paris Sewers

[illegible]

How a Woman Reads a Comic Paper.

[illegible]

The Penny in Dixie.

[illegible]

QUEEN ELIZABETH style is expected to come in again about 1888. This is indeed ruff.

It Is a Fact

That Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic is cooling to the blood, controls excessive perspiration, and will safely tide you over that period characterized by headache, fainting spells, exhaustive spasmodic affectations, and will give strength and new life to the entire system.

As a mound of earth raised by the ants or the sands in the hour glass, so religion, learning, and riches increase only by degrees.

Good Health

You cannot have without pure blood; therefore, to keep well, purify the blood by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine is peculiarly designed to act upon the blood, and through that upon all the organs and tissues of the body. It has a specific action also, upon the secretions and excretions, and assists nature to expel from the system all humors, impure particles, and effete matter through the lungs, liver, bowels, kidneys, and skin. It effectually aids weak, impaired, and debilitated organs, invigorates the nervous system, tones the digestion, and imparts new life and energy.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

RRR RADWAY'S READY RELIEF — THE CHEAPEST AND BEST MEDICINE FOR FAMILY USE IN THE WORLD! CURES ALL PAINS

DR. RADWAY'S PILLS

DYSPEPSIA!

RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT.

A positive cure for Scrofula and all Blood and Skin Diseases.

RADWAY & CO., N. Y.

PENSIONS Send for Pension Laws to U. S. Claim Agents FITZGERALD & POWELL, Indianapolis, Ind.

PATENTS R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D.C. Instructions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 17 years' experience.

LADY AGENTS can secure permanent employment at $50 to $100 per month selling Queen City Supporters. Sample outfit free. Address Cincinnati Suspender Co., 11 E. Ninth St., Cincinnati, O.

AGENTS WANTED FOR EARTH, SEA AND SKY or marvels of the Universe; 3 books in one. Agents sellin[illegible] a week. For terms address NATIONAL PUBLISHING Co., Lakeside Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Milo B. Stevens & Co.

PENSIONS. Metropolitan Block, Chicago, Ills.

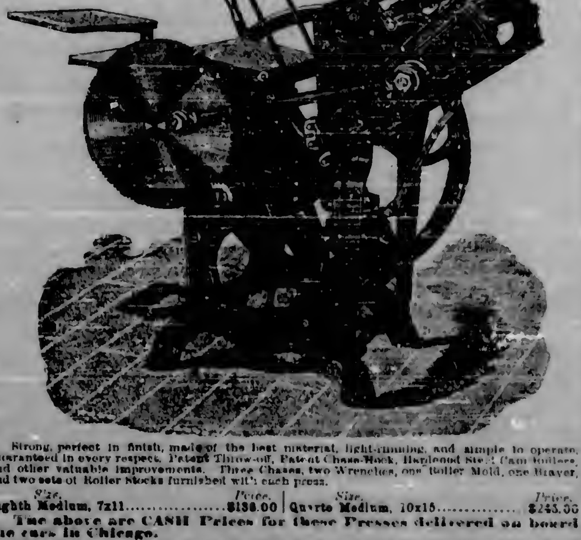
ADVERTISERS or others, who wish to examine this paper, or obtain estimates on advertising space when in Chicago, will find it on file at 45 to 49 Randolph St., the Advertising Agency of LORD & THOMAS.

DETECTIVES

Wanted in every County. Shrewd men to act under our instructions in our Secret Service. Experience not necessary. Send stamp for particulars. GRANNAN DETECTIVE BUREAU, 44 Arcade, Cincinnati, O.

THE BEST OLD-STYLE GORDON JOB PRINTING PRESS

IN THE MARKET.



FOR SALE by the CHICAGO NEWSPAPER UNION, [illegible] Franklin Street, Chicago, Ill.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times." Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

JONES HE PAYS THE FREIGHT

WIZARD OIL FOR PAIN

Cures Neuralgia, Toothache, Headache, [illegible] RHEUMATISM, Lame Back, [illegible] Burns, [illegible] All Aches and Pains. It Cures You, That's the Idea!

HARTER'S IRON TONIC

LADIES

PILES

PENNYROYAL PILLS

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

CHARLEVOIX, JULY 6, 1887.

"THE SCHOLAR IN POLITICS."

Will E. McLennan's Class Day Oration at Evanston University.

One day Anacharsis entered the Archon's court at Athens, and there heard a case argued by the great men of the city, and saw the vote taken by the five hundred. Some days after, while walking on the street, he was accosted by a citizen and asked what he thought of Athenian liberty. "I think," said he, "that wise men argue cases and fools decide them." If another Anacharsis were asked today what he thought of American politics he would, no doubt, reply that while our wise men are lecturing on political science, the ignorant and vicious are making our laws.

For the past fifty years our educated men have been withdrawing from an active participation in politics, and have relegated to the worst classes in society the control of party and of government. In this has been witnessed not a survival of the fittest but a survival of the meanest; not because, if they so desired, the fittest might not have ruled but because they deliberately gave up the heritage which was their's by right.

Manifold have been the reasons assigned for the non-participation of educated men in politics. One says that the scholar, by reason of his more cultured mind ought to have higher associations than those which the masses give. On the other hand, it is affirmed that politics is so corrupt that the scholar is in danger of being contaminated, if he meddles with it in the least degree. He must wait until some Hercules cleanses the Augean stables of politics by driving out all the low born and degraded, and by elevating those that remain to such a plane of perfection that no aristocratic Pharisee will be in danger of soiling his immaculate garments.

Educated men have not been slow to discuss public questions in the drawing room nor loath to suggest remedies for the many ills which afflict the body politics. But the scholar has failed and will ever fail of success in reforming our politics so long as he aims at curing the evils without coming in contact with them. Men are not made better by hearing lectures on ethics. They must have the companionship of the wise if they are ever to learn wisdom and the associations of the good if they are ever to become righteous. The scholar's mission is, first of all, to deal with the present, with living men and women, not with the dead past; its ghosts, and mummies, and ruins. "The Scholar," says Emerson, "may lose himself in schools and words and become a pedant, but when he comprehends his duties he of all men is a realist and converses with things." What a field for the scholar who is true to his trusts. Fifty millions of people to mould; burning questions to solve; great wrongs to right. Above all a country to save from perils threatening her at home and abroad. Perils from unrequited labor, from gigantic monopolies, from intemperance and crime; perils from socialism, from anarchism, and from popery. Democracy, let us not forget, is still on trial. De Tocqueville's warning about the ever increasing despotism of the majority in this country is still ringing in our ears. Recall Carlyle's analysis of representative government. "If of ten men, nine are recognized as fools how in the name of wonder will you get a ballot box to grind out a wisdom from the votes of these ten men." When that one man of wisdom leaves, the republic is doomed.

Never before in the history of this country has there been so great need as now for men who are familiar with the thousands of experiments that have been tried for the amelioration of the human race. Never before were there so many difficult problems to solve—problems affecting the welfare of every man who is struggling upward to the light. Democracy has led men to feel their individual power and to place little value on authority which has only the legacy of years to defend it. Politics is now entirely divorced from sentiment. To hate slavery, to love the flag, to resist southern influence required no scholarship; but now questions are before us which sentiment cannot solve. In their settlement we must have all the wisdom which the scholar can give us or the time may come when the people will settle them as the Jacobins settled the difficulties of Louis XVI.

Every day the labor problem presses on us for solution. Give the socialist a chance and he will sink the individual in the state and make of the state a colossal monopoly. The Knights of Labor are now an army, perfect in organization; drilled to resist the capitalist by strike, boycott or even personal violence. Above all is heard the demoniac yell of the anarchist—burn, kill, destroy, out of chaos will come order; on the ashes of the past will be built the perfect system of the future.

How shall we control corporations and the gigantic monopolies which threaten to make the supreme law-making power subservient to their will. Must democracy acknowledge at last Mammon as its king?

What are we to do with the foreigners coming by shiploads to this country? On Bedloe Island stands the colossal figure of Liberty enlightening the world. The light from her torch has been seen by the oppressed of all lands. Thousands upon thousands have flocked to our shores, and have found an asylum from the greedy parasites who live upon the souls of their fellow men. But along with them have come the enemies of all governments and of all men,—socialists, anarchists, professional agitators of all descriptions. How much longer shall we permit Europe to spew her foul brood upon us?

What restrictions, if any, shall be put upon suffrage? Shall we have an educational test, a property test, a moral test, or shall all three be imposed on those who vote.

The tariff is still unsettled. Shall our distinctive American policy of protection be adhered to, or shall we trade freely with all the world? On the right settlement of this question rests many of our hopes for commercial supremacy. Education itself is interested in who control our politics. Never before was there needed more intelligence in public life to compete successfully with other nations just awakened to their grand possibilities. The world is on the move. Witness the hermit nations; a short quarter of a century ago hardly known upon the maps, now in a fair way to outstrip America in the race for honors. The battle of the 20th century will not be one of arms but one of brains. If America wins the scholar must come from his cloister and with the farmer, the merchant and the mechanic unite to make politics popular as well as pure.

To urge more important duties is no excuse. There are no more important duties than those we owe to country. The command to love your neighbor—which means to do all you can to make him better—proceeds from the same authority as the command to love your God. To say that politics is corrupt is no excuse. The Christ himself left the proud Pharisee and chose the society of publicans and sinners. Politics is not necessarily degrading. Although our colleges have been in the habit of fostering only sentiments of pity for the man of letters who so far forgets himself as to stoop to politics, yet they never fail to applaud that graduate who wins for himself a seat in congress, is chosen to represent his country at a foreign court, or so far forgets himself as to run for the presidency. Is it degrading to enter politics? What then shall we say of the man who schemes to persuade his neighbors to buy Pacific Mail, or conspire in making a "corner" on wheat. What of the men who are educated to wrest statutes for the protection of rogues and wield technicalities to aid the escape of assassins? Is politics degrading? Recall the history of the two Hebrews, Joseph and Daniel, who were chosen to lead political thought and to direct political action in the very countries which most despised their race. Read in the history of Greece the name that adds lustre to her golden age, the name of Pericles—a scholar that could not be kept out of politics! In the history of Rome read that one name that redeems her decline from imbecility—the name of Marcus Aurelius Antoninus! Leave ancient countries and come to England where the Anglo-Saxon has almost worked out the problem of free government. In the critical period of English history, when across the channel the crazy Jacobin was hurrying his king to the guillotine, Pitt, the scholar, for twenty-five years held England in his grasp. It was the scholar, Edmund Burke that guaranteed to the poorest Hindoo the same security which was enjoyed by the richest Englishman. Mention the England of today and instinctively you pronounce the name of a man whose splendid achievements in behalf of human liberty have made the Victorian the most illustrious age since the Caesars ruled alone beside the Tiber.

Our own country may forget Robert Morris who gave his private fortune to aid the revolution but we can never forget Alexander Hamilton, the scholar, who gave to America a perfected system of finance. When the doctrine of state sovereignty was gaining new converts every day and throughout the north there seemed no one strong enough to answer the challenge of the southern champion, Daniel Webster in the majesty of his powers as scholar and orator seized the glittering lance hurled at the constitution, and before the eyes of his enemies broke it into a thousand pieces; then with one blow of his brawny arm he laid the defenses of the southern leader so low that the party of nullification, waiving the formality of a surrender, capitulated on the spot.

Is politics degrading? Not if the scholar is true to himself and to the country which demands and ought to have his unqualified allegiance. Not if he emulates the deeds of the splendid line of scholars whose voices were ever for freedom. Scholars like Colet who undertook the reformation of the church before Luther thundered his philippics against the Vatican; scholars like Rosseau and Helvetius who paved the way for the French Revolution; scholars like Sumner and Phillips who furnished the weapons and inspired the zeal which swept slavery from the earth.

O scholar, glorious is thy heritage! Democracy asks thy guiding hand; religion invokes thy companionship; thy country entreats thee to lend thine aid.

Several Versions of an Old Yarn.

A well-known capitalist sat down to play a game of cards with the president of a railroad company. After the game was finished the president unfolded carefully a piece of brown paper, wrapped up the cards, and returned them to his pocket. "A person of so economical a turn of mind must manage his railroad sagaciously," thought the capitalist, and the same day he bought a thousand shares of the railroad stock. The investment proved very profitable, for the stock has been rising ever since. —Harper's Weekly.

Our own information is that Harper's Weekly has got this story slightly wrong. As we understand it, the well-known capitalist, meeting the railroad president on the cars, asked him if he would take a hand at whist. The railroad president burst into tears, protested that he didn't know one card from another, and begged that he might not be taught. The well-known capitalist promptly apologized, and at the next station got out and telegraphed an order for the thousand shares in question. This account of the transaction comes to us from an uncle by marriage of the first wife of a man whose brother is an intimate friend of a brakeman on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. It is only fair to state, however, that in western railroad circles still another version of the matter is current. They affirm that the well-known capitalist joined the railroad president in a parlor-car en route for Chicago. The well-known capitalist suggested progressive euchre. An expression of pain passed over the face of the railroad president as he replied: "I'll give you a thousand shares of railroad stock if you'll excuse me." He was excused on those terms. We present these several versions as they come to us, in the interest of the truth of history.—N. Y. Tribune.

Birds That Help the Farmer.

The material is largely in hand in the newly organized division of economic ornithology of the department of agriculture for a series of bulletins upon the relations of several common species of birds in this country to agriculture. Dr. C. H. Merriam, the head of the division, places the English sparrow as chief of the pests which threaten destruction to the valuable branches of agriculture. This bird, which was imported for the protection of shade trees from caterpillers, etc., has multiplied to such an extent as to become a greater scourge than the one it was expected to counteract. The new territory which it invades is estimated at more than 130,000 square miles annually, and its destruction of fruit is almost incomputable. The bobolink of the north is found to be helpful to grain growers, as it lives upon field insects and the seeds of destructive weeds, but in the south its ravages in the rice fields are estimated to cost the planters from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 annually. Dr. Merriam says ornithologists are convinced that the services of hawks and owls are of great value to farmers. Not more than three out of upward of thirty species prey upon domestic fowl, and even these more than remunerate the farmer by killing field mice. The other species live entirely upon field mice, grasshoppers, beetles, and other vermin which are great destroyers of grain. The crow has received considerable attention from the doctor and his correspondents, but the evidence in hand is not sufficient to warrant a verdict. So far as it goes it creates impressions in its favor. It is a corn thief to be sure, but its pilferings may be guarded against, while on the other hand it destroys some kind of field vermin in great numbers, to say nothing of its work as a scavenger.

Domestic Discipline.

Billy Bolen jumped out of his bed;
He ran at his sister and cut off her head;
This gave his dear mother a great deal of pain.
Let us hope little Billy won't do it again.

Sammy found a lucifer match;
He set it alight in a farmer's thatch.
Soon barn, hay, and horses were ashes and dust,
And Sammy's papa turned away in disgust.

"Where is my sister? Margaret, tell!"
"Mother, I pushed her into the well."
"Very unkind of you, Margaret, really!
I thought you loved your sister dearly!"

Baby sat in the window seat;
Mary tipped her into the street;
Baby's brains were dashed out in the area,
And mamma held up her forefinger at Mary.

Grandpa had gold in the brass-nailed trunk;
Grandpa gave Harry some, Harry got drunk;
Then to get more, the trunk Harry broke into;
And grandpa thought Harry ought to be spoken to.

"O, see, if you please! Master Jonathan, Marm!
He's bitten a piece right out of my arm!"
"O, dear!" cried the mother in accents wild,
"I hope it won't disagree with the child!"

"Who strangled Jack with his collar and chain?"
"I did, mamma, and I'll do it again!
And I'll strangle you, too, when I get big and strong!"
"That's right, my dear boy—to confess when you're wrong!"

Much has been said, and more has been sung,
Of the open ingenuousness of the young;
But we own we'd like better the infant democracy
Were it even endowed with the gift of hypocrisy.
Let's have a new motto inscribed on our banners:
If we can't have good morals, let's strive for good manners.
—San Francisco Ingleside.

Things are going on so fast among the Japanese that there is talk of their having an "Agricultural Party" in their long looked-for National Assembly.

A St. Louis pop-corn man is going to England to introduce the great American luxury, and will take over 5,000 bushels of corn in the spring.

Fresh Butter at lowest price, at Jefferies' Bakery.

A large stock of oranges and lemons at wholesale at the Pagoda.
O. W. SMITH.

TO RENT. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

Call shingles and lumber for sale cheap, or will exchange for farm produce. Apply at Burns & Scroggie's livery barn. tf

The ladies are cordially invited to call and examine the large display of millinery including pattern hats and bonnets together with novelties in ribbons, gauzes, flowers, etc. As it is to be a season of novelties it will pay you to call now and often, at Mrs. Litney & Carr.

TIME CARDS OF STEAMERS

STANDARD TIME.

Charlevoix and East Jordan.

STR. NORTH STAR, ... CAPT. MEL THOMPSON
Leaving Charlevoix at 6:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. and returning leave East Jordan for Charlevoix at 9:30 am and 4 p. m., touching at intermediate points both ways.

Boyne City and Charlevoix.

STR. CLARA BELLE, ... CAPT. GEO. JUDSON.
Leave Boyne City at 6:30 a. m. and 1:00 p. m. and Charlevoix at 9:30 a. m., and 3 p. m. connecting with the Friant and Cummings to and from Petoskey. Touching at way ports.

Charlevoix and Boyne City.

STR. JOSEPH [illegible], ... CAPT. LEWIS [illegible].
Leave Charlevoix at 6:30 a. m. and 1 p. m., and Boyne City at 9:30 a.m., 4 p. m., touching at way ports.

Harbor Springs, Charlevoix & E. Jordan.

STR. THOS. FRIANT, ... CAPT. R. VANDERHOEF.
MORNING: Leave Harbor Springs, 7:30; Petoskey, 8:00; Charlevoix, 9:30; arrive, East Jordan 11:30.
AFTERNOON: Leave East Jordan 1:30; Charlevoix, 4:00; Petoskey, 5:30; arrive, Harbor Spring, 6:00.

East Jordan, Charlevoix & Harbor Spgs.

LOU A. CUMMINGS, ... CAPT. W. A. SNYDER.
MORNING: Leave East Jordan 7 a. m.; Charlevoix, 9; Petoskey, 11; arrive at Harbor Springs 11:30.
AFTERNOON: Leave Harbor Springs, 1 p. m.; Petoskey, 1:30; Charlevoix, 3; arrive at East Jordan, 5:30 p. m.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN LINE.

PROP. LAWRENCE, ... Capt. Geo. Thorp.
Going North, Chicago, Fridays 8 p. m.; Charlevoix, Sundays 3 p. m.; Cheboygan, Mondays 9 a. m.
Going South, Cheboygan, Mondays 4 p. m.; Charlevoix, Tuesdays 8 a. m.; Milwaukee, Wednesdays 4 p. m.; Chicago, Thursdays 12 m.
Emrey Bros., agents, Charlevoix.

HANNAH, LAY & CO'S BOATS.

CITY OF GRAND RAPIDS, ... Capt. O. E. Wilbur.
Going North Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays: Leave Traverse City 7 a. m.; Northport 9:30; Charlevoix 11:30; Petoskey 1:30 p. m.; Harbor Springs 2; Cross Village 4:30; Mackinac Island 7:45 arriving at St. Ignace 8:20.
Going South, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays: Leave St. Ignace 6 a. m.; Mackinac Island 7; Cross Village 10:15; Harbor Springs 12:45 p. m.; Petoskey 1:15, Charlevoix 2:45; Northport 5:15 p. m., arriving at Traverse City at 7:45 p. m.
J. L. Hull & Co., Agents, Charlevoix.

Bank of Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security
Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers
Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to Speculate with ones own money, is folly; that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking
Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors; and, believing that it furnishes unusual guarantees, therefore,

This Bank Invites
People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will
Borrow Investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking
Profitable employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes,
Now earning Five per cent. yearly Interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S
LIVERY STABLE
CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.
Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

Farming Lands

500,000 ACRES
Of Splendid
MICHIGAN LANDS
For Sale By The
G. R. & I. R. R.
50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.

These lands are timbered with beach and maple elm and other wood and are accessible to best markets

By Water and Rail

And are in a state unequaled for health, well watered and contiguous to the great fruit raising section of Michigan.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad runs through the center of the grant. The part of Michigan in which these lands are situated is

Not a Wilderness by any Means.

It contains a population of 250,000 souls and is rapidly filling up with settlers from almost every state in the Union.

Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold.

For English or German Pamphlet, Address

W. H. HUGHART, Commissioner,
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.

TITLE PERFECT.

Probate Notice.

State of Michigan, County of Charlevoix, ss. Notice is hereby given, that by an order of the Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix, made on the 13th day of June, A. D. 1887, six months from that date were allowed for creditors to present their claims against the estate of Josiah Gibson, late of said County, and that all creditors of said deceased are required to present their claims to said Probate Court, at the Probate office in the Village of Boyne City, for examination and allowance, on or before the second day of January next, and that such claims will be heard before said Court on Monday, the 5th day of September, and on Monday the 2d day of January next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of each of those days.
Dated, June 13th, A. D., 1887.
JAMES A. KEAT, Judge of Probate.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a certain indenture of Mortgage bearing date Nov. 15th A. D. 1881, made by and between Albert Jubenville, batchelor of Charlevoix county, Michigan, party of the first part, to Morgan Curtis of Kalamazoo county, Michigan, party of the second part, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, on the 19th day of Nov. A. D. 1881 in Liber 5 of Mortgages at page 437 and by which default the power of sale in said Mortgage contained, has become operative, and no suit or proceedings either in law or equity having been instituted to collect the amount due on said Mortgage, and there being due thereon the sum of One hundred and sixty-five dollars, therefore the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described in said Mortgage on the 19th day of July A. D. 1887, at ten o'clock, in the forenoon of that day by sale at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the County building, in the village of Boyne City, and county of Charlevoix, [that being the place for holding the Circuit court for the county of Charlevoix, wherein the lands described in said mortgage are situated], of the mortgaged premises described in said Mortgage or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount due on said Mortgage. The premises described in said Mortgage are as follows: the south east quarter of the north east quarter of section thirty-two, of town thirty-two north of range five west, Charlevoix county, Michigan.
Dated Kalkaska, Mich., April the 18th, A. D., 1887.
A. A. BLEAZBY, Atty for Mortgagee. MORGAN CURTIS, Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in a certain indenture of Mortgage bearing date December the first, 1883, made by and between David Norton and Hanah Norton, his wife of Charlevoix, Michigan, party of the first part, to Mary E. Manley, of Wayne county, New York, party of the second part, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Charlevoix county, Michigan, on the second day of Feb. A. D. 1884, in Liber 5 of Mortgages at page 220, and upon which there is now due and unpaid the sum of seventy two dollars and no action having been taken either in law or equity to collect the same; therefore the said Mortgage will be foreclosed under the power of sale therein contained by statutory sale of the premises therein described at the front door of the County building in the village of Boyne City, and county of Charlevoix, [that being the place for holding the Circuit court for the county of Charlevoix, in which said county, the lands described in said Mortgage are situated], at ten o'clock in the forenoon of the 19th day of July, A. D. 1887. The premises described in said mortgage are as follows: the north-east quarter of the south-west quarter and the north-west quarter of the south-east quarter of section twenty-four of town thirty-three, north of range seven west, Charlevoix county state of Michigan, said premises will be sold subject to the principal sum of Eight hundred dollars yet to become due on said Mortgage together with the accruing interest thereon.
Dated Kalkaska, Mich., April the 18th, A. D. 1887.
A. A. BLEAZBY, Atty for Mortgagee. MARY E. MANLEY, Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a certain indenture of mortgage bearing date the 13th day of December, A. D. 1881, executed by Richard Lake and Phebe E. Lake (his wife), of Charlevoix County, State of Michigan, to Otis Ross, of South Haven, Van Buren County, State of Michigan, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, in liber "4" of mortgages on page 434 on the 10th day of March, A. D. 1882, by which default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative and upon which said mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of two thousand nine hundred and sixty dollars and thirty-two cents ($2,960.32) for principal and interest, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the amount now due, or any part thereof, now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided there will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House in the village of Boyne City, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan (that being the place for holding the Circuit Court for said County of Charlevoix), on Thursday the 30th day of June, A. D. 1887, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon of said day the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to satisfy the amount due upon said mortgage together with the costs and charges of sale and interest to wit: The south west quarter (¼) and the north west quarter (¼) and the north east quarter (¼) of the south east quarter (¼) of section No. twenty-three (23) in township No. thirty-three (33) north of range No. seven (7) west, containing three hundred and sixty acres according to the United States survey. Also the north half (½) of the north east quarter (¼) of section No. twenty-seven (27) in township No. thirty-three (33) north range No. seven (7) west containing eighty acres according to the United States survey in the County of Charlevoix in the State of Michigan.
Dated March 7, 1887.
JAMES H. JOHNSON, Attorney for Mortgagee. OTIS ROSS, Mortgagee.

Probate Notice.

State of Michigan, County of Charlevoix, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for said county, held at the Probate office, in the Village of Boyne City, on the 6th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven. Present, James A. Keat, Judge of Probate. In the Matter of the Estate of John West, late of Chicago, Ill., deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of John Joseph West, and Edward Albert West, and alleging that duly authenticated copies of the last will and testament of said deceased, and of the probate thereof, have been duly filed in said court, showing that said will has been duly admitted to probate in the County of Cook and State of Illinois, and praying that a time and place for hearing said petition be fixed, and due notice thereof be given to all persons interested, and that such copy of said will be allowed, filed and recorded in said Court, as and for the last will and testament of said deceased. Thereupon it is ordered, that Tuesday, the 5th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the Village of Boyne City, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted; and it is further ordered, that said petitioners give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.
A true copy.
JAMES A. KEAT, Judge of Probate.

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Henry Bennett, O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls, A. Buttars,
A. R. Upright, A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL, ... $25,000
SURPLUS, ... 2,000

The liabilities of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art. 3174, Sec. 40 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:
NATIONAL PARK BANK - - - NEW YORK.
COMMERCIAL NAT. BANK - - - CHICAGO.
NAT. CITY BANK - - - GRAND RAPIDS.
DETROIT NAT. BANK - - - DETROIT.

W. A. REYNARD,

Has just received at his Fruit Store in the Lewis Block, a choice line of

Vegetables and Fruits
OF ALL KINDS,
TO WHICH OTHERS WILL BE ADDED IN SEASON.

I will also keep in stock a full line of
Tobaccos and Cigars.
Butter and Eggs a Specialty.

Itch, Prairie Mange and Scratches of every kind cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Use no other. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix.

CROSS & SONS.,
Buy and Sell all kinds of
Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.
Charlevoix, - Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY,
Photographer.
In Bradbeer's Gallery.
Photographs of all sizes taken.
Old Pictures copied and enlarged.
CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

New JEWELRY AND SILVER WARE.

I have just received a very fine stock of
Watches, Chains, Pins, Clocks, Silver-Ware, etc
which I will sell at Prices lower than the same goods can be purchased outside.

Did it ever occur to you that by patronizing home Merchants you were benefiting yourselves?

All classes of Repairing done quickly.

C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,

ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR,
—ON—
Chalevoix Summer Resorts.

I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.

I employ only first-class workmen, both
Carpenters and Painters.
Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention
J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

Fox & Miller

Offer a
Mammoth Stock
OF
BOOTS, SHOES
and other
FOOT WEAR.
--AT--
LOWER PRICES
Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a FIRST-CLASS SHOEMAKER,
And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

The Kalamazoo
"DAILY TELEGRAPH."
Contains the Associated Press Dispatches
Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.
Charlevoix, Mich.
Manufacturers and Wholesale and Retail Dealer
3 EXTRA GRADES OF
FLOUR
Feed, Corn Meal, Graham
We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

M. LITNEY. JOS. STEIMEL
Litney & Steimel
LIVERY,
And Feed Barn
Charlevoix, Mich.
Good Rigs at Lowest Rates.

It Pays to Buy the
BEST BOATS!
The large number of boats I have built for residents, are advertisements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.
I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the
LEAST MONEY!
All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.
LEAVE ORDERS
with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.
Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.
J. BEAUVAIS.

BOOTS & SHOES

Have you seen our $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00 Gents Shoes?

If not do so at once. They are made solid throughout even to the counter. You'll have no trouble with these goods running over at the heel.

These goods cannot be equalled in the county

Either in style, quality or price. We will take pains this season to have in stock goods that will suit all. New ad. soon on Ladies' Fine Shoes of latest styles New York, Common Sense, and London Toes.

Ladies Look Out

For the new line of latest style goods that is on the road for

D. SHERWOOD & CO.

A. J. McLEOD,
Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at Wholesale or Retail
All kinds of
FRESH MEATS,
SALT PORK,
SMOKED & SALTED
HAMS,
Dried and Smoked
BACON, DRIED BEEF,
Bologna, Head Cheese,
Sausage.
Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.
Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.
A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S
MARKET
Is supplied with
All Kinds Of
MEATS
At Lowest Prices.
CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.
Corner of State & Mason sts.,
JOHN McCABE.

Washburn & Ackert,
FOUNDREYMEN, MACHINISTS,
And Manufacturers of The
Charlevoix Plow.

Take The Sentinel.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney at law, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law. Office in Buttars' Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at law, Charlevoix, Mich.

DAILTHORPE GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors. Petoskey Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon, 4 doors west of Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office at residence, Main st. Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 119, meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

MASONIC.—Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Post-office.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake lodge No. 201, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

K. O. T. M.—Huron Tent No. 138, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' Hall.

L. O. L.—True Blues No. 157, meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. 104, R. A. M., meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 136, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of the members, during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.
President—Byron See.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Dolbert Miller.
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strang.
Financial Secretary—E. Suffield.
Treasurer—Albert E. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. D. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. Lee Iddings, W. A. Brown and C. Y. Cook.
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, M. J. Stockman, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, B. W. Miller, S. M. See, W. C. Newman, E. M. Clark, H. Bedian.
All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequalled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the traveling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids Stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,
Lorenzo Cook, Manager
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only 100 feet to Steamboat Landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE.
W. C. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Fitted up with a view to the Comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central Location.

PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and Dock work solicited at any point between Traverse City and Mackinaw. L. E. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

MUNROE'S STEAM PILE DRIVER. Dock owners and Builders, look to your interest. Contracts taken and dock work solicited at any point between Sault St. Marie and Grand Haven. Correspondence promptly attended to. Address,
JOHN MUNROE, Jr., Gen'l Manager, South Arm, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. R. and J. F. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. [Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.]

DENTIST.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist.
Office in Weed's Drug Store
Charlevoix, Mich

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R

"Mackinac Short Line."

Only direct line between the east and south and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Going West read down			Stations	Going East read up
		5 45 pm	Detroit	11 10 am
	7 00 am	6 50 am	St Ignace	8 30 pm	5 55 pm
	10 25	8 52	Newberry	6 21	2 05
	12 20	9 40	Seney	5 15	12 35
		10 42	Reedsboro	4 15
	3 25	11 31	Au Train	3 25	9 05
	5 30	12 40	Marquette	2 13	7 00
		12 50 pm	Marquette	2 00 pm
		1 35	Ishpeming	12 58
		4 10	L'Anse	10 40
		5 30	Houghton	9 20
		6 35	Calumet	8 15

Connections made with M T Co's boats, M C & G R & I R R & M H & O
E. W. ALLEN, Gen Pass Agt, Marquette

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad

In effect September 27, 1885.

(Trains run on Central Standard Time.)

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.		No 6	No 8	No 4
Mackinaw City	Lv	7 15 a m	9 30 p m
Petoskey		8 34	10 51
Boyne Falls		9 16	11 30
Mancelona		10 18	12 30
Walton Junc		11 36	1 50	5 15 p m
Cadillac	Ar	12 21	2 35	[illegible]
Cadillac	Lv	12 45	6 05	[illegible]
[illegible]		1 21	6 46	[illegible]
Reed City	Ar	1 55	7 20	7 40
Reed City	Lv	2 15	7 45	8 00
Big Rapids		2 46	8 11	8 34
Stanwood		3 05	8 30	8 55
Howard City		3 33	9 02	9 26
D G H & M Cross		4 40	10 15	10 35
Grand Rapids	Ar	4 55	10 30	10 50
Grand Rapids	Lv	7 15	5 15	11 45
Plainwell		8 36	6 41	1 12
Kalamazoo	Ar	9 05	7 10	1 40
Kalamazoo	Lv	9 15	7 30	2 00
Sturgis		10 27	8 59	3 28
Ft Wayne	Ar	12 40	11 20	6 00
Ft Wayne	Lv	1 00	11 45
Richmond		4 30	3 35
Cincinnati	Ar	7 30	7 25

GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.		No 3	No 5	No 7
Cincinnati, leave		7 35 a m	7 20 p m
Richmond		10 20	10 00
Fort Wayne	Ar	1 50	1 15
Fort Wayne	Lv	2 10	3 00
Sturgis		4 24	5 25
Kalamazoo	Ar	5 46	6 55
Kalamazoo	Lv	5 50	7 20
Plainwell		6 16	7 48
Grand Rapids	Ar	7 40	9 20
Grand Rapids	Lv	[illegible]	4 55
D., G., H. & M. cross		11 45	5 15
Howard City		12 52	6 18
Stanwood		1 22	6 48
Big Rapids		1 53	7 09
Reed City	Ar	2 05	7 40
Reed City	Lv	2 35	8 00
[illegible]		3 03	8 34
Cadillac		3 45	9 10
[illegible]		[illegible]	9 30
Walton Junc		4 15	10 25
Mancelona		6 16	11 50
Boyne Falls		7 20	12 52
Petoskey		8 10	1 50
Mackinaw City		9 50	2 55

C. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass. Agent.

LOVE AND HAIR DYE.

Erminie Ray was leaning over the pair of bars which divided the back garden from the meadow which wound past the maple swamp, up to the lonely sheep pasture. Her cheek rested on one small but plump hand, while her beautiful golden hair hung in graceful ringlets around her fair temples. Her beautiful hair was the pride and admiration of all the village folks, but was the especial bane and disturber of her own peace, for Erminie had gotten an idea into her fair little head that her hair was "red." Even now her large violet eyes are filled with tears, and although she is apparently watching a motherly hen-turkey conduct her tiny brood through the high timothy grass, she was in reality wrestling with fate.

"It's perfectly ridiculous!" said Erminie. "There never was in all this world a girl with half as ugly hair as mine. If it hadn't been for that hair, I might have had the chances of being married half a dozen times, instead of drudging on here, with my uncle scolding because I don't accomplish more housework, and my aunt deluging me with good advice. Oh, dear, oh, dear! I would pluck it out by the roots, if it would do any good."

And she seized the luckless red-gold tresses, a handful in each grasp, as if she fain would have twitched them out of her head.

"But what a very silly thing that would be!" said Barbara Decifer, who sat on a stump of a tree, hulling the rich shining blackberries which she had just gathered from the sunny beds under the stone wall. "Why do you let such ridiculous thoughts enter your head, Erminie, dear, about your beautiful hair. But, really, Min, if you dislike it so much, why on earth don't you dye it?"

"Why don't I—what?" said Erminie, looking around in sheer amazement.

"Dye it!" repeated Barbara, popping a particularly bright ripe sphere of black into her mouth. "It's what Mrs. Peliers' city boarder did when I was helping there last summer. She was as gray as a badger, Miss Perkins was; and yet her hair shone like a crow's tail feathers. I seen her puttin' on the dye once, when I was scrubbin' the hall oil-cloths, and it was as easy as you please. Of course, black dye won't suit you, but there's plenty of colors would."

Erminie's eyes glistened.

"Barbara!" said she, "do you think I could?"

"Think? I don't think nothin' about it," said Barbara, flinging a mildewed berry at a squirrel on the fence. "I'm sure of it. You can get the stuff at Mill & Tweezer's. I've seen it many a time in their glass show-cases, and—"

Just at this moment Mrs. Hitchings, Erminie's aunt, with whom she was living, for she was an orphan, was heard shrilly inquiring from the back door, "whether she was to be kept waiting all day long, with the preserving kettle over the fire, for them blackberries?"

Barbara jumped up and fled. Erminie stood still, meditating over the disclosure that she had just heard.

She went down the path to a certain crystal clear spring, into whose depths she had often gazed to look for the traditional rings displayed by the fairies to those who are about to find their true lovers.

It was her favorite mirror, and just at this period of the sunny summer day it was clearer than any sheet of looking-glass.

"Horrid!" said Erminie, grimacing at the golden-red tinge of her hair reflected below.

But just then some languid movement of the deep, still waters focused the sun's rays in a sort of circle; for a second it seemed as if a ring of gold shone far down, and then disappeared.

Erminie's eyes sparkled, and her heart beat rapidly.

"The fairies' wedding-ring!" she gasped. "I saw it with my own eyes. But, of course, nothing will ever come of it as long as my hair is such a hideous—hideous color. I will get it dyed!" And in her mental consciousness she remembered that Harry Boyce, who went to college with her cousin Simon, would be there that very week, and that Harry had once said, "What a pretty girl that little Minnie was!"

"But, of course, he couldn't have noticed my hair," thought Erminie, mournfully. "It doesn't show so awfully bad when I sit in a corner where it's pretty dark. It's the sunshine that brings it out such an intense carrot color. I will dye it!"

So that very evening, in the friendly indistinctness of the purple twilight, Erminie crept down to Mill & Tweezer's, and waited patiently for an old farmer to buy an ounce of Paris green for potato-bugs, and his daughter to select a bottle of cheap perfumery, for two tall lads to get a physician's prescription made up, and a plump-checked child to buy a cent's worth of peppermint-drops before she came up to the counter.

"Well, miss," said the sleepy old druggist, who moved like a patent perambulating toy which had got out of order, and winked drearily behind his spectacle-glasses, "what can I do for you?"

Erminie's heart seemed to leap up into her mouth, every drop of blood rushed to her face, while in a guilty whisper she murmured:

"Hair-dye, please."

"Dye?" repeated the purblind and partially deaf old man. "What kind of dye?"

"I—I don't quite know, sir! The usual kind, I suppose. Anything but black," she added, remembering Barbara's remark.

And with "Yes, yes," and a patronizing smile, old Mr. Mill put her up a bottle of the brightest aniline-red that he possessed.

"Gals is always partial to bright colors," he said to himself.

And Erminie ran all the way home, as if the whip-poor-wills and rabbits would know that she had a bottle of hair-dye wrapped up in her pocket-handkerchief.

Once safe in her own little garret-room, she rubbed the mixture well into the roots of her hair, brushing it out to the very ends according to Barbara's description of the "city boarder's" manipulations.

She had scarcely finished, when she heard her mother's voice calling:

"Minnie! Er-min-ie!"

"Ma'am?" she chirped feebly back.

"Come down stairs quick!" said Mrs. Hitchings, in a sort of stage shout up the back stairs. "Here's your cousin Simon and Harry Boyce, come by the night stage, and supper to get for 'em, and nobody knows what all! Do make haste!"

And momentarily forgetful of the chief sorrow of her life, Erminie ran blithely down-stairs to be kissed by Simon and chivalrously greeted by Mr. Boyce.

Both student-lamps were lighted, and Mr. Hitchings had even gone to the extravagance of a pair of mould candles on the mantel-piece, and as Erminie turned to help set the table there was a unanimous shout of laughter.

"Why, Min, how do you come to be topped off with cardinal-red?" jeeringly demanded Simon.

"What in all creation ails your hair?" said her uncle.

And Erminie, catching a glimpse of herself in a cherry-framed looking-glass which hung opposite, uttering a shriek of dismay, took to precipitous flight.

Her head no longer bore the old hue of golden red, but now displayed the vivid cardinal hue of Farmer Rumford's new barn-door.

As she hastened to hide herself, she heard the laughter-choked voice of Simon exclaiming, incoherently:

"Well, I always knew that red hair was fashionable, but I didn't know that the girls were so wild after it as to dye their bangs the regular blazing vermilion."

Mrs. Hitchings herself got the supper that night. It was Barbara's evening out, and poor Erminie was nowhere to be found. And it was nearly ten o'clock when the weeping girl, coming up the long pear-tree walk, met Mr. Boyce face to face.

"Don't run away, Erminie," said he, pleadingly. "Don't make an enemy of one who would fain be a friend. I have so much to say to you, Erminie."

"I've washed it, and washed it, and it won't come out," sobbed poor Erminie.

"Washed what?" questioned Mr. Boyce.

"My hair. My horrid, hideous, hateful hair!"

"Never mind your hair," said Mr. Boyce, gently drawing her arm through his.

"But it was such a dreadful color, and I dyed it; and they gave me the wrong color. And, oh, I'm almost sure it will never come natural again!"

"Oh, yes, it will," said Harry Boyce, coaxingly, "the prettiest gold-auburn shade in the world."

"Oh, Mr. Boyce, do you really think so?"

"Upon my soul and honor I do. But don't you want to hear my news?"

"Of course I do," whispered Erminie.

"Well, then, Erminie—my Minnie—here it is. I have received my first call to the pastorate of a church in Livingbrook, Mass., with the prettiest little rectory in the world, of yellow stone, all covered with climbing vines. And all I need now is a wife to keep house for me, and ask the deacons and deaconesses to tea. Will you be that wife, Erminie, darling?"

"Oh, Harry, she gasped, "do you think that a woman who dyes her hair is worthy to be a minister's wife?"

"If we none of us had any earthly imperfections," said the young minister-elect, smiling, "we should be angels; and although you're the nearest I ever saw to one, Minnie," with a kiss, "I don't want you to float away and leave me just yet. So I'm rather glad you haven't arrived at that wing and silver-trumpet stage."

And Erminie Ray never troubled herself any more about her hair. "If Harry likes it," said she, "I do!"

"P. S.—I forgot to say that the dye came out.—Tid-Bits.

The interesting ghost story is told that a widow living at Findlay, Ohio, is visited every evening by her deceased husband, who still clings to the old rocking chair, even though his bones lie in the cemetery. The chair begins to rock every evening, and the widow is sure her husband's spirit occupies it.

Enter Not Into This Temptation.

There are two great temptations to which a careful housekeeper is liable. One is to fill her servants' hands so full with the regular work that when extra requirements come as in times of illness or company, or house-cleaning, she herself must be the one to fulfill them. The other is wherever she sees incapacity in any department of the work to make up the deficiency by her own efforts. In this way she will accumulate a variety of tasks, such as the care of the favorite lamps, the dusting of bric-a-brac, the flavoring of custards and mixing of salads, not to speak of the packing of lunches, and arranging of trays for invalids, which it is a great comfort to herself and others to have done with nicety. But if she does not limit her desires in this direction, these tasks will certainly trench upon the time and strength required for oversight and plannings not to speak of rest, and the constant occurrence of the unforeseen will steal away the remainder.

Yet a housekeeper needs very much a little leisure, not only to think over her work, but also to put it entirely out of her thoughts and give herself to something beyond or outside. Else she may become narrow in her limited round of duties, stunted by their common-place nature. She is largely cut off from society by the necessity to be much at home. In the house her position though central is a lonely one. She is not one with the servants though so much with them. She is not one with the family though she may be dear to them. Their different pursuits and interests separate them from her. To nobody is the occasional society of a book more needful, or more precious. Her vigor of mind, her very sanity, I might almost say, depend upon it; for quite as many active minds lose sanity through being deprived of all intellectual interests as from over-pressure of them. She will be a better housekeeper, as well as a lovelier woman, for a little leisure saved for reading, or better yet, for study.—M. E. Bennett, in Good Housekeeping.

A Lover Brought to Terms.

Quite a sensational photographic story comes from Madrid. A Spanish photographer having all the necessary arrangements for taking a comely young damsel, had placed the dark slide in position, and was in the act of drawing it out, when, on finally glancing at his "sitter," he was horrified to see that she was holding the muzzle of a small revolver to her forehead. "Stop, for heaven's sake!" cried the artist, adding, rather selfishly: "If you shoot yourself you will ruin my business." In reply the young lady only laughed, and, handing the revolver to the photographer, said: "Don't be alarmed. It isn't loaded, you see. But I want you to take me holding it to my forehead, so that I can send the carte to my lover, who has deserted me, with a letter saying that if he does not come back to me, I will really fire off the revolver!" Assuring himself of the fact that the revolver was not loaded, the artist consented to so far assist his "sitter" in her proposed stratagem as to take the desired photograph. The sequel is perfectly satisfactory. Some time afterward the photographic artist had the pleasure of again taking the same young lady, but this time she was with a gentleman, her companion being her old fickle lover, who had returned to his allegiance a short time after the tragical photograph had been dispatched to him. —London Figaro.

Never Give Up.

If you are suffering with low and depressed spirits, loss of appetite, general debility, disordered blood, weak constitution, headache, or any disease of a bilious nature, by all means procure a bottle of Electric Bitters. You will be surprised to see the rapid improvement that will follow; you will be inspired with new life; strength and activity will return, pain and misery will cease, and henceforth you will rejoice in the praise of Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Miraculous Escape.

W. W. Reed, druggist, of Winchester, Ind., writes: "One of my customers, Mrs. Louisa Pike, Bartonia, Randolph Co., Ind., was a long sufferer with Consumption, and was given up to die by her physicians. She heard of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and began buying it of me. In six months' time she walked to this city, a distance of six miles, and is now so much improved she has quit using it. She feels she owes her life to it." Free Trial Bottles at Dr. G. W. Crouter's

"HACKMETACK," a lasting and fragrant perfume. Price 25 and 50 cents.

SHILOH'S CURE will immediately relieve Croup, Whooping Cough and Bronchitis. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co

FOR DYSPEPSIA and Liver Complaint, you have a printed guarantee on every bottle of Shiloh's Vitalizer. It never fails to cure.

A NASAL INJECTOR free with each bottle of Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. F. G. Hines & Co.

Lot of second hand furniture for sale cheap. Inquire of C. Budd.

Land for Sale.

I have 5 acres just east of the cemetery, one mile from town, nearly all cleared, which I will sell cheap for cash, or approved paper. Address
JAMES METCALF, Charlevoix.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix. tf

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter

W. H. FRANCIS
FURNITURE
—AND—
JOBBING SHOP,
Will also do
Contracting & Building,
In Charlevoix, and Summer Resorts.
I keep in my shop a full set of hand and foot power machinery which enables me to do jobbing, repairing etc. on short notice.
Shop on South Terrace,
Opposite Sheriff Bedian's residence.

MILLINERY,
FANCY GOODS,
DRESS-MAKING,
We have just opened a large line of Spring and Summer Millinery and Fancy Goods to which we invite your attention.
DRESS-MAKING done on the TAILOR SYSTEM. The best work done at the lowest rates.
ALDRICH SISTERS.
Ingleside Building.

MERCHANT
TAILORING,
I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.
Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.
Call and see me, Satisfation Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,
C. H. Maddaugh.

CHARLEVOIX
Manufacturing Co.
Charlevoix, Mich.,
Manufactureres of
Sash and Doors,
Blinds, Mouldings etc.
NEWELL
Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails
kept in stock.
Window & Door Frames made to order.
All Kinds of
Building Material
Kept constantly on hand.
PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS.
Furnished on application.
Cottages made a specialty
also contracting and building
Correspondence solicited.

"MARVELOUS PRICES!"
BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away. The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, and all are printed from good type upon good paper. [illegible]

1. The Widow Bedott Papers. [illegible]
2. Winter Evening Recreations, a large collection of Acting Charades, Tableaux, Games, Puzzles, etc., for social gatherings, private theatricals, and evenings at home.
3. Back to the Old Home. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Hidden Perils."
4. Dialogues, Recitations and Readings, a large and choice collection for school exhibitions and public and private entertainments.
5. The Standard Letter Writer for Ladies and Gentlemen, a complete guide to correspondence, giving plain directions for the composition of letters of every kind with innumerable forms and examples.
6. The Frozen Deep. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
7. Red Court Farm. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne," etc.
8. The Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott. "The Lady of the Lake" is a romance in verse, and of all the works of Scott, none is more beautiful than this.
9. In Cupid's Net. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
10. Amos Barton. A Novel. By George Eliot, author of "Adam Bede," "The Mill on the Floss," etc.
11. Lady Gwendoline's Dream. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
12. The Mystery of the Holly Tree. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
13. The Budget of Wit, Humor and Fun, a large collection of the funny stories, sketches, anecdotes, poems, and jokes.
14. John Bowerbank's Wife. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
15. The Gray Woman. A Novel. By Mrs. Gaskell, author of "Mary Barton," etc.
16. Sixteen Complete Stories by Popular Authors, embracing love, humorous and detective stories, stories of society life, of adventure, of railway life, etc., all very interesting.
17. Jasper Dane's Secret. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Aurora Floyd," etc.
18. Fancy Work for Home Adornment, an entirely new work upon this subject, containing easy and practical instructions for making fancy baskets, wall pockets, brackets, needle work, embroidery, etc., etc., profusely and elegantly illustrated.
19. Grimm's Fairy Stories for the Young. The finest collection of fairy stories published. The children are delighted with them.
20. Manual of Etiquette for Ladies and Gentlemen, a guide to politeness and good breeding, giving the rules of modern etiquette for all occasions.
21. Useful Knowledge for the Million, a handy book of useful information for all, upon many and various subjects.
22. The Home Cook Book and Family Physician, containing hundreds of excellent cooking recipes and hints to housekeepers, also telling how to cure all common ailments by simple home remedies.
23. Manners and Customs in Far Away Lands, a very interesting and instructive book of travels, describing the peculiar life, habits, manners and customs of the people of foreign countries.
24. 87 Popular Ballads. Same size as sheet music. Words of all the old and new songs.
25. Called Back. A Novel. By Hugh Conway.
26. At the World's Mercy. A Novel. By Florence Warden, author of "The House on the Marsh," etc.
27. Mildred Trevanion. A Novel. By "The Duchess," author of "Molly Bawn," etc.
28. Dark Days. A Novel. By the author of "Called Back."
29. Shadows on the Snow. A Novel. By B. L. Farjeon, author of "Bread-and-Cheese-and-Kisses," etc.
30. Leoline. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Brenda Yorke."
31. Gabriel's Marriage. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "No Name," etc.
32. Reaping the Whirlwind. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Old Middleton's Money," etc.
33. Dudley Carleon. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Lady Audley's Secret," etc.
34. A Golden Dawn. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
35. Valerie's Fate. A Novel. By Mrs. Alexander, author of "The Wooing O't," etc.
36. Sister Rose. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
37. Anne. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne."
38. The Laurel Bush. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
39. Robinson Crusoe. A thrilling narrative by Daniel De Foe, describing the adventures of a castaway in the South Pacific Ocean.
40. How to Make Poultry Pay. A practical and instructive series of articles by Mr. P. H. Jacobs, Poultry Editor of "The Farm and Garden," Phila.; illustrated.
41. Parlor Magic and Chemical Experiments, a book which tells how to perform hundreds of amusing tricks in magic and instructive experiments with simple agents.
42. Gems of the Poets, containing charming selections from Tennyson, Longfellow, Whittier, Byron, Shelley, Moore, Bryant, and many others.
43. Building Plans for Practical, Low-cost Houses. A full description and plans of Eight modern houses, ranging in price from $500 to $4500. Illustrated.
44. Anecdotes of Public Men—Washington, Franklin, Webster, Clay, Tilden, Lincoln, Scott, Grant, Garfield, Gladstone, Butler, Hancock, Lee, and all the leading men of the century.
45. Æsop's Fables. The work of an ancient genius. Children have read them for centuries, and grown people quote them every day.

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.

We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $2.00; or we will send any five for 35 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of "SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

GRENADES.
Two Sizes—Pints and Quarts.
Over Sixty Millions Sold.
PRICES.
Pints, - Per Doz., $10.00.
Quarts, - " " 15.00.

"STAR"
Tubular Fire Extinguisher.
Glass Tube, 19x2½ in. Holds 1 quart.
In this device we combine the BEST QUALITIES of our famous Grenades with the NEW feature of having an article that can be used by Sprinkling. It is designed especially for use in Passenger Coaches and Dwellings. It is elegant in ornamentation. It is cheap and reliable. No rust, no corrosion possible.
Plain, $12.00 per doz.
Ornamt'd, 15.00 per doz.

The "Star" EXTINGUISHER
Holds 5 gallons and will force a stream through 5 feet of hose 45 feet without pump, which is the best ever made. Needs no attention until used. Will not freeze, explode or get out of order. No rust or corrosion. Can be used by anyone.
Price, $30.00 Each.

"STAR" CHEMICAL.
Just what is needed in every village, lumber yard, warehouse, etc. Fully equipped with Hose, Ax, Crow Bar, Lantern, etc. It is cheap, and reliable. Wt. 450 lbs.
PRICE
$200.00 EACH.

Four years of practical use have demonstrated these to be the only reliable and thoroughly efficient Hand Fire appliances made. We use the same chemical liquid in all, and guarantee fully.
Liberal discounts to agents. Send for circulars and testimonials.
The HARDEN HAND GRENADE CO.
51 & 53 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Take The Sentinel.

SOMETHING NEW.
WORLD RENOWNED
CENTRE DRAFT PLOW

The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are, that it
1st. NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d. TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.
The Beam is not bolted to the landside, but—by means of a steel frog—is set directly in the Centre of the Line of Draft, making a steady light running plow, and one that cannot be Clogged. See one before you buy.
If your Agent has none write us for price.
MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS
RACINE, Wis.

PAINTS!

STOVES, HARDWARE, TINWARE, FISHING TACKLE, NOTIONS, ETC., ETC.
THE BEST FORCE PUMPS,
FARMING IMPLEMENS.

JOB AND TIN WORK.
L. D. Bartholomew & Co.
JOB AND TIN WORK.

DRUGS and STATIONERY,

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

A Large and Complete New Line
JUST RECEIVED.
EVERYTHING
YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

The only News stand in town.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN
Boiler Works!
Builder and Manufacturer of
BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.
Sheet Iron Work given special attention.
MARINE WORK
a specialty.
HENRY BARTH, Prop.
Charlevoix, Mich.

For Finest
JOB WORK,
Patronize The Sentinel.

CURES

Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, Whooping Cough, Quinzy, Sore Throat, Consumption, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Diseases.

YOUNG'S COUGH SYRUP

Dansville, Mich., Aug. 15, 1884.—I was attacked with a severe cold and threatened with lung fever while on a visit to Hudson, Mich., about a month ago, so much so that I was unable to fill an appointment to preach on account of my severe coughing, but managed to get home, and immediately took some of Dr. E. A. Young's Cough & Lung Syrup I had in the house, and my cough left me as soon as I commenced taking it, and I find permanent relief when I am attacked by cough or lung complaint. [illegible]

Howell, Mich., Oct. 26, 1871. I have tried Dr. E. A. Young's Cough and Lung Syrup for more than a year, as I had occasion, as a remedy for Colds and Coughs, and found it a reliable medicine. I have used his Ague and Liver Syrup in my family with the best of success, curing my mother (whose age was over seventy years) of one of the hardest attacks of Fever and Ague, after the second chill and fever. I take pleasure in recommending the above remedies to all who need them.
REV. S. R. KOMMED.

Sold by all druggists. Price, 25c., 50c., and $1.00. Large bottles sent free on receipt of price.
W. JOHNSTON & CO., DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Pan-Zama Balm
THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Trouble to which womankind is heir—$1 per box of one month's treatment. Reliable Lady Agents can make money for themselves and become benefactors to their race by engaging in the sale of this remedy. For medicine and particulars, Address
PAN-ZAMA MED. CO., Frankfort, Ind.

160 Acres in MARION
Township For Sale at a Bargain, Terms to suit.
MONEY TO LOAN ON
Approved Real Estate Security.
THEODORE R. CHAPIN
Boyne City.

FRANK E. WOODS
Bath & Barber Rooms
Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd fellows Block.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS.
Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.
If you want a quiet place to get a shave, hair dress or bath call and see me.
JAY L. PRICE.

NEW SHOP!
All kinds of Blacksmithing,
At the
Shop in the Foundry Building.
Horseshoeing a specialty.
ALL WORK GUARANTEED.
M. SCOTT.

1-3 OFF SALE!
At Miss Spaulding's
MILLINERY ROOMS,
I will sell my entire stock of goods except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.
Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $3.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed felt hat in the store.
Come early and secure a Bargain.
MISS L. SPAULDING.

JAS. A. GELLICK,
Dealer in
Choice Wines,
Fine Liquors.
EXCELLENT CIGARS.
We call Special Attention to our
Old Kentucky Sour Mash
WHISKIES.
We also keep continually on draught
Milwaukee
Export and lager Beer.
Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

FRESH FROM THE WIRES.

Events of Interest and Importance in Every Quarter of the Habitable Globe.

News Relating to Politics, Religion, Commerce, Industry, Labor, and Other Topics.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

STRIPES FOR SHARP.

[illegible]

LAMAR AND COLQUITT.

[illegible]

CHICAGO BOODLERS.

[illegible]

BANTRY PATRIOTS.

[illegible] ... active members of a revolutionary society. Three were acquitted, thirteen sentenced to death, two to exile in Siberia, and the others to imprisonment at hard labor.

EAST.

THE Eastern electric-light companies have formed a pool to fight the carbon monopoly, which recently made an advance of 100 per cent. in the price of carbons. The new combination has contracted for the entire petroleum-coke product of the Standard Oil Company, and will manufacture carbons at New York. The new move simply means the substitution of one monopoly for another, and will be of no advantage to the general public.

A DISPATCH from Rochester, N. Y., says that on Monday morning nearly all the union laborers employed on the city streets, to the number of about four hundred, struck for an advance of wages to $1.75 per day. The contractors put non-union men at work in their places. Later squads of strikers appeared and forced non-union men off the work. The police interfered to protect the non-union men, and a riot ensued, in which one of the strikers was killed and ten or twelve wounded.

BY a powder-mill explosion at Wayne, N. J., four men were killed and several wounded.

WEST.

A TELEGRAM from Chippewa Falls, Wis., says: "Marshfield, a thriving town of 3,000 population on the Wisconsin Central ...

WASHINGTON.

[illegible]

INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

[illegible]

GENERAL.

[illegible]

SOUTH.

[illegible] ... the fire with ... negroes, including the accused. The affray produced intense excitement.

KNOXVILLE (Tenn.) special: "News comes from Stony Gap Church, in Hancock County, of a fatal shooting. Will Hobbs, a member of an outlaw gang that has killed several men during the past few months, was in attendance at the meeting, with a pistol buckled around him. Deputy Sheriff Green tried to arrest Hobbs, and a fierce fight ensued, in which both men were killed and a number of persons wounded."

TEN BROECK, the famous running horse, for which his owner had refused $100,000, died last Tuesday at the latter's farm in Kentucky.

POLITICS.

A SALT LAKE dispatch says "the Mormons held a mass county convention in the theater, and elected sixteen delegates to the Constitutional Convention. An invitation has been addressed by the Chairman of their Territorial Committee to the Chairmen of the Democratic and Republican Territorial Committees to meet with them and send delegates also. Judge Rasboro, Chairman of the Democratic Territorial Committee, sent a reply declining to act with the Mormons in this scheme. The Republican Committee replied, setting forth the many acts of opposition the Mormons had been guilty of to national authority."

CONGRESSMAN R. W. TOWNSHEND, of Illinois, while in New York, expressed the ...

FOREIGN.

[illegible]

MARKET REPORTS.

NEW YORK.
[illegible]	$4.00	@ 5.25
[illegible]
CHICAGO.
[illegible]
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	.17	@ .18
Fine Dairy	.12	@ .11½
CHEESE—Full Cream, cheddars	.07½	@ .08
Full Cream, new	.08½	@ .09
EGGS—Fresh	.10½	@ .11
POTATOES—Choice, new, per brl	2.50	@ 3.50
PORK—Mess	21.75	@ 22.25
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—Cash	.70	@ .71
CORN—No. 3	.36	@ .36½
OATS—No. 2 White	.31	@ .31½
RYE—No. 1	.51	@ .53
PORK—Mess	14.00	@ 14.50
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 2	.74	@ .75
CORN—Mixed	.34	@ .34
OATS—Mixed	.29	@ .29½
PORK—New Mess	14.75	@ 15.25
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—No. 2	.80	@ .81
CORN—No. 2	.41	@ .40½
OATS	.26	@ .26½
DETROIT.
BEEF CATTLE	4.00	@ 4.50
HOGS	3.50	@ 4.50
SHEEP	3.25	@ 4.25
WHEAT—Michigan Red	.80½	@ .81½
CORN—No. 2	.38	@ .39
OATS—White	.32	@ .32½
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.77½	@ .78½
CORN—No. 2	.39	@ .39½
OATS—No. 2	.29	@ .30
PORK—Mess	14.75	@ 15.25
LIVE HOGS	4.50	@ 5.25
BUFFALO.
WHEAT—No. 1 White	.85	@ .86
CORN—No. 2 Yellow	.43	@ .43½
CATTLE	3.50	@ 5.25
INDIANAPOLIS.
BEEF CATTLE	3.25	@ 4.50
HOGS	4.75	@ 5.25
SHEEP	2.50	@ 3.75
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.76	@ .76½
CORN	.37	@ .37½
OATS—No. 2 Mixed	.27	@ .27½
EAST LIBERTY.
CATTLE—Prime	4.50	@ 4.75
Fair	4.25	@ 4.50
Common	3.50	@ 4.00
HOGS	5.00	@ 5.50
SHEEP	3.50	@ 4.25

RULES FOR THE KNIGHTS.

The Toilers' Order Adopts a New Constitution and Approves National Trades Assemblies.

Intoxicants at Meetings, Picnics, Sociables, or Other Entertainments Strictly Prohibited.

[Philadelphia telegram.]

By returns made to the general headquarters of the Knights of Labor the new constitution of the order, embodying many important changes, has been adopted by about a three-fourths vote. A clause providing for the formation of national trades assemblies, sent out separately from the constitution, and voted upon by the local assemblies throughout the order, has also been adopted by nearly the same vote. The new constitution will be promulgated by the General Executive Board in a very few days, and will go into effect immediately after its promulgation. An analysis shows that nearly half of the local assemblies that opposed the adoption of the new constitution did so on account of section 325, which reads:

No local, or other assembly, or member, shall directly or indirectly give, sell, or have any ale, beer, or intoxicating liquors of any kind, at any meeting, party, sociable, ball, picnic or entertainment whatever, appertaining to the order. Any member found guilty of violating this law shall be suspended not less than six months, or expelled. No fine shall be imposed for this offense. Any local or other assembly so offending shall be suspended during the pleasure of the General Executive Board, or shall have its charter revoked by said board.

Nearly every assembly composed solely of Germans voted against this clause, and therefore against the whole.

The article upon co-operation was adopted unanimously. It is quite lengthy, and provides for the creation and disbursement of a fund to aid co-operation enterprises. Each local assembly is required to collect and deposit a sum not less than 2 cents per month for every member in good standing. The money is to be invested by the co-operative board, and profits are to be divided equally between the general assembly, the co-operative fund, and the workmen who create the profit.

The new constitution gives the General Executive Board full power to settle all strikes and disputes, whether sanctioned by the board or not, and it increases the powers of the General Board in many other particulars.

The national trade assemblies clause is probably the most important of the changes. It provides that "Any particular trade or calling may form a national trade assembly by giving at least three months' notice to each local assembly—the entire membership of which is composed of such trades—to attend a convention for the purpose of forming a national trade assembly."

At least two-thirds of the local assemblies must vote in favor of the trade assembly, and not less than ten assemblies, if there be that number in the order, may receive a charter.

Section 3 of the article is not very strong, however, as it still leaves the matter in the hands of the General Executive Board, which, if the law has been complied with, may instruct the General Secretary to issue a charter.

Votes will be received until July 15 and recorded, although the new constitution will be in effect some time before that.

TWO WOMEN CRUELLY WHIPPED

Ohio "Regulators" Lash Them with Switches Till They Become Unconscious.

[Winchester (Ohio) special.]

About six months ago a band of "regulators" was organized in this (Adams) county to drive out disreputable people and break up the houses of ill-fame. Their first effort was on a number of lewd women, whom they whipped and tarred and feathered. The "knights," to the number of twenty or more, all masked and armed with shotguns and hickory switches, last night went to the house of a woman named Martin, who, with her daughter Lilly, has the reputation of being loose. The knights had served the two with a notice to quit the county several days ago, but the women disregarded it. When the mob rode up to the house they were refused admittance. They promptly battered down the door. Two men were inside, who made some show of resistance, and several shots were exchanged without injury before the "knights" overpowered the inmates. The two women were then dragged from bed, stripped, and tied to the door-frame, and whipped with hickory switches until they were unconscious and their bodies a shocking mass of bruised and bleeding flesh. The two men, who were married farmers living in the vicinity, were dismissed with the admonition that if again found in a house of ill-repute they, too, would be killed. The knights then rode off.

BOLD JAIL DELIVERY.

Idaho Crooks Hold Up Their Guard and Make Good Their Escape.

[St. Paul telegram.]

A dispatch from Blackfoot, Idaho, gives the details of a most daring and successful jail delivery there. Henry Nickerson, in for horse-stealing, was furnished with a revolver by his wife, who has been visiting him daily. With the revolver Nickerson held up the guard, who had accompanied his wife to the cell. The pair disarmed the guard and locked him in the cell. They then liberated Aleck Woods, a negro wife-murderer, and one Williams, also convicted of murder, both sentenced to hang July 22, and another horse-thief, and locking up the rest of the watchmen the entire party escaped to the outside, where horses were waiting them. Woods, weighing 250 pounds, would not trust a cayuse, and took to the bush on foot. The others fled on horseback. The sheriff, returning an hour later, organized a posse and soon recaptured Woods, but was still in pursuit of the others at the last account. As the criminals are armed, a desperate and hot fight is likely.

NATURAL GAS.

Flowing Wells in Operation in Kansas and Arkansas.

Paola (Kansas) special: A natural-gas celebration was held in Paola to-day, with nearly fifteen thousand people on the grounds from all adjacent towns and cities in Missouri and Kansas. The procession that marched from the city park to the natural-gas wells on the Boon field, east of the city, was over two miles long. After the exhibit at the wells the crowd assembled in the city, where dinner was served for all by the Paola citizens.

Fort Scott (Ark.) dispatch: There is great enthusiasm here over the discovery of gas in a well sunk by the Fort Scott Economy Gas and Fuel Company in quantities far in excess of any well opened here. This makes the twelfth well now flowing within a mile and a half of the heart of the city, completely settling the question as to the quantity of gas.

PATTERSON'S PENSION.

It Was the Largest Ever Paid to a Private Soldier, and Was Obtained by Fraud.

[Washington dispatch.]

Francis Patterson, of Elmira, N. Y., better known as "Blind Patterson," who recently obtained considerable notoriety as the recipient of the largest pension ever granted a private soldier of the United States, and which it was recently discovered had been fraudulently obtained, has been arrested at Gordonsville, Va. He had $1,600 of the pension money on his person, and this, together with the money already regained, makes $12,350 which has been recovered by the Government of the $13,150 paid out on account of Patterson's pension.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Notes on the Lesson for July 10—"The Flight Into Egypt."

[From Chicago Standard. By Rev. J. M. Coon.]

The lesson is found in the second chapter of Matthew, from the thirteenth to the twenty-third verses. Time, B. C. 4, soon after events of the last lesson. Places, Bethlehem, Egypt, Nazareth.

SPECIAL MENTION.

The Journey to Egypt.—Joseph's flight into Egypt involved a journey of more than two hundred miles. He doubtless took the most direct road, and this led him nearly due west from Bethlehem to seven or eight miles, where he fell into the road going down from Jerusalem to Gaza, the road which the Ethiopian eunuch was afterward following when he was overtaken by Philip. He struck this road where it begins its descent through the mountain passes into the valley of Elah, now called Wady Sunt. On entering that valley he was close in the vicinity of the battle-ground where his father, David, slew the giant, Goliath; for he passed in sight of the village of Shochoh (1 Sam. 17: 1-3). When he had passed thence across the lower mountains to the Philistine plain and drew near to Gaza, he fell into the path along which the Joseph of old, from whom his name was derived, was led by the Ishmaelites, and thus he followed the rest of the way. This path had also been trod by the feet of Jacob and of Abraham, and it is scarcely possible that Joseph can have failed to remember these incidents, or to have reflected very solemnly on the connection between the promise made to those patriarchs and the child for whom he was caring. (Standard Ecclesiastical Commentary.)

Significance of the Sojourn in Egypt.—All Palestine was under Herod, so that he could have reached them in any part of it; but in Egypt the fugitives were safe. It was, moreover, almost another Judea, for the favor shown to their race by the Ptolemies had induced as many as a million of Jews to settle in the Nile valley; and of the five quarters of Alexandria, with 300,000 free citizens, Jews occupied more than two. They had a temple of their own at Leontopolis, in the Delta, for about 150 years, though they preferred to go up to that at Jerusalem. The Greek translation of the Bible, which has already widely taken the place of the Hebrew original, had been made in Egypt, and the Egyptian rabbis, by their efforts to turn Judaism into a philosophic system which should win for it the favor of the cultivated Romans and the Greeks, had founded a new school for Jewish theology, which was hereafter to influence even Christianity. (Geikie.) The very land which was the land of bondage and groaning for the Jews became now the land of refuge and safety for the new-born King of Judea. God can overturn nations and kingdoms, so that those whom he loves shall be safe anywhere. (Parnes.) The flight to Egypt had three purposes: 1. The security of the child from his enemies. 2. To show the divine care and valuation of the holy child. 3. To make his childhood's sufferings an antitype of the history of chosen Israel. As Israel went down into Egypt and tarried there under compulsion of Herod until restored to the Holy Land. Twice, then, out of Egypt did God call his Son, namely: His collective son, Israel, and His individual son, Christ. (Whedon.) The flight of our Lord from his own land to the land of darkness and idolatry impresses on us the reality of his humiliation. Herod's cup was well-nigh full, and the doom that soon overtook him could have arrested him then in his bloody attempt; but Jesus, in accepting humanity, accepted all its incidents. He was saved, not by the intervention of God, but by the obedience of Joseph; and from the storms of persecution he had to use the common means of escape. After the death of Herod, in less than a year, Jesus returned with his parents to their own land, and went to Nazareth, where they abode. (Archbishop Thompson.)

Herod's Death.—It has been noticed that the loathsome disease of which Herod died is hardly mentioned in history, except in the case of men who have been rendered infamous by an atrocity of persecuting zeal. On his bed of intolerable anguish—in that splendid and luxurious palace which he had built for himself under the palms of Jericho; swollen with disease and scorched by thirst; ulcerated externally, and glowing inwardly with a "soft, slow fire;" surrounded by plotting sons and plundering slaves, detesting all and detested by all; longing for death as a release from his tortures, yet dreading it as the beginning of worse terrors; stung by remorse, yet still unslaked with murder; a horror to all around him, yet in his guilty conscience a worse terror to himself; devoured by the premature corruption of an anticipated grave; eaten of worms as though visibly smitten by the finger of God's wrath, after seventy years of successful villainy—the wretched old man, whom men had called the Great, lay in savage frenzy awaiting his last hour. The day of Herod's death was, as he had foreseen, observed as a festival. His will was disputed; his kingdom disintegrated; his last order was disobeyed; his sons died for the most part in infamy and exile; the curse of God was on his house, and though, by ten wives and many concubines he seems to have had nine sons and five daughters, yet within a hundred years the family of the Herodaidae of Ascalon had perished by disease or violence, and there was no living descendant to perpetuate the name. (Farrar.)

Ramah.—A small town in the tribe of Benjamin, and six miles north of Jerusalem. It was the birth-place and burial-place of Samuel, and the spot where Saul was anointed king (1 Sam. 1: 19, 20; 2: 11; 8: 4; 19: 18; 25: 1). Not far distant from Ramah, yet south of Jerusalem and in the more immediate vicinity of Bethlehem, was the tomb of Rachel and the supposed place of her burial (Gen. 35: 18-20; 48: 7). The figure becomes a typical prophecy of the grief in Bethlehem. Rachel was the ancestress of the tribe of Benjamin, which was always identified in fortune with Judah. She well represents the mothers of Bethlehem, near to which she died in childbirth, and was buried. The sound of her lamentations is carried beyond Jerusalem, and heard at Ramah. (Popular Commentary.) "Divine prophecies," says Lord Bacon, "being of the nature of their Author, with whom a thousand years are as one day, are not punctually fulfilled at once, but have springing and germinant accomplishment throughout many ages;" and Dr. Wordsworth adds, "have, at length, their summer blossom and autumnal ripeness in Christ."

Archelaus.—Son of Herod the Great by his favorite wife, Malthace. After Herod had slain his three sons, Aristobulus, Alexander, and Antipater, he left by will his dominions to Archelaus as king. Upon the death of Herod Archelaus was proclaimed king by the population, but did not dare to assume the crown until his title should be confirmed by the Emperor of Rome. Thereupon the Jews sent a solemn embassy to the Emperor, petitioning that they might be exempted from the reign of any of Herod's family, and that Judea might be governed as a Roman province under the governor of Syria. After a reign of nine years he was deposed by the Emperor and died in exile. (Whedon.)

TOPIC AND OUTLINE.

The lesson is full of the various providences of God, and we may profitably take as our study Divine Providence in human life. We find that providence is (1) particular, relating to a certain person, operating by certain persons; (2) helpful, by warning, guarding, watching, protecting, etc.; (3) permissive, allowing the wickedness of Herod, the suffering of the innocent children; (4) continuous, never dying, wavering, or failing; (5) made sure to the believer by the promise of God; (6) overruling and supreme; (7) co-operating with the human in its action.

SEED-TRUTHS AND GERM-THOUGHTS.

1. God's timely counsels and warnings to his people (v. 13).
2. The child may have a far greater name and work than the mother (v. 13).
3. As the world persecuted Christ, so will it persecute his followers (v. 13).
4. Obedience is not only the way of safety, but the way to honor God and his word (v. 15).
5. As Christ was protected and delivered, so also will his followers be (v. 15).
6. Homes should be changed and chosen for the good of the family (vs. 14, 21, 23).
7. Every word of God will be fulfilled (v. 15).
8. There is a reason for every divine command, though it may not appear at first.
9. God can make even the violent rage of the wicked to work fulfillment of his prophecy and purpose (vs. 15, 18, 23).
10. "Little children are the first martyrs and even they enter heaven by suffering" (v. 16).
11. God gives special help in times of special need and peril (vs. 13, 22).
12. An evil purpose will commit the most revolting crimes to accomplish its work (v. 16).
13. "All things work together for good to them that love him."
14. "Trials are made to carry out the divine purposes" (v. 15).
15. Fulfillment of prophecy respecting Christ is proof both that the Scriptures are inspired and that Christ is divine.
16. Childhood is ignored by the world, but protected and honored by the church (v. 16).
17. God restrains the wicked until the time is ripe to destroy them (v. 19).
18. "We carry within us the elements of hell. Alas, Judas, Nero, Borgia, Herod—all were once prattling infants."

Subject of lesson for July 17: "John the Baptist."—Matt. iii. 1-12.

AT THE CAPITAL.

Close of the Thirty-fourth Session of the Michigan Legislature—Longest Session on Record—University and Mining-school Bills Passed and Approved—High-tax Liquor Law—Total Appropriations—Farewell.

LANSING, June 25.—According to the day fixed for final adjournment, the thirty-fourth Legislature of the State of Michigan will not reach its final adjournment until noon of the 29th, and yet the session practically closed this forenoon. Last night had been fixed as the last day for doing new business, but the accumulation of business was so great that after grinding along until nearly two o'clock this morning both houses took a recess until eight, thereby continuing the legislative day, as is quite frequently done in Congress. The only business done this morning after the recess was to receive back the general appropriation bill by the House from the Senate, and to pass some complimentary resolutions to the newspaper correspondents. The Engrossing Committees will finish up their work during the next three days, and at noon of the 29th the curtain will be rung down on the thirty-fourth session of the Michigan Legislature, a session that has outranked all the others in length. The sessions for the past ten years have been: 1877, 140 days; 1879, 150; 1881, 158; 1883, 158; 1885, 161; 1877, 176 days.

THE UNIVERSITY.

Among the important matters closed up this week is the passage through the two houses and the concurrence of each with the other's amendments of the new bill to take the place of the vetoed University appropriation bill. As finally passed, and as approved by the Governor this morning, the bill appropriates $108,365.94 for 1887 and $46,700 for 1888. This is a reduction, as a result of the veto, of about $40,000, to be deducted mostly from the item for new laboratory building.

MINING SCHOOL.

The mining school is another of the important matters settled this week. The Governor told Senator Hubbell plainly that he would not approve the $120,000 appropriation for the new building for this school, and so, as the only alternative, it was called back and reduced to $75,000, at which figure it finally passed both houses and was approved by the Governor on the 24th.

LIQUOR-TAX BILL.

The other important matter was the final passage by the two houses of the conference committee's report on the Bates high-tax liquor bill. The Senate was obliged to recede from its reduction of the retail liquor tax to $400, and put it back to $500, as it first passed the House. The Senate amendment allowing bondsmen to be selected from the township was also receded from, and they must be secured from the municipality. Section one is the important one of the whole bill, and reads as follows:

Section 1. The People of the State of Michigan enact, That in all townships, cities, and villages of this State there shall be paid annually the following tax upon the business of manufacturing, selling, or keeping for sale, by all persons whose business, in whole or in part, consists in selling or keeping for sale or manufacturing distilled or brewed or malt liquors, or mixed liquors, as follows: Upon the business of selling or offering for sale spirituous or intoxicating liquors, or mixed liquors, by retail, or any mixture or compound, excepting proprietary patent medicines, which in whole or part consist of spirituous or intoxicating liquors, and any malt, brewed, or fermented liquors, $500 per annum; upon the business of selling only brewed or malt liquors at wholesale or retail, or at wholesale and retail, $300 per annum; upon the business of selling spirituous or intoxicating liquors at wholesale, $500; or at wholesale and retail, $800 per annum; upon the business of manufacturing brewed or malt liquors for sale, $65 per annum; upon the business of manufacturing for sale spirituous or intoxicating liquors, $800 per annum. No person paying a tax on spirituous or intoxicating liquors under this act shall be liable to pay any tax on the sale of malt, brewed or fermented liquors. No person paying a manufacturer's tax on brewed or malt liquors under this act shall be liable to pay a wholesale dealer's tax on the same.

APPROPRIATIONS OF THE SESSION.

The total appropriations made at this session have been nearly $3,000,000—a pretty snug little sum for Michigan taxpayers to meet.

AS MUCH IMPORTANT WORK has been done during the week as during the entire session; but to sum up the legislation, much of it very hasty and imperfect, that is always crowded into the closing hours of a session would trespass too much on your space, and so without attempting it I close this last report of the doings of the Michigan Legislature for 1887.

OBSERVER.

Church Extension.

A Sioux Falls minister recently went out to another Dakota town to help organize a church. On his return his wife said to him:

"I trust you were successful and laid the foundation for a prosperous church society."

"Well, I'm afraid I can't say that I was."

"Why, I don't see what could have prevented."

"I'll tell you. I got those together who appeared to be interested and we talked the matter over some little time."

"Well, why didn't you go on?"

"Why, they didn't seem to be very enthusiastic and so to test the matter I said, 'Gentlemen, I move that we proceed to organize a Presbyterian church.' Just then a prominent business man arose and said: 'I move to amend the gentleman's motion so that instead of a Presbyterian church we organize a Board of Trade and get up a boom.' 'Those in favor of the amendment,' said I, 'will please rise.' You ought to have seen them get up! Every man stood up except one lame man and he was feeling around on the floor for his crutch. Some got up on the chairs, and one man tried to crawl on top of the stove. When I came away they were talking about moving the cemetery to make room for a street-car line."—Dakota Bell.

Worth More than a Million Each.

Mrs. Kate Terry is worth nearly $3,000,000.

Mrs. Thomas A. Scott counts her wealth at $6,000,000.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor is worth about $8,000,000.

Mrs. Edwin Stevens, of New York City, has $15,000,000.

Mrs. Hetty Green, of New York City, is worth about $40,000,000.

Mrs. Robert Goelet, worth $3,000,000, owes her fortune to hardware.

Mrs. Jayne, the widow of the patent medicine man, is worth $3,000,000.

Mrs. Marshall O. Roberts is the eight millionaire widow of a mining king.

Mrs. Martin Bates was left $1,500,000, which her husband made in drygoods.

Mrs. Joseph Harrison, the widow of the man who built the first railroad in Russia, $1,000,000.

Mrs. James Brown received from her husband's estate about $1,000,000, which was accumulated in banking.

Mrs. Josephine M. Ayer, who gets her money from patent medicine, is estimated to be worth $4,000,000 to $5,000,000.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

THE House bill providing for the publication of the names and addresses of ex-soldiers, sailors, and marines passed the Senate on the 22d. The Senate agreed in committee of the whole to the bill revising the mutual fire, marine and inland navigation companies law. It also ... the bill amended by the farmers, to ... and vendors of patent pumps, fences, etc., to charge exorbitant prices for their goods. The House of Representatives made little progress in considering the Senate amendments to the liquor bill, but soon had to lay the measure aside for other matters. It passed the House bill to abolish the contract system in the State prisons after existing contracts have expired. The House bill to tax mortgages was also passed, the tax to be paid by the mortgagee. If the mortgagee resides in another State and does not pay the tax the mortgage can be seized and sold. The University appropriation bill was received from the Senate, the physical laboratory item being cut down to $35,000. The bill as thus amended passed, appropriating a total of $152,981. A sensation was created in legislative circles on the afternoon of the 22d, when the Lansing Journal appeared containing charges that Senator J. W. Babcock and Representatives John Makelim and R. O'Keefe, all of Sanilac County, had been guilty of accepting bribes. The Journal intimated that all three were bribed to vote for Stockbridge for United States Senator, and claimed to have incriminating letters in its possession. The paper offered to substantiate its charges if an investigation committee was appointed. In the House Mr. Makelim sent a written denial of the charges affecting him to the Clerk's desk. In it he asked that in simple justice the alleged letter be published, further than that he left himself in the hands of the House. O'Keefe followed his example. No action was taken. Senator Babcock said nothing about the matter in the Senate, but outside he talked freely and calmly. He admitted being present at a conference on the Senatorial contest early last January, but denied that Makelim and O'Keefe were present, as also charged. He also denied that there were any offers of money made or alluded to at the meeting.

THE high-license liquor bill finally passed both houses on the night of the 23d, after a conference committee had struggled over it several hours. The high-tax men were victorious. By the terms of the agreement the tax is fixed at $300 for selling malt liquors and $500 for selling spirituous liquor, an increase of $100 and $200 respectively. The bonds must be secured in city, village, or township where the business is carried on. Saloons are allowed to remain open from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m. A second conference committee worked on the university appropriation bill, the split being over the physical laboratory item, fixed by the Senate at $50,000 and reduced by the House to $35,000. The latter figure was agreed upon. The Mining School appropriation bill of $120,000 was recalled from the Governor, and both houses agreed to make the total amount $75,000. Had this not been done, the bill would have been vetoed. Both houses passed a bill to create a Board of Examiners, and to require that a license must be obtained before a person can practice medicine. A bill providing for the publication of a second edition of 30,000 copies of the late Mr. Robertson's "Michigan in the War" was passed by both houses. Impure milk will not be used in cities hereafter if it can be prevented by a bill which passed both branches. The House passed the Senate bill authorizing the Railroad Commissioner to appoint a second deputy, who shall be a mechanical expert. The bill was a pet measure of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. After three attempts in as many sessions the so-called anti-compact bill, which prohibits fire-insurance companies from doing business on the Board of Underwriter plan, has been worked through the Legislature. The Senate has given its sanction to the measure. The Senate unanimously passed a resolution expressive of its confidence in the integrity and honesty of Senator Babcock, and in the House a resolution for an investigation was laid on the table, partly because no specific charges have been made, and partly because the end of the session is so near at hand.

THE Legislature practically completed its labors on Friday, the 25th of June. The expiring hours of both branches were largely given up to packing and presentations. Speaker Markey was the recipient of an elegant silver service, and President pro tem of Senate Monroe a massive gold-headed cane. A large amount of business was transacted during the last day's session. Among the most important was the Rogers bill, a copy of the interstate commerce bill, but the long and short haul clause was stricken out. The Senate bill to provide for cleansing the statutes of obsolete laws failed in the House; $500 was appropriated for the expenses of the Governor and Justices of the Supreme Court at the centennial celebration at Philadelphia in September, this year. The House passed a resolution for ... the Marquette, Houghton, and Ontonagon land grant. The Senate failed to pass the bill to prohibit the sale of tobacco to minors and ministers of the gospel, but passed the House bill to tax sleeping car and car loaning companies upon their gross receipts. The bill appropriating $1,400,000 for current State expenses and all other appropriation bills, passed. The House refused to reconsider the Rogers railroad bill after the Senate had stricken out the long and short haul clause, and it was tabled. The House also refused to take from the table the bill to repeal the act making standard time legal time. A large number of measures failed for want of action in both houses, but nearly all matters affecting the general public were disposed of.

Peculiarities of the Celestials.

Boats are drawn by horses, carriages moved by sails.

The highest recommendation a man can have is the fact of his having a wife.

When a Chinaman expects a present and it does not come he sends one of lesser value.

Men wear long petticoats and carry fans, while the women wear short jackets and carry canes.

A bachelor is likened to a counterfeit coin; he is looked upon with suspicion even by the members of his own household.

They feed their friends sumptuously when dead, but let them take care of themselves the best they could while alive.

Schoolmasters have more power over young than parents. If within three years' schooling the child is not morally as well as intellectually reformed he is sent into another school.

Love-making is only done three days after marriage. It is not only considered the safest way to get ahead of a rival, but the surest way to get a wife without losing much time.

To encourage honesty and sincerity, confidential clerks and salesmen in all branches of industry receive an annual net percentage of the firm's business besides their regular salaries.

A provision acquaintanceship between the male and female prevents them from marriage. For this reason a man seldom weds a girl of his own town. They are likewise prevented from marrying kins or namesakes.

If a Chinaman desires the death of an enemy he goes and hangs himself upon his neighbor's door. It is sure to kill not only that particular enemy, but members of his entire family will be in jeopardy of losing their lives.

A man could borrow money on the strength of his having a son, but no one would advance him a cent if he had a dozen daughters. The former is responsible for the debts of his fathers for three generations. The latter is only responsible for the debts of her own husband.

A girl is never considered anything else in her own father's house than an honored guest. She is neither responsible for the family debts nor enjoys a share in its fortunes, as in the case of sons.

When a Chinaman meets another he shakes and squeezes his own hands, and covers his head. If great friends had not seen each other for a long time, after the mutual handshaking they would rub shoulders until they became tired. Instead of asking each other's health they would say: "Have you eaten your rice? where are you going? what is your business when you get there? how old are you? and how much did you pay for your shoes?"

A Dreadful Confession.

Boston Girl—Oh, mother! I did something awfully immodest at the party to-night.

Mother—Why, my dear child, what was it?

B. G.—That horrid bouquet that Mr. Beacon sent me had some cinnamon pinks in it. They made me sneeze, and—but I can't say it.

Mother—Go on.

B. G.—My glasses fell off, and Mr. Beacon saw my bare face.—Life.

SPIRITUAL ARCHERY.

The Omnipotent Arrow of The Gospel.

Dr. Talmage's Discourse at the Tabernacle—He Tells His Hearers How They, Like Nimrod, May Become "Mighty Hunters Before the Lord."

BROOKLYN, June 26.—Many of the families belonging to the church of which the Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D. D., is pastor, have gone to the country for the summer, but still the great throngs of people that for eighteen years have been seen in and around Brooklyn Tabernacle on Sabbath days, are found there. It is estimated that about 300,000 strangers have visited this church during the past year. The hymn sung this morning was:

> Salvation, oh, the joyful sound!
> 'Tis pleasure to our ears;
> A sovereign balm for every wound,
> A cordial for our fears.

Dr. Talmage's text was: "He was a mighty hunter before the Lord."—Genesis x. 9. He said:

In our day hunting is a sport; but in the lands and times infested with wild beasts it was a matter of life or death with the people. It was very different from going out on a sunshiny afternoon with a patent breech loader to shoot red birds on the flats, when Pollux and Achilles and Diomedes went out to clear the land of lions and tigers and bears. My text sets forth Nimrod as a hero when it presents him with broad shoulders and shaggy apparel and sunbrowned face, and arm bunched with muscle—"a mighty hunter before the Lord." I think he used the bow and the arrow, with great success practicing archery.

I have thought if it is such a brave thing to clear wild beasts out of a country, if it is not a better and braver thing to hunt down and destroy those great evils of society that are stalking the land with fierce eye and bloody paw and sharp tusk and quick spring. I have wondered if there is not such a thing as gospel hunting, by which those who have been flying from the truth may be captured for God and Heaven. The Lord Jesus in His sermon used the art of angling for an illustration when He said: "I will make you fishers of men." And so I think I have authority for using hunting as an illustration of gospel truth; and I pray God that there may be many a man in this congregation who shall begin to study gospel archery, of whom it may after a while be said: "He was a mighty hunter before the Lord."

How much awkward Christian work there is done in the world! How many good people there are who drive souls away from Christ instead of bringing them to him! Religious blunderers, who upset more than they right. Their gun has a crooked barrel, and kicks as it goes off. They are like a clumsy hunter who goes along with skillful hunters; at the very moment he ought to be most quiet he is cracking an alder or falling over a log and frightening away the game. How few Christian people have ever learned the lesson of which I read at the beginning of the service, how that the Lord Jesus Christ at the well went from talking about a cup of water to the most practical religious truths, which won the woman's soul for God. Jesus, in the wilderness, was breaking bread to the people. I think it was good bread; it was very light bread, and the yeast had done its work thoroughly. Christ, after he had broken the bread, said to the people: "Beware of the yeast, or of the leaven, of the Pharisees!" So natural a transition it was, and how easily they all understood him. But how few Christian people who understand how to fasten the truths of God and religion to the souls of men! Truman Osborne, one of the evangelists who went through this country some years ago, had a wonderful art in the right direction. He came to my father's home one day, and while we were all seated in the room, he said: "Mr. Talmage, are all your children Christians?" Father said: "Yes, all but De Witt." Then Truman Osborne looked down into the fireplace, and began to tell a story of a storm that came on the mountains, and the sheep were in the fold; but there was one lamb outside that perished in the storm. Had he looked me in the eye, I should have been angered when he told me that story; but he looked into the fireplace, and it was so pathetically and beautifully done that I never found any peace until I was sure I was inside the fold, where the other sheep are.

The archers of old times studied their art. They were very precise in the matter. The old books gave especial directions as to how the archer should go, and as to what an archer should do. He must stand erect and firm, his left foot a little in advance of his right foot. With his left hand he must take hold of the bow in the middle, and then with the three fingers and the thumb of his right hand he should lay hold of the arrow and affix it to the string—so precise was the direction given. But how clumsy we are about religious work! How little skill and care we exercise! How often our arrows miss the mark! Oh, that we might learn the art of doing good and become "mighty hunters before the Lord!"

In the first place, if you want to be effectual in doing good, you must be very sure of your weapon. There was something very fascinating about the archery of olden times. Perhaps you do not know what they could do with the bow and arrow. Why, the chief battles fought by the English Plantagenets were with the long bow. They would take the arrow of polished wood and feather it with the plume of a bird, and then it would fly from the bowstring of plaited silk. The broad fields of Agincourt and Solway Moss and Neville's Cross heard the loud thrum of the archer's bowstring. Now, my Christian friends, we have a mightier weapon than that. It is the arrow of the Gospel; it is a sharp arrow; it is a straight arrow; it is feathered from the wing of the dove of God's spirit; it flies from a bow made out of the wood of the cross. As far as I can estimate or calculate, it has brought down 400,000,000 souls. Paul knew how to bring the notch of that arrow on to that bowstring, and its whir was heard through the Corinthian theaters, and through the court room, until the knees of Felix knocked together. It was that arrow that stuck in Luther's heart when he cried out: "Oh, my sins! Oh, my sins!" If it strike a man in the head, it kills his skepticism; if it strike him in the heel, it will turn his step; if it strike him in the heart, he throws up his hands, as did one of old when wounded in the battle, crying: "Oh, Galilean, thou hast conquered."

In the armory of the Earl of Pembroke there are old corslets which show that the arrow of the English used to go through the breastplate, through the body of the warrior, and out through the backplate. What a symbol of that Gospel which is sharper than a two-edged sword, piercing to the dividing asunder of soul and body, and of the joints and marrow! Would to God we had more faith in that Gospel! The humblest man in this house, if he had enough faith in him, could bring 100 souls to Jesus—perhaps 500. Just in proportion as this age seems to believe less and less in it, I believe more and more in it. What are men about that they will not accept their own deliverance? There is nothing proposed by men that can do anything like this Gospel. The religion of Ralph Waldo Emerson is the philosophy of icicles; the religion of Theodore Parker was a sirocco of the desert, covering up the soul with dry sand; the religion of Renan is the romance of believing nothing; the religion of Thomas Carlyle is only a condensed London fog; the religion of the Huxleys and the Spencers is merely a pedestal on which human philosophy sits shivering in the night of the soul, looking up to the stars, offering no help to the nations that crouch and groan at the base. Tell me where there is one man who has rejected that Gospel for another, who is thoroughly satisfied and helped and contented in his skepticism, and I will take the car to-morrow and ride 500 miles to see him. The full power of the Gospel has not yet been touched. As a sportsman throws up his hand and catches the ball flying through the air, just so easily will this gospel after a while catch this round world flying from its orbit and bring it back to the heart of Christ. Give it full swing, and it will pardon every sin, heal every wound, cure every trouble, emancipate every slave, and ransom every nation. Ye Christian men and women who go out this afternoon to do Christian work, as you go into the Sunday-schools and the lay preaching stations and the penitentiaries and the asylums, I want you to feel that you bear in your hand a weapon, compared with which the lightning has no speed, and avalanches no heft, and the thunderbolts of heaven have no power; it is the arrow of the omnipotent gospel. Take careful aim. Pull the arrow clear back until the head strikes the bow. Then let it fly. And may the slain of the Lord be many.

Again, if you want to be skillful in spiritual hunting you must hunt in unfrequented and secluded places. Why does the hunter go three or four days in the Pennsylvania forests or over Raquette Lake into the wilds of the Adirondacks? It is the only way to do. The deer are shy, and one "bang" of the gun clears the forest. From the California stage you see, as you go over the plains, here and there, a coyote trotting along, almost within range of the gun—sometimes quite within range of it. No one cares for that; it is worthless. The good game is hidden and secluded. Every hunter knows that. So, many of the souls that will be of most worth for Christ, and of most value to the church, are secluded. They do not come in your way. You will have to go where they are. Yonder they are down in that cellar, yonder they are up in that garret. Far away from the door of any church, the gospel arrow has not been pointed at them. The tract distributor and the city missionary sometimes just catch a glimpse of them as a hunter through the trees gets momentary sight of a partridge or roebuck. The trouble is, we are waiting for the game to come to us. We are not good hunters. We are standing in Schermerhorn street, expecting that the timid antelope will come up and eat out of our hand. We are expecting that the prairie fowl will light on our church steeple. It is not their habit. If the church should wait 10,000,000 of years for the world to come in and be saved, it will wait in vain. The world will not come. What the church wants now is to lift their feet from damask ottomans, and put them in the stirrups. We want a pulpit on wheels. The church wants not so much cushions as it wants saddle bags and arrows. We have got to put aside the gown and the kid gloves, and put on the hunting shirt. We have been fishing so long in the brooks that run under the shadow of the church that the fish know us, and they avoid the hook and escape as soon as we come to the bank, while yonder is Upper Saranac and Big Tupper's Lake, where the first swing of the gospel net would break it for the multitude of the fishes. There is outside work to be done. What is that I see in the backwoods? It is a tent. The hunters have made a clearing and camped out. What do they care if they have wet feet, or if they have nothing but a pine branch for a pillow or for the northeast storm? If a moose in the darkness steps into the lake to drink, they hear it right away. If a loon cry in the midnight, they hear it. So in the service of God we have exposed work. We have got to camp out and rough it. We are putting all our care on the 70,000 people of Brooklyn, who, they say, come to church. What are we doing for the 700,000 that do not come? Have they no souls? Are they sinless that they need no pardon? Are there no dead in their houses that they need no comfort? Are they cut off from God, to go into eternity—no wing to bear them, no light to cheer them, no welcome to greet them? I hear to-day surging up from the lower depths of Brooklyn a groan that comes through our Christian assemblages and through our Christian churches; and it blots out all this scene from my eyes to-day, as by the mists of a great Niagara, for the dash and the plunge of these great torrents of life dropped down into the fathomless and thundering abyss of suffering and woe. I sometimes think that, just as God blotted out the Church at Thyatira and Corinth and Laodicea, because of their sloth and stolidity, he will blot out American and English Christianity, and raise on the ruins a stalwart, wide awake missionary church, that can take the full meaning of that command: "Go into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, and he that believeth not shall be damned."

I remark, further, if you want to succeed in Gospel hunting, you must have courage. If the hunter stand with trembling hand or shoulder that flinches with fear, instead of his taking the catamount, the catamount takes him. What would become of the Greenlander if, when out hunting for bear, he should stand shivering with terror on an iceberg? What would have become of Du Chaillu and Livingstone in the African thicket, with a faint heart and a weak knee? When a panther comes within twenty paces of you, and it has its eyes on you, and it has squatted for the fearful spring, "Steady there."

Courage, O ye spiritual hunters! There are great monsters of iniquity prowling around about the community. Shall we not in the strength of God go forth and combat them? We not only need more heart, but more backbone. What is the Church of God that it should fear to look in the eye any transgression? There is the Bengal tiger of drunkenness that prowls around, and instead of attacking it, how many of us hide under the church pew or the communion table? There is so much invested in it we are afraid to assault it; millions of dollars in barrels, in vats, in spigots, in corkscrews, in gin palaces with marble floors and Italian top tables, and chased ice coolers, and in the strychnine, and the logwood, and the tartaric acid, and the nux vomica, that go to make up our "pure" American drinks. I looked with wondering eyes on the "Heidelberg Tun." It is the great liquor vat of Germany, which is said to hold 800 hogsheads of wine, and only three times in 100 years has it been filled. But, as I stood and looked at it, I said to myself: "That is nothing—800 hogsheads. Why, our American vat holds 4,500,000 barrels of strong drinks, and we keep 300,000 men with nothing to do but to see that it is filled." Oh, to attack this great monster of intemperance, and the kindred monsters of fraud and uncleanness, requires you to rally all your Christian courage. Through the press, through the pulpit, through the platform, you must assault it. Would to God that all our American Christians would band together, not for crack-brained fanaticism, but for holy Christian reform. I think it was in 1790 that there went out from Lucknow, India, under the sovereign, the greatest hunting party that was ever projected. There were 10,000 armed men in that hunting party. There were camels, and horses, and elephants. On some princes rode, and royal ladies, under exquisite housings, and 500 coolies waited upon the train, and the desolate places of India were invaded by this excursion, and the rhinoceros, and deer, and elephant, fell under the stroke of the saber and bullet. After a while the party brought back trophies worth fifty thousand rupees, having left the wilderness of India ghastly with the slain bodies of wild beasts. Would to God that instead of here and there a straggler going out to fight these great monsters of iniquity in our country, the million membership of our churches would band together and hew in twain these great crimes that make the land frightful with their roar, and are fattening upon the bodies and souls of immortal men. Who is ready for such a party as that? Who will be a mighty hunter for the Lord?

I remark again: If you want to be successful in spiritual hunting, you need not only to bring down the game, but bring it in. I think one of the most beautiful pictures of Thorwaldsen is his "Autumn." It represents a sportsman coming home and standing under a grapevine. He has a staff over his shoulder, and on the other end of that staff are hung a rabbit and a brace of birds. Every hunter brings home the game. No one would think of bringing down a reindeer or whipping up a stream for trout, and letting them lie in the woods. At eventide the camp is adorned with the treasures of the forest—beak and fin and antler.

If you go out to hunt for immortal souls, not only bring them down under the arrow of the gospel, but bring them into the church of God, the grand home and encampment we have pitched this side the skies. Fetch them in; do not let them lie out in the open field. They need our prayers, and sympathies, and help. That is the meaning of the church of God—help. O ye hunters for the Lord! not only bring down the game, but bring it in.

If Mithridates liked hunting so well that for seven years he never went indoors, what enthusiasm ought we to have who are hunting for immortal souls? If Domitian practiced archery until he could stand a boy down in the Roman Amphitheater, with a hand out, the fingers outstretched, and then the King could shoot an arrow between the fingers without wounding them, to what drill and practice ought not we to subject ourselves in order to become spiritual archers and "mighty hunters before the Lord!" But let me say you will never work any better than you pray. The old archers took the bow, put one end of it down beside the foot, elevated the other end, and it was the rule that the bow should be just the size of the archer; if it were just his size, then he would go into the battle with confidence. Let me say that your power to project good in the world will correspond exactly to your own spiritual stature. In other words, the first thing in preparation for Christian work is personal consecration.

> Oh! for a closer walk with God,
> A calm and heavenly frame,
> A light to shine upon the road
> That leads me to the Lamb.

I am sure that there are some here who at some time have been hit by the Gospel arrow. You felt the wound of that conviction and you plunged into the world deeper, just as the stag, when the hounds are after it, plunges into Scroon Lake, expecting in that way to escape. Jesus Christ is on your track to-day, impenitent man! not in wrath, but in mercy. O ye chased and panting souls, here is the stream of God's mercy and salvation, where you may cool your thirst! Stop that chase of sin to-day. By the red fountain that leaped from the heart of my Lord, I bid you stop. There is mercy for you—mercy that pardons; mercy that heals; everlasting mercy. Is there in all this house any one who can refuse the offer that comes from the heart of the dying Son of God?

There is a forest in Germany, a place they call the "deer leap"—two crags about eighteen yards apart, between a fearful chasm. This is called the "deer leap" because once a hunter was on the track of a deer; it came to one of these crags; there was no escape for it from the pursuit of the hunter, and in utter despair it gathered itself up, and in the death agony attempted to jump across. Of course, it fell, and was dashed on the rocks far beneath. Here is a path to heaven; it is plain; it is safe. Jesus marks it out for every man to walk in. But here is a man who says: "I won't walk in that path; I will take my own way." He comes on up until he confronts the chasm that divides his soul from heaven. Now, his last hour has come, and he resolves that he will leap that chasm, from the heights of earth to the heights of heaven. Stand back now and give him full swing, for no soul ever did that successfully. Let him try. Jump! Jump! He misses the mark, and he goes down, depth below depth, "destroyed without remedy." Men! angels! devils! what shall we call that place of awful catastrophe? Let it be known forever as "The Sinner's Death Leap."

It is said that when Charlemagne's host was overpowered by the three armies of the Saracens in the pass of Roncesvalles his warrior, Roland, in terrible earnestness, seized a trumpet and blew it with such terrific strength that the opposing army reeled back with terror; but at the third blast of the trumpet it broke in two. I see your soul fiercely assailed by all the powers of earth and hell. I put the mightier trumpet of the Gospel to my lips and I blow it three times. Blast the first: "Whosoever will let him come." Blast the second: "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found." Blast the third: "Now is the accepted time; now is the day of salvation." Does not the host of your sins fall back? But the trumpet does not, like that of Roland, break in two. As it was handed down to us from the lips of our fathers we hand it down to the lips of our children, and tell them to sound it when we are dead, that all the generations of men may know that our God is a pardoning God, a sympathetic God, a loving God; and that more to Him than the anthems of Heaven, more to Him than the throne on which He sits, more to Him than are the temples of celestial worship, is the joy of seeing the wanderer putting his hand on the door latch of his father's house. Hear it, all ye nations! Bread for the worst hunger. Medicine for the worst sickness. Light for the thickest darkness. Harbor from the worst storm.

Dr. Prime, in his book of wonderful interest, entitled "Around the World," describes a tomb in India of marvelous architecture. Twenty thousand men were twenty-two years in erecting that and the buildings around it. Standing at that tomb, if you speak or sing, after you have ceased you hear the echo coming from a height of 150 feet. It is not like other echoes. The sound is drawn out in sweet prolongation, as though the angels of God were chanting on the wing.

How many souls here to-day, in the tomb of sin, will lift up the voice of penitence and prayer? If now they would cry unto God, the echo would drop from afar—not struck from the marble cupola of an earthly mausoleum, but sounding back from the warm heart of angels, flying with the news; for there is joy among the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth.

CURIOUS FACTS.

NEITHER wine, ale, nor brandy has ever been manufactured in Japan.

CEYLON is the only English colony that contributes anything to the imperial navy.

THERE are said to be between 3,000 and 4,000 pensioners of the United States residing in Germany.

THE slave trade flourishes openly on the Madagascar coast. The slaves are captured in the interior of the island by French agents.

A CHARMING village named La Tour, in the department of Ardeche in France, has become uninhabitable, owing to the number of crimes, and the people have migrated in a body to more peaceful regions.

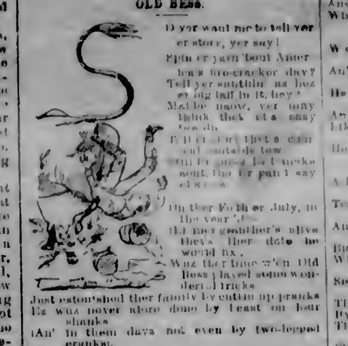
THE King of Denmark won't have a soldier in his army unless the man has a large and robust nose. Such noses indicate firmness of character, and the ninety-seven men who compose the Danish army must be depended on to repel all invasion.

DANIEL MILLER, who recently died in Chequest Township, Iowa, at the age of 102 years and 8 months, was the father of ten children, the grandfather of seventy-one, the great-grandfather of 165, and the great-great-grandfather of three.

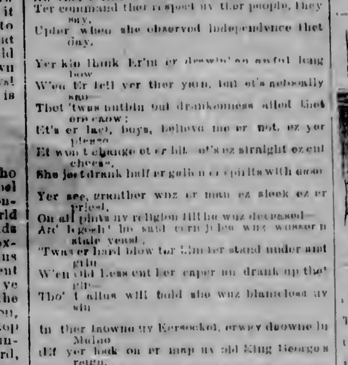
A FAMILY of Florida natives recently passed through Gainesville, four of whom, boys from six to ten years old, were almost exactly the same size and weight. The father explained that where they came from the chills and fever were so bad that the children stopped growing when they were about six years old.

DURING a severe storm recently at Hecla, Pa., large flocks of wild geese and ducks flying northward were driven down, and then were attracted by the light of the coke ovens. Many birds fell upon the ovens and floundered around, dazed by the light or singed by the heat, and about ten swans and twenty ducks were captured.

OLD BESS.



[illegible]

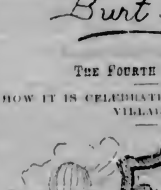


[illegible]

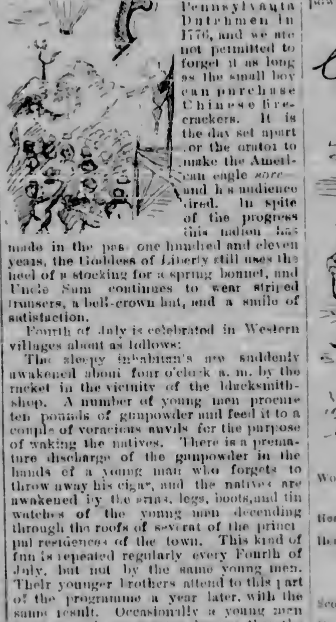
Burt Arnold

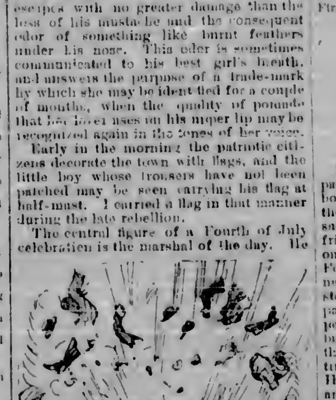
THE FOURTH OF JULY.

HOW IT IS CELEBRATED IN THE RURAL VILLAGES.

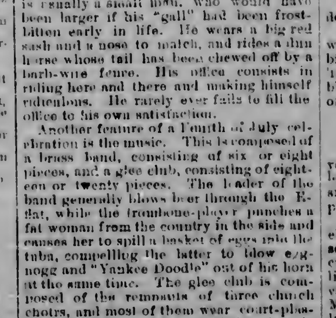


[illegible]





[illegible]



[illegible]

C. V. Walls.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

[illegible]

S. W. Foss.

HE DIDN'T SELL OUT.

[illegible]

HAD RISEN IN THE WORLD.

[illegible]

BORROWED SOLEMNITY.

[illegible]

IT WAS SO DRY.

[illegible]

Charles Sumner's Kindness.

"Do I remember Andrew J. Roberts?" quoth an old state politician. "Yes. He had a checkered career, poor man. But with all his shortcomings he was a bright—indeed, a brilliant—man. He was a great politician years ago, and not only took extraordinary interest in the great questions of the day, but knew intimately all the prominent public men. He was well read, intelligent, and a good talker, but he had a failing. He could never be depended upon, and at times was helpless.

"He used to hang around the State Republican headquarters from morning until night throughout the campaign, and campaigns lasted in those days nearly five months. It was during the anti-slavery days, when everybody was at the highest pitch of excitement. I remember one day in particular, when a number of prominent politicians were assembled at headquarters, among them Charles Sumner and Henry Wilson. Sumner was in the rear room, Wilson in the front. In walked Roberts. He talked in a loud voice and disturbed the whole assembly. Stepping into the rear room he spied Sumner in earnest conversation with a friend. Giving him a tremendous slap on the shoulder, he shouted: 'D—— you, Sumner, how are yo? Why don't you be as hearty and genial as your friend Wilson?'

"The effect of this rough handling of Sumner can readily be imagined by those who remember or have read of the dignified and scholarly man. It was not only a shock, but an insult. Sumner turned as white as a sheet, but said nothing. He realized Robert's condition and wisely kept his peace. Roberts was severely reprimanded and turned out of the room.

"It was not long after this that Roberts came to want and grief. He was actually destitute. He looked hungry and was poorly clad. In despair he came to me one day for work or advice. The big tears rolled down his face as he told me how destitute and degraded he was, and how he longed to reform. I told him I had no work, and advised him to go to Sumner.

"'Go to Sumner?' he said. 'Oh, no, I insulted Sumner a short time ago. I can't go.'

"'Yes, you can,' I said. 'Go to him as you have come to me. Tell him frankly the whole story, and he will help you.'

"Roberts did as I advised. About 10 o'clock the next morning he buttoned his shabby coat around his neck, to hide his flannel shirt, and made his way to the man whom he had so grossly insulted but a short time before. Sumner, it is well known, was always a late riser, and seldom breakfasted before 11 o'clock. He received the unfortunate man kindly, and, inviting him to breakfast, listened patiently to his story. Roberts told me afterwards that that was the first square meal he had eaten for a long time. In less than two days Roberts was given a position in the navy-yard, and henceforth was a different man. When he told me later his experience with Sumner that morning, his eyes filled with tears and his voice trembled with emotion. It was a magnanimous act on the part of Sumner, and an outward expression of his true character.

"It was the turning point in Robert's career. Only a few months ago he delivered one of the best temperance speeches I ever heard in my life. Up to the day of his death, which occurred quite recently, he had a great veneration for the memory of Sumner, the man who was so kind and generous to him in trouble."—Boston Record.

Starting a Church Fund.

A gentleman from Dakota tells us how the fund was started for building the first Methodist church erected in Bismarck. The town was young and practically in possession of the gamblers. Faro banks and all sorts of gambling schemes were run openly and without fear. One large gambling establishment was situated in a large tent near the center of the town, and thither went the Rev. Mr. Bull, who had come to Bismarck to establish a Methodist church. Mounting a poker table in the middle of the thickly crowded tent, Mr. Bull proceeded to speak for Christ. At once the busy gamblers laid down their chips and turned to jeering the preacher, some of them even pelting at him with whatever came easiest to hand.

Presently the slender form of Dennis Hannifan, the boss gambler and featherweight champion of the place, arose and moved toward the preacher.

"Hold on, boys," said Dennis; "this is no way to treat a stranger. I know a thing worth two o' this." At this Dennis took off his hat and passed it around among the gamblers, who each put in a chip. And taking this strange collection Dennis walked up to the table, dumped the hatful of chips upon it, and said:

"There you are, stranger; that's for you."

"But," said the clergyman, "what am I to do with it?"

"Well," replied Dennis, "it's yours, and you can do what you please with it. You can cash it or buck, just as you like."

"Buck it?" said the holy man; "what is that?"

"Why, play it in, you know; bet it on one of the games."

Mr. Bull preferred to "cash the chips in," so he went to the proprietor of the place, got $47 for the chips, and with that sum began the fund which finally built the Methodist church in which a flourishing society now worships.—Chicago News.

A Matter of Theology.

"My son," said a minister, placing his hand on the head of a freckled-faced boy, "do you attend the Baptist Sunday-school?"

"No, mum," replied the boy, "but me and Billy Powers goes a-swimmin' in the baptistry in the basement."

"But," said the minister, "you will never get religion in that way."

"Oh, come off," growled the boy. "The baptistry hasn't been pumped out for six months, and the religion in it is a gettin' so thick that it will stick to us when we don't use soap."—C. V. Walls, in Newman Independent.

THE following is a proclamation made at the Market cross of Inverary, Scotland, less than a hundred years ago. "a hoy! Te tither a hoy! Te hoy three times!!! an' to hoy—Whisht! By command of His Majesty, King George, and Her Grace te Duke o' Argyll: If anybody is found fishing aboont te loch, or below te loch, afore te loch, or ahint te loch, in te loch, or on te loch, aroun' te loch, or about te loch, she's to be prosecutit wi' three persecutions: first, she's to be burnt, syne she's to be drownt, and then she's to be hangt—an if ever she comes back she's to be persecutit wi' a far waur death. God save te King and Her Grace te Duke o' Argyll."

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

CHARLEVOIX, JULY 6, 1887.

Hasings from Hayes.

Our farmers are making hay this week; several commenced cutting clover last week.

Henry Hare is building a residence on his farm on the Grand view road.

Quite a number of our citizens have had their homes photographed by a traveling artist.

James Watt sold 40 acres unimproved land last week, to Mr. Singer of Bear Creek. Consideration $400.

Our pathmasters are paying their annual homage to the highways. The law ought to be enforced in regard to cutting noxious weeds.

E. H. Burgess is changing the motive power of his shingle mill from water to steam.

Jack Saunby is the owner of a new top buggy.

Cheboygan is bound to have a good ball club. They are going to put $1,000 into the business.

Sault Ste Marie will spend $5,000 this summer in advertising their booming town with printers ink. Sensible people.

The Senate, by a vote of 16 to 15 cut down the tax for selling liquor from $500 to 300. Senator Westgate voted against the reduction. The bill as amended passed that body Friday, by a vote of 31 to 1. The bill as passed by the Senate makes the tax as follows: Spirituous liquors, retail $300; wholesale, $500; Malt liquors, wholesale or retail $300; spirituous liquors, wholesale and retail $800.

The Detroit Evening News' Lansing correspondent and the Lansing Journal intimate that money has been freely used to influence legislation during the present session. They assume to know all about it, but give no names. Out with it, if money has been used for any such purpose the people want to know it and furthermore, they want the guilty parties punished. Let the motto be: "Let no guilty man escape."

The first crib was sunk on this side of the river for the international bridge on Thursday last. Much work has already been done on this great structure, on the Canadian side. Hundreds of people visit the works daily by rowing over to Hudson's bay and then walking a few yards up towards the head.——The first locomotive has arrived for our Canadian neighbors and is now being used in the construction work of the new bridge.—Soo News.

General Rosser, he of the late confederacy, whom General Sheridan whipped during the recent unpleasantness and more recently badly flayed in a newspaper correspondence, has not a very exalted opinion of the Democratic party and tells some plain truths in an interview at Minneapolis last week. He says: "The Democratic party at the north is not what the south wants. It is made up of the worst elements at the north. It has got all the anarchism, nihilism, whiskyism, and other isms. The Republican party embraces the business men and the energy of the north, while our Northern ally is made up of copper-heads and those who were disloyal. If the Republicans nominate John Sherman it is my opinion there will be some very independent voting in the South." There are times when General Rosser's head is level.

The country newspaper is an indispensible agent of civilization. It fosters public spirit in local matters, exposes corruption or extravagance in county or municipal affairs, is the most efficient watcher of the doings of the Congressmen for the district, is invaluable to a statesman or an editor of a metropolitan journal as an index to the undercurrent of political feeling, and, above all, is an absolute necessity to the progress of its neighborhood. In fact, the measure of the prosperity of a district can be accurately determined by the matter and appearance of its newspapers. Where there is little local advertising, scanty local news, and public interest in local politics there is but little public spirit. The gentlemen engaged in the management of country newspapers are now for the most part, men of culture and ability; from a Northern Indiana newspaper, Colfax graduated into journalism and statesmanship. Mr. Blaine is a graduate of a country press. The man who neglects the patronage of his home paper is an unconscious conspirator against the prosperity of his city or county. Local papers are as much of a necessity as are metropolitan journals. A newspaper that is worth reading or advertising in that is worth having, is worth paying for. A metropolitan newspaper would go bankrupt in a year if it submitted to the bleeding process which country editors too frequently undergo.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Marine Jottings.

The Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin says that the owners of the Northern Michigan line are discouraged over the loss of the Champlain and want to sell the Lawrence and wind up business. We hope the report is not true as Messrs. Klein & Burke, the owners, have many friends along the route who would like to see them continue to manage a line on the route. What they would like them to do would be to sell the Lawrence and secure two large steamers, and we believe it would be a paying investment. The trouble with the Champlain and Lawrence was they were not large enough to meet the demand in the busy season.

Northern Michigan News.

Fells' shingle mill has been moved from Petoskey to Springvale township, this county.

Greilick Bros. of Traverse City, have purchased the schooner Killie E to use in their business.

Record: Prof. J. T. Ewing was last week elected to the principalship of the preparatory department of Wooster College, Ohio, and has accepted the honor. He will not leave however for the scene of his labors until September. Jack Ingalls was up from Elk Rapids Sunday to see his wife who has been quite ill since the Champlain disaster in which she was a sufferer.

Time changed on the G. R. & I. last Sunday. Trains on main line will leave going south at 8.50 a. m. 2.15 p. m. and 10.55 p. m. Will arrive from the south at 6.00 a. m., 5.02 p. m. and 7.45 p. m. Trains on Harbor Springs branch will leave Petoskey at 6.15 a. m., 9.20 a. m., 12.15 p. m., 3.05 p. m., 5.15 p. m., 7.55 p. m. and 10.55 p. m. The arrangement is nearly identical with that of last season.

East Jordan Enterprise: Saturday night about 7 o'clock, as N. Shattuck and another man were driving to Kingsley, the horse was stopped by Walter Deyo. Shattuck struck the horse with the whip to urge him on, but Deyo refused to let him go, when Shattuck drew a revolver and shot Deyo, the ball striking him in the side about four inches below the heart, passing around in front and lodging in front of the breast bone. Shattuck gave himself up and was taken to Traverse City and lodged in jail. The wound is thought not dangerous. Shattuck claims the shooting was done in self-defense.

Grand Traverse Herald: Philip Sparling, who was the victim of a sad accident at Grand Rapids, noticed in last week's Herald, died in that city on Thursday. The remains were brought to his home in Paradise to his home in Paradise township, where the funeral took place on Saturday last. This death is a sad blow to his family and friends, and especially is this true of his brother whose inseparable companion he had been from infancy. The brothers were known as the "little men," Philip was 21 years old and was 52 inches tall. The brother who remains is 21 years old and 46 inches tall. They were rightly named "little men."

Traverse Bay Eagle: It is reported that John Torrent has sold the rest of his interest in the saw mill and pine in Grand Traverse county, purchased of Hannah, Lay & Co., to T. D. Simpson for $202,767.96. In the transaction Simpson lets Mr. Torrent have 20 lots in Grand Rapids, a block of Brown county stock and 4000,000 feet of standing pine in Osceola county, and pays Mr. Torrent $165,000 in cash.——Mr. S. S. Thompson, the manager of the building of the Frankfort and Southeastern railroad, informed us last Saturday that the Company had forty men at work constructing the road bed and that the grading was nearly all completed between Frankfort and the outlet of Crystal lake. This includes a good deal of the heaviest work on the road.——The Northern Asylum now contains 500 patients—263 males and 237 females. The cottage now on the grounds has been opened for male patients and is now full. There is room in the institution for a few more female patients. The bill appropriating $55,000 for finishing and furnishing the attics and an appropriation of $13.000 for building and furnishing a cottage, has passed the legislature and been signed. The attics will furnish room for 50 more patients—25 males and 25 females. The cottage, which is to be a plain brick building, located south and west of the main building, will accommodate 50. This will make the capacity of the institution 615, and it looks as though it would all be needed before the meeting of another legislature.—The Dexter & Noble blast furnace at Elk Rapids is the only one in the United States that hasn't been out of blast in fifteen years.

WANTED—A steady man to work one of Perkin's one block shingle mill. Apply to Smithson's Lumber Co., Charlevoix.

Card of Thanks.

The Baptist church desire in this public way to thank the friends who so generously assisted in entertaining the delegates of the Grand Traverse Baptist Association. We also wish gratefully to acknowledge the kindness of the M. E. Church in giving us the use of their house of worship during our evening sessions.

WILLIS G. CLARK.

SUMMER SCHOOL.

Teachers' Review Term of the Michigan Normal College, Flint, Mich.

The teachers' review term of the Michigan Normal College, located in Flint, Mich., is the most thorough, popular and complete summer school in the land. Hundreds of teachers, and those preparing to teach, attend from all parts of this and other states. Actual necessary expenses only $24. Send your own and the address of your friends and circular, containing full particulars will be sent. Address

J. C. STOWELL, Principal,
Flint, Mich.

W. C. T. U. Convention.

To the Editors of The Sentinel:

The ladies of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Charlevoix county met in convention at East Jordan, June 21, the session continuing until noon June 23. There were in attendance representatives from the different Unions in the county, delegates and visitors, to the number of 46.

We have in the county five Unions: Charlevoix, Ironton, East Jordan, Boyne City and Boyne Falls. Charlevoix had but small representation, as our sisters there have sad hearts and busy hands on account of the terrible calamity so recently brought to their shores and their homes.

As this is the first regular convention held in the county, we anxiously looked for a successful meeting, nor were disappointed. From first to last the spirit of loving unity that was manifested truly beautiful, and the many recitations, papers and discussions, showed a marked ability and understanding of the different lines of work now taken up by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Charlevoix county is truly to be congratulated on the large number of refined and intelligent ladies within her borders, and many of them are engaged in the work of the W. C. T. U. This convention has brought us together in acquaintance, and a true friendship and unity of purpose and action as never before, and we are hoping and trusting that ere another convention, many more of the good and the true of our sisters of this county will join our ranks against our common foe, and that we shall meet them at our next convention, as we then plan and work together for the adoption of those methods best adapted to secure the suppression of the drink cause, and the consequent building up of homes and legitimate trade in our county.

The papers read showed up the importance of the line of work they each represented, and suggested methods of operation. The discussions brought out still further thoughts and plans with regard to measures employed and the great need of hard, unremitting toil, till our homes and our youth are protected from the curse and temptation of rum. We greatly enjoyed, and were largely helped by the presence and labors of Mrs. Bally, President of the 3d District of Michigan, and Mrs. L. M. Boise, of Grand Rapids. Also the thanks of the convention are hereby expressed to the clergymen present for their words of cheer and for their kind assistance. The clergymen present were Revs. Bryant, Robinson and Blake, of East Jordan; Thurston and Norton, of Boyne City; and Redpath, of Boyne Falls.

The royal welcome and kind and sisterly treatment of delegates and visitors, will be long remembered by those who were so fortunate as to be there. General dinners and teas were prepared by loving hands, to save long walks and to facilitate acquaintance. All in all, Charlevoix county W. C. T. U. has reason to be proud of and encouraged in the real success of her first convention.

A kind letter of greeting from our esteemed District President, Mrs. E. A. Campbell, informed us that we are the first county organized in this work in the 11th District. Shall we not then, dear sisters, make use of this organization by our better acquaintance with the needs of our county and with each other, to forward not only the temperance work therein, but a general reform by taking up many of the different lines of our almost exhaustless work.

Sisters, begin to plan for our next convention to be held the second week in May next. May we then rejoice in increasing numbers and a glorious work done for "God and Home," and our county this coming year, through Him who only can lead us to success.

MRS. M. J. JOHNSON, Sec'y.
Boyne City.

Sheriff Sale.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of a writ of fieri facias issued out of the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, in favor of Hiram V. Rifenburg, against the goods and chattels and real estate of Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emrey, in said County, to me directed and delivered, I did, on the 26th day of June, 1887, levy upon and take all the right, title and interest of the said Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emrey, in and to the following described real estate, that is to say Lots 126, 127, and 91, in Upright & Hurlbut's Addition to the Village of Charlevoix, the undivided ½ of Lot 2, Section 23, Town 34 North, of Range 8 West, North ½ of South East ¼ of Section 29, Town 33 North, of Range 7 West, N. W. quarter of N. W. quarter section 18, town 33, north of range seven west all in Charlevoix County, Michigan; also 20 shares of stock in the Charlevoix Manufacturing Company, a corporation existing in accordance with the laws of the State of Michigan, said shares representing $25 each. All of which I shall expose for sale at public auction to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House in Boyne City in said county, on the 18th day of August, A. D. 1887, at ten o'clock in the forenoon.

Dated, June 28, 1887.

D. D. JERRUE, Sheriff.
By WM. SCHOOLER, Deputy Sheriff.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER,
Attorneys for Plaintiffs. [1007

Mortgage Sale.

Five certain mortgages, to-wit: one bearing date, December fifth, 1878, executed by Mariam Woolf and Martin Woolf to David Carpenter, recorded in the office of Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Mich., December 7th, 1878, in Liber 3 of Mortgages, at page 271 and 272, upon which the whole amount is due and unpaid, to-wit: The sum of Three hundred and twenty-seven dollars and twenty cents, ($327.20); one bearing date Sept. 13, 1879, executed by Mariam Woolf and Martin Woolf to David Carpenter, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Mich., Sept 29th, 1879 in Liber 4 of Mortgages, at page 37, upon which the whole amount is due and unpaid to wit: One hundred and eight dollars and thirty-two cents ($108 32); one bearing date April 6, 1880, executed by Mariam Woolf and Martin Woolf to David Carpenter, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Mich, April 15th, 1880, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, at page 149, upon which the whole amount is now due and unpaid, the sum of Two hundred and four dollars and thirty-two cents [$204 32]; one bearing date April 1, 1882, executed by Martin Woolf and Mariam Woolf to Clay E. Call, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Mich., April 11th, 1882, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, at page 518, which Mortgage was duly assigned by Clay E. Call to David Carpenter, September 26, 1882, by deed of assignment, which is recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Michigan, September 12, 1884, in Liber 10 of Mortgages, at page 575, upon which the whole amount is now due and unpaid, to-wit: Eighty-seven dollars and forty-eight cents [$87 48]; also a mortgage dated September 23, 1882, executed by Martin Woolf and Mariam Woolf to David Carpenter, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Charlevoix county, Michigan, Sept. 26, 1882, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, on page 616, upon which the whole amount is due, to wit: Six hundred and twenty four dollars and eleven cents, [$621 11]; for the recovery of the sum secured by said mortgages or either of them, no suit or proceedings at law having been instituted, will be foreclosed under the power of sale therein contained by a statutory sale of the premises therein described as the North half of the north-west quarter of section thirty-three, town thirty-four, North of Range six West, Charlevoix county, Michigan, to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House, so called, in the village of Boyne City, in said County, that being the place where the Circuit Court for said county, is held, at 12 o'clock noon, September 22, 1887.

DAVID CARPENTER,
Mortgagee and Assignee of said Mortgages.
DART & CALL, Attorneys for Mortgagee.
Dated, June 25, 1887. 1013

An I. O. O. F. encampment was instituted at Mancelona last week.

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent, Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

J. L. Newberry of Petoskey, is agent for and offers for sale, the lots on Schoffen's addition to Ironton, at low prices and easy terms. Perfect titles given. He will also sell, or exchange for property in Petoskey, his house and lot on Main street, Charlevoix. 3w

ICE CREAM
PAR EXCELLENCE.

We would respectfully inform the public that we have at considerable expense, prepared and suitably furnished our Band Pagoda as an Ice Cream parlor, and have placed it at the head of all similar institutions in Charlevoix. It will be open for the use of the public at all times save on Wednesday evenings, when there will be a Grand Concert by the Band. Our cream will be as good as can be made. Just received a large lot of Ice Cream Packages holding from one quart to one or more gallons, which will be loaned to customers for safely carrying cream to their homes. The quality of our cream speaks for itself. Our stock of foreign and domestic Fruits is always large and of the best quality. We carry as fine a line of confectionery, nuts, etc., as can be found in town.

Respectfully,
O. W. SMITH.

NOTICE.

The late Champlain disaster has placed me in close financial circumstances. Therefore it is necessary for me to collect all outstanding indebtedness. All Owing me will please call and pay.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Rosenthal & Son

continue business at the old stand in the See Block,

IN THE LINE OF

Indian Basket &

and Bark Work.

Call and look over our Stock.

ROSENTHAL & SON.

POSITIVELY THE FINEST LINE OF
CLOTHING
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS YOU EVER SAW IN CHARLEVOIX,

JUST RECEIVED FOR SUMMER WEAR.

Prices are unusually low this Spring and if you need anything in my line, just step in.

Now is a Grand Time To Obtain Bargains.

GEO. W. MILLER.

A. T. WASHBURNE AND CO.

OUR SECOND INVOICE OF SUMMER GOODS HAS ARRIVED.

We wish to call especial attention to the elegant line of wash goods now on our counters, as we never before have received such an assortment. We are confident they will be appreciated by all.

NEW EMBROIDERIES, LACES and LINENS. Our line of Corsets and Corset Waists is excelled nowhere in the state. See what we can give you for 25 cents in a Corset.

NEW DRESS GOODS, CARPETS, FANCY GOODS

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

Successors to F. W. CRAINE & CO.

REFITTED!

Our store is fully completed and we cordially invite our friends and patrons to call and inspect a choice assortment of new

DRY GOODS & GROCERIES

new Goods arriving nearly every day. Our stock of Groceries is the Largest, Choicest, Cleanest, and our Prices the Lowest. We're busy and haven't got arranged yet, but we want to see you just as we are.

J. L. HURD & CO.

WATCH FOR ALICK ROSENTHAL'S NEW "AD" NEXT WEEK.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XIX. NO.—11 CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, JULY 13, 1887. WHOLE NO. 920

"BUG FINISH!"

The new Potato Bug exterminator. We warrant it to give satisfaction. Very cheap. All ready for use. Requires no mixing. Try it.

STRICTLY PURE PARIS GREEN

We have in stock the purest article to be found in the market. It's sure death every time. Buy no other.

Sure Death To Currant Worms!

For these pests we have a pure article of White Hellebone. When ever used it acts like magic not leaving a worm on the bush.

PURE DALMATION INSECT POWDER

The best thing for Flies and other insects.

A trial of any of the above is bound to prove satisfactory,

F. G. HINES & CO.
Druggists.

Emrey Bros.

are on deck this Spring with a complete stock of

General Merchandise, AT LOWEST PRICES

WE ARE DETERMINED TO DO A STRICTLY CASH BUSINESS, AND THUS ARE ENABLED TO UNDERSELL FIRMS GIVING CREDIT.

IT WILL BE FOR YOUR PROFIT

TO CALL AND GET PRICES.

Boots and Shoes
THE GREATEST BARGAINS EVER OFFERED IN THIS COUNTY.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

We call especial attention to our complete stock of

WALL PAPER.

The time has arrived when you need it. We are now receiving a fresh Spring stock embracing all the latest styles. We warrant you lowest prices.

Special Patterns ordered from samples if you wish.

OUR SUMMER ASSORTMENT OF

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

now being received is the finest we ever offered

TEAS
of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in

FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN

BOOTS and SHOES.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces

EVERYTHING

usually found in a General Store.

Remember:
Our Goods are the Best.
Our Prices the Lowest.
Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours.

Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

Save Your Dollars
AND BUY HARDWARE
OF STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

Aiming to keep a complete stock, it is our honest endeavor to sell all goods at lowest living prices, for the reason that we court the attention and patronage of every cash customer in Charlevoix County, who wants to save money by making a dollar go as far as possible. Try us if you happen to be one of those who have not already done so. We are preparing a SURPRISE for YOU. Do not fail to come to our store and see us if possible, every time you come to Charlevoix. You are under no obligation to buy if you don't want to. We are always glad to answer inquiries regarding anything in our line. We want to help you and want your help and patronage to that end.

We call your attention to PAINTS &c.

ALSO PLEASE REMEMBER THAT THE JEWEL STOVES

ARE THE BEST, THE WORLD'S BEST!

Resp'y, STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

The Best Groceries
At The Lowest Prices

ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF

A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

New Furniture
AT S. M. SEE & SONS!

We have just received an entirely new stock of Furniture of every discription.

Dealing exclusively in Furniture we are confident we can make it an object to all wishing to buy to call and inspect our stock.

UNDERTAKING A Specialty.

J. MILO EATON'S

REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE,
AND LOAN OFFICE.

The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice

WANTED!

Everyone to know that we are here and doing Business, and will do just as we agree to by one and all. We keep

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS, FLOUR AND FEED, CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

Choice Butter and Fresh Eggs a Specialty. Call on us or order by Telephone.

WILL SEE & CO.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY

SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, Michigan.

Address all business correspondence to the firm

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year $1 50 | Six months $.75
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—Miss Celia Nichols, of this place, has been visiting friends at Central Lake.

—Will Lewis recently caught a 3½ pound California salmon in Boyne river.

—The Boyne Falls Gazette says there is some talk of an iron furnace being located in that place.

—Mr. Chapman, late of Bay Springs, held a Fourth of July reception at Petoskey, which was largely attended.

—J. M. Wells, of Petoskey, has a choice line of Indian bark and basket work, agates, corals, etc., four doors north of the Bridge Street House.

—Elk Rapids Progress: The Charlevoix SENTINEL did a fine piece of journalistic work on the loss of the Champlain.

—Trains from the south now arrive at Petoskey at 6 a. m., 5:02 p. m. and 7:45 p. m. From the north trains arrive at 8:50 a. m., 2:15 p. m. and 10:55 p. m.

—Surveyor Beardslee of the Charlevoix and Kalkaska road says that the road can be built for $25,000 less than the same number of miles on the G. R. & I. was built.

—The Smithson Lumber Company has received a first-class shingle machine which they moved to their place on Monday. It has a capacity of 25,000 per day.

—John Dodd the diver, has taken the contract of raising and delivering at Mackinaw the 180 tons of iron lately jettisoned by the propeller Duluth, at Fox Island.

—On Thursday the Petoskey club defeated the Cheboygan boys on the Petoskey grounds by a score of 14 to 7, and on Friday the score stood 9 to 10 in favor of Cheboygan.

Miss Emma Todd left Monday morning for a two weeks visit to relatives and friends at her home in Cheboygan. Miss Lottie Mason will clerk at Rosenthal's during her absence.

—The steamer Friant is crowded with resorters every morning. This popular steamer is a deserved favorite with the traveling public. No need of accident policies on any boat "Van" sails.

—There is a balance of $54 in the treasury of the Western Michigan press association. Just how so many editors came to have so much money about them, is referred to the police. —Lansing Journal.

—One of the survivors of the steamer Champlain relates that while swimming near the burning vessel he came across three Indians floating upon one of the boat's fenders and offered $300, spot cash, for a chance to ride with them, but they referred him to the captain's office to buy a ticket, and slowly paddled away.—Ex.

—Mr. Will Furguson of this place, has rented his popular boarding and provision house to G. T. Marshall, a former hotel man of East Jordan, who will take possession July 21st. Mr. Furguson has commenced the erection of a neat little cottage on his lot west of Buttars' residence on Mason street, and will go out of business for a while.

—"Lay'n' eout 'nother railroad?" "Surveying for one," was Mr. Beardslee's reply. "Goin' threw my barn?" "Don't see how we can avoid it." "Wall, now, mister, I calkerlate I've got something tew say 'bout that. I want you tew understan' thet I've got suthin' else tew dew besides run out tew open and shet them doors every time a train wants tew go threw.

—Hon. A. K. Dougherty has returned to his home in Elk Rapids from his seat at Lansing, and can no doubt be seen any day with his sleeves rolled up in the ship-yard. Whether shaping a vessel's timber or framing a law in the legislature, Archie is a success. His course at Lansing has been all that could be expected of any representative. He has been attentive to his duties, has kept his mouth shut except when he had something to say, and has always voted right.

—This is the kind of a deal Charlie Hampton gives us in the Independent: "Charlevoix people did not do themselves credit this year. The observance of Independence Day was not what would naturally be expected of such intelligent, enterprising people. There were no exercises to commemorate the day, no reading of the declaration, no singing of those grand old patriotic anthems, no speaking. The whole idea seemed to be to bring a lot of money into town. While it cannot be denied that this is nothing uncommon it is nevertheless unworthy a town like Charlevoix." He speaks very highly of the East Jordan celebration and pronounces it an unqualified success. Charlie delivered the oration there, you know. Why don't he say that's what's the matter, and done with it?

—"Damon and Pythias" at the Opera House this evening.

—Frank Wood's bath room is a popular place of resort now-a-days.

Perry Weed's ice cream soda, plays to large crowds these warm days.

—The Orangemen's celebration at Boyne City yesterday was a great success.

—C. A. Wood and daughter, of Kentland, Ind., are guests of the Wood boys.

—Capt. Carroll, of Horton's Bay, who has been seriously ill, is rapidly recovering.

—Mr. and Mrs. Rathbun and daughter, of Detroit, are domiciled at F. J. Meech's for the season

—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wolcott and two sons, of Batavia, Ills., are spending another season in Charlevoix.

—The fire boys, in their new uniforms, look nobby, and, what is better, they work as well as they look.

—Dr. W. M. Preston removes to Wichita, Kansas, this week or next. The genial doctor leaves a great many friends behind him who will be glad to see him return to Charlevoix every summer.

—Thompson Trimble, of Eveline, was arraigned before Justice Kane on Friday, on a charge of beating his wife. He was adjudged guilty and fined $50 and costs. He took an appeal to the Circuit Court.

—A party consisting of Wm. K. Holden, Fred Rawson, Walter McArthur and Oliver Cadwell of Chicago, with the Beauvais as guides, leave here for the Lake Superior trout fishing grounds Monday next.

—Will Badour has a gang of nine men constructing the Boyne Falls and Horton's Bay telephone line. He will do some work on the peninsula line and then return to Muskegon, where he is now located in the Michigan Bell Telephone Company's employ.

—Amos Fox, Geo. W. Miller and Lewis Miller have among them as guests, R. N. Faulkner, wife and son, of Chicago; Wm. Campfield, wife and daughter, of Port Huron; Miss Winnie Rice, of Cadillac; Mrs. Sparrow and two daughters, of Sand Beach. The only thing lacking to complete a family reunion of the six daughters of Jonathan Whitcomb, is the absence of Mrs. Judge Rice of Cadillac. Mr. Whitcomb, with his nearly eighty years is around among them as happy as a clam in high water, and with good promise of being spared to them yet many years.

—Kalamazoo Telegraph: The trim and handsome fast sailer, the "Little Teaser," which has been at West lake for some time, was put on the train yesterday to be taken to South Haven, where she will be fitted for a voyage to Charlevoix. This little craft out-ran all competitors in the races at Charlevoix two years ago, beating the Coral a mile and a half in the contest. She is now in good shape for calking, and with some new appointments will be ready to meet all competitors in her class. Dee Allen is her owner and he will take a party to Charlevoix, occupying about 10 days, stopping at points along the coast. She will take part in the races at South Haven.

—Petoskey Independent: D. E. Wilce, a traveling man who was at the Cushman House the other day, intended to come up on the Champlain from Traverse City with Capt. Lucas. While they were talking about it the landlord jokingly warned them not to take the boat that night or they would lose their lives. Capt. Lucas responded that his years of experience on the water had convinced him that he was not born to be drowned, but the conversation which ensued, recalling various disasters, made such an impression on the mind of Mr. Wilce that he finally decided not to take the boat, and to the trifling circumstance of the landlord's remark he undoubtedly owes his life.

—East Jordan and South Arm news from the Enterprise: Mr. Empey is building a new residence at South Arm.——P. L. Lanway is now on the road in the employ of the Benton Harbor Pickle and Vinegar Co. Success to you Phil.——The hoop factory is now running with a full force of men and at its fullest capacity.—The Meech mill is doing fine work, and is turning out lumber and shingles at their fullest capacity.——Although the rain of Monday was rather unpleasant for celebrations, yet it was worth thousands of dollars to the country. It is marvelous how forward the crops are. The farmers are all expecting abundant crops, and it looks like their expectations would be realized.

—Antrim county items from the Breeze: The grist mill at Mitchell will be open for custom grinding only on Mondays and Tuesdays for the present on account of necessary repairs which are to be made before the new grain comes in.——Dick Gidley has fitted his Eastport hotel nicely for the summer trade.——The tent meetings under the direction of Elders Horton and Lay were brought to a close last Sunday evening, after having been in progress over three weeks. As a result of the meetings, the number of members of the Seventh-day Adventist class at Bellaire is increased to twelve.——The Eastport band is spoken of in highly complimentary terms by those who heard their music at Spencer Creek on the Fourth. They have just received new caps and lights.

THE D. C. & E. R. R.

Adoption of the Surveyed Route—An Advance Movement All Along the Line.

The Board of Directors of the Detroit, Charlevoix & Escanaba R. R. Co. held a meeting yesterday in this village, and the report of Engineer Beardslee was made. The report was, in substance, what has heretofore been given in these columns. The route was found more favorable than expected, there being no heavy work, and the heaviest grade being 50 feet to the mile.

The route was adopted by the Board of Directors, and committees appointed as follows: To visit New York and confer with the T. & A. A. authorities, Messrs. R. M. Cherrie and A. D. Cruickshank; to visit Detroit and the M. C. R. R. folks, Messrs. Nicholls, Bleazby and Drake.

The sentiment of the Board was that matters should be pushed to an issue at once, and these committees are composed of gentlemen who have the brain and energy to do good work at railroad headquarters.

Mr. Beardslee says that if the necessary sinews of war are furnished him by Aug. 1st, the road will be ready for the rolling stock before the close of December of this year.

The opinion of the President and Directors is that the construction of the road will, at least, be begun before the close of 1887.

Charlevoix Improvement Association.

A meeting of the Charlevoix Improvement Association was held Monday evening, at which important measure were discussed, and action taken in matters effecting the growth of Charlevoix. L. D. Bartholomew was elected Financial Secretary to fill the vacancy caused by the removal of B. Sutfield.

—Bert Jarvis is in town.

—The yacht Coral was in the harbor yesterday.

—Will C. Graves is now a reporter on the Detroit Tribune.

—"Lost in London" at the Opera House to-morrow evening.

—Miss Jennie Rosenthal of Petoskey was in town on Monday.

—J. M. Harris, of Ironton, is found at Crouter's drug store this summer.

—Will A. Aldrich is expected home this week on a few weeks vacation.

—Will Dennis left Monday for Grand Rapids, being called to the sick bed of his mother.

—See Alick Rosenthal's new advertisement in this issue. It is worth your careful perusal.

—Al Gilger is erecting a house just outside of the corporation, north of town. A. M. Ross is doing the work.

—Miss Lulu Kanagy, accompanied by Mrs M. A. Johnson, returned yesterday from a three years Illinois visit.

—Kalkaska Leader: The Charlevoix SENTINEL gives the most full and complete details of the Champlain disaster.

—John Olney, formerly of Norwood, but for the past few years residing in the south, is quite sick at the home of his brother, Hiram Olney.

—The excursion of the State Pharmaceutical Association from Petoskey to Charlevoix occurs to-morrow. Five hundred druggists and ladies are expected.

—The Misses Rose and Addie Cody, and Mrs. G. B. Guyles and daughter, left on the Lawrence Thursday for their homes in Naperville, Ills., and Manitowoc, Wis.

—We have received a copy of R. T. Polk & Co.'s Michigan Gazetteer and Business Directory for 1887-8. It is the most replete with general information of any issue they have prepared.

—Charlevoix is to have a cigar factory. Mr. Frank Phillips of Port Huron, has leased O. L. Wheat's building on Bridge street, and will begin business next week—much of his stock and material being already here. He will employ about ten persons.

—Geo. O. Taylor, formerly of the Bridge Street House, has located in Indianapolis. He is the proprietor of the New Dennison, a hotel that, according to no less an authority than Hon. Geo. H. VanPelt, ranks favorably with any in New York, Boston, Chicago or Norwood.

—The yacht Norden, of Pentwater, arrived in Saturday with a jolly party of druggists from Detroit, Manistee, Pentwater, Kalamazoo and Ludington, en route to the annual meeting of the Pharmaceutical Association now in session at Petoskey.

—Capt. Bontecou, editor of the Petoskey Record, talks base ball parlance as if he had been an expert batter in his day. We suggest that he be invited to umpire the next game at Charlevoix. We have an idea that he knows just about as much about base ball as Horace Greeley did about farming. We should like to see the Captain's handsome face in a sling.

—The Petoskey Dramatic club commence a two nights engagement at the Opera House this evening. To-night they will appear in "Damon and Pythias," and to-morrow evening in "Lost in London." The company has recently been strengthened by the addition of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tons, Jr., who visited Charlevoix this spring as members of the Keane combination. They will give an entertainment worthy of your presence.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

VOICES OF THE NIGHT.

BY M. S. KELLER.

With subtle thrills of ecstasy
I dream of past delight—
The while my eldest ravishes
The quietness of night:
"Pa, Jimmy's got the sheet around
My neck, an' I can't breathe."
'Tis but the culmination of
The martial bequeathe.

And then again in fancy far
My sleepy senses steal—
Until my dreams are ruptured by
My second son's appeal:
"Pa, Jack has wipped the piller an'
De fedders has fell out."
The last straw on the camel's back
Will break the thing no doubt.

The angel of the fairy land
Invites me to her realm—
And then my little daughter puts
Her hand upon the helm;
"Oh! I is awful hungwy, an'
I wants a piece o' cake,"
Then all the mysteries of dream
Departure quickly take.

Now silence broods, and sweetness comes
Inviting me to rest—
Until the baby lifts his head
From out his downy nest;
His words are inarticulate,
His wa sighs ...
And I arise to find myself
Impaled upon a tack.
—Carl Pretzel's Weekly.

PERSECUTION OF JEWS.

BY LUIS JACKSON.

"I would stay in the army if there were prospects of promotion."

"Promotion! Hog, we don't promote Jews in the Russian army. You deserve six weeks' arrest for presuming to suggest such a thing. Thank Heaven, you are honorably discharged. Salute and get out."

And so private Moses Sholem, after being decorated for bravery at Plevna, retired to his workbench at Elizabetgrad. Here, as licensed watchmaker, he managed to scrape together a few roubles, and at the same time fall in love with the pretty Rebecca Simcho, daughter of the banker of the town.

As Col. Sholem, old Simcho wou'd have readily consented; as journeyman watchmaker Sholem stood no chance, for old Simcho had worked his way up from the rag and bone business, and had notions of ...

... slowly asserted the arm of the ... through the bounding of ... officials who had sinister mot...

Thousands were rendered ... houses were ransacked and bu... were outraged, pandemonium ... preme until intelligent ... ery of humanity that awoke ... authorities to a vigorous ... military force.

Simcho, his wife, and daugh... the town with their lives, h... borders of Russia, which a s... the corrupt officials enabled ...

Russia is a country where ... exit requires a pass.

Thence they fled to Brod... town of Austria.

Sholem, who had been str... to his work bench by the rio... leased in the night by a Chris... to find that the Jews had ... place. A stealthy yet prol... gave no clue to the Simchos; ... ing back only made him four ...

He learned that many Jew... Brody; thence he also betook ...

When he arrived there ... fugitives from all parts of So... were flocking into the town. ... seeking husbands from wh... been separated in the disord... were crying for their children ... fearful confusion prevailed. ... authorities promptly opened ... took measures for relief.

After a three-days' depre... Sholem discovered Rebecca an... There was joy in the camp of... weeks the fugitives were s... rations of food until a gene... contributed to chiefly by th... world, enabled a regular ... assist the refugees to em... Simchos and Sholem contr... their little all toward paymen... money. Fourteen of Simch... had also been found in Brody, ... had fled. The whole ... with a convoy of about th... persons for America. Convoy ... was dispatched as soon as ... was able to select, adjudicat... the refugees to the auxiliary ... Liverpool. Sholem and the ... nections arrived in Liverpo... were destinated to Kansas. ... was ready to embark in the st... owing to the mistake of one ... companies, the convoy's lugg... them at Brody, was found t... shipped to London. By nut... on the part of the Liverpool ... was brought on by special tra... at 8 o'clock in the morning a... on board at eight. For once ... redtape Custom House offici... the baggage sealed in a bond... wait until the arrival of his ...

[illegible]

ARMY ANECDOTES.

Bold Boys of Both Belligerents Tell of Battles, Bullets, Bayonets, and Boiled Beans.

Soldiers and Sailors' Stirring Stories of Solid Shot and Screaming Shells.

The Veteran's Fancies.

BY J. F. F.

His thoughts returning seek afar
The stirring scenes of vanished war;
Its splendors and its horrors roll
Again upon his wakened soul.
He sees, at Fancy's quick command,
The times when War was in the land.

He hears again the reveille
Break forth in morning clamorously;
He hears the bugle's warning sound
When day hath gone its journey round,
While to his ears the long-roll comes
With sudden uproar of the drums.

He sleeps—and still in restless dream
The sabers clang, the bayonets gleam,
The deep-blue column hastens by,
The roar of combat echoes high,
And, pent within the walls of sleep,
The fires of battle blaze and leap!

Foraging for Fodder.

While chasing Hood after the battle of Nashville we camped one day in the timber of Northern Alabama. We were short of rations, and there was a detail of two men from each company to go out foraging. It fell to my lot and Wm. M. Cragin, of my company, the Thirty-first Illinois, to go. About nine o'clock a. m. we rigged up our mule (old Honest John), who carried our cooking outfit, and started westward from camp. I had a Spencer rifle and plenty of ammunition, but my comrade took no arms. The first humble cabin we came to was besieged by dozens of Yanks inside, outside and underneath. Those under the house were trying to capture the last remaining goose. There being no show for us, we went on to the next and found matters just as bad. On we went, determined ...

[illegible]

"The most promising military career in our army was blighted when Porter fell under a cloud. There is no doubt of the fact that he had a contempt for Pope as a man and as a commander. He chafed under the consciousness that he was under the command of an incompetent and spiteful officer. I don't think this influenced his action in the historic case. If there was a man in either army who loved to fight it was Porter, but he was no fool, and the conduct for which he was court-martialed was the exercise of his military sense. He had an appreciation of the situation of which Pope was absolutely incapable, and he had no desire to sacrifice the Fifth Army Corps in a useless dash upon Jackson, with Longstreet ready to swoop down and insure the capture of his entire command."

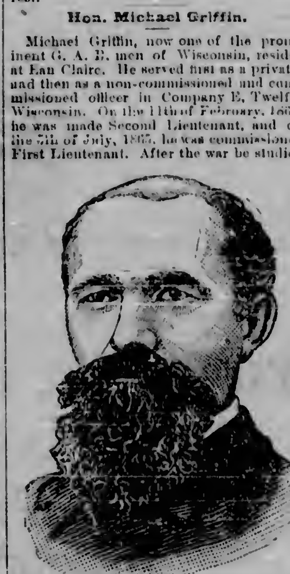
Said the same veteran: "The best corps commander, I believe, in either army, was Joe Hooker. I never saw a man who could handle a corps so well and get so much fighting out of it. But that was the limit of Hooker's capacity as a general. Several times he had command of an army, and each time he adopted the tactics which made him a matchless corps commander. He did not have a power of generalization sufficient to overcome his natural pugnacity. If one part of his line was getting the worst of a fight he could not leave it, even to secure a great advantage elsewhere.

"The two men," continued the old soldier, "who have received less credit for their work in conquering the Confederacy, compared to the value of their services, are Sherman and Meade. Sherman's 'march to the sea' was undertaken against the protest of Grant and other high military authorities. Stanton hated Sherman because Sherman would not truckle to him.

"As to Meade, the injustice is still more striking. Had Lee won the battle of Gettysburg the Confederacy would have been invincible. Lee has been severely censured by military critics for pushing into this fight. It was a Napoleonic movement worthy of the great commander who made it. Lee realized that the Confederacy with its limited resources must triumph soon if it triumphed at all. He failed, but failed through no fault of his own. Meade laid plans for his battle superbly, and calculated the result from the start. Hancock ...

[illegible]

Hon. Michael Griffin.



[illegible]

said, kindly. "I wish I could do something for you, Yank—and perhaps I can if you will tell me what to do."

He listened eagerly as the soldier told him of his being wounded, of his recovering consciousness, and toiling wearily and painfully on to reach the Union army.

"But it is no use," he said sadly. "I shall never see my home again. What will become of my darling wife and little one?"

A very suspicious-looking moisture dimmed the boy's dark eyes, but he dashed it quickly away.

"Oh, keep up courage," he said, roughly. "You Yanks are a set of dreadful cowards—always ready to give up if anything happens. But, while I hate your cause, I'm awful sorry for that pretty wife and baby girl, so I'll try and help you. Now, see if you can walk. Oh, yes. Now, crawl along till you see a large, gray house and you hide in the shed where I put my horse. After dark, I'll come out and see what I can do. Don't let any one else see you, now."

Jumping on his horse, the boy galloped away, while the tired soldier walked along as well as he could till he came in sight of the house. Then he crept along in the shadows till he reached the shed, and entering, threw himself upon the hay, which smelled sweet and nice.

Weary and faint, he fell asleep, and slept a long time. He was wakened by the opening of the door, and, lifting his head, he saw his young friend.

"I've come," he announced. Climbing upon the hay and unfolding a towel, he displayed two slices of bread and meat. "Now, eat that, and then I've got Prince and Paul saddled out here, and if you can ride I'll get you safely to your friends. I know where the regiment is camped. It's two miles from here, and it's so dark no one can see us. Be quick, now."

As soon as the man had eaten, they mounted the two black animals, and, covered with a long cloak, which the boy had brought for the wounded man, they rode silently on. The night was dark and they met no one. Presently, after a half-hour's ride, they were halted by a Union sentry, and, explaining their errand, were allowed to pass and enter the camp.

The officers were called from their sleep ...

[illegible]

PITH AND POINT.

A DRIVING club—the ball-player's bat.

A PEN picture—an engraving of a piggery.

KEEP a cool head and avoid heated argument.

AN early spring—a sudden leap from bed before daylight.

WHY is a recruiting sergeant like the wind? Because he blows where he listeth.

WHEN a man sees double is it evidence that his glasses are too strong for him?

"LOVE laughs at locksmiths," and yet there isn't anything very funny about a locksmith.

WHAT is that which lives in winter, dies in summer, and grows with its roots upwards? An icicle.

GEN. ANDREW JACKSON was a man of undaunted courage. He married one woman twice.—C. F. Walls, in Newman Independent.

MEN will spend a dollar at the bar while declaiming against the outrage of charging 25 cents admission to a temperance lecture.—Texas Siftings.

"IT is but a step from the sublime to the ridiculous; and the Sunday-night young man is apt to take it when her father comes in impetuously at 11:30 o'clock.—Journal of Education.

DR. LYMAN BEECHER once replied to an inquiry of Dr. Hawes. "How are you getting on?" "First-rate! first-rate! first-rate! ever since I stopped trying to run this world."—Living Church.

WE bend the knee, but not the elbow," enthusiastically exclaimed an orator at a temperance meeting. "That's so," said an unreclaimed sinner on a back seat. "It's the only way you can get your mouth to the bung-hole."

"YES," said the lady lecturer, "women ...

[illegible]

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

BY BEN: PERLEY POORE.

Prof. Morse having by many experiments proved that information could be transmitted between distant points by means of electricity, went to Washington, and in February of 1838 exhibited his machine to the President, his Cabinet and a large assembly of the members of both Houses. The subject was soon after brought before Congress, and an appropriation asked for to construct a telegraph line between Washington and Baltimore. Thirty thousand dollars, it was said, would be sufficient for the purpose, and as the amount was so small it was supposed it would be granted at once; but like many other great measures of public utility, it was nearly killed by delay. Large bodies, it was said, move slowly, and never was the axiom more forcibly illustrated than in this case. The Committee on Commerce, to which the subject had been referred, reported promptly and favorably, recommending that an appropriation of $30,000, the required amount, be granted for the construction of the proposed line. Week after week passed without any notice being taken of the report, month succeeded month, and still Congress took no action on it. Prof. Morse, however, was not easily discouraged. He worked with untiring energy in his studio at the University, for the means to support himself in Washington during the sessions of Congress, and in the midst of the greatest difficulties, the false promises of politicians, the indifference of pretended friends and the delays and vexations of tedious legislation, labored with the most determined perseverance to secure the passage of the bill reported by the committee.

The first year passed, the second was near its close, and still there appeared to be no prospect that it would be acted ...

[illegible]

Woodward took the piano, and the first hymn sung was "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," followed by "Majestic Sweetness Sits Enthroned," "Jesus, Let Thy Pitying Eye," "Pass Me not, O Gentle Saviour," "My Days Are Gliding Swiftly By," "Nearer My God to Thee," "Tell Me the Old, Old Story." The singing of such hymns filled up the hour, closing with Bless be the tie that binds

Our hearts in Christian love.

A season of genial conversation, and the company broke up. No cant, no assumed solemnity, marred the hour. It was a time of Christian cheerfulness.

Beautiful Irish Landscapes.

Some two and a half miles from Letterfrack is a picturesque bridge crossing the river Danross, which flows below through bending branches of trees, says an Irish correspondent of the Providence Journal. Here the country opens out somewhat, and from the bridge is caught the first view of the Pass of Kylemore, so surprisingly beautiful that its beauty must be seen and felt—it cannot be described. A valley, wide and level, and flooded with sunshine, to the left a tall mountain rides sheer out of a calm lake at its base; the sides of this mountain are thickly wooded half way up, the other half bare and glistening with a hundred streamlets that flow from their source above. Standing out of the road, contrasting sharply with the dark-green of the pines, a castle built of white stone; and a little further down the banks of the lake rises the spire of a beautiful memorial chapel, built by the owner of the place in memory of his wife. On the right of the road, in a crescent-shaped sweep, the Diamond mountain and others of the Twelve Pins lift their heads, their bare, craggy sides beautified by an ethereal blue mist, like a soft veil thrown over, yet in no way hiding them. And so does the valley ...

[illegible]

CAPTURED BY INDEPENDENTS.

An Incident of Kentucky Pioneer Life—Boone and His Friends in Pursuit.

[John Mason Brown, in Harper's Magazine.]

The dangers which Boone and his companions encountered in the fields came to the very doors of their cabins, and constantly menaced their families. Indians lurked singly or in parties to seize a prisoner or take a scalp whenever an incautious white should give the opportunity. Frequent combats (and each combat ended, as a rule, in the death of one or both of those engaged) had habituated the men to danger. It was later that they felt the danger of their wives and children.

Late on a Sunday afternoon in July, 1776, three young girls ventured from the inclosure of Boonesborough to amuse themselves with a canoe upon the river that flowed by the fort. Insensibly they drifted with the lazy current, and before they were aware of their danger were seized by five warriors. Their resistance was useless, though they wielded the paddles with desperation. The canoe was drawn ashore, and they were hurried off in rapid retreat toward the Shawnee towns in Ohio. Their screams were heard at the fort, and the cause well guessed. Two of the girls were Betsy and Frances, daughters of Col. Richard Callaway, the other was Jemima, daughter of Boone. The fathers were absent, but soon returned to hear the evil news and arrange the pursuit. Callaway assembled a mounted party, and was away through the woods to head off the Indians, if possible, before they might reach and cross the Ohio, or before the fatigue of their rapid march should so overcome the poor girls as to cause their captors to tomahawk them, and so disencumber their flight. Boone started directly on the trail through the thickets and canebrakes. His rule was never to ride if he could possibly ...

[illegible]

MEN WITH SUPPLE LIMBS.

How Contortionists Acquire the Agility with Which They Surprise Audiences.

"There is little to tell you about contortionists," said an ex-member of that profession who was asked to furnish a chapter of his experience as a performer. "A good contortionist is paid about $25 a week; it takes him the greater part of his life to acquire his skill, then when he has all the points in the business down fine, a few years years slip by and he is unable to work. He becomes stiffened up, his joints won't work freely, and the performer is retired because he's worn out."

"Is the work of a contortionist so exhausting?"

"Oh, no. The work is easy enough, but it's the long preliminary training that kills. You see, no one takes up the business of a performer as a contortionist. First he starts in as a tumbler in the ring. The younger he is the better, for when the muscles are tender training is easy. Now, nine-tenths of all the contortionists in the country to-day commenced as mere lads. They take part in 'brother acts'—the big fellow, you know, gets a man smaller than himself, holds him in the air from the top of the big fellow's shoulders. Then, in connection with that kind of training the boy is taught to throw hand-springs, somersaults, and pretty soon he becomes a good tumbler.

"After awhile he gets too heavy to be held up on the shoulders of another, so he has to do the holding up himself and another boy is obtained, and the first youngster drifts into the second rank of performers. It may be that his strength develops under the exercise to which he has been subjected so that in a few years he is strong enough to hold up the other two, and in that case he is a leading performer. But it is a hard life. Every day in the season ...

[illegible]

Excitement.

Moxie bids fair to create as extended an excitement through the country as the discovery of the telephone. Its extreme harmless simplicity and extraordinary power over the liquor habit, and nervous exhaustion in weakly women, are enough to make anything so. It seems to cover a field medicine, tonics, and stimulants cannot reach, while it readily removes from their abuses at once, seeming to act like a food, as it creates no reaction, nor loses its effect. Its sale is marvelous. Druggists all keep it.

Bowser's Benevolence.

When we began housekeeping and got our first hired girl Mr. Bowser called me into the library, shut the door and dropped his voice down to the confidential pitch and said:

"Mrs. Bowser, let's start out right. Let's respect the feelings of that poor girl in the kitchen."

"Certainly."

"She's just as good as we are, and we mustn't put on any airs over her. She shall eat at the table with us, and if she has any time from her work you might teach her how to sing and play the piano."

"I can't quite agree with you, Mr. Bowser."

"Oh, you can't! Woman's moral enemy is woman. Well, I'm going out and have a little talk with Eliza and tell her what I'm willing to do."

I listened at the kitchen door. Mr. Bowser is no man to beat about the bush. He went right at the business in hand by saying:

"Eliza, nobility does not consist in riches."

She slid away from him toward the sink.

"You are not to blame for being in your present position. How would you like to take singing lessons?"

She looked at him with an open mouth.

"And learn to play the piano?"

She opened her mouth still wider.

"And, perhaps, learn how to sketch and paint?"

[illegible]

Professional Etiquette

Prevents some doctors from advertising their skill, but we are bound by no such conventional rules, and think that if we make a discovery that is of benefit to our fellows we ought to spread the fact to the whole land. Therefore we cause to be published throughout the land the fact that Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is the best known remedy for consumption (scrofula of the lungs) and kindred diseases. Send 10 cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's complete treatise on consumption, with unsurpassed means of self-treatment. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main street, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE dude's collar is said to be getting lower. Is this one of the effects of the decline in stocks?

Woman and Her Diseases

Is the title of a large illustrated treatise, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., sent to any address for 10 cents in stamps. It teaches successful self-treatment.

IF you want to make a friend, praise a dog in its owner's presence.

BEST, easiest to use, and cheapest. Piso's Remedy for Catarrh. By druggists. 50c.

ONE pair of boots can be saved every year by using Lyon's Patent Metallic Heel Stiffeners.

One Fact

Is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. If you need a good blood purifier, tonic, or appetizer, try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"My daughter received much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla as an excellent tonic after a protracted attack of bronchial pneumonia." Rev. F. H. Adams, New Hartford, Conn.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar.

$3 PANTS — $3 SHOES. HANDSOME, STYLISH PANTS ... OUR FULL SEAMLESS SHOES ... THE HUNTER CINCINNATI, O. MF'G CO.

PENSIONS ... FITZGERALD & POWELL, Indianapolis, Ind.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Dr. J. Stephens, Lebanon, Ohio.

$5 ... FEATHERBONE COMPANY ...

ADVERTISERS ... LORD & THOMAS.

PEN & PENCIL STAMP WITH YOUR NAME IN RUBBER 40cts. ... Address NORTHWESTERN STAMP WORKS, MILWAUKEE, WIS. or CHICAGO, ILL.

TANSILL'S PUNCH 5¢ ... Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

PATENTS ... PONIES. ...

NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC Boston, Mass. THE LARGEST and BEST EQUIPPED in the WORLD ...

HARTER'S IRON TONIC ... LADIES ... THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

WIZARD OIL FOR PAIN Cures Neuralgia, Toothache, Headache, Catarrh, Croup, Sore Throat, RHEUMATISM, Lame Back, Stiff Joints, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Wounds, Old Sores and All Aches and Pains. ... It Cures You. That's the Idea! ... Address WIZARD OIL COMPANY CHICAGO.

The OLDEST MEDICINE in the WORLD is probably Dr. Isaac Thompson's Celebrated Eye Water ... John L. Thompson, Sons & Co., TROY, N. Y.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES ... ASTHMA.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH PENNYROYAL PILLS The Original and Only Genuine. ...

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest. CATARRH Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

C. N. U. No. 28—87

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

This represents a healthy life. — Just such a life as they enjoy Who use the Smith's Bile Beans.

Smith's BILE BEANS purify the blood, by acting directly and promptly on the Liver, Skin and Kidneys. ... Price, 25 cents per bottle, mailed to any address, postpaid. DOSE ONE BEAN. Sold by druggists. J. F. SMITH & CO., PROPRIETORS, ST. LOUIS, MO.

THE BEST OLD-STYLE GORDON JOB PRINTING PRESS IN THE MARKET.

Strong, perfect in finish, made of the best material, light-running, and simple to operate. ... Eighth Medium, 7x11 ... $135.00 | Quarto Medium, 10x15 ... $245.00. The above are CASH Prices for these Presses delivered on board the cars in Chicago. FOR SALE by the CHICAGO NEWSPAPER UNION, 271 & 273 Franklin Street, Chicago, Ill., General Dealers in Printers' Supplies.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times." Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

CHARLEVOIX, JULY 13, 1887.

The Mormons of Utah are preparing to hold a constitutional convention and seek admission to the Union as a state before a change of administration next year.

The Sultan of Turkey is in the tightest corner to-day he has been caught in since the last war with Russia. England, France and Russia are all bulldozing him at once.

Hon. Lot M. Morrill, ex-Governor and ex-United States Senator of Maine, died at his home at Augusta on July 4. He was 84 years of age, and the immediate predecessor of James G. Blaine in the Senate.

Governor Lee, of Virginia, says: "The South is back in the Union." The Governor should correct the statement. The South was never out, —it was only a lot of her disloyal citizens who made a miscarriage in that direction.

Governor Hill's vetoes of temperance bills made fifty votes to every one made by the President in vetoing pension bills. His flag maneuver was evidently fully intended as a coup d'etat that would take all the wind from the sails of the New York Governor.

There is considerable apprehension at the Navy Department for the safety of the school ship St. Mary's, with her large crew of apprentices. The St. Mary's is a poor old tub with hardly life enough to keep out of her own way. She left New York several weeks ago for Fayal, in the Azores. Nothing has been heard from the vessel since.

The newspapers of the state, which fairly voice popular sentiment in the matter, generally condemn the failure of the Legislature to take action for the reduction of railroad fares. The members who blocked reduction and who failed to aid in perfecting a just measure which would give the people some relief will find if they ever again appeal for an election, that their record will be a heavy load to carry.

The newspapers over in the new big city at the foot of Lake Huron are already congratulating the citizens there upon the prospect that the effect of the county-option law in Michigan will be to "concentrate the trade in the large cities, and the prohibition counties in Northern Michigan will purchase their supplies in the Saginaws. The jug trade will be inaugurated, and the liquor men will reap a harvest."

A plan for a memorial building at the National Capital for the preservation of war records and trophies is outlined in Washington dispatches. Discussion of the subject has been stirred up by the rebel-flag episode, and some Grand Army men are confident that that organization will take it up earnestly and put the idea into practical shape. The plan has features that commend it to favorable consideration.

Cablegrams from over the water state that Mr. Blaine is a bigger social lion than Buffalo Bill, and that is saying a good deal. He is being received with marked favor by all parties and classes, and invitations continue to pour in upon him at such a rate that he is literally bewildered. On Saturday of last week he missed the Lord Mayor's banquet, to which he had been invited, owing to his having been detained until too late by a long and earnest conversation with Mr. Gladstone at the latter's suburban residence outside of London. Mr. Gladstone is reported to be perfectly enthusiastic on the subject of the American statesman and describes him as one of the most marked individualities he has ever met.

The Queen's reminiscences of her coronation and her earliest association with Ministers of the crown must be tinged with melancholy. Thus moralizes the New York Tribune. How many cabinets have been formed since the eventful night when she was aroused from girlhood's slumbers and officially informed by the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Prime Minister that she was sovereign by the grace of God! The statesmen of that day —Lord Melbourne, the Duke of Wellington, Lord Brougham, Lord Lyndhurst, Sir Robert Peel, Lord John Russell, Lord Palmerston—have long ago been followed to the grave. Mr. Disraeli entered the first Parliament of her reign, and he too has gone before her, the most highly favored of all her Prime Ministers. Mr. Gladstone had been in Parliament for several years when she made her first address from the throne, and he is almost the only survivor of the brilliant company of statesmen who shaped the history and directed the politics of the earlier stages of the Victorian era.

Northern Michigan News.

L. Davoll of Boyne Falls, has refused an offer of $20,000 from a Cincinnati firm for his patent rotary engine.

East Jordan has greatly improved the appearance of her principal street by grading and putting in eight foot sidewalks.

The Torch Lake boys have organized a base ball club which bids fair to eclipse even the famed nine of the City of the Straits.

J. C. Bontecou, editor of the Petoskey Record, has been re-appointed deputy oil inspector for this district by H. D. Platt, the new State Oil Inspector.

Boyne Falls Gazette: A young man named Alexander, belonging to Wilson, while driving from Boyne Falls on Sunday week, saw a bear in the road near Burch's farm. Bruin jogged along the road in front of the team for some distance and then turned off into the woods.

L. E. Slussar, editor of the Mancelona Herald, C. L. Bailey attorney, Drs. Beaver and Rockwell, all of Mancelona, will take a European tour next spring, doing England and France on bicycles. An invitation has been extended to some Grand Rapids friends to accompany them.

Petoskey consumes more of the non-intoxicating summer drinks than any town of its size in Michigan. Lemonade, the excellent English root beer of Hazleton & Lucas, the birch beer, ginger ale, and fruit sherbets of Hammond, and soda water with a dash of acid phosphates [?] in it, are the favorite drinks; while in proportion to the population but a small amount of lager beer is consumed.—Record. Give that sort of talk to the marines.

Bellaire Breeze: Alexander Henry, re-arrested on a charge of manslaughter, was examined last Thursday and Friday before Justices Davis and Dewey at Mancelona. N. C. Weter and E. S. Pratt conducted the prosecution, and Roswell Leavitt and H. B. Hudson the defence. Henry was bound over for trial at the next term of the Circuit Court, bail being fixed at $1,000, which was secured, Messrs. Morea, Rogers, and Rodenbaugh becoming his bondsmen.

Teachers' institutes will be held in Northern Michigan this season as follows: Antrim county, at Bellaire, August 1st, H. M. Enos, conductor, C. S. Guile, local committee. Benzie county, at Benzonia, August 8. C. L. Bemis, conductor, T. B. Pettitt, local committee. Leelanau county, at Leland, August 15th, C. L. Bemis conductor, R. C. Enos, local committee. Emmet county, at Harbor Springs, Aug. 22, H. M. Slauson, conductor, C. F. Newkirk, local committee. Grand Traverse county, at Traverse City, Aug. 29, S. W. Baker conductor, C. T. Grawn, local committee.

Kalkaska Leader: There has been considerable figuring of late between the G. R. & I. R. R. Co., and the Iron Co. at Elk Rapids, regarding the proposed branch to that place. The railroad company is trying to drive a close bargain in the matter, and squeeze all they can out of the proposed line. In this they will probably fail, however, for if the truth were known the G. R. & I. are more than anxious to build the line, for they can readily see that some other line, perhaps and probably the M. C. R. R., will eventually gather in the D. C. & E., and see the advantage of a branch to Elk Rapids, and the first named road is sharp enough to consult its own best interests without being hired to do so.

The banquet given to the stockholders of the D. C. & E. R. R. and the Business Men's Association of Bellaire and Charlevoix, by the B. M. A. of Kalkaska, on the evening of the 28th, was attended by a large number of invited guests, and was a most enjoyable affair, says the Leader. The banquet was gotten up for the purpose of celebrating the completion of the survey of the above named road to Kalkaska, and the party of engineers and assistants who have staked the line from Charlevoix to this place, we honored guests at the banquet. The programme was quite lengthy and elaborate, and the committee of arrangements worked hard to make the affair a grand success, and succeeded admirably.

Elk Rapids Progress: House bill 763, giving five sections of state swamp land for the improvement of Intermediate river passed both houses and has been signed by the Governor. ——The Journal, of Traverse City, is premature in saying that indications were against the G. R. & I. coming here this year. The appearances are just as they were when the subject was first mentioned. No one knows very much about it only the G. R. & I. wants all sorts of impossible things.——The act granting certain privileges to Elk Rapids which we print this week is probably the strongest bill ever granted to a township in the state. It is equivalent to incorporation without the unnecessary machinery of trustees, president, etc.

Richard Hurlbut, one of the early settlers of Leelanaw county, and a prominent and influential farmer, died at Chicago a few days ago, from the effects of injuries received last winter while skidding logs. His leg was broken in two places and the fracture refused to heal. His remains were brought home for interment.

Boyne Falls Gazette: On Wednesday last a cow belonging to John Hass, of Clarion, was on the track near the depot at that place when the passenger train ran through at full speed. The cow-catcher lifted the animal higher than the smokestack and it fell on the back step of the end car, fearfully mangled but not dead.

Kalkaska Leader: Mr. David Ward has the advantage of most of us. When he wants a railroad, and wants it real bad, he goes to work and builds it without consulting anybody. The road he is building between Alba and the Michigan Central runs, we are told, for the most part of the way, through his own lands.

Kalkaska Leader: The Kalkaska ball club went down to Big Rapids by special invitation, July 4th, to play the club of that town. The game was a very pretty one, and the score stood 11 to 12 in favor of Kalkaska. Our boys whitewashed their opponents five times, and were themselves calcimined three times. Kalkaska seems to be playing ball considerable this season.

East Jordan Enterprise: Frank Myers, of Boyne Falls, is known to be one of the heaviest men in Michigan, but he found more than his equal here one day last week. He was seen coming up the street with another giant, inquiring where they could get weighed, each claiming to be the heavier. Frank tipped the beam at 322½ and the stranger at 326. The stranger was Mr. A. Smith, of Detroit, state agent of the Equitable Accident Association, of Binghamton, N. Y.

Grand Traverse Herald: The Herald this week claims the biggest strawberry grown in Michigan this year. I. Huff had a berry raised on the peninsula, that measured 12¼ inches in circumference. We challenge Michigan to beat it. S. Boughey, of Kalkaska, Leelanaw county, brings us a berry measuring a [illegible] 9½ inches in circumference. And this is followed up by a box from E. J. East, Blair township, Grand Traverse county, the smallest berry 7 inches, and the largest 8½ inches in circumference.

An Alba special says of that promising little town: "Alba is situated in Antrim county on the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad, 30 miles south of Petoskey, in the center of the best tract of hardwood farming land north of Reed City. Hitherto very little has been known to the outside world of the town and its natural advantages. About two years ago David Ward, of Detroit, purchased several thousand acres of land in the vicinity, and also a large amount of village property. A few weeks ago Mr. Ward announced his intention of building a standard gauge railroad from Frederick, on the Michigan Central, to Alba, a distance of about 25 miles. He has already graded several miles, and the road is being rapidly pushed toward completion. The final western terminus is to be at East Jordan, or some other point at deep water navigation. The new railroad will be of great importance to Alba, as it shortens the distance to Detroit and the east, and will eventually give an outlet to Lake Michigan, which is about 40 miles distant.

Cheboygan Tribune: Giles Daubeney, an English gentleman, well educated, and a member of a well-to-do English family, committed suicide last Thursday night by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. He came to Cheboygan several weeks since in search of employment, and had been stopping at the Grand Central. He was an expert accountant, and for a series of years had charge of Dexter & Noble's books at Elk Rapids, and had a very flattering recommendation from that well-known firm. He had been at Cheboygan before, and at one time was time-keeper for Merritt Chandler when the latter was so extensively engaged in state road building. Failing to secure the needed employment, Mr. Daubney became very despondent, and rather than apply to his folks for assistance he ended his life with his own hand. W. C. Moore, S. H. Taylor and others, had endeavored to cheer him up and encourage him. Messrs. Moore and Taylor took the body in charge and saw that it had Christian burial, the funeral taking place Sunday afternoon, Rev. J. M. Curtis, Rector of St. James Episcopal church, conducting the services. Mr. Taylor has taken charge of the personal effects of the deceased, consisting of an excellent wardrobe and some jewelry. Messrs. Taylor and Moore cabled the relatives, and received two or three replies from them. Coroner Farmer held an inquest, and the verdict of the jury was death by suicide.

Fresh Butter at lowest price, at Jefferies' Bakery.

A large stock of oranges and lemons at wholesale at the Pagoda.

To Rent. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

Cull shingles and lumber for sale cheap, or will exchange for produce. Apply at Burns & Scroggie's livery barn.

The ladies are cordially invited to call and examine the large display of millinery including pattern hats and bonnets together with novelties in ribbons, gauzes, flowers, etc. As it is to be a season of novelties it will pay you to call now and often, upon Mrs. Litney & Carr.

TIME CARDS OF STEAMERS

Bank of Charlevoix,

W. F. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security

This Bank Invites

This Bank Will

Parties Seeking

Investment Notes,

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S LIVERY STABLE

CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

Farming Lands

500,000 ACRES of Splendid MICHIGAN LANDS For sale by The G. R. & I. R. R. 50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.

By Water and Rail

Not a Wilderness by any Means.

W. H. HUGHART, Land Commissioner, GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.

TITLE PERFECT.

CROSS & SONS, Buy and Sell all kinds of Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc. Charlevoix, Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY, Photographer, In Bradbeer's Gallery. Photographs of all sizes taken. Old Pictures copied and enlarged. CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

New JEWELRY AND SILVER WARE. C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick, ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR, —ON— Charlevoix Summer Resorts. Carpenters and Painters. J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

Fox & Miller

Offer a Mammoth Stock OF BOOTS, SHOES and other FOOT WEAR, —AT— LOWER PRICES Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a FIRST-CLASS SHOEMAKER, And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY. Fox & Miller.

CHARLEVOIX Savings Bank.

W. A. REYNARD, Vegetables and Fruits OF ALL KINDS. Tobaccos and Cigars.

The Kalamazoo "DAILY TELEGRAPH."

RIFENBURG MILLING CO. Charlevoix, Mich. 3 EXTRA GRADES OF FLOUR Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

M. LITNEY. JOS. STEIMEL. Litney & Steimel LIVERY, And Feed Barn Charlevoix, Mich.

It Pays to Buy the BEST BOATS! LEAST MONEY! LEAVE ORDERS J. BEAUVAIS.

BOOTS & SHOES. Ladies Look Out. D. SHERWOOD & CO.

A. J. McLEOD, FRESH MEATS, SALT PORK, SMOKED & SALTED HAMS, Dried and Smoked BACON, DRIED BEEF, Bologna, Head Cheese, Sausage. Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS. A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S MARKET. All Kinds Of MEATS At Lowest Prices. JOHN McCABE.

Washburn & Ackert, FOUNDRYMEN, MACHINISTS, Charlevoix Plow.

Take The Sentinel.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

MISSING LINKS.

Fifteen hundred dollars an inch for water has been refused at Sierra Madre, in Los Angeles county, Cal.

Some of the newspapers are advocating uniform marriage and divorce laws for all the states of the union.

Three hundred million dollars is a low estimate of the direct cost to the people of this country of fires that occur in a year.

The defendant in a lawsuit at Eureka, Cal., had to pay $150 for the pleasure of calling the plaintiff's lawyer a liar in open court.

There are seventy-five banking institutions in New York city whose condition is so encouraging that only two are below par.

A Pittsburg, Pa., doctor says that the reason no one ever sees a professional tramp with a hard cold is because they wash their feet.

Editor Childs declares that two of the best writers on the Philadelphia Ledger are women. There is room for a wide difference of opinion as to the value of the compliment.

The public schools of this country now employ over three hundred thousand teachers, and pay them $62,000,000, a not very flattering annual average of a little more than $200 each.

In the asylum at Milledgeville, Ga., there is a man who spends all his waking hours repeating, "John's got a will; he couldn't be my son 'thout 'avin' a will; but my will's right an' his will's wrong."

A small table, round or square can be made into a beautiful ornament by covering the top with velvet, plush or satin, and tacking on ribbons of various colors with gilt crescents or stars at the ends.

There are 28,500 tenement-houses in New York. This includes all buildings occupied by several families and also the rookeries of Mott, Mulberry, and Baxter streets, as well as the Dakota and Navarro flats up town.

A white snake that a Maryland clergyman has is valued so highly by him that, in refusing $800 offered for it by the representatives of the National Museum at Washington, he stated that it would take $20,000 to buy it.

Ferns grow well in sunshine if they have plenty of moisture. A fernery should not be always darkened and should have a double bottom to prevent the water from becoming stagnant. The soil should be light and fibrous.

The Rev. E. P. Roe, the novelist, is a man of a trifle over the medium size, with a pleasant, intellectual face, which is almost covered with a rich and handsome coal-black beard and mustache. Mr. Roe is in the prime of manhood, being about forty-five years of age.

A writer in the Olympia (W. T.) Transcript describing a mountain climb up the slopes of Mount Rainier, mentions, among the game of that region, white mountain grouse, black-tailed deer, and whistling woodchucks. He also writes of seeing cedar trees seventeen feet in diameter, and tall spar firs two hundred feet high and only eighteen inches in diameter at the ground.

They have a curious way in Dublin of putting ornaments on a ledge fastened to the inside of the front door transom, and you will see this in houses of nearly all sizes and pretensions. Sometimes this is a little plaster statuette, or perhaps one of marble, and at other times it is a pot of flowers, a stuffed bird or squirrel, or a miniature castle. Plaster casts of animals seem to be great favorites.

Blondin, the tight-rope walker, lives quietly in London at the age of 62. He tried to exhibit in Paris after the authorities had refused to let him walk across Niagara a second time except with a net suspended under the rope, but his great feat had taken the interest out of all subsequent performances in that line, and they all seemed tame in comparison. Blondin retired on a moderate competence earned in his perilous profession.

Capt. Hal. T. Walker, a lawyer of Montgomery, Ala., has the distinction of having been the only child born in the white house. His father was the nephew and private secretary of President Polk, and resided with the president's family. Capt. Walker was a confederate soldier, and after the war engaged in mercantile interests in Memphis. Subsequently he moved to Alabama, and has been a member of the legislature of that state.

In a neighboring town the other day a little girl went into the postoffice and in all innocence asked the delivery clerk for a bolt of black dress binding. The clerk laughed and the little girl explained matters by saying that she had been sent to the store for that article and had it on her mind. Again, a boy walked into the same place and asked if there was anything for 8 o'clock. He was looking at the clock when he spoke and forgot what he was talking about.

The statue of Oliver Perry at Newport, R. I., is thus described by "Gath:" "Instead of being designed with definite outlines, the sculptor has tried to give it a wavy look, something between the back of a magazine cover and clothes on a line in the wind. Perry has got over his left arm what I suppose to be the American flag, and he is pointing to it, as if to say: 'Hoist it to that mast!' But the shape of the man is something like a bow trying to stand up without unbending."

A prominent Waterbury, Conn., manufacturer recently illustrated the force of habit. His habit is to get shaved at half-past 6 each evening. The other day, expecting to be busy in the evening, he was shaved at noon, but at 6:30 he again entered the barber-shop, patiently waited half an hour for his turn, and when the smiling barber rubbed his hand over his bald head and said "Hair cut?" remembered that he had been shaved and bolted from the shop.

The etiquette classes are an important part of the instruction in girls' schools in Japan. In the course of a generation a code of etiquette has been worked out which regulates the smallest details of life, and there are proper phrases to be used in meeting people. There is a proper way of making tea, serving it and receiving it. There are prescribed attitudes to be adopted by young people in the presence of their elders. All these details are taught to the little maids at school.

A traveling man in a Detroit station assured a Free Press reporter that, by an actual count he had made, the women who travel on railroads out-number the men in the proportion of four to two. He added: "When I was in Europe a great many people spoke to me about the penchant of the American people for travel. I tell you that the women are responsible for our reputation in this [illegible] about the [illegible] fatigue than [illegible] it in it."

Medical Instinct.

Animals get rid of their parasites by using dust, mud, clay, etc. Those suffering from fever restrict their diet, keep quiet, seek dark, airy places, drink water and sometimes plunge into it. When a dog has lost its appetite it eats that species of grass known as dog's grass, which acts as an emetic and a purgative. Cats also eat grass. Sheep and cows, when ill, seek out certain herbs. An animal suffering from chronic rheumatism always keeps, as far as possible, in the sun. The warrior ants have regularly-organized ambulances.

Latreille cut the antennæ of the ant, and other ants came and covered the wounded part with a transparent fluid secreted in their mouths. If a chimpanzee is wounded it stops the bleeding by placing its hand on the wound or dressing it with leaves and grass. When an animal has a wounded leg or arm hanging on, it completes the amputation by means of its teeth. A dog, on being stung on the muzzle by a viper, was observed to plunge its head repeatedly for several days into running water. This animal eventually recovered. A sporting dog was run over by a carriage. During three weeks in winter it remained lying in a brook, where its food was taken to it. This animal recovered. A terrier hurt its right eye. It remained under a counter, avoiding light and heat, although it habitually kept close to the fire. It adopted a general treatment, rest and abstinence from food. The local treatment consisted in licking the upper surface of the paw, which it applied to the wounded eye; again licking the paw when it became dry. Animals suffering from traumatic fever treat themselves by the continued application of cold water, which M. Delaunay considers to be more certain than any of the other methods. In view of these interesting facts we are, he thinks, forced to admit that hygiene and therapeutics as produced by animals may, in the interest of psychology, be studied with advantage.

Many physicians have been keen observers of animals, their diseases, and the methods adopted by them in their instinct to cure themselves, and have availed of the knowledge so brought under their observation in their practice.—New Orleans Picayune.

An applicant for the position of cook in a Buffalo, N. Y., family, when being asked for her references, promptly presented a paper which read as follows: "This is to certify that —— is a fine cook and a perfect lady, fit to associate with the most refined society, as her numerous friends will testify." This indorsement was not signed. Below a "P. S." to this effect followed: "I hereby certify that —— is a perfect lady. I have known her for several years. Richard Roe." She was told to seek elsewhere, as the family did not want a "lady" cook.

Two Famous Jumps.

There are few characters in this city, says the Detroit Free Press, who are better known than is Gen. E. E. Duncan, who, although he is now far down the opposite side of the ladder of life, is still active, genial, and in full possession of all mental faculties. Gen. Duncan when a boy lived at Rochester, N. Y., and later, for twenty-six years was an engineer on the road running between Jersey City and New Brunswick. Then he came to this city, where he has lived ever since. "Yes, I saw both of the famous jumps made by Sam Patch," said the general in speaking to a reporter, "and I was the last person to speak to that celebrity in life. He made his first jump in October, 1829—I forget the day of the month. He was accompanied to the brink of the falls by his bear 'Cuff' and a crowd of people. He made his jump, landed in the water below all right, and amid the cheers of the people swam ashore. Climbing up the bank he made his way again to the brink of the falls, remarking: 'Where I go, Cuff, you must go.' Then seizing the bear by the scruff of the neck and near his tail he threw him over the falls. The bear landed fairly, and swam ashore again, and the next day Sam sold him to a barber named Sears, who made a specialty of selling bear's oil. The purchase was a good advertisement for him, and for the next three or four years Sears sold 'Cuff's oil.'"

"What was the second jump?"

"It was on Nov. 12, 1829, and as he had advertised the fact that he would make the jump, and as I knew him pretty well, I stuck pretty close to him all that day so that I could see the fun. I saw him, just before the jump, take a big drink of brandy. The day was cold and disagreeable, and in order to make the jump he had to wade out to a scaffold or platform about twenty-five feet high, which had been erected for the occasion. Boy-like, I rolled up my pants and waded out to the platform with him. As he was about to mount for his jump I reached up and took his hand and bade him good-by. He made a reply which I failed to catch, and going up to the platform waved his hand to us and jumped. About half-way down I saw his head topple over on his breast, the next instant there was a splash below, and that was the last of poor Sam. He was buried at Charlotte, near Rochester, his grave being now deserted and almost unknown."

A detective in Bridgeport, Conn., recently received the following letter: "Will you oblige me by going to some picture gallery and set for my picture? I will pay you. My children and relatives are bothering me to have one took as I am growin' old, and as I am buzzy gittin' in crops I can't spair time to come down. I hear you have disgizes so you can do as well as me. Have on red side whiskers and good clothes. Make the picture good lookin' and when you laff show the teeth as I have a bran new set of false ones. I am 48 years old and a widower."

A curious fact is mentioned by the Boston Post in the career of the venerable Uriel Crocker, whose ninetieth birthday was celebrated recently at his summer home on the Jerusalem road, Cohasset. He was a moving spirit in raising funds for the erection of the Bunker Hill monument, and upon its completion he was used as a "test weight" to test the strength of the machine which was to hoist the capstone into position, being hoisted from the ground to the top of the derrick boom, about twenty-five feet above the top of the monument. He was the only person who ever ascended the structure to that height.

A southern Indiana paper tells of a preacher who owns a horse so spirited that no blacksmith can shoe him unless the owner stands at his head and sings lively camp-meeting hymns while the process is going on.

It costs $10 in Paris to learn how to bow gracefully. A sweet smile comes $5 extra.

W. H. FRANCIS FURNITURE —AND— JOBBING SHOP. Contracting & Building, In Charlevoix. Shop on South Terrace.

MILLINERY, FANCY GOODS, DRESS-MAKING. ALDRICH SISTERS.

MERCHANT TAILORING. I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring. C. H. Maddaugh.

CHARLEVOIX Manufacturing Co. Charlevoix, Mich. Sash and Doors, Blinds, Mouldings etc. NEWELL Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails kept in stock. Window & Door Frames made to order. Building Material. PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS. Cottages made a specialty. Correspondence solicited.

MARVELOUS PRICES! BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

GRENADES. Over Sixty Millions Sold.

Take The Sentinel.

J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS.

PAINTS!

STOVES, HARDWARE, TINWARE, FISHING TACKLE, NOTIONS, ETC., ETC.
THE BEST FORCE PUMPS,
FARMING IMPLEMENS.

JOB AND TIN WORK.
L. D. Bartholomew & Co.
JOB AND TIN WORK.

DRUGS and STATIONERY,

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

A Large and Complete New Line JUST RECEIVED.

EVERYTHING YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

The only News stand in town.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN Boiler Works! BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS. Sheet Iron Work given special attention. MARINE WORK a specialty. HENRY BARTH, Prop. Charlevoix, Mich.

Pan-Zama Balm. PAN-ZAMA MED. Co., Frankfort, Ind.

160 Acres in MARION. MONEY TO LOAN ON. THEODORE R. CHAPIN.

FRANK E. WOODS Bath & Barber Rooms.

HUMPHREYS' HOMEOPATHIC SPECIFICS.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS.

NEW SHOP! Blacksmithing. M. SCOTT.

CURES Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, Whooping Cough, Quinzy, Sore Throat, Consumption, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Diseases. YOUNG'S COUGH SYRUP.

1-3 OFF SALE! At Miss Spaulding's MILLINERY ROOMS.

JAS. A. GELLICK, Choice Wines, Fine Liquors, EXCELLENT CIGARS. Old Kentucky Sour Mash WHISKIES. Milwaukee Export and Lager Beer.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

NEWS BUDGET.

Fresh Intelligence from Every Part of the Civilized World.

Foreign and Domestic News, Political Events, Personal Points, Labor Notes, Etc.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

A MURDERER LYNCHED.

A Hoosier, Enraged Because His Daughter Is Wedded, Beats the Young Bride Brutally—He Next Fatally Shoots a Doctor, and Is Taken from Jail and Lynched.

JOHN CHRISTIANSON, a Swede of socialistic tendencies, shot and mortally wounded Dr. North, a prominent citizen of Peru, Ind., on Wednesday, for which he was summarily hanged by infuriated citizens. A dispatch from the scene of the double tragedy furnishes the following particulars of the affair:

Christianson held a grudge against his daughter-in-law, who was married and whose money he desired to possess. He called her out of the house into the back yard and brutally assaulted her until assistance arrived, when he took to a shed close by, whence several shots were heard by passers. Among them was Dr. North, who, thinking the man had shot himself, opened the door, when the man fired, the ball penetrating in the region of Dr. North's heart, inflicting a mortal wound. The Swede...

MORMONS DOWN SOUTH.

TRAIN ROBBERS FOILED.

AN AWFUL CALAMITY.

EAST.

WEST.

SOUTH.

WASHINGTON.

LABOR.

GENERAL.

FOREIGN.

MARKET REPORTS.

POLITICS.

NASBY AND THOSE FLAGS.

Petroleum V. Was Present When the Order for Their Return Was Issued.

His Protests Then Ignored but Afterward Heeded, and Thus He Secured the Revocation of the Order.

I am in Washinton jist now by invitashun uv His Serene Eggslency the President ez a sort uv advisory comity to asist in settlin sich ticklish questions ez ma arise in the seceded States, wich is now, thank heven, the Govment. I am here ez a sort uv asistant adviser, my biznis bein to thro out sejestions wich I git credit for ef they ar bad and not acted onto, and wich His Eggslency the President gets credit for ef they ar good and adoptid. Al govments hev to hev sich men, wich is the price uv the offices they fil.

The question wich wuz desided yisterdy mornin wuz the wun uv sendin bak to the Suthern States the flags and sich wich wuz capchered from em by the Northern insurgents doorin the late fratrisidle strugle.

The representativs uv the South insistid that them flags shood be returned to whence they originaly came, becoz ther remainin in the Capital, to wich they hed bin brot, wuz proof that they kim hither by force, ez it wer, wich wuz rather agin the theory so popler at the South that one Suthern man wuz ez good ez five Northern...

...fect to the foe and our eyes to Hevin? I don't want to di. I ain't jist now consarned about wat kind uv a corpse I shal make, for I don't want to be a corpse at al. Hevn't the Dimocrisy got sense enuf to liv? Can't we manage to eggsist a while and enjoy the spoils? Yer Eggslency, reconsider this rash act."

"Never!" sed he, "never! I hev sed it and it shel be done."

"Then yoo may ez wel pack your bagage and prepare for a skip March 4, 1889—yoo may ez wel!"

Jist here comenst a sceen. The order to send back the flags hed got onto the streets, it hed bin tellygraffed al over the kentry, and responses wuz a coming back ez thick ez lice in Egypt. No matter wich it wuz from, Republikins or Dimocrats, it wuz one continyood perlest agin the move.

"Wood yu insult the entire North?" shreeked the Republikins.

"Wood yu thro awa the last chance yu hev for a re-eleckshun?" shreeked the Dimocrisy.

And his Eggslency looked over the telegrams. "Wher is Milwaukee?" he asked, feebly. "Is ther sich a place ez Peoria?" he murmured. "And Pittsburgh, and Omaha, and Topeka, and Denver, and Dayton, and Xenia, and Lafayette, and New Albany, and Evanston, and the d— ! noze where ol?"

"You bet there is sech places," sed I, "ez you wil discover next year."

"Wel, ef we hev made a mistake we hev made one, and must back down. Bayard, rite a dispatch saying that after givin the matter more mature considerashun we hev decided to let the d—d flags stay wher...

Petroleum V. Nasby, P. M.

AN HONEST BALLOT-BOX.

Marriage in Turkey.

CYCLONE STATISTICS.

Terrible Destruction Caused by Tornadoes in the Last Two Centuries.

Little or No Immunity to Sections Covered by Forests—Gathering the Statistics.

[Washington Special.]

The terrible destruction of life and property by tornadoes at this season causes much fear in several States. Recent investigations by Lieut. John P. Finley, Signal Service United States army, reveal to some extent the danger in each region, which will do much to allay unnecessary alarm in the Eastern States. At the same time other regions before thought to be comparatively safe are found to be more dangerous than had been supposed.

The first striking result of the examination of Lieut. Finley's map showing the geographical distribution of 1,867 tornadoes from 1682 to 1886, in...

IN THE BASE-BALL WORLD.

The White Stockings Pushing Detroit in the League Pennant Race.

Van Haltren Well Liked in Chicago—Other News of the Diamond.

At this writing the Chicago Club has passed New York and Boston in the race for the League pennant, which places the White Stockings in second place and next to the leaders in what has now become the most remarkable fight for championship honors the League has known during its history as an organization. Where Chicago may be at the end of another month it is not difficult to conjecture, provided the team continues to play at its present rate of speed, and while it is still too early to predict that the pennant of this season will be added to those of seasons past, now held by the Whites, it may safely be stated that the race will be very apt to lie between Chicago and some other city, probably Detroit or New York, with the indications strongly...

HER MISTAKE;

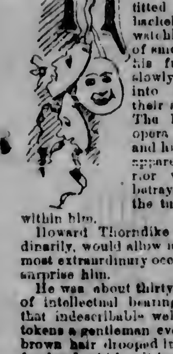
—OR,—

Howard Thorndike's Loves.

BY BURT ARNOLD.

CHAPTER I.

A COMPLETELY ASTOUNDED LOVER.



HOWARD THORNDIKE reclined in a favorite easy-chair by the window, in one of the sumptuously fitted apartments in his bachelor suite, listlessly watching the blue wreaths of smoke as they rose from his fragrant havana and slowly curled themselves into fantastic shapes in their ascent to the ceiling. The libretto of a light opera rested on his knee, and his cool, unruffled, and apparently careless exterior would never have betrayed to an observer the tumult which reigned...

Listlessly watching the blue wreaths of smoke.

...mentioning it to her. At times he thought it singular that, for a lady of her education, she had proven such a poor correspondent, for, according to mutual agreement, two letters a week were to pass between them, and as regularly as the stipulated days came round he dropped his billet-doux in the mail, but he seldom received an answer, and always a very short one when he did.

Since her return from her usual summer sojourn at Saratoga he had been unable to find her at home either time he had called, and he had received no note in explanation. Neither had Mr. or Mrs. Desmond hinted there was anything strange in her absence. She seemed to go and come without restraint. The usual message had been that she was visiting an old schoolmate, and would probably return home by the next Sunday.

Two nights previous to the evening when Howard Thorndike sat musing by his window he attended the new opera at the Casino, and was completely astonished for the first time during the period of his existence.

Effie—his Effie—was the prima-donna of the opera troupe, and it was her singing which was nightly bringing forth the strongest encomiums of the press. She was announced under a sobriquet, and predicted to be the future Jenny Lind of light opera.

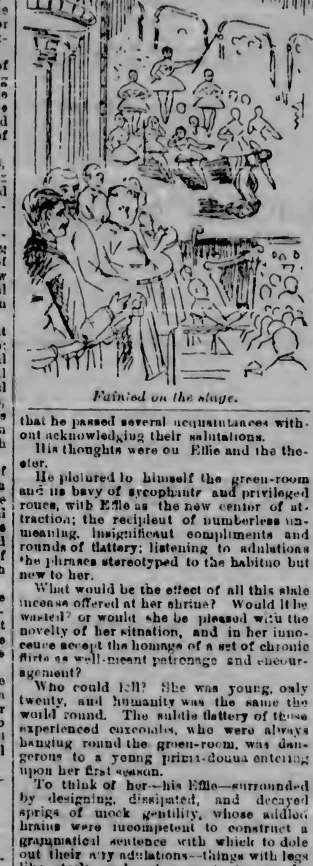
For him, he was considerably disturbed, so much so that his companion in the box noticed it and questioned him; but he had evaded a direct answer and pleaded indisposition...

CHAPTER II.

"OH, EFFIE! HOW COULD YOU?"

The clock struck ten as Howard Thorndike emerged from the hotel to keep his appointment at the theater. A Scotch mist hung in the air, and the night was chilly, damp, and disagreeable. The moist flagstones of the sidewalk reflected the dull light of the gas-lamps above, and as they receded from view in the distance, they looked like streaming double-files of fireflies disappearing in the fog beyond.

He buttoned his coat well around his throat and walked with rapid pace toward his destination, utterly oblivious to the fact...



Fainted on the stage.

EXCITEMENT AT THE CASINO.

A Nickel-Plated Corpse.

Love's Young Dream.

PAUL IN THE BASKET.

Rev. Dr. Talmage Preaches at Martha's Vineyard.

Great Results Hang on Apparently Slender Circumstances—The Casual, the Accidental Are Parts of a Great Plan—An Island Between Two Eternities.

MARTHA'S VINEYARD, Mass., July 3.—Many hundred of Brooklyn Tabernacle people and their friends have made a pilgrimage to this place. It is one point in an excursion of six days taking in Newport, Nantucket, and this island. The Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., preached here this morning in the great camp-meeting tabernacle. Thousands of people were present from all parts of New England. The music was conducted by a band.

Dr. Talmage's text was: "Through a window in a basement was I let down by the wall."—II Cor. xi. 33. He said:

Sermons on Paul in jail, Paul on Mars Hill, Paul in the shipwreck, Paul before the Sanhedrim, Paul before Felix are plentiful, but in my text we have Paul in a basket. Damascus is a city of white and glistening architecture, sometimes called "the eye of the East," sometimes called "a pearl surrounded by emeralds," at one time distinguished for swords of the best material called Damascus blades, and upholstery of richest fabric called damasks...

...you put a Bible in the trunk of your boy as he goes from home, let it be heard in your prayers, for it may have a mission as far reaching as the book which the sailor carried in his teeth to the Pitcairn beach. The plainest man's life is an island between two eternities—eternity past rippling against its shoulders, eternity to come touching his brow. The casual, the accidental, that which merely happened so, are parts of a great plan, and the rope that lets the fugitive apostle from the Damascus wall is the cable that holds to its mooring the ship of the church in the northeast storm of the centuries.

Again, notice unrecognized and unrecorded services. Who spun that rope? Who tied it to the basket? Who steadied the illustrious preacher as he stepped into it? Who relaxed not a muscle of the arm or dismissed an anxious look from his face until the basket touched the ground and discharged its magnificent cargo? Not one of their names has come to us, but there was no work done that day in Damascus or in all the earth compared with the importance of their work. What if they had in the agitation tied a knot that could slip? What if the sound of the mob at the door had led them to say: "Paul must take care of himself, and we will take care of ourselves?" No, no! They held the rope, and in doing so did more for the Christian church than any thousand of us will ever accomplish. But God knows and has made eternal record of their undertaking. And they know. How exultant they must have felt when they read...

...turns in. Why not be frank and acknowledge it—the most of us would long ago have been dashed to pieces had not gracious and loving hands steadily, lovingly, and mightily held the rope.

But there must come a time when we shall find out who these Damascenes were who lowered Paul in the basket, and greet them and all those who have rendered to God and the world unrecognized and unrecorded services. That is going to be one of the glad excitements of Heaven, the hunting up and picking out of those who did great good on earth and got no credit for it. Here the church has been going on for nineteen centuries, and yet the world has not recognized the services of the people in that Damascus balcony. Charles G. Finney said to a dying Christian: "Give my love to St. Paul when you meet him." When you and I meet him, as we will, I shall ask him to introduce me to those people who got him out of the Damascene peril.

We go into long sermons to prove that we will be able to recognize people in Heaven, when there is one reason we fail to present, and that is better than all. God will introduce us. We shall have them all pointed out. You would not be guilty of the impoliteness of having friends in your parlor not introduced, and celestial politeness will demand that we be made acquainted with all the heavenly household. What rehearsal of old times and recital of stirring reminiscences! If others fail to give introduction, God will take us through, and before our first twenty-four hours in...

Heroism.

Saber Blades.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Notes on the Lesson for July 17—"John the Baptist."

[From Chicago Standard. By Rev. J. M. Coon.]

The subject of the lesson for the above date will be found in the first twelve verses of the third chapter of Matthew. Time, A. D. 26, nearly thirty years after the events of last lesson. See "Connecting Link." Places, Jerusalem, Wilderness of Judea, and the region of the Jordan.

SPECIAL MENTION.

John the Baptist—He was the son of an aged priest, Zacharias, and Elizabeth, the cousin of Mary the mother of Jesus. Hence he was the second cousin of Jesus. He was born, probably in June, B. C. 5, in an unnamed city in the hill country of Judea. He was six months older than Jesus. He was a Nazarite, pledged to drink no wine nor strong drink, and to let his hair and beard grow untrimmed, as a sign of consecration to God (see Num. 6). He was filled with the Holy Spirit from his birth. His early life, up to thirty years of age, was passed in the solitudes of the wilderness of Judea, where he was prepared for his great mission as the forerunner of the Messiah. He preached for nearly two years (from the summer of A. D. 26 to the winter of A. D. 28). For almost a year his preaching was contemporary with the preaching of Jesus. Then he was shut up in the castle of Machaerus by Herod Antipas...

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

CHARLEVOIX, JULY 13, 1887.

Chicago Summer Resort Notes.

The following are at the Club House: President S. M. Moore, Mrs. Colby and the Misses Colby, Mr. Jas. Moore, Fred, Jamie and Miss Ida Moore, Mrs. C. F. Gates, Miss Lizzie Gates, Herb W. Gates, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Rockwood and family, N. H. Blatchford and family, Mrs. John P. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Johnson and daughter and W. C. Warner, all of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Luman Burr of Bloomington, and Mr. and Miss McIlvaine of Peoria.

Mr. W. C. Warner of Chicago, the well-known Secretary and Treasurer of the resort, will have personal charge of the Club House this season, and the most prosperous season in the history of the resort can be confidently looked for.

Lecture on Egypt.

Mr. J. S. Smithson will deliver a lecture upon Egypt in the Opera House on Wednesday evening, July 27th for the benefit of the M. E. church repairs.

This lecture was compiled from observations made by Mr. Smithson during his travels in the east, and its popularity in the leading cities of the United Kingdom has been attested by the immense audiences of cultured people who have been entertained and instructed by it.

Mr. Smithson has at considerable trouble and expense secured several costumes of the different classes of the Egyptian people, which he will exhibit in the course of the lecture, showing the unique form of Oriental dress with much better effect than any description could make possible.

Among the many characters impersonated in genuine Oriental costumes will be a Shepherd, Brigand, Dervish (howling) Priest, Bride, Bedouin, Peasant and working men and women and a variety of others with a few curiosities.

Charlevoix Summer Resort Items.

The annual meeting occurs at Music Hall next Tuesday.

Geo. E. Stockbridge has bought a handsome boat of Jos. Beauvais, for which he paid $125. It contains 18 varieties of wood, and is probably the handsomest row boat in Michigan It will be christened the Julie S.

Messrs. Merrill, Bixby and Stockbridge, with their families, came yesterday and to-day.

There are over 100 boarders at the Belvedere dining room already.

The action of refusing to place a telephone in the Belvedere is a step in the wrong direction. It could not have been final.

Every cottage on the resort was occupied yesterday except the McKay, Sears, Abbott, Ainsworth, Bardeen, Den Bleyker, Everard, Friend, Gibson, Page, Olney, Sebring and Edw. Woodbury.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Willis, of Detroit, and E. T. Howard, of Kalamazoo, have rooms at the Belvedere.

Lieut. Gardner, U. S. army, is at the Potter cottage with Mrs. Gardner and the four children.

Bishop Gillespie and the Misses Gillespie occupied their new cottage for the first time Friday.

Dr. Backus and wife, of Three Rivers, and Cam. Burns, of Kalamazoo, are at the Boudeman cottage.

Robt. E. Jones, of Kalamazoo, has rented the Ranney cottage for the season. At present it is occupied by Mrs. Walter P. Jones, Victor L. Mason and W. T. Mason, of Washington, and Mrs. Eleazer Jones and Miss Marie Jones, of New York City.

Prof. I. N. Demmon, of the State University, is occupying the Eastwood cottage.

The A. B. Wood cottage is occupied by Mrs. Wood, Miss Wood and Miss Herron, of Ann Arbor.

Walter E. Mack and Miss Clara Mack, of Ann Arbor, are at the Smiley cottage.

Mrs. J. Vosper and daughters, and Mrs. N. D. Lee and Miss Gertie Lee, of East Saginaw, are at Miss Green's cottage.

Mrs. Wm. H. Aldrich, W. H. Aldrich, Jr., Windsor Aldrich and Marion Aldrich, of Chicago, are guests at the W. H. Holden cottage.

Mrs. P. A. Deane and son, of Charlotte, are visiting friends on the resort.

Miss Mattie Beach, of Battle Creek, is the guest of Miss Hattie Mather.

C. B. S. Conyne, of Chicago, has rented the Fiske cottage.

H. E. Mather and wife, of East Saginaw, are occupying their cottage. Miss Daisy Sims is a guest.

Miss Fannie Griswold, of Battle Creek, is visiting friends at Bluebell cottage.

Mrs. G. E. Bardeen and Margery and Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Parmelee and son, arrive next Saturday.

The Twelfth at Boyne City.

The Orange organization had a red letter day at Boyne City on Tuesday. The Order was largely represented, and the grove exercises interesting and largely attended. Several addresses were made.

Excursions from Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Charlevoix and East Jordan, filled the town up. The Petoskey, East Jordan and Boyne City bands were present, while martial music and the bagpipes all combined to make the welkin ring.

In the afternoon a base ball game between the Charlevoix and Boyne City clubs resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 14 to 10.

WANTED—A steady man to work one of Perkin's one block shingle mill. Apply to Smithson's Lumber Co., Charlevoix.

NOTICE—For the benefit of my patrons I desire to state that I may be found at my office up to 10 a. m. each day of the week.

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D.

Common Council.

A regular meeting of the Charlevoix Village Council occurred Thursday evening.

The committee on Finance made a report recommending an assessment of 2½ mills on the dollar of valuation for village tax, which will afford something over $1,000 for expenses of the current year.

The committee on Ordinances was instructed to prepare and submit an ordinance to prevent unnecessary whistling of steam vessels in the harbor.

The Marshal and Street Commissioner were instructed to enforce the ordinance against hitching horses to shade trees, and notices were ordered to be posted in the park against cutting or defacing trees and shrubs.

The following bills were allowed:

Garley Boak, Street Commissioner	$ 6 58
Garley Boak, Engineer and Janitor	24 31
L. E. Smith, drayage	25
L. E. Smith, team, engine practice	2 00
G. W. Cook, drayage	1 70
Thos Boak, work on street	75
Wm Boak, work on street	75
Russel, work on street	75
H. Widdifield, drayage	4 25

The Crops for 1887.

Charlevoix county and Northern Michigan is especially blessed in this year of our Lord, in those essentials which lie closest to their material prosperity—favorable conditions for the ripening and development of their crops.

We have interviewed many of our farmers, and the opinion among them seems to be general that in no year since 1880 has there been such assured promise of good crops as in this.

Grass, under the effect of timely rains, has yielded nearly a full crop, and the scarcity and high price which has governed in the hay market for several seasons will not this season be repeated.

Wheat, that great cereal, which is the chief element in agricultural prosperity, is especially satisfactory. We have personally passed through portions of our farming country, and beheld with satisfaction fields of wheat well ripened, and promising yields of from 25 to 35 bushels per acre. Other cereals are equally satisfactory.

Corn, that product which, in this northern clime is as uncertain and unproductive as Greenbackers and Mugwumps, and as unknown a quantity in the problem of supply and demand, has, within the past few weeks, made marvelous growth. While we have been sweltering with the thermometer at 93°, the green blades have been shooting upward, and the incipient silk preparing for birth into the sunlight. From all quarters come good reports from the corn. It has yet to "make a sneak" on its natural autumn enemy—the frost—before its mature ripening is assured. Should it escape that danger, the pigs will put in quite a comfortable winter, and bring up in good shape in the pork barrel.

Potatoes, and other roots are "booming." The summer rains have done their work well, and nothing but a protracted mid-summer drouth can seriously effect the crop. The potatoes of this country have always been famous for yield and quality, and they will, no natural drawback occurring, contribute generously toward the material gain of the farmers this year.

The farmers of this fair north region, one season with another, have much to congratulate themselves upon. Their lots are cast in pleasant places and beside still waters. They have soil, climate and timber not falling to the share of all who follow the plow. Small and hardy fruits abound here as they do in no other portion of Michigan. We have no grasshoppers or tornadoes; no floods nor cattle plagues.

We have but to work, and nature yields her stores bountifully.

Religious.

Rev. Adam Clark has been appointed to supply the Harbor Springs charge until conference meets. Mr. Clark is a young man of undoubted fitness for his calling, and his many friends will watch his progress with interest.

Memorial services were held at the Congregational church Sunday afternoon in honor of the memory of Mrs. B. Suffield, who died lately in Indiana. Mrs. Suffield was a member of that church and an active worker in the Sunday school when they resided here.

Brother Sayles, the Singing Evangelist, is coming among us again. He will be here two weeks resting and enjoying himself. He will hold a gospel meeting at the Hall on Sunday evening, July 17, and a bible reading on Tuesday, Wednesday Thursday and Friday afternoons, at 4 o'clock sharp, at the Congregational church. A gospel meeting on Sunday evening, July 24, at the Hall, and bible readings at the M. E. church on Tuesday, Wednesday Thursday and Friday at 4 p. m. sharp. A gospel meeting at Hall on Sunday evening, July 31st, will close the series of services. We hope all our citizens will avail themselves of this opportunity of studying the word under the leadership of Brother Sayles. The meetings will be varied by songs and choruses. No collection. All are invited.

W. H. McCARTNEY, Sec.

M. E. Church.

Our usual services on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings of this week and on Sabbath morning at usual hour. All remember and attend these services.

Episcopal Church.

In Opera Hall Sunday next at 3 p. m., subject, "What Lack I Yet?"

Rev. Mr. Lee, Episcopalian, preached an excellent sermon at the union gospel meeting at Opera Hall, Sunday evening, July 3d.

Baptist Church.

Prayer meeting and Sunday school teachers' meeting every Tuesday evening at 7:30. Regular prayer meeting Thursday evening. Preaching service Sunday morning at 10:30; Sunday school at 12. The church unites in the union service at Opera Hall every Sunday evening.

Elsewhere.

Preaching at Black's next Sabbath at 3 o'clock, and Johnson's at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Marine Jottings.

Lou See, and a company of other young men, found the Champlain's spar and shrouds at Rocky Point, two miles north of here, Sunday.

The rivalry between the steamers Dewar and Sanford, at Frankfort, has culminated in the owners of the Sanford buying up a mortgage on the Dewar and taking forcible possession. A big fight is likely to follow.

The remains of the burned propeller Champlain still lie at the east side of the harbor. The rubbish is being removed from her under the superintendence of Mate Bishop. She will undoubtedly soon be sold and converted into a barge. Search is still being made for a suitable passenger steamer to take the place of the Champlain, but none has yet been found. It is to be hoped that the vacancy in the line will soon be filled, as there is much inconvenience already experienced by our merchants. The line has been a popular one, and everyone in this section will stand by them against any possible competitor—at least we have that opinion.

Clearances. June 15—Schr Mocking Bird, 3,500 ties, Downer to Chicago.
15—Schr Eagle Wing, 6,000 ties, Pine Lake Lumber Co to Milwaukee.
16—Schr Bert Barnes, 100 cords wood, Master to Milwaukee.
16—Schr Lottie Mason, 65,000 feet basswood lumber, Vanplatten to Chicago.
16—Schr Eugene Vesta, 125,000 feet hardwood lumber Wilbur to Detroit.
17—Schr Ottawa, 150,000 feet hardwood lumber, 500 ties, 100,000 shingles, Vanplatten, to Chicago.
17—Schr Carrier, 150,000 feet hardwood lumber Glenn & Porter, to Chicago.
18—Schr Sea Gem, 80,000 feet hardwood lumber Glenn & Porter to Chicago.
20—Schr Lydia E. Rassmer, 110,000 feet hardwood lumber, John Nicholls to Milwaukee.
20—Schr Radical, 620,000 shingles, 3,500 ties, Swaete, to Chicago.
21—Schr Narragansett, 575 tons pig iron, Pine Lake Iron Co to Buffalo.
21—Schr John L. Green, 75 cords slabs, Master to Sheboygan.
21—Schr Florence M. Smith, 65 cords bark Master to Milwaukee.
21—Schr Dunham, 150,000 feet hardwood lumber, Glenn & Porter to Chicago.
22—Schr Stampede, 250,000 feet hardwood lumber Pine Lake Lumber Co to Sheboygan.
29—Schr Odin, 116 cords slabs, French to Kenosha.
29—Schr Mocking Bird, 125,000 feet hemlock lumber Glenn & Porter to Chicago.
29—Schr J. B. Prime, 117 cords bark, 40 cords wood French to Kenosha.
30—Schr Jessie Phillips, 250,000 feet lumber, Pine Lake Lumber Co to Chicago.
July 1—Schr Stampede, 260,000 feet hardwood lumber Pine Lake Lumber Co to Sheboygan.
2—Schr Sea Gem, 75 cords wood, W S Shipp to Milwaukee.
5—Schr R. F. Wade, 150 cords wood Downer to Chicago.
5—Schr Evening Star 185,000 feet hardwood lumber Perkins & White to Sheboygan.
5—Schr Lottie Mason, 55 cords wood Master to Milwaukee.
6—Schr Eugene Vista, 140,000 ft hardwood lumber, Wilber to Detroit.
7—Schr Merchant, 100 cords slabs, Glenn & Porter, to Escanaba.
8—Schr Vermont, 2,500 ties, W. H. Downer to Milwaukee.
8—Schr Lotus, 160,000 ft lumber, 3,000 ties, 4,000 posts, Pine Lake Lumber Co. to Chicago.
8—Schr John Schuette, 550 tons pig iron, Pine Lake Iron Co to Chicago.
9—Schr Ottawa, 160,000 ft hemlock lumber, Glenn & Porter to Chicago.
11—Schr Odin, 120 cords bark, W. L. French to Kenosha.

Grand Concert.

Arrangements have been made by which a concert will be given at the Opera Hall, Tuesday evening, July 17th, by the following artists: Mr. and Mrs. Frank McGibeny of the celebrated McGibeny Family Concert Company, and the celebrated Davis sisters of Boston, Mass. The two former artists are too well known to need any extended comment. They are spending their vacation at Petoskey. They have been through the entire West and North-west this last year including all the largest cities of the Pacific coast and have proved their ability to Charlevoix people before. The Davis sisters are not so well known in this part of the country, but have an enviable reputation in the East in musical and social circles. Miss Julia C. Davis is a contralto of great compass and power and sings in one of the largest churches in Boston. Miss Josephine Davis has a pure soprano voice of great brilliancy and range and is a pupil of the Boston conservatory.

The concert will consist of music, both vocal and instrumental and readings, and will be an entertainment of such a character that all can attend with propriety and be entertained. The price of admission will be 35 cents reserved seats, and 25 cents to other parts of the hall.

Hazings from Hayes.

Charles W. Crittenden, a correspondent of the Caro Advertiser, has been stopping in Hayes a few days.

Rev. G. S. Barnes and family of Jackson, Mich, are tenting at Triple Rock. Mr. Barnes owns an interest in the lime kiln.

Hay is a good crop and is being secured in prime condition.

Jack Saunby has just completed a large granery.

Fred Sneathan has a field of wheat that is ripe.

Bargains in Baby carriages at S. M. See & Sons.

Just received a lot of lounges which we are selling cheap. S. M. See & Sons.

If you want anything in the furniture line go to S. M. See & Sons.

WAYNE COUNTY SAVINGS BANK
DETROIT, - - MICH.
$500,000 TO INVEST IN BONDS
Issued by cities, counties, towns and school districts of Michigan, Officers of these municipalities about to issue Bonds will find it to their advantage to apply to this Bank. Blank Bonds and blanks for proceedings supplied without charge. All communications and inquiries will have prompt attention.
May 21. S. D. ELWOOD, Treasurer.

Probate Order.

State of Michigan, County of Charlevoix, ss. Notice is hereby given, that an order of the Probate court for the county of Charlevoix, made on the fifth day of July A. D. 1887, six months from that date were allowed for creditors to present their claims against the estate of John West, late of Cook county, Illinois, deceased, and that all creditors of said deceased are required to present their claims to said Probate Court, at the Probate office, in the village of Boyne City, Charlevoix county, Michigan, for examination and allowance, on or before the Ninth day of January next, and that such claims will be heard before said court on Monday, the Third day of October, 1887 and on Monday, the Ninth day of January, 1888 next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of each of those days.

Dated July 5th, A. D. 1887. JAMES A. KEAT, Judge of Probate.

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Charlevoix, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for said County, held at the Probate Office, in the Village of Boyne City, on the 11th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty seven; Present, James A. Keat, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the Estate of Henry Bennett, deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Dwight B. Bennett and Mary H. Wood, praying that Abbie T. Bennett, or some other suitable person, be appointed Administratrix of said estate. Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 8th day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden in the Probate Office, in the Village of Boyne City, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted: And it is Further Ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

JAMES A. KEAT, Judge of Probate.
(A true copy.) 11t4

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent, Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

J. L. Newberry of Petoskey, is agent for and offers for sale, the lots on Schotten's addition to Ironton, at low prices and easy terms. Perfect titles given. He will also sell, or exchange for property in Petoskey, his house and lot on Main street, Charlevoix. 3w

ICE CREAM
PAR EXCELLENCE.

We would respectfully inform the public that we have at considerable expense, prepared and suitably furnished our Band Pagoda as an Ice Cream parlor, and have placed it at the head of all similar institutions in Charlevoix. It will be open for the use of the public at all times save on Wednesday evenings, when there will be a Grand Concert by the Band. Our cream will be as good as can be made. Just received a large lot of Ice Cream Packages holding from one quart to one or more gallons, which will be loaned to customers for safely carrying cream to their homes. The quality of our cream speaks for itself. Our stock of foreign and domestic Fruits is always large and of the best quality. We carry as fine a line of confectionery, nuts, etc., as can be found in town.

Respectfully,
O. W. SMITH.

NOTICE.

The late Champlain disaster has placed me in close financial circumstances. Therefore it is necessary for me to collect all outstanding indebtedness. All Owing me will please call and pay.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Rosenthal & Son
continue business at the old stand in the See Block,
IN THE LINE OF Indian Basket &
and Bark Work.
Call and look over our Stock.
ROSENTHAL & SON.

POSITIVELY THE FINEST LINE OF
CLOTHING
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS YOU EVER SAW IN CHARLEVOIX,
JUST RECEIVED FOR SUMMER WEAR.
Prices are unusually low this Spring and if you need anything in my line, just step in.
Now is a Grand Time To Obtain Bargains.
GEO. W. MILLER.

A. T. WASHBURNE AND CO.
OUR SECOND INVOICE OF SUMMER GOODS HAS ARRIVED.
We wish to call especial attention to the elegant line of wash goods now on our counters, as we never before have received such an assortment. We are confident they will be appreciated by all.
NEW EMBROIDERIES, LACES and LINENS. Our line of Corsets and Corset Waists is excelled nowhere in the state. See what we can give you for 25 cents in a Corset.
NEW DRESS GOODS, CARPETS, FANCY GOODS
A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.
Successors to F. W. CRAINE & CO.

REFITTED!
Our store is fully completed and we cordially invite our friends and patrons to call and inspect a choice assortment of new
DRY GOODS & GROCERIES
new Goods arriving nearly every day. Our stock of Groceries is the Largest, Choicest, Cleanest, and our Prices the Lowest. We're busy and haven't got arranged yet, but we want to see you just as we are.
J. L. HURD & CO.

Grand Summer Slaughter!
TOO MANY GOODS FOR THE SEASON.
ALL DEPARTMENTS TO BE REDUCED.
My stock of Spring and Summer Dress Goods and Parasols is large and in order to close out stock in the shortest time possible, I will sell so that all can save money.
Do you wish a fine Dress? Do you need dresses for your children? Do you wish a few yards extra of Spring Suiting? Do you think of making over an old dress? Do you wish a bargain in dress Goods: If you do, don't miss examining my stock. It will pay you to call.
Our stock of Carpets has never been as large and complete as now and at prices that cannot be undersold. The stock comprises everything to be found in a first-class Carpet House. Our Drapery Department is replete with all the novelties.
Hats and Caps from 5 Cents up.
MEN'S YOUTHS' BOYS' and CHILDREN'S Clothing that cannot fail to suit the most exacting in style.
GIVE ME A CALL,
ALICK ROSENTHAL,
LEWIS BLOCK.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XIX. NO.—12 CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, JULY 20, 1887. WHOLE NO. 921

Jno C Miller may21 8

"BUG FINISH!"
The new Potato Bug exterminator. We warrant it to give satisfaction. Very cheap. All ready for use. Requires no mixing. Try it.
STRICTLY PURE PARIS GREEN
We have in stock the purest article to be found in the market. It's sure death every time. Buy no other.
Sure Death To Currant Worms!
For these pests we have a pure article of White Hellebore. When ever used it acts like magic not leaving a worm on the bush.
PURE DALMATION INSECT POWDER
The best thing for Flies and other insects.
A trial of any of the above is bound to prove satisfactory,
F. G. HINES & CO.
Druggists.

Emrey Bros.
are on deck this Spring with a complete stock of
General Merchandise, AT LOWEST PRICES
WE ARE DETERMINED TO DO A STRICTLY CASH BUSINESS, AND THUS ARE ENABLED TO UNDERSELL FIRMS GIVING CREDIT.
IT WILL BE FOR YOUR PROFIT TO CALL AND GET PRICES.
Boots and Shoes THE GREATEST BARGAINS EVER OFFERED IN THIS COUNTY.
THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.
We call especial attention to our complete stock of
WALL PAPER.
The time has arrived when you need it. We are now receiving a fresh Spring stock embracing all the latest styles. We warrant you lowest prices.
Special Patterns ordered from samples if you wish.
OUR SUMMER ASSORTMENT OF GENERAL MERCHANDISE now being received is the finest we ever offered
TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.
ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.
A Fine line of Everything in FURNITURE.
BIG DRIVES IN BOOTS and SHOES.
Please bear in mind that our stock embraces EVERYTHING usually found in a General Store.
Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.
Resp'y Yours.
Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

A Word with You!
IF YOU WILL COME TO OUR STORE WE HOPE TO BE ABLE TO CONVINCE YOU THAT WE TRY TO ENABLE YOU TO Save Your Dollars
BY BUYING ANYTHING IN THE HARDWARE LINE
OF US.
YOU KNOW WHO "US" IS BY THIS TIME OR IF YOU DON'T YOU SHOULD
WE ARE HARDWARE, IRON, AND NAIL MERCHANTS. SELL LOTS OF GOODS AND SELL 'EM CHEAP.
It's money in your pocket to buy of S. & I. and Don't You For——!
Resp'y, STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

The Best Groceries At The Lowest Prices
ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF
A. E. MASON.
I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

New Furniture
AT S. M. SEE & SONS!
We have just received an entirely new stock of Furniture of every discription.
Dealing exclusively in Furniture we are confident we can make it an object to all wishing to buy to call and inspect our stock.
UNDERTAKING A Specialty.

J. MILO EATON'S
REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE, AND LOAN OFFICE.
The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.
Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.
ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice

WANTED!
Everyone to know that we are here and doing Business, and will do just as we agree to by one and all. We keep
GROCERIES and PROVISIONS, FLOUR AND FEED, CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE
Choice Butter and Fresh Eggs a Specialty. Call on us or order by Telephone.
WILL SEE & CO.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY
SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, - Michigan.
Address all business correspondence to the firm
TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year - $1 50 | Six months - $ .75
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—Uncle Tom's Cabin at Opera Hall to-morrow night.

—Miss Ellen Clement is a guest of her cousin, Mrs. Harrison Berdan.

—Miss Mary Scroggie has resumed her position as telephone operator.

—Harold F. Sayles, wife and child are quartered at the Chicago Club House.

—Montie Lewis and Miss Stella Kyser, of Whitewater, Wis., are expected next week.

—The Elk Rapids Progress says that a new passenger boat will probably be put on the inland lakes next summer.

—Messrs. Burns and Cameron are the contractors and builders on the new residence of Wm. Ferguson, on Antrim street.

—A change in the contractors and drivers has taken place on the Elk Rapids and Eastport mail line, Dan Blakely retiring.

—Hon. Hampton Rich and wife, of Ionia, are in town for a few weeks, and are domiciled with their daughter, Mrs. J. L. Hurd.

—The Boyne Falls Gazette has been issued for the last time. Mr. Dixon, the editor, goes to East Jordan as the editor and proprietor of the Enterprise.

—The dredge has been deepening the bar at the bayou, and has also done some work on the upper channel. The dredging for this year is about completed.

—The finest shower of the season came Saturday evening, at the close of the warmest day of the year, so far. Its effect upon the corn and after-growth of grass must be great.

—The Petoskey Record's new turbine water wheel is grinding out some pretty puzzling interrogatories to the Democrat, lately. M'sen le Gagnaux won't be able to arise early enough in the morning to answer them.

—Some mutton-head recently paid Slussar of the Mancelona Herald, $50 in advance on subscription, and Slussar is going to Europe this summer and have a bust on it. Jehosophat! we can't raise enough to go to Mackinaw. Great Scott, wouldn't we have a time if some $50 idiot would call around here?

—C. P. Avery and a friend were riding through Marion on Friday, and when at the hill just south of Burn's mill a she wolf came into the road ahead of them and sauntered leisurely into the woods. She gave evidence of having a litter of five whelps. Marion people in that vicinity should look well to their sheep.

—"Brick to-night" "Haddock was murdered at Sioux City," and "Dynamite Wednesday night," were inscriptions on three bricks that Rev. G. L. Cole, formerly of this place, who is an earnest temperance worker, found on the porch of his residence at St. Joseph, Tuesday morning. He will keep on, however, regardless of threats or jokes.

—Traverse Journal.—Dr. M. L. Leach has been in the region of Charlevoix and Petoskey the past two weeks gathering specimens of fossils and shells. He has sent home some good specimens. He has now left Petoskey for the Indian river, and from there he will go to Roscommon, Higgins and Houghton lakes. He will probably not return until the last of July.

—At the meeting of the trustees of the Grand Traverse College School at Benzonia, there were present the Rev. A. D. Barbor, Rev. A. L. Gridley, Rev. Leroy Warren, Deacon A. Waters, Deacon T. E. Tayler, Lyman Judson, Deputy Secretary W. A. Betts, who with Deputy C. E. Case were invited to act the coming year. The Rev. C. E. Bailey, who has been Secretary, treasurer and trustee, sent his resignation, which was accepted. Mr. R. G. Peters, of Manistee, was elected a trustee, as were also Thomas Pettitt, Hon. A. T. Case, and Rev. O. B. Waters. Good feeling prevailed and at the close of the meeting they were surprised to find they had accomplished so much business in so short a time.

—The Petoskey Dramatic Company played at the Opera House on Wednesday and Thursday evening of last week, presenting "Damon and Pythias" and "Lost in London," to small audiences. Dramatic combinations of home people are not expected to embrace histrionic talent of a high order, but for an amateur organization the company appear well, reading their lines freely. Mr. Toms and his wife show unmistakable talent—a product of long experience upon the stage, and although his work in Damon is somewhat given to ranting the character, heroic and passionate in its elements, it is well handled. The Pythias of Mr. Guinon was too calm, if anything, and somewhat mechanical, the argumentative style of the lawyer, and the modesty of the editor being quite perceptible in his work. All the other parts were creditable.

—Come to Charlevoix Friday and see the ball game.

—Prof. Willard and sons, of Galesburg, Ill., are spending the summer here.

—Miss Bartholomew, of Geneva Ohio, is at the home of her brother, L. D. Bartholomew.

—Stockman & Iddings present a new advertisement with "nothing dry in it" for your inspection.

—President Cherrie and Treasurer Meech, of the D. C. & E. R. R. Co., go to New York this week on railroad business.

—Jim Martin says that teamsters should observe the signs at the end of the bridge more carefully, or there will be war in the camp.

—The D. C. & E. R. R. Co. advertise for proposals for the grading of the first section of their line. Begins to look like business, don't it?

—Mrs. Cow, three children, and Miss Hattie Patton, of Cadillac, and Miss Jennie Bale, of Paw Paw, are guests of Al. Washburn and mother.

—The D. C. & E. R. R. will be built, and then some of these one-hoss editors in this vicinity will wish they had never been born. We're shoutin'.

—We are compelled to ask our readers to bear with us in the issue of half-sheets this week. The irregular running of the Chicago boat is the cause.

—Mrs. R. M. McKeel and Mrs. A. Steward have dissolved partnership in the bakery business near the Newman House, on account of the ill health of Mrs. McKeel.

—An adjourned meeting of the Directors of the Charlevoix County Agricultural Society will be held at East Jordan Monday, July 25th. By order of Secretary.

—The best base ball game of the season will take place at Dixon Park Charlevoix, next Friday afternoon, at 2:30, between the Evart Club, the leaders of the Northern Michigan league, and the Charlevoix team.

—About three hundred druggists, most of them accompanied by ladies, came over on the Grand Rapids from Petoskey, Wednesday, to visit the handsomest town in Northern Michigan. Dr. Crouter gave the excursion.

—Don't forget to attend the Smithson lecture next Wednesday evening. "Egypt and the Orient" by one who has been there, cannot fail to be interesting to all, especially, as the lecture will be embellished with a display of oriental costumes and relics.

—The McGibeney-Davis concert last evening at Opera Hall was a success in every way. Frank and Jessie McGibeney fully sustained their reputations as musical artists, while the Davis sisters took immensely. They have grand voices, which show marks of severe training. Miss Rice, of Petoskey, assisted at the Piano. The audience was large and appreciative.

—Mason & Morgan's justly celebrated Uncle Tom's Cabin Company, appear at Opera Hall to morrow (Thursday) evening. This popular company needs no introduction. Sixteen years ago Mason & Morgan's combination appeared in a tent on a vacant lot now occupied by Opera Block. They have been here several times since, and have always been well received. They always employ the best talent, and lots of it.

—Robert Miller, of this place, is canvassing for Gen. John A. Logan's book, "The Volunteer Soldier." A copy is before us, and we can freely express the opinion that the book must take a place among the leading military works of the age. It will be peculiarly valuable to the soldier reader of America, coming as it does from the pen of the greatest civilian soldier of the late war. It should be in every veteran's home, at least.

—Petoskey Independent: Captain Vanderhoef, of the smart little steamer Thomas Friant, has been known to resorters and citizens for several years as one of the most accommodating of men. An incident occurred the other day which we fear may have a tendency to make him less obliging in the future, and if such should be the case we think it is but justice to Captain Vanderhoef that the people should know the reason. He was running down the south arm of Pine Lake with a large party of people for East Jordan when the passengers were startled by three blasts of the whistle and the boat was headed for the opposite side of the arm. Being asked the reason for the sudden deviation from his course the Captain said: "Don't you see that lady over there on the shore waving her handkerchief? If it was a man I wouldn't stop; but it don't look well to leave a lady." The passengers commended the captain's gallantry, but one tourist who leveled his field glass at the place where the handkerchief was being waved so frantically, notwithstanding the approach of the boat, had a queer expression on his face. The engine had just been checked down when Capt. Vanderhoef, suddenly making a vicious grab at the bell cord, gave four bells and the jingler to go ahead with all speed, and whirled the wheel over so rapidly that it made the rudder chains fairly smoke. Then an old red cow that had been quietly drinking and fighting flies, raised her head from the water and gave her white tail a parting wave as the boat headed out into the lake again. Since that time Capt. Vanderhoef is as wary of signals as Mississippi transports were in war times.

Charlevoix Summer Resort Items.

F. M. Hodge and family have arrived.

Mayor Ranney of Kalamazoo, is on the resort.

The Belvedere dining room has now 170 boarders.

The Ainsworth cottage was occupied Saturday.

Professor Stuart and family have rented the Woodard cottage.

W. B. Moore of East Saginaw, wishes to buy a resort cottage.

J. T. R. McKay and family will occupy their cottage next month.

Mr. Brown and family of Saginaw, have rented the Abbott cottage.

Dr. H. A. Cleland and C. W. Restrick of Detroit, are on the resort.

Mrs. E. Hull and two children of Kalamazoo, are at the Belvedere.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Mather of Chicago, are at Dr. Mather's cottage.

Miss Mabel Dent, of Mitchell, Ont., is visiting at Breezy Point cottage.

Thirty Bay View excursionists took dinner at the Belvedere, yesterday.

H. F. Weiner and family came yesterday and opened their cottage.

All the cottages on the resort are occupied with the exception of four.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Mather leave to-day for Mackinac and Marquette.

Mrs. Dr. Hill and Miss Rowley of Kalamazoo, are at the Merrill cottage.

Eighteen of the thirty-eight rooms at the Belvedere are already occupied.

Miss Alice Wattles and D. D. Brown of Kalamazoo, are at the Willcox cottage.

Geo. Simmonds and wife of Detroit, are guests at the Waterman cottage.

The Belvedere sets the best table this year of any time in its eight years existence.

Mrs. T. F. Giddings and daughter of Kalamazoo, are guests at Mrs. Dewing's cottage.

Miss Madeline King joined her parents on the resort last week, after a winter in Baltimore.

G. E. Bardeen, S. A. Gibson and O. M. Allen came up to attend the annual meeting yesterday.

Miss Helen Newberry and Miss Amy McMillan of Detroit, were guests at Gen. King's cottage last week.

Dr. C. T. Wilbur of Kalamazoo, is at the Belvedere. Dr. Wilbur is the proprietor of the Home for the Feeble Minded.

J. Earl Howard and wife are at the Saterlee cottage for the summer. They came to Petoskey in their private car.

G. A. Carrington and wife, Miss Fannie O'Grady and Miss Louise Fargo of Detroit, are domiciled at the Friend cottage.

At the morning session of the annual meeting a vote of thanks was extended the Charlevoix Manufacturing Co. for the excellent manner in which they filled their contract in building the Belvedere.

With sufficient support guaranteed the Daily Resorter will be resumed next week. Twenty-five or fifty dollars could not be more judiciously expended than in booming the Belvedere through its columns.

Kalamazoo Telegraph: The Signorine Cipriani, of Florence, Italy, two daughters of Count Cipriani, a distinguished officer of the Italian army, arrived here Friday evening direct from their home, to be the guests of Miss Fannie Allen, who made their acquaintance and enjoyed their delightful home in Florence. The young ladies came alone to New York and were received there by friends of Mr. Allen, who after their brief stay in the city, placed them in good hands for their journey to Kalamazoo. At Battle Creek, Glenn Allen met them (they knew him the moment they saw him as Fanny's brother), and there was no embarrassment whatever in their reception here. To-night they leave with Mr. Allen for Charlevoix to pass the summer with Miss Allen and her father's family. The Misses Cipriani speak English and German perfectly and are, we understand, regarded as among the most accomplished young ladies of Italy. Mrs. Stone has met them frequently and admires them very much.

ANNUAL MEETING.

At the annual meeting yesterday afternoon the following officers were elected for the next year: President, Geo. E. Stockbridge; D. B. Merrill, Vice Prest; S. A. Gibson, Treasurer; Fred Hodge, Secretary; Directors, F. Ranney, I. D. Bixby, O. M. Allen, H. P. Parmelee, K. Brooks.

Messrs. Bardeen, Boudeman and King were appointed a special committee to confer with the directors of the D. C. & E. R. R. relative to right of way on the beach adjoining the resort grounds.

Bonds to the amount of $1,500 were ordered, making $7,500 in all.

It was decided to plat Promontory Point into cottage lots. The offer of $3,500 for the point was refused.

WHEREAS, during the past year the destroying hand of death has removed from our midst Hale W. Page, John West, Prof. Edward Olney, Mrs. J. S. Easterbrook and Miss Gertie Sears,

BE IT RESOLVED, that we desire hereby to testify to the eminent worth of our deceased members and associates, of their sterling virtues, of their high moral characters and of their prominent standing as citizens in the communities in which they lived.

We especially desire to express our appreciation of the interest which H. W. Page, one of the founders of the resort, and John West, one of its leading members, have always taken in this association. We fully appreciate their interesting energy and their effective labors which have brought us so much of the success which we have attained and of the prosperity which we now enjoy.

While we bow to the will of the higher power we can but mourn our irretrievable loss and we extend our heartfelt sympathies to the families of our departed associates and direct that a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to each by the Secretary.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

CHARLEVOIX, JULY 20, 1887.

Jacob Sharpe has valvular heart disease, an incurable malady.

They say a $2,000,000 syndicate is going to build Washington a hotel as is a hotel.

Germany and Austria have revoked the order forbidding the exportation of horses.

A famine is reported in Iceland, many people and cattle having already perished for the want of food.

The imports of dry goods at the port of New York for the week ending Friday were $2,526,092. The amount thrown on the market was $2,276,096.

The record division of the Bureau of Pensions recorded during the last fiscal year a total of 176,879 cases, of which 51,873 were original cases, 18,725 Mexican claims, and 106,310 applications for increase.

Several Michiganders who emigrated to Tennessee a few months ago have come back persuaded that Michigan was good enough for them, and farming in the uplands of East Tennessee not what it was cracked up to be.

Some years ago Pope Leo predicted that Dr. McGlynn, then a young man, would "make his mark in the church." The mark has been made, but it seems to be a black one, which the sponge of excommunication fails to wipe out entirely.

The attendance at the National Educational Convention, now in session in Chicago, is very large, being somewhat more than 12,000, most of whom are ladies. Chicago ought to be on her good behavior, with so many school marms within her borders.

The Baltimore Herald asks: "Is Mr. Blaine playing 'possum?" It doesn't look like it. Instead of being "up de gum tree" in feigned somnolence, Mr. Blaine is simply working up his boom on English soil, and in a manner which shows beyond peradventure that he is very much alive.

The New York Tribune has made a great discovery. It says that the persons burned to death in the recent fire at Hurley, Wis., would not have lost their lives if they had "instantly rushed into the open air." In other words, they wouldn't have been burned if they had kept out of the fire.

The Texas prohibitionists decline to accept the services of John P. St. John in their canvass. They don't want any third party boss to come there and destroy all their chances for success. The anti-prohibitionists might score a point by hiring St. John to make a few speeches just before election.

The Portland (Me.) Advertiser says forty drunkards were locked up in that city Monday night. Public sentiment in Portland must be a long way behind the prohibition law, which does not prohibit in that city. Where public sentiment favors prohibition, as it does in the smaller towns, the law is generally enforced. This shows the advantage of local option.

In reply to Jeff Davis' letter claiming that ex-Governor Curtin, of Pennsylvania, in 1861 pardoned a desperado and offered him $100,000 if he would assassinate Davis, Mr. Curtin says there is not one word of truth in the story. Mr. Davis claims to have received his information from an anonymous correspondent. If he had been a newspaper man he would have thrown the communication into the waste basket and kept right on talking politics just as though nothing had happened. It beats all how the presidents are coming to the front with their martyr clothes on.

Probably none of the justices sitting upon the bench of the Supreme Court to-day will leave as deep a mark on the institutions of our country, and they certainly have not so greatly distinguished themselves in other branches of the public service, as some of their predecessors have done. But I believe that the bench has never been filled by jurists of such even equipment as those now comprising the Supreme Court, for dealing with the questions they have to pass upon; or of equal ability to get through successfully with the great masses of business that yearly finds its way to their docket. And I do not wish to be understood as saying that the standard of individual attainments of the court is not high. Their legal learning and judicial experiences are, I believe, in most instances, greater to-day than ever before in the history of the court, and there certainly has never been a time in the last century when the decisions of the Supreme Court have been less frequently questioned than now.—Ex.

Northern Michigan News.

Indians are spearing a large number of sturgeon on the "middle ground," at Northport.

The sum of $3,230.50 was voted to be spread for school purposes at Mancelona for the ensuing year.

Kalkaska is somewhat disturbed over the fact that fast trains on the G. R. and I. only stop on signal. In other words it is dropped to a flag station.

The gross earnings of the Grand Rapids and Indiana Road for the six months ending June 30 aggregated $1,335,740, an increase of $254,... over last year.

The Independent says: Adam Shaum, who resides on section 26 in Melrose township, has found fire clay in paying quantities on his farm, and also indications of coal in abundance.

Elk Rapids wants water works. Dexter & Noble will furnish power very cheap, and one man stands ready to take $1,000 stock. Only five more such men are needed to make it a success.

Quite a number of Bellaire's citizens have put in a good portion of their time the past week picking huckleberries near Spencer Creek. The crop is exceedingly plentiful this season.

The teachers' institute for Antrim County will be held at Bellaire commencing Monday, Aug. 1, and continuing till the afternoon of Friday following. Full particulars may be had by applying to C. S. Guile, local committee.

Up in Marquette County, Game Warden Dolf had ... over the coals for ... of season. They paid ... and a good sized bill ... new game law is bound ... to the reckless destruction ... and fish.

The Kalkaskian ... G. R. and I. R. R. Co. ... to have a little revenge ... for trying to get another ... reduced that town to ... for all night trains. ... that large corporations ... have small souls.

Next Monday the ... the Mackinac division ... gan Central will begin ... weather service ... trains leaving terminal ... morning. Before the ... on all Michigan ... these flags will be ... are four flags—fair ... flag; rain, a blue flag ... black swallow-tail ... white flag with black ... will be displayed on ... baggage car. A white ... black flag indicates ... lowed by rain and ... white, a black, and ... fair weather, rain, ... er weather. If no ... is displayed, the ... to be sleeping.

Cadillac Express: ... of Bay Springs, stopped ... over Sunday, on his ... Ohio, where he goes ... new locomotive ... Lima Machine Works ... year, of Buffalo, N. ... says the locomotive ... year is the most powerful ... from his patent; ... drivers and there will ... weight on the drivers ... be used on a very heavy ... of 1,100 feet in three ...

——The members of the ... Business Men's Association ... flies to roost on their ... tion is laying out its ... improvements, and ... ever will tend to benefit ... the town. The association ... all in its power to ... velop Bellaire and ... try, and the vim and ... manifested by the ... evidence that success ... crown its efforts.

Boyne Citizen: ... mous trout streams ... Michigan there is ... our own noted Boyne ... size and fine mottling ... from it. Scarcely ... we hear of monstrous ... ties being taken from ... our numerous ... The fore part of the ... most ardent disciple ... ton captured three ... twenty minutes, ... weights being 6 pounds ... One of these fish ... Lewis' trout box, ... the largest, tipped ... pounds and 3 ounces ... it.——Three bears ... vicinity of Deer Lake ... morning. The explanation ... usual an occurrence ... they were alarmed ... dan bagpipes and ... ward, regardless.—— ... line to Hortons Bay ... was completed and ... on Wednesday. The ... former is located at ... for the latter at ... prove a great convenience to the public.

...

Alfred Krupp, the well-known German steel manufacturer and gigantic steel ... d on the 14th ... ssen, Rheinish ... was born at ...

...eport that the ... reek has been ... raging. Crop ... od. The finan... York is better ... disbursements ... eipts by nearly ... week. There ... orted for the ... previous week.

...

TIME CARDS OF STEAMERS

...

HANNAH, LAY & CO'S BOATS.

CITY OF GRAND RAPIDS, ... Capt. O. E. WITHER.

Going North, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays: Leave Traverse City 7 a m; Northport 9-30; Charlevoix 1-30; Petoskey 1 30 p m; Harbor Springs 2, Cross Village 4:30; Mackinac Island 7-45 arriving at St Ignace 8-20.

Going South, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays: Leave St. Ignace 6 a m; Mackinac Island 7 Cross Village 10-15; Harbor Springs 12-45 p m. Petoskey 1-15; Charlevoix 2-45; Northport 5.15 p m, arriving at Traverse City at 7-45 p m.

J. L. Hud & Co., Agents, Charlevoix.

Bank of Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security

Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers

Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to Speculate with ones own money, is folly; that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking

Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors; and, believing that it furnishes unusual guarantees, therefore,

This Bank Invites

People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will

Borrow Investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking

Productive employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes,

Now earning Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S

LIVERY STABLE

CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.

Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

Farming Lands

500,000 ACRES

Of Splendid

MICHIGAN LANDS

For Sale By The

G. R. & I. R. R.

50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.

These lands are timbered with beech and maple elm and other wood and are accessible to best markets

By Water and Rail

And are in a state unequalled for health, well watered and contiguous to the great fruit raising section of Michigan

The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad runs through the center of the grant. The part of Michigan in which these goods are situated is

Not a Wilderness by any Means.

It contains a population of 250,000 souls and is rapidly filling up with settlers from almost every state in the Union

Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold.

Send for English or German Pamphlet, Address

W. R. HUGHART, Commissioner,

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.

TITLE PERFECT.

...

Dated, June 28, 1887.

D. B. JERRIE, Sheriff.
By Wm. Schooner, Deputy Sheriff.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys for Plaintiffs. [1017

Mortgage Sale.

Five certain mortgages, to-wit: one bearing date, December fifth, 1878, executed by Mariam Woolf and Martin Woolf to David Carpenter, recorded in the office of Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Mich, December 7th, 1878, in Liber 3 of Mortgages, at page 271 and 272, upon which the whole amount is due and unpaid, to-wit: The sum of Three hundred and twenty-seven dollars and twenty cents, ($327.20); one bearing date Sept. 13, 1879, executed by Mariam Woolf and Martin Woolf to David Carpenter, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Mich., Sept. 29th, 1879, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, at page 87, upon which the whole amount is due and unpaid to-wit: One hundred and eight dollars and thirty-two cents [$108.32]; one bearing date April 6, 1880, executed by Mariam Woolf and Martin Woolf to David Carpenter, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Mich, April 15th, 1880, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, at page 149, upon which the whole amount is now due and unpaid, the sum of Two hundred and four dollars and thirty-two cents [$204.32]; one bearing date April 1, 1882, executed by Martin Woolf and Mariam Woolf to Clay E. Call, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Mich, April 17th, 1882, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, at page 513, which Mortgage was duly assigned by Clay E. Call to David Carpenter, September 26, 1882, by deed of assignment, which is recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Michigan, September 12, 1884, in Liber 10 of Mortgages, at page 675, upon which the whole amount is now due and unpaid, to-wit: Eighty-seven dollars and forty-eight cents [$87.48]; also a mortgage dated September 24, 1882, executed by Martin Woolf and Mariam Woolf to David Carpenter, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Charlevoix county, Michigan, Sept. 26, 1882, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, on page 610, upon which the whole amount is due, to wit: Six hundred and twenty four dollars and eleven cents, [$624.11]; for the recovery of the sum secured by said mortgages or either of them, no suit or proceedings at law having been instituted, will be foreclosed under the power of sale therein contained, by a statutory sale of the premises therein described as the North half of the north-west quarter of section thirty-three, Town thirty-four, North of Range six West, Charlevoix county, Michigan, to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House, so-called, in the village of Boyne City, in said County, that being the place where the Circuit Court for said county, is held, at 12 o'clock noon, September 22, 1887.

DAVID CARPENTER,
Mortgagee and Assignee of said Mortgages,
HART & CALL, Attorneys for Mortgagee.
Dated, June 25, 1887. 1013

CHARLEVOIX

Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS

Henry Bennett, O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls, A. Buttars,
A. R. Upright, A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL $25,000
SURPLUS 2,000

The liabilities of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art. 3174, Sec. 19 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:

National Park Bank - - - New York.
Commercial Nat. Bank - - - Chicago.
Nat. City Bank - - - Grand Rapids.
Detroit Nat. Bank - - - Detroit.

WAYNE COUNTY SAVINGS BANK
DETROIT, - - MICH.
$500,000 TO INVEST IN BONDS

Issued by cities, counties, towns and school districts of Michigan. Officers of these municipalities about to issue Bonds will find it to their advantage to apply to this Bank. Blank Bonds and blanks for proceedings supplied without charge. All communications and inquiries will have prompt attention.
May 27. S. D. ELWOOD, Treasurer.

W. A. REYNARD,

Has just received at his Fruit Store in the Lewis Block, a choice line of

Vegetables and Fruits

OF ALL KINDS,

TO WHICH OTHERS WILL BE ADDED IN SEASON.

I will also keep in stock a full line of

Tobaccos and Cigars.

Butter and Eggs a Specialty.

Itch, Prairie Mange and Scratches of every kind cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Use no other. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix

If you want anything in the furniture line go to S. M. See & Sons.

Bargains in Baby carriages at S. M. See & Sons.

CROSS & SONS.,

Buy and Sell all kinds of

Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.

Charlevoix, - Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY,

Photographer.

In Bradbeer's Gallery.

Photographs of all sizes taken.

Old Pictures copied and enlarged.

CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

New JEWELRY AND SILVER WARE.

I have just received a very fine stock of

Watches, Chains, Pins, Clocks, Silver-Ware, etc

which I will sell at Prices lower than the same goods can be purchased outside.

Did it ever occur to you that by patronizing home Merchants you were benefiting yourselves?

All classes of Repairing done quickly.

C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,

ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR,

—ON—

Chalevoix Summer Resorts.

I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.

I employ only first-class workmen, both

Carpenters and Painters.

Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention

J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

Fox & Miller

Offer a

Mammoth Stock

OF

BOOTS, SHOES

and other

FOOT WEAR,

--AT--

LOWER PRICES

Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a FIRST-CLASS SHOEMAKER,

And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

The Kalamazoo

"DAILY TELEGRAPH."

Contains the Associated Press Dispatches

Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.

Charlevoix, Mich.

Manufacturers of and Wholesale and Retail Dealers

3 EXTRA GRADES OF

FLOUR

Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

M. LITNEY, JOS. STEIMEL

Litney & Steimel

LIVERY,

And Feed Barn

Charlevoix, Mich.

Good Rigs at Lowest Rates.

It Pays to Buy the

BEST BOATS!

The large number of boats I have built for resorters, are advertisements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.

I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the

LEAST MONEY!

All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.

LEAVE ORDERS

with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.

Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.

J. BEAUVAIS.

BOOTS & SHOES

Have you seen our $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00 Gents Shoes?

If not do so at once. They are made solid throughout even to the counter. You'll have no trouble with these goods running over at the heel.

These goods cannot be equalled in the county

Either in style, quality or price. We will take pains this season to have in stock goods that will suit all. New ad. soon on Ladies' Fine Shoes of latest styles New York, Common Sense, and London Toes.

Ladies Look Out

For the new line of latest style goods that is on the road for

D. SHERWOOD & CO.

A. J. McLEOD,

Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at

Wholesale or Retail

All kinds of

FRESH MEATS,

SALT PORK,

SMOKED & SALTED

HAMS,

Dried and Smoked

BACON, DRIED BEEF, Bologna, Head Cheese, Sausage.

Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.

Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.

A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S

MARKET

Is supplied with

All Kinds Of

MEATS

At Lowest Prices.

CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.

Corner of State & Mason sts.,

JOHN McCABE.

Washburn & Ackert,

FOUNDREYMEN, MACHINISTS,

And Manufacturers of The

Charlevoix Plow.

Take The Sentinel.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. MILA EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law. Office in Buttars' Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PAILTHORP & GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon, 4 doors west of Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office at residence, Main st. Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 119, meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows' hall

MASONIC.—Charlevoix lodge No. 282, F. & A. M Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Post-office.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake lodge No. 293, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' hall

K. O. T. M.—Resort Tent No. 188, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' Hall.

L. O. L.—True Blues No. 157, meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. 104, R. A. M. meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 136, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of the members, during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.

President—Byron See.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller.
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strang.
Financial Secretary—R. Suffield.
Treasurer—Albert E. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Mila Eaton, A. R. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. Lee Iddings, W. A. Brown and C. Y. Cook.
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, M. J. Stockman, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, R. W. Miller, S. M. See, W. C. Newman, E. M. Clark, H. Berdan.

All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequalled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,

RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.

Charlevoix, - - - Mich.

Easy convenience for the traveling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids Stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,

Lorenzo Cook, Manager

Charlevoix, - - - Mich.

The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only 100 feet to Steamboat Landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE.

W. C. Newman, Prop'r.

Charlevoix, - - Mich.

Fitted up with a view to the Comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central Location.

PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and Dock work solicited at any point between Traverse City and Mackinaw. L. E. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

MUNROE'S STEAM PILE DRIVER. Dock owners and Builders, look to your interest. Contracts taken and dock work solicited at any point between Sault St Marie and Grand Haven. Correspondence promptly attended to. Address,
JOHN MUNROE, Jr., Gen'l Manager, South Arm, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. R. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. [Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.]

DENTIST

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office in Weed's Drug Store, Charlevoix, Mich.

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R

"Mackinac Short Line."

Only direct line between the east and south and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Going West read down		Stations	Going East read up
	5 45 pm	Detroit	11 10 am
7 00 am	8 50 am	St Ignace	8 20 pm	5 55 pm
10 25	8 52	Newberry	6 25	[illegible]
12 20	9 40	Seney	5 15	12 35
	10 42	Reedsboro	4 15
3 25	11 31	Au Train	3 25	9 05
5 30	12 40	Marquette	2 15	7 00
	12 50 pm	Marquette	2 00 pm
	1 55	Ishpeming	12 58
	4 10	L'Anse	10 40
	5 30	Houghton	9 20
	6 35	Calumet	8 15

Connections made with M T Co's boats, M C & G R & I R R & M H & O
E. W. ALLEN, Gen Pass Agt, Marquette

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad

In effect September 27, 1886.

(Trains run on Central Standard Time.)

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	No 6	No 8	No 1
Mackinaw City Lv	7 15 a m	9 30 p m
Petoskey	8 34	10 51
Boyne Falls	9 16	11 30
Mancelona	10 12	12 20
Walton Junc.	11 50	1 50	5 15 p m
Cadillac Ar	12 40	2 50	6 10
Cadillac Lv	12 45	6 05	6 30
Le Roy	1 24	6 46	7 07
Reed City Ar	1 55	7 20	7 40
Reed City Lv	2 15	7 45	8 00
Big Rapids	2 48	8 11	8 34
Stanwood	3 05	8 30	8 55
Howard City	3 33	9 03	9 26
D G H & M Cross	4 40	10 15	10 35
Grand Rapids Ar	4 55	10 20	10 50
Grand Rapids Lv	7 15	5 15	11 45
Plainwell	8 36	6 43	1 12
Kalamazoo Ar	9 05	7 10	1 40
Kalamazoo Lv	9 10	7 30	2 00
Sturgis	10 27	8 53	3 28
Ft Wayne Ar	12 40	11 20	6 00
Ft Wayne Lv	1 00	11 45
Richmond	4 30	3 35
Cincinnati Ar	7 30	7 25

GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.	No 3	No 5	No 7
Cincinnati, leave	7 35 a m	7 20 p m
Richmond	10 20	10 00
Fort Wayne Ar	1 60	1 15
Fort Wayne Lv	2 10	3 00
Sturgis	4 24	5 25
Kalamazoo Ar	5 45	6 55
Kalamazoo Lv	5 50	7 20
Plainwell	6 16	7 48
Grand Rapids Ar	7 10	9 20
Grand Rapids Lv	11 30	4 55
R., G., H., & M. cross	11 45	5 10
Howard City	12 52	6 18
Stanwood	1 27	6 48
Big Rapids	1 45	7 08
Reed City Ar	2 15	7 40
Reed City Lv	2 35	8 00
Le Roy	3 08	8 33
Cadillac Ar	3 45	9 10
Cadillac Lv	3 55	9 30
Walton Junc	4 45	10 25
Mancelona	6 16	11 50
Boyne Falls	7 11	12 52
Petoskey	7 50	1 30
Mackinaw City	9 00	3 55

C. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass. Agent.

KITCHEN CONFIDENCES.

What shall be done with the fat? Is it good for anything but to be thrown away? ... wasting anything ... practical question ... "We eat all our soap ... somewhat startling ... most particular of N... keepers, to an app... gate. Neatness ... strong points, and ... her would not for a ... of using for food any ... desirable.

...

An Enterprising, Reliable House.

Dr. G. W. Crouter and Crouter & Harris, Ironton, can always be relied upon, not only to carry in stock the best of everything, but to secure the Agency for such articles as have well-known merit, and are popular with the people, thereby sustaining the reputation of being always enterprising, and ever reliable. Having secured the Agency for the celebrated Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, will sell it on a positive guarantee. It will surely cure any and every affection of Throat, Lungs, and Chest, and to show our confidence, we invite you to call and get a Trial Bottle Free.

An Answer Wanted.

Can any one bring us a case of Kidney or Liver Complaint that Electric Bitters will not speedily cure? We say they can not, as thousands of cases already permanently cured and who are daily recommending Electric Bitters, will prove. Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Weak back, or any urinary complaint quickly cured. They purify the blood, regulate the bowels, and act directly on the diseased parts. Every bottle guaranteed. For sale at 50c. a bottle by Dr. G. W. Crouter

THAT HACKING COUGH can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's Cure. We guarantee it.

WILL YOU SUFFER with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS, made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you.

CATARRH CURED, health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Nasal injector free Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

Land for Sale.

I have 5 acres just east of the cemetery, one mile from town, nearly all cleared, which I will sell cheap for cash, or approved paper. Address
JAMES METCALF, Charlevoix.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter chapped hands chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter

W. H. FRANCIS

FURNITURE

—AND—

JOBBING SHOP.

Will also do

Contracting & Building.

In Charlevoix and Summer Resorts.

I keep in my shop a full set of hand and foot power machinery which enables me to do jobbing, repairing etc. on short notice.

Shop on South Terrace,

Opposite Sheriff Berdan's residence.

MILLINERY,

FANCY GOODS,

DRESS-MAKING.

We have just opened a large line of Spring and Summer Millinery and Fancy Goods to which we invite your attention.

DRESS-MAKING done on the TAILOR SYSTEM The best work done at the lowest rates.

ALDRICH SISTERS.

Ingleside Building.

MERCHANT

TAILORING.

I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.

Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.

Call and see me. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,

C. H. Maddaugh.

CHARLEVOIX

Manufacturing Co.

Charlevoix, Mich.,

Manufacturers of

Sash and Doors,

Blinds, Mouldings etc.

NEWELL

Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails

kept in stock.

Window & Door Frames made to order.

All Kinds of

Building Material

Kept constantly on hand.

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS.

Furnished on application.

Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building

Correspondence solicited.

"MARVELOUS PRICES!"

BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away. ...

...

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.

We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $2.00; or we will send any five for 25 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of "SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

GRENADES.

Two Sizes—Pints and Quarts.

Over Sixty Millions Sold.

PRICES.

Pints. - Per Doz., $10.00.
Quarts. - " " 15.00.

"STAR" Tubular Fire Extinguisher,

... in this device we combine the BEST QUALITIES of our famous Grenades with the NEW feature of having an article that can be used by Sprinkling. It is designed especially for use in Passenger Coaches and Dwellings. It is elegant in ornamentation. It is cheap and durable. Nonrust; no corrosion possible.

Plain, $12.00 per doz.
Ornament'd, 15.00 per doz.

The "Star" EXTINGUISHER

Holds 6 gallons, and will force a stream through 6 feet of hose 45 feet with our pump, which is the best ever made. Needs no attention until used. Will not freeze, explode or get out of order. No rust or corrosion. Can be used by anyone.

Price, $80.00 Each.

"STAR" CHEMICAL.

... Price. $200.00 Each.

Four years of practical use have demonstrated these to be the only reliable and thoroughly efficient Hand Fire Appliances made. We use the same chemical liquid in all, and guarantee fully. Liberal discounts to agents. Send for circulars and testimonials.

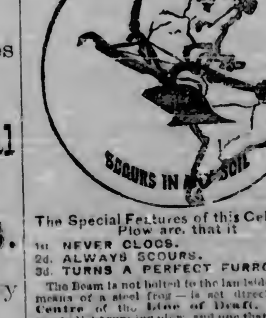
The HARDEN HAND GRENADE CO.

81 & 83 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Take The Sentinel.

SOMETHING NEW.

WORLD RENOWNED CENTRE DRAFT PLOW



The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are, that it

1st. NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d. TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.

The Beam is not bolted to the land side, but—by means of a steel frog—is set directly in the Centre of the Line of Draft, making a steady light running plow, and one that cannot be Clogged. Be sure to see before you buy. If your Agent has none write us for price.

J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS, RACINE, Wis.

PAINTS!

STOVES, HARDWARE, TINWARE, FISHING TACKLE, NOTIONS, ETC., ETC.

THE BEST FORCE PUMPS,

FARMING IMPLEMENS.

JOB AND TIN WORK.

L. D. Bartholomew & Co.

JOB AND TIN WORK.

DRUGS and STATIONERY,

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

A Large and Complete New Line

JUST RECEIVED.

EVERYTHING

YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

The only News stand in town.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN

Boiler Works!

Builder and Manufacturer of

BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.

Sheet Iron Work given special attention.

MARINE WORK a specialty.

HENRY BARTH, Prop.
Charlevoix, Mich.

HUMPHREYS'

DR. HUMPHREYS' BOOK
Cloth & Gold Binding
144 Pages, with Steel Engraving,
MAILED FREE.
Address, P. O. Box 1810, N. Y.

HOMEOPATHIC SPECIFICS.

Sold by Druggists, or sent postpaid on receipt of price.—HUMPHREYS' MEDICINE CO. 109 Fulton St. N. Y.

CURES

Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, Whooping Cough, Quinzy, Sore Throat, Consumption, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Diseases.

YOUNG'S COUGH SYRUP

Sold by all druggists. Price, 25c., 50c. and $1.00 Large bottles sent free on receipt of price.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Pan Zama Balm

THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Troubles to which womankind is heir—$1 per box of one month's treatment. Reliable Lady Agents can make money for themselves and become benefactors to their race by engaging in the sale of this remedy. For medicine and particulars, Address
PAN-ZAMA MED. CO., Frankfort, Ind.

160 Acres in MARION

Township For Sale at a Bargain. Terms to suit.

MONEY TO LOAN ON

Approved Real Estate Security.

THEODORE R. CHAPIN
Boyne City.

FRANK E. WOODS

Bath & Barber Rooms

Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd fellows Block.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS.

Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.

If you want a quiet place to get a shave, hair dress or bath call and see me.

JAY L. PRICE.

NEW SHOP!

All kinds of Blacksmithing,

At the

Shop in the Foundry Building.

Horseshoeing a specialty.

ALL WORK GUARANTEED.

M. SCOTT.

1-3 OFF SALE!

At Miss Spaulding's

MILLINERY ROOMS,

I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.

Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $5.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed felt hat in the store.

Come early and secure a Bargain.

MISS L. SPAULDING.

JAS. A. GELLICK,

Dealer in

Choice Wines,

Fine Liquors

EXCELLENT CIGARS.

We call Special Attention to our

Old Kentucky Sour Mash WHISKIES.

We also keep continually on draught

Milwaukee Export and lager Beer.

Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel

Charlevoix Sentinel.
Established, 1869.
WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.
CHARLEVOIX, JULY 20, 1887.

KILLED BY THE CARS.

Wm. Flanagin, of Atwood, Meets With a Sudden Death in Chicago.

On the 15th a dispatch was received at Atwood announcing the startling fact that Wm. Flanagin had that morning been killed by the cars.

Daniel Flanagin, his brother, started at once for Chicago after the body, which is expected on the Lawrence as we write, the funeral occurring at his home to-day at 2 p. m.

There did not live within the county of Antrim a man who possessed more loyal friends than did Wm. Flanagin. Seventeen years ago, as a young man just arriving at his majority, he left his father's farm without means, but with a bright mind and an honest heart. By the labor of his own hands he accumulated enough money to purchase a small stock of goods with which he opened a modest store at Atwood. His business integrity, and his excellent qualities of head and heart won for him friends in Banks and adjoining towns who never left him, and who now deeply mourn his loss.

At the time of his death he was a prosperous merchant and shipper, owning a store and considerable land at Atwood, and a saw-mill and store at Kewadin. His word was as good as his bond, and in commercial circles few rated better.

He was always a gentleman, courteous and kind, as gentle in disposition as a woman, and generous to a fault.

There is great sorrow among the people of Banks to-day, and with them the writer of this mourns for the loss of a friend of nearly twenty years. He was always the same, a true man, and what more can be said in his praise?

Religious.

The children of the Loyal Legion will have a picnic in Mr. Inwood's grove next Saturday afternoon. A good time is expected. There will be exercises at 3 o'clock; supper at 5. The children are requested to bring lunch baskets and to come early.

Bible reading Thursday and Friday evenings at 7:30 p. m. at the Congregational church.

Gospel meeting at Opera Hall on Sunday evening at 7:30 p. m.

Bible readings next week at M. E. church on Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.;

Gospel Services.

The first of the Sayles Sunday evening gospel meetings was held last Sabbath evening at Opera Hall, on which occasion the largest audience that probably ever assembled in Charlevoix listened to the singing Evangelist. Fully 600 people were in the hall, and many went away unable to get standing room. The after-meeting was profitable, at the close of which many tarried to greet the young preacher. Mr. Sayles will conduct the meeting at the same place next Sunday evening.

Episcopal Church.

Evening Prayer and Bible study at Opera Hall at 3 p. m. on Sunday. Subject: "God's law of growth in the Natural and Spiritual Kingdom." See St. Luke 4-26. Sunday school re-organized. Let every one interested in this mission and whosoever will come.

Elsewhere.

Preaching in the Ironton M. E. church next Sabbath morning and evening by the pastor.

Rev. W. H. McCartney, pastor of the Charlevoix M. E. Church, will preach at Ironton Congregational Church on Sabbath afternoon at 3

—The "Weitzel place," in Marion, is advertised for sale in this issue.

Notice to Contractors.

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Detroit, Charlevoix & Escanaba Railroad Co., in Charlevoix, Michigan, until Wednesday, the 10th day of August, A. D. 1887, at 12 o'clock noon, for the clearing, grubbing, grading and bridging of the first division of the Detroit, Charlevoix & Escanaba Railroad, from Charlevoix to Kalkaska, a distance of fifty-one miles. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids. The map and profile of said road can be seen at the Engineer's office in Charlevoix, where any other information desired in reference to same will be furnished.

Charlevoix, July 19, 1887.

J. MILO EATON, Secretary.

ICE CREAM PAR EXCELLENCE.

We would respectfully inform the public that we have at considerable expense, prepared and suitably furnished our Band Pagoda as an Ice Cream parlor, and have placed it at the head of all similar institutions in Charlevoix. It will be open for the use of the public at all times save on Wednesday evenings, when there will be a Grand Concert by the Band. Our cream will be as good as can be made. Just received a large lot of Ice Cream Packages holding from one quart to one or more gallons, which will be loaned to customers for safely carrying cream to their homes. The quality of our cream speaks for itself. Our stock of foreign and domestic Fruits is always large and of the best quality. We carry as fine a line of confectionery, nuts, etc., as can be found in town.

Respectfully,
O. W. SMITH.

NOTICE.

The late Champlain disaster has placed me in close financial circumstances. Therefore it is necessary for me to collect all outstanding indebtedness. All Owing me will please call and pay.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Rosenthal & Son

continue business at the old stand in the See Block,
IN THE LINE OF
Indian Basket & and Bark Work.
Call and look over our Stock.
ROSENTHAL & SON.

POSITIVELY THE FINEST LINE OF

CLOTHING

AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS YOU EVER SAW IN CHARLEVOIX,

JUST RECEIVED FOR SUMMER WEAR.

Prices are unusually low this Spring and if you need anything in my line, just step in.

Now is a Grand Time To Obtain Bargains.

GEO. W. MILLER.

A. T. WASHBURNE AND CO.

OUR SECOND INVOICE OF SUMMER GOODS HAS ARRIVED.

We wish to call especial attention to the elegant line of wash goods now on our counters, as we never before have received such an assortment. We are confident they will be appreciated by all.

NEW EMBROIDERIES, LACES and LINENS. Our line of Corsets and Corset Waists is excelled nowhere in the state. See what we can give you for 25 cents in a Corset.

NEW DRESS GOODS, CARPETS, FANCY GOODS

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

Successors to F. W. CRAINE & CO.

REFITTED!

Our store is fully completed and we cordially invite our friends and patrons to call and inspect a choice assortment of new

DRY GOODS & GROCERIES

new Goods arriving nearly every day. Our stock of Groceries is the Largest, Choicest, Cleanest, and our Prices the Lowest. We're busy and haven't got arranged yet, but we want to see you just as we are.

J. L. HURD & CO.

Grand Summer Slaughter!

TOO MANY GOODS FOR THE SEASON.

ALL DEPARTMENTS TO BE REDUCED.

My stock of Spring and Summer Dress Goods and Parasols is large and in order to close out stock in the shortest time possible, I will sell so that all can save money.

Do you wish a fine Dress? Do you need dresses for your children? Do you wish a few yards extra of Spring Suiting? Do you think of making over an old dress? Do you wish a bargain in dress Goods; If you do, don't miss examining my stock. It will pay you to call.

Our stock of Carpets has never been as large and complete as now and at prices that cannot be undersold. The stock comprises everything to be found in a first-class Carpet House. Our Drapery Department is replete with all the novelties.

Hats and Caps from 5 Cents up.

MEN'S YOUTHS'
BOYS' and CHILDREN'S
Clothing that cannot fail to suit the most exacting in style.

GIVE ME A CALL,
ALICK ROSENTHAL,
LEWIS BLOCK.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XIX. NO.—13 CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1887. WHOLE NO. 922

"BUG FINISH!"

The new Potato Bug exterminator. We warrant it to give satisfaction. Very cheap. All ready for use. Requires no mixing. Try it.

STRICTLY PURE PARIS GREEN

We have in stock the purest article to be found in the market. It's sure death every time. Buy no other.

Sure Death To Currant Worms!

For these pests we have a pure article of White Hellebore. When ever used it acts like magic not leaving a worm on the bush.

PURE DALMATION INSECT POWDER

The best thing for Flies and other insects.

A trial of any of the above is bound to prove satisfactory,

F. G. HINES & CO.
Druggists.

EMREY BROS.

Boots and Shoes for almost nothing, to close out.

We have a number of pairs of Boots and Shoes which we will almost give away as we are closing them out.

We are also going out of

CROCKERY

and have a complete assortment which must be sold

WE WILL NOT TAKE A BACK SEAT ON

SUMMER DRY GOODS.

PRICES ALWAYS LOW.

IN GROCERIES and Provisions we can suit you, as we receive Fresh Goods weekly.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

B A R K
WANTED!

We Hold our Custom because our Prices are Always Low.

OUR SUMMER ASSORTMENT OF

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

now being received is the finest we ever offered

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in

FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN

BOOTS and SHOES.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces

EVERYTHING

usually found in a General Store.

Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours.

Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

A Word with You!

IF YOU WILL COME TO OUR STORE WE HOPE TO BE ABLE TO CONVINCE YOU THAT WE TRY TO ENABLE YOU TO

Save Your Dollars

BY BUYING ANYTHING IN THE HARDWARE LINE

OF US.

YOU KNOW WHO "US" IS BY THIS TIME OR

IF YOU DON'T YOU SHOULD

WE ARE HARDWARE, IRON, AND NAIL MERCHANTS. SELL LOTS OF GOODS AND SELL 'EM CHEAP.

It's money in your pocket to buy of S. & I. and Don't You For------ ----!

Resp'y, STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

The Best Groceries At The Lowest Prices

ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF

A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

New Furniture

AT S. M. SEE & SONS!

We have just received an entirely new stock of Furniture of every discription.

Dealing exclusively in Furniture we are confident we can make it an object to all wishing to buy to call and inspect our stock.

UNDERTAKING A Specialty.

J. MILO EATON'S

REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE, AND LOAN OFFICE.

The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice

WANTED!

Everyone to know that we are here and doing Business, and will do just as we agree to by one and all. We keep

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS, FLOUR AND FEED, CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

Choice Butter and Fresh Eggs a Specialty. Call on us or order by Telephone.

WILL SEE & CO.

Charlevoix Sentinel.
The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY
SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, Michigan.
Address all business correspondence to the firm
TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year - $1.50 | Six months - $.75
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—"Egypt and the Orient" at Opera Hall to-night.

—Linney & Steimel have put a telephone in their livery stable.

—W. S. Johnson, of Sutton's Bay, was over the first of the week.

—J. S. Smithson made a flying business trip to Toronto last week.

—Engineer Beardslee's wife and son came up from Grand Rapids last week.

—Messrs. Cherrie and Meech are among the millionaires in New York to-day.

—Mrs. Martha Ayers was in town this week, looking after her property interests.

—Mrs. Niles P. Anderson has erected a neat residence on her farm in Marion.

—M. J. Stockman has the iron on the ground for a new fence around his premises.

—Emrey Bros. have a new and interesting advertisement in this issue. Read it carefully.

—The engineers are still at work in their office on the maps and profiles of the railroad.

—Mr. Dale, a Chicago druggist, is quite ill at his cottage on the Upright & Hurlbut addition.

—The steam yachts Osie and Beulah B had a race on Pine Lake Friday in which the former was successful.

—This evening, at Opera Hall, the Smithson lecture on "Egypt and the Orient," occurs. Don't fail to hear it.

—Frank E. Wood started a branch barber shop at the Belvedere House to-day, with John Wagner in charge.

—George H. Van Pelt and C. H. Ferguson, more or less residents of Norwood, passed through here on their way to Chicago Monday.

—Mr. Frank McGilbeney joined the family at Milton, Wis., last week. Mrs. McGilbeney still lingers here, but will join the family next week.

—J. T. Kirkpatrick will leave this week or next for a visit to the home of his childhood, at Oshawa, Ont., after an absence of fifteen years.

—The Torch Lake base ball club should practice a little with the Norwood or Atwood boys before they tackle a metropolitan club again.

—The fine Arlington band will furnish the music at the Smithson lecture at Opera Hall to-night. This feature of the entertainment alone will be a rare treat.

—The yacht Countess, of Chicago, with a party of ladies and gentlemen on board, spent a few days in these —Dr. L. M. Kanagy, of Atwood, made us a pleasant call yesterday.

—Mrs. Gow and children returned to their home in Cadillac yesterday.

—Al Washburne & Co have a circular letter in this issue to the trading public.

—Prof. Bryant Weed, of the Thompson schools, is home on a vacation.

—W. Ripley & Co. have established the Bell boat livery in rear of Bridge Street House.

Harold F. Sayles and a Charlevoix citizen went to Nowland Lake bass fishing, Saturday.

Married, at Charlevoix, July 23, by Rev. J. T. Iddings, Peter Boyer and Mary Clark, all of Ironton.

—After this week those wishing to pay their village taxes can be accommodated by calling at Will See's.

—See the new boot and shoe advertisement of John Connor in this issue. John's work is well known here.

—It is quite a noticeable fact that Charlevoix is not represented on the Board of Directors of the Charlevoix County Agricultural Society.

—Dr. Wm. M. Preston left yesterday for his new home in Kansas. The Dr. leaves many friends here who will sincerely regret his departure.

—Any one in Charlevoix or Petoskey wishing to rent an upright piano for the season should address Gen. King, at the Charlevoix Summer Resort.

—The always-reliable firm of Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co., the south end dealers, are doing a fine business this season. Look over their advertisement and then call and see them.

—The Clara Belle changed her time last Monday. She now leaves East Jordan at 7 a. m., Charlevoix at 10 a. m., Boyne City at 1 p. m. Charlevoix at 4 p. m., laying up at East Jordan.

Charlevoix Summer Resort Items.

The telephone got there just the same.

Rev. M. Hill of Kalamazoo, is expected this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Osborn of Kalamazoo, came yesterday.

H Haskell and wife of Detroit, are guests of J. Earl Howard.

A Quotation party was held in the Belvedere parlor, Monday evening.

Mrs. C. H. Bird and two children, of Kalamazoo, are at the Merrill cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Ransom of Kalamazoo, are guests at O. M. Allen's cottage.

Jos. Houseman, wife and daughter of Grand Rapids, spent last week on the resort.

A. E. Bartlett of Kalamazoo, author of the Comic Angler, is at the Belvedere.

More people are on the resort at present than ever before at this season of the year.

Jim Heaton arrived yesterday, and resort young people are happy in the thought.

Thirty resorters spent the day Monday in an excursion to East Jordan on the Friant.

Rev. E. H. Jameson, Miss Jameson and Miss Paddock of Lansing, are visiting friends.

Mr. Holmes is proving himself just the man the resort has been looking for as manager of the Belvedere.

C. S. Hampton of the Daily Resorter, and John Mitchell of Ludington, were at the Belvedere, Monday.

Hon. J. S. Estabrook of East Saginaw, came Sunday. Norris and the Misses Winnie and Bessie are expected in about two weeks.

The social held in the Belvedere parlors Friday evening is conceded all around to be the most enjoyable of any ever held on the resort.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN

BEFORE DEATH.

BY MARGARET J. PRESTON.

How much would I care for it, could I know
That when I am under the grass or snow,
The raveled garment of life's brief day
Folded, and quietly laid away;
The spirit let loose from mortal bars,
And somewhere away among the stars;
How much do you think it would matter then
What praise was lavished upon me, when,
Whatever might be its stint or store,
It neither could help nor harm me more?

If midst of my toil they had but thought
To stretch a finger, I would have caught
Gladly such aid, to bear me through
Some bitter duty I had to do;
And when it was done, had I but heard
One breath of applause, one cheering word—
One cry of "Courage!" amid the strife,
So weighted for me, with death or life—
How would it have nerved my soul to strain
Through the whirl of the coming surge again?

What use for the rope, if it be not flung
Till the swimmer's grasp to the rock has clung?
What help in a comrade's bugle-blast
When the peril of Alpine heights is past?
What need that the spurring pæan roll
When the runner is safe beyond the goal?
What worth is eulogy's blandest breath
When whispered in ears that are hushed to death?
No! No! If you have but a word to cheer,
Speak it while I am alive to hear!
—Colonial Ballads.

AN AWFUL SIN.

BY WM. H. S. ATKINSON.

Mr. Walter Courtright enjoyed a very wide circle of acquaintances; his friends formed a very much smaller ring, while those who appreciated him sufficiently to love him were only two.

Walter Courtright was a gentleman—scholarly and wealthy—yet his was a nature by no means lovable. Perhaps this brief story will show that those two who could and did love him, loved so well as to make ample amends for what of affection was lacking in others.

It has been remarked that Walter Courtright was wealthy and accomplished; add to this that he was, physically, almost perfect, and it will be readily understood that his lot was frequently envied by many men in New York City. When he was 30 years old he was still the idol of a mother who had well-nigh worshiped him since the day he was ushered into the world, besides which he was well and truly loved by Mildred Kenyon, to whom he was engaged to be married.

Mrs. Courtright, like many other fond mothers, thought there were very few women worthy to share her son's name and social position; yet, even she was more than pleased with her boy's choice. Truly Mildred Kenyon was a beautiful specimen of young womanhood, and good as she was beautiful. The Kenyons and Courtrights were old New York families, and Mildred Kenyon would bring to her husband an immense addition to his already abundant wealth. There was no question about the young people's affection for each other, though perhaps Mildred, with only twenty-two years' experience of the world, loved Courtright with a deeper affection and more intense devotion than he felt it possible to cherish toward her. Their engagement was announced in due course in the autumn, and it was well understood that the wedding should be celebrated in the following spring.

* * * * * * * *

Early in the winter a popular manager [...]

[...] stand you," and staggered away like a man intoxicated.

On reaching the street he bought a paper and read the heading of the paragraph which narrated the discovery of Mabel Woodford's body:

"MURDER OF A POPULAR ACTRESS NEAR HOPEDALE, N. J."

Almost unconsciously he sauntered toward the North River, which he reached at Desbrosses street ferry. He entered the ferry waiting-room and examined a time-card. A train left Jersey City for Hopedale at 8:30. He glanced at his watch. It was then 8:15 and at that moment he heard the cry, "Aboard!" He rushed through the gate and leaped on to the boat, his mind resolved upon going to Hopedale.

But Walter Courtright did not go to Hopedale that night—he did not even land in Jersey City. For as he stood at the front of the ferry-boat, one foot resting upon the chain, his elbow on his knee, and his chin upon his hand, a man—whose only noticeable characteristic was a keen eye—stepped up to him and wished him "good evening."

"Mr. Courtright, I believe?" he continued.

"That is my name," replied Walter.

"Very good, sir; then you will please return with me to New York."

"You talk like a man with some authority, or at least as though you had a strong reason for attempting to direct my movements," said Courtright.

"I have both reason and authority. I am a police officer and hold a warrant for your arrest."

"Arrest! For what?" inquired the astonished Courtright, who had almost forgotten the attitude and words of the manager of the Levity Theater less than an hour before.

"For murder—the murder of Miss Woodford."

For a second time Walter Courtright reeled like a drunken man, and for a second time no indignant words arose to his lips to refute a terrible charge.

Two men now felt morally certain that he was Mabel Woodford's murderer. They were Manager Golightly and Detective Handyside.

* * * * * * * *

Courtright was detained in New York over Sunday and spent a miserable day in his rooms, where the detective kept him company. On Monday morning a New Jersey officer arrived, and the unhappy man was taken to Hopedale to be examined by the Coroner at the adjourned inquest. It is needless to recite, verbatim, the proceedings at the inquest. It will be sufficient to state that the following facts were developed and conclusively proven:

Miss Woodford had come from the West, some four years prior to her tragic death. Her only friends were those of the theatrical profession and—Walter Courtright. As she never received any letters either at her boarding-house or at the theater, it was presumed that she had no relations for whom she cared, or who were at all probable factors in the problem of her life and death. The theater was closed on Good Friday, hence Miss Woodford's absence passed unnoticed at the Levity; although some of the folks at the boarding-house had felt uneasy when, on Saturday morning, it was discovered that she had not occupied her room during the night. What had induced her to go to Hopedale could not even be surmised, as no letter, telegram, or other communication had been found upon her person or among her effects.

Walter Courtright was subjected to a most rigid and pitiless examination, for there was hardly a man or woman interested in the affair who did not believe, more or less, that he knew something about the sad end of Mabel Woodford. Courtright admitted that it was his handkerchief which had been used in administering the chloroform, though he insisted that he [...]

WAR ANNALS.

Old Soldiers of Both Armies Fighting Their Battles Over Again.

Anecdotes of the Battle-field, the Weary March, and the Cheerful Camp-fire.

Old Midnight.

BY A VETERAN.

Who comes when the lines are wavering
In the conflict's heat,
When the throbbing pulses of battle
Wilder beat—
Who leads the charge like a whirlwind,
Driving the enemy back?—
O, never was leader like him,
Our Black Jack!

We knew, far-off, he was coming,
For nearer it came, and near
The glad salute that greeted him,
The swelling Union cheer.
O, the sight of that man on horseback,
His flashing eye of black,
The twist of his great mustaches,
Stout Black Jack!

There was joy and strength in his presence,
For, though the field was red,
And the living fast recruited
The swarming ranks of the dead,
We could always fight with Logan,
We could stand the fiery wrack,
If we saw him tearing along the line,
Our Black Jack!

It was long ago; and the chieftain
Who quailed from no mortal foe
Has bowed his crest, they say, to him
Who strikes all warriors low.
Sad at camp-fire we name him,
We fain would call him back,
Our hearts are heavy without you,
Dear Black Jack!

In Search of Information.

Vaughn made his way without interruption to the house of Mr. Lazenbury, within easy vicinity to Brentwood, his objective point.

[...]

viz., the approach to, and the crossing of, Big Harpeth.

On reaching the public road which led to the "cow ford," Vaughn took the precaution to dismount for the purpose of examining the road, to see whether or not a troop of horsemen had been in that section.

The starlight scarcely afforded the means for ascertaining this fact, but the ground was soft enough to take ready impression of horses' feet, and by dint of very close examination, and by "feeling for tracks," he was convinced that a troop had passed on toward the ford and had returned on the same road.

But Vaughn was too "old a bird to be caught with chaff," and, believing in the probability that part of the troop might be guarding the ford still, he took steps accordingly. So pulling down the fence on the north side of the road, he led his horse through the gap, and mounting, rode into the field which lay on the margin of the river below the ford.

Horses soon are brought to understand the movements of their riders, and govern themselves accordingly; for, should a rider show unusual timidity in approaching an object, or any part of a road, the horse shows an unmistakably his own apprehensions, and is ready to anticipate the slightest pressure, on one rein, intended to turn him aside from a direct course.

So it is with the steed of a reckless horseman or of a bold but cautious rider.

In the latter case the horse pushes on, showing plainly his full appreciation of surroundings, and holding himself ready to prove, even to those who claim that animals are governed altogether by "instinct," the sympathy existing between man and beast; but that is out of our province here, and we will apologize for even the above digression.

As Vaughn approached the river, drawing diagonally toward the ford, he became satisfied, by the movements of his horse, that something unusual was in the vicinity, and that it was necessary for him to reconnoiter closely before approaching the river at this point.

Having thus determined, he turned to [...]

Vallandigham.

Breckinridge and Benjamin.

PITH AND POINT.

The Miracle of the Century.

A Test for Eggs.

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

BY BEN: PERLEY POORE.

Judge Jerry Black closed the case on the part of Mr. Tilden before the Electoral Commission with a tirade against the result of the presidential controversy in general and the commission in particular. His speech was grossly disrespectful to the tribunal, and in some features positively abusive, but its bitterness was relieved now and then by the gleams of the good-natured humor which was so much a part of Black's nature that he could not wholly suppress it. He talked about fraud being sceptred and crowned, and of the nation being clothed in iniquity from head to foot by the action of the commission, and said there was no more use of pleading for justice than of praying to Jupiter or any of the Olympian gods. If he could avert the horrible calamity by leading a forlorn hope or giving up his life, he would gladly do it. After half an hour of invective he closed by saying that Democracy would wait and bide its time. "The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceeding fine," he said, looking fiercely at Garfield and Hoar, as if they especially were to be put into the hopper. Then in a significant tone he added, "and we shall turn on the water pretty soon," and turning his back on the commission, he strode out of the court-room. A moment of silence ensued. Afterwards the public session was declared closed, and Judge Clifford motioned with his ivory paper knife for the spectators to leave the room. The request was promptly obeyed, but once outside the court-room the visitors began to criticise Judge Black's bold words.

[...]

An Editor on Libel Suits.

[...] observation teaches that the majority of libel suits are brought in the interest of parties other than the plaintiff, prompted by political spite or personal malice. As a matter of principle and sound judgment, I believe every editor when he is sued for libel ought to defend himself.

"As an apologist I am a total failure. I have never made even the semblance of an apology which did not add to the original offense. Editors of newspapers that are at all independent must expect to be sued for libel. A fearless and honest libelist is necessary in every community to protect the public against official corruption and individual rascality. If, as you say, I have a record as a pugnacious editor, I don't deserve it. If the public only knew what I refrain from saying they would say that I am criminally negligent. I seldom strike the first blow; I only strike back, and then rarely on my own account."
—Rochester Union.

Birds and the Weather.

Memory keeps it so fresh in mind that it seems but yesterday that I stood on the high beach of Monomoy Island. The tranquil sea gave scarce an audible moan as the slight surf broke at my feet. The white sanderlings lay glistening in the rays of the noonday sun, broken here and there by occasional "splashes" of water left by the receding tide, around which hundreds of diminutive "peeps" were contentedly and busily gleaning their repast. No wind was felt, and even outside the fleet of schooners lay becalmed. Along the stretch of beach groups of black-bellied plovers lay in the warm sand, and even the sanderlings, usually so active, were in large, huddled, [...]

WAS EDMUND BURKE INSANE?

Abundant and Convincing Proof to the Contrary.

[Popular Science Monthly.]

In the history of political literature the name of Edmund Burke stands among the first, and is representative not only of that illuminating power which belongs to lofty minds, but of the genius which comes as the consummation of the faculty of taking pains. Year after year his voice sounded in behalf of the sacredness of law, the freedom of nations, the justice of rulers, and the imagery of his thought—imposing in its majesty—carries us into regions of enduring wisdom. For nearly three score years his mind retained the dignity and calm of lofty greatness, and seemed to totter from its balance only when he breathed the lurid heat of fury which was sweeping over France and gathering wrath against the horrid atrocities of 1789. He had before him the vision of Marie Antoinette, glittering like the morning star, full of life and splendor and joy, and felt that, through unbelief and passion, the props of stable government and morals were being broken and destroyed. The divine right of kings was yet an article of common faith, and he saw their sorrow, but heard not the wail of anguish which ascended from the oppressed and starving people. Rage against the lawless Parisian mob filled him, and in his wrath he spoke as if envenomed hate had made him mad; and he was so adjudged, but only by those who differed from him. The inspiration of his genius gave him the tongue of truth, and the penalty was an assault upon his sanity.

Then came the supreme sorrow of his [...]

The Decay of Politeness.

Small Farming in France.

Government Clerkship.

French Coach Horses.

Saddle Horses.

Transylvania Marriage Customs.

Breaking Down and Building Up.

Something of Cats.

A Warning to Animalcule.

$500 Reward.

[...] proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh [...] years made a standing [...] American newspapers of $500 [...] of catarrh that he could not [...] proprietors have renewed [...] druggists sell this Remedy, [...] "Douche" and all other [...] to be used in connection with [...] patient is longer able to say [...]." You get $500 in case of [...]

Brown's Little Joke.

[...] how short your coat is," said [...] his friend Brown, who [...] but it will be long enough [...]

Ladies of the White House

THE Confidence

[...] tried Hood's Sarsaparilla, in [...] is remarkable. Many who [...] any benefit whatever from [...] completely restored to health [...] curative powers of this medicine [...]

THE CHEAPEST AND BEST MEDICINE FOR FAMILY USE IN THE WORLD! A CURE FOR ALL SUMMER COMPLAINTS.

RRR RADWAY'S READY RELIEF

A half to a teaspoonful in half a tumbler of water will in a few moments cure Cramps, Spasms, Sour Stomach, Nausea, Vomiting, Heartburn, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Sick Headache, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Cholera Morbus, Colic, Flatulency, and all Internal Pains. For severe cases of the foregoing complaints see our printed directions. It is highly important that every family keep a supply of

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF

Always in the house. Its use will prove beneficial on all occasions of pain or sickness. There is nothing in the world that will stop pain or arrest the progress of disease as quickly as the Ready Relief.

THE TRUE RELIEF.

Price Fifty Cents. Sold by Druggists.

MENTION THIS PAPER when writing to advertisers.

PENSIONS Send for Pension Laws to U. S. Claim Agents FITZGERALD & POWELL, Indianapolis, Ind.

LADY AGENTS can secure permanent employment at $50 to $100 per month selling Queen City Supporters. Sample outfit free. Address Cincinnati Suspender Co., 11 E. Ninth St., Cincinnati, O.

JONES HE PAYS the FREIGHT 5 Ton Wagon Scales, Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box for $60. Every size Scale. For free price list mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

HARTER'S IRON TONIC

Hood's Sarsaparilla 100 Doses One Dollar.

OPIUM

PATENTS

PENSIONS

EARTH, SEA & SKY

DETECTIVES

WIZARD OIL FOR PAIN

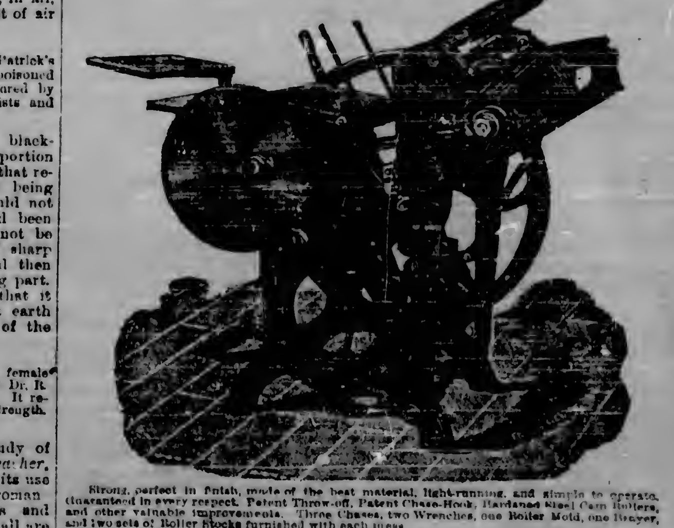
RHEUMATISM, All Aches and Pains.

PILES

ADVERTISERS LORD & THOMAS.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE.

THE BEST OLD-STYLE GORDON JOB PRINTING PRESS IN THE MARKET.



For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times." Nobody uses ordinary soap now. They can get "Lenox."

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

CHARLEVOIX, JULY 27, 1887.

You will observe by the dawn's early light, if you happen to get up so early, that the battle flag is still there.

The monument to Gen. Grant at Mansfield, Vt., consisting of a pile of stones, to which every visitor is required to bring one, is growing large and tall.

It is to be regretted, for purely political reasons, that Mr. Blaine and Mr. Cleveland could not make a foreign tour together. It would be interesting to read their speeches side by side, as it were.—Detroit Tribune.

The Peoria Transcript puts it in this wise: "Mr. Blaine has been stirring up the British lion for several years, but he is not afraid to visit England. Mr. Cleveland has been stirring up the old soldiers for three years, but he is afraid to face them. This illustrates the difference between the two men."

Rumors of a plot against the life of the Emperor of Germany are again agitating that country, and great precautions are being taken to prevent the possible carrying out of the alleged designs of the alleged plotters. Plotting against the life of a man past ninety years of age, who is tottering into his grave, scarcely looks like a very cheerful or profitable occupation.

When the steamer St. Lawrence was making her way in the direction of Thousand Island park on Saturday with the presidential party on board she met the Canadian steamer Spartan bound from Montreal to Toronto. "The steamer passed in close proximity, but the foreigner made no sign of recognition notwithstanding the union jack floated from the St. Lawrence's peak." Let us hope that this neglect may not be construed as a national affront and lead to war.

Our esteemed contemporaries appear to be giving the long suffering public a little too much nowadays of what Mr. Jefferson Davis, ex-President of the Confederacy, thinks and does and says. Intelligent people care very little about the doings, sayings or thoughts of the antiquated and unreconstructed rebel Jeff Davis. He was not hanged to the traditional sour apple tree, but appears to be a soured old man nevertheless, and should be neither seen, heard, nor thought of in these days of sweetness and light—and an alleged "new South."

The European news has ceased for the present to be exciting, but does not show the best of feeling among the continental powers. Russia refuses to accept the action of the sobranje in the election of a king of Bulgaria. Germany feels a little easier since the bastile celebration failed to provoke a popular outbreak in Paris, but is disturbed at the constant nagging which its citizens receive in France. It is now about as uncomfortable for German residents in France as it ever was for French enthusiasts in Alsace and Lorraine. These demonstrations in one country against the citizens of the other cannot fail to be a constant source of irritation and tend always toward keeping up the war feeling.

During the exercises in memory of General Grant, a short time ago, the following curious statistics in regard to the manufacture of the "Personal Memoirs of General Grant" were read: "In binding the cloth books there were used 44,359 square yards of cloth, or if put in one piece it would make a strip one yard wide and twenty-five miles and one-fifth long. The gold used in stamping, lettering, etc., on all styles of binding if coined would make $15,447.47. The price paid gold beaters for this gold was $21,639.50. There were 276 barrels of binders' paste used, weighing about 69,000 pounds. There were 27,882 sheep-skins used, 7,221 goat-skins and 138 calf-skins. As none of these skins were split, it represents, of course, the killing of an equal number of animals. There were about 302,319 reams of paper used in the printing, which weighed about 1,813,880 pounds, or 906½ tons. This put into one piece would make a strip two feet wide and 1,682¾ miles long. If the books were piled up in one row the narrowest way, that is, the same way they would stand in a book case, it would take a shelf 19½ miles long to hold them. If the pages of the books were joined together, it would make a strip of paper six inches wide and 2,729 miles long. Forty-one steam presses were working day and night; over 1,000 operatives were employed, and over 9,000 agents engaged in distributing the book. To these latter—who were mainly old soldiers and widows of soldiers—was paid in commissions for selling the book considerably more than $1,000,000.

Northern Michigan News.

Petoskey's schools will cost $6,000 next year.

The Mancelona oval dish factory employs 150 hands.

So far $21,000 has been pledged in Elk Rapids for the Kalkaska & Elk Rapids railroad.

The crops generally in Grand Traverse county will be the heaviest and best ever known.

Rev. A. O. Downs has resigned the pastorate of the Congregational church at Cadillac.

The machinery for the electric light plant has arrived at Cadillac, and will be in operation soon.

Judge McLaughlin, of Elk Rapids, and Cornelius Acker, of Torch Lake, are among the lucky ones who have been granted pensions.

It is stated that there are now in course of construction at Sault Ste. Marie $800,000 worth of business blocks and dwelling houses.

Mancelona is jubilant over the prospects of a ten-mile railroad to connect her butter dishes and pig iron with the Michigan Central.

The Progress says: "General freight agent Gill, of the G. R. & I. was in Elk Rapids Monday and Tuesday on business connected with the Kalkaska and Elk Rapids branch. We can announce definitely in a week or so whether we get a road or not.

Bellaire Breeze: Chas. S. Guile, the enterprising secretary of the Antrim County Agricultural Society, has just received a letter from Gov. Luce, in which that gentleman imparts the pleasing information that he will accept the invitation to deliver an address on the fair grounds at the next annual fair to be held in September.

The gold excitement at Ishpheming, from which little has been heard for a year or more, has recently broken out afresh. The following from that place under date of July 15th, will give our readers some idea of the situation: "Among mining men the discovery of gold made on the Lake Superior workings last week is the principal talking this week. The discovery was kept secret until Saturday when specimens of the find were placed on exhibition at the Ishpheming National Bank, Lake Superior Iron Company's local office and the Iron Ore office. They were seen by hundreds and pronounced to be the richest gold specimens ever taken from any mine.

A Roscommon county farmer owns a rooster that chums with a big black snake. The two hunt together for their food, and assist each other in securing it, frogs and insects being their particular prey, and the fowl doing most of the hard work. Whenever he runs across a particularly fine, fat frog, he will strut about it, ruffle his feathers and cluck, in order to call his sinuous friend, exactly as the ordinary rooster summons his hens to some apetizing morsel. The snake knows the call, and always responds, to the evident satisfaction of the rooster. The pair are a great curiosity, and their operations have been watched with interest by a great many people.

Cor. Traverse City Journal: Last Friday, July 8th, I was at E. H. Burdick's residence, 1½ miles north-east of East Jordan. His corn-field so impressed me that I measured the growth. The stalks measured stood 5 feet to 5 feet 8 inches to top of tassel, or highest points of leaves as they stood—not stretching a leaf up to increase it's height. I think I can correctly state that the whole field of some acres stood four feet and upwards on ground that has been cleaned of heavy timber since a year ago last October, at least the land was purchased of the G. R. & I. R. R. Co. then, and cleaning and improvements since put on. Mr. Burdick has in ten acres of potatoes and his whole surroundings prophesies success as does said field of corn. Mr. Burdick also carries on a butcher shop in East Jordan.

A couple of Adventists have been holding tent meetings over at Bellaire, preaching a liberal supply of the wrath to come to the citizens of that burg if they didn't turn from the evil of their ways and pay less attention to getting a raiload and more to getting religion. Last Friday the wrath to come, in the guise of a large, oblong chunk of lightning came skipping down the center pole of the tent, as services were being held during a thunder shower. For about a minute there were mighty lively times in the tabernacle; and the elect seemed to show about as decided an interest in getting out of the tent into the street as the vilest sinner present. Everybody was scared, and for a little while the preachers thought they must have been preaching with too much fervor, and with a too apparent effect. When an estimate of damages was made, it was discovered that no one was hurt, but the tent was pretty badly knocked out. The next day they packed up and went down to Traverse City, probably considering that a less Sodom-and-Gomorah-like town than Bellaire.—Elk Rapids Progress.

The ministers of Cadillac have been doing a good work, and now the salvation army is pitching its tent in that city and loud times may be expected.

The Mancelona furnace made a run of 340 days during the last year, using 1,312,680 bushels of coal, 27,961 tons of ore, made 16,152 tons of pig iron, an average of 47½ tons per day.

Elk Rapids Progress: Egg items are going the rounds. Here's ours with the ante-revolutionary joke thrown in without extra charge: Fred Winnie laid an egg on our desk recently that weighed 4¾ ounces. We have forgotten the surface measurement, but it was two-thirds as large as the hen that laid it.

Beautiful, but ugly named Hog Island, in Grand Traverse bay, was originally the home of Main-a-boz-hoo, the god of the Chippewa Indians, and a live Chippewa has a deal of hesitancy about fooling around there nights to this day. As old bo-zhoo has not been seen there of late, it is feared he is dead.—Gill Osmun in Evening Journal.

John Munro has his spile driver about completed. Our reporter visited it and found it to be the finest thing of the kind he ever saw. It is fitted up with bedrooms, dining room, pantry, kitchen and everything handy to keep house with. It is supplied with a vertical tubular boiler and fine engine. It will sail for St. Ignace the latter part of the week.—Enterprise.

Progress: Tom Bates of the Traverse City Herald, went for Gil Osmun of the evening Journal, in a stick of choice Chippewa last week, and Gil is humping himself up in his anguish because he can't tell whether Tom was giving him his personal blessing or cussin' the day lights out of him. It was a mighty mean advantage for an Injun to take of a white man, any-way.

The fall wheat is most all harvested in the Grand Traverse region now, which is two or three weeks earlier than usual. The crop is good and in fact all crops are first-class this season. It has now been displayed that Northern Michigan can raise crops equal to counties farther south. The Evening News remarks that "the crops are better in Northern than Southern Michigan this season," and we guess it is about right.

Information is wanted of John English, aged about 25 years, by his aged widowed mother, who is now alone in the world. About seven years ago he was in the employ of Mr. Shipman at Saginaw; he left that place and was reported to have gone to Peoria Flats, since then nothing is known of his whereabouts. Any information given will be greatly appreciated by his mother, Mrs. Jas. English, Frankfort, Mich. (Michigan papers please copy.)

Seven weeks ago Watson McGreggor of Frankfort, was drowned. Recently, while on the way to Manistee, Capt. McGreggor of the Sanford, noticed a body floating on the water, which on investigation he found to be that of his son Watson. It had apparently risen to the surface a short time before, as the clothing was in the same condition as when he was lost, even to the gloves upon the hands. The body was taken to Frankfort for burial.

As will be seen by an article elsewhere in this issue, the Agricultural Society are commencing preparations for the coming fair. Agricultural products being a necessity to make a fair a success, and this being a red letter year in that line, the coming fair can be made a grand success, providing the necessary interest be taken. This only can be accomplished, and the fair made a complete success, by a hearty co-operation on the part of the officers of the society and the exhibitors. So now let all take an interest in this enterprise and it is sure to be a grand success. The fair was a grand success last year, and it can certainly be made more so this year as we have much better crops and everything more favorable. Co-operation on the part of all means success.

We clip the following remarkable incident from the Grand Rapids Democrat, relating a terrible encounter by rats in Kalkaska county. The special says: "Sunday in the woods on the road between Pere Cheney and Flether, the remains of a human being were found partially devoured and wholly unrecognizable. An inquest was held but it brought out nothing. While a verdict was being rendered a young man named Davis, who had been drawn by curiosity to pay a second visit to the spot where the corpse was found, dashed among the jurors with badly tattered clothing, a bloody club, and a solution of this mystery. The unknown man had been killed by field rats. The young man himself had been attacked by them and had to fight for his life. When he had approached the fatal spot he said the vicious little creatures sprang upon him from all sides, and, although he killed many of them, it seemed only to whet the courage of the survivors. He was obliged to run for his life."

Inter Ocean: Two of the most enterprising and longest-winded correspondents of the newspapers just now are President Grover Cleveland and ex President Jefferson Davis. Each has a grievance.

Chancery Sale.

State of Michigan, in the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, David Carpenter complainant, vs August Stoebling defendant. In pursuance and by virtue of a decree in the above entitled cause bearing date May 26, 1887, I, the undersigned, a Circuit Court Commissioner, in and for Charlevoix County, State of Michigan, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House, in the village of Boyne City, in said County of Charlevoix (that being the place of holding the court for said county), on Saturday, the 3rd day of September, at 12 o'clock noon of said day, the premises described in said decree, viz: The west half of the south east quarter of section 30 in township thirty three (33) north, range four west, Charlevoix County, State of Michigan.

WILL N. MIGHE[illegible],
Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Charlevoix County, Michigan.
DART & CALL, Solicitors for Complainant.
Dated July 20, 1887.

TIME CARDS OF STEAMERS

STANDARD TIME.

Charlevoix and East Jordan.
STR. NORTH STAR, ... CAPT. MEL THOMPSON.
Leaving Charlevoix at 6:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. and returning leave East Jordan for Charlevoix at 9:30 a. m. and 4 p. m., touching at intermediate points both ways.

Boyne City and Charlevoix.
STR. CLARA BELLE........ CAPT. GEO. ATTRIDE.
Leave Boyne City at 6:30 a. m. and 1:00 p. m. and Charlevoix at 9:30 a. m., and 3 p. m. connecting with the Eckert and Cummings to and from Petoskey. Touching at way ports.

Charlevoix and Boyne City.
STR. JOSEPH GORDON........ CAPT. LEWIS GUARD.
Leave Charlevoix at 6:30 a. m. and 1 p. m., and Boyne City at 9:30 a. m., 4 p. m., touching at way ports.

Harbor Springs, Charlevoix & E. Jordan.
STR. THOS. FRIANT........ CAPT. R. VANDERBOSCH.
MORNING: Leave Harbor Springs, 7:30; Petoskey, 8:30; Charlevoix, 9:30; arrive, East Jordan 11:30.
AFTERNOON: Leave East Jordan 1:30; Charlevoix, 4:30; Petoskey, 5:30, arrive, Harbor Spring, 6:00.

East Jordan, Charlevoix & Harbor Spgs.
LOU A. CUMMINGS........ CAPT. W. A. SNYDER.
MORNING: Leave East Jordan 7 a. m.; Charlevoix, 9; Petoskey, 11; arrive at Harbor Springs 11:30.
AFTERNOON: Leave Harbor Springs, 1 p. m.; Petoskey, 1:40; Charlevoix, 3; arrive at East Jordan, 5:30 p. m.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN LINE.
PROP. LAWRENCE........ Capt. Geo. Tooby.
Going North, Chicago, Fridays 8 p. m.; Charlevoix, Sundays 3 p. m.; Cheboygan, Mondays 9 a. m.
Going South, Cheboygan, Mondays 2 p. m.; Charlevoix, Tuesdays 8 a. m.; Milwaukee, Wednesdays 4 p. m.; Chicago, Thursdays 12 m.
Emrey Bros., agents, Charlevoix.

HANNAH, LAY & CO'S BOATS.
CITY OF GRAND RAPIDS........ Capt. O. E. Wilbur.
Going North, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays: Leave Traverse City 7 a. m.; Northport 9:30; Charlevoix 11:30; Petoskey 1:30 p. m.; Harbor Springs 2; Cross Village 4:30; Mackinac Island 7:45 arriving at St. Ignace 8:20.
Going South, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays: Leave St. Ignace 6 a. m.; Mackinac Island 7; Cross Village 10:15; Harbor Springs 12:45 p. m.; Petoskey 1:45; Charlevoix 2:45; Northport 5:15 p. m. arriving at Traverse City at 7:45 p. m.
J. L. Hurd & Co., Agents, Charlevoix.

Bank of Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security
Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers
Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to Speculate with ones own money, is folly; that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking
Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors; and, believing that it furnishes unusual guarantees, therefore,

This Bank Invites
People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will
Borrow Investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking
Productive employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes,
Now earning Five per cent. yearly Interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S
LIVERY STABLE
CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.
Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.
Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

Farming Lands

500,000 ACRES
Of Splendid
MICHIGAN LANDS
For Sale By The
G. R. & I. R. R.
50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.

These lands are timbered with beach and maple elm and other wood and are accessible to best markets.

By Water and Rail

And are in a state unequalled for health, well watered and contiguous to the great fruit raising section of Michigan.
The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad runs through the center of the grant. The part of Michigan in which these lands are situated is

Not a Wilderness by any Means.

It contains a population of 250,000 souls and is rapidly filling up with settlers from almost every state in the Union.
Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold.

Send for English or German Pamphlet, Address
W. H. HUGHART, Commissioner,
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.
TITLE PERFECT.

Probate Order.

State of Michigan, County of Charlevoix, ss. Notice is hereby given, that an order of the Probate court for the county of Charlevoix, made on the fifth day of July A. D. 1887, six months from that date were allowed for creditors to present their claims against the estate of John West, late of Cook county, Illinois, deceased, and that all creditors of said deceased are required to present their claims to said Probate Court, at the Probate office in the village of Boyne City, Charlevoix county, Michigan, for examination and allowance, on or before the Ninth day of January next, and that such claims will be heard before said court on Monday, the Third day of October, 1887 and on Monday, the Ninth day of January, 1888 next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of each of those days.
JAMES A. KEAT,
Dated July 5th, A. D. 1887. Judge of Probate.

Probate Order.

State of Michigan, county of Charlevoix, ss. At a session of the Probate court for said county, held at the Probate office, in the village of Boyne City on the 18th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty seven. Present, James A. Keat, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Henry Wagner, deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Hannah M. Wagner, asking that she or some other suitable person may be appointed administrator of said estate.
Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 15th day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden in the Probate Office in the Village of Boyne City, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted: And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.
JAMES A. KEAT,
(A true copy.) Judge of Probate.

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Charlevoix, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for said County, held at the Probate Office, in the Village of Boyne City, on the 11th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty seven; Present, James A. Keat, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the Estate of Henry Bennett, deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Dwight R. Bennett and Mary H. Wood, praying that Abbie T. Bennett, or some other suitable person, be appointed Administratrix of said estate. Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 8th day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden in the Probate Office, in the Village of Boyne City, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted: And it is Further Ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.
JAMES A. KEAT, Judge of Probate.
(A true copy.) 1114

Sheriff Sale.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of a writ of fieri facias issued out of the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, in favor of Hiram V. Rifenburg, against the goods and chattels and real estate of Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emrey, in said County, to me directed and delivered, I did, on the 20th day of June, 1887, levy upon and take all the right, title and interest of the said Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emrey, in and to the following described real estate, that is to say lots 126, 127, and 91, in Upright & Hurlbut's Addition to the Village of Charlevoix, the undivided ½ of Lot 2, Section 21, Town 34 North, of Range 8 West, North ½ of South East ¼ of Section 20, Town 33 North, of Range 7 West, N. W. quarter of N. W. quarter section 18, town 33, north of range seven west all in Charlevoix County, Michigan; also 20 shares of stock in the Charlevoix Manufacturing Company, a corporation existing in accordance with the laws of the State of Michigan, said shares representing $25 each. All of which I shall expose for sale at public auction to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House in Boyne City in said county, on the 18th day of August, A. D. 1887, at ten o'clock in the forenoon.
Dated, June 28, 1887.
B. D. JERRUE, Sheriff.
By Wm. Seacoatz, Deputy Sheriff.
CRUICKSHANK & GRIER,
Attorneys for Plaintiffs. 1087

Mortgage Sale.

Five certain mortgages, to-wit: one bearing date December fifth, 1878, executed by Mariam Woolf and Martin Woolf to David Carpenter, recorded in the office of Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Mich, December 7th, 1878, in Liber 3 of Mortgages, at page 271 and 272, upon which the whole amount is due and unpaid, to-wit: The sum of Three hundred and twenty-seven dollars and twenty cents, ($327.20); one bearing date Sept. 13, 1879, executed by Mariam Woolf and Martin Woolf to David Carpenter, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Mich., Sept. 29th, 1879, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, at page 87, upon which the whole amount is due and unpaid to-wit: One hundred and eight dollars and thirty-two cents ($108.32); one bearing date April 6, 1880, executed by Mariam Woolf and Martin Woolf to David Carpenter, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Mich, April 15th, 1880, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, at page 149, upon which the whole amount is now due and unpaid, the sum of Two hundred and four dollars and thirty-two cents ($204.32); one bearing date April 1, 1882, executed by Martin Woolf and Mariam Woolf to Clay E. Call, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Mich., April 11th, 1882, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, at page 515, which Mortgage was duly assigned by Clay E. Call to David Carpenter, September 29, 1882, by deed of assignment, which is recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Michigan, September 12, 1884, in Liber 10 of Mortgages, at page 575, upon which the whole amount is now due and unpaid, to-wit: Eighty-seven dollars and forty-eight cents ($87.48); also a mortgage dated September 23, 1882, executed by Martin Woolf and Mariam Woolf to David Carpenter, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Charlevoix county, Michigan, Sept. 26, 1882, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, on page 619, upon which the whole amount is due, to wit: Six hundred and twenty four dollars and eleven cents, ($624.11); for the recovery of the sum secured by said mortgages or either of them, no suit or proceedings at law having been instituted, will be foreclosed under the power of sale therein contained, by a statutory sale of the premises therein described as the North half of the north-west quarter of section thirty-three, Town thirty-four, North of Range six West, Charlevoix county, Michigan, to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House, so-called, in the village of Boyne City, in said County, that being the place where the Circuit Court for said county, is held, at 12 o'clock noon, September 22, 1887.
DAVID CARPENTER,
Mortgagee and Assignee of said Mortgages.
DART & CALL, Attorneys for Mortgagee.
Dated, June 25, 1887. 1013

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Henry Bennett, O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls, A. Buttars,
A. R. Upright, A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL	$25,000
SURPLUS	2,000

The liability of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art. 3171, Sec. 45 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.
Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest.
We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:

NATIONAL PARK BANK	NEW YORK.
COMMERCIAL NAT. BANK	CHICAGO.
NAT. CITY BANK	GRAND RAPIDS.
DETROIT NAT. BANK	DETROIT.

WAYNE COUNTY SAVINGS BANK
DETROIT, MICH.
$500,000 TO INVEST IN BONDS
Issued by cities, counties, towns and school districts of Michigan. Officers of these municipalities about to issue Bonds will find it to their advantage to apply to this Bank. Blank Bonds and blanks for proceedings supplied without charge. All communications and inquiries will have prompt attention.
May 27. S. D. ELWOOD, Treasurer.

W. A. REYNARD,
Has just received at his Fruit Store in the Lewis Block, a choice line of Vegetables and Fruits
OF ALL KINDS,
TO WHICH OTHERS WILL BE ADDED IN SEASON.
I will also keep in stock a full line of
Tobaccos and Cigars.
Butter and Eggs a Specialty.

Itch, Prairie Mange and Scratches of every kind cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Use no other. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix

CROSS & SONS.,
Buy and Sell all kinds of
Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.
Charlevoix, Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY,
Photographer.
In Bradbeer's Gallery.
Photographs of all sizes taken.
Old Pictures copied and enlarged.
CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

New JEWELRY AND SILVER WARE.
I have just received a very fine stock of
Watches, Chains, Pins, Clocks, Silver-Ware, etc
which I will sell at Prices lower than the same goods can be purchased outside.
Did it ever occur to you that by patronizing home Merchants you were benefiting yourselves?
All classes of Repairing done quickly.
C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,
ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR,
—ON—
Chalevoix Summer Resorts.
I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.
I employ only first-class workmen, both
Carpenters and Painters.
Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention
J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

Fox & Miller
Offer a
Mammoth Stock
OF
BOOTS, SHOES
and other
FOOT WEAR,
AT
LOWER PRICES
Than can be found elsewhere in the County.
We have just secured a
FIRST-CLASS
SHOEMAKER,
And will make Repairing a specialty.
We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.
NOTHING SHODDY.
Fox & Miller.

The Kalamazoo
"DAILY TELEGRAPH."
Contains the Associated Press Dispatches
Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.
Charlevoix, Mich.
Manufacturers of and Wholesale and Retail Dealers
3 EXTRA GRADES OF
FLOUR
Feed, Corn Meal, Graham
We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

M. LITNEY. JOS. STEIMEL
Litney & Steimel
LIVERY,
And Feed Barn
Charlevoix, Mich.
Good Rigs at Lowest Rates.

It Pays to Buy the
BEST BOATS!
The large number of boats I have built for resorters, are advertisements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.
I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the
LEAST MONEY!
All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.
LEAVE ORDERS
with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.
Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.
J. BEAUVAIS.

BOOTS & SHOES
Have you seen our $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00 Gents Shoes?
If not do so at once. They are made solid throughout even to the counter. You'll have no trouble with these goods running over at the heel.
These goods cannot be equalled in the county
Either in style, quality or price. We will take pains this season to have in stock goods that will suit all. New ad. soon on Ladies' Fine Shoes of latest styles New York, Common Sense, and London Toes.

Ladies Look Out
For the new line of latest style goods that is on the road for
D. SHERWOOD & CO.

A. J. McLEOD,
Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at Wholesale or Retail
All kinds of
FRESH MEATS,
SALT PORK,
SMOKED & SALTED
HAMS,
Dried and Smoked
BACON, DRIED BEEF, Bologna, Head Cheese, Sausage.
Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.
Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.
A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S
MARKET
Is supplied with
All Kinds Of
MEATS
At Lowest Prices.
CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.
Corner of State & Mason sts.,
JOHN McCABE.

Washburn & Ackert,
FOUNDREYMEN,
MACHINISTS,
And Manufacturers of The
Charlevoix Plow.

Take The Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

J MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law, Office in Buttars' Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PAILTHORPE & GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. S. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon, 4 doors west of Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office at residence, Main st. Charlevoix. Office hours 8 to 10 a. m.; 6 to 8 p. m.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 119, meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

MASONIC. Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M. Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Post-office.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake Lodge No. 293, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

K. O. T. M.—Heart Tent No. 138, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' Hall.

L. O. L.—True Blues No. 157, meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. 101, R. A. M., meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 130, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of the members, during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.
President—Byron See.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller.
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strang.
Financial Secretary—R. Suffield.
Treasurer—Albert E. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. D. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. Lee Iddings, W. A. Brown and C. Y. Cook.
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, H. J. Stockman, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, B. W. Miller, S. M. See, W. C. Newman, E. M. Clark, H. Berdan.
All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequalled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the travelling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids Stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,
Lorenzo Cook, Manager
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only 100 feet to Steamboat Landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE.
W. C. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Fitted up with a view to the Comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central Location.

PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and Dock work solicited at any point between Traverse City and Mackinaw. L. R. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

MUNROE'S STEAM PILE DRIVER. Dock owners and Builders, look to your interest. Contracts taken and dock work solicited at any point between Sault St. Marie and Grand Haven. Correspondence promptly attended to. Address,
JOHN MUNROE, Jr., Gen'l Manager,
South Arm, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. R. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. [Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.]

DENTIST

N. J. PERRY, Dentist.
Office in Weed's Drug Store,
Charlevoix, Mich.

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R.

"Mackinac Short Line."

Only direct line between the east and south and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Going West read down		Stations	Going East read up
	5 45 pm	Detroit	11 10 am
7 00 am	6 50 am	St Ignace	8 30 pm	5 55 pm
9 25	8 52	Newberry	6 21	2 03
12 20	9 40	Seney	5 15	12 35
	10 42	Reedsboro	4 15
3 25	11 31	Au Train	3 25	9 05
5 30	12 40	Marquette	2 15	7 00
	12 50pm	Marquette	2 00 pm
	1 58	Ishpeming	12 58
	4 10	L'Anse	10 10
	5 30	Houghton	9 20
	5 55	Calumet	8 15

Connections made with M T Co boats, M C & G G & I R R & M R & C
E. W. ALLEN, Gen Pass Agt, Marquette

Grand Rapids & Indiana R. R.

Time Card for Petoskey.

IN EFFECT, JULY 1887.

Leave Going North	*6.05 a m, 5.06 p m, 8.36 p m
Leave Going South	8.50 a m, 2.15 p m, †10.55 pm
* daily,	† daily except Saturday.

Land for Sale.

I have 5 acres just east of the cemetery, one mile from town, nearly all cleared, which I will sell cheap for cash, or approved paper. Address
JAMES METCALF, Charlevoix.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix. It

WANTED!
Potatoes, Onions, Apples, Peaches and Blueberries.
We have an old established trade and can place stock to best advantage. Consignments solicited. Correspondence invited from shippers. Stencil and shipping tags furnished.
W. H. THOMPSON & CO.
Commission Merchants,
No. 166 South Water St,
CHICAGO, ILL.
References: Felsenthal, Gross & Miller, Bankers, Chicago, Ill.

THE SEPOY MUTINY.

Terrible Scenes Witnessed by an American While in India.

"I shudder yet when I think about it," were the words which prefaced the remarkable story related to a reporter by Mr William Bently. This gentleman, says the Pittsburg Commercial Gazette, is one of the few surviving European officers who witnessed the blood-curdling terrors of the Sepoy mutiny in India in 1857 and 1858. "I was a lieutenant attached to the corps of engineers in the Bengal army," he continued. "We were stationed at Meerut. It was on the 10th of May, 1857, that the uprising of the Sepoys occurred there. That was Sunday evening. I saddled my horse to go and see a friend who was an officer of one of the native regiments of the Infantry. The Sepoys in this regiment belonged to the disaffected troops, but were not suspected. Of course I had no suspicion. I had just arrived at my friend's bungalow when the natives broke open the bells of arms and began the slaughter of officers, who had just arrived from their quarters.

"Each was killed on sight. One whom I spoke with a few moments before was Col. Finnis, the brother of the then lord mayor of London. My friend told me to look sharp and save my life. I at once galloped off. The natives, however, saw me and at once gave chase, but I escaped with only a bullet in my leg. I took refuge with the officers of the 6th carbineer regiment, and when they turned out on parade shortly afterward I was requested to remain in their lines. I staid there all night. The massacre of the officers and their ladies continued throughout the night, and the scenes among the killed and wounded were frightful beyond description. For instance, on the stage of the theatre at Meerut I counted no less than thirty-six corpses.

"These were nothing in comparison with the scenes at Cawnpoor—awful scenes, which at this long distance of time I am quite unable to wholly banish from my mind when it reverts to that country and time. It was here that, by orders of Nana Sahib, Brig. Gen. Wheeler and his brave soldiers were slaughtered in trenches and fired upon by masked batteries. The Nana put to death all women found in the town after cutting their feet off and subjecting them to other outrages.

"Miss Wheeler, the lovely daughter of the general, rather than submit to the gross violence, leaped into a deep well. The Nana at once seized upon this horrible idea, and as fast as the European ladies were massacred their bodies were flung into this well. At the edge of this famous 'Well of Cawnpoor' I stood within a week after it was filled with its human contents. The stench arising from it was something that is sickening even to think of now. Over that site now rises one of the most magnificent pieces of architecture to be seen in all India. It is a fine octagon marble building around the well, without a roof, and inclosing an elaborate tomb. It is near the theater and close to the bank of the finest canal in the world, the Ganges. Memorial gardens have also been laid out around the scene of the massacre and a beautiful church erected.

"Children's brains were dashed out against the walls of buildings. When I reached Cawnpoor the well was guarded and railed in. On the walls of dwellings we saw signs of fearful slaughter. There were tatters of clothing, clumps of hair clotted thick with blood, while the slaughter-house, was smeared with blood and flesh. Thirty pairs of feet were found in one place. On the two days of the massacre, out of nine hundred Europeans, at least two-thirds were butchered, and in September two hundred more were massacred.

"In the fearful retribution which followed I saw the mutineers strapped to the mouths of cannon and blown to pieces; others were hanged anywhere; scores of them were beheaded, and others shot down with volleys of musketry.

"I have seen the Nana, too. Before the mutiny he was one of the best men at our mess; after the rebellion he escaped, and we had several chases after him. It was thought that he was hidden in the Nepaul hills, and I have good reason to believe that he died in the jungle.

"At the siege and capture of Delhi I was present, and formed one of the party to blow open the Cashmere gate, when Lieut. Howe, Sergt. Carmichael, and two others were killed. I assisted to carry out of the ditch, where he fell mortally wounded, the brave and good John Nicholson, under a heavy fire from the walls and bastions of the city.

"At the capture of Lucknow I was employed on the engineer's staff, and with Lieuts Donald McNeill and Vincent Eyre, of the artillery, I discovered and rescued two of our ladies from the custody of one of the rebels, who had them closely confined in a very small room. In the Rohilcand campaign and battle and capture of Bareilly, where we fought under Clyde from 5 A. M. till sunset, we lost more brave men by sunstrokes than by casualties. After the action the men bivouacked on the field and sank exhausted. Many were found to have fallen asleep in the very act of raising the food provided for them to their mouths. Scores and hundreds were found dead in the morning."

A Remarkable Intention.

A Wooster, O., correspondent of the Cleveland Leader writes: In the small village of Millbrook, six miles southwest of Wooster, lives C. H. Keister, a modest and poor day laborer, who thinks he has solved the great problem of utilizing wave power. He is about 47 years of age, and has always lived in Wayne county. His only advantages for an education were those afforded at a country school, and to him even these opportunities were limited. But when not employed as a day laborer by the neighboring farmers he was always to be found at home, deep in study, and as a result of years of concentration he became somewhat posted in the mental and physical sciences, and even in law. Mr. Keister, in an interview with your correspondent to-day, had the following to say: "For some reason or other my mind has always tended toward solving the problem of devising means or force to drive machinery. Wave power first attracted my attention in 1878, on reading of the uses of fog signals at dangerous seacoasts. I worked and studied very diligently for several years, and at last I have found it. I immediately experimented by means of artificial waves on ponds with perfect satisfaction. Had I had the means I would have had the invention patented and before the public ten years ago. I have recently placed it in the hands of a patent agency, and it is now on exhibition at the Cincinnati exhibition. In its construction it is very simple, but gigantic in its effect, consisting simply of a number of open-ended cylinders or vessels placed in the water parallel to each other on a horizontal plane, connected by means of pipes and valves. Connected with each apparatus are one or more receivers for the purpose of returning the compressed air. These are constructed on the same principle as the above described cylinders, but considerably larger. By means of pipes, which, if exposed to the heat of the sun, will still increase the pressure of the compressed air, this compressed air is conveyed to the place desired. The power of the machine depends upon the number of cylinders, and also on the height of the waves. Four compressing cylinders, with the waves running at fifteen feet from crest to trough, will furnish four twenty-five horse-power engines. The maximum height of waves is forty-two feet." Mr. Keister has had several opportunities to sell the invention, but proposes holding to it until its practicability is fully tested. In conclusion he said: "When coal, gas, and wood, the most abundant of all force-producing materials, are consumed too low to be used profitably for motor forces, free force must be used, such as wind, gravity, light, etc., and of all free or natural forces there is none greater than the force produced by waves of water."

A BACHELOR'S GROWL.

The Decrease of Marriage in Good Society, and Why.

In the Globe of a recent date was a reprint of a letter entitled "A Belle's Lament." The fair unknown regrets seven weary years of social toil. She is 24, and has been flattered and complimented, and with the slightest encouragement might now have been a loving wife. She says: "It is lamentably true that, like many another girl, my ears have grown so accustomed to compliments that they are only empty, meaningless sounds, for despite the victory a woman achieves every time somebody tells her she is beautiful, particularly when she knows there is truth in the assertion, the fact remains and overwhelms her like an avalanche from which there is no escape that among all the knightly gallants not one of the praiseful throng has the manliness or courage to ask her hand in marriage." She points out the folly and figures the expense of this fluttering-around-the-light-without-coming-to-the-point business, and adds: "Isn't it simply heart-rending for a girl of my years—and qualifications, too, I may add—to contemplate? Is it any wonder I sit in my room every day, after a night of decollete dressing and silly waltzing, and shed bitter tears because, though men flatter, they refuse to think well enough of me to marry me?"

I truly sympathize with the young woman; but let me ask: "Is the lot of the young men who flatter but dare not wed lovely damsels of her stamp any more enviable?" How often have I not returned from a full-dress rout, divested myself of the infallible "spike-tail," ensconced myself comfortably with my slippered feet on the mantel, fired the final cigar—philosophized. Through the curling smoke I see visions of the fair being upon whom I've expended my best efforts at persiflage only an hour since. I think how cozy it would be were she to be gazing at the dying embers of the hearth, sitting on a low stool by my side, and how tenderly I'd kiss those pretty shoulders that I but an hour since compared with those of the Venus of the Louvre.

The picture is so enchanting I even seriously speculate upon the possibility of making it real. A little sober reasoning and it is all dissolved into smoke even like the cigar, the remnants of which I throw among the blackened coals. I'm 28 and a struggling barrister. The battle is not won. I've a reputation to make—position to gain. Eve's fair daughters of to-day do not cast their lot with struggling young men, win or lose, rise or go under. The young lady of the period is too well trained to do anything that is not strictly good form, don't you know, and it is not good form to give way to sentiment to the extent of marrying a man who has not wealth and position. If it is not an absolute drinking foreigner with a title, it is a 50-year-old millionaire, with a neck the size of her waist, that can successfully bid for the favors of the fair maiden of to-day. She will listen to your tribute to her beauty. She even grows a connoisseur in the matter of the quality of your compliments. She is not stupid and you must sharpen your wits in order to invent palatable food for her vanity. She waltzes with you, flirts with you, even indulges in tender little scenes with you; but marry you—dear, no, "he's such a dear fellow, but then he is so wretchedly poor, and one must wed a brilliant party, you know."

I do not know where the fault lies, but that marriage among the better-bred people is becoming beautifully less cannot be denied. That the effect upon both sexes is demoralizing is equally apparent. I know scores of young men with brains and education who shun society and the fashionable young woman for the reason that they well know that marriage cannot be thought of until much later in life with women in her sphere, and to follow in her wake an admiring swain is a thankless and costly task fraught with more vexation than pleasure. The result is that in most large cities there are coteries of young men—and usually the best ones, too—who live rather fast lives, and in consequence when they do marry, at a late day, are unfit to be husbands and fathers. I know scores of young men who would be willing to marry—and in many cases it would be their salvation—could they find young women of equal social attainments who would brave the struggle with them. The lives of most of these young men can be boiled down as follows: A more or less—according to disposition—gay bachelor life, and, if not wrecked by the wayside, when they get fat, flabby, and bald, a brilliant wedding with an ambitious bud, a short honeymoon, mutual disgust, big funeral, interesting young widow—tra la.—"Lone Bachelor," in Boston Globe.

In several European countries charred cigars "stumps" have a commercial value. They are bought by shepherds for making a decoction for killing insects on sheep. Florists also buy them for the purpose of burning in green houses or for steeping in water that is used for syringing plants infested by ants or other insects. Some gardeners employ them for making nicotine water, which is said to hasten the growth of certain flowering plants and to cause them to put out very large blossoms.

It costs $10 in Paris to learn how to bow gracefully. A sweet smile comes $5 extra.

The boys in the Chinese Mission School usually prefer women teachers, perhaps because these are more sympathetic and patient with them; and there is a good story of one who, in the absence of his own teacher, was put under the instruction of a man. He seemed uneasy and unhappy, and when asked how the lesson had gone burst out with: "Me no likee man teacher! Me want old gal!"—Boston Record.

Very Remarkable Recovery.

Mr. Geo V. Willing, of Manchester, Mich., writes: "My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone. She used two Bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved that she is able now to do her own work."

Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of testimonials attest their great curative powers. Only fifty cents a bottle at Dr. G. W. Crouter's

Excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Tex., by the remarkable recovery of Mr. J. E. Corley, who was so helpless he could not turn in bed, or raise his head; everybody said he was dying of Consumption. A trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes of Pills and two bottles of the Discovery, he was well and had gained in flesh thirty-six pounds. Trial Bottles of this Great Discovery for Consumption free at Dr. G. W. Crouter's

FOR LAME BACK, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cents.

SHILOH'S COUGH and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures Consumption. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

SHILOH'S VITALIZER is what you need for Constipation, Loss of Appetite, Dizziness, and all symptoms of Dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents a bottle.

CROUP, WHOOPING COUGH and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

Land for Sale.

I offer for sale the south half of the south-east quarter of section seventeen, (17) in Township Thirty-three (33) North, of Range Eight (8) West, known as the "Weitzel place" in Marion. Apply to
THOMAS WEST,
1203 457 Lafayette St., Grand Rapids.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter

W. H. FRANCIS
FURNITURE
—AND—
JOBBING SHOP,
Will also do
Contracting & Building,
In Charlevoix, and Summer Resorts.
I keep in my shop a full set of hand and foot power machinery which enables me to do jobbing, repairing etc. on short notice.
Shop on South Terrace,
Opposite Sheriff Berdan's residence.

MILLINERY,
FANCY GOODS,
DRESS-MAKING.
We have just opened a large line of Spring and Summer Millinery and Fancy Goods to which we invite your attention.
DRESS-MAKING done on the TAILOR SYSTEM. The best work done at the lowest rates.
ALDRICH SISTERS.
Ingleside Building.

MERCHANT
TAILORING.
I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.
Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.
Call and see me, Satisfaction Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,
C. H. Maddaugh.

CHARLEVOIX
Manufacturing Co.
Charlevoix, Mich.,
Manufacturers of
Sash and Doors,
Blinds, Mouldings etc.
NEWELL
Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails
kept in stock.
Window & Door Frames made to order.
All Kinds of
Building Material
Kept constantly on hand.
PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS,
Furnished on application.
Cottages made a specialty
also contracting and building
Correspondence solicited.

"MARVELOUS PRICES!"
BOOKS FOR THE MILLION
Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away. [illegible]
1. The Widow Bedott Papers. [illegible]
2. Winter Evening Recreations, a large collection of Acting Charades, Tableaux, Games, Puzzles, etc., for social gatherings, private theatricals, and evenings at home.
3. Back to the Old Home. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Hidden Perils."
4. Dialogues, Recitations and Readings, a large and choice collection for school exhibitions and public and private entertainments.
5. The Standard Letter Writer for Ladies and Gentlemen, a complete guide to correspondence, giving plain directions for the composition of letters of every kind, with innumerable forms and examples.
6. The Frozen Deep. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
7. Red Court Farm. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne," etc.
8. The Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott. [illegible]
9. In Cupid's Net. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
10. Amos Barton. A Novel. By George Eliot, author of "Adam Bede," "The Mill on the Floss," etc.
11. Lady Gwendoline's Dream. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
12. The Mystery of the Holly Tree. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
13. The Budget of Wit, Humor and Fun, a large collection of the funny stories, sketches, anecdotes, poems, and jokes.
14. John Bowerbank's Wife. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
15. The Gray Woman. A Novel. By Mrs. Gaskell, author of "Mary Barton," etc.
16. Sixteen Complete Stories by Popular Authors, embracing love, humorous and detective stories, stories of society life, of adventure, of railway life, etc., all very interesting.
17. Jasper Dane's Secret. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Aurora Floyd," etc.
18. Fancy Work for Home Adornment, an entirely new work upon this subject, containing easy and practical instructions for making fancy baskets, wall pockets, brackets, needle work, embroidery, etc., etc., profusely and elegantly illustrated.
19. Grimm's Fairy Stories for the Young. The finest collection of fairy stories published. The children are delighted with them.
20. Manual of Etiquette for Ladies and Gentlemen, a guide to politeness and good breeding, giving the rules of modern etiquette for all occasions.
21. Useful Knowledge for the Million, a handy book of useful information for all, upon many and various subjects.
22. The Home Cook Book and Family Physician, containing hundreds of excellent cooking recipes and hints to housekeepers, also telling how to cure all common ailments by simple home remedies.
23. Manners and Customs in Far Away Lands, a very interesting and instructive book of travels, describing the peculiar life, habits, manners and customs of the people of foreign countries.
24. 57 Popular Ballads. Same size as sheet music. Words of all the old and new songs.
25. Called Back. A Novel. By Hugh Conway.
26. At the World's Mercy. A Novel. By Florence Warden, author of "The House on the Marsh," etc.
27. Mildred Trevanion. A Novel. By "The Duchess," author of "Molly Bawn," etc.
28. Dark Days. A Novel. By the author of "Called Back."
29. Shadows on the Snow. A Novel. By B. L. Farjeon, author of "Bread and Cheese and Kisses," etc.
30. Leoline. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Brenda Yorke," etc.
31. Gabriel's Marriage. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "No Name," etc.
32. Reaping the Whirlwind. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Old Middleton's Money," etc.
33. Dudley Carleon. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Lady Audley's Secret," etc.
34. A Golden Dawn. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
35. Valerie's Fate. A Novel. By Mrs. Alexander, author of "The Wooing O't," etc.
36. Sister Rose. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
37. Anne. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne."
38. The Laurel Bush. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
39. Robinson Crusoe. A thrilling narrative by Daniel De Foe, describing the adventures of a castaway in the South Pacific Ocean.
40. How to Make Poultry Pay. A practical and instructive series of articles by Mr. P. H. Jacobs, Poultry Editor of "The Farm and Garden," Phila., illustrated.
41. Parlor Magic and Chemical Experiments, a book which tells how to perform hundreds of amusing tricks in magic and instructive experiments with simple agents.
42. Gems of the Poets, containing charming selections from Tennyson, Longfellow, Whittier, Byron, Shelley, Moore, Bryant, and many others.
43. Building Plans for Practical, Low-cost Houses. A full description and plans of Eight modern houses, ranging in price from $500 to $4500. Illustrated.
44. Anecdotes of Public Men—Washington, Franklin, Webster, Clay, Tilden, Lincoln, Scott, Grant, Garfield, Gladstone, Butler, Hancock, Lee, and all the leading men of the century.
45. Æsop's Fables. The work of an ancient genius. Children have read them for centuries, and grown people quote them every day.
OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.
We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $2.00, or we will send any five for 25 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of "SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

GRENADES.
Two Sizes—Pints and Quarts.
Over Sixty Millions Sold.
PRICES.
Pints, - Per Doz., $10.00.
Quarts, " " 15.00.
"STAR"
Tubular Fire Extinguisher,
Glass Tube, 19x2¼ in. Holds 1 quart.
In this device we combine the BEST QUALITIES of our famous Grenades with the NEW feature of having an article that can be used by Sprinkling. It is designed especially for use in Passenger Coaches and Dwellings. It is elegant in ornamentation. It is cheap and reliable. No rust; no corrosion possible.
Plain, $12.00 per doz.
Ornamt'd, 15.00 per doz.
The "Star" EXTINGUISHER
Holds 5 gallons, and will force a stream through 6 feet of hose 45 feet with our pump, which is the best ever made. Needs no attention until used. Will not freeze, explode or get out of order. No rust or corrosion. Can be used by anyone.
Price, $60.00 Each.
"STAR" CHEMICAL.
Just what is needed in every village, lumber yard, warehouse, etc. Fully equipped with Hose, Ax, Crow Bar, Lantern, etc. It is cheap and reliable. Wt. 450 lbs.
PRICE.
$200.00 EACH.
Four years of practical use have demonstrated these to be the only reliable and thoroughly efficient Hand Fire appliances made. We use the same chemical liquid in all, and guarantee fully. Liberal discounts to agents. Send for circulars and testimonials.
The HARDEN HAND GRENADE CO.
81 & 83 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Take The Sentinel.

SOMETHING NEW.
WORLD RENOWNED
CENTRE DRAFT PLOW

The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are, that it
1st. NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d. TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.
The Beam is not bolted to the landside, but—by means of a steel frog—is set directly in the Centre of the Line of Draft, making a steady light running plow, and one that cannot be Clogged. See one before you buy.
If your Agent has none write us for price.
MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS,
RACINE, Wis.

PAINTS!
STOVES, HARDWARE, TINWARE, FISHING TACKLE, NOTIONS, ETC., ETC.
THE BEST FORCE PUMPS,
FARMING IMPLEMENS.

JOB AND TIN WORK.
L. D. Bartholomew & Co.
JOB AND TIN WORK.

DRUGS and STATIONERY,
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.
A Large and Complete New Line
JUST RECEIVED.
EVERYTHING
YOU CAN THINK OF.
You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.
PERRY WEED.
The only News stand in town.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN
Boiler Works!
Builder and Manufacturer of
BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.
Sheet Iron Work given special attention.
MARINE WORK
a specialty.
HENRY BARTH, Prop.
Charlevoix, Mich.

HUMPHREYS'
DR. HUMPHREYS' BOOK
Cloth & Gold Binding
144 Pages, with Steel Engraving,
MAILED FREE.
Address, P. O. Box 1810, N. Y.
LIST OF PRINCIPAL NOS. CURES PRICE.
1 Fevers, Congestion, Inflammations .25
2 Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic .25
3 Crying Colic, or Teething of Infants .25
4 Diarrhea, of Children or Adults .25
5 Dysentery, Griping, Bilious Colic .25
6 Cholera Morbus, Vomiting .25
7 Coughs, Cold, Bronchitis .25
8 Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache .25
9 Headaches, Sick Headache, Vertigo .25
HOMEOPATHIC
10 Dyspepsia, Bilious Stomach .25
11 Suppressed or Painful Periods .25
12 Whites, too Profuse Periods .25
13 Croup, Cough, Difficult Breathing .25
14 Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions .25
15 Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains .25
16 Fever and Ague, Chills, Malaria .50
17 Piles, Blind or Bleeding .50
19 Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head .50
20 Whooping Cough, Violent Coughs .50
24 General Debility, Physical Weakness .50
27 Kidney Disease .50
28 Nervous Debility 1.00
30 Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed .50
32 Diseases of the Heart, Palpitation 1.00
SPECIFICS.
Sold by Druggists, or sent postpaid on receipt of price.—HUMPHREYS' MEDICINE CO. 109 Fulton St. N.Y.

CURES
Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, Whooping Cough, Quinzy, Sore Throat, Consumption, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Diseases.
YOUNG'S
COUGH
SYRUP
Hudsonville, Mich., Aug. 15, 1871. I was attacked with a severe cold and threatened with lung fever while on a visit to Hudson, Mich., about a month ago, so much so that I was unable to fill an appointment to preach on account of my severe coughing, but managed to get home and immediately took some of Dr. E. A. Young's Cough & Lung Syrup. [illegible] in the house, and my cough left me as soon as I commenced taking it, and I find permanent relief when I am attacked by cough or lung complaint.
REV. ROBT. CORN.
Howell, Mich., Oct. 28, 1874.—I have tried Dr. E. A. Young's Cough and Lung Syrup for more than a year, as I had occasion for a remedy for Colds and Coughs, and found it a reliable medicine. I have used his Ague and Liver Syrup in my family with the best of success, curing my mother who was over seventy years of age of one of the hardest attacks of Fever and Ague, after the second chill and fever. I take pleasure in recommending the above remedies to all who need them.
REV. S. H. KIMMELL.
Sold by all druggists. Price, 25c, 50c. and $1.00. Large bottles sent free on receipt of price.
W. JOHNSTON & CO.,
DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Pan-Zama Balm
THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES
The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Trouble to which woman kind is heir—$1 per box of one month's treatment. Reliable Lady Agents can make money for themselves and become benefactors to their race by engaging in the sale of this remedy. For medicine and particulars, Address
PAN-ZAMA MED. CO.,
Frankfort, Ind.

160 Acres in MARION
Township For Sale at a Bargain, Terms to suit.
MONEY TO LOAN ON
Approved Real Estate Security.
THEODORE R. CHAPIN
Boyne City.

FRANK E. WOODS
Bath & Barber Rooms
Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd fellows Block.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS.
Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.
If you want a quiet place to get a shave, hair dress or bath call and see me.
JAY L. PRICE.

NEW SHOP!
All kinds of Blacksmithing,
At the
Shop in the Foundry Building.
Horseshoeing a specialty.
ALL WORK GUARANTEED.
M. SCOTT.

1-3 OFF SALE!
At Miss Spaulding's
MILLINERY ROOMS,
I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.
Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $5.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed felt hat in the store.
Come early and secure a Bargain.
MISS L. SPAULDING.

JAS. A. GELLICK,
Dealer in
Choice Wines,
Fine Liquors
EXCELLENT CIGARS.
We call Special Attention to our
Old Kentucky Sour Mash
WHISKIES.
We also keep continually on draught
Milwaukee
Export and lager Beer,
Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX, ... MICHIGAN.

THE WORLD IN A WORD.

The Latest Intelligence, Domestic and Foreign, Transmitted Over the Electric Wires.

Political, Railroad, and Commercial News, Accidents, Fires, Crimes, Etc., Etc.

LATEST DISPATCHES.

SANDWICH ISLANDS.

All Quiet at Honolulu—The King Made a Virtue of Necessity.

ADVICES from Honolulu to July 5 were brought by the steamship Australia, which has arrived at San Francisco. Tranquillity had been restored on the islands. The new ministry had assumed control and the new constitution was to have been submitted to the King on the 5th. Ex-Minister Gibson had been removed from jail to his home, where he was kept under military guard. Cyprian Webb, his late secretary, had also been arrested and released on bail. On the 4th a significantly enthusiastic celebration of American independence was held, attended by the King and members of his staff. The new Premier is a native of England, and of his colleagues one was born in the United States, one in Canada, and one in Honolulu. It is now stated that the King's first intention, when the populace made their demands, was to make resistance, but becoming convinced that this would result disastrously, he made a virtue of necessity and announced his willingness to comply with the people's wishes.

UTAH.

A Large Decrease in the Mormon Vote in Salt Lake City Elections.

A SALT LAKE dispatch says: "The remarkable decrease in the anti-Mormon vote astonishes if it does not alarm the Saints. The first election under the new registration required by the Edmunds-Tucker law occurred this week for school trustees. It transpires that the Gentiles carried five of the twenty-one districts. This result was entirely unexpected by the Mormons, who confidently looked for a continuance of the old order of things when they carried everything. The small Mormon vote is accounted for in the disfranchisement of women and the refusal of so many to take the oath promising not to violate the law in regard to bigamy and polygamy. The Gentiles are jubilant over the outcome of the school elections and the Mormons are correspondingly downcast. The latter fear if this sort of thing continues the Gentiles will soon solve the problem of political supremacy without the aid of legislation."

Educators in Council.

THE National Educational Association at Chicago, at the second day's session, listened to a number of papers upon educational topics. The standing committees were appointed, and a resolution indorsing the Blair bill was offered by a Boston delegate, and referred to the appropriate committee. The attendance at Central Music Hall was so great that "overflow" sessions were held at the Madison Street Theater, where the proceedings of the principal meeting were duplicated.

The Presidential Party.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND and party went from Holland Patent to Clinton, New York, on Wednesday, stopping for a few moments at Utica, where they had a cordial reception. At Clinton they were greeted by an immense crowd, and after witnessing the parade the President made a brief address at the centennial celebration, devoted mainly to reminiscences of his school days in the village.

Foreign Flashes.

M. CARO, the French philosopher, is dead.... The Pope is suffering from an attack of stomach trouble and neuralgia.... Bills have been passed by the French Chamber for the reorganization and strengthening of the army.... M. Floquet has consented to retain the presidency of the French Chamber.... In a skirmish between Albanians and Montenegrins near Mekas Plan[illegible], ten of the former and two of the latter were killed.

Unprovoked Murder.

AT Washington City, on Wednesday evening, Joseph C. Kennedy, an attorney, one of the oldest residents and a personal acquaintance of many prominent men, was stabbed to death by Sam Daily, a laborer, who claims, in extenuation, that years ago Kennedy [illegible] the murderer's father.

Bold Robbery.

A TRAIN robber entered the private car of General Manager Charles M. Hayes, of the Wabash and Western Road, between St. Louis and Chicago, and relieved Assistant General Passenger Agent Crane of his money and jewelry.

Minor Telegrams.

THE new directory of New York City contains 321,813 names, indicating a population of about 1,[illegible].

TWO RAILROAD companies have been chartered at Harrisburg, Pa., with a capital stock of $24,000,000, to construct links in the proposed Baltimore and Ohio and Lehigh Valley line from New York to Pittsburg.

WEDNESDAY the police and fire department of Youngstown, Ohio, headed by the Marshal, attacked a force of men employed by the Pittsburgh and Western Railroad Company, who were laying a track across Mill street, compelled them to desist, and tore up the track. Clubs were freely used, and many of the combatants were wounded. The railway people threaten to sue the city for heavy damages.

EAST.

A NEW YORK dispatch reports that the sloop Mystery, with a party of excursionists on board, was capsized off Barren Island. The tide was tearing out more rapidly than a millrace, and a land breeze that was almost a gale gave a wild curl to the waves. The sloop had started to come about, but the skipper of her load—there were thirty-seven persons on her—caused delay. Then a squall struck her. Over she went, and men, women, and children were thrown into the water. Ten were rescued; the remaining twenty-seven were engulfed by the water.

DURING a race at Brighton Beach a small dog dashed across the track, causing the filly Jessie to swerve and fall, Wanderment and Florimore falling over her. The jockey Chandler escaped with a severe shock, but Kerber had his right arm broken, and Harris was probably fatally injured, his tongue being nearly cut off [illegible] picked up.

A BOAT containing five men capsized in Boston harbor, and all on board are supposed to have perished. Three English midshipmen who went sailing in Halifax harbor have not been seen or heard from since, and have been given up as lost.

A PHILADELPHIA telegram says that Eddie McDade, a light-haired, blue-eyed lad of 15 years, the track catcher of the Mount Vernon Base-ball Club, was playing behind the home plate, when a swift foul-tip from the bat of young Mickey Curley, of the Liberty Club, struck him in his neck and broke his windpipe. He died four hours later.

WEST.

A ST. LOUIS dispatch says that "interest in the President's Western visit has spread all over the State, and in answer to numerous letters Mayor Francis has issued an address to the people of Missouri requesting that every county in the State appoint one or more representatives to join the St. Louis committee and accompany them to Washington to bear the invitation. The delegation will therefore represent the whole State. The committee will probably reach Washington about the time the President returns from New York. The Globe-Democrat denies, on the authority of a leading member of the Finance Committee, that the refusal of the President to visit St. Louis during the encampment will materially lessen subscriptions to the encampment fund. So far the loss is less than $100, it says, and the percentage of unpaid subscriptions will be considerably smaller than the average when the collectors shall have finished their work."

FOURTEEN bodies have been recovered from the ruins of the Alcazar theater at Hurley, Wisconsin, all so badly charred as to be beyond identification. The number of lives lost was seventeen. Seventy buildings were destroyed, with an aggregate loss of $450,000 and an insurance of $50,000.

THE committee appointed to investigate the alleged irregularities in the Sheriff's office of Sangamon County, Illinois, recommended that suits be commenced at once against the present Sheriff and all ex-Sheriffs, with their bondsmen, as far back as the statute of limitations will permit, to recover moneys charged for by them on account of work done by prisoners. The state of affairs developed by the committee and the recommendation have caused a great sensation at the capital of Illinois.

SOUTH.

AT El Paso, Texas, Sheriff James H. White, having been challenged to fight a duel by E. R. Fox, a contractor, responded by administering a sound thrashing to his adversary on a public street, thus indicating his courage and his good sense at a single stroke.

A NASHVILLE (Tenn.) special says: The Rev. Lewis Burch, the Rev. Sherd Guthrie, the Rev. Samuel Orr, the Rev. George Hannah, Mrs. Lewis Burch, Hencer Terry and two daughters, and Thomas Rogers, all colored, were struck by lightning and instantly killed at Mount Pleasant, Maury County. They had attended the funeral of Harriet Terry, a neighbor, and were returning from the grave when they met their fate. The weather was cloudy and there were occasional flashes of lightning, causing them to hastily conclude the funeral services. They sought shelter from the rain under a large oak tree, which was struck by the electric current, and all fell lifeless. Three other negroes who were in the immediate vicinity were severely shocked.

A DISPATCH from Opelika, Ala., says that during the progress of a heavy thunderstorm the family of John Bankhead, consisting of his wife and three children, who were standing on the veranda of their home watching the cloud, were struck by lightning and fell unconscious to the door. When he found that two of the children were already dead, while the other child and his wife were so paralyzed that they can hardly recover.

WASHINGTON.

A WASHINGTON dispatch says it is practically settled that the President will not visit the West at all during the present year. The abandonment of his proposed visit to St. Louis has resulted in wholly changing the plans he had made for visiting Western cities. Following is the text of his letter to the St. Louis committee declining to visit that city:

While I have hitherto made no formal response to your invitation given in February last to myself and Mrs. Cleveland to attend the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, to be held in St. Louis from the 27th to the 30th of September next, I have verbally indicated my purpose to accept it if I should find it possible then to be absent from Washington.

The statements contained in your letter that the organization was never in so flourishing a condition as now, nor its membership half so large, that no effort is being spared by the citizens of St. Louis to insure a welcome of unusual warmth at this, the first encampment of that body ever held in a Southern State, and your suggestion that no compliment more fitting could be bestowed upon the valiant defenders of a common country by the chief executive of a restored Union, and [illegible] highly appreciated [illegible] than that conferred by his presence at such a time and place," [illegible] More recently indications have been disclosed that, however correctly you expressed the prevailing sentiment in the Grand Army, there are members of that organization [illegible]

I am constrained, therefore, to withhold my proposed acceptance of your invitation. In doing so I assure you of my undisguised hope and sincere wish that [illegible] the veterans of the Grand Army may enjoy the most pleasant, profitable, and useful reunion in their history. Very truly yours, GROVER CLEVELAND.

A WASHINGTON telegram says the Government receipts so far this month amount to $10,093,567, and the expenditures (including nearly $12,000,000 pension payments) to $13,561,102, making an excess of expenditures of $7,867,535. It is estimated that the receipts during the remainder of the month will average $1,000,000 a day, and that the expenditures will be correspondingly large. The total amount of bonds redeemed under the call which matured on the 1st inst. is $18,696,250, leaving still outstanding of that call $1,626,650. The total amount of called bonds outstanding is $5,300,450. The demand for notes of small denominations continues heavy, and the Treasury Department is unable to meet it. Arrangements have been made, however, to secure an increased supply of silver certificates from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and they will be issued as soon as possible. The net gold in the treasury increased from $158,933,805 July 1, 1886, to $181,275,808 July 1, 1887. Since the 1st inst. the gold holdings have decreased $5,602,122, while the circulation of gold certificates has increased $5,263,770. The circulation of standard silver dollars has increased $788,010 since the 1st inst.

GENERAL.

THE will of Thaddeus Kosciusko has been unearthed in the office of the Register of Wills of the District of Columbia. Thomas Jefferson, the executor, is authorized to use the entire property in purchasing and freeing negroes and giving them an education.

OLD Jeff Davis has resurrected himself again in an interview in Baltimore, in which he claims that sundry attempts were made to assassinate him during the war, and that at one time a reward of $106,000 was offered a Northern desperado to do the work.

THE weather-crop bulletin of the signal service office reports that the weather generally during the last week has greatly improved the condition of the growing crops. Both grain and hay harvesting are well advanced in the extreme northern portions of the country, though it has been retarded in some sections by severe local storms. The Farmer's Review of Chicago in its weekly crop summary estimates the yield of spring wheat in Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin at about 75 per cent. of the average. A similar estimate is made as to oats. Corn generally promises well, and is fully two weeks ahead of the season. Potatoes and apples will be about half a crop, and hay hardly so good. More rain is needed in all parts of Illinois. In the southern division the wheat crop, which is pretty well harvested, is about three-fourths of the average yield.

THE Pacific squadron of United States men-of-war has been ordered to rendezvous at Honolulu. The Asiatic squadron will also be ordered to Hawaii if necessary. Queen Kapiolani and suite arrived in New York the other day. The Queen was inclined to tears when she first heard the news of the Hawaiian revolution, but later grew more cheerful.

THE annual convention of the National Educational Association opened at the Exposition building, Chicago, on Tuesday evening, July 12, when addresses of welcome were made by Mayor Roche, President Story, of the Chicago Board of Education, and others. William E. Sheldon, President of the association, responded on its behalf, and a paper entitled "The Problem of To-Day" was read by Professor Edwards, State Superintendent of Schools. The attendance was unprecedentedly large, embracing representatives of every State and Territory in the country.

DETROIT still leads in the contest for the base-ball championship of the National League, while in the American Association Von der Ahe's St. Louis nine continues to lead the field. The following tables show the standing of the clubs in the two associations:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Clubs.	Played.	Won.	Lost.	Percentage.
Detroit	56	40	16	.711
Chicago	55	34	21	.618
Boston	57	34	23	.596
New York	61	33	28	.541
Philadelphia	59	27	32	.457
Pittsburg	54	22	32	.407
Washington	52	19	33	.365
Indianapolis	58	17	41	.293

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

Clubs.	Played.	Won.	Lost.	Percentage.
St. Louis	65	47	18	.723
Baltimore	62	38	24	.612
Cincinnati	70	40	30	.571
Louisville	66	36	30	.545
Athletic	65	33	32	.507
Brooklyn	58	29	29	.500
Metropolitan	61	16	45	.262
Cleveland	62	15	47	.241

HERBERT TAYLOR, a smart young fellow from Worcester, Mass., personated Walker Blaine, the son of James G., in Montreal, and victimized hotel-keepers some thousands of dollars by means of forged checks. He is under arrest.

POLITICS.

A SALT LAKE dispatch says the Utah (Mormon) Constitutional Convention has completed and adopted a constitution. Provisions for the entire separation of church and state, nonsectarian education, no employment or rejection of school teachers on account of faith or nonbelief in any doctrine or sect, forbidding bigamy and polygamy and providing penalties therefor, and apportioning representation so as to favor the minority, were adopted in their entirety, and the convention adjourned subject to the call of the President. The constitution will be submitted to the people August 1, and the Utah commission will allow the votes to be counted.

FOREIGN.

FURTHER particulars of the terrible calamity at Zug, in Switzerland, are furnished by the ocean cable:

For several days crevices had been observed in the new quay at Zug. At 2:30 Tuesday afternoon the lake in front of the stonework began to bubble. The quay cracked and eighty feet of it fell into the lake. A dozen persons who rushed from an adjoining cafe were precipitated into the water and drowned. After a short interval another slip dragged several houses into the water. The landing stage followed, and the steamer which had just arrived was hurled 100 yards forward. At 4 o'clock two boats going to the rescue were engulfed, only one boatman rising again to the surface. At the same moment a boatman's hut, in which there were three children, fell into the water. Furniture and cattle were hurriedly removed from the threatened quarter. At 7 o'clock the landslips began again. Several carts removing property sunk into the lake. Fifteen houses and ten huts disappeared within a few minutes, including the Hotel Zurich, the roof of which is still visible above the surface of the lake. A cafe in which there were ten customers was next engulfed, and 150 meters of a neighboring street then slowly vanished, people jumping from the windows of houses to escape being drowned. A party of officers returning from Lucerne assisted the fire brigade in rescuing imperiled persons; but, the danger increasing, troops were summoned from Baar. The third landslip occurred at 11 o'clock p. m., carrying five houses into the lake and damaging many others. The municipal treasure was removed from the Town Hall to the postoffice. There are seventy persons missing and 200 homeless. The damage is estimated at 1,250,000. People are pouring into Zug from all points to view the scene.

A TIRNOVA dispatch says: "Prince Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha has been elected Prince of Bulgaria by the Sobranje. The announcement was received with great enthusiasm."

A CABLE dispatch from Rome says: "The following Bishops have been appointed: The Rev. James O'Reilly, of Wichita, Kan.; the Rev. Richard Scannell, of Concordia, Kan.; the Rev. Thomas Bonacum, of Lincoln, Neb.; and the Rev. Maurice Bourke, of Cheyenne, Wy. T."

MARKET REPORTS.

NEW YORK.
CATTLE	$4.00	@ 5.00
HOGS	5.50	@ 6.00
WHEAT—No. 1 Hard	.87	@ .88
No. 2 Red	.86½	@ .87½
CORN—No. 2 White	.44	@ .45
OATS—White	.39	@ .43
PORK—New Mess	15.75	@ 16.25
CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice to Prime Steers	4.50	@ 5.00
Medium	3.50	@ 4.25
Common	3.00	@ 3.50
HOGS—Shipping Grades	5.00	@ 5.50
FLOUR—Winter Wheat	4.00	@ 4.50
WHEAT—No. 2 Red Winter	.71½	@ .75
CORN—No. 2	.35	@ .36
OATS—No. 2	.25	@ .26
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	.18	@ .19
Fine Dairy	.12	@ .14
CHEESE—Full Cream, cheddars	.09½	@ .09¾
Full Cream, new	.09	@ .09½
EGGS—Fresh	.12½	@ .13
POTATOES—Choice, new, per brl	2.00	@ 2.50
PORK—Mess	14.00	@ 15.00
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—Cash	.73	@ .73½
CORN—No. 3	.36	@ .36½
OATS—No. 2	.31½	@ .32
RYE—No. 1	.54	@ .56
PORK—Mess	14.25	@ 14.75
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.74	@ .75
CORN—Mixed	.32	@ .32½
OATS—Mixed	.27½	@ .28¼
PORK—New Mess	15.25	@ 15.75
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—No. 2 Wabash	.79	@ .80
CORN—No. 2	.37½	@ .38½
OATS	.28	@ .30
DETROIT.
BEEF CATTLE	4.00	@ 4.75
HOGS	3.75	@ 4.75
SHEEP	3.50	@ 4.50
WHEAT—Michigan Red	.80½	@ .81½
CORN—No. 2	.38	@ .39
OATS—White	.32½	@ .33¼
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.73½	@ .74
CORN—No. 2	.41	@ .42½
OATS—No. 2	.31	@ .31½
PORK—Mess	14.75	@ 15.25
LIVE HOGS	4.50	@ 5.25
BUFFALO.
WHEAT—No. 1 Hard	.86	@ .88
CORN—No. 2	.41½	@ .42½
CATTLE	4.00	@ 5.00
INDIANAPOLIS.
BEEF CATTLE	3.00	@ 4.50
HOGS	5.00	@ 5.50
SHEEP	3.00	@ 4.00
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.75	@ .75½
CORN	.35	@ .36½
OATS—No. 2 Mixed	.28	@ .29
EAST LIBERTY.
CATTLE—Prime	4.50	@ 4.75
Fair	4.25	@ 4.50
Common	3.50	@ 4.00
HOGS	5.00	@ 5.60
SHEEP	4.00	@ 4.50

SENATOR SHERMAN TALKS.

President Cleveland and Pensions—The Battle Flags—Outrages in the South.

[New York special.]

Senator John Sherman, of Ohio, was seated in a large, cool room at the Fifth Avenue Hotel when he received a Mail and Express reporter. He was attired in a light Scotch tweed suit and appeared to be in excellent health and spirits. His business in the city was to attend to some private business, and he will depart for home this evening. In August he intends to take a long trip West on the Canadian Pacific Railroad.

"When the government refuses to care for and forgets the soldiers that saved the Union, then it ought to be wiped out," exclaimed the Senator during the course of conversation, in reply to a question about the pensions vetoed last session of Congress.

He said this about President Cleveland's order to send the flags back: "Well, yes, Ohio was rather decided against such a move. Whether it will hurt Mr. Cleveland as a candidate I do not know. The Democrats do not care about the flags, as they did not care about taking them so much during the war. Mr. Cleveland, I think will be the natural candidate of the Democratic party, and it seems to be the general impression that he will be nominated again. Governor Hill is not known. He is known as a New York politician, of course, but I mean as a candidate for the Presidency."

"You have been attacked by the Democrats on account of your speeches at Nashville and Springfield?"

"Yes; but there are no inconsistencies in the speeches. I simply took different subjects and different lines of thought. In order that I might answer my opponents I had both speeches printed. If any inconsistencies can be pointed out I should like to see them. At Nashville I urged the people to vote the Republican ticket, and argued in favor of protection. In Springfield I showed how a large portion of the voters of the South were disfranchised. My idea is to get Congress to regulate Congressional elections South, to have them conducted under the immediate supervision of Federal inspectors. Instead of having polling places twenty miles apart, I would have them six miles only, in order that the voters could get there in time to cast their ballots. How is it done now? Are the negroes permitted to vote? Some of them; but what good does it do when these votes are not counted? Twenty or thirty colored voters stand in line at the polling place. A very long time is consumed in finding a single name, and when it is found the Democratic Commissioners let the voter put in a ballot, say for Governor, in a box set apart for the Justice of the Peace. The result is the entire ballot is thrown out. Why, the Democrats South do not deny these things, but concede that it is done. They say that the whites intend to remain in the ascendency and therefore they control the elections. I think it shameful that two-thirds of this government should be represented by a country where there is no freedom of the ballot box."

"How about Congress?"

"The South rules in Congress, and the Northern politicians are perfectly subservient to that two-thirds majority. As to State laws in regard to elections, I think New York has the best of any. The Democrats do nothing in Congress except to clog the wheels of legislation. They are divided and can never agree upon any plan to reduce the tariff or the surplus. They defeated the Republicans mainly because of their cry that the surplus would be reduced, and now after three years what have they done toward it? The Democrats will never reduce it, because they can never agree on anything of that nature, hence the country at large must suffer. See the condition of the country to-day. When I was Secretary of the Treasury wheat sold at $1.20 per bushel, and now it is down to 80 cents. Look at the laborers who are not paid for their labor. What have the Democrats done for the laborers? Nothing. Not one single measure have they passed for their relief, and now a great many laborers will go to the polls and vote the Democratic ticket. The Democratic party has no principles, no consistency; it only exists as a party to get offices. Without the incentive of office the Democrats could not hold together. I think the Republican party will win in 1888. As to Ohio's State election Gov. Foraker will be renominated and re-elected Governor this fall."

Cleveland's "Apologetic Surrender."

Senator Manderson's letter to the President in regard to the Rebel flags contained this plain, sturdy, well-supported declaration: "Their gift at this time by way of apologetic surrender to the States that seceded in 1861 and for four years were in armed rebellion against the Government, waging war with every resource and energy possessed by them, is beyond your executive power." Proceeding by citation of authorities to demonstrate the illegality of the President's proposed act, the Nebraska Senator then turned to another phase of the matter and addressed Mr. Cleveland in this style:

"No! Let not this surrender be made. The men who fought for the Union, in the language of Gen. Grant, 'are not yet ready to apologize for the part they took in the War of the Rebellion.' With everything forgiven and almost forgotten, let us at least try to remember that those who fought for the Union were forever right, and those who fought to destroy it were eternally wrong. Again I protest, and urge upon you the reconsideration of this action, which if done can not be undone. I do so as a citizen loving his country and jealous of her honor, as a soldier who took humble part in the days of 1861-'65, as a Senator of the United States representing a constituency which served in the battalions of every loyal State in the Union, and as a member of the Committee on Military Affairs, deeply desirous that the War Department may not so grievously blunder."

Mr. Cleveland may not relish having a Western Republican Senator "talk to him like a Dutch uncle," but in this instance, at least, it did him good. Manderson helped to convince Cleveland that the proposed return of rebel flags was "without warrant of law," but he was unable to draw from the Executive any admission that the act would be wrong in point of propriety or patriotic sentiment. Mr. Cleveland cannot look at it in that way. Although in the full vigor of youthful manhood at the time of the slaveholders' rebellion he refused to give his aid to suppress the conspiracy to disrupt the National Union and establish an oligarchy based on human slavery, and when, a quarter of a century later, he was elected President by the votes of the seceded element, and the crushing out of equal rights in the South, he naturally excused himself to have it forgotten that one side was "forever right and the other eternally wrong." It was characteristic of his general administrative policy that, in ignorance of the law forbidding such an act, he was willing to make the "apologetic surrender" and restore the rebel flags.

Two contestants engaging in a struggle as a friendly trial of strength or display of prowess may fitly end the contest by a general handshaking, cheers for the defeated party, or a complimentary exchange of trophies lost and won. This is Mr. Cleveland's view of the results that should have followed the secession rebellion. Men who fought and periled their lives on the Union side will never accede to this doctrine. They want it remembered that they were right—"forever right"—and that the slaveholders' rebellion was "eternally wrong." They want these truths faithfully stated and repeated for the instruction of future generations. They favor nothing in the nature of an apologetic surrender. They are not willing to give up everything which serves to "recall the war." They will not consent for this or any other purpose pleasing to the ex-Confederate mind to take down the statues of Union soldiers and sailors, to disband the Grand Army of the Republic, the Loyal Legion, the Societies of the Armies of the Potomac, the Tennessee, and the Cumberland—or to surrender rebel flags. They want something to stand which does "recall the war."—Chicago Tribune.

Mugwump Fancies and Hard Facts.

The ability of the New York Times is usually of the serious order, but that able mugwump journal can employ sarcasm with telling effect when the occasion calls for it. For instance, in discussing the probabilities for the Presidential campaign next year, the Time remarks suggestively:

"The blindness of the Democratic leaders, however, who imagine that the failure of President Cleveland to distribute enough offices among his party will prove a decisive element in the next election is even more curious and conspicuous. We do not think that these leaders will govern the action of their party. They do not, so far as appears, possess a controlling influence in that party. There is no reason to think that they can prevent the renomination of Mr. Cleveland."

Certainly not. The mere suggestion that the spoils element of the Democracy should oppose Cleveland savors of the proverbial ingratitude of politics—an ingratitude so base in this instance as to be beyond belief. The removals made by Mr. Cleveland for partisan reasons are without a parallel in the history of the Government. As a spoils-grabbor Jackson is not to be mentioned in the same breath with Cleveland. Ungrateful and hungry as the Democratic party may be, it is incredible that any of its well-informed, responsible leaders will accuse Mr. Cleveland of a failure to deliver the spoils. In view of the facts of the record it may well be believed that Democratic leaders who falsely and maliciously charge Cleveland with infidelity to the spoils system are few in number, and, as the Times says, unable to "govern the action of the party," and without "a controlling interest in the organization." Such false, unfounded complaints come only from a few irresponsible grumblers who don't appreciate the fact that Cleveland's situation required him to satisfy mugwumps with preaching and false promises while he was actually establishing a spoils record that discounts anything Jackson ever attempted. To shame all such malcontents and support the assertion of the Times as to the false charges made against Cleveland by ungrateful, ignorant Bourbons, the Tribune reprints the following, taken from the department records, and showing the progress of civil-service reform up to the latest reports:

	Places filled by Cleveland.	Whole number of places.
Presidential Postmasters estimated	2,000	2,350
Fourth-class Postmasters (estimated)	45,000	52,609
Foreign Ministers	32	33
Secretaries of Legation	16	21
Consuls	138	219
Collectors of Customs	100	111
Surveyors of Customs	33	33
Naval officers of customs	6	6
Appraisers, all grades	84	86
Superintendents of Mints and Assayers	11	13
Assistant Treasurers and Sub-Treasurers	9	9
Collectors of Internal Revenue	84	85
Inspectors of Steam Vessels	8	11
District Attorneys	65	70
Marshals	65	70
Territorial Judges	22	30
Territorial Governors	9	9
Pension Agents	16	18
Surveyors General	16	16
Local land officers	190	224
Indian Inspectors and Special Agents	9	10
Indian Agents	51	59
Special Agents General Land-Office	79	83

The above list is not complete. It does not include chiefs of divisions in the classified service, United States Judges, special commissions, etc. It displays, however, a spoils record such as no other President ever made or attempted to make. The very table seems to reek with the blood drawn by the phenomenal official butcher. The undisputed facts of the record show that as a successful spoils-grabber Mr. Cleveland is without a rival or a peer. Why, then, should the Democratic party even think of selecting another leader? As for the mugwumps, they have invested Cleveland with imaginary qualities, and having sworn so long that he is a civil-service reformer actually believe the assertion themselves, and are wholly blind to the facts. Such stupidity is hardly to be credited to the Times, which, in speaking of Cleveland and the spoils principle, says:

"It was precisely because he was opposed to that principle that he was able to be elected; it is because he has in practice so far resisted the application of that principle that his party is stronger to-day than it was in 1884."

Of course, in using such language as this in face of the facts tabulated above, the Times wants to be understood as expressing what Artemus Ward called "intense sucksam."

Had to Hustle.

Young Wife—"Before we were married you never thought of business matters in the evening; there was not a night that you didn't call to see me——"

Young Husband—"I remember, dear."

Young Wife—"Oh! you do? Well, please explain why it is that you now rush off to your office the moment you have your supper and don't get back till midnight?"

Young Husband—"I have two to support now."

OUT in Wisconsin a horse kicked and killed a book agent, whereupon the citizens made a donation party for the horse, and he now has oats enough to last him a full horse life-time.

"GOOD-BY, sweet tart, good-by!" sang the baker's apprentice when his master discharged him.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Notes on the Lesson for July 24 "The Baptism of Jesus."

The lesson is found in Matthew, third chapter, verses thirteen to seventeen. Time, 26 A. D. Place, the River Jordan.

SPECIAL MENTION.

The River Jordan.—The principal river of Palestine. It rises among the Lebanon mountains and flows almost exactly due south, first through a marshy place to the Lake Huleh or Merom (Josh. 11: 5), then about nine miles to the Lake of Gennesaret, or Sea of Galilee, descending in this distance 600 feet, and reaching at the surface of the lake a point 682 feet below the surface of the Mediterranean, and thence issuing, a headlong torrent, crooked and precipitous, through a narrow and desolate valley, occupying 200 miles in its course, though traversing but 65 in a straight line, falling rapidly meanwhile, and finally issuing in the Dead, or Salt Sea, whose surface is over 1,300 feet below the level of the Mediterranean. Its average width between the two seas is from seventy to eighty yards.

Galilee.—The most northern of the three parts into which Palestine was divided at the time of Christ. It "comprehended Issachar, Zebulon, Naphtali, and Asher. Christ is called 'Jesus of Galilee' (Matt. 26: 69), because he was brought up in that province, and there lived, taught, and called his first disciples (Matt. 4: 13-23; 15: 55; Mark 1: 39; Luke 4: 44; 8: 1: 23: 5; John 7: 1); and it became a name of contempt (John 1: 46; 7: 52; Acts 2: 7), both among Jews and Gentiles, because they were a mongrel race, and used a corrupt dialect, which originated in the amalgamation of the Jews, who settled there after the captivity, with the Gentile foreigners (Matt. 26: 69, 73; Mark 14: 70)."

The baptism of Jesus.—The lesson is confined to this event; it and it accordingly claims the student's chief attention. Let us look at it from different standpoints and in varying relations.

1. Its mode, as shown by the word.

2. The testimony of Dean Stanley: "1. Immersion was wisely selected, not only because it was 'a most delightful, ordinary and salutary observance,' but because it was significantly expressive of the design of baptism.

"2. The word which Christ used to express baptism is literally translated immersion.

"3. Christ himself was immersed.

"4. The apostles uniformly practiced immersion.

"5. Immersion was the invariable practice of the primitive church.

"6. It was the almost universal practice of Christians for thirteen centuries.

"7. When the substitution of sprinkling for immersion began to find favor, it was stoutly resisted as an innovation.

"8. Even in some of the old countries (Russia, for instance), the innovation has been up to the present time successfully resisted.

"9. Immersion (even in the Church of England, is still observed in theory. Elizabeth and Edward VI. were both immersed. The rubric in the public baptism for infants enjoins that, unless for special cases, they are to be dipped, not sprinkled.

"10. The change from immersion to sprinkling is greater than that which the Roman Catholic Church has made in administering the sacrament of the Lord's Supper in the bread without wine." (Morning Star.)

4. Significance of baptism. It is (1) an act of obedience; (2) it is a prescribed form, or act; (3) it is an act of worship; (4) it is an act of initiation; (5) it is an act of consecration; (6) it is an act of public profession; (7) it is an act of symbolic meaning. (Condensed from Tucker's Position of Baptism.)

5. Importance of Baptism. This is shown (1) from its being the initial of the ministry of Jesus; (2) from its being the close of his ministry; (3) from his singling out and emphasizing this duty in his last conversation on earth; (4) from its being the only duty required in the name of the Trinity; (5) from the fact that the only display of the triune God was on the occasion of baptism; (6) from its being associated with things of the most tremendous import, as faith, salvation, heaven, hell; (7) from its being essential to the fulfillment of righteousness. (Condensed from Tucker.)

6. Baptism a test of character. Geikie says: "Can we question that such an act was a crisis in the life of our Lord? His perfect manhood, like that of other men, in all things, except in sin, forbids our doubting it. Holy and pure before sinking under the waters, he must yet have risen from them with the light of a higher glory in his countenance. His past life was closed; a new one had opened. Hitherto the humble villager, veiled from the world, he was henceforth the Messiah, openly working among men. It was the true moment of entrance on a new life. Past years had been buried in the waters of Jordan. He entered them as Jesus the Son of man; he rose from them the Christ of God."

"The founder of the Russian Empire left his palace and capital, the seductive pleasures and all the pomp and royalty, to acquire the art of ship-building in the dock-yard of a Dutch seaport. He learned it that he might teach it to his subjects; he became a servant that he might be the better master, and lay in Russia the foundation of a great naval power. Nor has his country been ungrateful. Her capital, which bears his name, is adorned with a monument to his memory, massive as his mind; and she has embalmed his deathless name in her heart and in her victories. Yet, little as men think of Jesus, lightly as they esteem Him, a far greater sight is here. There, a king becoming a subject that his subjects might find in him a king, there was much for men; but here there is much for both men and angels to wonder at and praise through all eternity. The Son of God stoops to toil! What an amazing scene! (Dr. Guthrie.)

7. Why baptism should be studied. (1) Because it is a part of the revealed will of God; and (2) has never been abrogated; (3) it is essential to a true acknowledgment of God; (4) in order that one may know the truth on this controverted point. (Condensed from Stalker.)

8. Conclusion of the whole matter. "Whatsoever he saith unto you, do it." Study this first and important duty of the new life (1) individually, (2) scripturally, (3) candidly, (4) resolutely, (5) prayerfully, (6) obediently. "If ye know these things happy are ye if ye do them."

CONNECTING LINK.

With the baptism of the Savior, John's special office, as the announcer of the coming One, ceased. The king had come, and John, who had before been a herald, now becomes a witness. His humility when his special work was done was as grand as his boldness in doing it: "He must increase," he says of the Savior, "but I must decrease." He still continued to preach and to baptize, however, and to bear witness to the character and mission of Christ. (John iii., 23-36.)

Jesus was personally sinless—why did he undergo this rite which properly belonged to sinners? Simply because he was "made sin for us," and took upon him our human nature in order that he might purify it, redeem it, and reunite it to God. As one with humanity, he had already submitted to circumcision and purification—as one with humanity, he had yet to "put away sin by the sacrifice of himself." The "baptism with which he was to be baptized," and which he longed to have "accomplished" (Luke xii. 50), was the baptism of suffering and death in whose dark waves he was to be overwhelmed at the end of his ministry. Made "in the likeness of sinful flesh," he foresaw that the crowning act of that ministry must be to "descend into death laden with the guilt of humanity, and as a glorified conqueror to rise from the grave," the head of a new and holy race. This final baptism of death, in which was condensed the whole substance of his earthly work, Jesus typified and foreshadowed when he was baptized by John. The baptism in Jordan was the public consecration of Jesus to his work of suffering and death for the sins of the world. (Examiner.)

SEED THOUGHTS AND GERM THOUGHTS.

1. We should put ourselves where duties may be learned and performed (v. 13).
2. The lowly servant may be honored with an exalted position or work (v. 14)—may herald some great leader of the church.
3. We should be careful lest a false humility cause us to oppose Christ (v. 14).
4. Are you convinced you should be baptized? Then follow Christ and be baptized (v. 13).
5. It was necessary for even the perfect Savior to render an exact obedience (v. 15).
6. The act of obedience is the gateway to the opening heavens and the descending Spirit (v. 16).
7. True love and loyalty are shown only by a careful obedience (v. 15).
8. If we are in Christ we shall receive the welcome approval which the Father speaks to him (v. 17).
9. If we obey heaven's command we are endowed with heaven's Spirit (v. 16).
10. Since Christ is the well-beloved of God, we may be sure there is no salvation except through him.
11. Since Christ is loved and honored of God, every least command of his should be carefully and strictly obeyed.
12. A message from heaven! Then it is likely there will be a word, or a tone, or a thought, or a meaning, that we may not fully understand yet.

Subject of lesson for July 31—"The Temptation of Jesus"—Matt. 4: 1-11.

BASE-BALL.

The Race for the Championship—The Chicago Club's Big Spurt.

An Interesting Chat with President Spalding—Why the Champions Are Playing Good Ball.

[CHICAGO CORRESPONDENCE.]

For the past two weeks the fight for the League pennant has been narrowing down to the three present leaders in the race, Detroit, Chicago and Boston, and the prospects for last season's great struggle between Detroit and the White Stockings being fought over again are improving with almost each day that passes. No one seems more strongly convinced than President Spalding that such will be the result, and when asked Saturday how he thought it would all end, he said: "Nothing that I know of now can stop us. We shall win the pennant in a gallop if our men continue to play the ball they are playing now, and even though we should meet with misfortune of any kind, such as the disabling of our players, postponed games through unfavorable weather, or any of the other ills a ball club is heir to, we shall, I think, beat Boston and New York out at the finish, and take a good second place. We usually have a pretty fair share of luck, however, and by the 15th day of August I expect to see Anson's men in the lead. I predicted before the team returned to Chicago on June 9 that, before it left on its next Eastern trip, we should be in second place. You see that the prediction has been verified. As for Detroit, the team is playing a strong and winning game just at present. It may continue to do so. As you see by the result of last week's games, however, the team is not too strong to be beaten by New York. There is an element of grit and nerve in the New York team that one cannot help admiring, and if they should steadily improve from now until the end of the season, it would not surprise me in the least. On the contrary, I rather anticipate that such will be the case."

"Is there any prospect that the Association or League will consolidate this fall; that Indianapolis will drop out; or, that in the event of the failure of the two big organizations to become one, that the St. Louis Browns will be admitted to the League circuit?"

"Well, it is as yet a little early to discuss such matters, and yet I am free to confess that I have thought of all of them. In the first place, the matter of consolidation is in exactly the same state it has been in for six months past save that the demonstrated superiority of the St. Louis and Baltimore clubs has made it pretty clearly apparent that they are out of their class in the association. At no time since the matter of consolidation has been considered or proposed has the time for it been so propitious. I can not say on the whole, though, that I am as anxious for it as many newspaper correspondents have represented me to be. The League is without question the greatest athletic and amusement organization of its kind in the world to-day. Look where you will and find any organization if you can, with aggregate salary lists of $300,000 a year, and expenses of fully three-quarters of a million. Point out any enterprise that can draw 158,000 people to its performances in a single day, and I will grant that it is a greater organization than the National League of American Ball Clubs. There is no comparison that I can see between the League and the Association."

"Is there any position in the Chicago club that could be strengthened?"

"Not one that I know of. Chicago has a team to-day that excels in playing strength and effectiveness in team work that of any team in the country. We can play ball to-day with any base-ball organization that exists and win a majority of the games we play them. That is my personal opinion, you understand. And let me say that, while I credit much of the team's success to its ability, I believe that our steady and unbroken line of successes during the past month is due as much to the temperate habits of the men as to anything else. A great many people seem to think that the team is abstaining this year because of written contracts to that effect. That is all wrong. There are absolutely no rules existing in connection with the personal habits of our men."

"Von der Ahe or Von der Ahe's friends in St. Louis have been saying through the newspapers that a money consideration of $25,000 or $50,000 had been held out to him to bring his team into the League. To the devil with such talk. It is cut absolutely from whole cloth. If any such consideration has been mentioned it has been from Mr. Von der Ahe to the League, and not from the League to Mr. Von der Ahe. The privilege of entering the League is worth big money to a man like Von der Ahe, and do you suppose for a moment that the League has failed to understand that fact?"

"Would the League make any concessions to Von der Ahe, such as the privilege of playing Sunday games, or of selling liquor upon his own grounds, in the event of his being admitted?"

"No, sir; not a concession of any kind. If Mr. Von der Ahe wants to enter the League circuit next year, he may be able, in the event of the unanimous agreement of the League Presidents, to do so, but if he comes in he must do so under exactly the same rules that govern us all, and no others."

THE GOOD EFFECT OF TOTAL ABSTINENCE.

In speaking further upon the good effect of total abstinence as practiced by the White Stockings this season President Spalding said: "I am no prohibition crank, but I am a believer in temperate, careful living on the part of men whose business is to entertain the public as athletes. I felt that it was my duty and that it would be to our interest to have a squad of players who would challenge admiration because of their good habits on and off the field. But there is another side to the question, and I am not ashamed to discuss it. There is a man in our team upon whom this new order of living has worked a wonderful change. A home that was not as happy as it should have been because of overindulgence has been completely reorganized, and on what I believe to be an enduring basis. A more overjoyed little lady than this player's wife is not to be found in this city. They are saving money, and were never before so contented. If the result of the temperance plan had been only to reform this player I should have been quite satisfied. But it has had other splendid results. We have young men in the club, mere boys, some of them—who take as much pride in their temperance record as they do in their ball-playing record. That is saying a good deal, but it is only the truth, and I know what I am talking about. When I asked the boys not to drink anything until the close of the season, and they promised me that they wouldn't, I said we should adopt any plan we thought best to discover whether they were keeping their pledges to us. It gives me a good deal of satisfaction to say that no man has violated his pledge. There is a rivalry among them not only to keep liquor away, but to so conduct themselves that there shall not be the slightest grounds on which to rest a suspicion."

The White Stockings are now upon their second Eastern trip, which they opened last week by defeating the Philadelphia team three straight games. They play Washington, New York, Boston, and Detroit three games each before returning home for a game in Chicago, on July 28, with Boston.

CON CREGAN.

CREATION'S DAWN.

BY ARVIDE BALDWIN.

Eternal chaos seems afloat!
No earth, no worlds, no heaven ablaze,
No moon to light, with mellowing rays
This incongruous massy maze,
No glittering sun with light sublime
Wastes his effulgence in such gloom,
No beast, nor fowl, nor living thing
Can hover round this doom.
Cold as the breath of dreaded death
Float mass and cloud together,
No hand to right in that dread night
And that tempestuous weather.

To rescue from oblivion's fate
Is there no will, no mighty power
To take the helm in this vast hour
And give to Time its dower?
Shall time and matter mingled go
Adown the darkened way of fate,
None there to mark, in fateful dark,
If it be early or be late?
We shall at length know matter's strength,
And of its powerful swaying
But feel a Hand control the land
That willeth not its staying.

From out the Stygian dark is seen
A light! a bright and glorious one
Is glittering, as a glorious sun
Upon a work not yet begun.
Father of Universe! Thy face
Now shines abroad, and shows to fate
A wondrous strength that now at length
Shall make for time a date.
Thy hand shall show, Thy wonders flow,
And nature accept Thy will;
Thy voice shall guide, whate'er betide,
And confidence instill.

Matter is stopped in onward rush,
And worlds roll forward into space
By edicts, of Majesty's Grace
That naught can e'er displace.
Majestic might! Great God of worlds!
Thy hands are over Nature's head,
Thy words now roll, Thy voice control
All things that once were dead.
And worlds, so great, Thy will await;
Obey, whene'er Thou nod;
But man alone denotes the throne
Of an eternal God.

HER MISTAKE;

—OR,—

Howard Thorndike's Loves.

BY BERT ARNOLD.

[CONTINUED.]

He was standing opposite the right lower entrance, and looking across the stage to the left he could see a small battalion of amazons, whose original features could possibly be recognized by their relatives after a liberal application of soap, water, and sand, with the assistance of a corn whisk broom. They were ready to go on, and stood there shivering in brass corselets cut decollete and pompadour. Their faces were thickly bedizened with paint; their ghastly cheeks wore carmine spots like wafers; their vermilion lips, their eyebrows and eyelashes, made dark by the unsparing use of lampblack and tallow, contrasted strangely with blonde or auburn wigs, which were crowned with tin helmets ornamented with turkey feathers. These valiant warriors were armed with nickel-plated spears and targets, but evidently they feared no attack on their nether limbs, which were almost entirely without protection—possibly the better for their free use in case of a retreat. Coarse laughs were indulged in between them and a group of genuine negroes attired in black tights and white waistcloths, who were cutting up grotesque antics.

In such an atmosphere was his Effie, and by such creatures was she nightly surrounded—creatures many of whom the foulest jest or the rudest of jokes would have failed to shock.

It maddened him to think of it.

Just then he caught sight of Effie, who was singing a duet with the conventional lover in the piece, resting her head upon his shoulder while she poured forth a rich volume of sentimental melody.

A queer sensation pervaded Howard Thorndike's system as he saw the fierce black mustache of the grease-painted hero brush his sweet Effie's cheek.

Could it be possible that she was enamored with such an existence as this?

The duet ended, and brass trumpeting signaled the entrance of the chorus for the grand finale.

He waited to see no more; he wandered round to the prompt box, and there stood until the performance was through.

The curtain was rung down. He could hear the voices of members of the chorus and others laughing and disputing, or explaining this thing or that to each other as they made their final exit for the night and repaired to their dressing-rooms to remove their stage toggery.

Suddenly he heard the suave voice of the manager in conversation with a woman who appeared to be quite violently excited. She talked in loud, threatening tones as she made some demand of him.

At first he thought it was Effie's voice, but she would not talk as this person.

At length the manager acquiesced to her wishes, and, entering the office, he looked in a book that laid on the table. Then, after figuring on a slip of paper, he filled out a blank receipt and counted out a very small sum of money and placed it upon it.

Stepping to the door, he said to the office page:

"You and call Number 29."

Howard Thorndike was walking up and down in the shade of the first groove. Seeing the boy about to start on his errand, he called him, and, tendering him a dollar, said:

"You will please give this card to Mademoiselle Dumond."

The boy returned thanks and departed.

A minute later the petite figure of a chorus girl, whose handsome face was half buried in a large bouquet of hothouse flowers, from which she was inhaling the perfume, passed Howard on her way to the office.

"Ah, Number 29!" he heard the manager say, "there is the money due you, including to-night. I am very sorry to say that I am obliged to dispense with your services. There is a receipt which you will please sign."

Howard Thorndike pricked up his ears at her reply. Something in the tones of her voice seemed familiar. Also there had seemed to be a familiar look about her eyes as she passed him in the dusk. Unconsciously he paced nearer to the office, trying to think where he could have seen her before, but he could not remember. Then the thought of Effie, and the little chorus girl's trouble faded from his mind.

Again the trembling tones of her pleading voice awakened him from his reverie, and he listened to the conversation, which he could not well avoid hearing from his position.

"Oh, sir, do not discharge me now! My mother and invalid sister are both ill, and I have no other employment. I must buy my mother medicine or she will die," pleaded the girl.

"Well, I can't help that, can I?" gruffly questioned the manager.

"Why am I discharged? You told me only a week ago that you liked my singing. The audience applaud me, and for three nights have sent me flowers. Although I need more money instead of less, I would rather have less than lose my place in the chorus now."

"I am sorry for you, young woman; but I can do nothing about it," he said, in an apparently unrelenting tone. "Perhaps if you did not sing quite so well it would be better for you. At present that is about all the reason I care to give you. I would like to have you remain; but your singing detracts from the attention that would otherwise be paid Mademoiselle Dumond, and the flowers you receive—well, I might as well tell you and be done with it. Mademoiselle Dumond demanded that you should be discharged, or she would throw up her own role. You have been receiving too many tokens of appreciation from our patrons, and she is jealous."

"Oh, she would not be if she knew how little I care for them, and that all I care for is what little salary I can get for my singing. I would not sing if I were not so poor. I need the money for my mother. Oh, tell her this! Tell her she can have all the flowers. Give me a different part. Anything for a little while! I do so much need the money," sobbed the poor girl.

The manager was evidently touched and wished to relent.

Howard Thorndike burned with indignation at the idea Effie could be so cruel.

"I pleaded for you with Mademoiselle Dumond myself," replied the manager. "I told her that I knew you were a lady, and that I suspected you were in need. I told her you were not of the ordinary class of girls who apply for places in the chorus, and for that reason I had assigned you the part which you have been sustaining so well; but it was no use. She was inexorable, and I am thereby in a position where I cannot help myself or you. I would rather lose any other singer in the chorus, yet I shall have to let you go. The best I can do for you will be to allow you to draw your salary up to the end of the week, if that will help you any. I am but a hireling here myself."

Behind the scenes.

"No! I do not wish for anything save what I have earned," replied the poor girl, proudly. "I hope Mademoiselle Dumond will never be placed in a similar position. Although if she had been she would have more feeling for others less fortunate than herself. I am thankful to you, Mr. Egan, for your kind offer; but I must decline to accept it. Good-night, sir." And she walked slowly away, with the now detested bouquet dangling by its ribbon at her side, while buds dropped to the floor with every faltering step she made.

She stopped within a few feet of Howard Thorndike, and he had a good view of her face as she drew out her handkerchief and wiped her eyes.

She certainly did have a familiar look, and he resolved to know more about her.

After she had gone he stepped to the manager's office and asked for her name and address. He was acquainted with Mr. Egan, who, knowing he would not have asked for it with other than a pure motive, readily gave it to him, at the same time praising her as a respectable and deserving young lady who was out of her element in an opera chorus.

By this time the page returned and said that Mademoiselle Dumond was waiting for him.

He met her at the stage door, and they passed out together in silence. Throwing open the door of her carriage he helped her in, then getting in himself, gave directions to the driver.

Settling himself back on the cushions opposite Effie, he exclaimed:

"Oh, Effie! How could you?"

CHAPTER III.

A NOBLE MAN AND A SELFISH WOMAN.

Effie Desmond sat drying her dampened shoes by the glowing open grate fires in her cosy parlors at the Victoria, while Howard Thorndike stood by the window, gazing into the gloom outside and listening to the patter of rain-drops against the window-panes.

A cheerful picture to an observer, but not to the observed.

Effie was moody and silent; Howard vexed and sorely distressed in mind. It was their first positive disagreement: their first lover's quarrel.

Turning from the window he let his eyes rest upon her for a moment. There was a yearning expression in them at first as he watched the nervous working of her pretty features, but it was replaced by one of annoyance. He thought to himself, how could it be possible that such a beautiful face and form could possess the cruel and obstinate disposition she had evinced during the conversation of the last half hour.

She was a perfect picture of loveliness as she sat there.

Her dainty little feet rested on the bright gilt fender; her carriage cloak was thrown back from her shoulders and laid over the back of her chair, displaying the perfect symmetry of her form to advantage. She was picking bon-bons from a package that rested in her lap and the fitful flame of the fire occasionally threw her handsome face and golden hair into bold relief against the navy-blue satin lining of her jaunty hat, which had slipped partially off her head as she leaned back.

There was a determined and unconquerable look in her well-shaded blue eyes, and they assumed a piquant and saucy expression at such times as she glanced in the mirror above the mantel at the perplexed and anxious face of her lover.

To see her conveying confections to her rosy mouth with her almost childish little hands, indifferently nibbling at them with her pearly teeth, one would scarce suspect her of temper that would induce her to throw her diamond engagement ring at her lover's feet in a pet.

Yet there it laid, glistening and gleaming as though angry in itself at its treatment.

Howard Thorndike did not know what to do or say; he was completely taken aback. His pride was hurt. He could not understand such a nature as hers. She was thoroughly changed from the girl he had wooed and won but two short years ago.

Should he marry her he would be tied to a woman who was thoroughly enraptured with her profession, the pursuit of which she obstinately refused to give up, although he had pleaded with her in the strongest terms. That he still entertained a liking for her there was no doubt; but whether it was the same liking he once entertained toward her was a question.

He put the question to himself and he doubted if it was; yet pride kept him from speaking the words he knew could separate them forever. Besides, her sweet little figure pleaded for itself; and, as he stood watching her, her perverseness, her cruelty to the poor chorus girl, her deceit toward himself, all vanished from his recollection as the sweetmeats she was eating vanished from his sight.

Bending over, he raised from the floor the jewel she had spurned; then holding it between his thumb and forefinger, he said, in a decided tone:

"Put it on, Effie, and wear it."

She hesitated a little; but he still held it there.

Coyly glancing in his face to see if he meant it, she looked into eyes more resolute than her own; then, without one word, she held up her finger for him to replace the ring, and her face reddened with shame as she thought of the foolish display of temper she had made, that nearly lost to her the man whom she really thought she loved.

"Now, dear," said Howard, "do not let us disagree again. I will never say anything more to you about your stage matters. When the stage has lost its charm for you, come to me or send for me and we will be married. Wear this always; it may be a protection to you. Let it remind you that there is some one who will think of you and have your welfare at heart always. You will soon tire of the life you have chosen, and then my arms will be open to receive you. I am sorry you are not my wife to-night and under my protection; for I have more than sufficient for both our needs. Let me again ask you to write to Mr. and Mrs. Desmond, and to let them know where you are, what you are doing, and what you intend to do. You are not doing right in keeping it secret from them. Will you please promise me you will do so?"

"There is no necessity of my doing so," replied Effie, "and I cannot write letters. You do not know how many quires of paper I used trying to write you letters about it, but it was of no use. I burnt them as soon as they were written. If I could not write to you, how can I write to them?"

"Allow me to write for you; or, better still, they expect me to dinner next Sunday, and, with your permission, I can tell them then. I think this would be the best way."

"Just as you please, as long as I do not have the writing to do. Give them my best regards, and tell them I like what I am doing very well, and that as long as I do I shall continue in the business. At that rate it will probably be until I am too old to sing. So, Howard, you can see what your own prospects are for ever marrying me."

"Well, be that as it may, Effie, I am content to wait, and will try to think I shall not have to wait long. I will say nothing further about it; but I do wish you would allow your manager to re-engage the little chorus singer whom he discharged to-night. She needs all her earnings for her sick mother and sister."

"I shall do nothing of the kind. That would be very silly of me, indeed. She is too good-looking, sings too well, and attracts too much attention. Why, night before last she got four baskets of flowers and I had but one. I should not have any at all to-night if my manager had not paid for them and sent them to me, and the expense came out of my own pocket."

Howard Thorndike smiled at this explanation, and said:

"I am sorry; yet your motive seems somewhat selfish to me."

"Perhaps so, and it is in one sense. I can not afford to have opposition so near. I aspire to fame as a singer. I will acknowledge to you what I would not to any one else. The little chorus girl of whom you speak has naturally a finer and a sweeter voice for singing than I have myself; and I do not doubt that, with a little training, she could fill my role even better than I can. Such a person is, therefore, dangerous to have in the same company with me. If she is needy I would rather pay her more to stay away than she can earn in her position as chorus leader."

"I think she would be too independent to accept it, no matter how much she might need it."

"Then she is too proud for her own good. I did intend to do something for her; but if that is the kind of a person she is she shall receive no assistance from me. 'She who steals from me my purse steals trash; but she who filches from me my fame——'"

"Oh, don't, Effie: pray do be serious. No more Shakspeare, please."

"I am serious. You have no sympathy with my theatrical ambitions, and, therefore, do not understand anything in connection with them, not even myself. Although I jested, it is a serious jest about that girl. I will not have her acting in the same company with me as long as I can help it."

"Thoroughly unmindful of others," thought Howard, but he said nothing.

He wondered how he ever came to be wound up in the fate of a woman of such strange characteristics as Effie possessed. He must have been blind? Yet it was only of late she developed them. Could he ever be happy with her—an actress? It was doubtful. Their nature and tastes were far too dissimilar. Time, however, would prove. Time improved a great many things, and perhaps it would improve her more to his liking, bring her nearer to the standard of his ideal.

He drew a deep sigh and looked at his watch. It was late—almost midnight.

He drew on his coat and gloves; then, hesitating a minute, he said a simple "Good-night." He would have said more, but her indifferent air was repellent to him.

She merely turned half round toward him and held out her hand, saying:

"You will excuse my not rising, I know. You must call again while I am here, and I will try to be in better humor. I know you are angry with me, but you must not be. A love for the stage was born in me; so I am going to give it a fair trial, and if I fail to make a success, or do not like it as well as I expect to, there is no harm done, for no one knows who I am or where I came from. Better try and forget me, dear, as you go home. I think it would be the very best thing you could do. It is raining, but you will find my carriage is still at the door. I told the driver this afternoon that he was to wait for you, and you will probably find him asleep on his box, as usual. Good-night, dear." And she held her pink, velvety cheek toward him for a parting salute, with as innocent an air as though she had not been probing him to his heart's core by her words and actions for the past three-quarters of an hour.

A conflict of ideas and opinions confused the usually clear brain of Howard Thorndike on his way home, and long after he was snugly ensconced in the recesses of his favorite easy-chair, blowing off the effervescence of the evening's excitement in wreaths of smoke.

He felt like a man who had committed a foolish action, and yet was at a loss to tell why it was folish, or to understand how he could have done different under the circumstances.

Howard Thorndike was possessed of a kind heart, and spent a considerable portion of his income in relieving some of the passing wants of deserving poor people.

Many an old lady owed her winter's stock of coal to his benevolence, and many were the blessings showered on their unknown benefactor by the beneficiaries. He did not distribute his charity indiscriminately; he first sent his valet to inquire into the circumstances of the person or persons whom he contemplated assisting, that he might find out if they were worthy of aid. It was with this purpose in view that he had obtained the name and address of the young chorus girl who had been discharged at Effie's command.

"No! I do not wish for anything save what I have earned."

The girl's voice and features seemed strangely familiar to him; and, although he had an excellent memory, he could not place her in his recollection.

Taking out his memorandum, he read:

MARIE D. INSLEY,
380 West Nineteenth street.

This aided him none, and he made up his mind he must be mistaken. He calculated that Number 380 should be between Eighth and Ninth avenues, which was certainly a most respectable locality.

It was three o'clock before he fell asleep; then, in his dreams, he went all through his experiences of the past three days, and the little chorus girl partook of no small share in them.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

FROM DUNGEON TO PALACE.

Dr. Talmage Preaches at The Hamptons.

Morbid and Sickly Ideas of Death—The Way Out of This World Should Be the Most Cheerful Passage in All a Christian's History.

THE HAMPTONS, July 10.—The Brooklyn Tabernacle being closed for enlargement, the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D., pastor, spent his first Sabbath away from his flock the present season at this summer home. His subject for to-day was, "From Dungeon to Palace," and his text, "The time of my departure is at hand."—II Timothy iv, 6.

The way out of this world is so blocked up with coffin and hearse, and undertaker's spade and screwdriver, that the Christian can hardly think as he ought of the most cheerful passage in all his history. We hang black instead of white over the place where the good man gets his last victory. We stand weeping over a heap of chains which the freed soul has shaken off, and we say: "Poor man! What a pity it was he had to come to this!" Come to what? By the time the people have assembled at the obsequies that man has been three days so happy that all the joy of earth accumulated would be wretchedness beside it, and he might better weep over you because you have to stay, than you weep over him because he has to go. It is a fortunate thing that a good man does not have to wait to see his own obsequies, they would be so discordant with his own experience. If the Israelites should go back to Egypt and mourn over the brick kilns they once left, they would not be any more silly than that Christian who should forsake Heaven and come down and mourn because he had to leave this world. Our ideas of the Christian's death are morbid and sickly. We look upon it as a dark hole, in which a man stumbles when his breath gives out. This whole subject is odorous with varnish and disinfectants, instead of being sweet with mignonette. Paul, in my text, takes that great clod of a word, "death," and throws it away, and speaks of his "departure"—a beautiful, bright, suggestive word, descriptive of every Christian's release.

Now, departure implies a starting place and a place of destination. When Paul left this world what was the starting point? It was a scene of great physical distress. It was the Tullianum, the lower dungeon of the Mamertine prison. The top dungeon was bad enough, it having no means of ingress or egress but through an opening in the top. Through that the prisoner was lowered, and through that came all the food and air and light received. It was a terrible place, that upper dungeon; but the Tullianum was the lower dungeon, and that was still more wretched, the only light and the only air coming through the roof, and that roof the floor of the upper dungeon. That was Paul's last earthly residence. It was a dungeon just six feet and a half high. It was a doleful place. It had the chill of long centuries of dampness. It was filthy with the long incarceration of miserable wretches. It was there that Paul spent his last days on earth, and it is there that I see him to-day, in the fearful dungeon, shivering, blue with the cold, waiting for that old overcoat which he had sent for up to Troas, and which they had not yet sent down, notwithstanding he had written for it.

If some skillful surgeon should go into that dungeon where Paul is incarcerated, we might find out what are the prospects of Paul's living through the rough imprisonment. In the first place, he is an old man, only two years short of 70. At that very time when he most needs the warmth and the sunlight and the fresh air, he is shut out from the sun. What are those scars on his ankles? Why, those were gotten when he was fast, his feet in the stocks. Every time he turned the flesh on his ankles started. What are those scars on his back? You know he was whipped five times, each time getting thirty-nine strokes—195 bruises on the back (count them!) made by the Jews with rods of elmwood, each one of the 195 strokes bringing the blood. Look at Paul's face and look at his arms. Where did he get those bruises? I think it was when he was struggling ashore amidst the shivered timbers of the shipwreck. I see a gash in Paul's side. Where did he get that? I think he got that in the tussle with highwaymen, for he had been in peril of robbers and he had money of his own. He was a mechanic as well as an apostle, and I think the tents he made were as good as his sermons.

There is a wanness about Paul's looks. What makes that? I think a part of that came from the fact that he was for twenty-four hours on a plank in the Mediterranean Sea suffering terribly, before he was rescued; for he says positively: "I was a night and a day in the deep." Oh, worn-out, emaciated old man! surely you must be melancholy. No constitution could endure this and be cheerful. But I press my way through the prison until I come up close to where he is, and by the faint light that streams through the opening I see on his face a supernatural joy, and I bow before him and say: "Aged man, how can you keep cheerful amidst all this gloom?" His voice startles the darkness of the place as he cries out: "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand." Hark! what is that shuffling of feet in the upper dungeon? Why, Paul has an invitation to a banquet, and he is going to dine to-day with the King. Those shuffling feet are the feet of the executioners. They come, and they cry down through the hole of the dungeon: "Hurry up, old man. Come now; get yourself ready." Why, Paul was ready. He had nothing to pack up. He had no baggage to take. He had been ready a good while. I see him rising up, and straightening out his stiffened limbs, and pushing back his white hair from his creviced forehead, and see him looking up through the hole in the roof of the dungeon into the face of his executioner, and hear him say: "Hurry along, old man, or you will feel the weight of our spear. Hurry along." "How far is it," says Paul, "we have to travel?" "Three miles." Three miles is a good way for an old man to travel after he has been whipped and crippled with maltreatment. But they soon get to the place of execution—Acquae Salvia—and he is fastened to the pillar of martyrdom. It does not take any strength to tie him fast. He makes no resistance. O Paul! why not strike for your life? You have a great many friends here. With that withered hand just launch the thunderbolt of the people upon those infamous soldiers. No! Paul was not going to interfere with his own coronation. He was too glad to go. I see him looking up into the face of his executioner, and, as the grim official draws the sword, Paul calmly says: "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand." But I put my hand over my eyes. I want not to see that last struggle. One sharp, keen stroke, and Paul does go to the banquet, and Paul does dine with the King.

What a transition it was! From the malaria of Rome to the finest climate in all the universe—the one of eternal beauty and health. His ashes were put in the catacombs of Rome, but in one moment the air of Heaven bathed from his soul the last ache. From shipwreck, from dungeon, from the biting pain of the elm wood rods, from the sharp sword of the headsman, he goes into the most brilliant assemblage of Heaven, a king among kings, multitudes of the sainthood rushing out and stretching forth hands of welcome; for I do really think that as on the right hand of God is Christ, so on the right hand of Christ is Paul, the second great in Heaven.

He changes kings likewise. Before the hour of death and up to the last moment he was under Nero, the thick necked, the cruel eyed, the filthy lipped; the sculptured features of that man bringing down to us to this very day the horrible possibilities of his nature—seated as he was amidst pictured marbles of Egypt, under a roof adorned with mother of pearl, in a dining room which by machinery was kept whirling day and night with most bewitching magnificence; his horses standing in stalls of solid gold, and the grounds around his palace lighted at night by its victims, who had been daubed with tar and pitch and then set fire to illumine the darkness. That was Paul's king. But the next moment he goes into the realm of Him whose reign is love, and whose courts are paved with love, and whose throne is set on pillars of love, and whose scepter is adorned with jewels of love, and whose lifetime is an eternity of love. When Paul was leaving so much on this side the pillar of martyrdom to gain so much on the other side, do you wonder at the cheerful valedictory of the text, "The time of my departure is at hand?"

Now, why cannot all the old people of this congregation have the same holy glee as that aged man had? Charles I., when he was combing his head, found a gray hair, and he sent it to the queen as a great joke, but old age is really no joke at all. For the last forty years you have been dreading that which ought to have been an exhilaration. You say you most fear the struggle at the moment the soul and body part. But millions have endured that moment, and why not we as well? They got through with it, and so can we. Besides this, all medical men agree in saying that there is probably no struggle at all at the last moment—not so much pain as the prick of a pin, the seeming signs of distress being altogether involuntary. But you say: "It is the uncertainty of the future." Now, child of God, do not play the infidel. After God has filled the Bible till it can hold no more with the stories of the good things ahead, better not talk about uncertainties.

But you say, "I cannot bear to think of parting from friends here." If you are old you have more friends in Heaven than here. Just take the census. Take some large sheet of paper and begin to record the names of those who have emigrated to the other shore; the companions of your school days, your early business associates, the friends of mid life and those who more recently went away. Can it be that they have been gone so long you do not care any more about them and you do not want their society? Oh, no! There have been days when you have felt that you could not endure it another moment away from their blessed companionship. They have gone. You say you would not like to bring them back to this world of trouble, even if you had the power. It would not do to trust you. God would not give you resurrection power. Before to-morrow morning you would be rattling at the gates of the cemetery, crying to the departed: "Come back to the cradle where you slept! Come back to the hall where you used to play! Come back to the table where you used to sit!" and there would be a great burglary in Heaven. No, no! God will not trust you with resurrection power, but he compromises the matter and says: "You cannot bring them where you are, but you can go where they are." They are more lovely now than ever. Were they were beautiful here they are more beautiful there.

Besides that, it is more healthy there for you than here, aged man; better climate there than these hot summers and cold winters and late springs; better hearing; better eye sight; more tonic in the air; more perfume in the bloom; more sweetness in the song. Do you not feel, aged man, sometimes, as though you would like to get your arm and foot free? Do you not feel as though you would like to throw away spectacles and canes and crutches? Would you not like to feel the spring and elasticity and mirth of an eternal boyhood? When the point at which you start from this world is old age, and the point to which you go is eternal juvenescence, aged men, clap your hands at the anticipation, and say, in perfect rapture of soul: "The time of my departure is at hand."

I remark, again, all those ought to feel this joy of the text who have a holy curiosity to know what is beyond this earthly terminus. And who has not any curiosity about it? Paul, I suppose, had the most satisfactory view of Heaven, and he says: "It doth not yet appear what we shall be." It is like looking through a broken telescope: "Now we see through a glass darkly." Can you tell me anything about that heavenly place? You ask me a thousand questions about it that I cannot answer. And do you wonder that Paul was so glad when martyrdom gave him a chance to go over and make discoveries in that blessed country?

I hope some day, by the grace of God, to go over and see for myself; but not now. No well man, no prospered man. I think, wants to go now. But the time will come, I think, when I shall go over. I want to see what they do there and I want to see how they do it. I do not want to be looking through the gates ajar forever. I want them to swing open. There are 10,000 things I want explained—about you, about myself, about the government of this world, about God, about everything. We start in a plain path of what we know, and in a minute come up against a high wall of what we do not know. I wonder how it looks over there. Somebody tells me it is like a paved city—paved with gold; and another man tells me it is like a fountain, and it is like a tree, and it is like a triumphal procession, and the next man I meet tells me it is all figurative. I really want to know after the body is resurrected, what they wear and what they eat; and I have an immeasurable curiosity to know what it is, and how it is, and where it is. Columbus risked his life to find this continent, and shall we shudder to go out on a voyage of discovery which shall reveal a vaster and more different country? John Franklin risked his life to find a passage between icebergs and shall we dread to find a passage to eternal summer? Men in Switzerland travel up the heights of the Matterhorn with alpenstock and guides and rockets and ropes, and getting half way up, stumble and fall down in a horrible massacre. They just want to say they had been on the tops of those high peaks. And shall we fear to go out for the ascent of the eternal hills, which start a thousand miles beyond where stop the highest peaks of the Alps, and when in that ascent there is no peril? A man doomed to die stepped on the scaffold and said in joy: "Now, in ten minutes I will know the great secret." One minute after the vital functions ceased the little child that died last night in Montague street knew more than Jonathan Edwards, or St. Paul himself, before he died. Friends, the exit from this world, or death, if you please to call it, to the Christian is glorious explanation. It is demonstration. It is illumination. It is sunburst. It is the opening of all the windows. It is shutting up the catechism of doubt and the unrolling of all the scrolls of positive and accurate information. Instead of standing at the foot of the ladder and looking up, it is standing at the top of the ladder and looking down. It is the last mystery taken out of botany, and geology, and astronomy, and theology. Oh, will it not be grand to have all questions answered? The perpetually recurring interrogation point changed for the mark of exclamation. All riddles solved. Who will fear to go out on that discovery when all the questions are to be decided which we have been discussing all our lives? Who shall not clap his hands in the anticipation of that blessed country, if it be no better than through holy curiosity, crying: "The time of my departure is at hand."

I remark, again, we ought to have the joy of the text, because, leaving this world, we move into the best society of the universe. You see a great crowd of people in some street, and you say: "Who is passing there? What General, what Prince is going up there?" Well, I see a great throng in Heaven. I say, "Who is the focus of all that admiration? Who is the center of that glittering company?" It is Jesus, the champion of all worlds, the favorite of all ages. Do you know what is the first question the soul will ask when it comes through the gate of Heaven? I think the first question will be: "Where is Jesus, the Saviour that pardoned my sin; that carried my sorrows; that fought my battles; that won my victories?" O radiant One! how I would like to see Thee! Thou of the manger, but without its humiliation; Thou of the cross, but without its pangs. Thou of the grave, but without its darkness.

The Bible intimates that we will talk with Jesus in Heaven just as a brother talks with a brother. Now, what will you ask Him first? I do not know. I can think what I would ask Paul first, if I saw him in Heaven. I think I would like to hear Him describe the storm that came upon the ship when there were 275 souls on the vessel, Paul being the only man on board cool enough to describe the storm. There is a fascination about a ship and the sea that I shall never get over, and I think I would like to hear Him talk about that first. But when I meet my Lord Jesus Christ, of what shall I first delight to hear Him speak? Now I think what it is. I shall first want to hear the tragedy of His last hours; and then Luke's account of the crucifixion, and Mark's account of the crucifixion, and John's account of the crucifixion will be nothing, while from the living lips of Christ the story shall be told of the gloom that fell, and the devils that arose, and the fact that upon His endurance depended the rescue of a race; and there was darkness in the sky, and there was darkness in the soul, and the palm became more sharp, and the burdens became more heavy, until the mob began to swim away from the dying vision of Christ, and the cursing of the mob came to his ear more faintly, and his hands were fastened to the horizontal piece of the cross, and his feet were fastened to the perpendicular piece of the cross, and his head fell forward in a swoon as he uttered the last moan and cried: "It is finished!" All heaven will stop to listen until the story is done, and every harp will be put down, and every lip closed, and all eyes fixed upon the divine narrator, until the story is done; and then, at the tap of the baton, the eternal orchestra will rouse up; finger on string of harp, and lips to the mouth of trumpet, there shall roll forth the oratorio of the Messiah: "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive blessing, and riches, and honor, and glory, and power, world without end!"

What He endured, oh, who can tell,
To save our souls from death or hell!

When there was between Paul and that magnificent personage only the thinness of the sharp edge of the sword of the executioner, do you wonder that he wanted to go? Oh, my Lord Jesus, let one wave of that glory roll over this auditory! Hark! I hear the wedding bells of Heaven ringing now. The marriage of the Lamb has come, and the bride hath made herself ready.

A Queer Mexican Street.

Perhaps the best illustration of the Catholic idea of constantly reminding people of their religion is the main thoroughfare of the Mexican capital. "In the lump" it is known as the Calle de San Francisco, but every one of its seventeen blocks has a different name, and the buildings in each are numbered in the usual haphazard fashion, without regard to the numbers in any other block, or to numerical order in its own. Should you wish to go to a house or shop whose number is 500—if you set out to look for "No. 500 San Francisco street," you will probably find seventeen buildings bearing that number between the grand plaza and the statue of Carlos V., but no block at all which is distinctively called San Francisco street; therefore it is necessary to know not only the street and number, but the name of the square in which that particular 500 is located. In that famous Calle de San Francisco some of the prominent names, translated into English, are as follows: Street of the Sacred Heart, Jesus street, Street of the Love of God, Heart of Jesus street, John the Baptist street, Blood of Christ street, Crown of Thorns street, Holy Ghost street, Mother of Christ street, Body of Christ street, Fifth of May street, and Street of the Sad Indian.—Guadalajara Cor. Troy Times.

Surprising Effects of Liquor in Mexico.

While in most climates one may imbibe considerable quantities of the usual intoxicants with comparative impunity, in these higher altitudes of the tropics a much smaller dose is surprisingly harmful. And right here permit me to add that some unfortunate Americans who have fallen into disgrace because of undue convivality at the Mexican capital really deserve commiseration rather than the contumely that has been heaped upon them. In most cases they were the victims of ignorance on their own part, or of sly practical jokes perpetrated by the Mexicans, who, however polite they may appear, are at heart jealous of all Americans and delighted to put them at a disadvantage. The same beverage which gentlemen may use socially in the north with no ill effects, if partaken here in equal measure first exhilarates the imbiber beyond all account, and then leaves him for days in a state of utter stupidity. Most foreigners learn this only by sad experience, and the "gilded youth" of the capital find great pleasure in initiating a fresh-subject, especially if he come in the interests of his Government. — Letter from Mexico.

Did Not Return.

The minister who preached on the Ten Commandments, during a negro revival, was accused of "throwin' a chill on de meetin'." A similar chill is sometimes cast upon a conversation by the introduction of a disagreeable topic, as, for example, in this case, reported by an exchange:

"Sam, did you ever study spiritualism?" asked a traveling man who hasn't a very high reputation among his creditors.

"Not much," was the reply. "I never had time to give it any thought."

"But you believe that the dead return, don't you?"

"Well, to tell the truth, I haven't been bothering myself about the dead returning. I've only thought about it long enough to come to the conclusion that there is an awful lot of the living that don't return."

"How do you mean?"

"Why, if they did, maybe you'd be returning that ten-dollar bill you borrowed from me last April."

The conversation stopped right there. Evidently the traveling man had not "the ghost of a chance" with Sam.

BASQUES and polonaises divide favor almost evenly at present, the former, however, displaying an unusual variety in styles and decoration. All basques sit to the form very snugly, and many handsome costumes of English tricot, camel's-hair, and other fine woolens in stripes, checks, or of one plain color will be worn during the late spring months without any additional garment except the Vandyke or monk's hood gayly lined.

JERSEY bathing-suits fit the figure closely in the waist part, the drawers are made closer than the other style, but not tight, and the tunic is shorter and not very full. These are much liked by swimmers, and for that exercise the tunic is often omitted, especially for private bathing. A sash tied on one side is usually substituted when the tunic is not worn.

TWO ASTRONOMERS of the Grand Ducal observatory, Carlsruhe, have made the remarkable observation that the disc of the planet Uranus appears distinctly elliptical instead of perfectly circular.

"A DEAD HORSE OR A FREE NIGGER."

A Fugitive Slave Law Reminiscence of the Maumee Valley.

[Cleveland Leader.]

One of the early efforts to reclaim an escaped slave under the provisions of the Fugitive-Slave law, which did so much to intensify the hatred of slavery in the free States, was made at Perrysburg, Ohio. Henry Gaynes, a bright, handsome, gentlemanly mulatto, who had kept a baker's shop in the village, and whose pleasant manners and correct deportment had made him a favorite with the people at the foot of the rapids, was arrested by a Federal Marshall and his posse of slave hunters from Kentucky. They were hurrying him off to the other side of Mason and Dixon's line, when a brace of newly-fledged lawyers sued out a writ of habeas corpus and had the prisoner brought before Elijah Huntington, then and for many years before an astute, honest, studied Justice of the Peace, who hated slavery almost as much as he loved the close communion Baptist Church. The Marshal and his posse blustered, cursed, and threatened, and their counsel bullied the inexperienced youngsters who dared to question the legal sufficiency of an arrest and detention of a slave by a high and mighty Marshal of the United States of America, in a manner so disrespectful, overbearing, and insulting that it put the freedom-loving audience who crowded the court-room on their mettle. Every ruling made by the Justice against the Marshal on interlocutory questions was greeted with smiles and suppressed applause, and tears of sympathy for the prisoner at the bar were not wanting. It gradually became apparent from the angry flush of the old Magistrate's face, the beaded drops of perspiration on his corrugated brows, and the increased snappishness of his rulings, that he despaired of finding legal means of deliverance for poor Gaynes. Every one knew that the old Justice would rather die at the stake than to swerve the variation of the compass from the needle from the strict letter and spirit of the law. The spectators were angry and desperate, curses were muttered upon the law and its minions, a breach of the peace was becoming imminent, when the prisoner sprang ten feet from his chair with the agility of a tiger, and shouted at the top of his voice, "A dead hoss or a free nigger," dashed to the street and leaped upon a deep-chested, fleet-footed horse which just happened to be there, all saddled, all bridled, all fit for the flight of the dusky knight. Away they flew, up Front street, down the hill, through the valley, over the river bridge, through Maumee City, and off for Canada. The Marshal and his men attempted to pursue, but each man in the court-room seemed determined to be the first fellow out, and many swore that no Kentucky bloodhound could get the start of them in chasing a runaway darky. There was so much more of haste than direction or progress in getting out that the Marshal reached the street about the time his late prisoner was scudding over the valley more than half a mile away. The toll-gate on the bridge was open for the fugitive, but shut locked for the Marshal and his men. Good, pious old ex-Sheriff Joshua Chapel, the gate tender, had business under the bridge, and, fat and aged, it took him some precious moments to get to his post, and, when there, he was so conscientious and punctilious about making change before opening the gate that the chances for recapturing the fugitive were desperate. Gaynes reached Canada, and two fine broadcloth coat patterns soon after reached his counsel. Whether they paid the duty, and just how the right horse happened to be at the right place at the right time, may possibly be known by an early and much-honored Chief Justice of one of our Western Territories.

The Ways of Literature.

"Say." It was the snake editor who spake, and he spake with the aim of a man aweary of life. "I don't know how to make a concordance anyhow. Where do you find this quotation going on something about 'Winter lingering in the lap of spring?'"

An embarrassing silence followed the question, and the album editor, feeling that all eyes were turned on him, said he never saw the quotation before, but it sounded as though it might be from the Conventicles.

"The Con-who-ticles?" asked the bewildered snake editor.

"The Conventicles—Solomon's Song, you know," said the album editor, "we call them the Conventicles."

"Oh, yes," the snake editor said greatly reassured, "I had forgotten you belonged to the Church of England. But find it for me; I want to use it in a Chester County moccasin item; I've got something here that will set your teeth on edge."

The album editor took the Bible and tried for the Conventicles awhile and then gave it up, remarking that the passage only occurred in the revised version.

The commencement editor, who used to read proof on the Chicago Times, said he had read the revised Bible clear through and was positive the quotation wasn't from the Bible at all.

The young man who does the book notices said it was from Pope. "That's what made me think it was in the Bible," said the snake editor, "but which Pope was it? There's more'n a hundred of 'em, isn't there?"

The art editor, who had twice gone abroad with Cook's excursions, said he never saw a quotation in any of the European libraries, and the obituary editor said he never ran across it in his reading. It was the general opinion of the convention that the remark was not a quotation at all, but was original with the snake editor. This compliment the snake editor modestly, albeit rather feebly, attempted to deny. "I know," he said. "I have seen that sentence in print somewhere."

"Here it is," shouted the accident editor, "I knew I had seen it too, but for the life of me I couldn't tell where. Here it is."

And he held up a copy of the Cider Valley Palladium, and pointed to the local column:

"April days.
Cold nights.
Burn your rubbish.
Don't change your flannels.
Prime mess mackerel at Haddock's, t. f.
Winter lingering in the lap of spring."

A good deal of quiet followed this revelation. The snake editor was the first to speak.

"Well," he said, "that's it. I remember now, I was reading the paper yesterday, and I must have seen it there, but I was sure I had read that very thing a thousand times."

And the commencement editor sat down and wrote a long and confusedly able article on "unconscious celebration and latent impressions."—Bob Burdette.

Charlevoix Sentinel.
Established, 1869.
WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.
CHARLEVOIX, JULY 27, 1887.

BASE BALL.

The Charlevoix Club Victorious Everywhere, and seeking More Worlds to Conquer.

The Charlevoix Base Ball Association have done themselves proud in the successful way they have organized and managed the Charlevoix Base Ball Nine.

"Our boys" have thus far this season swept everything before them. Even the club of the Northern Michigan league—Evart—on Friday afternoon last, transferred the championship to the Charlevoix nine by a score of 22 to 7.

It is freely conceded by base ball experts that the Charlevoix club do some magnificent playing.

On Friday at Dixon Park, the Evart boys discovered early in the game that the "jig was up" for them. Vogel's pitching was excellent, but the way our boys batted, made them tired.

Monday afternoon Torch Lake had the temerity to come up here and take the diamond with our boys and they went home terribly sick.

78 to 1

are the figures, and patrons are growling that such a deal should be advertised as a game.

We want to see Petoskey come down here and get laid out, and then we shall feel contented, come what may. We want to see that festive lot of roosters on our grounds with Hampton and Boutecou in the reporter's balcony of the Grand Stand, and a right smart of the illustrious citizens of that burg—Phil Wachtel and Jim Bell among them—on the front seat; and then we want to be where we can yell when our boys get in the home runs.

Dixon Park is a most excellent selection for ball grounds. It is a level field on the Dixon farm near the Chicago Club House; level, and in the track of the cool breezes from both lakes, both of which are in sight.

The management are arranging for a series of matched games which cannot fail to be deeply interesting to lovers of the great American sport.

Old Fashioned Game of Base Ball.

There will be an old-fashioned game of base ball played between the resorts at Dixon Park, on Thursday, (to-morrow) July 28, game to be called at 3 p. m. Ten cents admission will be charged, to go for the benefit of the Charlevoix Public Library. The rules governing the game will be the same as used a quarter of a century ago. Prof. Willard will probably umpire the game. The following gentlemen will be the contestants:

CHICAGO RESORT SIDE.

S. M. Moore, N. H. Blatchford, Luman Burr, F. B. Rockwood, Thomas Rockwood, D. S. Munger, N. W. Edgar, A. B. Mead, Prof. J. B. Allen, Prof. S. I. Curtis, Dr. J. A. Carlstein, Hon. A. Buttars, A. Pierson, Hon. John Nicholls.

CHARLEVOIX RESORT SIDE.

O. M. Allen, Prof. S. Brooks, D. B. Merrill, O. C. Ainsworth, Mr. Stockbridge, I. D. Bixby, Dallas Boudeman, J. Earl Howard, Prof. L. Stewart, M. J. Stockman, E. Carpenter, A. J. McLeod, Judge Buck, H. P. Parmelee.

Turn out and see these old sports waltz around the field.

Hasings from Hayes.

Thomas Murray several days ago while adjusting a load of logs, fell from the wagon and injured his ankle. It has kept him housed up since.

John Raymond had his house broken into by an Indian, a couple of weeks ago while the family were at church. He spoiled a crock or two of butter, broke some of the dishes, and kicked some of the stove furniture into the cellar.

Frank Kewagoeum, the gentleman who destroyed Raymond's chinaware, says if that Charlevoix detective wishes to catch him, he must come the next time dressed in something else besides Simonton's old coat. And then the young lady that kept her eye on him caused him to become discouraged so he took to the woods and the result is we are just one Injun short.

Winter wheat is about all cut and a good portion of it put into the barn or stack.

There has been a good job of work done on the eastern end of the Fairgrove road. That road becoming one of the best in town.

Two of our young Hayesites had a jolly time taking their girls to Camp meeting, Sunday with the exceptions of the antics performed by one of the horses that wanted to turn around every mile or two to hear what sweet things were said.

Masonic.

Regular meeting of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M. The attendance of every member is desired. Work on 2d degree.

W. A. SMITH, W. M.

WANTED—A young man who has passed examination and is qualified to teach, who can show a certificate and is willing to work for $50 a month. Address, X. Y. Z., this office. 2w

Manton has shipped 4,000 pounds of wool thus far, this season.

Attorney General Taggart calls the attention of newspapers to the law against advertising letters, referring especially to the Louisiana state lottery. He says: "I have been requested to direct the attention of the prosecuting attorneys to this violation of law, and in several instances have done so. Many newspaper men are undoubtedly ignorant of the law, and others, quite likely, assume that the advertisement being clothed in an editorial garb does not come within the prohibition against lotteries, found in chapter 321 of Howell's statutes.

The New Marriage Law.

The following is the full text of the new marriage law:

An act for the requiring of a civil license in order to marry, and the due registration of the same, and to provide a penalty for the violation of the provisions of the same.

Section 1. The people of the state of Michigan enact, it shall be necessary for all parties, intending to be married, to obtain a marriage license from the county clerk of the county in which either the man or woman resides, and to deliver the said license to the clergymen or magistrate who is to officiate before the marriage can be performed.

Section 2. Blank forms for marriage license and certificate, as also proper books of registration ruled for the items contained in said forms shall be prepared by the secretary of state, and shall be furnished by him to the county clerks of the various counties of the state in quantities needed. The blank forms for license and certificate shall be made in duplicate, and shall provide spaces for the entry of the following items, to-wit: the full name, age color, place of residence, place of birth, occupation, and, if known, the father's name, and mother's maiden name, of each of the parties to be married, the number of times either of the parties may have been previously married; the bride's maiden name, in case she is a widow; the date of the giving of the license; the signature of the county clerk; the date and place of the marriage; the names and residences of two witnesses to the marriage, and the certification of the officiating clergyman or magistrate, that the marriage contemplated by the license has been performed by him. And the secretary of state shall furnish to the county clerks of the various counties of the state blank forms of affidavit, containing the requisite allegations, under the laws of this state, of the competency of the parties to unite in the bonds of matrimony, and any party applying for license to marry shall cause such an affidavit to be made and filed with the county clerk, as a basis for the issuing of the license, shall be made a matter of record of said clerk's office.

Section 3. It shall be the duty of the county clerk, on application being made to him, to fill out the blank spaces of the license according to the sworn answers of the applicant, taken before him or some person duly authorized by law to administer oaths. If it shall appear that the parties are legally entitled to be married, the county clerk shall sign the license in certification of the fact that it is properly issued, and he shall make a correct copy thereof in the books of registration. For his services connected therewith, he shall be entitled to a fee of fifty cents, to be paid by the party applying, and at the time of the issuing of the license. He shall give the license, thus filled out and signed by him, together with the blank form of certificate, to the party applying, for delivery to the clergyman or magistrate who is to officiate at the marriage. On the return of the license to the county clerk (as specified in section 4 below) with the certificate of the clergyman or magistrate, that the marriage has been performed, he shall record in the book of registration, in their proper places of entry, the date and place of the marriage, the names and residences of two witnesses to the marriage, and the name of the officiating clergyman or majistrate. All licenses or certificates so issued and returned shall be preserved on file in the office of the county clerk, and he shall, as often as once in three months, make a faithful report to the secretary of state of all licences and certificates issued and received by him.

Section 4. It shall be the duty of the clergyman or magistrate, officiating at a marriage, to fill out the spaces of the certificate left blank for the entry of the time and place of the marriage, the names and residences of two witnesses, and his own signature in certification that the marriage has been performed by him. He shall separate the duplicate license and certificate, and retain one-half for his own record, and he shall return the other half within ten days to the county clerk issuing the same.

Section 5. Any county clerk who shall refuse to give a license to persons properly applying and legally entitled to be married, or who shall violate any of the provisions of this act, shall be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars or more than one hundred dollars, or in default of payment thereof, by imprisonment in the county jail for a term of thirty days.

Section 6. Any clergyman or magistrate who shall join together in marriage parties who have not delivered to him a properly issued license, as provided for in this act, or who shall violate any of the provisions of this act, shall be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of $100, or, in default of payment thereof, by imprisonment in the county jail for a term of 90 days.

Section 7. Any person, whose duty it shall be to return a marriage certificate to the county clerk, who shall neglect to return said certificate, shall be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding $100, or 90 days imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court.

Section 8. Any person applying for a marriage license, who shall swear to a false statement therein, shall be guilty of perjury, and shall be prosecuted therefor under the general laws of the state.

Section 9. All reports of marriage sent by the county clerks of the various counties of the state to the office of the secretary of state, shall be preserved on file in that office, and a proper record thereof shall be made and kept.

Section 10. The record of any license to marry, or of any marriage certificate in any county clerk's office, or a certified copy thereof, shall be prima facie evidence in any court, or proceedings in this state, with the same force and effect as if the original were produced, both as to the facts herein contained, and as to the genuineness of the signatures thereto.

Section 11. All other acts and parts of acts which are inconsistent herewith, are hereby repealed.

Charlevoix County Agricultural Society.

From the Enterprise.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Charlevoix County Agricultural Society at the Secretary's office last March, there not being a full board present the meeting was adjourned to meet next Monday at 10 a. m. at the same place. It is important for the future of this society that every Director should be present, as prompt attention is required to important matters. The location for the coming fair will be discussed, with dates, etc.

It has also been suggested that the society make a special exhibit at the coming State fair, of Fruits, Cereals, Vegetables and forest products of this county.

The officers of the Society are as follows:

President, Wm. Black, Marion.

Secretary, James H. Stone, East Jordan.

Treasurer, James B. Palmiter, East Jordan.

Directors: Wm. Healey, South Arm; Wm. F. Empey, East Jordan; J. C. Glenn, East Jordan; Hiram B. Hipp, South Arm; Wm. Mears, Boyne Valley; O. Blair, East Jordan; Marion Hudkins, Wilson; Henry Knowland, Eveline; Nathan L. Cash, Eveline; Rob't Trimble, Norwood; Alonzo J. Stroud, Evangeline.

Marine Jottings.

Daily Resorter.

Inspector of hulls, Alvan Dodge looked over the Van Raalte yesterday and condemned her as unseaworthy. C. W. Casky, managing owner, was telegraphed to that effect, and it is quite likely that an appeal will be taken from Dodge's decision, though she may be given a thorough rebuilding as was intended last fall. She was condemned several years ago by Dodge, and her owners then appealed, and the supervising inspector reversed Dodge's decision and censured him for non-judgment. The "Van" is an old boat, however and the many rumors about her unseaworthiness has caused must distrust among many. She has always been a favorite boat with Manistiquers and all would regret to see her permanently hauled off the route.

The steamer Lou A. Cummings makes her last trip on this route today. It is understood that she goes on the Van Raalte's old route.

The following are the clearances for the week ending yesterday evening:

19—Schr. Prime, 200 cords bark, French to Kenosha.
20—Schr Lottie Mason, 65 cords wood, French to Kenosha.
20—Schr Stampede, 250,000 feet hardwood lumber Pine Lake Lumber Co. to Sheboygan.
26—Schr Sell, 1,000 ties, W. S. Johnson to Chicago.
26—Schr Radical, 200 cords bark, Downer to Chicago.

Religious.

M. E. Church.

Sunday morning services as usual followed by Sunday School.

The Loyal Legion will meet next Saturday afternoon in the M. E. church at 3 o'clock. All are requested to be present.

Congregational Church.

Rev. A. O. Downs, of Cadillac, will preach at the Congregational church next Sunday at 10:30 a. m.

Baptist Church.

Dr. Kendall Brooks will preach at the Baptist hall next Sunday morning, at 10:30, in place of the regular pastor, who will be at Eastport.

Elsewhere.

Preaching at Johnson's school house next Sabbath at 11 o'clock, and at Black's school house at 3:30.

Indian Camp Meeting.

Indian Camp Meeting occurs at Elk Rapids August 10th, and will continue over the Sabbath. Presiding Elder Stinchcomb will conduct the meeting. The Indians of this region are requested to attend.

Episcopal Church.

Evening service and Sunday school 3 o'clock Sunday. Same subject continued.

Banks.

Mr. Joseph Blissett, an old resident and esteemed citizen of Banks, was buried last Saturday, from the Atwood church, Rev. B. H. Whitman officiating.

Mrs. Johnson, of Illinois, and Miss Lula Kanagy, of Charlevoix, are visiting friends at Atwood.

Mr. Elmer Beach returned to Chicago last week.

It is purposed to open the Atwood store next week under the supervision of Mr. Hubbell and Elmer Coulter. But Wm. Flanagin will be sadly missed.

Mrs. Bertha Byers closed the Atwood school last Friday with a jolly good time with the children.

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent, Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

Cull shingles and lumber for sale cheap, or will exchange for farm produce. Apply at Burns & Scroggie's livery barn. tf

WANTED—A steady man to work one of Perkin's one block shingle mill. Apply to Smithson's Lumber Co., Charlevoix.

The ladies are cordially invited to call and examine the large display of millinery including pattern hats and bonnets together with novelties in ribbons, gauzes, flowers, etc. As it is to be a season of novelties it will pay you to call now and often, upon Mrs. Litney & Carr.

JOHN CONNOR,
Fashionable
Boot and Shoe
MAKER.
Hand Sewed French Calf Gaiters, $5; Men's Kip and Calf Boots, $4.50; Half-soling, 60 cents. Defy competition.
All Work Guaranteed.

Fresh Butter at lowest price, at Jefferies' Bakery.

Notice to Contractors.

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Detroit, Charlevoix & Escanaba Railroad Co., in Charlevoix, Michigan, until Wednesday, the 10th day of August, A. D. 1887, at 12 o'clock noon, for the clearing, grubbing, grading and bridging of the first division of the Detroit, Charlevoix & Escanaba Railroad, from Charlevoix to Kalkaska, a distance of fifty miles. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids. The map and profile of said road can be seen at the Engineer's office in Charlevoix, where any other information desired in reference to same will be furnished.

Charlevoix, July 19, 1887.

J. MILO EATON, Secretary.

ICE CREAM PAR EXCELLENCE.

We would respectfully inform the public that we have at considerable expense, prepared and suitably furnished our Band Pagoda as an Ice Cream parlor, and have placed it at the head of all similar institutions in Charlevoix. It will be open for the use of the public at all times save on Wednesday evenings, when there will be a Grand Concert by the Band. Our cream will be as good as can be made. Just received a large lot of Ice Cream Packages holding from one quart to one or more gallons, which will be loaned to customers for safely carrying cream to their homes. The quality of our cream speaks for itself. Our stock of foreign and domestic Fruits is always large and of the best quality. We carry as fine a line of confectionery, nuts, etc., as can be found in town.

Respectfully,
O. W. SMITH.

NOTICE.

The late Champlain disaster has placed me in close financial circumstances. Therefore it is necessary for me to collect all outstanding indebtedness. All Owing me will please call and pay.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Rosenthal & Son
continue business at the old stand in the See Block,
IN THE LINE OF Indian Basket &
and Bark Work.
Call and look over our Stock.
ROSENTHAL & SON.

POSITIVELY THE FINEST LINE OF
CLOTHING
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS YOU EVER SAW IN CHARLEVOIX,
JUST RECEIVED FOR SUMMER WEAR.
Prices are unusually low this Spring and if you need anything in my line, just step in.
Now is a Grand Time To Obtain Bargains.
GEO. W. MILLER.

NEW GOODS CONSTANTLY ARRIVING
AT THE POPULAR STORE OF
A. T. WASHBURNE AND CO.

DEAR FRIENDS:

We are not OVER-STOCKED from the very fact that we buy what people need every day. Hardly a day passes that we do not receive something new in our line. The advantage we have in purchasing is evident to every person of sense. That is the reason our store is always filled with customers.

We buy in larger quantities and sell in larger quantities. We carry the Finest Line of Dry Goods, Fancy Goods and Carpets, in Northern Michigan at prices consistent with the times.

Goods ALWAYS as represented or MONEY WILLINGLY Refunded.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.
Successors to F. W. CRAINE & CO.

REFITTED!
Our store is fully completed and we cordially invite our friends and patrons to call and inspect a choice assortment of new
DRY GOODS & GROCERIES
new Goods arriving nearly every day. Our stock of Groceries is the Largest, Choicest, Cleanest, and our Prices the Lowest. We're busy and haven't got arranged yet, but we want to see you just as we are.
J. L. HURD & CO.

Grand Summer Slaughter!
TOO MANY GOODS FOR THE SEASON.
ALL DEPARTMENTS TO BE REDUCED.

My stock of Spring and Summer Dress Goods and Parasols is large and in order to close out stock in the shortest time possible, I will sell so that all can save money.

Do you wish a fine Dress? Do you need dresses for your children? Do you wish a few yards extra of Spring Suiting? Do you think of making over an old dress? Do you wish a bargain in dress Goods; If you do, don't miss examining my stock. It will pay you to call.

Our stock of Carpets has never been as large and complete as now and at prices that cannot be undersold. The stock comprises everything to be found in a first-class Carpet House. Our Drapery Department is replete with all the novelties.

Hats and Caps from 5 Cents up.
MEN'S YOUTHS' BOYS' and CHILDREN'S
Clothing that cannot fail to suit the most exacting in style.
GIVE ME A CALL,
ALICK ROSENTHAL,
LEWIS BLOCK.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XIX. NO.—14 | CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 3, 1887. | WHOLE NO. 923

"BUG FINISH!"
The new Potato Bug exterminator. We warrant it to give satisfaction. Very cheap. All ready for use. Requires no mixing. Try it.
STRICTLY PURE PARIS GREEN
We have in stock the purest article to be found in the market. It's sure death every time. Buy no other.
Sure Death To Currant Worms!
For these pests we have a pure article of White Hellebore. When ever used it acts like magic not leaving a worm on the bush.
PURE DALMATION INSECT POWDER
The best thing for Flies and other insects.
A trial of any of the above is bound to prove satisfactory.
F. G. HINES & CO.
Druggists.

EMREY BROS.
Boots and Shoes for almost nothing, to close out.
We have a number of pairs of Boots and Shoes which we will almost give away as we are closing them out.
We are also going out of
CROCKERY
and have a complete assortment which must be sold
WE WILL NOT TAKE A BACK SEAT ON
SUMMER DRY GOODS.
PRICES ALWAYS LOW.
IN GROCERIES and Provisions we can suit you, as we receive Fresh Goods weekly.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.
B A R K
WANTED!
We Hold our Custom because our Prices are Always Low.
OUR SUMMER ASSORTMENT OF
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
now being received is the finest we ever offered
TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.
ALL GRADES OF FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.
A Fine line of Everything in
FURNITURE.
BIG DRIVES IN
BOOTS and SHOES.
Please bear in mind that our stock embraces
EVERYTHING
usually found in a General Store.
Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.
Resp'y Yours,
Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

A Word with You!
IF YOU WILL COME TO OUR STORE WE HOPE TO BE ABLE TO CONVINCE YOU THAT WE TRY TO ENABLE YOU TO Save Your Dollars
BY BUYING ANYTHING IN THE HARDWARE LINE
OF US.
YOU KNOW WHO "US" IS BY THIS TIME OR
IF YOU DON'T YOU SHOULD
WE ARE HARDWARE, IRON, AND NAIL MERCHANTS. SELL LOTS OF GOODS AND SELL 'EM CHEAP.
It's money in your pocket to buy of S. & I. and Don't You Forget It!
Resp'y, STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

The Best Groceries At The Lowest Prices
ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF
A. E. MASON.
I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

New Furniture
AT S. M. SEE & SONS!
We have just received an entirely new stock of furniture of every discription.
Dealing exclusively in Furniture we are confident we can make it an object to all wishing to buy to call and inspect our stock.
UNDERTAKING A Specialty.

J. MILO EATON'S
REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE, AND LOAN OFFICE.
The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.
Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.
ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice.

WANTED!
Everyone to know that we are here and doing Business, and will do just as we agree to do, or will make it an object to all wishing to buy. We keep
GROCERIES and PROVISIONS, FLOUR AND FEED, CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.
Choice Butter and Fresh Eggs a Specialty. Call us up or order by Telephone.
WILLSEE & CO.

Charlevoix Sentinel.
The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY
SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, Michigan.
Address all business correspondence to the firm
TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year $1 50 | Six months $ .75
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—Will A. Aldrich returns to Chicago to-day.

—Alick Rosenthal will have a new "ad" next week.

—Byron Glass and family removed to Escanaba yesterday.

—James E. Wood went to the Soo yesterday, to look around.

—Miss Spaulding opens a new stock of millinery this week.

—C. B. Cochran and wife of Westchester, Pa., are here for the summer.

—Sam Cokley, of Charlevoix, was granted an increase of pension last week.

—Arthur Meech, of Norwood, has accepted a position at Sutton's Bay with W. S. Johnson.

—Mrs. Harrison Miller, who had been visiting friends here last week, returned on the Lawrence Saturday.

—J. W. Kirby has rented the blacksmith shop of David Nettleton, on Bridge Street. Notice advertisement elsewhere.

—There are 100 vessels on the lakes between 30 and 40 years old one half of them trading on lake Michigan alone.

—Ex-editor Rozelle Rose has charge of the Daily Resorter during Mr. Hampton's absence, and he's doing mighty well, too.

—Daniel S. Way is taking some very fine instantaneous photographic views. His work is as artistic as any made in northern Michigan.

—The steamer Friant is doing a big business in the excursion line this week—giving an excursion every day to Charlevoix and East Jordan, from Petoskey.

—Yesterday at Horton's Bay, Ira Safford discharged two shots of a revolver at Nelson Knapp, just missing him. It occurred over a dog fight. Safford was arrested.

—Dates for Charlevoix County Fair have been fixed for September 20, 21 and 22 next. East Jordan driving park association furnish grounds with good track.

—Charlevoix crosses bats with Petoskey to-day at the latter place, and a delegation of Charlevoixians went over on the Friant this morning to help the boys carry home their scalps.

—Byron See is refitting and repainting his store, and goes to Chicago soon after goods. He will put in a complete stock of dry goods. Byron's old friends will welcome him back into his old haunts. Success, old Baldy.

—Mrs. E. C. Newton and daughters, Mrs. Kessler and her mother, Mrs. Newton, all of Batavia, Ills., have rooms at O. S. Washburn's for the summer. Among the thousands of summer guests none are more welcome at Charlevoix than those hailing from that city.

—The Frankfort Express, states that the new salt well at that place now produces brine 25 per cent salt which, considering that the first brine struck at Ludington was much weaker, the Express thinks is good evidence that there will be no doubt of the ultimate success of the well.

—W. M. Dale, a prominent Chicago druggist, died at his cottage in this village, on Saturday morning last. He was a member of St. Bernard Commandery, Knights Templar, of Chicago, and Sir Knight E. H. Green, of Ivanhoe Commandery, accompanied the family and remains to Chicago.

—There i$ a little matter that $ome of our ubcriber$ have $eemingly forgotten entirely. $ome of them have made u$ many promi$e$, but have not kept them. To u$ it i$ a very important matter, it$ nece$$ary in our bu$ine$$. We are very mode$t and don't like to $peak about it. —Exchange.

—C. W. Caskey has purchased the Lou A. Cummings and she made her first trip on the Manistique route, Friday. Her time will be the same as that of the VanRaalte, leaving Petoskey for Cross Village, the Beavers and Manistique, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. The price paid was $8,000 cash.

—Mr. J. S. Smithson, wife and three daughters, leave next Wednesday for an European trip through Ireland, Scotland and France. They will remain abroad until November when they will return to Norfolk, Va. Mr. Smithson will bring back with him, at his own expense, four Bible-readers from England and will spend the winter laboring among the Freedmen of the south.

—Dr. G. W. Crouter, with his usual enterprise, has had compiled and published, the "Album of Charlevoix," containing 24 views of Charlevoix and surroundings. It is in the form of a "souvenir," is neatly bound, and a most beautiful arrangement of artistic pictures. They were made in Germany, from Charlevoix photographs. They sell for 50 cents.

THE RAILROAD.

Arrangements Effected Which Positively Secure a Railroad for Charlevoix.

Treasurer Meech, of the D. C. & E. R. R. Co., returned Saturday from New York, and President Cherrie returns to-day.

Mr. Meech brings the cheering information that arrangements have been effected with certain New York capitalists, whereby work will be begun on the road from Kalkaska to Charlevoix within 90 days from the date of the negotiations, and pushed rapidly to completion. The SENTINEL is authorized to state this unqualifiedly.

The construction of the D. C. & E. railroad is made a part of a grand scheme which is no more nor less than than the completion of the Toledo & Ann Arbor road from Mount Clemens, its present terminus, to the straits, our road forming a part of that system.

A route will be surveyed and the right of way secured from here to Petoskey at once.

The officers of the D. C. & E. Co. give us authority to state that the iron will be laid from Kalkaska to Charlevoix next summer.

Marine Jottings.

Thursday the steamer A. C. Van Raalte, which, since being condemned has laid at the dock in Harbor Springs, was sold to Capt. Snyder, of the Cummings, and his son, who was engineer on the Van Raalte. The purchase price was $2,750, just half what was paid for the steamer three years ago, and as her machinery is alone worth more than that amount, her new owners have secured a bargain. Capt. Snyder intends to rebuild her at Grand Haven, and it is rumored that she will be put on the East Jordan and Petoskey route.

On Friday, on the arrival of the propeller Lawrence at Cheboygan, Capt. Thorpe received a telegram from his owners to turn the steamer over to his mate, Mr. Finnean, and proceed at once by rail to Chicago, there to take command of the propeller Vernon, which has been chartered by the Northern Michigan line to take the place of the Champlain. The Vernon was built by the Booths for the Manistique route, but being too deep draught it was otherwise ordered. She is a magnificent steamer, with great power and speed. The Champlain is on the stocks at Milwaukee with 150 men engaged in her rebuild. They expect to have her out in sixty days from the time she went into the dry dock. The report seems pretty well authenticated that the Vernon was leased with the privilege of purchase, and that when the Champlain comes out the Vernon will be put on the Chicago and Sault St. Marie route, making a trip a week via this shore. Captain Finnean, who it is hoped will remain in command of the Lawrence, is a good man, both capable and worthy of his promotion, and we are glad to note it. If the arrangements we have mentioned take place, the Northern Michigan line will be of great benefit to this northern region. The owners deserve the highest measure of success, and they will realize it for they are the right kind of men, and they enjoy the entire confidence of the public.

Base Ball.

On Monday our boys took the diamond with Kalkaska, at Dixon Park, and were fairly defeated by a score of 9 to 2. Some of our boys were sick and soon became discouraged. They met again yesterday afternoon, and Charlevoix was again defeated by 8 to 7, although Charlevoix was honestly the winning club. It has been supposed that the Kalkaska club were disposed to be fair in their contests, but they have tenaciously clung to the chump Darby, who has many times demonstrated his unfitness to umpire a game. It was he, and not the club, who defeated our boys yesterday. He has neither the ability nor honesty to make a just decision; has been outlawed by every club in the north, and should be unceremoniously kicked from the field. Many of his decisions yesterday were rotten.

—Traverse City claims to be shipping one hundred bushels of huckleberries per day at present.

—A. T. Washburn & Co. are selling Indian goods in the Stockman building next to Sherwood's.

—S. M. Moulton has rented the Spaulding building and moved his stock of jewelry to that place.

—The handsome new stage of Cook's Petoskey line, was made by G. M. Kerry the Boyne City carriage maker.

—Alick Rosenthal has purchased the Indian basket and bark work of Rosenthal & Son and removed it from the See block to the Lewis block.

—Mrs. Blanchard is entertaining the following guests: Rev. C. L. Leeper and wife of Batavia, Ills., W. E. Ferry, W. A. Robbins and J. W. Bradshaw, of Galesburg, Ills.

Loyal Legion.

The Loyal Legion will meet next Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All members are requested to be present.

Masonic.

Special communication of Charlevoix Lodge No. 285, F. & A. M., next Tuesday evening, Aug. 9, for work on first degree.

W. A. SMITH, W. M.

FOR SALE—A heavy yoke of oxen. Must be sold immediately. Apply to A. Stewart, Charlevoix. 2w

The J. S. Smithson Lecture.

The lecture given by Mr. J. S. Smithson at Opera Hall last Wednesday evening in the interest of the repair fund of the M. E. church, was an unqualified success.

No branch of history is more replete with interest than Egyptology, and as Mr. Smithson's Egyptian travel was during the time when the great discoveries were made, the lecture could not fail in interest.

The hall was lined with Egyptian views, while the stage abounded in choice specimens of pottery and other relics from the land of the Nile, exhumed by Mr. Smithson.

The lecture, pleasingly illustrated with pictures, gave one a graphic idea of the manners and customs of Egypt, past and present. At intervals the curtain rose and a clear idea of the home-life of the natives of to-day was obtained. In one scene there were 25 Egyptians in costume represented, all of different vocations, if an Egyptian may ever be said to have a vocation.

The collection of costumes is without doubt the finest of its nation in America. Their original cost was over $3,000.

Thanks to Mr. Smithson's energy and generosity and to those who purchased tickets to the lecture, the repair fund is advanced $85.

Old Fashioned Base Ball.

The largest crowd of the season gathered at Dixon Park last Thursday to witness the ball game between "the boys of over 50" from the two resorts. For a week the veterans of both sides had been drawing on their memories for rules of the game "as we used to play it 30 years ago," and in practicing up. Many of them had not touched a ball "with hostile intent" in over a score of years yet "the boys" who have already passed the second base of life's course, did themselves proud and won unstinted applause, not only for their errors in the eyes of the ball players of to-day, but also for their good plays. Many of them found the greatest difficulty in running bases, but with snow on their heads and fire in their heels they got there just the same.

The Chicago Resort "twelve" was composed of S. M. Moore, N. H. Blatchford, Luman Burr, H. Berdan, John P. Wilson, Thomas Rockwood, D. S. Munger, N. W. Edgar, A. B. Mead, Ex-Lieut. Gov. Buttars, Hon. John M. Pierson and H. K. Wolcott.

The south-side resort was represented by Dallas Boudeman, D. B. Merrill, O. M. Allen, Rev. Bennett, O. C. Ainsworth, Prof Stuart, M. J. Stockman, E. Carpenter, A. J. McLeod, Judge Buck and H. P. Parmelee.

The game was to be one hour and a half long. At the end of that time five innings had been played with a score of 18 to 17 in favor of the Chicago side, the score being close throughout.

Prof. Willard as umpire, gave excellent satisfaction.

The gate receipts, $28, were given to the town library.

It is probable that a return game will be played soon, as Michigan is not content to let Chicago fly the pennant any longer than this week.

The Chicago side helped heal the wounds of the vanquished by inviting them to one of Edgar's best suppers at the Club house. The ladies of the Chicago side presented to the 12 players of their club a neat badge in the shape of a shield, bearing the letters "C. S. R.," to be worn during the game. The presentation speech was made by Mrs. N. H. Blatchford, who spoke as follows:

"Captain of the twelve and gentlemen of the club: The ladies of the resort desire me to express to you the interest and enthusiasm with which they look forward to the conflict of this afternoon. Gentlemen, the eyes of Charlevoix, Michigan, are upon you. Acquit yourselves like men. On to glory! Bases to the right of you, bases to the left of you, bases in front of you, still never falter noble resorters. But yet we are women, tender-hearted women. We tremble when we think of the perils to which you will be exposed. Therefore we made with trembling fingers and tearful eyes, but indomitable courage, these shields which we now take pleasure in presenting to you. May they ward off the blows of the enemy and preserve your heart's blood.

"We know most of you have passed the prime of life, you are feeble and tottering, but for our sake, for the sake of your children and grandchildren, Rouse up! Grasp the flying missle, however hard and fast it comes. Speed from base to base, no matter how your knees tremble and your limbs totter. Run, run for your bases, and you flyers bat with courage and unerring aim until the Kalamazoos are completely unwinded and lay exhausted on the sands of Dixon's field.

G. A. R. Camp Fire.

A reunion and camp fire of the soldiers of Charlevoix county will be held at Boyne City on Thursday, Aug. 11th. The Harbor Springs and Petoskey Posts are expected to attend. Let every soldier go.

A BARGAIN—Positively an extra good second hand Whitney & Holmes organ for sale. On account of removing will sell for less than one half its value, if sold soon. Inspection of organ is invited at C. H. Maddaugh's tailor shop.

S. PARKER of Charlevoix, has a 40 acre farm, 30 cleared, opposite Ironton which he wishes to exchange for a house and lot in Charlevoix.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

ALL FOR MY LOVE.

BY FREDERICK E. WEATHERLY.

Launch me a golden argosy,
Hoist me the silver sails;
Lend me thy waves, thou dancing sea,
Waft me, ye favoring gales.
Go tell the night by stars to light,
The moon to stoop and shine,
Because my love hath sent for me,
Because my love is mine!

Fell me the mighty cedar tree,
Build me a palace fair;
Deck it with gold and ivory,
Hang it with arras rare.
Fling wide the gates that part the sea,
And let the clarions play,
Because the day hath dawned for me,
My love is mine for aye!

Go bid the nightingales to sing,
The pearly fountains play
A melody of love by night,
A dream of night by day.
Tell ye the world it draw not near,
Tell ye the hills and sea,
The glory of my life is here,
My love hath come to me!

A DARING LOVER.

M. VICTOR STALEY.

The incidents related in this sketch occurred at a time when that part of the country adjacent to the Rocky Mountains was but little settled. Here and there among the foothills several mining towns had sprung up, but for the most part their surroundings was a wilderness of natural wonders, unexplored canyons, through which the roaring waters rushed in their headlong flight; mammoth caverns with labyrinthian passages, where bands of outlaws had their strongholds, from whence they sallied forth at intervals to prey upon the inhabitants. One of the most dreaded of these lawless commands was led by a cruel, vindictive ruffian who gloried in the [illegible]

[illegible] tance from the village, and building a cabin went earnestly to work. Whether he was successful or not no one knew, as he went to the village but seldom, and then had but little to say to his fellow-miners; but, as he worked energetically, day after day, it became rumored that he was laying up an immense amount of precious dust.

About this time another arrival occurred. A young man about twenty-seven or twenty-eight years of age. He was dressed in the height of fashion. Coming right from the haunts of civilization, he had not as yet discarded the gewgaws of society for the rough trappings characteristic of the miner. He was finely formed, athletic and muscular, dark complexioned, with a bright piercing eye, the flash of which was indicative of a dashing, contagious spirit, while in his manly countenance could be read stern resolve, indomitable pluck, and great perseverance.

The miners admired these qualities in their latest acquisition, yet his dandified manner had prejudiced them against him; and upon giving his name as Joseph Early, they immediately dubbed him "Dandy Joe."

He paid no attention to their ridicule, however, but, taking a claim near Alfred Otsone's, settled down to honest toil. His cheerful disposition, beaming countenance, and occasional acts of bravery soon won for him the esteem and good-will of those who were wont to ridicule, but the nickname they had given him on his arrival still clung to him; and the appellation by which he was known in civilized life seemed in a fair way of being replaced by the sobriquet of the mining-camp.

Often the miners would joke him about laying out his claim adjoining old Alfred Otsone's, hinting that he had done so that he might be near to charming Miss Pleena. However that was, he soon became a welcome visitor at Otsone's cabin. Fortune favored the young man. His claim proved a rich find, and, as he was free from the usual vices of the ordinary miner, his pile of glittering dust continued to accumulate with surprising rapidity.

In the village was a low, roughly-constructed shanty which was used principally for gambling purposes, and here most of the miners congregated.

One evening "Dandy Joe" stood watching the exciting game which was then in full blast, when in rushed "Giant Jake," a fellow-miner and particular friend, so named from his massive build and great strength of arm.

"My God, boys," he exclaimed, "thar ar' hin devilish work at old Otsone's shanty this nite."

"What is this you say? Speak; what do you mean?" cried "Dandy Joe."

"Look thar," and the miner pointed to the door.

Turning, "Dandy Joe" beheld two miners enter the shanty, bearing the unconscious form of old Alfred Otsone.

His head was cut and bruised in a terrible manner, while his face was covered with blood, presenting to the onlookers a ghastly spectacle, but one to which all had become accustomed by their long life in those localities, where such sights were of daily occurrence.

It was some time before the old man opened his eyes and revived sufficiently to relate the events which led to his condition. When, however, he was able to speak intelligently, this was the tale he unfolded to his hearers: A band of lawless ruffians had appeared and demanded his gold. He refused to show them its hiding-place, when one of the cowardly villains struck him a blow on the head, knocking him down, where he lay as one dead. Thinking they had killed him, they left him; and, after a fruitless search, decamped, taking with them his daughter, while he crawled with great difficulty to the camp of the miners.

"Outlaw Bill," said "Giant Jake" when the wounded man had concluded.

"Boys." All eyes were turned toward Dandy Joe, who had mounted a bench, while his rough-visaged companions quickly gathered around as they noted the ominous flashing of his dark eyes. "Must we submit to this? Shall this fiend be allowed to continue in his hellish work? Shall we not have revenge?"

"Revenge! revenge!" echoed the miners, whose numbers now filled the building.

"Then, look you," continued "Dandy Joe, "I shall make to you a proposition. It would be useless, not knowing where their stronghold lies, to attempt an expedition against them, as you have already done on more than one occasion without success; for they would be warned of our approach, and should we discover their retreat it would no doubt be deserted ere we could attack them."

"That is so," replied "Giant Jake."

"I am determined," continued the speaker, "that 'Outlaw Bill' shall be vanquished and Pleena Otsone rescued from his clutches. I propose to go alone in search of this monster, and when I have found his retreat will return, and together we will break up this lawless band."

"No, you must not go alone, "Dandy Joe," replied a number of voices.

"Who among you will volunteer to accompany me in this dangerous undertaking?"

"I, I, I," shouted the miners in chorus.

"I will take but one," replied Dandy Joe, "and, as you are all willing, I will select 'Giant Jake' as my companion. I know you will all join in wishing us success."

"We do. We do," yelled the miners.

"When we have discovered their stronghold and rescued Pleena from their clutches we will return, and, preparing an expedition, march against them in force; and, knowing their surroundings, be able to strike at the right time and in the right place, thus making a success of the undertaking.

Cheer after cheer rang out as "Dandy Joe" and "Giant Jake" left the shanty to prepare for their dangerous mission.

The next morning, armed to the teeth, they set out in search of the secret cave of the robber band. Besides their arms they had taken with them long lariats in case they should need them. Their plan was to keep their eyes open in hopes of seeing some member of "Outlaw Bill's" command, and then, unknown to the villain, track him to his lair.

This was the only way in which they could ever expect to accomplish their mission. It was not altogether a wild-goose chase as it may appear to the reader, for rumor had already fixed the locality of the bandit's retreat, though as yet it had escaped all prying eyes. They knew that they were somewhere in its vicinity, from certain signs which were not overlooked, such as carved sticks lying by the wayside, trees on which the ax had left its impression, carelessness on the part of the outlaws, but all of which proved guides to these indefatigable searches.

Yet days passed by without anything being seen or heard to give them farther [illegible]

[illegible] a fissure in the smooth wall of the canyon unfolded a silken ladder, which was slowly lowered down the face of the rock, till it reached a ledge which, extending outward, all but joined a similar rocky formation on the opposite side, making a natural bridge which could be crossed with but little danger.

When the full length of the ladder had been reached, a man was seen to step from the fissure and carefully descend. Reaching the ledge of rock, he crossed the natural bridge, and, gaining the other side, passed by the thicket where "Dandy Joe" and "Giant Jake," concealed, lay watching his movements.

When he was out of hearing "Giant Jake" exclaimed, "We hev diskivered thar retreat, but hyar we gwine to git thar?"

"If we could reach the top of yonder cliff, you might then lower me down its face and I could gain an entrance in that way," replied "Dandy Joe."

"Giant Jake" remonstrated with him regarding the foolhardiness of the undertaking, but to no purpose; for, that being the only way, he replied that there should be no thought of the danger.

Making a wide detour, they succeeded in reaching the other side of the canyon, yet not without great difficulty, clambering over the huge bowlders which obstructed their path, they finally gained the top of the rocky wall, just as the twilight was beginning to deepen into night.

They had taken their position directly above the fissure that they might make no mistake in the darkness. Waiting till after midnight, which hour they regarded as the safest time for the dangerous undertaking, they arranged everything for the proposed descent. Dangerous indeed it was, for, though they had made safe the point of contact with the rocks above, yet the lariat, swinging taut with the heavy weight, against the face of the cliff, might at any moment be severed by sharp-edged projections from the rock wall.

Securely fastening one end of the lariat on the top of the cliff, lest, powerful fellow though he was, he should be unable to retain his hold, "Giant Jake" noosed the other end about his companion and lowered him slowly toward the entrance of the robber cave.

As he descended "Dandy Joe" extended his hands toward the smooth wall of the canyon, and anxiously felt for the opening in the rock. He soon reached it, as he supposed, and signaling to "Giant Jake" he entered. Untying the lariat and making it secure about a projection which jutted out from the wall of the passage, he crept stealthily forward. A light gleamed just ahead, and in a few moments he reached a large apartment, where, reclining on a couch of furs, lay Pleena Otsone. With a cry of delight she sprang toward him. Explanations followed, and he learned that the passage leading to the robber cave lay just below the one he had entered, and, also that entrance to the main cavern could be effected through her apartment.

She also informed him that "Outlaw Bill" was holding her for ransom, and, as she seemed in no particular danger at present from him or his followers, it was thought prudent to allow her to remain till he returned from the settlement with a sufficient force to overpower the ruffians, for, did he remove her, they would know their secret abode had been discovered, and would be prepared to resist them.

So bidding her farewell for the present, he returned to the entrance, and hand over hand, ascended the face of the cliff. It proved a tedious exertion, and it was only with the help of "Giant Jake" that he finally clambered o'er the edge of the wall.

Hurriedly they set out for the settlement, and returning the following day with an armed force, reached their destination late in the evening, to guard against discovery. As before they waited till a late hour of the night, when one by one the miners were lowered into the outlaw den. Not a sound came from the interior of the cavern, where the desperadoes lay, secure, as they supposed, in their rocky retreat. How soon they were to be undeceived!

Rushing in the miners began a rattling fusilade, which was returned by a few of these desperate men who escaped the first volley. They, however, were soon overpowered, only to be suspended from the roof of the cavern, or more correctly, from a framework erected to hold the arms of the desperate command.

"But where is "Outlaw Bill?" He is not among the slain?" As the question was asked, "Giant Jake" and "Dandy Joe" entered, tearing between them, bound hand and foot, the outlaw chief.

These two brave men, knowing the vindictive nature of "Outlaw Bill," had rushed to the protection of Pleena Otsone, arriving just as with knife upraised the bandit was rushing with murder in his eyes toward the innocent maiden; for, knowing he could not escape the fate he so well merited, he had resolved by causing her death, to bring another pang to the hearts of his enemies.

Waiting till daylight appeared, they lowered the silken ladder and deserted the robber cave, taking with them the booty found there, and the bound form of the desperado.

Arriving at the mining camp, "Outlaw Bill" was led beneath a giant tree which stood in the center of the village and a lariat placed around his neck, and the other end thrown over a convenient limb which jutted out overhead. At this juncture, Alfred Otsone appeared upon the scene. Advancing to the tree underneath which stood the robber, stolid and indifferent, he exclaimed, pointing his finger menacingly at him, "William Heverly, are you the villain who glories in the name of 'Outlaw Bill?' You are the fiend who ruined my home, and caused me to flee the country, little knowing that time would bring me or mine again in your power. Your doom is sealed."

As the old man finished speaking, the rope tightened and the body of the outlaw chief swung lifeless in the air.

Now that his enemy, William Heverly, was forever swept from his path, Alfred Otsone longed for his eastern home, and disposing of his claim he prepared to bid farewell to his fellow-miners. "Dandy Joe" also accompanied him, and many a miner wrung his hand warmly at their departure.

Arriving in the East, the sobriquet of "Dandy Joe" was dropped forever, and Pleena Otsone became Mrs. Joseph Early.

Nature the Great Teacher.

In his new book, "Nature's Teachings," the Rev. J. G. Wood has discussed a subject not before handled at length. Its object is to show how man's implements and mechanical devices have been anticipated in nature. He asserts that there is no invention of man which is not anticipated, that all his mechanical devices have been used [illegible]

[illegible] gnat combines them in a mass shaped somewhat like a life-boat. It is impossible to sink it without tearing it to pieces. The iron mast of a modern ship is strengthened by deep ribs running along its interior. A porcupine quill is strengthened by similar ribs. When engineers found that hollow beams were stronger than solid ones, they only discovered a principle which had been used in nature for centuries before the creation of man. A wheat straw, if solid, could not support a heavy head. The bones of the higher animals, if solid, would have to be a great deal heavier to bear the weight which they have to support. The framework of a ship resembles the skeleton of a herring, and he who would improve aerial navigation might study the skeleton of a bird with advantage. Palissy made a careful study of the shells by the seaside, in order to learn the best method of fortifying a town.

The ship worm feeds on wood, and gradually tunnels its way through any submerged timber. It also lines its burrow with a hard, shelly coating. Brunel, taking a hint from this, was the first to succeed in subaquatic tunneling. The Eddystone lighthouse is built on the plan of a tree trunk, and fastened to the rock in a manner somewhat similar to the way a tree is fastened to the soil. It is supposed that the first idea of a suspension bridge was suggested by the creepers of a tropical forest.

Mr. Wood gives an interesting account of the origin of the plan for the Crystal Palace. Mr. Paxton, a gardener, having noticed the structure of the great leaves of the Victoria Regia, a plant which had been introduced into England a few years previous, struck the plan of copying in iron the ribs of the leaf, and filling the remaining space, which corresponds to the cellular portions of the leaf, with glass. Thus, by copying nature, an obscure gardener became Sir Joseph Paxton, the great architect.

Dumb.

I can hardly express to you how much I feel there is to be thought of, arising from the use of the word dumb as applied to animals. "Dumb Animals." What an immense exhortation that is to pity. It is remarkable that this word "dumb" should have been so largely applied to animals, for in reality there are very few dumb animals. But, doubtless, the word is often used to convey a larger idea than that of dumbness, namely, the want of power in animals to convey by sound to mankind what they feel, or perhaps I should rather say the want of power in men to understand and the meaning of the various sounds uttered by animals which are mostly dumb, such as the horse, which, except on rare occasions, or in extreme suffering, makes no sound at all, but only expresses pain by certain movements indicating it. How tender we ought to be of them, and how observant of these movements, considering their dumbness. The human baby guides and governs us by its cries. In fact it will nearly rule a household by these cries, and woe would betide it if it had not this power of making its afflictions known. It is a sad thing to reflect upon, that the animal which has most to endure from man, is the one which has the least power of protesting by noise against any of his evil treatment.—Arthur Helps.

Wanted to Have a Fit.

A colored hod-carrier walked into the western police station in Baltimore and quietly informed Lieut. Scott that he was about to have a fit, and would like to be given a quiet place to have it in. He was shown a cell, and after setting his hod against the wall proceeded to have his fit, which lasted for half an hour and was very violent. After he had been sufficiently convulsed he picked up his hod and walked out, saying that he was going to work and was afraid he would be docked for being late.—Chicago News.

WAR REMINISCENCES.

Old Soldiers Rehearsing the Stirring Scenes Through Which They Passed.

Anecdotes of the Battle-Field, the Camp-Fire, and the Merry March.

"An Unknown Soldier's Grave.

BY AN EX-CONFEDERATE.

Close beside the beautiful Tennessee,
Under its banks of clay,
An unknown soldier was buried one day;
His shoes were old, his coat was worn,
But a generous heart beat within that house of clay.

In answer to his country's call
He left wife, mother, friends and all;
Bravely he took his stand
To fight for the flag that waved o'er a Christian land.

He died far away from his Northern home,
From loved ones he longed to see;
He died in the land he came to conquer,
And sleeps to-night in the valley of the beautiful Tennessee.

While around his Northern home
The cold winds are blowing,
The wild rose and honeysuckle o'er his grave are growing.

He "sleeps the sleep that knows no waking,"
And there he will slumber till the morn of resurrection.
The cruel, cruel war is long since o'er,
The causes for which we contended
Were decided on fields red with human gore.

So let us water the unknown soldier's grave with tears,
For he was one of the Illinois Volunteers.

How a Colonel's Gobbler Was Gobbled in Virginia.

It was the custom of our commanding officers, says a writer in the Atlanta Constitution, after a hard day's march, if we chanced to go into camp near the residence of some well-to-do citizen, to have a guard detailed to sit up with the premises of said citizen during the night, or so long as [illegible]

[illegible] turning of the missing goods to the owner—in a horn!

A man would have better luck in trying to smother a bedbug than he would in searching for a chicken, ham, or beegum in a crowd of several thousand troops.

Generally speaking, your average soldier will eat, if there is anything of that nature in the neighborhood; and if a sufficient supply of rations was not furnished by the commissary, the [illegible] of the citizens residing along our line of march was predestined to come up short.

The writer of this remembers on one occasion having a good, fat beehive mysteriously disappear from under his nose one night while he was vigilantly guarding that and other perishable chattels on the premises.

I could never satisfactorily account for the mishap, but I knew my mess had honey and corn-bread for breakfast next morning, all the same!

But, the Colonel's gobler! Sure enough! "How was it, Joe?"

"Boys, that was the meanest trick I done durin' the war, and I'm ashamed of it ti'l yet," responded Joe B., the party appealed to for the story, long years after the "wind-up" of the unpleasantness.

Joe was one of the best soldiers in the Virginia army, and would shove back a plate of milk and peaches any time to get a shot at a Yankee. But he said he was born hungry, and if there was anything floating around in his vicinity that could be masticated, he was more than apt to "draw" his share of it.

"Go on, Joe."

"Well, we had been marching all day through mud and slush, and when night come we stacked arms close to the fine mansion of a rich old fellow, of course, and of course somebody had to do guard duty. A sergeant's squad of six men were detailed from my regiment, and I was one of the unfortunates.

"I was tired and mad, and if cussin' would have done any good I reckon I would have had a spell of that too. But there was no help for it, and on duty I had to go.

"Each one of us had two hours' duty to perform, and my turn came about 9 o'clock. We were posted in the yard with instructions to let no one in our out, except members of the family.

"I hadn't been on duty more than an hour when I saw some one approaching the house.

It was pretty dark, but I could see well enough to decide that the individual was a nigger.

"He approached the gate, and was in the act of entering, when——

"'Halt!' says I.

"He stopped moving!

"'What are you up to?' I asked.

"'I cum ter see if I could git dis 'ere tucky cook fer de Cunnal,' he explained.

"'All right,' says I, 'go ahead.'

"Right there, boys, I disobeyed my instructions, but it struck me all of a sudden, right in the stomach, that that turkey was mine, so I let the nigger in unmolested.

"He walked up to the door of the kitchen and knocked.

"'Who dat?' came from within.

"'Cunnel Monday sent me here fer have a tucky cook fer 'im.'

"The door opened and an old nigger woman peeped out and asked:

"'Cunnel who?'

"'Cunnel Monday.'

"'Good lawd! who is Cunnel Monday?'

"The darky walked in with his turkey, and I slipped up to the door to get points for future action.

"'How duz he want 'im cooked?' asked the woman.

"'Wants 'im baked wid plenty er stuffin' inter 'm, was answered. 'What yer chaj?'

"'Won't do hit fer less'n a dollar, dat I won't.'

"'All right. When mus' I cum arter 'im?'

"'Not fo' one er clock in de mawnin'.'

"About the time the nigger left I was relieved; and returning to the squad I let the sentinel, who I knew would be on duty about 1 o'clock, and who happened to be one of my mess, into the secret.

"I was awfully afraid the blamed nigger would beat me, but I determined to risk it, and at the appointed time I marched to the kitchen door and knocked.

"'Who dat?'

"'Cum arter de tucky,' says I, mimicking the nigger.

"'Is you de one wat fotch 'im 'ere?' she demanded.

"'Cose I is. How'd I know de tucky was 'ere ef I didn't fotch 'im?' I replied, with a show of impatience. 'Han' 'im out.'

"She seemed satisfied, and bringing the turkey to the door I grabbed him, handed her a dollar, and skipped.

"Don't you forget about my mess having a fat time over a fifteen-pound gobbler that morning for breakfast.

"When the Colonel rolled out of his blankets in the morning and was told that his turkey had been gobbled, the boys of the regiment thought there was a big revival in full blast at his quarters. But it didn't sound like a religious service to me!"

And then Joe smiled.

Stealing the Major's Supper.

The urgent demand by so many soldiers to "confess," or give some positive information in regard to this and that little irregularity, writes M. V. Ashby in the Tribune, has prompted me to tell a story, especially since one of the fellows, now at Fort Dodge, Iowa, appears to have forgotten that he was a party, and the fellow at Kansas City is so busy in the boom there that probably he has forgotten that he ever was in the army and a party in this present account. The other brave fellow [illegible]

[illegible] near the window. Two of three soldiers were loafing around outside, and while the young lady was out after milk the bread was slipped out of the window, and the trio went behind the smoke-house and ate the Major's supper.

As soon as the young lady returned she noticed the bread was gone, and, addressing the Major, she said: "Mister, somebody has taken that 'pone.'" Then the air was blue with the wrath of that official. All the words of the English language were used to express his condemnation of the men who would steal, and especially on such an occasion.

Major Hayn, of the Sixteenth Illinois, invited Major Stone to come and dine with him, for, although supper was over, there would be found enough for one meal at least. No, he would not, but drank the milk and paid for it, and then the troops started for camp. Along that dark road occasionally could be heard the question, "Who stole Major Stone's 'pone?'" And then, as during the past twenty-five years, not a word was said. It was understood by two or three of Company I, Sixteenth Illinois, that it surely must be some of the Major's own regiment, as the other troops were not personally acquainted with him, and would have no occasion to want any of his "pones."

For several days an effort was made to find the guilty soldiers, but they escaped that time, sure. No one seemed to enjoy this little incident more than the Colonel and Major of the Sixteenth Illinois. The Colonel, when it was communicated to him the next day, said it was bad for soldiers to treat their officers so, and he knew none of his troops would ever do so wicked a thing.

One omission in my story may be added here. From the ground to the window it was seven or eight feet, and it was necessary to "boost" the outside man, and this required the strength of two of his fellows. I sometimes feel tired yet, for we held that fellow up so long waiting for the party inside to act. Another point in regard to my share of the bread. On account of having just dined on corn, fried duck, tomatoes, and several other articles of food, it is my recollection that I only tasted the bread to see if the young lady was a good cook, as I was not hungry at the time.

Now in regard to Major Stone—his record is good, and we have him here in Iowa as an ex-Governor—I feel sure that to-day he will not shower upon our loyal heads what he did in 1861, and I think in regard to foraging in the enemy's country his opinions have probably changed. After the experience of the subsequent years of the war, I feel that the same thing would be done again with improved method.

This occasion was our first ride in army wagons, and on that occasion all the hollowness of a soldier was developed after being jolted over rough roads for fifteen miles. The most of the squad were volunteers for the occasion, and it was not necessary to draft when the attack was made on the Major's supper.

As this was an "interstate" affair, it of course was necessary for such commercial relation; and, then, the Government gave free passes, and we accepted them on all occasions. The fact exists, however, that on some occasions the Government invited us to walk a little now and then, and we walked.

M. V. ASHLEY,
Company I, Sixteenth Illinois.

AFTON, IOWA.

Two Anecdotes of Grant.

"The first time I ever saw Grant was when he came to take command of the army. This was at Brandywine Station. We had been accustomed to see McClellan, Halleck, Burnside, and the other Generals go about from brigade to brigade and division to division attended by a cloud of gorgeously uniformed staff officers, and, of course, we expect that Grant's arrival would have a great deal of show in it. We were awaiting his arrival, knowing that he was on his way, when a freight train rolled in. There was a caboose on the end, and out jumped two men. One of them was a short, stumpy man, with a full brown beard. He wore a black slouch hat, tipped down on his eyes, and as he picked his way over the railroad tracks to the station a soldier who had been at Fort Donelson shouted, 'Here's Grant, boys.' On the platform was General Ingalls, the Commissary General of the army, and who was one of Grant's classmates. He recognized his old comrade, and they shook hands for a moment. Then Ingalls invited his commander to take a seat in a four-in-hand, which was waiting. It was raining, but Grant stood awhile and looked over the turnout; then he got inside, and drove to headquarters. General Ingalls had provided a most magnificent dinner for the new commander. Grant sat and ate heartily, and, after he had finished, he turned and inquired: 'Ingalls, where did you get all this stuff?' The Commissary General replied, with some pride, that he had it brought down from Washington expressly for the event. Then Grant wanted to know if the soldiers were in the habit of getting a layout like that. Upon being answered in the negative, Grant said: 'Ingalls, I have been in the habit of eating a soldier's rations. What's good enough for them is good enough for me.' Ingalls didn't neglect to take the hint, and there were no more gorgeous banquets after that in the headquarters of the Army of the Potomac. After this episode Grant smoked, and finally said: 'One more question, Ingalls. Where did you get that four-in-hand?' 'It has been attached to the headquarters for the use of the commanding General for a long time, sir,' was the response. Grant never changed his expression as he replied: 'I don't want it here, Rufus; the next time we need it it will be used in the field as an ambulance.' And it was."

Stonewall Jackson and the Cadets.

My introduction to him, when I was a cadet and fourth-class man, was as follows: In September Major Jackson, returned from his summer leave of absence, was at his post preparing the second class for its course in applied mechanics. I was, in cadet parlance, "a plebe," had been in school about a month, and had heard from the old cadets wonderful stories of Major Jackson's strictness in adhering to discipline. One day about ten a. m., as I was going to my quarters from the class-room, I was hailed by an officer, as I supposed, and called into a room on the second stoop of the barracks. There I found several cadets dressed in blue coats, with swords and sashes. The one who had hailed me said rather sharply to a secretary, who was seated by a table and busily writing, "Make out that requisition and send it by this plebe to the quartermaster, and you, fellow, take it to that office," pointing to a room. "Get the officer there to sign it; and then go up town and bring what it calls for. Be quick about it. I must have it here be- [illegible]

[illegible] did not censure me at all, that the cadets were in the habit of quizzing the new-comers, and some one was playing a joke on me. The order I brought was a bogus requisition for high-heeled socks, pickled crow-bars, and a box of Spex's best cigars. I had not dared to open the order, and when advised of its absurd nature my embarrassment was painful. He observed this, and to relieve me, asked how long I had been at the Institute, from what part of the State I hailed, etc. His manner before the class was stern, he sat erect with his coat buttoned to the chin, but now he was kind and pleasant, and I shall never forget my first encounter with Stonewall Jackson.

Avery Brown.

Some time ago we presented to our readers a short sketch of Captain Mott, who was said to be the youngest soldier in our civil war. Since that time we have received information that Avery Brown, "The Drummer Boy of the Cumberland," lays claim to being the youngest soldier and substantiates his claim with undeniable facts.

Avery Brown was born at Delphos, Allen County, Ohio, on September 28, 1852. On August 18, 1861, he was mustered into the United States service at Camp Chase, Columbus, Ohio, and joined Company C, Thirty-first Ohio Volunteer Infantry, First Brigade, Second Division, Fourteenth Army Corps. His age, therefore, at muster, was eight years, eleven months and thirteen days, which certainly entitles him to the distinction of being the youngest enlisted soldier in the civil war. His claim is conceded by all other reputed claimants. At present Mr. Brown resides at Elkhart, Ind. He is a marble-cutter by trade and a musician of no mean ability. He is highly respected as a citizen and as a member of the Grand Army post, is generous to a fault, and is ever ready to lend his aid to all worthy objects of charity, is a genial, God-fearing gentleman, and conducts himself with the dignity becoming a man of his distinction and reputation as "The Drummer Boy of the Cumberland."—Chicago Ledger.

What They Thought of the Surgeon.

It should not be inferred, however, that the Chaplain had to bear the brunt of all the regimental jokes; the Surgeon was an occasional victim as well. One day a soldier was passing near the regimental hospital tent, and saw two of his companions making a rude coffin. He inquired for whom it was intended, and was told it was for Billy Bunce.

"Why," said he, "Billy Bunce is not dead yet, and it doesn't look right to make a fellow's coffin while there's a chance of his living."

"Don't trouble yourself about that," said one of the coffin-makers, "Dr. McGorrisk told us to make his coffin, and we guess he knows what he gave him!"

A MAN who dresses too grandly, or too absurdly, or too shabbily, has some mental oddity, or insanity, or meanness which develops itself outwardly in the fashion of his garments.—Chicago Ledger.

PITH AND POINT.

MAGAZINE for sleepless children—Wide Awake.

HAVE the grass cut if you want your lawn a la mowed.

A MISER may be safely told a secret. He never gives anything away.

THE best exponent of Browning is the domestic who can send up a perfectly roasted turkey.

IT is a curious fact that a man always waits until he is run down before he winds up his career.

MISTRESS (to new servant)—We have breakfast generally about eight o'clock. New Servant—Well, mum, if I ain't down to it don't wait.

THERE is a dentist in a Michigan town, the sign over whose door reads: "Teeth Extracted Without Enny Pane. Laffin Gas (10) Cents a Ha Ha!"

AN exchange wants to know "what product has the greatest acreage?" Corn! And on the foot it is the greatest cause of acher rage.—Texas Siftings.

"IRATE parent in the door, to his clerk, who is caressing his daughter: Young man, you are not hired for that kind of work. "That's so. I'm doing it for nothing."

"A SEAMAN washed overboard!" exclaimed Mrs. Fangle as she read a newspaper headline; "but perhaps he was so dirty they hadn't enough water on the ship."

WHEN Dr. Mary Walker has fastened her severed suspenders with a piece of white cotton cord and used a shoe-button for a collar-button she can claim to have graduated.

"ANNIE, is it proper to say this 'ere that 'are?" "Why, Kate, of course not." "Well, I don't know whether it is proper or not, but I feel cold in this ear from that air."

"I FEEL so miserable again this morning," said a complaining wife. "Yes," [illegible]

[illegible] said to-day that she didn't think you'd ever set the river on fire. De Garmo—What confidence she has in me! Of course she knows I'm too honorable to do anything of that kind.—Tid-Bits.

OMAHA girl—Your family are Unitarians, are they not? New York girl—We were, but ma and I have joined the Episcopalians. We like their forms better. "The forms?" "Yes; you are up and down so much your dress don't get crumpled, you know."—Omaha World.

"SUPPOSE I shall see you at your father's funeral to-day?" said a friend to a young man of the period. "Naw; should like to be there, but I'll be busy in court, opening succession and heading off mother in a will contest. See you later if I succeed."—New Orleans Picayune.

"PRISONER," said a Nevada judge, "what have you to say to this indictment; are you guilty or not guilty?" "Before I answer the question, judge, I'd like to ask your honor if this little spectacled dude is all the lawyer I've got." "That is Mr. Ferguson, sir," responded the judge, sternly; "I have appointed him to defend you, as you seem to have no counsel." "Judge," said the prisoner, sighing heavily, "I'm guilty."

The Savior's Sentence.

A correspondent sends what he believes to be a correct translation of the sentence pronounced by Pontius Pilate on Christ. He says that this curious document was discovered in A. D. 1280 in the city of Aquill in the Kingdom of Naples, in the course of a search made for the discovery of Roman antiquities, and it remained there until it was found by the Commissaries of Art in the French army of Italy. Up to the time of the campaign in Southern Italy it was preserved in the sacristy of the Carthusians, near Naples, where it was kept in a box of ebony. Since then the relic has been kept in the Chapelo Caserta. The Carthusians obtained, by petition, leave that the plate might be kept by them as an acknowledgement of the sacrifice which they had made for the French army.

The French translation was made literally by members of the Commission of Art. Denon had a fac-simile of the plate engraved, which, on the sale of his cabinet, was bought by Lord Howard for 2,890 francs: Sentence pronounced by Pontius Pilate, Intendant of Lower Galilee, that Jesus of Nazareth shall suffer death by the cross. In the seventeenth year of the reign of the Emperor Tiberius, and on the 25th of March, in the most holy city of Jerusalem, during the Pontificate of Annas, and Caiaphas, Pontius Pilate, Intendant of the province of Lower Galilee, sitting in judgment in the Presidential chair of the Prætor, sentences Jesus of Nazareth on a cross between two robbers, as the numerous testimonies of the people prove that:

1. Jesus is a misleader.
2. He has excited the people to sedition.
3. He is an enemy of the law.
4. He calls himself the Son of God.
5. He calls himself falsely the King of Israel.

He went to the temple, followed by a multitude carrying palms in their hands. It likewise orders the first centurion, Cutrillus Cornelius, to bring him to the place of execution, and forbids all persons, rich or poor, to prevent the execution of Jesus.

"The witnesses who have signed the execution against Jesus are:

1. Daniel Robani, a Pharisee.
2. John Zorobabel.
3. Raphael Robani.
4. Capet.

Finally the orders that the said Jesus be taken out of Jerusalem through the gate of Tournea.—Notes and Queries.

INDIAN River, Florida, is said to be the straightest in the world. A straight line can be drawn through it for seventy-five miles without touching shore.

GATHERING SEA-FOWL EGGS.

How San Francisco Fishermen Glean a Strange Harvest from Rocky Islands.

During the last eighteen or twenty years some of the fishermen of this city have been in the habit of going to the Farallones during the laying season for the purpose of gathering eggs, says the San Francisco Call. It is a business by no means unattended with danger. It is extremely difficult to scale the sides of the rocky islets and to gather the eggs, as the gatherer must often go in almost inaccessible places. He must often be lowered down over cliffs and frightful chasms by means of a rope, and if the rope were to be broken by the friction against some jagged side his life would pay the forfeit. Then, again, he is often attacked by the birds that he despoils of their eggs, and when they attack him in numbers he frequently has a hard time of it. They strike him with their wings, but usually cannot harm him seriously, though their annoyance shakes the nerves.

The murre or auk, which is a large but cowardly bird, when despoiled of its eggs will fly screaming away, and will make no attempt to wreak vengeance upon the despoiler. Not so the gull. This oleaginous lover of the briny deep will attack the gatherer and fly at and strike him with its wings.

Only the eggs of the gull and murre are gathered, as they are the only kind that are in the least edible. The murre is a bird of the great auk family, and in more northern latitudes is known as the penguin and puffin. It is of about the size of a goose and has a long, curved bill. Its eye has a stupid look, like that of the goose, and its plumage is of a dark-brown color. It is quite numerous in these waters. Its egg is larger than that of a turkey, and by some people it is considered a great delicacy. The egg is oval in shape, of various colors, and has longitudinal black stripes. One lady informed the writer that murre eggs fried and washed down with whisky made a delicious dish. "They are a little strong," the lady said, "but the whisky will take away the strong taste." Doubtless that lady was blessed with an ostrich-like stomach. The eggs are mostly used by the bakers in the composition of their bread, pies, and pastry. As they are much cheaper than domestic fowl eggs it can readily be perceived why they are used. The eggs of the gull are somewhat larger than a duck egg, and are of a brownish hue, spotted, and oval in shape. They also are a trifle strong.

When the gatherer goes out on a gathering expedition he puts on gum boots so as to prevent himself from slipping on the steep rocks, and ties a gunny-sack around the upper portion of his body. Holes are made in the end of the sack to admit of the arms being thrust through them, and the mouth of the sack is fastened around his waist by a cord. The mouth is left very wide and serves as a pouch, for there the eggs are placed after they have been gathered. After the pouch-like aperture around the waist has been filled with the eggs the gatherer goes to the depositing place agreed upon and dumps them upon the rock. As the shells are hard they are not easily broken. He then returns for more. After a sufficient quantity has been gathered the eggs are put in baskets and carried on board the boat.

When the boat arrives in the city the eggs are placed in large boxes and are thus sold to the wholesale produce merchants, who in turn sell them to the retail dealers and bakers. The eggs usually bring from 15 to 20 cents a dozen. Several thousand dozens of these eggs are usually brought to the market in one boatload.

The Cowhide.

The whipping post was abolished on the ground that it was a relic of barbarism which should not be tolerated in an enlightened age. And yet, after all, there has been no substitute found equal to it as a corrector of public morals. As an effective instrument of punishment the horsewhip has never had an equal. It is something to make the stoutest heart quail. Reckless criminals who could step upon the gallows without the sign of fear have been known to tremble as the aspen leaf when made to face the whipping post. Notwithstanding the whipping post has been abolished, it is some gratification to know that the horsewhip continues to exert a healthy influence over the morals of the community. Since men in their cowardice have forsworn the cowhide, it is to the credit of women that they have taken up the work where the men laid it down. A horsewhip in the hands of an outraged woman is the most effective, as it is the most appropriate, form of punishment that could be devised for certain grades of crime. It is also gratifying to observe that as a rule the women exercise rare discretion and judgment in the matter of its application. It wouldn't do to supply every virago with a cowhide and grant her the privilege to whale it into the people promiscuously every time she got out of temper. But when a woman is insulted by a stranger or mistreated by her husband then the cowhide comes into proper play. There can be no sublimer exhibition of moral heroism than when a nervy little woman takes upon herself the task of avenging some helpless sister's maltreatment by hunting up the brutal tyrant of a husband and warming his jacket for him. The man who mistreats a woman, and especially if that woman is his wife, deserves to have his back scarified. And as long as the men refuse to do justice in this matter the women are perfectly right in undertaking it themselves. It would be a good idea to organize a woman's horsewhiping society in every community. It would have a wonderful effect in regulating society, and particularly in securing the most happy domestic relations. Women have a great deal more use for the cowhide than they have for the ballot.—St. Paul Globe.

A Ludicrous Picture.

Carlyle draws a picture at once ludicrous and sad, of a body of peaceful English peasants who are disciplined and drilled and dressed in red and sent away to Spain, and there placed opposite to an equal number of French peasants, also in uniform and with guns in their hands. At the word of command, both parties fire, and thirty men on either side fall dead; and in the place of sixty brisk, useful craftsmen, the world has sixty dead carcasses, which it must bury and anew shed tears for. Had these men any quarrel? Busy as the devil is, not the smallest! They lived far enough apart, were the entirest strangers; nay, in so wide a universe there was even unconsciously by commerce some mutual helpfulness between them. How then? Simpleton! Their Governors had fallen out; and instead of shooting one another, had the cunning to make these poor blockheads shoot. Is not this, in a nutshell, the history of half the wars the world has seen? The Governors have quarreled, and the people have been made to believe the quarrel was their own; and is there not the strongest reason for supposing that as education spreads, as Governments become more truly representative of the people whom they govern, and as the people come to understand more truly their real interests, wars of this kind at least, into which kings lead their subjects blindfolded, will no more be heard of.—Home Journal.

The Devil-Worshipers.

Not far from Mosul in Mesopotamia there are a few Kurdish villages where one finds neither mosque nor minaret, synagog nor medrash, church nor meeting house. Moslems—saving an occasional Government official—are rarely seen there, travelers not at all. Ordinarily, says a writer in St. James' Gazette, there is nothing in the appearance of these places or the people to attract the attention of wayfarers, apart from the white dresses of the women and the vests of the men. But one day in the year the village assumes quite a holiday aspect in preparation for a strange ceremony annually enacted there. The houses are plentifully decked with garlands of yellow flowers, and the people take up positions outside—the women in spotless gowns, the men with a twisted black cord around their necks. Then a procession of some thirty persons emerges from the residence of the "pir" or priest and begins slowly to perambulate the village. In front march half a dozen weird-looking personages in long black robes and strange black headgear; then comes half a score of "kawals," in yellow mantles and white turbans, chanting religious hymns in an outlandish tongue, and behind them as many more playing an accompaniment to the singers on reedy flutes and tambourines. Following these is the white-robed priest, bearing upon his shoulders a kind of epaulet, and holding aloft the bronze figure of a bird, guarded on either side by a fierce-looking Kurd, with a perfect arsenal of small arms about his person. In the rear rides the white turbaned sheik of the district, with a second batch of "black heads" to wind up the procession. The party makes the round of the village, the people raising their hands toward the brazen bird as it passes, and then halts in front of the priest's house. Here a sheep is in readiness: it is cut open and the heart is torn from it and thrown down at the feet of the black-robed figures. The procession then re-enters the dwelling, while the sheep is made ready for the pot; and in honor of the day the residents afterward dine together as soon as their "stew" is ready. These Kurdish villagers are the "Yezidis," or "devil-worshipers" of Mesopotamia, and their annual procession—known as the "showing of the king bird," the melik taous or "peacock king"—is the only ceremonial of their mystic cult. The devil-worshipers accept no proselytes. "A Yezidi," they say, "must be born a Yezidi; he cannot be made." They have no ceremonial ablutions or attach no importance to them, and are allowed to use nothing colored blue. They will not sit down on a sofa having a blue tassel or enter a room containing an article of furniture covered with blue cloth. Their religion prohibits them from serving as soldiers, though there appears to be nothing to prevent them from cutting throats on their own account. They baptize boys and girls, and when old enough every member has to make choice of a sister or brother who is to be his or her companion for eternity.

Advice for the Minister.

A young man who recently graduated from an Eastern theological school went out to Murray, in the Cœur d' Alene country, to take charge of a church. The largest gambling hall in the town was cleared for his accommodation the first Sunday, one table on which Spanish monte was usually dealt being left for him to stand behind. A large stock register book was laid on this, which was supposed to represent a Bible. The whole town turned out and the young divine preached a powerful sermon. In it he strongly denounced gambling, horse-racing, drinking and profanity. That afternoon he was called on by a committee of leading citizens, one of whom said:

"Pardner, thar's a little matter we'd like to talk over with ye. I reckon it's all O. K. that you an' me should speak o' some matters as we're a good deal in the same line o'work, as I might say—both o' us trying to better the community."

"Indeed, do I see a minister of the gospel before me?"

"I reckon not, capt'n, 'less these's one uv 'em sneakin' up behind me—which aint prob'ble as I may say. Wot I meant was that I am the chairman uv the vigilance committee."

"Is it possible?"

"Mighty poss'ble, capt'n, the cussedest poss'ble thing ye ever seed. Wot we come here to say is that we don't approve o' yer prechin'."

"I am very sorry that such is the case, but I can't see how I can change it."

"Can't, hey? Well, I reckon ye'll hev to. Yo've got 'er let up on hollerin' agin gamblin' an' hoss-racin', an' swearin', an' licker. Them things air all 'lowable here, an' air highly recommended by the leadin' citizens, an' the clergy has got 'er fall inter line. As a committee we moseyed up here to warn ye, an' 'taint our style to warn more'n once."

"But my dear sir, what can I preach against—I must denounce something?"

"What can ye preach agin? Well, I swar! Haint there wickedness 'nough in this country 'thout goin' outer yer way ter jump onter sich things? Preach agin hoss-stealin an' jumpin' mineral claims, uv course. Rip 'em up the back an' tramp on 'em! Then there's original sin—tech that up once in a while. Jes' confine yerself to these things an' the boys will jes' crowd in to cheer ye every time ye make a good p'int."—Dakota Bell.

A Sand Cloud.

A resident of Americus, Ga., says: "The other evening I saw a curiosity in the shape of a sand cloud. It appeared to be about 500 feet high, and looked like an inverted funnel. The base seemed to be about forty or fifty yards wide, and its apex extended to a point some 500 feet high. It was whirling with frightful rapidity, and went straight up out of sight. It roared like a train of cars, which I thought it was until I saw the cloud. It was about two miles and a half northwest of Americus.—Chicago Times.

IT has been observed in Ottawa, Canada, that the introduction of the electric light in street illumination has facilitated the collection of entomological specimens, particularly of rare species, as insects of all kinds are attracted to the lamps in large numbers.

GREEDY TURKISH FIREMEN.

They Only Go to a Burning Building to Make Money Out of It.

Not infrequently we are startled by the report from a cannon, for this is the method of spreading the news of a fire, says a correspondent who writes from Constantinople to the San Francisco Chronicle. It is sounded several times from across the water, the lookout giving the signal from the height of Galata tower, so it is heard all up and down the Bosporus. The location of the fire is then telegraphed to each village. It is not long before we hear, far in the distance, a prolonged dismal call, and we then know that the watchman is coming to tell all along his way the place of conflagration. This can do no good except to satisfy the curiosity, for were the owner of the burning building here and the fire in Pera he could not get to it till daylight, and all night his thoughts would be on the probable damage done. That, too, is likely to be great on account of the character of the firemen. There are attempts at organized companies, but all consist of the water-carriers, not such as carry the cool, sweet water for passengers, but those using leather bags or bottles to supply houses. When an alarm is given these all run with their sacks, or wait to fill them at the fountain first, and then sit down and bargain with the owners, and will not put a drop of water on the flames until they have him agree to the price they wish for their services. They can do little good, however, for they use only a hand-pump that, of course, cannot throw the stream very far nor with much force. The building is almost sure to burn to the ground, and were it not for the frequent stone and brick walls much damage would be done. The firemen, as well as many others, intend to make as much as possible at this time, and, on the pretence of saving furniture and other articles, they enter the house and carry off all they can, feeling that it belongs to them, as they have taken it from a burning building. All houses in danger of catching are thus entered also, and it takes the most vigilant of watching to prevent the loss of everything. This causes much more annoyance than the fire, for while the latter can be put out the former are demonstrative.

The watchman who tells us of the fire is called the beckgee. His "Yon gor var!" (there is a conflagration) we have learned to understand, but all the remainder of his speech is a rapid running together of words that none but practiced ears can interpret. His other duty is to pass through the village several times every night and on his way pound the stones with his iron-ferruled stick. This tells the people that he is on watch while they sleep, but it also tells the knave to hide himself or delay his mischief until the watchman shall have passed. His signal surely bodes more of evil than of good, and were he to meet some night wanderer I fear he would be the first to flee. For one evening, curious to see him and his pounding instrument, three of us went out to meet him. When he saw us he stood still, as if greatly frightened, and when we called him it was some little time before he ventured to draw near.

Earning Their Salt.

Excitement is an anesthetic almost as efficient as chloroform itself. Let a fighting school-boy only be angry enough, and he will scarcely feel the heaviest blow which his adversary gives him; and we have all read of men who have been dreadfully mangled, at a fire, for example, or in battle, without being at all aware of it. What is true of men is true also of the lower animals. Here, for instance, is a description of the process of "salting" mules in South America:

At length we reached the first rendezvous, where about three hundred wild mules were already assembled, waiting for the distribution of the much-prized salt. They were collected in groups of ten or a dozen, each group being presided over by a mare, who seemed to have trouble enough with her unruly followers.

In order to keep up her dignity and a proper respect for her chieftainship, she allowed no mule to approach within the radius commanded by her teeth or heels, laying down her ears and lashing out in all directions whenever they showed any inclination to press too closely upon her.

It was curious to observe that the mules never attempted to bite or kick their foster-mother in return for her rough treatment of them. Amongst themselves, however, there was no such kindly feeling, but each seemed to hate the other with mortal spite, and frequent and loud-sounding were the blows of jealous heels on unwary ribs.

When all was ready, the salt bags were opened, and the contents distributed upon the ground in several small heaps at sufficient distances apart.

When the battle began, all respect, even toward the foster-parent, was forgotten in the intense eagerness of each animal to reach the salt. The law of the strongest and most courageous was paramount in the wild medley that ensued.

Now one mule, with ears laid well back and mouth wide open, would charge into the excited throng, and lash out with tremendous force, fury, and rapidity, clearing a complete ring for one brief moment, during which it would have the salt-heap all to itself.

Another mule, rendered frantic by the sight of the salt disappearing, would charge into the circle, and a savage duel would commence, during which other animals would slip in, and meeting each other, all would again become an indescribable scene of fighting and tumult.

The blows given and taken were frightful to witness, yet, as far as I could see, no animal exhibited any sign of pain, but again and again each would return furiously to the charge.

I recalled my own recent experience in mule-driving, and no longer wondered at the slight impression made by my heavy hunting crop. Compared with the punishment which these animals voluntarily endured for a single lick of salt, such blows as mine had been but touches of a rat's tail.

The Creation of Man.

Not long ago a bright little girl in the Sunday-school, who had reached the bottom facts of the lesson—the creation of man out of the dust of the earth—came running home to her mother overfull of confidence in the Scripture theory and her own reflective conclusions, and exclaimed:

"Oh, mother, I know it's all true what the catechism said about Adam being made out of the dust of the earth—I know it is."

"Why?"

"Because I saw Aunt Emma whip Gracie, and I saw the dust fly out of her. I know it is so!"

Little Gracie had been playing with the ashes.—Texas Siftings.

They Rush for It.

It is said the women swarm after Mozie Nerve Food with a perfect furor. It is known to be customary for young men to use a mug of it to antidote the effects of a debauch, which it does within an hour so effectually, there is nothing felt after to remind them that they have taken one. Some of our most eminent physicians say it is the only nerve food of any account, as all others are actually only until stimulants, and soon lose their effects, while this does not, more than common to all. It has been but thirteen months on the market, and the druggists say its sale is the most extraordinary ever known.

Bishop Fowler's Excellent Stories.

"Never say anything against the man who is to come after you," said Bishop C. H. Fowler when dismissing a conference. "A minister who didn't bear this in mind was asked by his parishioners what kind of a man his successor was.

"'O, Brother —— is a good man, but— —'

"'But what? If there's anything wrong, that is just what we want to know. Now tell us what's the matter.'

"'Well, Brother —— is a good man, but the fact is, brethren, he parts his hair in the middle.'

"'We won't have him. We don't want a dude. Conference mustn't send him.'

"The appointed Sunday arrived and with it the dude minister. As he walked up the aisle a broad grin overspread the faces in the rear seats. By the time he reached the pulpit the congregation broke out into a roar of laughter. The minister was bald.

"And don't keep telling about your last appointment," continued the Bishop. "I knew a minister who was always telling how the people treated him at Brownsville. It was Brownsville here and Brownsville there—everything was Brownsville. This went on until everybody got thoroughly tired of hearing of Brownsville. One night a good old lady arose in the weekly prayer-meeting in her testimony. She was a dear, good soul—one of the saints on earth. She said she had had a hard week. 'My soul,' she said, 'has been greatly depressed all week. I find my faith very weak and my hope is very dim. I can no longer see my way to reaching heaven. I may hold out till I get to Brownsville, but I can't go a step farther.'

"There was no more heard of Brownsville in that charge after that," said Bishop Fowler.—New York Sun.

Heroes and Heroines.

There are few who endure bodily troubles without complaint. Did you ever meet among the heroes or heroines of your acquaintance—if any such there have been—one with a yellowish cast of countenance, and that jaundiced aspect generally which the most unpracticed eye recognizes as the product of a disordered liver, who did not complain, and peevishly, too, of the soreness of the recalcitrant organ, of pains beneath the right shoulder blade, of dyspeptic symptoms, constipation and headache? Of course you never did, and of course the individual was not using Hostetter's Stomach Bitters or he would not so have looked—so have complained. To purify the blood when contaminated with bile, and conduct the secretion to its proper channel, to re-establish the regularity of the bowels, banish bilious headache, and remove impediment to complete digestion, nothing can approach in efficacy this peerless alterative and tonic. Malarial complaints, always involving the liver and kidney and bladder inactivity, are remedied by it. It is a capital appetizer.

Fencing Again Fashionable.

Fencing is coming into fashion again. It was quite popular once, in the decade just before the civil war, when it appears to have been introduced by Americans who had been abroad, and more particularly by students who had passed a course of the German universities. It was encouraged also by broken down foreign military officers who came to this country for a living and made a business of teaching it. Curiously enough the war put a stop to it, military pastime though it was. The American soldiers' idea ran to the musket and rifle as weapons, rather than the sword or saber. Even the cavalry of our service were virtually mounted infantry. After the war young men took to the rifle gallery and a great many of the jeunesse doree became experts with the pistol and could pink the ace of spades at a distance of thirty feet. Young Belmont, it will be remembered, fell a victim to his fondness for pistol practice, and accidentally killed himself in the basement of his father's house one night, whither he had repaired to take a few shots before retiring to sleep. The international matches at Dollymount and Creedmoor gave a strong incentive to rifle practice, and the amusement became national in its popularity. It would be interesting to determine what has brought about the revival of fencing.

MR. FRANK L. COX, foreman Herald and Times, Gouverneur, N. Y., writes: "I sprained my ankle very badly and suffered intense pain. One bottle of St. Jacobs Oil cured the sprains and reduced the swelling."

Senator Foote's Wig.

John P. Hale was a most incorrigible wag, and he delighted in making Senator Foote, of Mississippi, who in an unguarded moment had threatened to hang him as an Abolitionist, a butt for his jokes. One day, after a visit to New York, Senator Foote came smilingly in and took his seat at his desk, rather astonishing the other Senators, as his previously bald pate was covered by a fine, curly, black wig. Up rose Mr. Hale and demanded a special committee to examine the credentials "of the youthful upstart who had assumed Senator Foote's likeness and chair." Senator Foote rose up, and, bowing politely, convulsed the Senate by quickly removing the wig and hanging it on his umbrella with the observation, "With this motion on my part, which is quite in order, despite my illustrious colleague's, the committee is not necessary." There was a round of applause.—Ben: Perley Poore.

GEN. G. C. KNIFFEN, War Department, Washington, D. C., after two years, says: "My wife has not had an attack for two years. I trust St. Jacobs Oil will reach the uttermost parts of the earth and do as much good in every house as it has in mine."

Two Sorts of Mind.

Mr. Several Stars has a very clever little daughter of whom he is correspondingly proud. She spoke up to him the other day in a philosophical manner worthy of a true Athenian maiden. The father went home from his office very much preoccupied with a matter of some importance which had come before him during the day, and at dinner paid very little attention to the buzz of family conversation about him. His daughter, who is not yet in her teens, asked him several questions, to which he replied somewhat mechanically and in a manner which plainly showed that his thoughts were elsewhere. After a time the little lady put down her knife and fork and read her father the following suggestive lesson:

"Papa," she said, "you have an office mind and a home mind, and you must not try to make your office mind do the work of your other mind."—Boston Record.

Over-Worked Women.

For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, seamstresses, house-keepers, and over-worked women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "Cure-all," but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most potent Specific for all those Chronic Weaknesses and Diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful, general as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. It promptly cures weakness of stomach, bloating, weak back, nervous prostration, debility and sleeplessness, in either sex. Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists under our positive guarantee. See wrapper around bottle. Price $1 a bottle, or six bottles for $5.

A large treatise on Diseases of Women, profusely illustrated with colored plates and numerous wood-cuts, sent for ten cents in stamps.

Address, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, 663 Main street, Buffalo, N. Y.

THERE are plenty of recipes for making lobster salad, but we don't know of any for preventing it from giving you the nightmare.—Texas Siftings.

SICK and bilious headache cured by Dr. Pierce's "Pellets."

"WHEN you're down my way, drop in," remarked the well water to the "old oaken bucket."—Cedar Rapids Gossip.

To Be Absolutely Certain

Of most things is difficult, but if the united testimony of people in every walk of life, for more than a quarter of a century, be good evidence, then dyspepsia, loss of appetite, headache, wakefulness and debilitation, from whatever cause, may be cured by Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic.

CHAPPED hands, face pimples, and rough skin cured by using Juniper's Tar Soap, made by Hazard, Hazard & Co., New York.

GET Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners applied to your new boots and shoes before you wear them out.

IF afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

THE Frazer Axle Grease is the very best. A trial will prove we are right.

Boils and Pimples

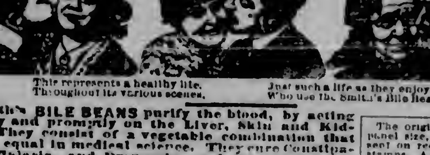
And other affections arising from impure blood may appear at this season, when the blood is heated. Hood's Sarsaparilla removes the cause of these troubles by purifying, vitalizing, and enriching the blood, and at the same time it gives tone and strength to the whole system, and makes one feel "like a new man."

"I know Hood's Sarsaparilla to be good by the trial I gave it for eruptions on my face. I had a hard time to purify my blood, but succeeded at last with Hood's Sarsaparilla."—HARRY G. PARR, Champaign, Ill.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar.



This represents a healthy life. Throughout its various scenes. Just such a life as they enjoy Who use the Smith's Bile Beans.

Smith's BILE BEANS purify the blood, by acting directly and promptly on the Liver, Skin and Kidneys. They consist of a vegetable combination that has no equal in medical science. They cure Constipation, Malaria, and Dyspepsia, and are a safeguard against all forms of fevers, chills and fever, gall stones, [illegible]

The original Photograph, panel size, of this picture sent on receipt of 10c. in stamps. Address, BILE BEANS, [illegible]

[illegible] & CO., Proprietors, ST. LOUIS, MO.

* * * * A disease of so delicate a nature as stricture of the urethra should only be intrusted to those of large experience and skill. By our improved methods we have been enabled to speedily and permanently cure hundreds of the worst cases. Pamphlets, references and terms, 10 cents in stamps. World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main street, Buffalo, N. Y.

TEXAS has a paper called the Ice Berg. It is gradually creeping into notice.

3 months' treatment for 50c. Piso's Remedy for Catarrh. Sold by druggists.

PENSIONS Send for Pension Laws to U. S. Claim Agents FITZGERALD & POWELL, Indianapolis, Ind.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50, FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Write Brewster Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

MENTION THIS PAPER when writing to advertisers.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Dr. J. Stephens, Lebanon, Ohio.

AGENTS WANTED FOR CAMP FIRE CHATS OF THE CIVIL WAR. The most interesting book of the age. Selling like hot cakes. For terms and circulars address SIDNEY T. MILLER & CO., Chicago, Ill.

MENTION THIS PAPER when writing to advertisers.

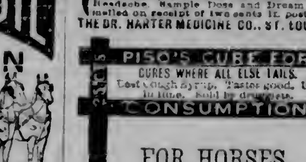
ADVERTISERS or others, who wish to examine this paper, or obtain estimates on advertising space when in Chicago, will find it on file at 45 to 49 Randolph St., the Advertising Agency of LORD & THOMAS.

NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC Boston, Mass.

THE LARGEST and BEST EQUIPPED in the WORLD—100 Instructors, 2186 Students last year. Thorough Instruction in Vocal and Instrumental Music, Piano and Organ Tuning, Fine Arts, Oratory, Literature, French, German, and Italian Languages, English Branches, Gymnastics, etc. Tuition, $5 to $25; board and room with Steam Heat and Electric Light, $4.00 to $7.50 per week. Fall Term begins Sept. 8, 1887. For Illustrated Calendar, with full information, address E. TOURJEE, Dir., Franklin Sq., BOSTON, Mass.

MENTION THIS PAPER when writing to advertisers.

WIZARD OIL FOR PAIN



Cures Neuralgia, Toothache, Headache, Catarrh, Croup, Sore Throat, RHEUMATISM, Lame Back, Stiff Joints, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Wounds, Old Sores and All Aches and Pains.

The many testimonials received by us more than prove all we claim for this valuable remedy. It not only relieves the most severe pains, but It Cures You. That's the Idea! Sold by Druggists. 50 cts. SONG BOOK mailed free. Address WIZARD OIL COMPANY CHICAGO.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES. Sure relief ASTHMA. Price 35 cts. by mail. Stowell & Co. Charlestown, Mass.

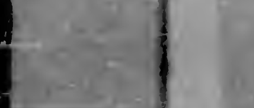
MENTION THIS PAPER when writing to advertisers.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for TANSILL'S PUNCH 5¢

A Boston drummer says that this lot of your "Tansill's Punch" is only a half, and that I can sell no more [illegible]

Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

MENTION THIS PAPER when writing to advertisers.



MARLIN REPEATING RIFLE BEST IN THE WORLD!

Guaranteed perfectly accurate and absolutely safe. Made in all sizes for large or small game.

BALLARD Gallery, Hunting and Target Rifles. Send for Illustrated Catalogue. Marlin Fire Arms Co., New Haven, Conn.

MENTION THIS PAPER when writing to advertisers.

HARTER'S THE ONLY TRUE IRON TONIC

Will purify the BLOOD, regulate the LIVER and KIDNEYS and Restore the HEALTH and VIGOR of YOUTH. Dyspepsia, Want of Appetite, Indigestion, Lack of Strength and Tired Feeling absolutely cured: Bones, muscles and nerves receive new force. Enlivens the mind and supplies Brain Power.

LADIES Suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex will find in DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC a safe, speedy cure. Gives a clear, healthy complexion. All attempts at counterfeiting only adds to its popularity. Do not experiment—get ORIGINAL AND BEST.

Dr. HARTER'S LIVER PILLS Cure Constipation, Liver Complaint and Sick Headache. Sample Dose and Dream Book mailed on receipt of two cents in postage.

THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

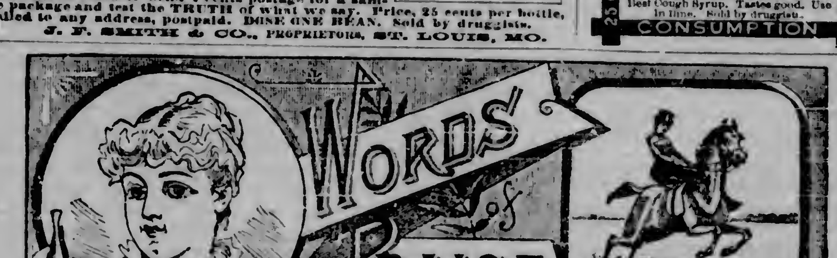
FOR HORSES.

UVILLA, W. Va.,
Nov. 17, 1886.

Recently I bought a young horse. He was taken very ill with Pneumonia. I tried to think of something to relieve him. Concluded what was good for man would be good for the horse. So I got a bottle of Piso's Cure and gave him half of it through the nostrils. This helped him, and I continued giving same doses night and morning until I had used two bottles. The horse has become perfectly sound. I can recommend Piso's Cure for the horse as well as for man.

N. S. J. STRIDER.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION



The following words, in praise of DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION as a remedy for those delicate diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women, must be of interest to every sufferer from such maladies. They are fair samples of the spontaneous expressions with which thousands give utterance to their sense of gratitude for the inestimable boon of health which has been restored to them by the use of this world-famed medicine.

$100 THROWN AWAY. JOHN E. SEGAR, of Millenbeck, Va., writes: "My wife had been suffering for two or three years with female weakness, and had paid out one hundred dollars to physicians without relief. She took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it did her more good than all the medicine given to her by the physicians during the three years they had been practicing upon her."

THREW AWAY HER SUPPORTER. Mrs. SOPHIA F. BOSWELL, White Cottage, O., writes: "I took eleven bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and one bottle of your 'Pellets.' I am doing my work, and have been for some time. I have had to employ help for about sixteen years before I commenced taking your medicine. I have had to wear a supporter most of the time; this I have laid aside, and feel as well as I ever did."

THE GREATEST EARTHLY BOON. Mrs. GEORGE HERGER, of Westfield, N. Y., writes: "I was a great sufferer from leucorrhea, bearing-down pains, and pain continually across my back. Three bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' restored me to perfect health. I treated with Dr. ——, for nine months, without receiving any benefit. The 'Favorite Prescription' is the greatest earthly boon to us poor suffering women."

IT WORKS WONDERS. Mrs. MAY GLEASON, of Nunica, Ottawa Co., Mich., writes: "Your 'Favorite Prescription' has worked wonders in my case."

Again she writes: "Having taken several bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' I have regained my health wonderfully, to the astonishment of myself and friends. I can now be on my feet all day, attending to the duties of my household."

TREATING THE WRONG DISEASE.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion or prostration, another with pain here or there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent, or over-busy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, assuming them to be such, when, in reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some womb disorder. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages his practice until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine, like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery.

3 PHYSICIANS FAILED. Mrs. E. F. MORGAN, of No. 71 Lexington St., East Boston, Mass., says: "Five years ago I was a dreadful sufferer from uterine troubles. Having exhausted the skill of three physicians, I was completely discouraged, and so weak I could with difficulty cross the room alone. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and using the local treatment recommended in his 'Common Sense Medical Adviser.' I commenced to improve at once. In three months I was perfectly cured, and have had no trouble since. I wrote a letter to my family paper, briefly mentioning how my health had been restored, and offering to send the full particulars to any one writing me for them, and enclosing a stamped envelope for reply. I have received over four hundred letters. In reply, I have described my case and the treatment used, and have earnestly advised them to 'do likewise.' From a great many I have received second letters of thanks, stating that they had commenced the use of 'Favorite Prescription,' had sent the $1.50 required for the 'Medical Adviser,' and had applied the local treatment so fully and plainly laid down therein, and were much better already."

JEALOUS DOCTORS. A Marvelous Cure.—Mrs. G. F. SPRAGUE, of Crystal, Mich., writes: "I was troubled with female weakness, leucorrhea and falling of the womb for seven years, so I had to keep my bed for a good part of the time. I doctored with an army of different physicians, and spent large sums of money, but received no lasting benefit. At last my husband persuaded me to try your medicines, which I was loath to do, because I was prejudiced against them, and the doctors said they would do me no good. I finally told my husband that if he would get me some of your medicines, I would try them against the advice of my physician. He got me six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription,' also six bottles of the 'Discovery,' for ten dollars. I took three bottles of 'Discovery' and four of 'Favorite Prescription,' and I have been a sound woman for four years. I then gave the balance of the medicine to my sister, who was troubled in the same way, and she cured herself in a short time. I have not had to take any medicine now for almost four years."

THE OUTGROWTH OF A VAST EXPERIENCE.

The treatment of many thousands of cases of those chronic weaknesses and distressing ailments peculiar to females, at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has afforded a vast experience in nicely adapting and thoroughly testing remedies for the cure of woman's peculiar maladies.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the outgrowth, or result, of this great and valuable experience. Thousands of testimonials, received from patients and from physicians who have tested it in the more aggravated and obstinate cases which had baffled their skill, prove it to be the most wonderful remedy ever devised for the relief and cure of suffering women. It is not recommended as a "cure-all," but as a most perfect Specific for woman's peculiar ailments.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic, it imparts strength to the whole system, and to the uterus, or womb and its appendages, in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic. It promotes digestion and assimilation of food, cures nausea, weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating and eructations of gas.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system.

"Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhea, or "whites," excessive flowing at monthly periods, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, accompanied with "internal heat."

In pregnancy, "Favorite Prescription" is a "mother's cordial," relieving nausea, weakness of stomach and other distressing symptoms common to that condition. If its use is kept up in the latter months of gestation, it so prepares the system for delivery as to greatly lessen, and many times almost entirely do away with the sufferings of that trying ordeal.

"Favorite Prescription," when taken in connection with the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and small laxative doses of Dr. Pierce's Purgative Pellets (Little Liver Pills), cures Liver, Kidney and Bladder diseases. Their combined use also removes blood taints, and abolishes cancerous and scrofulous humors from the system.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women sold, by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years. Large bottles (100 doses) $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's large, illustrated Treatise (160 pages) on Diseases of Women.

Address, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, No. 663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times."

Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

PATENTS R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Instructions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 17 years' experience.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

C. N. U. No. 30—87

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

CHARLEVOIX, AUG. 3, 1887.

Miss Anna Dickinson will not be able to leave her room for some weeks. She will spend next winter in the south of France. Her illness is the result of overwork, and it will be long before she can hope to do anything.

Among the gushing names of recently manufactured novels are such as "Houp-La," "Us," "For Mamie's Sake," "Wee Wifee," etc. They are very good names, too, for the kind of literary trash to which they are attached.

It is reported that Adam Forepaugh, the veteran showman, has discontinued the use of lithographs, and will expend $75 a day additional in newspaper advertising. Mr. Forepaugh knows what he is doing as well as any other man.

The president says he will not go to St. Louis to meet the G. A. R. boys because he fears the dignity of his position will receive insult. Lincoln, Grant, Hayes, Garfield would never have feared insult or indignity at the hands of the G. A. R., nor would the dignity of the position of president been in danger through them.

The booming of pet candidates for the presidency increases, and each favorite is show by his backers to be able to make decidedly the best running. The chances are the next president is somewhere quietly going about his business day by day, and that his name is never mentioned as a possible candidate.

Some of the croakers against local option have been telling us all along that Georgia is the banner temperance State in the Union. Georgia's prohibition of the liquor traffic has been secured entirely through local option by counties. And no one will deny the fact that it has worked well; much better than constitutional prohibition has, even in Maine.

Sounds like a dispatch to the Free Press: "President Cleveland, while out walking to-day, found a pin on the sidewalk which he immediately picked up and stuck on his vest between the first and second buttons from the top." Free Press editorial comment on this "notable incident:" "This shows that he is a man of the people and explains why he is the most popular President the country has had since the days of Lincoln."

Presidential possibilities: Blaine and Lincoln; Blaine and Harrison; Blaine and Alger; Sherman and Hawley; Sherman and Woodford; Sherman and Wise; Lincoln and Hawley; Lincoln and Wise; Lincoln and Woodford; Hawley and Harrison; Hawley and Fairchild; Hawley and Wise; Allison and Hawley; Depew and Lincoln; Depew and Harrison; "Phil" Sheridan and Fairchild; "Phil" Sheridan and Depew; "Phil" Sheridan and Harrison. Three cheers for all them!

The Rev. Dr. Edward McGlynn, of New York, has finally been officially advised of his excommunication from the Catholic Church for participating in politics. An immense demonstration a few evenings since in New York in honor of the position taken by Dr. McGlynn was the result, and from the tenor of the speeches, it may be set down that the American Catholic is determined that the Pope of Rome will be second to America, and her free institutions, and not first, as the Pope has endeavored to have it.

It is rumored that the Papal authority at Rome is exceedingly anxious to have an accredited representative at Washington, and that advances have been cautiously made to those high in government position to ascertain what the feeling of the government is in the matter. If this is true, it is a movement that should be promptly sat down upon by the American Government. The Roman Catholic See is in no sense a temporal power like England, Germany, or the United States. It possesses a spiritual jurisdiction and that only.

The Atlanta Constitution (Dem.) says that after the election of 1888, "for the first time in thirty years the South will have a Democratic President." Great Cæsar! but this is hard on Grover. If he isn't a Democratic President, what is he? Of course he is not a Republican President; the Greenbackers won't own him; the Prohibitionists repudiate him as they would rat poison (though they did all they could to elect him): and the mugwumps—well, on second thought, the mugwumps can have him. Without the mugwump ballots he could never have been elected; and the party that elected a president ought to stand by him, even though all other parties repudiate him.

Now is the time to begin your work for local option.

Northern Michigan News.

Mr. Eph Small is succeeded as mate of the barge Gill by Capt. Thos. Baldwin, late of the City of Traverse.

Bishop Richter and Vicar General Rocher are in the northern part of the State attending to their pastoral duties.

H. Donnelly, of Northport, has taken all of his gill nets out of the water and will keep them out of the water for a month or so, as fishing is light.

Bear Lake is the coveted resort this season. Probably it is the excellent fishing that is drawing the elite from the southern part of the state.

Ex-Governor Alger has sailed for Europe. His family are quartered at "Plank's Grand" for the season, with his private stables for their use on the island.

Elk Rapids Progress: About $28,000 has been subscribed for the railroad.——The G. R. & I. will put a large steamer on the inland lakes to run in connection with their road.

A. W. Chew, of Hayes, captured a silver cup and napkin ring as prizes from Searle, the Petoskey jeweler, on guessing value of all the metals and the most valuable metal.

The changes made in the school laws by the Legislature are quite radical, and before September school officers should post themselves thoroughly or mistakes will be made.

The needed $30,000 for the Kalkaska and Elk Rapids branch of the G. R. & I. has been subscribed and the company expect to have the branch in running order by Nov. 1.

Thursday the steamer A. C. Van Raalte, which, since being condemned, has laid at the dock in Harbor Springs, was sold to Captain Snyder, of the Cummings, and his son, who was engineer on the Van Raalte. The purchase price was $2,750, just half what was paid for the steamer three years ago, and as her machinery is alone worth more than that amount, her new owners have secured a bargain. It is undecided just what will be done with the hull, but she will probably be rebuilt at once.

A lady lost her purse containing $98 in cash yesterday, and it was found and delivered to the owner by a little son of Joseph Marshall, of Harbor Springs. After counting the contents to satisfy herself they were untouched, the lady, remarking that such marked examples of honesty deserved fitting rewards, generously opened her heart and deposited in his outstretched palm a bright, new $5 gold piece? Oh, no! 'twas only a nickel.—Daily Resorter.

A party of berry pickers consisting of a man and wife and 14 year old son, camped out on the Whortleberry Plains, a few miles out from Vanderbilt, last week. Towards evening, the boy was despatched to the tent with a pail of berries, but as he failed to return, the parents became alarmed and returned to the tent, but found there no trace of their boy. On closer observation, they found unmistakable evidence that a bear had been in their tent, and their fears for the safety of their boy increased. Night coming on, they were compelled to abandon the search; but in the morning they found, but a few feet from their tent, the horribly mangled, and partially devoured body their son.

Ben Davis, the editor of the Elk Rapids Progress, which is a democratic paper of the bourbon variety, dashed with a streak of free trade lunacy, went north a week or two ago to collect material for some new fish lies and got Milt Newkirk to edit the Progress for a week. He did it. So anxious was he to do a thoroughly good job, that he threw out several columns of advertisements to make room for Republican editorials of the soundest sort. The readers of the Progress were the most astonished set of people in the Grand Traverse region when they read that paper. It is reported that Newkirk packed his grip and set out afoot for Mancelona the day before Ben Davis was expected home.—Record.

East Jordan Enterprise: An important business transaction took place here on Monday, viz: John Chamberlin selling his stock of general merchandise to D. C. Hurd, of Lansing, and F. E. Boosinger, of this place. Mr. Chamberlin has been an active business man here and his many friends will regret his departure. As to the new firm, all are well acquainted with Mr. Boosinger, who is a young man of fine business qualities, having been connected with Mr. Chamberlin over three years, leaving him when he was appointed postmaster in the spring of '86. Mr. Hurd is a business man of Lansing and also a partner in the firm of F. E. Boosinger & Co. in their shoe store here. We understand he will spend most of his time in Lansing. They will continue the business at the old stand, and the postoffice and shoe store will also be moved there. We wish the new firm the best of success, and also extend our best wishes to Mr. Chamberlin, who will locate at Lansing, his former home.

Hon. E. P. Allen, of Ypsilanti, Representative from the district, is at Bay View accompanied by his wife.

The Independent and Democrat have opened up on the local option law, and it is evident that when the temperance people make a move this fall they will fight on the saloon side of the fence.

Capt. Graham and the schooner Celia arrived at Northport last Saturday morning with nine large sailboats in tow. The boats had been attached at Beaver Harbor by Geo. A. Cutler, and were brought there to be sold.

The conclusion of negotiations by which the G. R. & I. railroad is to be extended to Elk Rapids, is an event of no small importance, not only to that town, but to the whole surrounding country. The magnificent water power afforded by the Elk River, with the series of lakes above it as a reservoir, furnishes unusual facilities for manufacturing, and now that the village is to have means of reaching the business world by railway, business men will not fail to discover and avail themselves of the opportunities offered. Antrim county is timbered with hard wood, and the soil is excellent. If there is not a remarkable development of wealth in Antrim county, and if Elk Rapids does not rival Traverse City in less than ten years, we shall have missed our guess.—Telegram Herald.

Mancelona Herald: The particulars in regard to Wm. Flanagin's death, so far as we have been able to ascertain, are as follows: He was in the lumber yards in Chicago, and while standing talking with some gentlemen, saw a train coming near; to escape it he ran around a pile of lumber and ran upon a train coming from an opposite direction, severing his head from the body, also cutting off one leg and an arm, and otherwise cutting and bruising him. His funeral did not occur until Wednesday, as they did not arrive at Atwood with the remains until that time. Rev. P. McClelland preached the funeral sermon to an immense audience, both indoors and out. The church was full to overflowing, and the yard for rods was full. Mr. McClelland stood upon the door step, that as many as possible might hear him. Some one who was present states that there were over ninety teams, and about six hundred people present.

East Jordan Enterprise: The trustees of the M. E. Church have taken the contract out of Mr. Barnes' hands and will finish the church themselves.——H. Halliday, former clerk of the Bridge Street House at Charlevoix, now takes that position at the Commercial and is making things lively thereabouts.——A compositor in this office took occasion to count the loads of bark that went by our office last Monday forenoon, and found there were twenty-six and it was no uncommon day. And then that was only what came on one of four roads that lead here.——The barge Hattie B. Perrue has been making some exceedingly good time of late. A week ago last Monday she loaded with hemlock lumber, made the trip to Chicago, and was back here again Friday morning and left Friday evening with a cargo of bark.——East Jordan's boat privileges are as good now as they were before the Cummings pulled off. The Clara Belle now leaves here every morning and runs to Charlevoix, from there to Boyne City, then back to Charlevoix and up here again in the evening. Every one is perfectly familiar with the Clara and comments are unnecessary, only that we might mention that Captain Jepson is an accommodating gentleman.

Kalkaska Leader: The Congregational church has made arrangements for the Rev. C. F. VanAuken to conduct a series of evangelistic services in September. ——— The Kalkaska base ball boys have a fine chance to show what they are made of in the next few days. They went north last night, and will be absent about a week. They are booked for games as follows: With Petoskey, Thursday and Friday; Harbor Springs, Saturday; Charlevoix, Monday; Mackinaw, Tuesday. However successful they may be with the skilled clubs with whom they will try titles, the boys will play for all they are worth, and probably bring back a scalp or two, at least.——Mr. A. K. Fairbanks, of Grand Traverse county, was a postmaster under one of the Democratic administrations before the war, and during the long line of Republican Presidents from Lincoln to Arthur, remained a Democrat from the ground up, and has been a prominent landmark of his party in a part of the world where Republicans have been largely in the ascendancy. Patience has its reward, however, and next week Mr. F. will step into the postoffice at Williamsburg, to which he has recently been appointed, and look after Uncle Sam's interests in that part of the world. Mr. Fairbank's is a successful farmer, one of the pioneers of this region, and will no doubt fill the position to which he has been appointed in a manner acceptable to its patrons, and we congratulate him upon his appointment.

Inter Ocean: Two of the most enterprising and longest-winded correspondents of the newspapers just now are President Grover Cleveland and ex-President Jefferson Davis. Each has a grievance.

Chancery Sale.

State of Michigan, in the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, David Carpenter complainant, vs August Stenburg defendant. In pursuance and by virtue of a decree in the above entitled cause bearing date May 26, 1887, I, the undersigned, a Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Charlevoix County, State of Michigan, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House, in the village of Boyne City, in said County of Charlevoix (that being the place of holding the court for said county), on Saturday, the 3rd day of September, at 12 o'clock noon of said day, the premises described in said decree, viz: The west half of the south east quarter of section 30 in township thirty three (33) north, range four west, Charlevoix County, State of Michigan.

WILL N. MOORE,
Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Charlevoix County, Michigan.
DART & CALL, Solicitors for Complainant.
Dated July 20, 1887.

TIME CARDS OF STEAMERS

STANDARD TIME.

Charlevoix and East Jordan.
STR. NORTH STAR, ...CAPT. MEL THOMPSON
Leaving Charlevoix at 6:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. and returning leave East Jordan for Charlevoix at 9:30 a. m. and 4 p. m., touching at intermediate points both ways.

Boyne City and Charlevoix.
STR. CLARA BELLE, ...CAPT. GEO. JEPSON.
Leave Boyne City at 6:30 a. m. and 1:00 p. m. and Charlevoix at 9:30 a. m., and 3 p. m. connecting with the Friant and Cummings to and from Petoskey. Touching at way ports.

Charlevoix and Boyne City.
STR. JOSEPH GORDON ....CAPT. LEWIS GUARD.
Leave Charlevoix at 6:30 a. m. and 1 p. m., and Boyne City at 9:30 a.m., 4 p. m., touching at way ports.

Harbor Springs, Charlevoix & E. Jordan.
STR. THOS. FRIANT, ...CAPT. R. VANDERHOEF.
MORNING: Leave Harbor Springs, 7:30; Petoskey, 8:00; Charlevoix, 9:30; arrive, East Jordan 11:30.
AFTERNOON: Leave East Jordan 1:30; Charlevoix, 4:00; Petoskey, 5:30; arrive, Harbor Springs, 6:00.

East Jordan, Charlevoix & Harbor Spgs.
LOU A. CUMMINGS, ...CAPT. W. A. SNYDER.
MORNING: Leave East Jordan 7 a. m.; Charlevoix, 9; Petoskey, 11; arrive at Harbor Springs 11:30.
AFTERNOON: Leave Harbor Springs, 1 p. m.; Petoskey, 1:30; Charlevoix, 3; arrive at East Jordan, 5:30 p. m.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN LINE.
PROP. LAWRENCE, ...Capt. Geo. Thorp.
Going North, Chicago, Fridays 8 p. m.; Charlevoix, Sundays 3 p. m.; Cheboygan, Mondays 9 a. m.
Going South, Cheboygan, Mondays 4 p. m.; Charlevoix, Tuesdays 8 a. m.; Milwaukee, Wednesdays 4 p. m.; Chicago, Thursdays 12 m.
Emrey Bros., agents, Charlevoix.

HANNAH, LAY & CO'S BOATS.
CITY OF GRAND RAPIDS, ...Capt. O. E. Wilbur.
Going North, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays: Leave Traverse City 7 a. m.; Northport 8:30; Charlevoix 11:30; Petoskey 1:30 p. m.; Harbor Springs 2; Cross Village 4:30; Mackinac Island 7:45 arriving at St. Ignace 8:20.
Going South, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays: Leave St. Ignace 6 a. m.; Mackinac Island 7; Cross Village 10:15; Harbor Springs 12:45 p. m.; Petoskey 1:15; Charlevoix 2:45; Northport 5:15 p. m., arriving at Traverse City at 7:15 p. m.
J. L. Hurd & Co., Agents, Charlevoix.

Bank of Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security
Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers
Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to speculate with ones own money, is folly; that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking
Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors; and, believing that it furnishes unusual guarantees, therefore,

This Bank Invites
People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will
Borrow Investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking
Productive employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes,
Now earning Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S
LIVERY STABLE
CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.
Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

Farming Lands

500,000 ACRES
Of Splendid
MICHIGAN LANDS
For Sale By The
G. R. & I. R. R.
50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.

These lands are timbered with beech and maple elm and other wood and are accessible to best markets

By Water and Rail

And are in a state unequalled for health, well watered and contiguous to the great fruit raising section of Michigan.
The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad runs through the center of the grant. The part of Michigan in which these lands are situated is

Not a Wilderness by any Means.

It contains a population of 250,000 souls and is rapidly filling up with settlers from almost every state in the Union.

Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold.

Send for English or German Pamphlet. Address
W. H. HUGHART, Commissioner,
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.

TITLE PERFECT.

Probate Order.

[illegible]

JAMES A. KENT, Judge of Probate.

Probate Order.

[illegible]

JAMES A. KENT, Judge of Probate.

Probate Notice.

[illegible]

JAMES A. KENT, Judge of Probate.

Sheriff Sale.

[illegible]

R. JERRUE, Sheriff.

Mortgage Sale.

[illegible]

DAVID CARPENTER, Assignee of said Mortgages.
DART & CALL, Attorneys for Mortgagee.

CHARLEVOIX Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Henry Bennett, John Nicholls, A. R. Upright, O. D. Wood, A. Buttars, A. Fox, F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL $25,000
SURPLUS 2,000

[illegible]

CORRESPONDENTS:
NATIONAL PARK BANK - - - NEW YORK.
COMMERCIAL NAT. - - - CHICAGO.
NAT. CITY BANK - - - GRAND RAPIDS
DETROIT NAT. BANK - - - DETROIT.

WAYNE COUNTY SAVINGS BANK
DETROIT, MICH.
$500,000 TO INVEST IN BONDS

[illegible]

D. ELWOOD, Treasurer.
May 27.

W. A. REYNARD,

Has just received at his Fruit Store in the Lewis Block, a choice line of

Vegetables and Fruits
OF ALL KINDS,
TO WHICH OTHERS WILL BE ADDED IN SEASON.

I will also keep in stock a full line of

Tobaccos and Cigars.
Butter and Eggs a Specialty.

Itch, Prairie Mange and Scratches of every kind cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Use no other. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix.

CROSS & SONS.,
Buy and Sell all kinds of
Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.
Charlevoix, - Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY,
Photographer.
In Bradbeer's Gallery.
Photographs of all sizes taken.
Old Pictures copied and enlarged.
CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

New JEWELRY AND SILVER WARE.
I have just received a very fine stock of
Watches, Chains, Pins, Clocks, Silver-Ware, etc
which I will sell at Prices lower than the same goods can be purchased outside.
Did it ever occur to you that by patronizing home Merchants you were benefiting yourselves?
All classes of Repairing done quickly.
C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,
ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR,
——ON——
Chalevoix Summer Resorts.
I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.
I employ only first-class workmen, both
Carpenters and Painters.
Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention
J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

Fox & Miller
Offer a
Mammoth Stock
OF
BOOTS, SHOES
and other
FOOT WEAR,
--AT--
LOWER PRICES
Than can be found elsewhere in the County.
We have just secured a
FIRST-CLASS
SHOEMAKER,
And will make Repairing a specialty.
We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.
NOTHING SHODDY.
Fox & Miller.

The Kalamazoo
"DAILY TELEGRAPH."
Contains the Associated Press Dispatches
Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.
Charlevoix, Mich.
Manufacturers of and Wholesale and Retail Dealer,
3 EXTRA GRADES OF
FLOUR
Feed, Corn Meal, Graham
We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

M. LITNEY. JOS. STEIMEL
Litney & Steimel
LIVERY,
And Feed Barn
Charlevoix, Mich.
Good Rigs at Lowest Rates.

It Pays to Buy the
BEST BOATS!
The large number of boats I have built for resorters, are advertisements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.
I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the
LEAST MONEY!
All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.
LEAVE ORDERS
with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.
Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.
J. BEAUVAIS.

BOOTS & SHOES
Have you seen our $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00 Gents Shoes?
If not do so at once. They are made solid throughout even to the counter. You'll have no trouble with these goods running over at the heel.
These goods cannot be equalled in the county
Either in style, quality or price. We will take pains this season to have in stock goods that will suit all. New ad. soon on Ladies' Fine Shoes of latest styles New York, Common Sense, and London Toes.

Ladies Look Out
For the new line of latest style goods that is on the road for
D. SHERWOOD & CO.

A. J. McLEOD,
Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at Wholesale or Retail
All kinds of
FRESH MEATS,
SALT PORK,
SMOKED & SALTED
HAMS,
Dried and Smoked
BACON, DRIED BEEF,
Bologna, Head Cheese,
Sausage.
Highest Prices Paid
FOR HIDES and PELTS.
Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.
A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S
MARKET
Is supplied with
All Kinds Of
MEATS
At Lowest Prices.
CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.
Corner of State & Mason sts.,
JOHN McCABE.

Washburn & Ackert,
FOUNDREYMEN,
MACHINISTS,
And Manufacturer of The
Charlevoix Plow.

Take The Sentinel.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GREER, Attorneys at Law. Office in Buttars' Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PAILTHORP & GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office at residence, Main st. Charlevoix. Office hours 8 to 10 a m; 6 to 8 p m

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 119, meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

MASONIC.—Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Post-office.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake Lodge No. 290, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

K. O. T. M.—Resort Tent No. 138, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' Hall.

I. O. L.—True Blues No. 157, meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. 104, R. A. M. meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 136, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of the members, during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.

President—Byron See.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller.
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strang.
Financial Secretary—B. Saffield.
Treasurer—Albert E. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. D. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. Lee Iddings, W. A. Brown and D. Y. Cook.
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, M. J. Stockman, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, R. W. Miller, S. M. See, W. C. Newman, E. M. Clark, H. Berdan.

All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequalled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the traveling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids Stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,
Lorenzo Cook, Manager
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only 100 feet to Steamboat Landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE.
W. C. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - Mich.
Fitted up with a view to the Comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central Location.

PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and Dock work solicited at any point between Traverse City and Mackinaw. L. E. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. B. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. [Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.]

DENTIST

N. J. PERRY, Dentist, Office in Wood's Drug Store, Charlevoix, Mich.

Land for Sale.

I have 5 acres just east of the cemetery, one mile from town, nearly all cleared, which I will sell cheap for cash, or approved paper. Address
JAMES METCALF, Charlevoix.

For Sale,

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix.

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R.

"Mackinac Short Line."

Only direct line between the east and south and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Going West read down		Stations	Going East read up
	8 45 p m	Detroit	11 10 a m
7 00 a m	6 50 a m	St Ignace	8 30 p m	5 55 p m
10 25	8 52	Newberry	6 21	2 16
12 40	9 40	Seney	5 15	12 50
	10 42	Reedsboro	4 15
3 25	11 30	Au Train	3 25	9 05
5 30	12 40	Munising	2 15	7 00
	12 50 p m	Marquette	2 00 p m
	1 55	Ishpeming	12 58
	4 10	L'Anse	10 10
	5 20	Houghton	9 20
	6 35	Calumet	8 15

Connections made with M T Cos boats, M C & G R & I R R & M H & O
E. W. ALLEN, Gen Pass Agt, Marquette

Grand Rapids & Indiana R. R.

Time Card for Petoskey.

In effect, JULY 1887

Leave Going North: *6 05 a m, 4 32 p m, 8 05 p m
Leave Going South: 8 50 a m, 2 15 p m, †10 00 p m
* daily. † daily except Saturday.

Michigan Central

The Direct Route Between
Mackinaw City & Detroit
Jackson,
The South and East.

Trains leave Mackinaw City 8 a m daily except Sunday and 9 p m daily arriving at

Detroit	9.16 p m and 11 a m
Jackson	10.30 p m and 11 20 a m
Toledo	10.55 p m and 4.45 p m
Buffalo	6.15 a m and 8.07 p m
Cincinnati	6.35 a m and 6.40 p m

WAGNER PALACE SLEEPING AND PARLOR CARS.

F. W. JOHNSTON, Mich. Pass Agt, Grand Rapids. O. W. RUGGLES, G. P. & T. Agt, Chicago.

THE NEW SOUTH.

The train that rushed out of the wide-winding suburbs of Washington down into Virginia, in the dawn of a cold February morning, was filled with northerners going to New Orleans. They had, oddly enough, the alert, expectant air of explorers into an unknown country. The men looked out on the sleepy streets of Alexandria with as critical eyes as if it had been its namesake in Egypt, and the women buttoned their tight ulsters more closely, and slung their alligator satchels to their sides in readiness for any emergency.

They were intelligent people of the class who have leisure; they were familiar with the upper range of states; many of them ran over to Europe or to California every summer. But the three-cornered segment of their country, which had a climate, history, and character of its own, was foreign to them as Arabia Felix.

"I was in the south thirty years ago," said one fidgety old gentleman. "Visited a college found in eastern Virginia. Queer life! Great, scrambling house in a large plantation, crowded with guests; leaky roof, magnificent old family plate, patched carpets, negroes swarming everywhere. Saddled horses hitched always by the door in case you wanted to cross a field. Old families, each with its coat of arms and pride of birth. The most generous,unmethodical, kindly people in the world."

The old gentleman in his enthusiasm took off his silk travelling-cap, letting the cold wind blow over his bald head, with its fringe of gray hair. His wife—a pudgy, prim little woman—replaced it with: "You forget, my dear!"

"Yes, yes, I forget that I'm a broken-down old invalid when I think of those days. It makes me a lad again to get into the south," turning to his listening neighbors. "I've been pastor of a church in western New York for forty years, you see. Never took a holiday. Some chronic trouble set in last fall, and the doctors said—Europe. My people raised the money at once. But I said, I'll go south and rest. No Europe for me. Why, gentlemen, in all the delve and struggle of these forty years, the remembrance of the leisure and quiet, the laziness, if you like, of the south has come before me like a glimpse of the isles of the blest. Life there is not all money-getting. They take it as they go."

His companions listened to the eager talk of the garrulous old fellow with assenting nods and smiles, he being one of those people to whom the world in all its humor says yes and smiles. But they did not all agree with him. Having the usual large, careless good humor of the American, they had no lingering grudge or bitterness against the south because of the war. But it was alien to them, as it had always been; they were men whose occupations and thoughts ran in fixed and narrow ruts, and like the great mass of average northerners they knew of the south only through long-ago recollections or hearsay traditions. It was in their minds a vague tropical stretch of sugar and cotton and rice fields, peopled by indolent, arrogant men and haughty, languid women their feet still firmly set on the necks of the negro race.

The names of the stations, too, began to recall the fact that they were in a once hostile country, and among a people who had been their foe. As the conductor shouted "Fairfax," "Manasses," "Culpeper," they looked out eagerly at the snow-covered fields and the unpainted wooden station-houses which replaced the brick Queen Anne villas affected by northern railways, expecting to find something novel and foreign.

A pursy young man from Chicago was superciliously calling attention to the worm fences, the lean fields, the forlorn houses, etc, as:

"Wretchedly poor, sir. Now, there is really no excuse for such poverty. Even grant that the state was laid waste by the war. All that was twenty years ago. Twenty years is enough for any man to get upon his legs again."

"It is all due to a lack of energy," decisively said a close-shaven, trim little iron-master from Pennsylvania. "We all knew the south. Some of the best books in American literature are descriptions of these people. Did you ever read 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' or 'A Fool's Errand?' They show you that a more indolent, incapable, pig-headed race never breathed. The men spend their time in idling, duelling, and drinking. The women are merely lovely, helpless babies."

Mr. Ely, the old clergyman, with an indignant snort, girded himself to make battle; but at that moment the train stopped in the suburbs of Charlottesville. Steep streets ran up into the picturesque town, back of whose peaked roofs rose the snowy hills. A crowd of students from the university filled the platform. An elderly man, after much hand-shaking with them, entered the car.

"Hello!" said Mr. Ely, "surely I know that face, Sarah? Except for the bald head ——" He bristled up. "I beg pardon. It is a long time ago. But are you not Woodaston Pogue? I am James Ely. Don't you remember? I visited the Meddills in Accomac in '55, and you——"

"Bless my soul! Of course I remember. Why, my dear sir, I am glad to see you back in Virginia. And how has the world used you in all these years?"

"Well, well, roughly enough," said Ely, with a sigh. He had, in fact, a comfortable home, and until lately sound health, yet as the two men sat side by side, it was the anxious, lean northerner, who most looked the victim of a destructive war. The Virginian was a stout, ruddy, overgrown boy. Prosperity apparently oozed out of every pore, from the red fringe of hair about his shining pate to his beaming spectacled eyes, and the gurgling laugh of pure enjoyment that bubbled out every minute.

"Changes?" he said, rubbing his knees meditatively, as Ely plied him with questions. "Oh, great changes! Necessarily. The houses in which you visited have all passed from the old families—except the Grange. That is a place of summer resort, kept by Mrs. Leigh."

"Not that lovely Anna Page who married Joe Page?"

"The very same. Beautiful as a dream, wasn't she? But she is making money fast keeping boarders. The house was torn out by the Yankees—by one of the armies. After the surrender, or that woman put up partitions, hung doors, glazed windows, papered, painted, with her own hands. She's equal to a whole troop of mechanics."

"And John Medill?"

"Killed at Manassas. His son lost a leg, and was invalided for life. His daughters carry on the plantation. Virginia is in the saddle every morning before dawn. She herself plowed and dug until she was able to hire hands." She had the banner crop of tobacco in that county last year."

Mr. Ely made a chuckling sound of amazement and dismay.

"And what became of the Alfaires?"

"They lost everything. The boys as they grew up went to work—Fred in an iron-mill in Richmond, and St. Claire as brakeman on this road. They have both risen steadily."

"No lack of energy there!" said the old clergyman, with a sharp glance toward the scoffing iron man.

"I hope the trouble did not injure you, Mr. Pogue?" he said.

"Major Pogue," quietly amended the Virginian. "I had that rank in our army. Yes"—nodding good-humoredly—"I was left without a dollar. Fortune of war, eh? But I was young, and could accept the situation. It went harder with the old men. Our southern women, I will say, were the first to stagger to their feet. In every household it was invariably the women who first faced the inevitable and tried to make the best of it. The old men have never quite recovered from the blow. Some of them even yet fancy that the old issues are still alive. But it is the men who were children in '65 that have their hands on the lever now; and they make no mistake about issues. Where their fathers dreamed of reopening the slave trade and of conquering Mexico and annexing Cuba, to form a great empire, they talk of new cotton-gins, and Bessemer-steel works, and coal mines, and a thousand other ways of developing our resources. It is the young men who are the new south. I fancy you northern people know very little about the new south."

"Very little indeed," replied Mr. Ely, smiling uneasily. "In fact, I did not know, until five months ago, that there was such a nation."

"You will see"—laughing significantly.—Rebecca Harding Davis, in Harper's Magazine.

The Crow is Black.

The Indians of the extreme northwest have some very remarkable legends about the creation, in which the crow takes the leading part, bringing order out of chaos. Perhaps the most curious was that which accounted for the raven coat of the crow. One night, while making a tour through his dominions, he stopped at the house of the Can-Nook, a chief, and begged for lodging and a drink of water. Can-Nook offered him a bed, but on account of a scarcity of water refused to give him anything to drink. When all the rest were asleep the crow got up to hunt for the water butt, but was heard by Can-Nook's wife, who aroused her husband. He, thinking the crow was about to escape, piled logs of gum wood upon the fire. The crow made desperate efforts to fly through the hole in the roof where the smoke escaped, but the Can-Nook caused the smoke to be denser and denser, and when the crow finally regained the outer air it had black plumage. It was previously white.—American Magazine.

Palm-Reading.

Allow me space for a protest against the latest craze of society—amateur palmistry. The practice is as easy as table-turning or working planchette, and therefore is spreading rapidly. A couple hours' study of a shilling manual and a preliminary examination of two or three hands will provide the necessary smattering of knowledge.

You can hardly now find any social gathering, from a wedding breakfast to a picnic, at which some lady or gentleman does not profess the occult art or science; and as curiosity is quite as prevalent a social curse as ever it was, of course you have, in your turn, to surrender your hand for investigation. Let me at once admit that the requisite manipulations of one's hand by a fair experimenter are not altogether unpleasant to the corpus vile, and one does not mind hearing a little harmless nonsense about "lines of life," "mounts of Jupiter and Mercury," "stars," "crosses," and the like; but I do not like to be told that my finger-tips are "quarrelsome," and when the young lady gravely raises her eyes to mine says: "You have twice betrayed a trusting heart, and once it was through avarice." I feel positively uncomfortable. Especially annoying is it to have one's wife come up in time to hear, "From first to last your career has been, and will be, dominated by the influence of three women!" Worst of all, you are expected to admit that there may be something in all this, and that the sibyl has certainly made some startling hits. If you pooh-pooh it, everyone at once concludes that you resent being told bitter home-truths.

The palmist at the clubs has no redeeming features. His touch is unpleasant, and he does not strive to say what he can in your favor. On the contrary, I believe that, under cover of his pretended art, he delights in a disagreeable plainness of speech, for which under ordinary circumstances one would kick him. On the other hand, I have seen him flatter some of my friends in a manner wholly contemptible.

Let me put this dilemma: If the palmist can read my history and character upon my hand, he ought to be bound by the secrecy of the confessional. If he can not, he is a mere humbug.—London Standard.

A southern Indiana paper tells of a preacher who owns a horse so spirited that no blacksmith can shoe him unless the owner stands at his head and sings lively camp-meeting hymns while the process is going on.

Who? What? Which? Where?

[illegible]

A Walking Skeleton.

Mr. E. Springer, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., writes: "I was afflicted with lung fever and abscess on lungs, and reduced to a walking Skeleton. Got a free trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which did me so much good that I bought a dollar bottle. After using three bottles, found myself once more a man, completely restored to health, with a hearty appetite, and a gain in flesh of 48 lbs." Call at Dr. G. W. Crouter's and Crouter & Harris' Drug Store and get a free trial bottle of this certain cure for all Lung Diseases. Large bottles $1.

Thousands Say So.

Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints. Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

THE REV. GEO. H. THAYER, of Bourbon, Ind., says: "Both myself and wife owe our lives to SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE."

ARE YOU MADE miserable by Indigestion, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Yellow Skin? Shiloh's Vitalizer is a positive cure. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

WHY WILL YOU Cough when Shiloh's Cure will give you immediate relief. Price 10 cents 60 cts. and $1.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY—a positive cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, and Canker Mouth. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

Land for Sale.

I offer for sale the south half of the south-east quarter of section seventeen, (17) in Township Thirty-three (33) North, of Range Eight (8) West, known as the "Weitzel place" in Marion. Apply to
THOMAS WEST,
12m3 457 Lafayette St., Grand Rapids.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter.

W. H. FRANCIS
FURNITURE
——AND——
JOBBING SHOP,
Will also do
Contracting & Building,
In Charlevoix, and Summer Resorts.
I keep in my shop a full set of hand and foot power machinery which enables me to do jobbing, repairing etc. on short notice.
Shop on South Terrace,
Opposite Sheriff Burdan's residence.

MILLINERY,
FANCY GOODS,
DRESS-MAKING.
We have just opened a large line of Spring and Summer Millinery and Fancy Goods to which we invite your attention.
DRESS-MAKING done on the TAILOR SYSTEM. The best work done at the lowest rates.
ALDRICH SISTERS.
Ingleside Building.

MERCHANT
TAILORING.
I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.
Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.
Call and see me. Satisfation Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,
C. H. Maddaugh.

CHARLEVOIX
Manufacturing Co.
Charlevoix, Mich.,
Manufactureres of
Sash and Doors,
Blinds, Mouldings etc.
NEWELL
Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails
kept in stock.
Window & Door Frames made to order.
All Kinds of
Building Material
Kept constantly on hand.
PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS,
Furnished on application.
Cottages made a specialty
also contracting and building
Correspondence solicited.

"MARVELOUS PRICES!"
BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away. [illegible]

[illegible]

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.
We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $2.00, or we will send any five for 25 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of "SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

GRENADES."
Two Sizes—Pints and Quarts.
Over Sixty Millions Sold.
PRICES.
Pints, - Per Doz., $10.00.
Quarts, - " " 15.00.

"STAR"
Tubular Fire Extinguisher.
Glass Tube, 10x28 in. Holds 1 quart.
In this device we combine the BEST QUALITIES of our famous Grenades with the NEW feature of having an article that can be used by Sprinkling. It is designed especially for use in Passenger Coaches and Dwellings. It is elegant in ornamentation. It is cheap and reliable. No rust; no corrosion possible.
Plain, $12.00 per doz.
Ornamt'd, 15.00 per doz.

The "Star" EXTINGUISHER
Holds 5 gallons, and will force a stream through 6 feet of hose 45 feet with our pump, which is the best ever made. Needs no attention until used. Will not freeze, explode or get out of order. No rust or corrosion. Can be used by anyone.
Price, $80.00 Each.

"STAR" CHEMICAL.
Just what is needed in every village, lumber yard, warehouse, etc. Fully equipped with Hose, Ax, Crow Bar, Lantern, etc. It is cheap, and reliable. Wt. 450 lbs.
PRICE.
$200.00 EACH.

Four years of practical use have demonstrated these to be the only reliable and thoroughly efficient Hand Fire appliances made. We use the same chemical liquid in all, and guarantee fully. Liberal discounts to agents. Send for circulars and testimonials.
The HARDEN HAND GRENADE CO.
51 & 53 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Take The Sentinel.

SOMETHING NEW.
WORLD RENOWNED
CENTRE DRAFT PLOW

The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are, that it
1st. NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d. TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.
The Beam is not bolted to the landside, but—by means of a steel frog—is set directly in the Centre of the Line of Draft, making a steady light running plow, and one that cannot be Clogged. See one before you buy.
If your Agent has none write us for price.
MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS,
RACINE, Wis.

PAINTS!
STOVES, HARDWARE, TINWARE, FISHING TACKLE, NOTIONS, ETC., ETC.
THE BEST FORCE PUMPS,
FARMING IMPLEMENS.

JOB AND TIN WORK.
L. D. Bartholomew & Co.
JOB AND TIN WORK.

DRUGS and STATIONERY,
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.
A Large and Complete New Line
JUST RECEIVED.
EVERYTHING
YOU CAN THINK OF.
You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.
PERRY WEED.
The only News stand in town.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN
Boiler Works!
Builder and Manufacturer of
BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.
Sheet Iron Work given special attention.
MARINE WORK
a specialty.
HENRY BARTH, Prop.
Charlevoix, Mich.

HUMPHREYS'
DR. HUMPHREYS' BOOK
Cloth & Cold Binding
144 Pages, with Steel Engraving,
MAILED FREE
[illegible]
HOMEOPATHIC
[illegible]
SPECIFICS.
Sold by Druggists, or sent postpaid on receipt of price.—HUMPHREYS' MEDICINE CO. 109 Fulton St. N. Y.

CURES
Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, Whooping Cough, Quinzy, Sore Throat, Consumption, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Diseases.

YOUNG'S
COUGH SYRUP
[illegible]
Sold by all druggists. Price, 25c., 50c. and $1.00. Large bottles sent free on receipt of price.
W. JOHNSTON & CO.,
DETROIT. MICHIGAN

Pan-Zuma Balm
THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES. The greatest and simplest known remedy for all Female Trouble to which womankind is heir—$1 per box of one month's treatment. Reliable Lady Agents can make money for themselves and become benefactors to their race by engaging in the sale of this remedy. For medicine and particulars, Address
PAN-ZUMA MED CO.,
Frankfort, Ind.

160 Acres in MARION
Township For Sale at a Bargain, Terms to suit.
MONEY TO LOAN ON
Approved Real Estate Security.
THEODORE R. CHAPIN
Boyne City.

FRANK E. WOODS
Bath & Barber Rooms
Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd fellows Block.

BATH & BARBER
ROOMS.
Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.
If you want a quiet place to get a shave, haircut or bath call and see me.
JAY L. PRICE.

NEW SHOP!
All kinds of Blacksmithing,
At the
Shop in the Foundry Building.
Horseshoeing a specialty.
ALL WORK GUARANTEED.
M. SCOTT.

WANTED!
Potatoes, Onions, Apples, Peaches and Blueberries.
We have an old established trade and can place stock to best advantage. Consignments solicited. Correspondence invited from shippers. Stencil and shipping tags furnished.
W. H. THOMPSON & CO.
Commission Merchants,
No. 166 South Water St,
CHICAGO, - - ILL.
Reference: Felsenthal, Gross & Miller, Bankers, Chicago, Ill.

JAS. A. GELLICK,
Dealer in
Choice Wines,
Fine Liquors
EXCELLENT CIGARS.
We call Special Attention to our
Old Kentucky Sour Mash
WHISKIES.
We also keep continually on draught
Milwaukee
Export and lager Beer.
Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

FRESH FROM THE WIRES.

Events of Interest and Importance in Every Quarter of the Habitable Globe.

News Relating to Politics, Religion, Commerce, Industry, Labor, and Other Topics.

LATEST DISPATCHES.

CRIMINAL CARELESSNESS.

Three Persons Shot at a Circus by Alleged Cowboys Doing the "Wild West" Act.

WHILE Sells Brothers' cowboys and Indians were having a sham encounter in a circus performance at Clinton, Iowa, Wednesday night, Mrs. Andy Lambertson, of Clinton, was shot in the left breast. The ball was taken out of her back. Wallace Phillips, a Clinton boy, aged 14, was shot in the top of the head, the ball lodging in his skull. George Harrington, of Fulton, Ill., was shot in the forehead. The ball entered his brain, and he will die. The accident happened through the carelessness of some of the performers using loaded instead of blank cartridges. No arrests were made. Sells left money and a man with instructions to spare no exertion or expense for the wounded people. No reason can be given for balls being used. The managers of the circus employ but one man to load the revolvers, who has strict instructions to use nothing but blank cartridges.

PRISON FOR MR. HARVEY.

The Horse-claim Forger of the Treasury Sentenced.

HARVEY, the horse-claim forger of the Treasury Department, says a Washington telegram, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced on Wednesday to twelve years in the Albany Penitentiary. This is at the rate of about a year for every $1,000 out of which he succeeded in beating the Government, and the punishment is not heavy. Harvey's attorney tried to make the court believe that the offender's mind had long been in an abnormal condition, and that he was therefore not as accountable as other men. The trouble was simply a morbid disposition to live beyond his means which grew out of his passion for fine arts. Harvey had nothing to say to the court except to deny a statement of the Prosecuting Attorney that he had sought the promotion from the Third Auditor's to the Second Controller's office. Harvey will be taken to the Albany Penitentiary at once. He will not be given there the privileges he had in the District of Columbia jail, where he washed his hands in Florida water and had cologne sprinkled through the ward in which he was confined.

BASE-BALL.

The Contest for the Championship in the League and Association.

THE following tables show the standing of the clubs in the two leading associations:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Clubs.	Played.	Won.	Lost.	Percentage
Detroit	63	41	22	.660
Chicago	62	38	24	.612
Boston	64	38	26	.593
New York	68	37	31	.544
Philadelphia	66	34	32	.515
Washington	59	24	35	.4[illegible]
Pittsburg	62	21	38	.367
Indianapolis	64	18	46	.281

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

Clubs.	Played.	Won.	Lost.	Percentage
St. Louis	72	53	19	.722
Baltimore	69	42	27	.608
Cincinnati	77	44	33	.571
Louisville	74	41	33	.554
Brooklyn	66	33	33	.500
Athletic	72	34	38	.472
Metropolitan	69	21	48	.304
Cleveland	70	17	53	.242

Interstate Commerce Decisions.

THE chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission has filed the decisions of the Commission in the following cases:

The Chicago and Alton against the Pennsylvania, and the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific against the New York Central and Hudson River—these are known as the commission cases, and are dismissed. Opinion by Mr. Commissioner Schoonmaker. Mr. Commissioner Morrison files a dissenting opinion. F. H. Harding, complainant, against the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railroad Company—this was a complaint of unreasonable and unjust rates. The case is dismissed for insufficient evidence, but without prejudice. Opinion by Commissioner Bragg. M. A. Fulton, complainant, against the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railroad Company—this was also a complaint of unreasonable rates, and it is likewise dismissed without prejudice. Opinion by Commissioner Bragg.

Conventions.

A NATIONAL waterways convention has been in session at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. Over four hundred delegates were in attendance. The main object was to get an appropriation from Congress of $7,000,000 to improve the Hay Lake channel.... The boot and shoe dealers of the country have just closed their annual convention at Chicago. G. G. Pierce, of Chicago, was elected National President.... The third annual convention of the National Railway Station Agents' Association has been in session at Minneapolis.

Kuklaxers Sued by a Negro.

JOHN GREEN, an ex-convict, residing in Indiana, has sued Bill Johnson, Peter Jaggers, Lad Dawson, Cock Knight, Tom M. Seygly, Slaughter Fuqua, and John Goodman, citizens of Hart County, Kentucky, for $20,000 damages in the United States courts. He charges that the defendants, one night in July, 1886, took him from his home, in Booneville, Ky., where he then lived, into the woods, and beat him.

Sylvanus Cobb Dead.

A BOSTON dispatch announces the death of Sylvanus Cobb, Jr., the well-known story writer, at the age of 64 years. He died at Hyde Park, near Boston, of pneumonia.

EAST.

AN accident happened to the President's train Saturday night while returning from Clayton to Alder Creek, says a Utica (N. Y.) special. The train was brought to a stop before the President's party became aware that there was any accident. The engineer had his hand on the whistle to blow for Stile crossing, when the connecting bar to the forward driver on the right-hand side of the engine broke, and the huge piece of steel revolved with terrible velocity, tearing out one side of the cab and ripping up the ties and the ground as the engine rushed along. A huge fracture was made in the boiler, and the steam escaped in volumes. The President, when informed of the affair, said he thought there was something serious the matter when he saw the clouds of steam. Rigby, the engineer, who had saved his fireman by forcing him on top of the cab, was found lying alongside his engine dead. After instructions were given to care for the dead engineer, the President's car was attached to the express train, which had come up by this time, and taken to Alder Creek, where the President and Mrs. Cleveland and others of the party left the car. It was then after midnight.

A PORTLAND (Me.) telegram says: "The City Marshal having ordered druggists not to sell soda and cigars on Sunday, all the druggists in the city except the proprietor of one small shop closed their stores entirely, not even putting up physicians' prescriptions. Their action is generally commended by citizens who do not sustain the Marshal in his attempt to enforce the 'blue-law.' The druggists will take some further concerted action."

A FAYETTEVILLE (N. Y.) telegram of Wednesday says:

This beautiful village, the boyhood home of Grover Cleveland, was brilliantly decorated with the national colors as a sign of popular greeting to the Republic's President. The old Cleveland home, the school house and academy which he attended were suitably decked, as was also the plain homestead of Mrs. Hoyt, the President's sister. The Presidential party, including Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland and Secretary and Mrs. Fairchild, drove here from Cazenovia, leisurely making the two hours' ride through the delightful region. They reached here shortly before noon, driving through the multitude in Main street to Mrs. Hoyt's residence. A committee of old acquaintances received and escorted the President. A public reception took place in Clinton Park. Howard H. Edwards, a boyhood companion of the President, made a brief address of welcome. The President, on being introduced to the large assemblage, made acknowledgment by a formal bow. Then he and Mrs. Cleveland stepped to the front of the platform, and for two hours received the salutations of the people. At 1 o'clock not more than one thousand of those present had shaken the President's hand, and as it seemed impossible to greet them all personally, he made a short speech.

AT Oil City, Pa., John McNerny, laborer, aged 50, killed his wife with an axe and mortally shot his son James, aged 21. When the police arrived he shot Officer George James in the groin and he will die. Officer Warden then shot McNerny in the back, from the effects of which he will die.

WEST.

THE trial of Von der Ahe, the St. Louis base-ball man, for violation of the Sunday law, resulted in his acquittal. Sunday base-ball playing in St. Louis will therefore continue, and all the theaters and other places of amusement will, it is expected, resume their Sunday performances.

A CHICAGO telegram of Tuesday says: "It is not easy to realize the extent of the calamity inflicted on this city by the awful heat of Saturday and Sunday. If the same number of people had been lost in a shipwreck, a conflagration, a railroad accident, or a disaster of any other kind, the public would have been appalled. The figures are startling. At the latest returns the number of persons sunstruck and overcome by heat was 193. Of these 137 were fatal, 19 were dying, 22 had recovered, and 15 were on the way to recovery. The Coroner's book was full of entries, and he and his deputies worked until 9 o'clock Monday evening, at which time they had held 52 inquests. The County Hospital, the police stations, and the morgue were scenes of curious and unusual activity. The 'cool wave' at Chicago was not general. At St. Louis Monday the thermometer registered 106, at Shelbyville, Ill., it was 108, at Cincinnati the hottest it has been in twenty years, and 60 cases of sunstroke were reported."

ED CORRIGAN, the well-known horse-owner, has been formally expelled from all the running tracks in America by the Washington Park Club, of Chicago, says a dispatch from that city. His horse, Irish Pat, lost the first heat of a race by the failure of Blaylock, the rider, to urge the horse at the finish. On coming out for the second heat L. P. Tarlton, one of the judges, told Blaylock that the judges were not satisfied with his riding, and that he must ride to win. Corrigan spoke up, saying: "You ride as I instruct you," and, turning to the judges, said: "The boy is riding to my orders," and then used other language to the judges that was considered insulting. The judges demanded at least an apology under penalty of being ruled off. It is said he refused to apologize, and the club sustained the judges in ruling him off.

SOUTH.

IN a joint discussion at Wellborn, Texas, between a Prohibitionist and an anti-prohibitionist, the latter responded to the argument of his adversary with a bullet. As the ball missed its mark, the honors of the evening rested entirely with the cold-water man.

HON. ROBERT M. T. HUNTER, ex-Speaker and ex-Senator, Confederate Secretary of State, and a member of the Peace Commission which met President Lincoln in Hampton Roads, died on Tuesday at his home in Mount Hill, Va., aged 78.

WASHINGTON.

THE Secretary of the Interior has concurred in the recommendation of the Commissioner of the General Land Office that a commission be appointed to make a thorough investigation of the condition of certain Oregon roads, to ascertain whether or not there was fraud in their construction.

POLITICS.

THE Iowa third party Prohibitionists met in convention at Des Moines and nominated the following State ticket: For Governor, V. G. Farnham, of Plymouth County; Lieutenant Governor, W. C. Caldwell, Harrison County; Supreme Judge, C. H. Lewis, of Cherokee County; Superintendent of Public Instruction, Professor S. N. Fellows, of Johnson County.

The platform declares for separate political action in dealing with the liquor traffic; favors a reduction of passenger rates to 2 cents a mile; favors the establishment of postal savings banks; declares that public lands should be reserved for actual settlement; favors woman suffrage; insists upon the enforcement in all schools of the law providing for teaching the effects of alcoholic liquors upon the human system; and advocates further amendment of the present prohibitory law to make its enforcement more stringent.

THE convention of divisionists at Huron, Dakota, has adjourned after passing resolutions expressing unalterable opposition to the admission of Dakota as a whole, and declaring for division on the seventh standard parallel.

THE Union Labor and Greenback State Central Committee of Iowa have called a State convention, to meet in Des Moines in August, to take action on the Marshalltown convention.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW, it is said, would not object to become a Presidential candidate under certain contingencies. There is said to be a bureau at work distributing Depew literature.

LABOR.

ABOUT eight hundred workmen at the Black Diamond steel works struck because the firm refused to reinstate a number of union men recently discharged. The mill was operated by non-union men until a few weeks ago, when an assembly of the Knights of Labor was formed and about two-thirds of the employes joined. The leaders in the movement were discharged and the strike followed.... The iron and steel workers of the Knights of Labor, who recently applied for a charter for a national trade district, have requested Master Workman Conklin, of Harrisburg, Pa., to call a meeting to take action on the failure of the general officers to issue the charter. They number 60,000, and threaten to leave the order unless the charter is granted.... The Master House Painters' National Association, in session at New York, elected Titus Berger President.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

THE Interstate Commerce Commission has decided that any railroad lying wholly within one State, but which makes rates and issues bills to points in another State, is so far as that traffic is concerned subject to the provisions of the interstate law. The Commission expects to be able to conclude all public hearings which parties desire to bring forward before the close of this month. About Aug. 1 a recess will be taken so far as public hearings are concerned, the bureau work being carried on at Washington as usual, while the commission expects to visit various portions of the Northern States, where public sessions will be held. The dressed beef cases will probably be heard at Chicago, and other questions relating to Northwestern roads taken up at Minneapolis.

THE Interstate Commerce Commission performs a great deal of effective work in a quiet way that doesn't get into the newspapers, says a Washington dispatch. Complaints are almost daily received from individuals against alleged discrimination and undue exactions on the part of railroad companies. Commissioner Morrison says this class of complaints were not only numerous but comprehended a great variety of subjects. Some were important, many were trivial, but all had to receive attention. In some instances the orthography and chirography showed that the complainants were lacking in education, although the manner of preferring the complaints showed the writers were not deficient in the general knowledge of business and commerce. In many cases the controversy would originate between the complainant and the local agent and might be attributed to bad temper on both sides. A letter from the commission was sufficient to settle this class. Sometimes railroad agents, assuming that their patrons were not well informed as to the new order of things, would make unfair exactions, and at other times controversial points would be submitted by both parties. All these cases, Colonel Morrison said, were examined, and the commission's suggestions and recommendations had always been acted upon. In this particular the commission was performing a kind of local magisterial duty. The cases presented were individual, but they represented a variety of subjects, and their settlement in the conciliatory manner alluded to avoided much controversy and friction.

GENERAL.

THE St. Lawrence sugar refinery and dwellings adjoining were destroyed by fire at Montreal, Canada, with a loss of $500,000. A man named Moore was killed by a fall; others are thought to have been burned to death, and several persons were injured.

THE National Educational Association, at Chicago, at their third and last day's session, discussed "The Place Manual Training Should Occupy in a System of Public Schools" and "What Can Be Done by Educators to Enlighten and Arouse the People and Excite Public Sentiment in Favor of Education?" A number of thoughtful papers were read on both topics. The resolutions adopted recommend various measures to the State Legislatures and Congress in the interest of popular education, declare that there is "an urgent necessity for temporary Federal aid in the education of the illiterate masses of the South," "commend the National Bureau of Education as an agency of increasing value and worthy of more liberal support," and specify different methods by which the efficacy of our school system can be increased.

THE French and Newfoundland fishermen are raising another fishery question. The commander of the French war ship Drac drove Newfoundland fishers from the coast at the point of the bayonet.... It is stated that the Canadian Pacific Railroad has contracted to carry hundreds of carloads of Australian wool from Victoria, British Columbia, to Boston. This wool was formerly carried by the Northern Pacific line.

"IF T. V. Powderly does not resign at the next meeting of the General Assembly at Minneapolis," said a prominent member of District Assembly No. 24 to a Chicago reporter, "he will be made to do it. Powderly is an aristocrat; a sickly, vain man, who cares more for the opinion of the newspapers and 'nice' people than for that of the members of the order. It is true the order has decreased numerically, and a general dissatisfaction is manifest. The man who will succeed Powderly will be one of the following: George E. McNeill of Boston, Joseph R. Buchanan of Chicago, William H. Barrett of Philadelphia, Richard Trevellick of Pittsburgh, T. B. Barry of Detroit, or A. A. Carlton of Boston. The motto of a great majority of the Knights of Labor now is 'Powderly must go!' They dislike his protectionism, his religious views which he tried to enforce upon the order, his know-nothingism, and his unrestrainable, as it seems, tongue. The delegates to the General Assembly from District Assembly 24 will vote as a unit against T. V. Powderly in the coming convention."

FOREIGN.

FRIEDERICH KRUPP, the well-known German metal founder and steel gunmaker, died Thursday near Essen, Rhenish Prussia. He was born in Essen in 1812.... The sensational Pranzini murder trial at Paris ended with a verdict of guilty. The prisoner was sentenced to death. He protested his innocence after sentence had been pronounced. Pranzini murdered Madame Regnault, her maid, and the latter's child..... It is said that the anti-German feeling in the Department of Nord, France, is so strong that a number of Germans have narrowly escaped death.....Ten Italian soldiers were killed, seventy injured, and $200,000 worth of property destroyed by the explosion of a magazine at Massowah.

ARCHBISHOP WALSH, of Dublin, is endeavoring to induce the British Government to suspend further evictions in Ireland until the land bill has been passed by Parliament.

MARKET REPORTS.

NEW YORK.
CATTLE	$4.00	@ 5.00
HOGS	5.50	@ 6.00
WHEAT—No. 1 Hard	.86	@ .87
No. 2 Red	.83	@ .84
CORN—No. 2	.45	@ .46
OATS—White	.39	@ .41
PORK—New Mess	16.00	@ 16.50
CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice to Prime Steers	4.25	@ 4.60
Medium	3.25	@ 4.00
Common	2.75	@ 3.25
HOGS—Shipping Grades	5.25	@ 5.75
FLOUR—Winter Wheat	4.00	@ 4.60
WHEAT—No. 2 Red Winter	.73	@ .73½
CORN—No. 2	.37	@ .38
OATS—No. 2	.26	@ .27
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	.18	@ .19
Fine Dairy	.13	@ .14
CHEESE—Full Cream, cheddars	.08	@ .08½
Full Cream, new	.09	@ .09½
EGGS—Fresh	.11	@ .12
POTATOES—Choice, new, per bu.	.49	@ .60
PORK—Mess	16.75	@ 17.25
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—Cash	.71½	@ .72
CORN—No. 3	.36	@ .37
OATS—No. 2 White	.32	@ .32½
RYE—No. 1	.52	@ .56
PORK—Mess	14.75	@ 15.25
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 2	.72	@ .72½
CORN—Mixed	.34	@ .34½
OATS—Mixed	.25	@ .25½
PORK—New Mess	15.25	@ 15.75
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—Cash	.74	@ .74½
CORN—No. 2	.38	@ .39
OATS	.26	@ .27
DETROIT.
BEEF CATTLE	4.00	@ 4.75
HOGS	5.75	@ 4.75
SHEEP	3.50	@ 4.50
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.74	@ .75
CORN—No. 2	.42	@ .42½
OATS—No. 2 White	.34½	@ .35½
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.72	@ .74
CORN—No. 2	.42½	@ .43½
OATS—No. 2	.30	@ .31
PORK—Mess	16.00	@ 16.50
LIVE HOGS	5.00	@ 5.75
BUFFALO.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.85	@ .85½
CORN—No. 2	.48	@ .49
CATTLE	4.50	@ 5.50
INDIANAPOLIS.
BEEF CATTLE	3.25	@ 4.50
HOGS	5.25	@ 5.75
SHEEP	3.00	@ 4.00
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.69	@ .70
CORN	.37	@ .38
OATS—No. 2 Mixed	.30	@ .31
EAST LIBERTY.
CATTLE—Prime	4.25	@ 4.50
Fair	3.50	@ 4.00
Common	3.25	@ 3.50
HOGS	5.50	@ 6.00
SHEEP	4.00	@ 4.50

IT WILL NOT WORK.

Analysis of the President's Letter in Refusing to Go to St. Louis—A Deep Laid Scheme to Create Dissension in the Ranks of the Grand Army.

[Washington Cor. Inter Ocean.]

Persons who claim to have good sources of information say that they know that the letter of the President, in which he declined to go to St. Louis has a significance that does not appear upon the surface. "The President," said a gentleman prominently connected with Grand Army matters, "has been told by some one that he can help to create a dissension in the Grand Army, and force the Democratic soldiers out of it, and cripple that organization for the Presidential campaign. He seems to think that the Grand Army is composed of two radically hostile camps—the Democratic and the Republican soldiers—and that the Democrats are much more Democrats than they are Grand Army men. In this he is greatly mistaken, for some of the posts which were the most earnest in their denunciation of the administration with respect to the flags were Democrats throughout the war. There is no difference in the Grand Army on the issues which grew out of the war, and the fact that the administration is engaged in a crusade of this sort shows that they do not understand the temper of the Grand Army any better than they do the general spirit of the American people."

One of the most prominent and popular of the Grand Army leaders here says: "There is no strife in the ranks of the Grand Army. Our organization has never been a political one, and never will be. It would never lend itself to a warfare against any political candidate for an office unless that man should be disloyal or an avowed enemy of the soldiers of the Union. Our Democratic comrades know that, and for that reason I do not think that any scheme to divide the Grand Army can succeed. So far as President Cleveland is concerned I can only say that he had many friends as well as enemies in the Grand Army before the flag episode took place. That was condemned by all Grand Army men, Republicans and Democrats and Bourbons. You know that Tuttle's evaporations were not indorsed by the body of our organization, and if the President had gone to St. Louis he would not have been insulted. The trouble with Mr. Cleveland and the Grand Army is simply this and this only. He has never said yet that the war for the Union was right. He has never yet shown honest sympathy for the Union veterans. On the other hand, he has repeatedly extolled the bravery of the ex-Confederates, assured them of his esteem, and has even commended the secession teachings of Calhoun as worthy of the study of every American citizen. Let him say once that we fought for a good and righteous cause, and all will be well."

Bob Burdette on the Battle Flags.

The longer I live—and I seem to be living a little longer every day of my life, observes Bob Burdette, in the Philadelphia Press, and the more I observe the actions of learned, prominent, and presumably wise men, the more firmly am I convinced that the highest type of wisdom ever masquerades in the motley of folly, and that the best writers on mental science and political economy are Charles Godfrey Leland and "Josh Billings." President Cleveland never read "Josh Billings." Had he done so he would have grappled to his memory with hooks of steel this bit of homely, priceless wisdom: "The time to set a hen is when the hen is reddy to set."

The President, in the matter of returning the captured battle-flags, has been guilty of the useless folly of trying to compel a hen to "set" when her mind is far away on the pansy bed and cool, forbidden scratching places in the kitchen garden, while she regards the nest with only forgetful indifference, unless some foolish mortal attempts to drive her upon it, when her indifference develops successfully into hesitation, reluctance, protestation, aversion, peremptory refusal and riotous outbreaking and obstinate rebellion.

Nobody was saying anything about these battle-flags. Now and then a company of Union veterans, making a reunion pilgrimage to some old battle-field, carried with them, in a glow of good-fellowship and fraternal feeling, a flag captured by them long ago from their friends the enemy, and now being hospitably entertained by him, crowned the reunion of old-time friends and foes by returning the flag to the hands that had first unfurled and then so bravely defended it. If the veterans wish to do this no man shall say them nay. In fact, it was rather a pleasant thing for the boys to do when their hearts prompted them to do it. They captured the flags; it is their right to do with them as they will.

But here comes a man who never captured a flag, who never saw a rebel flag until long after it had been captured; who abode nigh unto the Canada border when he had every opportunity to go a-gunning after battle-flags; he hears the contented monologue of a hen who is foraging through the strawberry bed and occasionally dividing the spoil with the weak, though much oftener with the strong, and mistakes it for the restless "cluck" of a hen moved by promptings of the maternal instinct to brood over a whole neatful of the unsearchable possibilities of eggs whose fruitful harvest may, good wet, dominate the electoral barnyard. He said: "I will go into this obliteration and reconciliation business as a jobber; I will take up that I laid not down. I will gather where I have not strewed and reap where I did not sow. I will weather these flag returners and cross the line ahead of the whole fleet by a clean majority."

Alas for the man who would set a non-"setting" hen, or, finding a willing one, setteth her upon dragon's teeth!

That hen wasn't ready to set, and the mistaken President has crumpled his linen, overheated himself, impaired his dignity, filled the air with dust and feathers, and set the whole national barnyard into wild commotion, and the hen which he sought to "set" is perched high on the reel of the old Grant reaper, which has been under the shed since 1865, where she makes the farm ring with defiant protests. Even if that hen was half ready to set, President Cleveland isn't the man to set her. He hasn't been with her enough. Somehow she seems to roost high every time he comes around the barnyard. If she had seen more of him now, say when she was about twenty-five years younger, it might have been different.

Any man old enough to be President ought to be able to see when a hen wants to set. A hen is such a fool she reminds me of men. And even a President is but a man. See, now; I have a quarrel with my brother, with whom I have lived pleasantly enough ever since our father died, away back in 1776. We fight a long time, but at last I "lick" him, take away his marbles, and make him come back into the house and behave himself; I give him the best place at the table, and by and by acquiesce when he says it is his turn to run the house. In a moment of good feeling and fraternal love I begin to give back the marbles I took from him. He doesn't ask for them, but I give them to him. I want to do this; it pleases him, and makes me feel better. While I am doing this along comes my step-father, who hid himself under the bed all the time we were fighting, and only sent the hired man to represent him—he comes along now and says:

"Here, Jefferson, I'm going to give you back all the marbles that Abraham took away from you."

Will I give my brother mother solitary marble? Not by a long chalk; "I'll 'lick' my step-father first." By his ill-timed, meddlesome interference in a matter that didn't concern him he has retarded what he sought to promote.

And, finally, brethren, when the hen is ready to set she "sets." All the Presidents from Washington to Mexico can't stop her. If you destroy her nest and lock her out of the hennery, she will set with perfect faith and tireless patience under the hubs of an old wood shed on a bottle-neck and a bureau-knob. She may even be reduced to the necessity of setting standing up, but she will set. When it comes time to return the battle-flags the men who captured them will restore them, and no man who stayed in Buffalo all through the battle-flag season need feel called upon to tell them when that time arrives. The hen will be apt to know it herself. A man who would tell a hen when it is time for her to "set" would have "gall" enough to tell a man on shipboard that he would come round and tell him when it was time to get sea sick.

"The time to set a hen is when the hen is reddy to set."

Cut that out and paste it in your hat, Mr. President; it may save your second term.

Setting Up the Pins for Cleveland.

Some little importance attaches to the mere mechanism and petty details of party organization, but when it comes to the choice of a leader for a great party in a National campaign the great thing is to obey the commands of public sentiment. If Grover Cleveland wants to be renominated he must make himself the actual choice of that great non-office-seeking mass of his party which must be deferred to or defeat at the polls would be a foregone conclusion. If he should win the prize by the cunning manipulation of henchmen it would be only the stepping-stone to disaster. The only possible chance for him to be elected would be to so conduct himself as to achieve some genuine popularity. Thus far he has made little if any headway in capturing the popular heart. He has about one more year in which to make up for lost time.

No political party can afford to ignore the importance of personal popularity. Twice only did the Whigs carry the country, and in both cases it was because the candidate was stronger than the party which nominated him. Gens. Harrison and Taylor had records which more than made up for any deficiencies in their individual power to awaken enthusiasm, and each was pitted against a politician of cold and selfish temperament. In 1876 the Republicans, with all their strength, came very near defeat because they made the mistake of nominating a man singularly deficient in magnetic power. Four years later they had a leader who needed only to be "lifted up" to draw men to him. Mr. Tilden did not need a mugwump defection or a Burchard bigotry to insure New York. He carried it by a large majority, and that because he had personal popularity and Mr. Hayes had not. The New York delegation in the Republican Convention, controlled by Mr. Conkling, dictated the nomination of Hayes, and their own party in the State administered a stinging rebuke at the first opportunity. Four years later that delegation, under the same malign influence, was unable to influence the nomination, and New York came out strong at the polls, the Republican victory being by a large majority, and all this because one candidate had the power to call out the latent vote and the other had not. The admonition of experience is equally applicable to both parties.

In 1884 Mr. Cleveland had the advantage of being so little known that his party could rally about an ideal, much as the Republicans in 1856 rallied with enthusiasm about John C. Fremont. The public had had in neither case an opportunity to take the man's measure. But the President cannot enjoy that advantage a second time. The black horse is bleaching out, and will be at least a light gray by 1888. If he runs at all it must be upon his actual popularity and not upon the strength of an ideal fancy. Artificial attempts to get up a renomination boom will be sheer waste of time and effort. The needs of the country require genuine statesmanship in dealing with the more pressing questions of the day, and Mr. Cleveland has thus far shown no appreciation whatever of them—not so much as a faint conception of what is really going on in the country. The little world of office seeking and dispensing, together with official routine, bears about the same relation to the great interests of the nation that the District of Columbia does to the United States. The narrowest provincialism on this continent is to be found within the boundaries of the District, and Mr. Cleveland cannot afford to restrict his range of vision to those more immediate surroundings. With the enterprise of the country paralyzed by labor difficulties and every avenue of industry fast filling with the dregs of Central Europe, there is something more important for this administration to do than setting up pins for itself, and Mr. Cleveland would do well to remember that the boys at the lower end of the alley are not the howlers in the game.—Chicago Tribune.

Rascality in Office.

The Democrats had much to say about Republican dishonesty in office about the time of the discovery of the Bacon defalcation. They have less to say since the discovery of the forgeries of the defaulter Harvey in the Treasury. The study of comparative rascality in office is not pleasant, but it is sometimes instructive. An analysis of the records of several administrations shows that the losses under Republican administrations have been much less than the precentage under Democratic administrations of the Federal Government. Without going into the domain of State politics the Democrats far exceed their Republican opponents in the percentage of public peculation. The percentage of loss per each $1,000 collected by the Federal Government from the administration of Washington to that of Garfield is as follows: Washington, 2.22; Adams, 2.59; Jefferson, 2.75; Madison, 4.15; Monroe, 8.5; Adams, 4.39; Jackson, the idolized prototype of Cleveland, 7.52; Van Buren, a New York President, 11.71; Harrison and Tyler, 8.40; Polk, 4.08; Taylor and Fillmore, 4.19; Pierce, 5.56; Buchanan, 8.41; Lincoln, in all the vast expenditures of the war, 75; Johnson, 57; Grant, 24 cents; and Hayes, whom the Democrats affect to despise as a man and as an administrator, eight-tenths of 1 mill per $1,000. Looking at the State and municipal administration, it will be shown that the treatment of Tainton ... employed in the suits against Tweed—suits which did not have their origin in Democratic zeal — that the proved amount stolen from the city of New York under the rule of Tweed was $46,000,000.—Washington Dispatch.

JAKE SHARP SENTENCED

The Purchaser of New York Aldermen Condemned to Punishment.

Doomed to Four Years' Imprisonment and Required to Pay a Fine of $5,000.

[New York special.]

Jacob Sharp, chief of the New York "boodlers," has been sentenced to Sing Sing for a term of four years with hard labor, and a fine of $5,000 was imposed upon him.

The clock was indicating almost noon when Sharp was almost carried into the court-room. His suffering wife and son-in-law were close behind him, and deep lines of weariness and sorrow overspread their faces as they seated themselves beside the convicted man and fanned his livid face without bringing anything like a semblance of color back to it. Sharp sat with clasped hands and bowed head at the foot of the table, facing the bench. His face, almost buried in his chest, was flushed and sickly looking under the riveted gaze of all present, who were silently staring at the convicted railroad king. Mrs. Sharp and the rest of the family, like the prisoner himself, were silent.

There was applause in the court-room when Judge Barrett delivered the sentence, and outside the announcement was greeted with cheers.

Sharp's lawyer moved for a new trial, but it was denied. The Court, in pronouncing sentence, said the task he had to perform was the most delicate in his whole professional career. He had received many letters from many people, pleading for mercy for Sharp. But a court was not appointed to be merciful any more than was dictated by the laws of justice. "A judge is appointed to award penalty according to the offense, when all the circumstances connected with the commission of the offense have been duly weighed and considered. The defendant herein asking for mercy can give nothing as a plea for clemency but age and sickness. On the merits of the case he certainly is entitled to none. It is absurd to state that he was not guilty of giving the bribes, as he was unmistakably the leader of the whole affair. There is not here, as in the case of the aldermen, any attempt to prove the defendant's good character. The crime itself was an enormous one—the raising of $500,000 to corrupt half a legislature."

Judge Barrett reviewed the corrupt action of the defendant in forming a bogus company to contract with the Seventh Avenue Railway, of which he is a director, and alluded to the defendant's receiving $1,000,000 of profit as sheer larceny, for which he could have been indicted just as well as for bribery. The Judge continued:

"What is there to excite pity or mercy except the age and ill-health of the prisoner and the mourning condition of his family? With over $1,000,000 in his pocket he clamors for mercy without offering to pay back a penny of the money stolen, so that, should he die in prison, his family has a vast fortune to fall back upon."

At this Mrs. Sharp buried her face in her handkerchief and wept silently, while the prisoner himself did not lift his face from the table.

"The Legislature does not allow us to go below the minimum penalty in such a grave offense as the present is," continued Judge Barrett. "All cannot be satisfied; those who clamor for the prisoner's receiving the full penalty of the law and those calling for a reprimand. All things have been considered, and the sentence of this court is that the prisoner be confined four years at hard labor and that he pay a fine of $5,000."

Sharp was sent back to spend the night in Ludlow Street Jail. Application was made to Judge Potter, of the Supreme Court, for a stay of proceedings.

M'GLYNN DEFENDS HIMSELF.

He Writes in Vindication of His Course—A Libel Suit Threatened.

[New York telegram.]

Dr. McGlynn's first reply to the notice of his excommunication appears in this week's Standard. There is a manifest effort throughout what he says to justify his course from the beginning. He gives to the public, for the first time, his final summons to Rome, which was sent him in May; denounces the way in which he was addressed in it by the Cardinal Prefect of the Propaganda, and attributes that prelate's feeling toward him to the "one-sided and numerous letters sent to Rome against the Doctor by Archbishop Corrigan." He also attempts to prove that which he and his friends have again and again asserted, that his case was prejudged at Rome, and that he was called there to be disciplined rather than for trial, as Mgr. Preston declared. Speaking of his having partaken of the holy communion last Sunday, Dr. McGlynn says he did so because he holds that he has not been legally excommunicated; that he would not enter any church and raise a disturbance in order to partake of the holy eucharist; that he would receive it from any friendly priest who believes as he does. A paper called Truth publishes the statement that Dr. McGlynn has consulted three eminent jurists with a view to testing his case in the courts on a plea that the authorities have boycotted him and are guilty, moreover, of defamation of character and libel. If this position is legally tenable, Truth asserts, Archbishop Corrigan can be indicted.

What the Pope Says.

A dispatch from Rome says the Pope, conversing with an American Archbishop, said: "Dr. McGlynn lost his best opportunity by not coming to Rome while Cardinal Gibbons was here. He would have seen that the church, by not condemning the Knights of Labor, was a supporter of the many against the feudal system, whether feudality was represented by slavery, territorial right, or modern capital."

The Formal Notification of Excommunication.

The formal notification of his excommunication by name was received by Dr. McGlynn on Thursday. It was contained in a registered letter, which had been delivered at the Brooklyn postoffice since July 5. It reads as follows:

Rev. Edward McGlynn, D. D.:

REVEREND DOCTOR—In accordance with the instructions of the Holy See, it is my painful duty to notify you that the term of forty days from the date of delivery to you of the instructions of May 4 from the Cardinal Prefect of the Propaganda, within which you were required, under pain of excommunication to be incurred ipso facto and nominatim, to appear at Rome before the Sacred Congregation of the Propaganda, has elapsed, and I declare that, as you have failed to appear before the Sacred College of the Propaganda within the time specified, you have incurred by your act of contumacy the said penalty of excommunication nominatim. I am, reverend sir, sorrowfully yours,

M. A. CORRIGAN,
[Seal.] Archbishop of New York.

Pickled Paragraphs.

A PAIR of slippers—Two eels.

A TRIM creature—The milliner.

ALWAYS prepared for death—The undertaker.

HOW to make a Maltese cross—By stepping on its tail.

AN enthusiast exclaims: "But the charming Venus of Milo is dead." Yes, stone dead.

BOSS HAS named his dog Wellington because of the animal's proficiency in rending a bone apart.

TOT, who is taken to the seaside and sees the ocean for the first time, exclaims: "Look, ma! There's a railway engine having a bathe."

"IT that hens noise must buy a pig," says a Spanish proverb. In most cases, however, a baby will answer just as well.

BASE-BALL.

The Fight Between Chicago and Detroit for the League Pennant.

Anson's Men Playing Great Ball—Notes and News of the Game.

[CHICAGO CORRESPONDENCE.]

Chicago has drawn still nearer to Detroit in the League pennant race during the past week, and should it continue to play at its present speed the first of August, or even before, will probably see it neck and neck with the Wolverines for first position. Recovering from the tough deal they experienced at Washington, Anson's men last week entered upon a brilliant series with Mutrie's giants upon the polo grounds. Last Saturday's game was particularly noticeable for the brilliancy of the crowd of spectators as well as for the magnificent playing of the White Stockings. There were 10,000 persons within the inclosure, and among those who sat in the grand stand was Miss Helen Dauvray the actress, in a dress of white Betty material. Mario Jansen was there, too, and so was the eccentric DeWolf Hopper. Half an hour before the game commenced, Gov. David B. Hill, who had come down from Albany expressly to see the game, appeared in the grand stand. The Governor came to the grounds in a barouche drawn by two gray horses. He was accompanied by Richardson of the New York Club, who Hill thinks is the greatest base-ball player alive to-day. He sat in a direct line with the home plate, and perspired, got excited, and growled at the umpire like the humblest Shantytown crank in the crowd. There was loud cheering when the champions hopped out of their carriages and marched toward the diamond, and when they passed the bleaching boards there was a loud roar of applause. "Go in and beat the life out of them," shouted a score of men who were disgruntled over the poor play of the giants on the day before.

GEORGE VAN HALTREN

pitched for Chicago, and signalized his debut before a New York crowd by striking out Ewing the first thing in the first inning. Ward flew out to Ryan, and Connor drove the ball so hot to Burns that the latter dropped it. Pfeffer now sprang after the ball and got it to first in time to nip the big first baseman. Tiernan struck out in the second inning. Gore hit for a base and was advanced to second by Dorgan's single to left. Richardson hit to Burns, forcing Gore out. George then lined the ball out to Ryan, and Dorgan made a desperate dash for home.

"That's a good hit," remarked Governor Hill, as he watched the crow-line flight of the ball. "I imagine we'll get a run now."

Sore disappointment was in store for the bald-headed Governor, however, for no sooner had the words escaped from his lips than his bright eyes caught sight of Ryan's beautiful throw to the plate, which settled Dorgan in very short order.

"Grand ball-playing," was all the Governor could say in his temporary attack of astonishment. "They are noble, those Chicagos, and no mistake."

Little Italy did something in the third inning which made the good-looking Democrat from Albany remove his tile in amazement. Brown, who led off with a base-hit, had got around to third on Ewing's grounder to Anson and a passed ball; here he began to take a long lead toward the home plate. Daly kept one eye on the Californian and the other on Van Haltren's curves, and when he thought Brown was napping he shot the ball to Burns as quick as a flash and the elongated pair of scissors from the slope was called in by the umpire. Governor Hill has seen a great many games of base-ball in his life, but he admitted, as he tried to bolster up his fast wilting collar, that the champions were ahead of anything he had ever seen.

What a wonderful batsman is big

CAPTAIN ANSON,

the burly, muscular giant who guards first base for the champions. Talk about hitting the ball? If any one man who ever played base-ball has got on to the science of batting, that man is Anson. It was in the fourth inning of last Saturday's game at New York that Anse got in one of his old-timers in a style that fairly lifted 10,000 people off their feet in the excitement of the moment. The big fellow came to the bat with the perspiration streaming off his face. He wrapped his big hand around the bat handle and looked toward the New York pitcher with a pair of bloodshot eyes, for the day was fearfully hot and oppressive. The south-paw twirler of the giants passed a beauty over the plate, and Anson's club went after it. There was a sharp, rattling noise, like a waiter falling down stairs with a tray full of dishes. "Great Cæsar, look at that!" shouted the Governor of the State to his companion, as he saw the ball traveling like a rifle shot toward the One Hundred and Twelfth street fence.

"Goro will get it surely," said pretty Miss Dauvray, as she wiped her mouth with a dainty handkerchief. "Yes, he's got it. No; isn't it too bad?"

"Why, my dear lady," said a benign old gentleman in a yellow vest, who sat behind the actress, "that man could not have got that with a horse or a balloon."

Gore made a desperate run and jump for the ball, but missed it by at least twenty feet. The sphere sailed over the picket fence into the crowd and against the black stone foundation of the fence. The old man laughed that ball just one block, and he got third base before it became possible to field it back. Pfeffer followed with a single, earning Anson's run.

Well, the game resulted in a victory for the champions by a score of 9 to 4, and a better fielding game, fuller of incident and pretty work with the stick, has rarely if ever been seen upon the Polo grounds.

THE DETROIT CLUB.

Your correspondent is in receipt of the following letter from President F. K. Stearns, of the Detroit team, which would seem to set at rest any discussion concerning the future of the Wolverines:

"To ———

"DEAR SIR—I notice that you say in one of your recent letters that I am tired of the base-ball business and will probably quit at the close of our present season. If you really thought this at the time of writing, I would hasten to set you right by saying that instead of tiring of the business I am just beginning to enjoy it. With our team playing such ball as it is at present, with our treasury in good condition, and with prospects for taking this year's pennant very flattering, I should indeed be a "quitter" were I to weary of the business at this stage of the game. I note your expressed desire to have Hardie Richardson with the Chicago team, and would no doubt be a great acquisition to your ranks, I would say, however, that as long as Detroit continues a member of the League, and that will probably be for many years to come, Hardie Richardson will continue one of the sluggers.

"We shall meet your champions upon our own grounds July 23, 25, and 26, when we expect to take two games out of the series of three. Baldwin will pitch against you, and Charlie Bennett, 'the old reliable,' will be behind the bat. Hoping to see you here at that time, I remain yours truly,

"F. K. STEARNS,
"President Detroit Ball Club."

It is the intention of your correspondent to be in Detroit upon the dates mentioned to see the White Stockings pass the present leaders in the race. In my following letter to your paper I shall probably ...

CON CREGAN.

WATERING THE FLOCKS.

Dr. Talmage's Second Sermon at the Hamptons.

The World's Great Want Is a Cool, Refreshing, Satisfying Draught — The Gospel Well Deep Enough to Quench the Thirst of All.

THE HAMPTONS, July 17.—The Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., pastor of the Brooklyn Tabernacle, continues to enjoy the summer in this pleasant place. His sermon for to-day was on the text, "We cannot, until all the flocks be gathered together, and till they roll the stone from the well's mouth; then we water the sheep." Genesis xxix. 8.

A scene in Mesopotamia, beautifully pastoral. A well of water of great value in that region. The fields around about it white with three flocks of sheep lying down waiting for the watering. I hear their bleating coming on the bright air, and the laughter of young men and maidens indulging in rustic repartee. I look off and I see other flocks of sheep coming. Meanwhile Jacob, a stranger, on the interesting errand of looking for a wife, comes to the well. A beautiful shepherdess comes to the same well. I see her approaching, followed by her father's flock of sheep. It was a memorable meeting. Jacob married that shepherdess. The Bible account of it is: "Jacob kissed Rachel, and lifted up his voice and wept." It has always been a mystery to me what ...

... warm life trickling on your forehead and cheek, and hands, methinks you would get some appreciation of what you owe to a crucified Jesus.

Heart of stone, relent, relent,
Touched by Jesus' cross subdued,
See his body, mangled, rent,
Covered with a gore of blood,
Sinful soul, what hast thou done?
Crucified the eternal Son.

Jacob with a good deal of tug and push took the stone from the well's mouth, so that the flocks might be watered. And I would that this morning my word, blessed of God, might remove the hindrances to your getting up to the Gospel well. Yes, I take it for granted that the work is done, and now, like oriental shepherds, I proceed to water the sheep.

Come, all ye thirsty! You have an undefined longing in your soul. You tried money making; that did not satisfy you. You tried office under Government; that did not satisfy you. You tried pictures and sculptures; but works of art did not satisfy you. You are as much discontented with this life as the celebrated French author who felt that he could not any longer endure the misfortunes of the world, and who said: "At 4 o'clock this afternoon I shall put an end to my own existence. Meanwhile, I must toil on up to that time for the sustenance of my family." And he wrote on his book until the clock struck four, when he folded up his manuscript and, by his own hand, concluded his earthly life. There are men in this house who are perfectly discontented. Unhappy in the past, unhappy to-day, to be unhappy forever, unless you come to this Gospel well. This satisfies the soul with a high, deep, all absorbing, and eternal satisfaction ...

... has taken care of you seventy or eighty years? He thinks more of you to-day than He ever did, because you think more of Him. May the God of Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and Paul the aged, be your God forever!

But I gather all the promises to-day in a group, and I ask the shepherds to drive their flocks of lambs and sheep up to the sparkling supply. "Behold, happy is the man whom God correcteth." "Though He cause grief, yet will He have compassion." "Many are the afflictions of the righteous, but the Lord delivereth Him out of them all." "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." I am determined this morning that no one shall go out of this house uncomforted. Yonder is a timid and shrinking soul who seems to hide away from the consolations I am uttering, as a child with a sore hand hides away from the physician lest he touch the wound too roughly, and the mother has to go and compel the little patient to come out and see the physician. So I come to your timid and shrinking soul to-day and compel you to come out in the presence of the Divine Physician. He will not hurt you. He has been healing wounds for many years, and He will give you gentle and omnipotent medicament. But people, when they have trouble, go anywhere rather than to God. DeQuincey took opium to get rid of his troubles. Charles Lamb took to punch. Theodore Hook to something stronger. Edwin Forrest took to theatrical dissipation. And men have run all around the earth, hoping in the quick transit to get away from their misfortunes. It has been a dead failure. There is only one well that can slake the thirst of an afflicted spirit, and that is the ...

HER MISTAKE;

—OR,—

Howard Thorndike's Loves.

BY HURT ARNOLD.

CHAPTER IV.

"ALEXANDER M'PHERSON, FLORIST."

When Howard Thorndike awoke in the morning the sun was full three hours high.

After enjoying his late breakfast and attending to his correspondence he asked of his valet if he had anything to say to him.

"Yes, sir," was the concise reply.

"Well, Sandy, tell me what it is."

"I called at the address and made inquiry of the landlady, Mrs. Campbell, who told me all that she knew. That was very little, sir. She said the mother of the young ladies is the widow of a sea captain; that she hired two rooms on the top floor last May, and has occupied them until the present time. They are very quiet people, unobtrusive, mind their own business, and refuse all invitations to mingle with the rest of the lodgers evenings in the parlor. Both of the young ladies sing, and one plays the guitar.

"The youngest is a cripple, and has something the matter with her spine. The mother ...

"Put it on, Effie, and wear it."

Sandy returned in half an hour with the ready cash and a sign-painter.

He was a handy jack-at-all-trades, and he sat down and drew up the bill of sale himself—all the while wondering if the business would pay, and pay sufficiently well for him to keep an eye on the little Scotch landlady he had met that morning, with the idea of sometime asking her to share its profits with him.

He had been a hot-house gardener in the old country and understood the culture of flowers, and he thought the selling of them would be a secondary consideration.

Although the store was not yet his, he had a feeling of pride and satisfaction in reading his name:

ALEXANDER McPHERSON,
FLORIST.

In large gilt letters on the window as he passed it that evening on his way to call on Miss Insley—and the little landlady; for he had no notion of calling on Miss Insley without making some excuse to see the only woman he had found time to admire during the many years he had knocked around the world.

Reaching the house he rang the bell, then brushed some imaginary specks of dust off his broadcloth suit while waiting. As he was engaged in giving an extra polish to his silk hat with a handkerchief, the door opened, and he was caught in the act by the landlady, who smiled her welcome as she invited him into her little private parlor.

Sandy, after much hesitation and stammering, told her he had just bought out the business of a well-known florist on Fourteenth street; and, being in need of a trustworthy saleswoman, a friend of Miss Insley ...

Feeling of pride and satisfaction on reading his name.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Notes on the Lesson for July 31—"The Temptation of Jesus."

The subject of the lesson for the 31st inst. will be found in the fourth chapter of Matthew, the first eleven verses. Time—Early in A. D. 27, immediately after the baptism. Place—In the wilderness of Judea, between Jerusalem and Judea, probably on one of the mountains. See under special mention.

SPECIAL MENTION.

(1) Fact of the temptation. It was a real temptation, as real as ours. That Christ's innocence was there secured by even more than divine help, by the possession of a divine nature, is a mere inference of the reason, and involves disbelief in the simple record of the gospel. Why was he tempted by a sagacious tempter if he could not by any possibility be led into evil? And, if he himself knew that he could not sin, what could the transaction have been to him but a mere formality? Or how is he an example to us, if his temptation is an unreality? No! They dishonor Christ's work who think thus. When he took on himself the form of a servant he became by his own will subject to every thing which can affect human nature. (Woolsey.) Let us beware of contradicting the express teachings of the Scriptures, such as regards this narrative, the express teaching of Christ himself, by a supposition that he was not liable to real temptation. He was liable to temptation all the sorer because it came like agony to a nature infinitely strong yet infinitely pure. In proportion as any one has striven all his life to be, like the great Ensample, holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners, in that proportion will he realize the intensity of the struggle, the anguish ...

POPULAR SCIENCE.

THE Paris Academy of Medicine has been discussing the bad results of mental strain on young persons. A particularly hard bearing of the process was shown upon French girls, 12,000 of whom are competing for diplomas entitling them to 2,000 appointments in Government schools.

THE New Zealand earthquake is said to have changed Lake Rotomahana, which was renowned for its terraces of gleaming silica, its hot springs and its geysers, into an expanse of seething mud, unlovely to look upon. Another result of the earthquake has been to add 300 feet to the height of Mount Tarawera.

PROF. A. LANDMARK, chief director of the Norwegian fisheries, asserts that under favorable conditions a salmon may sometimes jump sixteen feet perpendicularly, and that when the fish's leap is a foot or two short of the height of a waterfall it often succeeds in completing the ascent by a dexterous use of the tail.

M. GAVOL has ascertained that the absorption of atmospheric oxygen by coal dust usually produces the rise in the temperature to which spontaneous combustion is due. Lignite is ignited at the low temperature of 300 degrees anthracite at 575 degrees and other varieties of coal in a powdered state, at intermediate temperatures.

A SERIES of charts, showing the sur- ...

Charlevoix Sentinel.
Established, 1869.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

CHARLEVOIX, AUG. 3, 1887.

BEAVER ISLAND.

A Trip to the Seat of Empire of the Manitou County Group.

From the bluffs of Charlevoix, on any day of average atmospheric clearness, thirty miles to the northwest, may be seen the long, dark outline of the titular island of the Beaver group. As we follow its distinct lines northward, it suddenly vanishes into a few black dots upon the water at a point toward which the needle of the compass "boxes" N. N. W.

Here is Beaver Harbor, or St. James, the ancient "capital city" of the Mormon hierarchy of the north, and, since the organization of Manitou county, its county seat.

Our scribe dropped in at the beautiful harbor on Friday last, by the steamer Lou Cummings, and a day and night were pleasantly spent there by him, as the guest of Rev. Fr. Gallagher and his colleague and kinsman, Rev. Father Logue. An acquaintance of nearly twenty years with the first-named gentleman, convinces us that he has one weakness which grows upon him, as he grows older, and that is his hospitality.

Father Logue, a refined and educated Christian gentleman, if it were possible, made the hospitality more abundant. The Knights Hospitalers of the Crusades never greeted wayfarer more courteously than did these priestly gentlemen the representative of the SENTINEL.

Beaver Harbor is not what it was 18 years ago, when the writer first trod the sand of its historic strand. Then it was the principal fish mart of the great lakes. The firm of Dormer & Co., with the home concern at Buffalo, and C. R. Wright & Son, and other dealers, really controlled the fresh water fish market. From 1866 until 1882, there were shipped from the Harbor, an average of 1,000 pkgs. per week during the season of navigation. Those days, the fishing grounds were dotted with the tan-colored sails of the swift-sailing fish-boats, and the "pots" of the pound nets would scarcely hold their prey.

Those were the days when fishermen were on the top shelf; the good old days when the fisherman's sailing regattas were contests for silver pitchers and gold medals; when "twine" was king, and money plenty. Way back in the beginning of those years Tim Smith fished on High Island, and Tip Miller kept the light at the head of the Island, and fished and made barrels. Coopers made good wages, and every woman on the island could mend a net or make one. Everybody prospered.

But those days have departed, and, to a great extent, "Othello's occupation's gone." Dormer & Co. long since pulled out; C. R. Wright is spending his declining days quietly at Harbor Springs, and the fishing industry is reduced to a minimum.

Thirty-two pound nets are set along the Beaver and closely contiguous islands, and the fall fishing will begin with only about 350 gill nets. The catch is small, but fishermen and dealers are nursing the hope that better days will come, under the effect of the awakening public interest in the protection of young fish.

Beaver is by no means a desert island. Back from the coast are well cleared and well tilled farms, with sleek cattle and fat sheep roaming the pastures. Beaver Island wheat is of good quality and fair yield.

The people are warm-hearted and generous, orderly and industrious, in spite of what has been said of them. They have a little world of their own, and they are happy in the possession of it.

Beaver Island is reached three times a week by the steamer Cummings, running between Petoskey and Manistique, and once a week by the propeller Lawrence, of the Northern Michigan line.

M. E. Church.

Tuesday evening our bible readings are resumed. Come and bring your bibles and friends. Thursday evening general prayer meeting, led by Byron See. Friday evening, teachers' meeting at the parsonage. The Superintendent will be there and would like to see all. Sunday morning service as usual. Sermon by pastor. Candidates for baptism will please be present.

The ladies of the M. E. church will hold a lawn social next Monday evening, August 8th, at the parsonage. Ice cream and snow balls will be served from six to nine. If the weather should be unpleasant, the social will be held in the church. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Episcopal Church.

Rev. J. N. Rippey, D. D., will hold divine service with Holy Communion and sermon at Opera Hall on next Sabbath at 10:30 a. m. Evening service with sermon and Sacrament of Holy Baptism and Sunday school. All present one year ago will be glad to enjoy his able ministrations at these services.

Elsewhere.

The Indian camp meeting for the Grand Traverse District will be held at Wabeme, four miles south of Petoskey, on the railroad, beginning August 16th, and continuing over Sunday. The dummy train will make regular trips during the days and evenings, and all regular trains will stop. There will be preaching in both English and Indian. Go, and take your tents with you.

A night social will be held at the residence of John A. Johnson, in Marion, Friday evening, Aug. 5., proceeds to go to the pastor. Every lady will lend an interesting part to the entertainment. A good time is anticipated. Ice cream and other refreshments will be served. Everybody come prepared to contribute in every way, and thus aid in a grand success.

Preaching at the Ironton M. E. church next Sabbath, morning and evening, by the pastor.

Charlevoix Summer Resort Items.

Bishop Gillespie came Monday.

Miss Winslow is a guest of Mrs. Hunter.

Hattie Lilienfield of Kalamazoo, came Wednesday.

Mrs. D. DenBleyker is a guest at the DenBleyker cottage.

Mrs. Dr. Russell and daughter of Detroit, are expected this week.

Fred Babcock and C. W. Higgins of Chicago, are at the Belvedere.

Jay Haviland of Battle Creek, is enjoying himself at Mather cottage.

W. G. Howard and wife of Kalamazoo, passed Sunday on the resort.

John DenBleyker and family came Saturday and are occupying their cottage.

W. H. Aldrich of Chicago, came Saturday, and is at the Holden cottage.

Mrs. F. H. Pease and Miss Ruth Pease were guests of Mrs. Hunter, Friday.

Miss Fannie Allen has a new $700 harp and there's music in the air at Bluebell cottage.

Mrs C. A. King and children of Toledo, came yesterday and are at Gen. King's cottage.

Miss Bessie Wight and Mrs. Wight of Detroit, are expected at the Gen. King cottage, tomorrow.

Miss Esther Edsell, daughter of Senator Edsell of Otsego, is the guest of Miss Margery Bardeen.

Mrs. Poe, wife of Gen. Poe, U. S. Army, is at the Gen. King cottage with her son and daughter.

Bryant Weed of Charlevoix, is the new clerk at the Belvedere and is filling the position with satisfaction all around.

Alderman McCauly of Kalamazoo, and David Fish and wife of the same city, are expected at the Stockbridge cottage this week.

Mrs. W. L. Hunter and daughter of Kalamazoo, are at the Sears cottage. Mrs. Sears and daughter Sasie, are expected this week.

Moses Hill, D. D., LL. D., of Kalamazoo, is at the Merrill cottage. He occupied the M. E. pulpit Sunday morning and Music hall in the afternoon.

The steamer Friant continues a favorite with excursionists. She is crowded every morning with tourists from Bay View who come over to spend a pleasant day and get cooled off.

We're waiting patiently for hay fever to get in its more-or-less silent work on C. G. Townsend, the genial city editor of the Kalamazoo Telegraph, and drive him up to Charlevoix.

"There were never so many people at the summer resorts in Northern Michigan as are there at the present time," says General passenger Agent Lockwood, of the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad.

Senator Stockbridge isn't president of the Charlevoix resort association, Mr. Detroit Tribune. George E. isn't Francis B., but he's a mighty nice man, nephew of Francis B., and a Kalamazoo hustler.—Telegraph.

Kalamazoo resorters are well represented in the Trade Edition of the Telegraph. Kalamazoo has the handsomest residences of any city in the state of its size and the Charlevoix delegation have the handsomest ones in the city.

Daily Resorter: H. A. Holmes, manager of the Belvedere house, is the right man in the right place. His genial and affable manners make him popular with all who visit that hotel. Miss Jessie Rickel, with a large dining room, give assurance of everybody being well and promptly served. * * * About as happy a crowd as can be found on the whole ground is at the Waterman cottage. The right kind of an old bachelor would find a splendid attraction there. They too, are generous to a fault, eat all the corn and offer the bag to the hungry editor. * * * Yesterday while visiting the Chicago resort grounds at Charlevoix we found Mr. N. W. Edgar of Jackson, as steward of that popular hotel. We have known Mr. Edgar by reputation for several years, and having had many years experience in that line he is the right man in the right place.

A prominent Kalamazoo official who has passed some time on the resort this season writes the Telegraph a column letter, from which we clip as follows:

I have just returned from some of the summer resorts in Northern Michigan, having spent most of my time at the popular one of Charlevoix, which is rapidly becoming the leading resort of Michigan. Since my last visit there two years ago, important changes have been made. Instead of the old Belvedere Hotel there is an elegant new Belvedere with accommodations for 100 guests, which can certainly challenge any resort hotel in Michigan for the very satisfactory manner in which it is now conducted under the management of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Holmes, of your city.

There is a large sprinkling of Kalamazoo society there, but she has long since lost the honor of having this charming spot known as her namesake, although it is true that Kalamazoo founded the enterprise. I consider these resort grounds in the light of a discovery by its founders, somewhat in the sense of having discovered the promised land, for certainly those who enjoy its delights can not exaggerate its beauties. There is perhaps no spot on earth that affords a greater variety of recreation than can be found there, and it is indeed amusing to notice what occupies the time of each one, for every one is busy as a bee and when night comes but few can recall anything done.

What would you think of a business man who when at home can not find one minute to spare, lounging the whole day long on the hotel veranda, contented and happy, and yet I have such a one in mind, while others choose the more active sports upon the lakes or along the numerous trout streams. To be a little personal, your worthy townsman, Mr. D. B. Merrill, with a small party brought in thirty-six fine pickerel and bass the other day while others have had equal success, and as for brook trout I would not dare make public the experience of Mr. Conyne, of Chicago, or Mr. George E. Stockbridge, of your city, who are experts in this line of sport, and seem to have the power of charming the finny tribe. The latter gentleman only yesterday caught a fine string of these beauties even with a shoe string and naked hook. But all do not frequent this resort for such hard earned pleasure. There are here men of literary attainment and culture, who come for rest in its genuine sense. Here is the venerable Richard Storrs Willis, of Detroit, brother of N. P. Willis, who, with his estimable wife, are fully satisfied with what pleasure they can receive from surrounding nature. Mr. Willis is an able writer for magazines and newspapers. Just yonder in his his beautiful cottage is General John H. King, of Detroit, with his family and friends, who have for several years made this their summer headquarters. Mr. King is a cultivated gentleman of a lively and genial turn of mind and well posted. He is a retired general, having served in our late war. There are there too, representatives of all the professions: Rev. Mr. Haskell, so favorably known in your city; also Professor Jones, of our university; but the most contented one of all is Dallas Boudeman, of your legal fraternity. But of all the members of the resort there are none who exert a more healthful influence than Mother Dewing and Father Bishop. Their long experience with the problem of life, together with their dignified deportment, are a healthy check upon the natural inclination of young people let loose upon the resort. There is I. D. Bixby, who reminds one of a live bass in a hot frying pan in his efforts for the best interests of the resort. He has forgotten Kalamazoo and will not wake up to the reality until he is last to leave the resort. He has not time even to light his cigar but chews it as an ordinary man would chew the "Cud of sweet charities fancy." But last, though perhaps not least, I must make mention of A. E. Bartlet father of one of the Telegraph's staff, who is trying to mix business with pleasure, though thus far the pleasure is not much diluted. He finds this a favorable situation to make up a P. S. to the new edition of his work entitled "Comic Angling," which has already appeared in several editions. It is no uncommon thing to find him at the wharves, experimenting with minnows and suckers as to the most skillful way of catching more gamy fish, the result of which will soon be published, and is looked forward to with much interest by sporting men. He is also collecting material for his work entitled "The Legend of the Wood and Waters of Northern Michigan."

Hazings from Hayes.

Our farmers have commenced cutting spring wheat.

W. C. Arnold who has been suffering the past five weeks with two broken ribs, is able to be out again.

H. S. Newson is building the cellar wall, preparatory to building a new residence near his store at Young Chicago.

Jack Saunby and E. H. Burgess have purchased the Hunt saw mill on Bear Lake, and moved it over to their grounds last Monday.

Mr. Kaler of Elkhart, Ind., who has been summering at Bay View, spent a couple of days the past week with friends in Hayes.

Our Highway commissioner has located the Angling road on Sec. 36.

It is a hard matter to find a pathmaster when a tree falls across the road. If somebody would let the tree down about six inches that leans over the road near Pine Lake, it would be just the right height to take the top off a buggy.

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

TO RENT. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent, Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

Cull shingles and lumber for sale cheap, or will exchange for farm produce. Apply at Burns & Scroggie's livery barn.

WANTED—A steady man to work one of Perkin's one block shingle mill. Apply to Smithson's Lumber Co., Charlevoix.

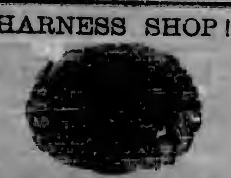
WANTED—A young man who has passed examination and is qualified to teach, who can show a certificate and is willing to work for $50 a month. Address, X. Y. Z., this office. 2w

FOR SALE—One span of horses, one yearling colt, two spring colts, one yoke of oxen, two two-year old heifers, two yearling heifers; must be sold soon. Terms reasonable. Inquire at this office.

HEADLIGHT AND LITTLE DAISY Soaps. They are strictly pure. They are the cheapest soaps sold for the money. Try them and get a ladies' water-proof gossamer free. For sale by Emrey Brothers.

The ladies are cordially invited to call and examine the large display of millinery including pattern hats and bonnets together with novelties in ribbons, gauzes, flowers, etc. As it is to be a season of novelties it will pay you to call now and often, upon Mrs. Litney & Carr.

HARNESS SHOP!



E. B. HODGE & CO.,
Are prepared to do all classes of work in the shape of HARNESS MAKING.
Light or Heavy Harnesses made as good and as cheap as can be gotten in any city.
We carry everything to be found in a first-class harness shop.
E. B. HODGE & CO.

ICE CREAM PAR EXCELLENCE.

We would respectfully inform the public that we have at considerable expense, prepared and suitably furnished our Band Pagoda as an Ice Cream parlor, [illegible] the head of [illegible] Charlevoix. It will be open for the use of the public [illegible] Wednesday evening [illegible] be a Grand Concert by the Band. Our cream will be [illegible] made. Just received a large lot of Ice Cream Packages holding from one quart to [illegible] which will be [illegible] safely carrying [illegible]. The quality of our cream speaks for itself. Our stock of foreign and domestic Fruits is always large and of the best quality. We carry in [illegible] a line of confectionery, [illegible] can be found in town.
Respectfully,
O. W. SMITH.

NOTICE.

The late Champlain disaster has placed me in close financial circumstances. Therefore it is necessary for me to collect all outstanding indebtedness. All owing me will please call and pay.
GEO. W. MILLER.

JOHN CONNOR,
Fashionable
Boot and Shoe MAKER.
Hand Sewed French [illegible] and Calf Boots, $4.50; [illegible] competition.
All Work Guaranteed.

Fresh Butter at lowest price, at Jefferies' Bakery.

JOHN W. KIRBY,
BLACKSMITH & Horseshoer.
Having leased the Blacksmith Shop of D. C. NETTLETON, I am now prepared to do all kinds of Blacksmithing. Satisfaction guaranteed. Horseshoeing a Specialty,
J. W. KIRBY.

I have leased my blacksmith shop on Bridge Street to JOHN W. KIRBY. Mr. Kirby is well-known here having been in the shop for nearly 3 years past, consequently there will be no change of workmen. He is an expert in his line and worthy of a liberal [illegible].
D. C. NETTLETON.

POSITIVELY THE FINEST LINE OF
CLOTHING
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS
YOU EVER SAW IN
CHARLEVOIX,
JUST RECEIVED FOR SUMMER WEAR.
Prices are unusually low this Spring and if you need anything in my line, just step in.
Now is a Grand Time To Obtain Bargains.
GEO. W. MILLER.

NEW GOODS CONSTANTLY ARRIVING
AT THE POPULAR STORE OF
A. T. WASHBURNE AND CO.

DEAR FRIENDS:
We are not OVER-STOCKED from the very fact that we buy what people need every day. Hardly a day passes that we do not receive something new in our line. The advantage we have in purchasing is evident to every person of sense. That is the reason our store is always filled with customers.
We buy in larger quantities and sell in larger quantities.
We carry the Finest Line of Dry Goods, Fancy Goods and Carpets, in Northern Michigan at prices consistent with the times.
Goods ALWAYS as represented or MONEY WILLINGLY Refunded.
A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.
Successors to F. W. CRAINE & CO.

REFITTED!
Our store is fully completed and we cordially invite our friends and patrons to call and inspect a choice assortment of new
DRY GOODS & GROCERIES
new Goods arriving nearly every day. Our stock of Groceries is the Largest, Choicest, Cleanest, and our Prices the Lowest. We're busy and haven't got arranged yet, but we want to see you just as we are.
J. L. HURD & CO.

VALUABLE
ANNOUNCEMENT
NEXT WEEK.
ALICK ROSENTHAL,
LEWIS BLOCK.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

Jno C Miller may21 8

VOL. XIX. NO.—15 | CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 10, 1887. | WHOLE NO. 924

"BUG FINISH!"
The new Potato Bug exterminator. We warrant it to give satisfaction. Very cheap. All ready for use. Requires no mixing. Try it.
STRICTLY PURE PARIS GREEN
We have in stock the purest article to be found in the market. It's sure death every time. Buy no other.
Sure Death To Currant Worms!
For these pests we have a pure article of White Hellebore. When ever used it acts like magic not leaving a worm on the bush.
PURE DALMATION INSECT POWDER
The best thing for Flies and other insects.
A trial of any of the above is bound to prove satisfactory,
F. G. HINES & CO.
Druggists.

EMREY BROS.
Boots and Shoes for almost nothing, to close out.
We have a number of pairs of Boots and Shoes which we will almost give away as we are closing them out.
We are also going out of
CROCKERY
and have a complete assortment which must be sold
WE WILL NOT TAKE A BACK SEAT ON
SUMMER DRY GOODS.
PRICES ALWAYS LOW.
IN GROCERIES and Provisions we can suit you, as we receive Fresh Goods weekly.
THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

B A R K
WANTED!
We Hold our Custom because our Prices are Always Low.
OUR SUMMER ASSORTMENT OF
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
now being received is the finest we ever offered
TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.
ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.
A Fine line of Everything in
FURNITURE.
BIG DRIVES IN
BOOTS and SHOES.
Please bear in mind that our stock embraces
EVERYTHING
usually found in a General Store.
Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.
Resp'y Yours,
Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

A Word with You!
IF YOU WILL COME TO OUR STORE WE HOPE TO BE ABLE TO CONVINCE YOU THAT WE TRY TO ENABLE YOU TO Save Your Dollars
BY BUYING ANYTHING IN THE HARDWARE LINE
OF US.
YOU KNOW WHO "US" IS BY THIS TIME OR
IF YOU DON'T YOU SHOULD
WE ARE HARDWARE, IRON, AND NAIL MERCHANTS. SELL LOTS OF GOODS AND SELL 'EM CHEAP.
It's money in your pocket to buy of S. & I. and Don't You For------ ----!
Resp'y, STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

The Best Groceries
At The Lowest Prices
ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF
A. E. MASON.
I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

New Furniture
AT S. M. SEE & SONS!
We have just received an entirely new stock of Furniture of every discription.
Dealing exclusively in Furniture we are confident we can make it an object to all wishing to buy to call and inspect our stock.
UNDERTAKING A Specialty.

J. MILO EATON'S
REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE,
AND LOAN OFFICE.
The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.
Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.
ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice

WANTED!
Everyone to know that we are here and doing Business, and will do just as we agree to by one and all. We keep
GROCERIES and PROVISIONS,
FLOUR AND FEED, CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.
Choice Butter and Fresh Eggs a Specialty. Call on us or order by Telephone.
WILLSEE & CO.

Charlevoix Sentinel.
The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY
SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, - Michigan.
Address all business correspondence to the firm
TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year - $1 50 | Six months - $ .75
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—Where will the depot be?

—Charlevoix against the world!

—Henry Barth went to the "Soo," Monday.

—Fred Cochran is again under the maternal roof.

—"Wait for the wagon, and we'll all take a ride."

—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cole are happy.—It's a girl.

—Miss Jennie Harris of Elk Rapids, is stopping at S. M. See's a few days.

—The Charlevoix boom is not of the Soo style, but it is healthier, and longer-lived.

—The Methodist ladies cleared $20 at their lawn ice-cream social on Monday evening.

—Events have proven conclusively that Robert M. Cherrie is the right man in the right place.

—The Traverse City Journal has "folded its tent like the Arabs, and as silently stole away" to the Soo.

—Paul Chartraud and wife arrived in Portland, Oregon, last week. They like the country and will remain.

—S. M. See & Sons, the popular furniture men, are getting in some new and beautiful designs in furniture.

—Mr. Chapin, editor of the Boyne Citizen, has been spending a week or more in town for the benefit of his health.

—The tug Martin left Sunday night with the dredge for Sault Ste. Marie, where she has 25,000 yards of U. S. mud to excavate.

—It is understood that the Charlevoix Congregational church has extended a call to Rev. Mr. Downs, and that he has accepted.

—Prof. Delos L. Buzzell and wife, of LaFayette, Ind., are domiciled at C. Y. Cook's, and will remain the balance of the month.

—The Newman House has recently undergone a marked improvement in setting back the front and affording a commodious veranda.

—The President and Marshal say that playing base ball within the corporate limits of Charlevoix on the Sabbath will not be tolerated.

Geo. W. Miller has received the finest line of boys' clothing ever brought to Charlevoix. Those corduroy suits are something new.

—Capt. John Beatty, of New Orleans, is at the Newman House for a few days. The Captain has many friends and acquaintances here.

—The lady who lost a bracelet at the Johnson school house recently, can have the same by calling at this office and paying for this notice.

—What! A railroad to Petoskey, so that Charley Hampton can come down here every day! This is carrying the thing too far! Call a halt!

—Lucy, the 11 year old invalid daughter of Capt. T. D. Smith, died Thursday, and was buried from the Congregational church Sunday afternoon.

—The people of the one-horse suburban towns about here who have an idea that the people of Charlevoix are a lot of goslings are liable to discover their mistake soon.

—Capt. Berdan has done a fine job of grading on the west end of Main street, and through the park. The park road, with the further improvement which will come next season, will make one of our finest drives.

—Monroe's new steam pile driver has been doing some work in the barbor. It is a fine and rapid-working machine. It's motive power is the four-cylinder engine and boiler of the steamer Mermaid, which stranded at Northport some time ago.

—Why, bless your soul, it is no trouble to get money to build a railroad over such a route as the D. C. & E. will cover. The Intermediate valley has been watched with a jealous eye for many years by more than one railroad corporation. No trouble whatever.

—Our esteemed contemporary, the Charlevoix Sentinel, is at liberty and welcome to clip from the citizen, but in return, we respectfully request that in future credit be given.—Boyne Citizen. Jesso. But in future read your proof and correct your spelling so that we wont have to do it over after you.

—Capt. Wm. Mees and daughter Eliza, of Muskegon, are in town visiting friends. Capt. Mees will be remembered as the owner and master of the steamer Annie, the first steam passenger craft that ever ran on our inland waters. Capt. Mees has not seen Charlevoix for about fourteen years, and was astonished to see the growth that Charlevoix has made. Capt. Mees has been, since leaving here, in the employ of the Muskegon boom company.

—Rev. A. Streimer, of Vermillion, Ohio, is a guest of Fred A. Smith.

—H. C. Dolph, Treasurer of the Pine Lake Iron Co., returns to Chicago to-day.

Will Graves, formerly of this place, is now State editor of the Detroit Tribune.

—F. D. Phillips delivered a lecture at Opera Hall Saturday evening, on "The Mission of the Knights of Labor."

Miss Emma Todd, late of A. Rosenthal's has accepted a position in the store of A. T. Washburn & Co.

—A big crowd of Petoskey excursionists with the Petoskey band came over on the Friant yesterday morning.

—Miss Eva Adams who returned home from her European trip the 6th of last month, is visiting relatives at Ironton.

—Mr. Jay P. Bugler and family are in Tacoma, Washington Territory, where they will locate. The best wishes of many friends go with them.

—The examination of Ira Safford, for shooting at a man at Horton's Bay, last week, resulted in his acquittal. It seems that he did it in self-defense.

—Remember the G. A. R. camp fire to-morrow at Boyne City. An excursion will leave here at 7:30 a. m. on a scow in tow of the Minnie Warren.

—Capt. D. W. Lockwood, of the U. S. Engineers, was in town yesterday. He came on a government tug, and returned last evening to Grand Rapids via Petoskey.

—Byron See and wife left Thursday for Chicago. Mr. See will return with a full line of dry goods for his store, which is now in the hands of the painters and decorators, and being fitted up in fine shape.

—Dr. Lewis reports operating upon a case of strangulated hernia on the person of Mrs. Rothenberg, of Boyne Falls, last week, assisted by Drs. Kay, of Boyne Falls, and Sanderson, of Boyne. The patient is doing well.

—The Resorter says: Mark Stevens, of Flint, the Michigan Indian agent, has been authorized to receive propositions from town that would like to become the seat of an industrial school for young Indians. About 150 to 200 acres of landed is needed.

—The pile work for the harbor revetment has been driven up as far as the bridge on the north side, and the endless plank beam will be put in at once. Although there is but six feet of water along that side, the looks of the harbor is very materially improved.

—Every year every local paper gives $1,000 to $3,000 in free lines for the county in which it is located. No other agency can or will do this. It may not be brilliant or crowded with great thought, but financially it is more of a benefit to a community than the teacher or preacher. Understand, now, we do not say morally and intellectually, but financially; and yet on moral questions you will find the majority of local papers do the most work for the least money of any agency on earth.

—Maggie Brown is a shrewd young German girl, who struck Sault Ste. Marie about ten years ago, and went into the peanut business. She invested her savings in real estate, and when the boom struck the town she prospered. Now she is worth $150,000.—Detroit Journal. A somewhat similar case is that of Peter McGinnis, a bright, quick witted Italian (?) boy, who came to Marquette two years ago and established himself in the chimney sweeping business. He invested his savings in Shouldice mining stock, and the Smith Moore gold mine, and rose on the top of the boom. Now Mr. McGinnis is independently rich, and yesterday he took the afternoon steamer for the Sault, to woo the fair Miss Brown.—Mining Journal.

—At the launching of the huge steamer Wm. H. Wolfe, (to be commanded by Capt. Casey, late of the Champlain,) at Milwaukee, Saturday, three persons were killed outright, several others fatally injured, about twenty badly hurt, and a large number of others seriously injured. About one thousand persons gathered to witness the launch. The docks were lined, vessels were crowded, and every scow and lumber pile was black with spectators. Directly opposite the cradled vessel was the large coal dock of the Northwestern Fuel Co. It is a roofed dock with huge derricks for unloading coal. Upon the roof of this coal dock a large number of people assembled. The view from this point was a fine one, as the vessel moved directly toward the dock. As the Wolfe struck the water her port bilge was buried deeply in the black water of the slip, then she recovered and rolled heavily to port. The water displaced by her hull rose like a tidal wave and swept over the coal dock and up towards its roof, causing a cloud of coal dust and spray. The supports of the dock were insufficient to withstand the force of the wave, and about forty feet of the shed went down with its living freight. At the instant the shed went down there was wild excitement on the deck of the steamer. A scene of indescribable confusion ensued, but a few cool-headed people at once set to work to rescue the people. Owing to the fact that many cases of injuries were not reported, the unfortunates being hurried home in carriages by relatives and friends, it is impossible to ascertain the full extent of the accident.

THE RAILROAD.

President Cherrie Returns Last Friday—Statements Confirmed—The Survey Continued.

The Board of Directors of the D., C. & E. R. R. Co., held a meeting Saturday evening, and President Cherrie was in town for the first time since his return from New York. He said to the SENTINEL scribe:

"There is much concerning this matter that we cannot give to the public, for good reasons; but you may say that I confirm your statement in last week's SENTINEL. The road will be built. The money is ready, and all we have to do before breaking ground, is to determine the route and secure the right of way."

Mr. Cherrie is enthusiastic in the matter, and has no doubt that he will be able to ship iron from his furnace by rail one year from next winter.

The engineer corps, with Mr. Beardslee at their head, started out north Monday morning, to survey a continuation of the line to Petoskey. They started in at the upper river.

BASE BALL.

Charlevoix is Herself Again—A Victor Over Cheboygan and Petoskey.

The Charlevoix team recovered from their unfortunate defeat at the hands of Kalkaska, and gloriously redeemed themselves last week.

On Wednesday they went to Petoskey and met their club on their own grounds, worsting them as follows:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Petoskey	0	0	1	)	2	1	0	0	1	—6
Charlevoix	4	0	3	0	0	1	0	3		—11

On Friday and Saturday Cheboygan met Charlevoix at Dixon Park and went home defeated two games. Following is the score by innings, on Friday:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Charlevoix	4	0	1	0	1	0	0	3	1	—12
Cheboygan	0	2	0	2	0	0	0	4	0	— 8

On Saturday our boys cleaned out the Cheboygan lads to the following tune:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Charlevoix	2	2	(	2	0	1	0	0	3	—11
Cheboygan	0	0	0	3	0	2	0	2	0	—7

An amusing incident of the Saturdays game, was the appearance of a mascot in the shape of a very large and very belligerent turkey gobbler on the field. He came from the road into the center field, and attacked the red stockings of the fielders with such venom that time had to be called, and the obstreperous fowl driven from the field. The boys say that on three of the winning days of the Charlevoix club he has appeared in the center field, and each time at the first half of the fifth innings.

Yesterday the Petoskey team came down with a brass band and a large delegation, to humble the pride of the Charlevoix nine and their backers. They went back with defeat written against them in the following characters:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Charlevoix	0	2	3	1	1	0	0	0	1	—8
Petoskey	0	0	1	0	1	0	0	0	0	—2

This makes Charlevoix the winner of 10 out of the 12 games played this season, and unquestionably the champion club of Northern Michigan, notwithstanding the record given by the cripple from Kalkaska, who will never umpire another game in the region. It is asserted on good authority that at the contest in question he had a bet on the result, which he of course won.

To-morrow our team goes to Boyne City to play that club. Saturday Petoskey comes to Charlevoix again, and next week Charlevoix goes to Petoskey for two games.

Charlevoix against the world!

Religious.

Congregational Church.

Dr. Kendall Brooks, president of Kalamazoo college, will preach at the Congregational church next Sunday at 10:30 a. m.

Prayer and praise meeting next Thursday evening as usual. All are invited.

Episcopal Church.

Episcopal church services at Bartholomew's hall on Sunday next by Rev. W. H. VanAntwerp, D. D., of DesMoines, Iowa.

Divine service and sermon at 10:30 a. m. Will meet the Sunday school at 3 p. m. Service and sermon at 3:30 p. m. Special invitation to all.

Elsewhere.

Rev. J. T. Iddings will preach his closing sermon for the conference year next Sabbath at 11 o'clock a. m. at Johnson's, and at 3:30 p. m. at Black's. All are invited.

The social at J. A. Johnson's in Marion, last Friday evening, was a grand success.

Masonic.

There will be a Masonic School of Instruction held in the hall of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282 on the afternoon and evening of Friday, August 26th, under the direction of Right Worshipful Grand Visitor and Lecturer Arthur M. Clark. Five Lodges will participate. The officers of this Lodge will take due notice and govern themselves accordingly.

W. A. SMITH, W. M.

—Bids are already being received for the grading of the railroad.

—To-morrow the G. A. R. reunion occurs at Boyne City. Everybody is invited.

—Last night the President and Directors of the D. C. & E. R. R. Co. went to Petoskey to attend a railroad meeting.

Mr. Ezra Berdan, of the Detroit Free Press, arrived yesterday, and will be the guest of his father, Capt. Harrison Berdan, for several weeks.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN.

INVITED TO DAKOTA.

A POETICAL APPEAL TO TENDERFEET.

Don't prate about our cyclones, our blizzards, and our storms; don't weary us with chestnuts on the way our wind performs; these yarns were long ago called in—it's time we had our due—it's time to drop these fairy tales and give us something new!

Come out and get acquainted; don't stay at home and pout, we only ask inspection to remove all doubt, we have cattle by the thousand and corn and hay galore; we could feed the half of Europe and still have plenty more.

Just come and see our wheat crop, our No. 1 hard, of all the favored western states its place is at the head, our famous cattle ranches, too, the highest praise command, and nowhere on this continent is better grazing land.

With building stone for churches, for schools and business blocks; with mines of gold and gypsum and silver-bearing rocks; with growing, thriving cities that are marvels of the plain, with sturdy western rustlers full of muscle, grit, and brain.

To our educational system we can point with honest pride, graded schools and college buildings meet the eye on every side; churches rise as if by magic, and cultured homes appear, where once the humble shanty housed the sturdy pioneer.

—Dakota Bell.

ON THE BEACH.

BY FRANK J. MARTIN.

Mr. Richard Ryder, attorney at law (with a very meager practice), reclined upon a lounge in his bachelor room, holding an open letter in his hand. It was a pretty, well-furnished room in the front of a house on one of the most fashionable up-town streets in New York, and presented such a cheerful appearance that we might fairly suppose that even a luckless lawyer could be happy within its limits. Yet Richard Ryder was far from being contented, and the letter in his hand was the cause of his dissatisfied frame of mind. This is what was written in the letter:

"RED SHELL BAY—Monday.

"DEAREST DICK—It is a long while since I wrote you, but I hope you have not thought very ill of me. I could not write before, and now it is almost breaking my heart. I can never be your wife, Dick, for I am going to marry Walter Rockwell, and I hate him. Oh, Dick, my love, how can I ever marry that man when my heart is yours? Yet I must, I must. Do not blame me, Dick, but pity me. Will you come and see me once more, dear, before then? If so, come on Thursday. "MILDRED."

It was now Tuesday evening, and Dick wondered what good could come of another visit to his love. Dick Ryder was a good-hearted fellow, and loved Mildred Trevor dearly, but he felt a little sore over the contents of her letter. He was pretty well acquainted with the circumstances which led up to this decision of Mildred's. The Trevors had been rich and had raised their only daughter amid all the luxury and refinement which wealth could command. Two years before our story opens, however, Mr. Trevor had died, leaving his wife and daughter much poorer than ought to have been the case.

Mildred herself loved wealth and affluence, but her mother much more so. The latter had led her daughter to believe that the one object now to be attained by her was a rich husband. So when Walter Rockwell, a wealthy young merchant, offered his hand in marriage she accepted his offer. She never loved him—never pretended to love him—but then up to that time she had never loved any one. And then Dick Ryder, handsome, clever, and good-hearted, came upon the scene, and Mildred Trevor loved him and he loved her. Perhaps if Mildred had been left to herself and her feelings in the matter she would have broken her engagement with Rockwell and married Dick. But strong outside influence was brought to bear upon her, especially by her mother. Mr. Rockwell, too, pressed his suit and tried to hasten the date for the wedding, while Dick's practice grew very slowly. So the end of it all was the letter which Dick now held in his hand.

Mr. Ryder could not make up his mind that evening as to whether or not it would be wise for him to go to Red Shell Bay, and retired to spend the night in troubled dreams of Mildred and the Rockwell ogre.

Next morning he was no nearer a solution of the difficulty, but, as 10 o'clock drew near, he remembered that he had promised to see his chum, Tom Stevenson, embark on the Etruria for Europe. He hurried to the pier and found his friend. They chatted away amid the bustle and din around them, and just as the sailors began to clear the decks of those who were not passengers Stevenson said:

"By the way, Dick, I heard something a day or two ago of your rival, Rockwell. I heard he was married to an English girl in London a year or two ago and did not use her very well. I think there is more truth than fiction in the report, too."

"Step off the gangway, sir," said one of the ship's officers to Dick, giving that young man a gentle shove on the pier.

But Dick was aroused by his friend's remark, and, at the risk of being noticed by the crowd, shouted—"Stevenson—Tom!"

Mr. Stevenson appeared at the side of the steamer. "Try and learn all you can of that matter, Tom, for God's sake, and telegraph me."

"All right," replied Stevenson. "Is it so bad as that? Well, good-bye, old fellow, I'll not forget." But Dick was too much engrossed in his own thoughts to bid his friend "good-bye" or wish him bon voyage. One thing Dick Ryder was resolved upon. He would go down to Red Shell Bay, and he would start that very evening.

Red Shell Bay is an out-of-the-way, quiet little summer resort on the New England coast. Besides the one small hotel there are perhaps a dozen cottages altogether too insignificant a place for the railroad to include along its line. So the Iron Horse passed Red Shell Bay full ten miles to the westward, and communication with New York and Boston is kept up by means of a steamer which, during the summer months, makes bi-weekly trips.

This was Wednesday, and the steamer left New York Tuesdays and Fridays, so, if Dick would be at Red Shell Bay on Thursday he must take the train to Derbyville and walk or drive the additional ten miles. "Well," thought he, "I have often walked it before, and I think I can do it once more; I can walk over early in the morning."

However Dick missed the night train, and the train that left New York on Thursday morning did not bring him to Derbyville until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Meanwhile he had telegraphed to Miss Trevor—

"Will walk over from Derbyville Thursday evening. Try and meet me at the old place."

The Derbyville road lay for more than two miles along the top of the cliffs before it entered the seaside village of Red Shell Bay. Dick had been wont to leave the highway and take to the sands where Mildred had several times met him to bear him company at the close of his walk.

It was just sundown when Dick came to the point where he usually left the road for the beach, and although it was the close of a sultry day in August, the ocean appeared unusually sullen, while the sky looked wild with that strange mixture of thick blackness and fiery redness which we sometimes see before a terrible storm.

Dick began to think that he was in for a wet skin. If for nothing else, and hoped that Mildred had not started out. Hardly had the hope escaped his thoughts when from his elevated position he saw in the fading light, perhaps a quarter of a mile down the shore, the well-remembered girlish figure—Mildred. He quickened his footsteps, and as speedily as possible descended to the beach. It did not take him more than two minutes, but in that short space of time the stormy twilight changed to pitchy darkness. It was fearfully dark—so dark that Dick could not see the waves, though he could feel the [illegible] at his feet. Ah! It was a high tide, too, and still running in. If it were not that he had seen Mildred he would certainly now have returned to the roadway; now he must hasten to her aid. Yet he could not make much headway. He had to repeatedly dodge the advancing waters, and it was so dark he could see nothing. When he thought he had walked a quarter of a mile he halted and shouted "Mildred!" But no voice responded to his call. Again and again he repeated his halloo, and, just as he began to think a terrible calamity had overtaken his sweetheart, he stumbled over something—a woman—Mildred.

Dick was on his knees in an instant, and was horrified to find Mildred's dress and hair soaking wet. She lay as though dead—perhaps she was dead—and yet she could hardly have been drowned, though even at that moment a huge wave broke uncomfortably close to Dick and his lifeless companion.

Dick Ryder was no simpleton; he did not lose his senses, although his heart was sad and heavy. His first care was to carry the poor girl as far as he could from the water, and when he had deposited his burden at the foot of the cliff he felt her pulse and found it still beating, feebly. He chafed her hands and tore away the dress from the slender neck. Then he put his ear down to her face and found that she was breathing faintly, in short, quick gasps. It was an embarrassing situation. The night so dark that he could not see the senseless girl at his feet. On one side the high cliffs and on the other the sea running in on a high tide, threatening to cut off retreat by way of the beach.

There was only one chance and he would take it. He must hurry back to the pathway by which he had descended from the road and secure help from the cottage which he knew to be a few rods back from the cliff at that point.

He kissed the cold, wet lips, and started off. In ten minutes he was at the cottage. While waiting for the man he found there to light a lantern, he noticed that his hand held a miniature portrait in a setting of diamonds. He must have torn it from Mildred's neck when he loosened her dress, for there was a fragment of silk thread attached to it.

Unconsciously, almost, he looked at the portrait—it was Walter Rockwell! He had completely forgotten the existence of such a person during the excitement of the last half hour, but even at such a time as this the distasteful fact of his engagement to Mildred must be forced upon him. "Well, no matter," thought Dick, "I must save her for him."

Ten minutes more and Mildred was being carried back to the cottage on a hastily improvised stretcher. When they reached the cottage the man's wife was in waiting with dry clothing and warm drinks. And then, for the first time, Dick saw that the girl he had found on the shore was not Mildred at all.

And yet the stranger was so wonderfully like Mildred in height and figure, as well as the shape of her head, that it was no wonder Dick Ryder had been mistaken. The old lady took absolute charge of the stranger and Dick, after promising to call in the morning, hurried off to Red Shell Bay.

Early in the morning he was up to the Trevors' cottage, where he found Mildred perfectly well, and wondering why he had not been to see her on the previous evening. Of course he had to narrate his adventure, which he did with much modesty, (not mentioning the kiss he had bestowed upon the stranger.)

Mildred insisted upon accompanying him to the cottage, and together they set out in a carriage which Dick had in waiting. They learned that the girl had quite recovered from the effects of her mishap, and half an hour after their arrival she appeared on the porch in a bright dress that Mildred had brought for her use. The two girls were so much alike that they would easily have passed for twin sisters. The stranger spoke first:

"Mr.—Mr.—" ("Ryder," suggested Dick.) "Mr. Ryder, how can I thank you? I came down from New York on the night train, and yesterday morning started out to walk from Derbyville station to Red Shell Bay. I thought that I could easily walk ten miles, but I lost my way, and, as you know, by sunset I was still some distance from my destination. I was so weary and so frightened when the thick darkness gathered with such rapidity that, when that fearful flash of lightning came, followed by the heavy thunder, I fainted. Then I felt the water rushing over me and I recovered sufficiently to drag myself a little higher up the beach. After that I fainted again and knew no more until I awoke this morning. I must have been a great deal of trouble to you, and I cannot thank you properly."

Dick murmured something about "a pleasure," etc., etc.

"By the way," resumed the young lady, "I have missed a miniature painting which I value highly. I thought it just possible that you might have found it—a portrait of my husband."

Dick was astonished, but admirably suppressed his surprise. Nay, more, he was even capable of concocting a small scheme.

"I did," said he, "accidentally take this miniature from you last night. It is an exquisite little thing—you will not mind Miss Trevor seeing it?" and he passed the trinket to Mildred.

And now Dick thought he was about to have another fainting girl on his hands, but Mildred's pride carried her through. She quietly admired the miniature and handed it to its owner.

"I am lately from England," explained the stranger, "and learning that my husband was at Red Shell Bay, I thought I would take him by surprise. His name is Rockwell."

Dick felt that he and Mildred had stayed long enough. So he suggested that Mrs. Rockwell rest until the afternoon, when he would call for her. He and Mildred drove back to the village—and a very silent drive it was.

When Dick returned to the cottage for Mrs. Rockwell she was gone. She had been driven over to Derbyville and had returned to New York. Dick and Mildred never saw her again, nor Walter Rockwell either.

That evening, which was quiet and fair, Dick and Mildred strolled along the sands. Very near to the spot where he found Mrs. Rockwell Dick whispered to his love: "You will not let any one else come between us, will you, dear?"

For an answer Mildred kissed him. Nothing was then or since said of the letter which had troubled Dick. Arm in arm they strolled back along the shore, and they have walked, arm in arm, along the sands of Time, ever since.

A Boy's Idea of a Thunder-Storm.

A little boy about 4 years old, living in a New Jersey town, ran to the window one evening lately during a heavy thunder-storm. As he looked out, long, glittering lines of forked, zig-zag lightning ran across the black sky, then came a broad flash, lighting up all the west and northwest.

"Oh, mamma! mamma!" sobbed the little fellow, "God's house is all on fire! Will He be burned up in it?"

A few moments later, hearing the rain pouring in torrents, he ran to her, crying exultantly: "Mamma! mamma! God has turned on His hose. Now His house won't burn up."—Harper's Magazine.

Mrs. Cleveland Uses Dumb Bells.

It has been remarked that Mrs. Cleveland possesses exceptionally strong wrists, and is consequently able to endure the prolonged handshaking of public receptions without over fatigue. Her strength of muscle is attributed to the persistent use of dumb-bells. She is said to be quite a gymnast and owes much of her graceful carriage to the thorough command of her body given by calisthenic exercises.

WELL-arranged time is a sign of a well-ordered mind.

SERMONS OF THE FUTURE

Rev. Dr. Talmage Says They Will Be Short.

[illegible]

THE MOON AND THE WEATHER.

[illegible]

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

[illegible]

THE FEDERAL CONSTITUTION.

[illegible]

INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE

No. 663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

Not a Hospital, but a pleasant Remedial Home, organized with

A FULL STAFF OF EIGHTEEN PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS,

And exclusively devoted to the treatment of all Chronic Diseases.

A FAIR AND BUSINESS-LIKE OFFER TO INVALIDS.

NOT ALWAYS NECESSARY TO SEE PATIENTS.

COMMON SENSE AS APPLIED TO MEDICINE.

OUR FIELD OF SUCCESS.

WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, 663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

Warm Weather

Hood's Sarsaparilla

RADWAY'S PILLS,

PENSIONS

PATENTS

PILES

BOSS COLLAR PAD.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

CHARLEVOIX, AUG. 10, 1887.

A pleasant yachting cruise is that just undertaken by Messrs. Edwin Booth, Lawrence Barret, T. B. Aldrich, Lawrence Hatton and other friends. They are steaming round the coast of New England in the steam yacht Oneida and will visit among other places Bar Harbor, Halifax and Labrador.

In spite of the boom in India wheat, of which so much is said in England, our country exported last month 16,126,379 bushels of wheat. This is pretty lively business, and it suggests that it will not do to abolish wheat growing in this country to the extent advised by some pessimists. Australia hasn't exported any wheat during the last two years, and the India wheat acreage has actually decreased during the last few years.

The old yarn about Mr. Cleveland staying at home from the war to care for a widowed mother is doing great service in Mugwump papers just now. The Hon. Lewis F. Allen, of Buffalo, Mr. Cleveland's uncle, who cared for him when he came to Buffalo, punctured that yarn long ago. He is authority for the statement that Mr. Cleveland's two brothers, who served in the army, cared for the mother instead of Grover, who remained at home.—New York Tribune.

It is estimated that so far this year workingmen have lost by the numerous strikes not less than $10,000,000. That immense sum has been taken from a class that could ill afford to ...

Northern Michigan News.

Wilson Bros. take 1,000 pounds of fish per day from Little Traverse bay.

Petoskey is agitating the sale of the village water works to private individuals.

The Kalkaska and Mancelona papers are having a lively squabble over the railroad question.

The Soldiers' and Sailors' reunion, to be held at Reed City, Sept. 6, 7 and 8 promises to be a grand affair.

Pickpockets are among the visitors at Bay View, and occasionally do a stroke of work during the religious exercises.

Williamsburg and Barker's Creek are booming themselves to see which shall get the Elk Rapids and Kalkaska railroad.

The one firm of Glenn & Porter scatters over seven hundred dollars every week among the workingmen of East Jordan.

D. C. Hurd of East Jordan, and F. E. Boosinger of Lansing, succeed John Chamberlin, general merchant of the former place.

A lady resorter lost her purse at Petoskey, containing $98, and when a little boy, who had found it, returned it to her, she magnanimously offered him five cents.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. S. Steele of Northport, celebrated their golden wedding at the Occidental hotel, Petoskey, Friday night by a reception to 75 friends, and an enjoyable evening.

A gentleman down from Mackinac Island, last week, says the Bay City Tribune, stated that 300 new rooms have been completed in the new hotel there, and that all of them are filled, and parties are being turned away for lack of accommodation.

One of the oldest landmarks in Traverse City is being demolished ...

The Manistique Sunday Sun speaks thusly: "Tom Nelson, formerly of the East Jordan Enterprise, but who has been connected with the Sun for the past two months, left on Tuesday morning for pastures new, the climate here not agreeing with him." Tom also has been sticking type for twenty five cents per thousand since the latter part of May, and it is presumed that having gathered in a sufficiency of shekels he will continue his travels, but whither no one knoweth.

Bellaire Breeze: A. C. VanTassel went trout fishing on the Jordan river the other day. After capturing a fair sized string he hung them upon a tree and proceeded to make further explorations. When he returned to the spot where the fish had been left an old bear and two cubs had taken possession of the real estate in that neighborhood and were putting the fruit of his labor where it would do the most good. Not wishing to mar his well-known reputation as a peaceable, law-abiding citizen, he concluded to submit to this piece of imposition with as much grace and alacrity as his advancing years would permit. And from all reports we have been able to hear, he did so.

Record: To-morrow Miss Ella Fincham will leave for five years service as a missionary in Bulgaria, and her many friends desiring to bid her "God speed," the young ladies foreign missionary society of the M. E. church tendered her a farewell reception at the charming home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McCune on Monday evening. The house was beautifully decorated with evergreens, and the house and grounds lit up with Chinese lanterns. On the lawn a canopy covered a long refreshment table over which hung a beautiful floral bell. Over one hundred guests partook of refreshments ...

[illegible]

CROSS & SONS., Buy and Sell all kinds of Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc. Charlevoix, - Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY, Photographer. In Bradbeer's Gallery. Photographs of all sizes taken. Old Pictures copied and enlarged. CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

New JEWELRY AND SILVER WARE. I have just received a very fine stock of Watches, Chains, Pins, Clocks, Silver-Ware, etc which I will sell at Prices lower than the same goods can be purchased outside. Did it ever occur to you that by patronizing home Merchants you were benefiting yourselves? All classes of Repairing done quickly. C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick, ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR, —ON— Chalevoix Summer Resorts. I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages. I employ only first-class workmen, both Carpenters and Painters. Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention. J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

Fox & Miller Offer a Mammoth Stock OF BOOTS, SHOES and other FOOT WEAR, --AT-- LOWER PRICES Than can be found elsewhere in the County. We have just secured a FIRST-CLASS SHOEMAKER, And will make Repairing a specialty. We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them. NOTHING SHODDY. Fox & Miller.

The Kalamazoo "DAILY TELEGRAPH." Contains the Associated Press Dispatches Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO. Charlevoix, Mich. Manufacturers of and Wholesale and Retail Dealers 3 EXTRA GRADES OF FLOUR Feed, Corn Meal, Graham. We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

M. LITNEY. JOS. STEIMEL. Litney & Steimel LIVERY, And Feed Barn Charlevoix, Mich. Good Rigs at Lowest Rates.

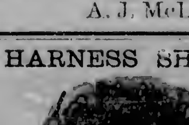
It Pays to Buy the BEST BOATS! The large number of boats I have built for resorters, are advertisements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references. I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the LEAST MONEY! All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made. LEAVE ORDERS with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you. Special facilities for stocking boat liveries. J. BEAUVAIS.

BOOTS & SHOES Have you seen our $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00 Gents Shoes? If not do so at once. They are made solid throughout even to the counter. You'll have no trouble with these goods running over at the heel. These goods cannot be equalled in the county Either in style, quality or price. We will take pains this season to have in stock goods that will suit all. New ad. soon on Ladies' Fine Shoes of latest styles New York, Common Sense, and London Toes.

Ladies Look Out For the new line of latest style goods that is on the road for D. SHERWOOD & CO.

A. J. McLEOD, Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at Wholesale or Retail All kinds of FRESH MEATS, SALT PORK, SMOKED & SALTED HAMS, Dried and Smoked BACON, DRIED BEEF, Bologna, Head Cheese, Sausage. Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS. Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates. A. J. McLEOD.

HARNESS SHOP!



E. B. HODGE & CO., Are prepared to do all classes of work in the shape of HARNESS MAKING. Light or Heavy Harnesses made as good and as cheap as can be gotten in any city. Give us a call, we are located on Bridge Street, next to Bellinger's jewelery store. E. B. HODGE & CO.

Washburn & Ackert, FOUNDREYMEN, MACHINISTS, And Manufacturers of The Charlevoix Plow.

Take The Sentinel.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

[illegible]

W. H. FRANCIS FURNITURE —AND— JOBBING SHOP, Will also do Contracting & Building, In Charlevoix, and Summer Resorts. I keep in my shop a full set of hand and foot power machinery which enables me to do jobbing, repairing etc. on short notice. Shop on South Terrace, Opposite Sheriff Berdan's residence.

MILLINERY, FANCY GOODS, DRESS-MAKING. We have just opened a large line of Spring and Summer Millinery and Fancy Goods to which we invite your attention. DRESS-MAKING done on the TAILOR SYSTEM. The best work done at the lowest rates. ALDRICH SISTERS. Ingleside Building.

MERCHANT TAILORING. I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring. Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates. Call and see me. Satisfation Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours, C. H. Maddaugh.

CHARLEVOIX Manufacturing Co. Charlevoix, Mich., Manufacturers of Sash and Doors, Blinds, Mouldings etc. NEWELL Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails kept in stock. Window & Door Frames made to order. All Kinds of Building Material Kept constantly on hand. PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS, Furnished on application. Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building. Correspondence solicited.

Take The Sentinel.

PAINTS! STOVES, HARDWARE, TINWARE, FISHING TACKLE, NOTIONS, ETC., ETC. THE BEST FORCE PUMPS, FARMING IMPLEMENS.

JOB AND TIN WORK. L. D. Bartholomew & Co. JOB AND TIN WORK.

DRUGS and STATIONERY, OF EVERY DESCRIPTION. A Large and Complete New Line JUST RECEIVED. EVERYTHING YOU CAN THINK OF. You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices. PERRY WEED. The only News stand in town.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN Boiler Works! BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS. Sheet Iron Work given special attention. MARINE WORK a specialty. HENRY BARTH, Prop. Charlevoix, Mich.

HUMPHREYS' DR. HUMPHREYS' BOOK Cloth & Gold Binding. HOMEOPATHIC SPECIFICS.

CURES Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, Whooping Cough, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Consumption, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Diseases. YOUNG'S COUGH SYRUP. Sold by all druggists. W. JOHNSTON & CO., DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

160 Acres in MARION Township For Sale at a Bargain, Terms to suit. MONEY TO LOAN ON Approved Real Estate Security. THEODORE R. CHAPIN Boyne City.

FRANK E. WOODS Bath & Barber Rooms Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd fellows Block.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS. Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House. JAY L. PRICE.

NEW SHOP! All kinds of Blacksmithing, At the Shop in the Foundry Building. Horseshoeing a specialty. ALL WORK GUARANTEED. M. SCOTT.

WANTED! Potatoes, Onions, Apples, Peaches and Blueberries. We have an old established trade and can place stock to best advantage. Consignments solicited. Correspondence invited from shippers. Stencil and shipping tags furnished. W. H. THOMPSON & CO. Commission Merchants, No. 166 South Water St, CHICAGO, ILL.

JAS. A. GELLICK, Dealer in Choice Wines, Fine Liquors EXCELLENT CIGARS. We call Special Attention to our Old Kentucky Sour Mash WHISKIES. We also keep continually on draught Milwaukee Export and lager Beer. Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX. MICHIGAN.

NEWS BUDGET.

Fresh Intelligence from Every Part of the Civilized World.

Foreign and Domestic News, Political Events, Personal Points, Labor Notes, Etc.

LATEST DISPATCHES.

CHICAGO BOODLERS.

...Believed to Be in Canada.

A CHICAGO telegram of Thursday last says:

Interesting and racy developments were made again yesterday in the boodlers' trial. A number of persons testified to selling goods to the county and paying commissions to members of the gang. Several of the witnesses admitted that they cheated the county in their bills in order to make up for the amounts given the gang. Henry C. Walker, a carriage manufacturer, swore that a bill presented the county in his name and his signature on the warrant issued in payment thereof were forgeries. It is the universal impression in Chicago that the entire batch of indicted officials will be convicted and sent to the penitentiary. McGarigle is now believed to have sailed from Chicago on the schooner E. R. Blake, which cleared suddenly from this port Saturday night, ostensibly for Kingston, Ontario. An interest in the schooner is owned by Dr. St. John, the friend of the fugitive, who had a long conversation with him at the jail Saturday afternoon. A yacht is in pursuit of the E. R. Blake, which has not touched at any port since leaving Chicago.

MANGLED ON THE RAIL.

Freight and Construction Trains Crash Together on the Chicago and Alton Railroad—Six Persons Killed Outright, and Nearly a Dozen Others Badly Injured.

A DREADFUL calamity occurred on the Kansas City line of the Chicago and Alton Railway near Hopedale, Ill., twenty-five miles west of Bloomington, on Wednesday afternoon. Freight train No. 74, bound for Kansas City, crashed into the construction train on Orendorff's bridge, two miles south of Hopedale. A large number of cars were smashed and many casualties resulted. The following were killed: Morton Dunseth, of Delavan; Walter, a boy on the construction train; James Brown, of Hopedale; Frank Drake, of Petersburg; Plano Barrow, of Ashland; James Kellogg, residence unknown. The following were wounded: August Kadel, of Bloomington, shoulder broken; John Ely, of Hopedale, leg broken and foot smashed; Samuel Anderson, leg amputated; W. Kenney, of Tallula, head bruised; Sherman Atkins, of Hopedale, leg hurt; Thomas Kavanaugh, road master, of the Alton Road, leg and ankle sprained; Frank Holmes, of Bloomington, engineer of the freight, arm hurt; Thomas Delong, brakeman, of Bloomington, badly hurt; Fireman Maher, of Bloomington, slightly hurt. The wounded and killed were all taken to Hopedale, and the injured received attention from Bloomington surgeons. The cause of the accident is still unknown.

Ohio Republican Convention.

THE State Republican Convention of Ohio assembled Wednesday at Toledo. Hon. Dan Ryan, of Scioto, was made temporary Chairman. A resolution was presented indorsing the Hon. John Sherman for the nomination to the Presidency. On motion of General Warren Keifer, it went to the committee without debate. A resolution presented by the anti-Sherman men pledged the enthusiastic support of the party to the national nominee, and simply called the attention of the Republicans of the State to the career of Mr. Sherman. At the evening meeting of the Committee on Resolutions it was decided to report favorably the resolution indorsing Mr. Sherman, offered by General Grosvenor.

A Fighting Editor Horsewhipped.

D. R. ANTHONY, the aggressive editor of the Leavenworth Times, was publicly horsewhipped in that city by Councilman Bond, whom he had assailed in his paper. This is no new experience for the veteran editor, who is never without a fierce personal controversy on hand, and sometimes has half a dozen at a time. He is a brother of Susan B. Anthony, and is a born fighter. At last accounts he was parading the streets of Leavenworth with a revolver in his hand, while his assailant had been arrested and released on bail.

Maryland Democrats.

THE Maryland Democrats in convention at Baltimore nominated Elihu E. Jackson for Governor. The resolutions indorse the administration, demand a reduction of taxation, oppose pauper and convict immigration, and favor a reform in elections.

Telegraphic Briefs.

THE Riverside Iron and Steel Company, of Cincinnati, in which Bank-Wrecker Harper was interested, has assigned, with liabilities of $200,000 and assets of $50,000.

"CHARLEY" REED, ex-Prosecuting Attorney of Chicago, who defended Guiteau, was driven from a Jersey City hotel where he boarded. The head waiter charged Reed with attempting to rob the money drawer.

THE Citizens' Savings Bank of Leavenworth has closed its doors. The President (Clemens) is a defaulter to the tune of about $40,000, and has left for parts unknown. The bank held over $100,000 of deposits.

THE noted Prohibition leader, General Clinton B. Fisk, of New Jersey, says the Prohibitionists will nominate a national ticket next year, and believes a combination between them and the Labor party not improbable.

THE naval board appointed to examine the new cruiser Atlanta finds that the vessel, with its present armament, is wholly unfit for service. The Boston and Chicago are supposed to be in the same condition.

EAST.

NEAR a curve on the Erie Road, between Hohokus and Allendale, N. Y., Thursday morning, the Chicago express train dashed through a gang of Italian laborers who were ballasting the lines. A dozen of the men were killed, their heads, arms, and legs being thrown in all directions. The express train was late, and at the time of the catastrophe was running at the rate of forty miles an hour. A passenger on the train describes the scene as one of the most sickening that could be witnessed. "Along the tracks," he said, "were arms, legs, trunks, and other parts of bodies, and the tracks for a long distance were slippery with blood. The disaster must have taken place with such appalling suddenness that the men did not know of their danger till the train was upon them. The conductor of the train on which I rode said that the train hands of the express were not to blame. He believed the foreman of the gang was responsible for the disaster by neglecting to give warning." Another account of the terrible accident says that about one hundred Italians were at work on the road-bed, when a train came along, and the Italians stepped onto the other track to allow it to go by. Just then the Chicago express thundered down at forty miles an hour, and literally mowed its way through, slinging the unfortunates right and left, tearing legs and arms and heads off, and grinding flesh into the road-

...

WEST.

...Toledo Commercial, died at his home in that city. He was a brave soldier during the war, and had been active in Ohio politics as a Republican for many years.

A SALT LAKE dispatch announces the death of John Taylor, President of the Mormon Church. He was an Englishman, and was 78 years old. He was President of the twelve apostles when Brigham Young died, in 1877, and as such remained at the head of the church till 1880, when he organized the first Presidency anew, taking the chief place himself, which he held till his death. After the passage of the Edmunds law of 1882 he pretended to give up his wives, but constantly preached that no Mormon could do this, and nobody believed that he had done it. He was indicted early in 1885. He last appeared in public Feb. 1, 1885. Since then he had been in hiding from the officers of the law. Taylor was one of the earliest and firmest adherents of polygamy, yet after adopting it he took occasion to deny that such a practice prevailed among Mormons.

A CHICAGO telegram of Wednesday says: Yesterday was a red-letter day for the prosecution in the boodle trial. Butcher Stepper and Grocer Robinson testified to corrupt dealings with the "gang" extending over a number of years, giving their evidence with great minuteness of detail, and coming out of their cross-examination with flying colors. Several other important witnesses were examined, and, on the whole, the day's developments were a bitter dose for the defendants. They revealed the existence of a system of wholesale fraud and bribery than which nothing more brazen or flagrant has ever been disclosed in the annals of official knavery, and render the case for the State apparently impregnable. McGarigle, who escaped from custody last Sunday, has not been heard of. It is believed he is safe in Canada. Sheriff Matson has offered a reward of $2,500 for his arrest.

FIRE in the "Big Boston" Building, at Minneapolis, Minn., burned out W. E. Steele & Co., extensive clothiers; the Franklin Bazaar, and other firms. The loss is placed as high as $750,000.

SOUTH.

EX-CONGRESSMAN ASA H. GLOVER died at Georgetown, Kentucky. He was a relative of President Cleveland.

HENRY WIGGINS, a negro, aged 20, was hanged in the jail at Palatka, Fla., for murder. The execution was private. Life was extinct in twenty-three minutes, his neck being broken by the fall. Wiggins made no statement, but the attending priest spoke for him. He said he was sorry for the crime, and begged forgiveness of all.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, a negro, attempted a criminal assault on Miss Bellie Varnin of Mississippi City, Miss., and was lynched.

RICHARD HARKNESS, who had turned Mormon and was living with three wives, was taken out of his house near Columbia, S. C., by a band of "regulators," a night or two ago, peeled to the buff, and given twenty-five lashes, every one of which drew blood.

WASHINGTON.

W. A. FRERRET, of Louisiana, has been appointed Supervising Architect of the Treasury, vice M. E. Bell, resigned.

THE Treasury Department has reversed the recent action of the Collector at Janesville, Wis., in making a seizure of horses where the claim was made by importers that the animals were for breeding. The decision is of great interest to horse-breeders.

THE Missouri delegation to urge the President to visit St. Louis reached the White House Monday. About one hundred and fifty ladies and gentlemen were in the party, and their reception by the Chief Magistrate was quite cordial. Mayor Francis made a speech informing the President of the many interests that asked his presence in the West. His Excellency replied in a very happy manner, concluding with the words: "But the thing must be done. I will come," and adding, "Mrs. Cleveland will not let me forget her." The members of the Cabinet and their wives were included in the invitation.

UPON the assumption that the causes of complaint have been removed, the Secretary of the Interior recommends the Attorney General to discontinue suits now pending against prominent cattle companies in New Mexico for maintaining fences on the public domain, the defendants to pay all costs.

THE following are the internal revenue collections for the last fiscal year, arranged by districts and by the subjects of taxation, for five Northwestern States:

Dis-trict.	Spirits.	Tobacco and cigars.	Beer.	Oleo-mar-garine.	Total.
ILLINOIS.
1	$6,534,248	$865,021	$1,178,331	$240,910	$8,851,525
2	13,494	86,525	121,267	162	211,446
3	64,210	131,748	90,627	201	331,861
5	13,576,068	25,122	52,618	108	13,657,923
8	1,762,249	54,096	46,960	1,162	1,186,961
13	361,730	56,978	108,158	1,009	570,660
INDIANA.
6	2,570,884	27,181	197,253	836	2,830,303
7	960,467	61,941	146,180	301	1,166,135
11	59,500	82,718	63,037	56,385	261,746
IOWA.
2	1,098,703	60,040	63,183	264	1,271,481
3	8[illegible]	89,263	75,218	.....	188,267
4	15,614	42,301	28,434	.....	88,351
MICHIGAN.
1	120,706	1,655,772	398,222	17,087	2,209,882
4	30,182	81,610	78,900	4,132	211,025
WISCONSIN.
1	382,464	599,028	1,132,160	1,317	2,125,620
2	[illegible]	47,821	[illegible]	.....	[illegible]
3	65,064	86,643	148,267	1,673	301,648
6	44,460	35,248	1,[illegible]	4,061	205,107

THE President has appointed the following-named postmasters: John C. Seltzer, at Shenandoah, Pa., vice S. P. Kindt, resigned; John Vandevoort, at Wellston, Ohio, vice M. R. Potter, deceased; Oscar H. Dean, at Pentwater, Michigan, vice C. F. Lewis, resigned; W. P. Ross, at Wilton Junction, Iowa, vice John M. Ryder, removed; J. B. Kessler, at Ottawa, Kan., vice John E. Bliss, removed; J. S. Mattingly, at Sedan, Kan., vice D. J. Moore, removed; Patrick J. Morgan, at Solomon City, Kan., vice D. W. Wilson, removed; W. J. Rouseau, at Starkville, Miss., vice M. T. Sullivan, commission expired.

POLITICS.

THE Ohio Democratic State Convention met at Cleveland on Thursday, and performed its work in an expeditious manner. It nominated Thomas E. Powell, of Delaware, for Governor on the second ballot. D. C. Coolman, of Portage County, was nominated for Lieutenant Governor by acclamation, and L. R. Critchfield, of Holmes County, and Virgil P. Kline, of Cleveland,

...

LABOR.

LARGE numbers of strikers in the coke region have returned to work, but new complications are said to have arisen which may prevent a settlement of the trouble. It has been one of the most stubborn strikes ever seen in Pennsylvania, and the loss in wages alone is estimated at $996,000.

THE membership of the Knights of Labor is rapidly diminishing in Rhode Island. A Pittsburgh paper is authority for the statement that elaborate plans have been made to control the approaching General Assembly in the interest of the Powderly clique.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

THE Interstate Commerce Commission has delivered its opinion in the cases brought by Louis Larrison and the Michigan Central against the Grand Trunk Railroad Company. Larrison complained that the road would not sell him a 1,000-mile ticket at the price paid by commercial travelers, and the Michigan Central Company complains that the Grand Trunk Company was selling to commercial travelers at lower rates than to the public generally. The opinion says:

Commercial travelers are not privileged to ride over railroads at lower rates than are paid by other persons. Whatever reasonable rates commercial travelers are made to pay other travelers may be made to pay. To charge one man more than another is unjust discrimination, and this is true whether tickets issued are mileage tickets or in some other form.

In the complaint of the St. Louis grocers that the Missouri Pacific Road charges $25 for 1,000-mile tickets, while making commutation rates which would amount to not more than $15 for 1,000 miles, the commission in its decision says it does not regard the fact that commutation tickets are put on sale at a given rate as entitling the purchaser of a mileage ticket to complain of unjust discrimination if it charged a higher rate. The circumstances and conditions are not the same. The commission finds nothing in the testimony going to show that the charge of $25 for a 1,000-mile ticket is unreasonable.

GENERAL.

AN Amherstburg (Ont.) special says the barge Theodore Perry went to the bottom of Lake Erie during a storm. There were seven persons aboard, and only two are known to have escaped.

IF the pending negotiations are successful, the war in cable rates will terminate within six weeks. So, at least, says Dr. Green, President of the Western Union. The Central and South American Telegraph Company has been granted authority to build and operate a line across the Isthmus of Panama and to extend its cables along the Atlantic coast of South America.

FOREIGN.

THE negotiations between Germany and the Vatican for the Germanization of Alsace-Lorraine are said to have failed because the Pope declines to prohibit the use of French in the seminaries of the provinces.

A LONDON dispatch says the Conservatives have abandoned all the obnoxious features in the land bill, and when passed it will be a Parnellite measure. The Conservative whips have informed the members that unless the Government receives their full support Lord Salisbury will resign, and will not attempt to form a coalition ministry.

BY the loss of the steamer John A. Lawrence in the Bay of Bengal 800 lives were lost, mainly pilgrims of the best families of Bengal. There is scarcely a native family in Calcutta which does not lament the loss of a relative by the disaster. Terrific storms swept over the Bay of Bengal for nearly a week, with disastrous results to shipping and attended with great loss of life.

A VIOLENT volcanic eruption has occurred on the Island of Galita, off the coast of Algeria. Streams of lava are issuing from the crater of the volcano, and the glare of the flames emitted is visible for fifty miles.

AN Irish constable, who resigned out of disgust with the coercion act, has been made the subject of an enthusiastic popular demonstration at Dublin. Other constables have resigned for the same reason.

MARKET REPORTS.

NEW YORK.
CATTLE	$4.00	@ 5.00
HOGS	5.50	@ 6.00
WHEAT—No. 1 Hard	.86½	@ .87½
No. 2 Red	.81	@ .91½
CORN—No. 2	.45	@ .46
OATS—White	.39	@ .42
PORK—New Mess	16.00	@ 16.50
CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice to Prime Steers	4.25	@ 4.75
Medium	3.00	@ 4.00
Common	2.75	@ 3.25
HOGS—Shipping Grades	5.00	@ 5.50
FLOUR—Winter Wheat	4.20	@ 4.50
WHEAT—No. 2 Red Winter	.72	@ .73
CORN—No. 2	.39	@ .40
OATS—No. 2	.26	@ .28
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	.20	@ .21
Fine Dairy	.14	@ .16
CHEESE—Full Cream, cheddars	.08½	@ .09
Full Cream, new	.09	@ .09½
EGGS—Fresh	.10	@ .11
POTATOES—Choice, new, per bu.	.40	@ .60
PORK—Mess	16.75	@ 17.25
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—Cash	.68½	@ .69½
CORN—No. 3	.37	@ .37½
OATS—No. 2 White	.29	@ .31
RYE—No. 1	.54	@ .56
PORK—Mess	11.75	@ 12.25
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 2	.70	@ .70½
CORN—Mixed	.33	@ .34
OATS—Mixed	.23½	@ .24
PORK—New Mess	15.25	@ 15.75
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—Cash	.73	@ .73½
CORN—No. 2	.39	@ .39½
OATS	.26	@ .27
DETROIT.
BEEF CATTLE	3.75	@ 5.25
HOGS	4.00	@ 5.00
SHEEP	3.75	@ 4.75
WHEAT—No. 1 White	.73	@ .73½
CORN—No. 2	.42	@ .42½
OATS—No. 2 White	.33	@ .33½
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.73	@ .73½
CORN—No. 2	.42	@ .42½
OATS—No. 2	.29	@ .30
PORK—Mess	15.75	@ 16.25
LIVE HOGS	5.25	@ 5.75
BUFFALO.
WHEAT—No. 1 Hard	.81	@ .82
CORN—No. 2	.42	@ .43
CATTLE	4.00	@ 4.50
INDIANAPOLIS.
BEEF CATTLE	3.50	@ 4.50
HOGS	5.00	@ 5.50
SHEEP	3.45	@ 4.00
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.69	@ .70
CORN	.36	@ .36½
OATS—No. 2 Mixed	.24	@ .25
EAST LIBERTY.
CATTLE—Prime	4.00	@ 4.25
Fair	3.50	@ 4.00
Common	3.00	@ 3.50
HOGS	5.25	@ 5.75
SHEEP	4.00	@ 4.75

HIT THE NAIL ON THE HEAD.

Statements Made by Northern Democrats in the South as to Politics.

Bloody Shirt Talk the Stock in Trade of the Average Southern Politician.

...dress, or to a college commencement and hear orations, or to a public gatherings and hear a speech, or attend any kind of a public occasion where there is speech-making, and you will hear the lost cause alluded to in some form or another as a thing to be glorified, remembered, and treasured. It is the one thing that the Southern orator keeps on hand as a sort of stock in trade, and his appeal is to the old Confederate element to stand together and make common cause against Northern politicians and Northern policy of government. The very same men in almost the same breath will denounce John Sherman as a bloody-shirter for standing up and demanding for every man, white or black, his rights to vote free, untrammeled, and unchallenged, whether he be North, South, East, or West. The inconsistency of the thing is getting tiresome, which induces me to speak where otherwise I might hold my tongue."

Captain Carpenter, of Illinois, who is engaged in railroad enterprises in Texas, said the other day: "I have been tender-mouthed about the South for four or five years. I thought it was about time for us to stop what they called the 'bloody shirt' cry; but I heard enough in Texas among the Southerners there to convince me that the old spirit of the Confederacy is as much alive to-day as it was when they fired on Fort Sumter. They do not assert that they will fight, because they have learned a pretty good lesson about fighting; but they intend to make their fight just the same and score their point if they can without any appeal to arms. One fellow said to me, at the hotel at Galveston where I was stopping, that if President Cleveland would stand by his order the people of the South would go up to Washington and take the flags whether or not there was opposition from the North. You scratch a genuine Southern man on his back on the subject of secession, and he is as much a secessionist to-day as if he had not appealed to the arbitrament of war on that question and been whipped. I have come home from there thoroughly determined to wave the bloody shirt, and denounce Southern methods until all the secessionist is trounced out of these fellows in one way or another. It is they who flaunt the bloody shirt and not the people of the North."

CLEVELAND'S SUBSTITUTE.

The Story of His Enlistment—The President Fails to Keep His Promises.

[Bath (N. Y.) special.]

George Brinske, President Cleveland substitute, now in the Soldiers' Home at this place, is a Pole, and in his early years followed the life of a sailor on the great lakes. To a reporter to-day he said:

In 1863 I was employed on the propeller Acme, and frequently made the port of Buffalo. Drafts were being made and substitutes were in big demand, with good money offered. I heard of men getting as high as $300 for going to the war, and when Captain Rhinehardt, of Buffalo, came to me and asked me if I wanted to make some money, I told him yes. He said that Mr. Cleveland, the Assistant City Attorney, wanted a substitute, and that he would give me $150 after I enlisted if I would go the front. I wanted some money, and accepted the offer. The Captain took me to Cleveland's office and the offer was repeated by him. Rhinehardt took me to the office of 'Squire Ryan and I was sworn into the service. Cleveland gave me $150, and said that was all the money he had, and said that he had borrowed it from William Rhinehardt. He said he was sorry he couldn't give me more, but he promised me on his word and honor that if I lived to come back from the war he would give me money and do anything he could for me. I took the money and rode out to Fort Porter with Cleveland and Rhinehardt.

I was left at Fort Porter for a time and was then sent to Elmira, then to Riker's Island, in New York harbor, and then to Alexandria, where I was assigned to the Seventy-sixth New York Volunteers, a regiment which was raised in Schoharie County and then stationed at Rappahannock. I was a handy man around the hospital, and was detailed to that duty. I remained in hospitals all through the war and was never in a battle as a combatant.

The story that Cleveland's substitute was killed at the battle of Gettysburg was a lie, for I was mustered into the service July 6, and the battle of Gettysburg commenced July 1 and continued until the evening of July 4, 1863.

Soon after I got to my regiment I ran out of money, and wrote to Mr. Cleveland about it, and he sent me $5, and that is all the money I ever got from him.

At the fall of Richmond I was taking care of the wounded in a hospital fifteen miles below Petersburg. I staid there until the wounded men were nearly all taken away, and then, after receiving my discharge, I went back to Buffalo. I was sick and needed aid, but Cleveland refused to help me. I went away; but I was often sick, and was driven from one hospital to another, and was in a good many poor houses. I often tried to get some help from Cleveland but never succeeded. I never got a cent, and I had to live in poor houses and hospitals because I was unable to work. I have got a claim for a pension and have been trying to have the President help me, but he will not do it. Superintendent Winsfield and Dr. Berning of the poor house and Buffalo Plains know about my trying to get help from the President. I am old and poor, and I think the President ought to help me in some way. He promised to, and he ought to do it. I am in the hospital here and have hemorrhages, and need some money.

I have no family now, for my wife and children died at Locust Point, Ohio. I have a sister who lives back

...

A MUGWUMP PLAN FAILS.

...the organization would publicly withdraw, and thus give the nucleus for a Democratic society whose members would be ready to indorse everything Mr. Cleveland does. But the leading Democrats have been shy about doing this. They understand the situation better than the President's mugwump advisers, who have been vehemently calling on the Grand Army to apologize or else get ready for the vengeance of the second-term boomers. Their attention was first brought to it after the battle-flag blunder, when some of the office-holders here set up a demand that all Democrats in the organization withdraw from it. This fell so flat that some surprise was shown last week when the President's partisans again set up the same cry. It was thought that the split would begin in the East, but it didn't. It happens that some of the leading local Grand Army men are Democrats, and these have been in a frame of mind over the outlook, but none of them have come forward to say they would withdraw and try to start a new society of veterans. The word received here has been that the St. Louis encampment would be made the greatest success of years, and that the next year would show a growth in membership. This has not been comforting to the men who thought they could put in a wedge which would split the organization. The Grand Army men say that there is no doubt that ambitious politicians have tried to use the society in the past for personal ends, and the same attempts will be made in the future. But they have always sat down heavily on such men, and have no doubt that they will be able to keep on doing so. The politician who just now is said to be trying to work the political dodge the most is one of the main-stays of the administration—Commissioner Black.

Which Is Sectional?

"For convenience of reference," says the Toledo Blade, we present in parallel columns the different opinions held by the Southern Democrats—as gathered from the editorial columns of the Southern Democratic newspapers—and those entertained by the Republican party of the country.

The newspapers referred to claim that the "South is loyal," while they, as well as the yelping hounds of the doughface press of the North—Democratic and mugwump—call the Republican party of the nation "sectional." Read the parallel and decide which is the sectional set of opinions—the one on the left or the one on the right:

SOUTHERN VIEW.	REPUBLICAN VIEW.
1. Secession was a right, and was not rebellion.	1. Secession was rebellion, and the Union is and was indissoluble.
2. Secession was not treason, nor was Jeff Davis a traitor.	2. Secession was treason, and Davis was a traitor.
3. That the South was fighting for its rights.	3. The South had no rights imperiled.
4. The South was right in the war.	4. The South was wrong in all respects.
5. The South was not conquered, but overpowered by superior numbers.	5. The rebellion was conquered, and the South treated with rare magnanimity by the conquerors.
6. That the suppression of the colored vote is necessary to prevent the rule of an ignorant and non-property holding class.	6. Citizenship and the ballot were conferred on the negroes as the result of the war, and the constitutional guarantee is flagrantly violated by the suppression of their votes.
7. That each Southern State has a right to conduct its elections as the whites see fit.	7. That the suppression of the colored vote should be followed by a diminution of the basis of representation in Congress under the fourteenth amendment.
8. That the negro shall have only such rights and privileges as the whites see fit to allow.	8. That absolute equality before the law is the right of every American, irrespective of race or color.
9. That any expression of opinion hostile to the above eight points is a waving of the "bloody shirt."	9. That the criticism of such opinions as are given in the opposite column is not "reviving the war issue," but legitimate and proper

The Labor Party in 1888.

The New York World recently sent out a series of inquiries to leading labor men in the States and Territories, touching various matters connected with the policy of their organizations, particularly their platforms, their proposed action in the coming fall elections and the general election of 1888, and their opinion from which of the two old parties the strength of the labor movement will be derived. Replies have been published, coming from almost every State and Territory. The two factions—the United Labor and George men, on the one hand, and the Union Labor, or anti-George men, on the other—differ widely as to their platforms; but all agree, with substantial unanimity, on the determination to run independent tickets this fall and a labor nominee for the Presidency next year. In answer to the question from which of the two old parties the strength of the new movement will be derived, the majority estimate that three-fourths of the votes will be taken from the Democrats, and the remainder from the Republicans.

The Milk in the Cocoanut.

Albany Journal: President Cleveland, leaving Jeff Davis out of the count, is the first public man who has dared to court the enmity of the veterans of the war. He is also the first man elected to Federal office by the votes of the solid South. Account for the first phenomenon by the second.

They Have Tried It Before.

New York Tribune: The Democratic attempt to put to rout the Grand Army of the Republic had not succeeded, when we went to press. A similar Democratic attempt was inaugurated in 1861, and was persisted in for a number of years. It is understood that it didn't succeed worth a cent.

No Sympathy for Missouri.

Peoria Transcript: In the great effort now being made by the city of St. Louis and the State of Missouri to get the President to come West, the people of the other States will wish the Missourians success. Nothing is too bad for poor old Missouri.

REVENUE RECEIPTS.

Operations of the Internal Revenue Bureau During the Last Fiscal Year.

...ended June 30, 1887, was about $4,075,000. In order to ascertain the exact cost of collection it will be necessary to add the foregoing sum to the amount expended for the printing of internal revenue stamps, the appropriation for that purpose for the year ended June 30, 1887, having been included in the sum appropriated for the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. The amount expended for this purpose will be stated in a subsequent report.

During the year the offices of the several Collectors of Internal Revenue have been examined as frequently as possible, and the reports received of these examinations indicate a very generally satisfactory condition of the internal revenue service throughout the country. The receipts from the different objects of taxation as compared with receipts for the previous year were as follows: Spirits, $65,829,322, a decrease of $3,262,914. Tobacco, $30,108,067, an increase of $2,200,700. Fermented liquors, $21,922,187, an increase of $2,215,456. Oleomargarine, $723,948, all increase. Banks and bankers, $4,288, all increase; miscellaneous, $217,945, an increase of $21,435. The quantities of distilled spirits, fermented liquors, manufactured tobacco, snuff, cigars, and cigarettes, on which tax was paid during the year were as follows: Spirits distilled from grapes, apples, and peaches, 1,211,532 gallons, a decrease of 344,462. Spirits distilled from other materials, 66,163,859 gallons, a decrease of 3,126,502. Number of cigars, 3,788,305,443, an increase of 277,437,455. Number of cigarettes, 1,584,505,200, an increase of 273,543,854. Snuff, 6,561,875 pounds, an increase of 395,826. Tobacco, 199,937,618 pounds, an increase of 11,511,465. Fermented liquors, 23,121,526 barrels, an increase of 2,410,593 barrels.

The above figures indicate a decrease in the consumption of spirituous liquors and a corresponding increase in the consumption of malt liquors.

The following statement shows the collections of internal revenue by States and Territories during the year so far as the arrangement of districts will allow it to be done in that way.

Alabama	$78,642	Missouri	$7,858,850
Arkansas	97,640	Montana	101,158
California	2,651,221	Nebraska	2,335,101
Colorado	269,151	Nevada	70,419
Connecticut	481,115	N. Hampshire	377,462
Delaware	208,367	New Jersey	4,595,161
Florida	322,011	New Mexico	53,565
Georgia	336,743	New York	15,101,239
Illinois	24,855,707	N. Carolina	1,959,701
Indiana	4,210,038	Ohio	15,886,795
Iowa	1,521,121	Oregon	152,318
Kansas	211,120	Pennsylvania	8,129,757
Kentucky	12,417,521	Rhode Island	216,251
Louisiana	543,748	S. Carolina	104,146
Maine	50,226	Tennessee	1,012,516
Maryland	2,875,327	Texas	204,343
Massachusetts	2,471,131	Vermont	39,110
Michigan	1,801,907	Virginia	2,923,791
Minnesota	534,098	W. Virginia	598,293
Mississippi	43,805	Wisconsin	3,178,061
Cash receipts for sale of adhesive stamps			7,777
Aggregate receipts			118,837,757

The six principal collection districts are the Fifth Illinois, where $13,857,928 were collected; the First Illinois, where $8,851,915 were collected; the First Ohio, where $7,935,785 were collected; the First Missouri, where $6,227,192 were collected; the Third New York, where $5,572,259 were collected; and the Fifth Kentucky, where $5,251,321 were collected.

THE ANDOVER CONTROVERSY.

Egbert C. Smyth, the Recently Dismissed Phillips Academy Professor.

Almost everybody has heard of the Andover theological controversy, which has just broken out afresh with such vigor as to make some people say that it has only begun. The cause of new eruption is the recent action of the Board of Visitors in dismissing Prof.

Egbert C. Smyth from the chair of the ecclesiastical history in what is officially known as the Theological Institution in Phillips Academy in Andover, and more commonly termed Andover Seminary.

Prof. Smyth is charged with maintaining and inculcating beliefs inconsistent with and repugnant to the creed of the institution. Egbert Coffin Smyth, D. D., was born at Brunswick, Maine, Aug. 24, 1829. He received a thorough education, graduating finally at the Theological Seminary of Bangor, in the year 1853. Prof. Smyth is a brother of Rev. Newman Smith, whose books, entitled "The Religious Feeling," "Old Faith in New Lights," and "The Orthodox Theology of To-day," created much sensation in Congregational and Presbyterian circles a few years ago.

Peaked Pointers.

A DECATUR man hitches up a goat and makes him run a lawn mower. This is putting butter to new use.

THE parting of a lady visitor and her hostess reminds one of Shakspeare's play, "Much Adieu About Nothing."

A GORGEOUS funeral is the only imposing procession in which the man most interested takes no interest whatever.

MOTHER—Janet, did William kiss you on the front steps last night? Daughter—About what part of the evening, ma?

FREQUENTLY a fire is caused by a defective flue, and sometimes a detective is fired for wasting time on a defective clue.

"WHEN poverty comes in at the door loves flies out of the window," as the girl said when she saw the tramp on the door-sill.

WIFE—You haven't been inside of a church since we were married? Husband (sorrowfully)—No; a burnt child dreads the fire.

SHREWD MORMONS.

Some Light Thrown Upon the Utah Constitutional Convention.

...licans, but between Mormons and gentiles, or anti-Mormons.

The movement for a constitutional convention which you observed and mentioned while I was in Chicago was a spontaneous movement among the Mormons. When I say spontaneous movement it must be understood to mean that the movement originated with the Mormon leaders, who in their own way gave forth the information that such action was to be taken, which was all that was needed to make it a success. Mass meetings were held in every county in the Territory, and delegates chosen, who assembled by preconcerted arrangement in this city on the 1st day of July, formally organized themselves as a constitutional convention, and in about seven days hatched out a constitution in which polygamy is declared a misdemeanor, and forever prohibited; and another prohibiting any union of church and state. This latter provision was wholly unnecessary, since three-fourths of the voters of the Territory are Mormons and under the rule and dominion of the church rulers, to whom every Mormon owes a sworn allegiance, and who from the Temple can dictate the whole policy of the State, when admitted, without the clerical hand ever being seen. In the event of admission as a State nine-tenths of all the office-holders would be Mormons. The Governor, Judges, Senators, Representatives and all officers would be Mormons, and the whole policy of the State, legislative, executive, and judicial, would be Mormon and in Mormon interests. Punishment for the crimes of polygamy and bigamy would be in their own hands, judges and juries being Mormons, hence there would be no convictions nor any punishment for these offenses. And they would not consider that they had done any wrong in not doing so, for they claim, and many believe, that these practices are carried on by the sanction of God Almighty. That it is not only permitted but enjoined as a religious duty; and they are taught that their obedience to God and His revelations is superior to any human law, whether legislative or constitutional. The provision, though standing out boldly in the constitution, would be a dead letter and have no more meaning or binding force than so many meaningless hieroglyphics on an Egyptian pyramid. There is another noticeable fact. The leading polygamists are not taking any active part in the proceeding, and are in position not to be caught by any promises or prohibitions. They will hold still, letting it be understood that they are assenting when they really are not, because they wish the Territory admitted as a State, so that the Mormons may get control of the country, when they will forge to the front and assume the reins of power. There are some very shrewd, far-seeing men among them, and they are laying their plans wide and deep, and to extend far into the future.

The constitution is to be submitted at the general election for approval or rejection by the people, and it is probable there will not be a vote against it, since the gentiles wholly and totally ignore the whole proceeding, and will not take any notice of it except to denounce it as being the sublimity of hypocrisy and deceit. It will get the full vote of the Mormons who can vote. Many of them are disfranchised, and will not vote; not that they could not do so, as the election is not held under any election law, but they wish to publish to the world that none but qualified electors voted on it. And they will abstain from voting from motives of policy otherwise.

I think the press of the country ought to take up this question and ventilate the motives and inducements that are moving to the adoption of this Constitution, so as to prepare the public mind for an expression on it. In my opinion Utah should never be admitted as a State until the Constitution of the United States is amended, prohibiting bigamy and polygamy in all the States and Territories, declaring them felonies, and giving the United States Courts jurisdiction of them and the power to select juries who do not respect the divine right of those crimes.

Suppose Utah were admitted as a State, what is there to prevent these Mormons, who are in a large majority, from immediately calling together a convention and framing a new constitution, with the polygamy prohibition clause left out? And what could then be done under the doctrine of States' rights and home rule?

The Ainos.

A puzzle to the ethnologist is presented in the fast-expiring race which were the true predecessors of the Japanese all over the Japanese Archipelago. The dawn of history shows the Ainos living far to the south and west of their present haunts; and ever since then, century by century, we see them retreating eastward and northward as steadily as the American Indian has retreated westward under the pressure of the colonists from Europe. Their numbers are growing smaller decade by decade; their industries are passing into Japanese hands; the animals which were their principal sustenance are rapidly becoming extinct; the survivors of this people almost all speak Japanese as well as their own tongue, and are losing their special characteristics. The race is now no more than a "curio" to the philologist and to the ethnologist. It has no future, because it has no root in the past. The impression left on the mind after a sojourn among the Ainos is that of a profound melancholy. The existence of this race has been as aimless, as fruitless, as is the perpetual dashing of the breakers on the shore of Horobetsu. It leaves behind it nothing save a few names.

ADIRONDACK MURRAY and President Cleveland will not speak as they pass by each other in the future. It is stated that the only bite the President got in the mountains during his summer sojourn was after dark, in the privacy of his chamber; and, as he was enticed to the resort by Murray's glowing description of hunting and fishing to be found there, he holds Murray responsible for his being whitewashed. Hence the coolness in the future.

"AH, my dearest Esmeralda!" exclaimed Kosciusko Murphy, as he fell upon his knees at the feet of Miss Esmeralda Longcoffin, after having imprinted a kiss upon her ruby lips, "a kiss from you is indeed a taste of heaven on earth!" Placing her gentle hand upon his contracted brow, she remarked in a low, gentle tone of voice: "Bah! Can't you say something original? Forty different men have got off that same stereotyped remark."

SIGN of good breeding—Getting the prize at a dog show.

Yesterday and To-Morrow.

...

HER MISTAKE;

—OR.—

Howard Thorndike's Loves.

BY BURT ARNOLD.

CHAPTER V.

MADEMOISELLE DUMOND SHOWS HER TEETH.

Winter waned and spring approached.

Mr. Thorndike's investment through Sandy had proved a good one in more ways than one. The store was self-sustaining, and Sandy had already made several reductions in the amount loaned him by his employer. Although he was enthusiastic over the venture, he never neglected his regular duties as valet, and but few persons knew that Howard's Sandy and Alexander McPherson, florist, were one and the same person.

The beauty of Marie Insley, as the cool, calculating head of Sandy had predicted, had been the means of increasing the trade, and it was by far larger and more extended than when in the hands of the old proprietor. Marie held full charge and employed two assistants. The position had been a great blessing to her, for her mother's sickness had continued through the winter, and she was now growing rapidly worse.

Each day since the purchase of the store Sandy had sent the little landlady a small bouquet by Marie, and on Sundays he had brought a larger one to her himself. Throughout the time Effie had remained in

She was looking at the box with a curl on her lip.

New York Howard had nightly sent her a bouquet or a basket of flowers, and when she started on a starring tour he wrote her manager a letter requesting that he should see she had received a floral tribute each night, and to charge the expense to him.

Thus the flower store had been of mutual benefit to all parties concerned.

It was now a little over six months since Howard had received any message direct from Effie, and, somehow, he found she did not occupy such a large share in his thoughts as formerly.

In fact, he scarcely thought of her at all, save when he received a bill through the mail from her manager, and that came as regularly as the week rolled by.

There were, to be sure, other times when he would think of her. He could not pass by the Casino without a vivid recollection of the thorough surprise he experienced there the first time he saw her on the stage.

Another place which recalled her was Sandy's store, and for a time he never passed it without entering and purchasing a knot of flowers. What he did with them was a question. He never wore them; that was certain.

All of a sudden he ceased to patronize the place. He could not see Marie Insley without her bringing to his mind an unpleasant train of recollections about Effie.

He had never yet been able to dispel from his mind the illusion that he had met Marie somewhere previous to the night at the opera house; but where, he could not think, and he had asked that question of himself every time he saw or thought of her, which, somehow of late, had come to be quite often—too often, he began to imagine himself.

Yet frequently he found himself wandering in the vicinity of the store, when nothing had, apparently, guided his footsteps there.

One night he resolved he would solve the problem of the familiarity of her features to him on the first night he had met her.

Going into the store at a time when he knew Sandy would be there, he requested Sandy to give him an introduction to her—a proposition which made Sandy's gray eyes open wide. However, Sandy did as he was requested, and in a few weeks Howard was on very pleasant social terms with Miss Insley, so much so that he neglected his club and various other matters in which he had formerly taken quite an interest.

His actions were a source of intense surprise to Sandy, who could not fathom their import. Sandy would shake his head and look over the receipts to see if they had decreased any, as he thought they might if the girl centered her thoughts on anything but business, or, as he called it, "got a bee in her bonnet."

But everything went on apparently as before.

One evening Howard invited Marie to accompany him to the theater. He thought she looked as though she needed relaxation from business, and he was too thoroughly independent to care what any of his acquaintances might think, should she be seen in his box.

The same day he received a note from Effie, stating that she would arrive in the city in the afternoon, and would be pleased to have him call in the evening.

He sent her a note by Sandy pleading an engagement, and in the evening, as he sat in his box, he noticed Effie herself among the audience.

...opinion that she was the one he had had an interview with her—that she was by far the most beautiful young lady he had ever met.

Her short experience behind the scenes enabled her quick eye to detect anything which was not as it should be; and her observance of it was betrayed by a slight pursing of her pretty mouth, or a little contraction of the eyebrow—barely sufficient for one to see that she was annoyed by it.

Suddenly, between the acts, she drew back in the box, after looking through the audience.

Howard noticed the act, and cast a quick glance in the direction where Effie was sitting. She was looking at the box with a curl on her lip.

Evidently she had recognized them both; but, for some reason, it failed to disturb the equanimity of Mr. Thorndike's spirits as it once might have.

In short, he cared nothing at all about it, nor did he even think anything of it until he had reached his hotel that evening. Then he did think that perhaps a person of Effie's disposition might be inclined to make much out of little.

He was now thoroughly satisfied that Effie did not love him, and also he had slowly awakened to the fact that he never could have been actually in love with her. His valet could probably have given him a reason for this conclusion; yet Howard himself did not dream of the construction which Sandy put to his attentions to Marie.

He conjectured how he could gracefully withdraw from his engagement with Effie. Apparently it was an uncongenial one to both. He decided he would call and talk the matter over with her in the morning.

When morning came he called at Effie's address, and she was absent. He then strolled around to the flower store, where Sandy told him that Mrs. Insley was worse, and Marie had been suddenly called home.

He sauntered aimlessly down Fourteenth street to Eighth avenue, then leisurely walked up town until he reached Jones' dry-goods emporium, on the corner of Nineteenth street and Ninth avenue.

A carriage passed by, and he thought he recognized Effie's face within it.

Watching the vehicle, he saw it stop in front of the house where Marie resided, when a lady got out and ascended the steps.

It was almost too far for him to see; but he thought it could not very well be Effie, as she was probably unacquainted there, or even in the vicinity.

He crossed the street, intending to continue his walk up Eighth avenue, but he changed his mind by the time he reached the other side, and retracing his steps he walked rapidly down Nineteenth street.

He was soon near enough to recognize Effie's coachman, who sat on the box with eyes shut, awaiting the return of his mistress.

He hesitated a moment, then ascended the steps, rang the bell, and inquired for Marie.

Mrs. Campbell conducted him into the "little back parlor," which she reserved for herself, and told him that Miss Insley was engaged for a few moments, but would see him soon. He laid his hat, cane, and gloves on the center table, and inhaled a sweet draft from the bouquet which occupied its center. He was well aware of Sandy's interest in the little Scotch widow; also of his peculiar and systematic mode of procedure while laying siege to her heart, and therefore readily recognized the bouquet as one of Sandy's daily mute reminders that she was his preference.

As he sat upon a sofa that was placed against the folding door which divided the front and back parlors, he began to conjecture as to whether Marie's being "engaged" meant in attendance on her mother or with a caller, who, in the latter case, might be Effie. He had never heard either of them speak of the other, and he questioned if they had ever met save on the boards or at rehearsals.

He hardly understood why he had called on Marie, although he had spasmodically made up his mind to attempt to aid her, if she could be induced to accept his well-meant kindness, and he was trying to think of some reasonable excuse for proffering his assistance. What he had thought of doing, for several weeks past, was to get her consent for him to pay the family's expenses during a sojourn in the South, attended by a physician, for otherwise he could see no relief for the poor mother save death.

He could hear voices in the front parlor, and he finally recognized, as the voices became louder and more animated, the voices of both Effie and Marie.

He heard Effie, in sneering tones, make insulting insinuations to Marie about her association with himself, and was horror-struck to think that such a construction could be placed on his motives in seeking the young girl's acquaintance.

As Effie grew more and more excited she told the girl that she was "welcome to him," for she (Effie) had "made a better market elsewhere," and wound up her vindictive raillery by throwing the engagement ring, given her by Howard, at the feet of the completely astonished girl, who was then perfectly speechless with indignation.

"You had better put it on, for it is quite unlikely you will ever get a wedding ring from him," he heard Effie say, as a parting insult, when she opened the parlor door to go out.

He quickly stepped to the door himself, and called:

"Miss Desmond!"

Effie turned, and as their eyes met they positively glared at each other.

"Miss Desmond, this is not the time nor the place which I would have chosen to say what I shall say to you now," he said. "You have cruelly wronged that poor, innocent girl ever since you first met her. I overheard the conversation between you for the last few minutes, and will only refer to it by saying I hope you can meet your God with the consciousness of being as pure and innocent of contamination in this world as can the poor girl inside that room, whose tender feelings you have outraged by your base and unworthy insinuations. I called at your address this morning for the purpose of severing the uncongenial agreement existing between us; but you have severed it yourself, and I accept my freedom. That I loved Miss Insley I was not aware myself until I heard the infamous construction you placed upon the friendship existing between us; but you have awakened me to realize that I do love her with all my heart and soul. And I now know that I have never loved a woman before. I will do the best I can, and make all possible honorable endeavors to win her regard for myself, and if successful I will make her my wife. And now, Miss Desmond, your

...

Your venom has failed to do its work.

and both he and Mrs. Campbell entered at once.

The previously alarmed expression in her countenance increased.

Marie had swooned away and lay unconscious on the floor, with the diamond ring firmly clinched in her right hand.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Preserved Game.

In an open sunny space, in Hampden Park, not far from the road, standing among the thick grass, we see two handsome birds as large as our ordinary poultry. They are pheasants, and do not appear to be in the least disturbed at seeing us. They probably know that no one will be allowed to harm them except in the game season, which will not arrive for several months. The laws regarding game are very strict in England, and even in the shooting season no one who does not "preserve" game, as the rearing and care of it is here called, is allowed to kill a rabbit, a partridge, or a pheasant, even on his own property. All such game is considered to belong to those persons in the neighborhood who have "preserves." If a rabbit should come into the garden of the house where we are staying, and be found eating the cabbages, it may be driven away, but if the owner of the garden should catch or kill it he would be subject to a penalty.

It must not be supposed that the great proprietors are always stingy about their game. On one of the estates of the Prince of Wales each poor man is allowed to come to the house every day in the shooting season and get one rabbit. He is perfectly welcome to the animal, now it is dead, for the Prince and his friends could not possibly eat all they shoot; but if he should presume to deprive the owner of the pleasure of killing it he would be a poacher and be put in prison.—St. Nicholas.

Usually Send to Europe.

"Ah, madame," said a French lady to her American hostess, "you are indeed to be envied. You have everything your heart can desire; a rich husband, beauty, and such a charming maison, so petite, so cosy—c'est plus belle, grand, magnifique!"

"O yes, I presume all you say is true. I am certainly contented and thankful for the blessings I enjoy. It is rather tedious, however, not to have English-speaking servants in the house when I understand so little French."

"C'est vrai, madame, but is not your footman an Englishman?" questioned the French lady in a significant tone, with a meaning glance and a hint conveyed in the shrug of her shoulders.

"Yes; but I see so little of him that I forget his nationality," returned her hostess.

"Ah! 'Tis indeed strange that you did not bring some of your American country people here with you for servants," sarcastically remarked the Parisienne.

"I do not think so," retorted the hostess, with a quiet smile. "We Americans generally send to Europe when we need flunkeys."

Didn't Freeze His Tongue.

"Talking about the days when passes were issued," said a tornado-voiced man, as he vigorously pulled at a dock-weed cheroot, "I've seen the time I could go from Chicago to St. Louis for one dollar—no rebate at that."

"I can beat that," said a red-whiskered man. "I have seen the time I could go to Louisville for fifty cents."

"Gentlemen," commenced a dry-goods drummer——

Each man held his breath in a state of expectancy.

"You can all talk about riding cheap, but some eight years ago I went down to Nashville to sell a good-sized bill of goods—something like a half million dollars to one man—and I got a ticket for five cents, with a suit of clothes thrown in, and, gentlemen, the road fed me on champagne and ices all the way."

"The ices didn't seem to freeze your tongue so that it is crippled much, if they did freeze your cheek pretty hard," ejaculated a bystander.

"SONNY," said the new proprietor of a country paper as he pored over the ledger of his predecessor, "here's a bill for five years' subscription. Run out and try to collect it."

"Betcher life I don't," replied the boy as he looked at the man's name on the bill.

"You'll do as I tell you."

"No, sirree. I ain't gwine where he lives."

"Why not?"

"Why pa said this morning that man never went to Heaven, an' ther ain't only one other place as I knows on where a man goes ter w'en he dies."—Chicago Ledger.

AT the best no one can know much. Compared with the infinite realm above and beyond us to be yet discovered, the knowledge of the most learned man covers but a tiny spot; and what fraction of a spot ours may cover is but a small matter. But it does matter to ourselves and to all around us, the use we shall make of the knowledge we do possess—whether we shall carry it around for exhibition, or whether we shall convert it into a living force to elevate our own natures and to bless and help mankind.

A JERSEY CITY dentist has filed a petition for a divorce on the ground that he was obliged to cook his own breakfast in the morning, and to wash the family dishes. He used to be a newspaper bohemian; but married life so warped his liver that he wished to discontinue the prerogative of his bachelorhood.

FLITKINS says Long Branch must be a stout one to hold all the people who roost on it during the summer. There isn't a whole tree in any other part of the country that can stand the strain of the combined weight of its boarders without breaking short off at its root.

ONE of life's hardest lessons, from the cradle to the grave, is waiting. We send our ships, but cannot patiently await their return.

A PUNCTUAL man can always find time; a negligent man, never.

BULLETS AND BAYONETS.

Stirring Scenes, Amusing Anecdotes, and Interesting Incidents of the Late War.

Bloody Battles During Bullets Bright Bayonets and Buggy Beds.

A Stirring Tribute to Gen. Logan.

...

Close knitted in fiber and grain,
And strong as the wild, windy winter
That blows on the measureless plain.
No poet's loud fancies have crowned it,
But wild bird and wandering bee
Have sung to the solitude round it
The praise of the Pioneer Tree!

* * * * *

And lo! the swart soldier whose ashes,
Surrendered to silence and rest,
Still sends out electrical flashes
To kindle the heart of the West—
We loved him when fierce insurrection
Ran billowing in like a flood,
And named him in sportive affection
For you picket prince of the wood!

We named him! his fellow partakers
In all the wild war weather gave,
When staunch as a cliff to the breakers
He bared his bold breast to the wave!
We named him when battle burned torrid,
And, christened at fountains of flame,
He shook the black mane from his forehead,
And laughing accepted the name!

And still, while his glory grew clearer,
From Donelson down to the sea,
We felt his quaint title grow dearer
As fixed by a fitting decree.
Our bayonets followed him blindly,
His comrades—we knew him the best,
And cherished him, rudely but kindly,
The Stalwart Black Jack of the West!

Oh comrades! chill Death cannot sever
The war-welded bonds of the past!
We grasp him and clasp him forever,
Our hero and friend to the last!
His grave will be garnished by others,
The gifts of a numberless host,
But we were his comrades and brothers—
We loved him and mourn him the most.

And here where our camp-fires are dying,
As Time takes a toll of our breath,
The voice of a remnant is crying,
Demanding him even in death.
Oh, come to us, comrade, and carry
A comfort to lighten our gloom!
We offer, brave Prince of the Prairie,
Last honor of many—a tomb!

The General and the Mutiny.

BY JAMES FRANKLIN FITTS.

Everybody hates prefaces; but when a soldier attempts to write upon such a subject as this, he owes it to the hundreds of thousands of true soldiers who never faltered nor refused duty, to explain that mutiny in our volunteer army during the war was a thing of rare occurrence. When it did happen, it was small in size, easily checked, and produced no lasting results. But that there were exceptions to the rule, and that here and there a body of soldiers did attempt to make themselves superior to military law and subordination, will not be denied by any one who had a large experience in the army. It was a happy thing when the General in command over such troops knew how to put down the outbreak with the strong hand that was shown in the case which I am about to describe.

Having said so much, I should also say that the facts here related were not personally known to me. The General referred to—William H. Emory, late in command of the Nineteenth Army Corps, and now retired, living at an advanced age at Washington—is well known to me. I had the honor to serve on his staff in the Shenandoah Valley, and I, in common with all who were brought near to him by duty, learned to appreciate the stuff he was made of. He was a Colonel in the regulars, a West-Pointer, and had seen much service before the war of the rebellion began. He looked, and talked, and acted like an old Roman. He was stern or gentle, as occasion required; in short, a very original character, and a type of soldier of our old army that is rapidly passing away.

Should some scoffer doubt the truth of the story, I request him to write to Dr. Charles W. Crary, Lake City, Minnesota. During McClellan's Peninsular campaign General Emory commanded a brigade in that army, and Dr. Crary, a medical officer in the same campaign, learned the facts at the time, and possibly witnessed the thrilling scene. In 1863 my regiment was serving in Louisiana. General Emory was then high in command there, and Dr. Crary was transferred to us as an Assistant Surgeon. It was not long after the Doctor joined us that he repeated this story to me; and it is so characteristic of the General (and I so highly esteem the Doctor as a truthful gentleman as well as a good medical man) that I never doubted it. Those who do are at liberty to write to him.

It was a good regiment. It had already proved its gallantry in battle. The whole brigade was astounded when it refused duty.

But it afterward appeared that the causes of its discontent had been lurking and growing for months. What was stranger still about it was the fact that the mutiny was planned and matured in secret, without the knowledge or suspicion of a single commissioned officer or first sergeant.

The blow was struck one morning at reveille roll-call. The muskets had been stacked in regimental line the night before, at the close of a hot day's march, and covered with rubber blankets to protect them from dew. At reveille the first sergeants went out to call the roll of the companies. When it was finished, they gave the order to take arms. Not a man obeyed.

The orderlies stormed and expostulated. They were quietly informed by some of the men that they need not get into a passion; that arms would not be taken till the grievances of the regiment were redressed.

The orderlies went to the Captains. The Captains came to the line, angry and stern, and commanded their companies to take arms. Not a man stirred.

Things were getting decidedly serious. The Captains went in a body to the Colonel, and reported to him the condition of things.

"Refuse duty, do they?" he said. "Well, I don't know what's the trouble between you and your men, gentlemen; but I guess they won't refuse to obey me. Come along, and we'll see about this."

The Colonel was brave and manly, and the men respected him. He stood before the center of the line, commanded attention, and then gave the order to take arms.

Not a hand was stirred.

The Colonel was excited. He threatened, begged, almost cried. "Don't," he said, "don't disgrace me and yourselves in this way."

"We like you, Colonel," a voice sang out. "But we ain't paid, we ain't fed, and we ain't half clothed."

"These things shall be attended to right off," he replied. "You are taking a poor way to get them. Trust to me, and I'll see you are righted. Now—take—arms!"

They stood like stone statues.

The Colonel left the ground, pale and trembling. He called for his horse and rode over to brigade headquarters. The General was at breakfast. He heard the story of the excited officer.

"Is there any other reason for this than the dissatisfaction of the men about not being paid, clothed and fed?"

"No, sir; and I didn't know——"

"Who the devil cares what you didn't know? There never was a mutiny yet but the officers were to blame for it. Go back and assemble all your commissioned officers and first sergeants in rear of your line. I will come over in ten minutes."

The Colonel departed; the General called up his staff, dispatched them in different directions, and then mounted his

...line in front of the mutineers. A light battery galloped in on each flank, unlimbered, and got their guns into position. Two of the General's aids were observed going about among these troops. The mutineers heard the order. "Load at will—load!" They heard rammers springing in the barrels of the muskets, and the clicking of hundreds of hammers, as the guns were capped. They heard the orders of the battery captains: "Load with grape and canister!" They began to see that they were in a decidedly tight place.

"Now, men of the —— Regiment," the General vociferated, "this thing has gone far enough. Either you or the United States will give in; I think it will be you. If you have any grievances, I will hear them by and by, and you shall have justice; that I promise you, but I make no terms, nor conditions. I want obedience, and by — I'll have it! I'll give you just one order; if you don't obey it, I retire behind these troops with your officers, and you'll be blown to hell in a second! I say it! you know me! Now—take—arms!"

His order was like a thunderclap. The order was obeyed as if by machinery. The stacks were broken; the muskets were taken; the line stood at shouldered arms.

And then the veteran General almost broke down.

"Stack them again, Colonel," he said. "I'll talk to them in a moment."

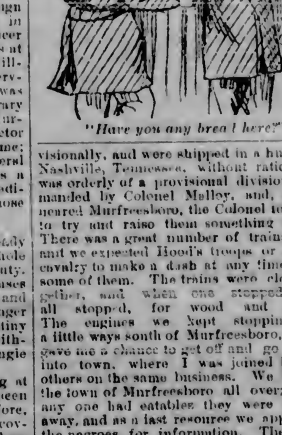
When the arms were stacked again, the General passed along the front and talked to the soldiers in a familiar way. He told them that discipline was the beginning and the end of the soldier's life; that unquestioning obedience was his first rule; that they had the right to complain of abuses, and should have done so in this case. "I will have justice done you. I would have seen to your complaint had it reached me; but never try to right your wrongs in this way. You disgrace yourselves as soldiers, you cast discredit on your comrades, and the power of the government is sure to crush you."

Some of the men were moved to tears; all were deeply affected. The lessons of the morning were not exhausted until the General had summoned the officers to his headquarters, and given them such a lecture on their duties in caring for their men as they who know "the old man" can best appreciate.

The regiment was heard of afterward. This was the only questionable episode in its career. Fields of glory and of blood attested its devotion to the cause.

How I Raised the Soft Bread.

After Sherman cut loose from Atlanta on his march to the sea, the different detachments of his troops concentrated at Chattanooga and along the railroad to Dalton. They organized into divisions pro-



"Have you any bread here?"

visionally, and were shipped in a hurry for Nashville, Tennessee, without rations. I was orderly of a provisional division commanded by Colonel Malley, and, as we neared Murfreesboro, the Colonel told me to try and raise them something to eat. There was a great number of trains there, and we expected Hood's troops or Lyon's cavalry to make a dash at any time upon some of them. The trains were close together, and when one stopped they all stopped, for wood and water. The engines we kept stopping for a little ways south of Murfreesboro, which gave me a chance to get off and go ahead into town, where I was joined by two others on the same business. We hunted the town of Murfreesboro all over; but if any one had eatables they were hidden away, and as a last resource we applied to the negroes for information. They told us the town had got everything at famine prices, but there was yet some bread in the government bakery. They doubted our being able to get any, and showed us where it was, that we might try. Sherman's troops were not famed for bashfulness, and in we went.

"Yes, sir; but you can't have any."

"Have you any bread here?"

"I don't know about that," I said. "I think this will lift it."

I drew out an old pass I had carried for some time, to pass the bearer from Chattanooga to Tunnel Hill and back, signed by Colonel Malley, and, spreading it out on the counter, the men in the bakery crowded around; and one who was looking over the shoulders of some others, who seemed unable to read, saw Malley on the bottom, and said.

"General Milroy! Yes, that's all right."

General Milroy was in command of the troops at Murfreesboro.

"How many do you want?" he added.

One of the boys whispered, "Get me two;" the other whispered, "Get me two."

"How many have you?"

"Forty loaves is all we have."

I called for ten and paid twelve and a half cents each, and we divided after we got on the street.

The Sergeant's Answer.

At the battle of Goldsboro Bridge, a Massachusetts chaplain happened to get near Belger's Rhode Island Battery, which was hotly engaged. The Confederate shells were ploughing furrows about the guns, and the cannoneers were grimly and actively at work, answering shot for shot under the eye of Colonel Heckman, who received a star for heroism there. The chaplain thought it his duty to address himself to a sergeant, who was very efficient, but at the same time rather profane, in the following words:

"My dear friend, if you go on this way, can you expect the support of Divine Providence?"

"Ain't expectin' it," said the rough sergeant; "the Ninth New Jersey has been ordered up to our support."

WORKING for bare life—Making clothes for a new baby.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Notes on the Lesson for August 7—"Jesus in Galilee."

The lesson for the above date will be found in the fourth chapter of Matthew, from the seventeenth to the twenty-fifth verses. Time—In the spring of A. D. 28. Place—In Galilee.

SPECIAL MENTION.

The Sea of Galilee.—This interesting sheet of water—which, besides the name given above, is also called in the New Testament the Sea of Gennesareth and the Sea of Tiberias, and in the Old Testament the Sea of Chinnereth or Cinneroth—is a lake about thirteen miles long and six broad. It lies in the bottom of a great basin, and is undoubtedly of volcanic origin. Although the Jordan pours into it, red and turbid, from the north, and numerous warm brackish springs empty into it also, its waters are cool, sweet, and clear. The beach abounds with sparkling pebbles, and its blue depths swarm now, as of old, with fish, although the ancient trade of Andrew and Simon is almost entirely abandoned. The region bordering on the lake was in the time of Christ the most densely peopled in all Palestine. No less than nine cities stood on its very shores; while many villages and hamlets dotted the plains and hillsides around. There is little now, indeed, in its appearance to recall the scenes witnessed there in the Savior's time. The populous cities are no more. Of the nine, but wretched fragments of two remain. A few miserable mud huts occupy the site of Magdala, and Tiberias alone retains even a remnant of its former greatness. But the memory of His presence makes the little lake and its desolate shores dear to the hearts of His disciples forever. (The Examiner.)

Simons of the Bible.—There are nine in all, as follows: (1) the brother of Jesus (Matt. 13: 55); (2) the Canaanite (Mark 3: 18); (3) of Cyrene (Acts 11: 9); (4) the leper (John 12: 1); (5) the Pharisee (Luke 7: 40); (6) Magus (Acts 8); (7) Peter; (8) the tanner (Acts 9: 43); (9) father of Judas (John 13: 2, 26).

The Apostle Peter.—The following are the chief facts in his history. Name changed from Simon; was married and owned his home (Matt. 8: 14); had been a disciple of John the Baptist; with James and John was specially favored by Christ; was recognized leader among the disciples; was active, energetic, impetuous; steadied by the resurrection and energized at Pentecost, he was the leader and organizer of the early church.

The First Disciples.—Why should Jesus have chosen men of this occupation? For several reasons. They were honest and capable men. They had never been corrupted by the prejudices of the schools of thought in Jerusalem. They were trained in their eyes and ears by their business as fishermen, and hence made good witnesses of what Jesus said and did. They had faith in Jesus and in his mission. They had a good reputation with the cities on the coast of Galilee. They were good subordinates, ready to obey their Master. When Jesus said, "Follow me" they did so. They did not say, "I have married a wife, and can not come;" or, "I have just bought five yoke of oxen, and desire to prove them;" or, "Lord, I will, but let me first bury my father." Nor, on the other hand, were they so eager as to volunteer their services, like some, without contemplating the hardships that must ensue. They attended to their own business till called to a higher one, and then they went.

Demoniacal Possession.—Under the same general head are classed in Scripture "demoniacs," persons having "evil" or "unclean" spirits, and those "possessed of devils." These words and phrases are generally exact translations of the original. The spirits themselves are spoken of as real beings at enmity with God, and having power to afflict men not only with disease, but with spiritual pollution also (James ii. 19; Rev. xvi. 14)—the word "unclean" having nearly always a religious significance in Scripture. (Compare Matt. viii. 29; Luke iv. 41; Mark v. 8-12; Acts xix. 15; Matt. viii. 29). The symptoms of a person possessed of a devil were often the same as in case of bodily disease, viz., dumbness, blindness, epilepsy, or those seen in cases of ordinary insanity (Matt. ix. 32, xii. 22; Mark ix. 17-27; Matt. viii. 28). The phrase, "to have a devil," is used in connection with, and as apparently equivalent to, "to be mad" in John x. 20. But demoniacs are frequently specifically distinguished from persons suffering simply from disease (Matt. iv. 24; Mark i. 32, xvi. 17, 18; Luke vi. 17, 18), from which it would appear that they had special symptoms also.

The Synagogue.—Originated during the captivity, as a substitute for the temple; afterwards continued in connection with the temple; very numerous in the time of Christ, every town and village having one or more; Jerusalem is said to have had 480; was so built, that the worshipers on entering looked towards Jerusalem; generally built by the community, sometimes by liberal individuals; after dedication it could never be used for any secular purpose. In its officers and services the synagogue copied, though not in detail, after those of the temple; services were held daily at the third, sixth and ninth hours; and opportunity was given to any to take part, after the more formal services; this privilege was improved by Christ and his disciples, and so the synagogue became a splendid medium for the dissemination of the truth, and the gospel.

LESSON LINK.

"After the Savior's baptism, it appears that He began to preach at once. Some of John's disciples immediately recognized Him as the Messiah (John, 1. 41); and among them Andrew, through whose instrumentality Peter, his brother, was brought to the Savior's notice. Soon followed the marriage in Cana, where Christ performed his first miracle; the journey to Capernaum with His relatives, and that to the Passover at Jerusalem; the return of Jesus by way of Samaria (John, 2:1, and His preaching in Galilee (Luke, 4). During this time Jesus had made and baptized many disciples (John, 4: 1, 2), and John, who came to herald His coming, had borne his witness and was now in prison."

A year or more has elapsed since the events of the last lesson. We have entered now "the third and principal division of the gospel of Matthew (ch. 4: 12-18)." It records Christ's ministry in Galilee, of which the lesson to-day is a general introduction. Read John, chs. 1-4, and Luke, 4; also, Mark, 1: 14-20, and Luke, 5: 1-11.

TOPIC AND OUTLINE.

In this lesson we see Jesus gathering his forces for the world's conquest; therefore, it may well be matter of careful study by all who are interested in prosecuting the struggle. Jesus calling to his service. (1) He calls others after he himself has begun the work (v. 17); (2) he calls those who are already believers (v. 18); (3) he calls from the humblest walks of life (v. 18); (4) he calls to personal and intimate companionship (v. 19); (5) he calls to a definite and sacred service (v. 19); (6) he calls for prompt obedience and the greatest sacrifices (vs. 20, 22); (7) he calls to a great and urgent work (vs. 23, 24); (8) he calls to a manifold work, and sufficient to tax the powers of the most capable.

SEED-TRUTHS AND GERM-THOUGHTS.

1. The preacher may die, but the truth lives (v. 17, cf. ch. 3: 2 and 4: 12).
2. How much nearer is the kingdom of heaven to those who live now (v. 17.)
3. Walking and seeing with spiritual aims and for spiritual ends (v. 18).
4. We should invite, inspire and provoke one another to service (v. 18).
5. We should follow Christ that we may serve him; and faithful following is best equipment for service (v. 19).
6. Shall we quit fishing and take to preaching, or quit preaching and take to fishing (v. 20).
7. What a day's work—Peter, James and John all won to the Master's service (v. 21)!
8. "Straightway" is the only safe motto in the spiritual life (v. 20).
9. Not even a necessary work or the nearest relative should keep us in disobedience to Christ's command (v. 22).
10. A true call to service must be from God (v. 19).
11. Jesus Christ, the model minister: (1) in his preaching; (2) in his watching and studying human nature and life; (3) in his gathering and organizing forces; (4) in his sympathy, adaptation, and condescension; (5) as a teacher and leader; (6) in his manifold labors; (7) in his untiring zeal and consecration.
12. Germs of the early church: the first sermon, the first disciples, the first missionary tour, the first miracles, the first revival.
13. Missionary teaching from the lesson. Growth by units will quickly take the whole world for Christ. Let a single Christian win one soul in a year, and those two win one each in a year, and those four win one each year, and the whole world will be evangelized in an incredibly short time.

Subject of lesson for August 14, "The Beatitudes."—Matt. 5: 1-16.

ON the Lansing train the other day an old man shoved up a window as the locomotive whistled for a crossing, and stuck half his body out to see what the row was about. The brakeman happened to pass through the car, and seeing the situation, said: "Better take your head in, sir." "Why?" "Because you might strike a post or switch." "Yes, that's so," muttered the man as he pulled himself in and sat down, "and the railroad would hop on to me for damages. It's better to be on the safe side."—Detroit Free Press.

SPORT ON THE DIAMOND.

Chicago Making Things Hotter than Ever for Detroit in the League Race.

Trouble in the Wolverine Camp—Deals Between New York and Pittsburg—Other Events.

[CHICAGO CORRESPONDENCE.]

At this writing the seemingly irresistible forces under Captain Anson are fighting what it is expected will be the decisive point in the championship race against Detroit. The first attack was made by the White Stockings last Saturday, and resulted in the complete routing of the Wolverine contingent, the score standing 8 to 4 at the finish. Three more games are to be played—two scheduled and a postponed—and one of two results seems inevitable. Either Chicago will return home from its second Eastern trip leading the balance of the League clubs in the pennant race, or else it will be nearer the top of the list than it has yet been this year. The last tour of the Detroit team has been anything but satisfactory in its results to Detroiters. When they returned to their headquarters last week they received anything but a flattering reception. The meteoric drop of the club, a change from winning everything to losing everything, has been as remarkable in its way as the advance of the Chicago team from sixth to second place. Out of the last ten games played—three in New York, three in Philadelphia, three in Washington, and the one on Saturday, in Detroit—Detroit has won just one game, and that not the game with Chicago. The once great sluggers seem now to be the invalids of the League.

Strange diamonds, unfriendly crowds, change of water and diet, passing sleepless nights on railway trains during the warm weather, and various other excuses have been offered for the poor success achieved. But last Saturday settled all. Chicago whipped the heavy batters on their own grounds, and the hope that has been nurtured in the bosom of every follower of the club has slowly departed. The chances of winning the pennant are growing less and less, and if the Wolverines do not get out of the present rut they will soon be passed by Chicago, Boston and New York.

The White Stockings return home on Thursday of this week, and will meet the Bostons for a series of three games, after which we are to cross bats with Washington, New York, Philadelphia and Detroit successively before departing again for our last Eastern trip of the season.

THE WEEK'S SENSATIONS.

The week just past has not been without its sensations in the base-ball world, the first of these was the bold bid of President Nimick, of the Pittsburgh Base-ball Club, for Ward, of New York. He wired President J. B. Day, of the New York Club, to the effect that Pittsburgh would give $5,000 for the famous Johnny or make a trade. Such plucky enterprise is something remarkable at this stage of the season, and caused considerable talk among lovers of the game everywhere when it became known. President Day, of the New York Club, refused to entertain any proposition, however, for Ward's purchase.

NEW YORK'S COUNTER-OFFER.

No sooner had Nimick's offer for Ward, and Day's refusal thereof grown cold, than an announcement was made to the effect that the New York Club had purchased Morris, the clever left-handed pitcher of the Pittsburg team. Negotiations were really entered into and so far completed that Manager Mutrie, of the "Giants," went to Pittsburg to pay over the purchase money and secure the player's contract. The result of the transaction, however, may be seen in the following dispatch from Pittsburg, which says:

"The management of the Pittsburgh Ball Club have decided not to part with Morris, their left-handed pitcher, and when Manager Mutrie of the New Yorks arrived to close the deal he was informed that they had changed their minds, and that the Giants could not have him. The good work of Morris in the last three games, and the numerous protests received by the management since the announcement of the proposed sale, caused them to reconsider the matter. Morris will now be put in the box in his regular turn, and an opportunity given to redeem himself. Manager Mutrie's expenses to this city will be paid by the Pittsburgh Club."

TROUBLE AMONG THE DETROITS.

Within the past few days there has been a general stirring-up in the ranks of the Detroit team, and Baldwin, Weidman and Briody, who have heretofore been considered among the best men of the team, have been suspended and fined. The causes assigned were indifferent play and not taking good care of themselves. Baldwin has made a poor record this season. His salary was very materially increased when he signed in the spring, the amount being $3,200, which, with the exception of that received by Radbourne, is the highest salary paid any league pitcher. On the basis that he would pitch forty games during the season, his pay would be $80 per game, and a sorry exhibition he made trying to earn his money. Out of sixteen games pitched he won but six, and many of those by the skin of his teeth. In only one of the sixteen did he pitch with any vigor or purpose. It is now possible, with a little bracing up, and some judgment in the placing of the remaining pitchers, for the team to get on its feet.

In the pennant race Detroit, Chicago, and Boston are close enough together to be, in the parlance of the turf, covered by a blanket. CON CREGAN.

AVATCHA BAY is one of the finest harbors in the world, if not actually the finest. Rio and Sydney have no mean claims for this position of honor, says the author of "The Cruise of the Marchesa," but those of us who had seen both were unanimous in awarding the palm to the Kamtchatkan rival. A nearly circular basin of some nine miles in diameter, and within a narrow entrance opening to the south-southeast, it is roomy enough to accommodate the navies of the world. It is entirely free from dangers, has an even depth of ten or twelve fathoms, and owing to its affording excellent holding ground and being well protected from all winds, it is perfectly safe in all weathers. But the ordinary traveler will be struck not so much with its nautical excellences as with the superb scenery with which it is surrounded. To the south rises the Vilutchinska volcano, now quiescent, a graceful cone of about seven thousand feet; and a little farther eastward a huge flat-topped mass exceeding it in height by 1,000 feet or more obtrudes itself as a rare exception to the rule of cone-shaped mountains which seems to obtain throughout the country. It is nameless on the charts, for we are in the land of volcanoes, and it is only 8,000 feet in height!

DR. EDWARD NAUMANN, for some years at the head of the geological survey of Japan, gives, in addition to a description of the physical features of that country, many entertaining sketches of the scenery and people of the mountain regions, says the New York Post. In the north he says that the snow accumulates in enormous masses. There are villages which frequently experience a fall of over twenty feet of snow. Naturally, during winter, nearly all out-door life ceases. In one village which he visited the inhabitants, after their breakfast, go to the baths, which are fed by hot springs, and remain in them for the whole of the day, enjoying the heat.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

CHARLEVOIX, AUG. 10, 1887.

Hastings from Hayes.

Mr. Chet Messer, wife and niece, of Hastings, were visiting at Geo. O. Scott's, the past week.

Mrs. Kane, of Flint, is visiting her sons, Peter and Frank Kane.

John Cratzley, of Trumbull Co., O., are visiting at Moses Cooper's.

A young child of John Simonton's was kicked in the face by a mule on Friday, and is in a critical condition.

Henry Hare moved into his new residence last Wednesday.

Hayes will also be benefitted by the new railroad. And if it follows the lake shore we will have a station at Ka-go-che-weng.

Marine Jottings.

The propeller Vernon was recently purchased by Capt. Pridgeon, for $23,300. The purchase was made for the original owners.

Clearances: 28—Schr Florence Smith, 55 cords wood, Master to Milwaukee.

28—Schr Narragansett, 600 tons iron, Pine Lake Iron Co. to Cleveland.

29—Schr Oneida, 260 cords bark, French to Kenosha.

29—Schr Mocking Bird, 3,500 ties, Willcox to Chicago.

29—Schr Addie, 1,600 hoops, Wilson Hoop Co., to Benton Harbor.

30—Schr Arctic, 140 cords wood, Perkins to Milwaukee.

30—Schr Fleetwing, 40 cords bark, Smithson to Milwaukee.

30—Schr Sea Gem, 75 cords wood, Master to Milwaukee.

Aug. 1—Schr Lottie Mason, 28 cords wood, 30 cords slabs, Master to Milwaukee.

1—Schr Prime, 190 cords bark, Allen to Kenosha.

2—Schr Four Brothers, 100 cords wood, 100 cords bark, Downer to Chicago.

4—Schr Forrest, 1,000 ties, 150 cords bark, Downer to Chicago.

5—Schr Conquest, 125 cords wood, Stripp to Milwaukee.

5—Schr Success, 2,000 ties, 4,000 posts, Willcox to Chicago.

5—Schr Eaglewing, 150,000 ft hardwood lumber, Glenn & Porter to Chicago.

6—Schr Radical, 3,500 ties, 600,000 shingles, Downer to Chicago.

6—Schr John L. Green, 74 cords wood, Master to Sheboygan.

6—Barge S. C. Clarke, 250,000 ft hardwood lumber, Perkins & White to Tonawanda.

6—Schr. Cascade 210 cords bark, Downer to Chicago.

9—Schr Stampede, 250,000 ft hardwood lumber, Pine Lake Lumber Co. to Sheboygan.

Why Should You Advertise.

Advertising is the chief auxiliary in trade.—Tooke.

Advertising is not the road to success, but success itself.—Richardson.

Advertise your business; I owe all my success to it.—P. T. Barnum.

The most truthful part of a newspaper is its advertisements.—Jefferson.

The man who pays more for shop rent than advertising, does not know his business.—H. Greeley.

How can one man know what you want unless you ask for it, or what you have to sell unless you advertise it?—M. Halstead.

The advertisements which appear in a public journal take rank among the most significant indications of the state of society af that time and place.—Dickens.

If you advertise it gives your place a reputation around, folks will crowd to your warehouse and make it too lively. If you don't want to do anything keep as still as you can.—C. F. Browne.

There is an absolute necessity for advertising; there is a great eagerness to compete for attention, and no one gets it unless it is by giving, as it were, so many strokes of the hammer, one after the other, to compel people to notice what is going on.—W. E. Gladstone.

It appears that out of 141 members in the next Congress thirty-two are college graduates. When to these are added the successful base ball players which the colleges have turned out, it must be admitted that, while a college education is not, perhaps, absolutely essential to success in life, it has its advantages.

How many counties in Michigan will submit the prohibition question to a popular vote under the local option? A few are already moving in that direction. Correspondents will please report to the Tribune as early as practicable the action or contemplated action of their respective counties in this matter. Prohibition will soon be within easy reach of many counties of the state, but it cannot be secured and maintained without effort—under any law. The Tribune holds that the proposition should be voted on, as was the prohibition amendment, solely upon its merits and not as a partisan or political issue.—Detroit Tribune.

Samuel J. Randall, democratic congressman from Pennsylvania says: "It is a mere assumption that some men act from what they call "principle" and that others do not. The loudest shouters for free trade have been found, when it came to the consideration of the details of a tariff bill, voting persistently for the largest protective duties upon the most ridiculously small productive interests of their districts. The truth is all men are alike in these respects, and, home matters being better understood, are less ignored, and, being better understood, the representative yields prompt submission to what he believes to be just and right toward his constituents."

The Arlington has thirty-one people quartered out in cottages.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent, Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

HAVING PURCHASED a home in this beautiful village and moved my business here, I request a share of your patronage. M. S. Moulton, Spaulding building.

PARTIES wishing their pianos tuned or repaired can have them attended to by leaving orders at Dr. Crouter's drug store, as our Mr. C. M. Williams will be in Charlevoix for a week.
DETROIT MUSIC CO.

Charlevoix Summer Resort Items.

Mrs. Allen Potter came Saturday.

E. D. Moore is expected to-morrow.

Oscar Mather has joined his parents at "Solid Comfort."

Wm. B. Moore, of East Saginaw, has joined his family.

Miss Cora Allen of Kalamazoo, is at the Merrill cottage.

Miss Phelps of Kalamazoo is at Mrs. Dewing's cottage.

Mrs. Dewing has a new boat house on the Pine lake beach.

Edw. A. Owen of East Saginaw, is a guest of W. B. Moore.

I. Marsh, a well-known Chicago lawyer, is at the Belvedere.

A very pleasant party was held at Music hall Monday evening.

Charles Porter Davis of Cincinnati, was at the Belvedere last week.

Mrs. J. W. Osborne and family of Kalamazoo, are at the Belvedere.

Dr. Y. Knapp and son Lee, of Ann Arbor, have rooms at the Belvedere.

Mrs. Osie Sears and Will came Friday. Miss Susie is expected to-day.

F. S. Durham of Battle Creek and D. M. Cooper of Detroit, are on the resort.

Dr. G. B. Holmes of St. Louis, has joined L's family and friends at the Belvedere.

The Misses Winnie and Bessie Estabrook are expected this morning. Norris comes Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Doty of Reading, have pleasant quarters at Wm. Miller's for a few weeks.

Prof. A. E. Haynes, wife and children of Hillsdale, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Parmelee.

Mr. Gilkie of Otsego, vice-President of the Bardeen Paper Co., is visiting friends at Phenix cottage.

Miss Mary O'Grady of Detroit, and Miss A. L. Thorne of Buffalo are guests of G. A. Carrington.

Mr. J. T. Cobb of Schoolcraft, editor of the Grange Visitor, is enjoying Charlevoix's cool breezes.

It won't be safe for Charlie Hampton, the author of "Minnie's Letters," to venture on the resort this season.

Miss Helen Burtch of Woodstock, Ont., and Ernest Fairfield of Manistee, are guests at Breezy Point cottage.

A. J. Helmes and wife of Kalamazoo, are at the Belvedere. Mr. Holmes is a brother of the genial manager.

Mrs. G. B. Russell, Miss Russell and Miss Fletcher of Detroit, have joined the pleasant party at Gen. King's cottage.

Mr. D. DenBleyker and children of Kalamazoo, came Saturday and are helping make the resort pleasant at the DenBleyker cottage.

Every room but one at the Belvedere is occupied, but manager Holmes guarantees to find pleasant rooms adjoining the hotel for all who come.

Among Mondays arrivals at the Belvedere were Bishop Gillespie, Grand Rapids; Reed B. Freeman, Binghampton, N. Y.; R. G. Kemper, Chicago.

M. H. Lane and wife of Kalamazoo, are at the Belvedere. Mr. Lane is president of the Michigan Buggy Co. He contemplates building on the point.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Waldron and daughter of Hillsdale, have pleasant rooms at the Belvedere. Mr. Waldon is president of the Hillsdale Second National Bank and the Bank of Reading.

Miss Ella McKay, E. W. McKay and C. E. McKay of Cleveland, are at the McKay cottage. Splendid as far as it goes, but we regret that we will have to wait until next season before shaking hands with their parents.

The following party left Monday for a two days camp at the Intermediates: Messrs. Levering, Jenner, Owen, Mahon, Mack, Walbridge, Jewett, Prof. Brooks and James Heaton. Miss Jane Mahon, Mary Heaton, Miss Mack, Mary West, Miss Collin, Nellie and Alice Brooks, Miss Sabine, May Smiley and Mrs. Brooks.

Chicago Summer Resort Notes.

I. B. Krum and family are in their cottage.

Eighteen arrivals from Chicago the past week.

The sweet voice of Miss Julia Tuthill is heard again in the parlors of the club house.

Mr. Fred S. Rockwood is spending the month of August with his wife and children at the Bogue cottage.

Mr. M. H. Walker, who was in charge of the office of the Chicago resort the last two seasons, is resting at the Curtiss cottage.

Secretary and Treasurer Warner was at this office Tuesday afternoon with a grin on his face a yard wide and warranted to wash. His wife and daughter arrived unexpectedly that morning.

McGargle, the convicted boodler, who recently skipped out of his Chicago bath tub into the schooner Blake was landed in Sarnia Sunday morning. The Blake, when she came into the St Clair river, was in tow of the tug Merrick, which also had the schooners Hoboken, Golden Fleece and J. P. Marsh at the end of her hawser, the Blake being last. The tug Orient, with Chicago detectives on board, was on the lookout there; and, when the tug Orient approached, the schooner Blake threw off her tow line and rapidly dropped astern. Her captain rushed forward, together with his crew, and raised a tremendous row for a couple of minutes, keeping the attention of those on board the tug. Meanwhile McGarigle, who had been transferred to the stern, was bundled into a yawl and being sculled ashore. When the officers on the tug discovered the ruse, every effort was made to catch the yawl, but it got into shoal water safely before they could reach it. McGargle jumped ashore, and ran rapidly up the street, while the crew of the schooner jeered at the men on the tug.

FOR SALE—A heavy yoke of oxen Must be sold immediately. Apply to A. Stewart, Charlevoix. 2w

The New Divorce Law.

The new divorce law enacted by the last legislature will go into effect on September 22, next. It possesses several novel features which will tend to make the divorce business in the state of Michigan a very limited quantity. Concerning the purpose and application of the law a leading member of the Bay City bar, who has been giving the subject some attention, set out its object as follows:

"It is intended to restrict the applications for divorce, and there is no doubt that the end sought by the legislature will be gained. The prosecuting attorney in every county in the state will be required to appear for the people in every cause in which the complainant or defendent is the father or mother of any minor children. It is their rights which the new law seeks to protect, and this is one of the most important intentions of the amendment. But that is not all. The history of divorce proceedings shows that three divorces out of five are given to complainants without the appearance of the defendent having been entered. "The result is that an order pro confesso to the bill is entered, the defendant being placed thereby in the same standing in the court as if he had confessed the same charges made in the bill of complaint.

In a majority of the cases, the parties are mutually desirous of a legal separation, and not being particular as to how it is secured by a prearranged arrangement no objection is interposed. Now the people will take a hand in the matter and before a divorce is granted the prosecuting attorney must become satisfied by reliable proof that there is no collusion between the parties. One of the humane features of the amendment is the protection offered to the minor children. As it is now they go where the court orders, to the father or mother, the complainant or defendant whichever puts in the most proof of his or her fitness for the trust. Half of the time the proper testimony in regard to this matter does not come before the court. Hereafter it will so come if the prosecuting attorney does his duty. The children's welfare is the most important feature of the law. Together with their custody is the matter of their future maintenance and support which, under the present law, it is not possible to scrutinize carefully enough. It is necessary to protect the rights of the children, who are usually the only innocent ones involved in a divorce suit, and if the people do not protect their interest no one will because the respective parties are too much engrossed in their personal interest to have a care for the welfare of the children."

TO RENT. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

Cull shingles and lumber for sale cheap, or will exchange for farm produce. Apply at Burns & Scroggie's livery barn. tf

WANTED—A steady man to work one of Perkin's one block shingle mill. Apply to Smithson's Lumber Co., Charlevoix.

S. PARKER of Charlevoix, has a 40 acre farm, 30 cleared, opposite Ironton which he wishes to exchange for a house and lot in Charlevoix.

FOR SALE—One span of horses, one yearling colt, two spring colts, one yoke of oxen, two two-year old heifers, two yearling heifers; must be sold soon. Terms reasonable. Inquire at this office.

HEADLIGHT AND LITTLE DAISY Soaps. They are strictly pure. They are the cheapest soaps sold for the mony. Try then and get a ladies' water-proof gossamer free. For sale by Emrey Brothers.

The ladies are cordially invited to call and examine the large display of millinery including pattern hats and bonnets together with novelties in ribbons, gauzes, flowers, etc. As it is to be a season of novelties it will pay you to call now and often, upon Mrs. Litney & Carr.

Pleasure Boat for Sale.

The "Petrel," sloop rigged, remarkably commodious, handy and safe. Built by Rrankin of St. Ignace, in 1882. Price $100 now, or $75 at the end of the present season.
Apply to G. C. Mahon, Charlevoix.

Parties Wishing to Purchase

Pianos or Organs

on easy terms, can now buy to advantage as our Mr. Williams will be in Charlevoix for a week and will be pleased to give prices, etc.

For information call at Dr. Crouter's drug store, or address Belvedere hotel.

Detroit Music Co.

Second hand Pianos or Organs taken in exchange for new instruments.

M. S. MOULTON,
WATCHMAKER & JEWELER,
Charlevoix, Mich.

Personal Attention given to Watch Repairing.
Key-wind Movements changed to Stem-wind and warranted as good as the best.
JEWELRY Repairing done in the best manner.
Having had 30 years experience I am confident I can give the best of satisfaction.

ICE CREAM
PAR EXCELLENCE.

We would respectfully inform the public that we have at considerable expense, prepared and suitably furnished our Band Pagoda as an Ice Cream parlor, and have placed it at the head of all similar institutions in Charlevoix. It will be open for the use of the public at all times save on Wednesday evenings, when there will be a Grand Concert by the Band. Our cream will be as good as can be made. Just received a large lot of Ice Cream Packages holding from one quart to one or more gallons, which will be loaned to customers for safely carrying cream to their homes. The quality of our cream speaks for itself. Our stock of foreign and domestic Fruits is always large and of the best quality. We carry as fine a line of confectionery, nuts, etc., as can be found in town.

Respectfully,
O. W. SMITH.

NOTICE.

The late Champlain disaster has placed me in close financial circumstances. Therefore it is necessary for me to collect all outstanding indebtedness. All Owing me will please call and pay.

GEO. W. MILLER.

JOHN CONNOR,
Fashionable
Boot and Shoe MAKER.

Hand Sewed French Calf Gaiters, $5; Men's Kip and Calf Boots, $4.50; Half-soling, 50 cents. Defy competition.

All Work Guaranteed.

Fresh Butter at lowest price, at Jefferies' Bakery.

JOHN W. KIRBY,
BLACKSMITH & Horseshoer.

Having leased the Blacksmith Shop of D. C. NETTLETON, I am now prepared to do all kinds of Blacksmithing. Satisfaction guaranteed. Horseshoeing a Specialty,
J. W. KIRBY.

I have leased my blacksmith shop on Bridge Street to JOHN W. KIRBY. Mr. Kirby is well-known here having been in the shop for nearly 3 years past, consequently there will be no change of workmen. He is an expert in his line and worthy of a liberal patronage.
D. C. NETTLETON.

POSITIVELY THE FINEST LINE OF

CLOTHING

AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS YOU EVER SAW IN CHARLEVOIX,

JUST RECEIVED FOR SUMMER WEAR.

Prices are unusually low this Spring and if you need anything in my line, just step in.

Now is a Grand Time To Obtain Bargains.

GEO. W. MILLER.

NEW GOODS CONSTANTLY ARRIVING
AT THE POPULAR STORE OF
A. T. WASHBURNE AND CO.

DEAR FRIENDS:

We are not OVER-STOCKED from the very fact that we buy what people need every day. Hardly a day passes that we do not receive something new in our line. The advantage we have in purchasing is evident to every person of sense. That is the reason our store is always filled with customers.

We buy in larger quantities and sell in larger quantities. We carry the Finest Line of Dry Goods, Fancy Goods and Carpets, in Northern Michigan at prices consistent with the times.

Goods ALWAYS as represented or MONEY WILLINGLY Refunded.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.
Successors to F. W. CRAINE & CO.

REFITTED!

Our store is fully completed and we cordially invite our friends and patrons to call and inspect a choice assortment of new

DRY GOODS & GROCERIES

new Goods arriving nearly every day. Our stock of Groceries is the Largest, Choicest, Cleanest, and our Prices the Lowest. We're busy and haven't got arranged yet, but we want to see you just as we are.

J. L. HURD & CO.

New Goods! NEW GOODS! New Goods!
WILL ARRIVE AT
Alick Rosenthal's, Lewis Block,
THIS WEEK.
Look for Big Announcement next week

Jno C Miller may21 8

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XIX. NO.—16 | CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1887. | WHOLE NO. 925

"BUG FINISH!"

The new Potato Bug exterminator. We warrant it to give satisfaction. Very cheap. All ready for use. Requires no mixing. Try it.

STRICTLY PURE PARIS GREEN

We have in stock the purest article to be found in the market. It's sure death every time. Buy no other.

Sure Death To Currant Worms!

For these pests we have a pure article of White Hellebone. When ever used it acts like magic not leaving a worm on the bush.

PURE DALMATION INSECT POWDER

The best thing for Flies and other insects.

A trial of any of the above is bound to prove satisfactory,

F. G. HINES & CO.
Druggists.

EMREY BROS.

Boots and Shoes for almost nothing, to close out.

We have a number of pairs of Boots and Shoes which we will almost give away as we are closing them out.

We are also going out of

CROCKERY

and have a complete assortment which must be sold

WE WILL NOT TAKE A BACK SEAT ON

SUMMER DRY GOODS.

PRICES ALWAYS LOW.

IN GROCERIES and Provisions we can suit you, as we receive Fresh Goods weekly.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

B A R K

WANTED!

We Hold our Custom because our Prices are Always Low.

OUR SUMMER ASSORTMENT OF

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

now being received is the finest we ever offered

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in

FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN

BOOTS and SHOES.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces

EVERYTHING

usually found in a General Store.

Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours.

Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

A Word with You!

IF YOU WILL COME TO OUR STORE WE HOPE TO BE ABLE TO CONVINCE YOU THAT WE TRY TO ENABLE YOU TO

Save Your Dollars

BY BUYING ANYTHING IN THE HARDWARE LINE

OF US.

YOU KNOW WHO "US" IS BY THIS TIME OR

IF YOU DON'T YOU SHOULD

WE ARE HARDWARE, IRON, AND NAIL MERCHANTS. SELL LOTS OF GOODS AND SELL 'EM CHEAP.

It's money in your pocket to buy of S. & I. and Don't You For------- ----!

Resp'y, STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

The Best Groceries
At The Lowest Prices

ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF

A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

New Furniture
AT S. M. SEE & SONS!

We have just received an entirely new stock of Furniture of every discription.

Dealing exclusively in Furniture we are confident we can make it an object to all wishing to buy to call and inspect our stock.

UNDERTAKING A Specialty.

J. MILO EATON'S
REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE,
AND LOAN OFFICE.

The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice

WANTED!

Everyone to know that we are here and doing Business, and will do just as we agree to by one and all. We keep

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS, FLOUR AND FEED, CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

Choice Butter and Fresh Eggs a Specialty. Call on us or order by Telephone.

WILL SEE & CO.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY

SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, - Michigan.

Address all business correspondence to the firm

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year - $1 50 | Six months - $.75
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—A. M. Ross left yesterday for Escanaba, to be absent two months.

—Mr. Charles Gale, of Albion, is the guest of H. Lee Iddings for a few days.

—L. E. Allen has taken a contract for driving piles for the government work at Portage Lake.

—Rev. C. F. Van Auken has exchanged his residence in this place for a farm in Ionia county.

—Preaching at the Ironton M. E. church next Sabbath morning and evening by the pastor.

—The East Jordan Enterprise says that Sam Lobdell—our Sam—is going on the road for a tobacco firm.

—Al. Washburn sold a consignment of Indian hampers to Superintendent Long, of Ionia, to be used in the prison, last week.

—W. H. Miller an old Charlevoix boy, but now of DeKalb, N. Y., is spending a month with his father, Wm. Miller, of Marion.

—Cards are out for the marriage to-morrow, in Petoskey, of Mr. Alick Rosenthal, of Charlevoix, and Miss Minnie Wunderlich, of Chicago.

—C. H. Maddaugh, has just received a fine line of samples of first-class tweed goods, and also of overcoatings. For good fit and work, give him a call.

—The ladies of the Baptist church will give an ice cream Festival at Green's hall Wednesday (this) evening. Refreshments will be served from 6 o'clock to 10.

—When the immense new ferry boat now building at Detroit is completed Capt. Boynton will be appointed to command her, while Capt. A. G. Aldrich will probably succeed him on the Algomah.

—R. H. Dougall, formerly manager of the Charlevoix skating rink, is now proprietor of a large restaurant in Omaha. Mrs. and Miss Dougall—wife and sister—who have been resorting here for a month, return home this week.

—The Delta Tau Delta fraternity held their fourth annual banquet at the Kensington, Harbor Springs, last Friday evening and had a good time. The contract has been let for their club house at Bay View and next year they will have a home of their own, and a headquarters for all visiting Delta Tau's. The contract price is $2,500.

—Mr. Wrisley, an early settler of Northport, has purchased the Mrs. Spaulsbury residence, on the north side in this village, and will remove here. His daughter, Mrs. Capt. O. E. Wilber, has been for some time the guest of Mrs. Capt. Aldrich, and it is stated on pretty good authority, that Capt. Wilber will soon be a permanent resident of Charlevoix. They will come! They can't help it! Charlevoix captures them all.

Edward, an eleven year old son of Horace S. Newson, of Hayes, one week ago last Sunday, was on his way to the lake to take a bath, when some person in the woods near by shot him a full load of shot taking effect in his thigh. Whether the occurrence was accidental or otherwise, no one knows. Dr. Carlstein extracted a piece of clothing from the wound, bringing out 37 shot. There are 33 marks in the thigh indicating that number of shot still in the flesh.

—Capt. D. W. Lockwood, of Grand Rapids, in charge of the work of improving certain of the Michigan rivers and harbors, has sent in his annual report of the operations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1887, from which the following estimates of the sums that can be profitably expended in Michigan in 1888 are taken: St. Joseph harbor, $40,015; South Haven harbor, $40,000; Saugatuck harbor, $5,000; Black Lake harbor, $15,000; Grand river, below Grand Rapids, no recommendations; Grand Haven harbor, $150,000; Muskegon harbor, $100,000; White River harbor, $5,000; Pentwater harbor, $40,000; Ludington harbor, $250,000; Manistee harbor, $50,000; harbor of refuge at Portage lake, $150,000; Charlevoix harbor and Pine lake entrance, $50,000.

—"My wife and I are going home to-night," said Congressman Allen, "but I'm going to come back every year until I get too poor to go away from home. And, by the way, it is surprising how little it costs to spend a few weeks in northern Michigan. The fare is very low and the hotel rates are down right cheap. Summer resorts are supposed to be expensive, but there isn't a city in the state that can beat Petoskey on accommodations at reasonable rates. Oh! this is bound to be the resort region of states, and no one in Michigan will think of going anywhere else. We can get here in a night, and leave for home three times a day, and there isn't a place in the mountains or at the sea shore which can compare with northern Michigan."—Resorter.

—Fred Green has returned home.

—Slossen, the great billiardist, was here last week.

—J. S. Smithson and family, start this week for Europe.

—Bark won't peel any more, we can fall back on bananas.

—S. M. See & Sons have the neatest thing out in the way of a hammock reclining chair.

—Robert Chamberlain, wife and children, of Detroit, are making their parents and friends happy by a visit.

—Al Washburn & Co., have received a large invoice of yarns with other goods, to which they call attention this week.

—Mrs. Abram Reese, and daughter Carrie, of Pittsburg, Pa., are visiting the former's neice, Mrs. L. E. Allen.

—U. S. Harbor Inspector Collier, goes to Green Bay in about three weeks to superintend government work there.

—Mrs. D. C. Nettleton is gaining slowly. Mr. Nettleton contemplates trying California climate, for her benefit next winter.

—Alick Rosenthal, in his new advertisement this week, draws your attention to his fresh stock of fall and winter goods, just received.

—Fred Williams, of Au Sable, and brother of Mr. Harry Williams, of Detroit Music Company, arrived Monday morning to remain a week.

—The earth is now passing through the August meteoric belt, hundreds of millions of miles wide. If there are no clouds a fine display may be seen if you'll sit up most of the night. The display was the finest the night of the 10th, but continues for several days.

—Kalkaska Leader: The newspapers in some of the towns in which our base ball boys won their brilliant series of victories, last week and the week before, are loud in their condemnation of Umpire Darby, of this place. Charlevoix papers are especially harsh in their criticisms of Mr. Darby, and their strictures, so far as we are able to ascertain, are unjust and entirely uncalled for. Mr. D. is probably not infallible any more than other mortals, but that he would deliberately and repeatedly favor his home club, and that the second game at Charlevoix was won by his decisions and rulings in favor of our boys is a story too utterly gauzy for belief. To lay the defeats of the Charlevoix club to the partiality of the umpire, is pleading the baby act with a vengeance; and especially so when it is known that an effort was made to purchase a victory with cold, hard cash, when it was found that it could not be done by playing ball. We have it from good and reliable authority that fifty dollars was offered the Kalkaska club, if they would play off and allow their opponents to win; but the boys are not built that way. Our Charlevoix contemporaries are discreetly silent on that point, however, and doubtless intend to cover up the attempt at bribery by the smoke of their savage attack on Mr. Darby. It was, however, an acknowledgement that they appreciated the uselessness of an attempt to get a game by playing for it.

Religious.

M. E. Church.

Remember the Tuesday and Thursday evening meetings and let us make them seasons of interest and profit. Sunday school teachers meet at the parsonage on Friday evening for the study of the lesson Sunday morning. Love feast beginning at 9.30, preaching at 10.30, after which the Lords Supper will be administered. Remember this feast and be present if possible. Yours, W. H. McCartney.

Gospel Meeting.

At the Gospel meeting in Opera Hall, Sunday evening, addresses were made by Rev. W. H. McCartney, Prof. Bradley, of Garrett Biblical Institute; and Professors Scott and Curtiss, of the Congregational Theological Seminary of Chicago.

Baptist Church.

Rev. A. E. Mather D. D., of Battle Creek, will preach at the Baptist hall next Sunday morning. Sunday school immediately after morning service.

Prayer meeting, Tuesday and Thursday evenings. At the Tuesday evening meeting a study of the Sunday school lesson will occupy a portion of the time.

To all the above services non-attendants at other places of worship are heartily welcome.

Episcopal Church.

Sermon by W. H. Van Antken, D. D., of Des Moines, Iowa, on Sunday next at 10:30 a. m. Sunday school at 3 p. m. All wishing to make special offering or subscription, in response to the Bishop's appeal, can do so at this service.

Congregational Church.

Prof. Scott of Chicago will preach at Congregational church next Sunday morning at 10.30.

Some of the pleasantest people in Northern Michigan are at the Chicago Club House, at Charlevoix, but the management are willing to receive more of the same sort, and will therefore receive from thirty to fifty guests. Heretofore the privileges have been limited to members of the club, and now that the opportunity is offered to others there is no question but that it will be improved by those who appreciate good living and good company, as well as the other advantages there offered.—Resorter.

Charlevoix Summer Resort Items.

Wm. M. Altman, of Chicago, is at the Belvedere.

Wm. Booth and wife of Chicago, came Wednesday.

F. D. Haskell and wife, of Kalamazoo, came Saturday.

The yacht Countess was seized for an $1,800 debt last week.

Arthur Fiske is at the Belvedere for the balance of the week.

G. A. Carrington, wife and friends, returned to Detroit, Saturday.

C. F. DeGolyer joined his family at the Cook cottage, Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. B. Jackson, of Detroit, was at the Belvedere last week.

W. G. Pattison joined his daughters at the Wier cottage last Wednesday.

Mrs. S. R. Rust and son, of East Saginaw, arrived at the Belvedere Friday.

Lieut. Gardner, U. S. A., has purchased a $400 lot on Promontory Point.

Mr. and Mrs. David Fisher and family, of Kalamazoo, are at Recreation cottage.

Among Mondays Belvedere arrivals were N. B. Allen, Jr., and Miss Clara Allen, of Kenosha.

Mr. B. S. Cowen, associated press reporter located at Detroit, spent Sunday in Charlevoix.

Lewis Allen, wife and Miss Allen, of Detroit, have pleasant quarters at the New Belvedere.

Gen. O. M. Poe, U. S. engineer, came Saturday and joined his wife at Gen. King's cottage.

Mrs J. M. Stanley, L. E. Stanley and Miss Edith Stanley, of Detroit, are at the Belvedere.

Alderman Finney, of Detroit, and wife, are guests of Rev. A. E. Mather, and family, at their cottage.

Arthur Connable, of Petoskey, and Miss Blanche Brown, of Blissfield, visited resort friends, Saturday.

Rev. W. A. Waterman, pastor of the Kalamazoo Congregational church, spoke at Music hall, Sunday afternoon.

C. M. Davis and Miss Carrie Davis, of Denver, Colorado, are spending a few days in the Michigan Garden of the Gods.

The family of C. F. Gage, President of the Chicago White Lead and Oil Co., is at his cottage on the Chicago side.

Among the lots recently sold on the resort is one to Dr. Campbell Fair, Rector of St. Marks, Grand Rapids. It joins Bishop Gillespie's.

Harry R. Williams and brothers, a musical company from Detroit, entertain Belvedere audiences at all times of the day and a part of the night.

The daughter of a lady resorter mourns a doll, lost on Lake Michigan beach. The finder will be rewarded by returning it to the Belvedere office.

Mr. Charles Williams, who is connected with Detroit Music Company, is a tall, nice looking fellow, and remarkable for his quietness, in marked contrast to his two brothers.

More lots have been sold on the resort during the past two weeks, than during all of last season. Don't look as though the railroad was going to hurt the resort much, does it?

The Belvedere house is still crowded, but pleasant rooms are being secured in neighboring cottages. The Belvedere has been run so successfully this year, that next season with judicious advertising, will find it full in July.

Judge Mills and family of Kalamazoo, came last week and are in the Everard cottage for the balance of the season. Nothing would please Judge Mills' friends more than to have him purchase a lot and erect a cottage on Promontory Point.

The steam yacht May Lilly, of Detroit, has been in the harbor for the past week. Among the party on board were the following Detroit ladies who are stopping at the Belvedere: Miss S. B. Hill, Mrs. Wm. Stridiron, Mrs. J. J. Wight, Miss Winnie Knight.

The following are at Wm. Miller's: Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Doty, Reading, Mich; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Chambers, Wayne; Mrs. A. H. Guise, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Guise, of Carleton Opera Co; Miss N. F. Doty, J. R. Gentle, Mrs. W. Armitage, Miss G. L. Armitage, Mrs. F. Lilibridge, Detroit; Mrs. E. B. Chapin, Ann Arbor.

Daily Resorter: In the office of the Belvedere is a map of the new railroad. The road is to run along the shore of Pine Lake, with the depot on the resort grounds by the river. Some of the resort people fear that the trains may detract from the charming restfulness of the place, but the Resorter is of the opinion that their fears are groundless, and that after the cars begin to run, they would not part with the road any quicker than the Bay View people would.

—Mr. and Mrs. Will Knight left on the Lawrence last Sunday for a visit in Wisconsin.

Notice.

I will be home with my Fall Stock of Dry Goods and will be open for inspection about the 20th or 23d.
Respectfully,
B. [illegible]

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

MY FIRST VENTURE.

I can't remember what was said,
'Twas nothing worth a song or story;
Yet that rude path by which we sped
Seemed all transformed and in a glory.

To have her with me there alone—
'Twas love, and fear, and triumph blended.
At last we reached the foot-worn stone
Where that delicious journey ended.

She shook her ringlets from her hood,
And with a "Thank you, Ned," dissembled.
But yet I knew she understood
With what a darling wish I trembled

A cloud passed kindly overhead,
The moon was slowly peeping through it,
Yet hid its face as if it said,
"Come, now or never! do it! do it!"

My lips till then had only known
The kiss of mother and of sister;
But somehow, full upon her own
Sweet, rosy, darling mouth—I kissed her.

Perhaps 'twas boyish love, yet still,
O, listless woman, weary lover!
To feel once more that fresh wild thrill
I'd give—but who can live youth over?
—St. Louis Sunday Sayings.

AN INDIAN ROMANCE.

BY ETHEL STEVENSON.

Although the day is very sultry, and even the flowers nod sleepily upon their stalks, two laughing children frolic in irrepressible gaiety through the garden paths as if there were no such things as fatigue or heat.

Upon the vine-embowered porch, leaning back in his easy-chair, is an old, gray-haired man. But though his eyes are closed, he is not sleeping, as his start shows, when, high and clear through the air, comes a passionate cry of unmistakable anger.

"Children!"

His call reached the combatants, and swiftly to his side come the two, now flushed and angry, whose faces only a moment before were dimpling over with smiles.

Grandpa looks from one to the other—from his dark-eyed 10-year-old granddaughter to the fair boy, a year her senior. Then he asks gravely, "Children, what is wrong? I hope my little granddaughter has not been behaving discourteously to her guest."

Mona's dark eyes flash, while Roland's fair face flushes as he looks down.

"Granpa," says an indignant voice, "Roland called me a blackamore!"

As the explanation meets his ears, granpa throws back his head, and a hearty laugh issues from his lips.

"So that was it? Children, are you willing to forgive and be friends once more, and give up your play while I tell you a story?"

Forgotten at once is her vexation at the terrible insult which the little lady had deemed herself to have received, while Roland's shamefacedness vanishes; and before many moments two intent listeners are grouped about the old gentleman's knee, eagerly awaiting the promised treat.

"Is it to be a true story, grandpa?"

"Yes; one such as you both love—of adventure and peril. And when I am finished, you will understand, my little maiden, how you came by your dark skin and great black eyes. What I am going to tell you happened many, many years ago, when this country belonged to the Maories, and in the places where our beautiful homes are now forests of great trees raised their lofty heads. It was a time of war, when savage foes surrounded the white men on all sides, and when to walk abroad unarmed was to risk one's life. Often news came of settlements attacked and inhabitants massacred, and then parties of young men, full of spirit and courage, would sally forth.

"Commanding one of these expeditions was a youth of about 20, named Hector Ingraham——"

"Why, grandpa, that is your name, too!"

"Mona, do not interrupt. I was just going to tell you that that youth was my father and your great-grandfather.

"He was a brave young man, and when he heard that a distant garrison was being besieged, he gathered together a band of his comrades, and started forth to the rescue. A day and a night they traveled through the lonely forest-paths, until, when quite near the fort, they fell unsuspectingly into a Maori ambuscade. For a time all was hideous noise and conflict; then, overpowered by numbers, the white men were conquered.

"Hector had been wounded by an arrow at the onset, and feeling his life-blood ebbing away, and knowing that every moment he was growing weaker, he had managed to roll out of sight into the friendly cover of the thick underbrush. From his hiding-place he could hear his comrades' death-groans, and the guttural expressions of triumph of their foes. Then, after binding the few prisoners who were all that were left of his brave followers, and mutilating their dead victims, the savages left the ravine.

"It was a terrible position in which Hector found himself; wounded and bleeding, yet not daring to move, lest some savage eyes might still be watching the spot of the encounter.

"An hour passed, and still all remained in a dense silence, save for the gentle tinkle of running water from a tiny brook which flowed through the ravine. The sound was torture to the wounded soldier, for his tongue was parched; and at last, unable to resist the impulse, he crawled cautiously upon his hands and knees from his hidden retreat. Every motion was agony, but at no great distance was the longed-for stream; and rising with difficulty to his feet, he reached the brink, and making a cup of his hand, took a long, eager draught. Suddenly a slight rustle behind him curdled the blood in his veins. Could one of his savage foes have left his party and returned for plunder?

"Hector knew, if such were the case, his days were numbered, for in his weak state he would be no match for a strong-bodied Maori.

"These thoughts passed like lightning through his mind as, turning, he saw beside him, to his great surprise, instead of the grim-faced warrior he expected, a young and lovely native girl.

"Her robe of skins was bordered with delicately-colored feathers, and around her bare arms were wound strings of many-tinted shells, which also bound back the long floating tresses of dusky hair, from beneath the shadow of which her large black eyes were fixed with shy interest upon his face. She was evidently very young, and Hector saw at once that she must be of no mean rank among her kindred.

"He was familiar with the Maori language; and taking courage from the fawn-like softness of her dark eyes, he said, in her native tongue, 'Does the gentle dove mean to become a falcon, and betray the poor wounded soldier to his foes?'

"She cast a timid look around; then, stepping nearer to him, she said, rapidly, 'Mona came to the brook for water. Others in a little while may come. They, too, will find the stranger. Why stays he here?'

"'I cannot go far,' Hector replied, 'for my wound is very painful.'

"The girl thought a moment; then she took his hand, and motioned him to come with her.

"'Listen,' she said. 'If the stranger trusts Mona, he may be saved. She knows of a cave where he may stay till he is strong. Then, like the eagle, he can spread his wings and take flight to his own people.'

"Hector's eyes rested with pleasure upon her gentle, beautiful face as he said, 'Will not the gentle dove bring danger upon her own head?'

"All th's time they had been threading the forest quietly and quickly. Suddenly Mona paused before an apparently impenetrable thicket of briars and thorns.

"Drawing aside a bush, which, when released, would spring immediately back to its place again, she disclosed the mouth of a cave.

"For a moment Hector hesitated. Perhaps she was willing him here, and would return with a lover or brother to find an easy prey. But one glance into her truthful face, and he was satisfied.

"Taking her hand, he lifted it to his lips; then, turning, vanished in the dark cave which opened before him.

"A month went by, and still Hector remained in hiding; and each day his gentle forest friend, at the peril of her own life, brought to him food and water and healing ointments for his wounds. At last he decided to attempt his escape. He well knew the danger of undertaking to pass alone and single-handed through forests peopled with his foes; but, though life was sweet, liberty was sweeter; and he would rather have died than to have staid any longer where he was.

"When he told Mona, her soft, dark eyes moistened with sudden tears, and she exclaimed: 'When the stranger is gone Mona will not care to live any longer. The sun will hide his face, and the flowers will bloom no more for her.'

"As the young man heard, an irresistible impulse stirred within him. Taking her hand, he said: 'If the gentle dove's heart goes out to her stranger friend, why will she not share the perils her proud blood will keep her from fearing, and come with him to his own home?'

"Mona did not answer, but the hand he held trembled.

"Hector went on, 'For me, too, the sun would cease to shine could I see Mona's face no longer. Will she come with me and be my wife?'

"Mona loved Hector too well to resist his pleadings; and when the next night's dark mantle was spread over the sky they started forth together. Long and perilous was to be their journey, but Mona knew the woods well enough to avoid the most dangerous ports; and hiding by day and traveling by night, they gradually approached their destination, until, at last, from the top of a tall tree which he climbed, Hector could see, some miles away, the smoke of a distant settlement. Little knew his comrades sleeping securely within their homes that the young soldier whom they had mourned as dead was so near to them. But the haven was not yet reached.

"That night Mona and her lover left their hiding-place, knowing that by the morning, if all went right, they would be safe.

"Silently, hand in hand, they wended their stealthy way forward. But suddenly, just as the dawn broke, the woods around them resounded with wild cries Mona knew only too well. Mona's flight had been discovered, and with unerring sagacity the Maories had surmised what had happened.

"'We are lost,' Mona cried. 'Leave me. Mona's foot is not so fleet as thine, and thou mayest yet gain thy home.'

"Hector drew her close to his side.

"'We will die together!' he said.

"Suddenly, through an opening in the trees, several swarthy savages sprang forward. As they saw the lovers a yell of triumph burst from their lips.

"But just as the foremost laid his hand upon the girl's shoulder to wrest her from her companion, a sharp report rang through the air, and he fell forward, pierced through the heart.

"Whence had the deadly messenger come?

"Another shot, and still another, and each time a Maori fell, weltering in his life-blood.

"Convinced that some supernatural power must be interposing between themselves and their intended victims, and struck with one accord by a superstitious horror, the remaining savages turned and fled.

"As they disappeared from behind an adjacent rock, the hitherto unseen marksman stepped into sight.

"He was a singular-looking being. His powerful limbs were clothed in shaggy skins, and around his weather-beaten face flowed his long white hair.

"Springing forward with a glad shout, Hector grasped his hand.

"Thus the old bushranger, whom everyone knew as 'Lion Heart,' had been the means of saving from certain death the youth who, from his boyhood, had been loved by him as his son.

"After they had talked together awhile, Hector laid Mona's little hand in his old friend's, and in a few words told him of her self-sacrificing devotion, and of his own love for her.

"Before long they reached the settlement, and amid the joyful acclamations of his comrades Hector rehearsed the story of his marvelous escape.

"Not many days passed before their union was celebrated, and Hector Ingraham and the dark-eyed maiden who had won his heart were man and wife.

"All the region around soon echoed with their romantic story, and had not Mona possessed a sensible, intelligent mind, her head could hardly have helped being turned by the attentions she received.

"But Hector never had cause to regret his choice, and Mona grew, in his loving companionship, into a noble Christian character.

"This, Mona, is the story of your grandfather and grandmother. My father told it to me even as I now relate it to you.

"Now run away, children; and, Mona, if any one ever speaks again of your dusky eyes and hair, do not be offended, for there was never in all the country around one lovelier or more beloved than your ancestress; and you are her name-child."

The Cigarette.

Dr. Joseph Mulhall says: I am a cigarette smoker myself, and I am a defender of the habit, or, at least, no apologist for it. The charm of the smoking of cigarettes, by which I mean not the puff in and out of the mouth of the smoke, but its inhalation, is the quick and powerful stimulant it gives smoker. The cigar smoker says to the cigarette smoker, "What enjoyment can you get from smoking that tiny roll of paper with its little pinch of tobacco? Why don't you use a cigar or a pipe?" To which the cigarette smoker can reply, if he wants to argue, "My cigarette is a more powerful stimulant than the cigar," and he can prove it if the other will submit to a test. The stimulation of tobacco is caused by the absorption of the nicotine by the system. The smoke of a cigar or pipe reaches only the mucous membrane of the mouth, because it is not inhaled. The cigarette smoker inhales the smoke of his cigarette, and it touches not only the mouth but also the throat, and the membranes all the way down absorb the stimulant. The cigarette smoker, too, cannot smoke a weak cigarette with enjoyment, for one-half the pleasure of the smoke is caused by the contact of the smoke with the membranes. It must grip the throat, so to speak, to produce the pleasure. As to the evil effects of cigarette smoking there is much exaggeration. The habit can be justly charged with only one injurious effect which is not produced by other kinds of smoking. That is an irritation of the throat, which is noticed by almost all confirmed cigarette smokers in themselves. The idea that the smoke penetrates the lungs is a vulgar and absurd one. It never gets beyond the tidal air, and that means that it never reaches the lungs. Cigarette-smoking causes irregularity of the heart beats, what is known as "tobacco

GREAT GUNS.

Soldiers' Stirring Stories of Solid Shot, Screaming Shells,

Big Battles, Bursting Bombs, Buzzing Bullets, and Bright Bayonets

"The Man with the Musket."

In the spring or summer of 1886, there appeared in the Century five stanzas with the above title, published anonymously, which were widely copied, and which attracted much attention. I thought them—and many agree with me—the very best poetical tribute to the Union soldier ever in print. The author, H. S. Taylor, lives at Englewood, Ill., and as one of the Missouri volunteers marched with Sherman to the sea. He has kindly furnished me the whole, including three stanzas not before published, and I am glad to give your veteran readers a chance to preserve this stirring poem, which truly rings like a bugle. JAMES FRANKLIN FITTS.

They are building as Babel was built, to the sky,
With clash and confusion of speech;
They are piling up monuments massive and high
To lift a few names out of reach.
And the passionate green-laureled god of the great
In a whimsical riddle of stone,
Has chosen a few from the Field and the State
To sit on the steps of his throne.

But I—I will pass from this rage of renown,
This ant hill commotion and strife,
Pass by where the marbles and bronzes look down,
With their fast frozen gestures of life,
On, out to the nameless who lie 'neath the gloom
Of the pitying cypress and pine;
Your man is the man of the sword and the plume,
But the man of the musket is mine.

I knew him! By all that is noble, I knew
This commonplace hero I name!
I've camped with him, marched with him, fought with him, too,
In the swirl of the fierce battle-flame!
Laughed with him, cried with him, taken a part
Of his canteen and blanket, and known
That the throb of this chivalrous prairie boy's heart
Was an answering stroke of my own!

I knew him, I tell you! And, also, I knew
When he fell on the battle-swept ridge,
That the poor battered body that lay there in blue
Was only a plank in the bridge
Over which some should pass to a fame
That shall shine when the high stars shall shine!
Your hero is known by an echoing name,
But the man of the musket is mine.

I knew him! All through him the good and the bad
Ran together and equally free;
But I judge as I trust Christ has judged the poor lad,
For death made him noble to me.
In the cyclone of war, in the battle's eclipse,
Life shook out its lingering sands,
And he died with the names that he loved on his lips,
His musket still grasped in his hands!
Up close to the flag my soldier went down,
In the salient front of the line:
You may take for your heroes the men of renown,
But the man of the musket is mine!

There is peace in the May-laden grace of the hours
That come when the day's work is done;
And peace with the nameless who, under the flowers,
Lie asleep in the slant of the sun.
Beat the taps! Put out lights! and silence all sound;
There is rifle-pit strength in the grave!
They sleep well who sleep, be they crowned or uncrowned,
And Death will be kind to the brave.

Old comrades of mine, by the fast waning years
That move to mortality's goal,
By my heart full of love and my eyes full of tears
I hold you all fast in my soul!
And I march with the May, and its blossomy charms
I tenderly lay on this sod,
And pray they may rest there, old comrades in arms,
Like a kiss of forgiveness from God!
—Chicago Ledger.

A Memorable Day.

I never shall forget the day our army was disbanded and when we heard of General Lee's surrender.

It was a memorable epoch in the lives of some of the boys who wore the gray.

Those that had families returned to their desolated homes, and by hard work, good management, and untiring industry, finally succeeded in repairing to some extent the ravages of war. The old Southern home which they had left but a short time before was destroyed; the old mansion which had been the home of their ancestors was gone. All that remained were the smoldering ruins, which told the tale of destruction. The slaves that they had owned were emancipated, and, in the eyes of the law, were their former masters' equals in many respects.

Some of those that enlisted in the Southern army possessed everything requisite to happiness and contentment—lands, slaves, and money in abundance. They entered the service opulent, leaving their loved ones at home with all that was necessary for the comforts and luxury in life. They went into the army rich in this world's goods, and came out paupers. Their money was worthless, their slaves freed, and, in some instances, their lands confiscated. It seemed then that there was nothing to live for. Houses, lands, and property of every description were swept from us like chaff before the wind. Yet the Southern soldier did not repine; he thought not of the past, but looked to the future. He laid aside his faded suit of gray, arrayed himself in a suit of homespun, and went to work. New houses were erected, farms were improved, cotton factories were built, and soon the hum of industry was heard throughout all parts of the land. We are glad to see the North and South shaking hands across the bloody chasm. God save us from another secession. We want no more family strifes. We wish to see no more sacked cities and no more smoldering ruins; and, above all, no more streams of American blood shed in wars waged by brothers and kinsmen. Let us fervently pray that our country's history may never record another scene like the one through which we have passed! When we shall have consigned to perpetual oblivion all the bitter memories of the past we will indeed be a happy as well as a prosperous people. Let every true patriot firmly resolve to assist in healing the gaping wounds. Thank God! they are healing rapidly, and, in our humble opinion, the day is not far distant when we shall know no North, no South, no East, no West, but be one grand, united, free republic.—Chicago Ledger.

Ambushing a Bushwhacker.

When the war feeling in East Tennessee had become so bitter that all Union men had to flee from their homes or remain at the peril of their lives, a mountaineer named Alexander Brown left his wife and two children to make his way through to the Union lines and enlist. I knew him well. He was not an educated man, and one would not have looked for sentiment under his coonskin cap and ragged clothes. It was curious, speaking of sentiment, how the uncouth, uneducated, and poverty-stricken mountaineers were aroused by the war and made to take for and against the Union. If one was a Unionist, he was as firm as a rock; if one was a Confederate, you couldn't move him. Brown was for the Union, and, though an ignorant man in the general sense, he had a ready tongue, a good memory, and he could out-talk any man in the neighborhood. After a time this made him a dangerous man to the Confederates, and he received plenty of hints that his life was not safe. He could not remove his family, having no means, and he was determined not to enter the Confederate ranks. He therefore bade his family good by one evening and started for a tramp of sixty miles across the country. There was at that time a gang of Confederate bushwhackers roaming over the country to rob and abuse Unionists. I met him and his gang the very day Brown fled, and understood from their talk that they were after him. It seems they got a hint of his having left home, and laid for him along a path which he was expected to follow. He was thus captured. In the struggle he killed one of the men, and in return they roasted him alive at the stake. It was six months before the facts were known to Mrs. Brown. She had remained right at home, and, though known to be a Unionist, had not been disturbed. When she learned the horrible fate of her husband, she registered a vow to kill every man engaged in the affair. As the whole crowd had been merged into another crowd and been sent off to Virginia, the chances of her threat being fulfilled looked very slim. She did not leave home, but waited for time to aid her in her revenge.

In January, 1863, Ben Lock, who was a sergeant of cavalry, came back home for the first time, having a mission to enlist such men as could be prevailed upon to join the flag. He took up his quarters at a house three miles from Mrs. Brown's and during the first hours of his arrival gave out that he intended to burn her cabin and drive her and her children into the hills. On that first night, as he took the water pail just at dusk, and started for a spring a few rods away, the report of a gun was heard, and when some of the people went out to investigate they found Ben Lock lying near the spring with the top of his head blown off. It was well known for miles around that she ambushed and killed Lock, but so far as I know, she was never disturbed on that account. On the contrary, the Confederates around her all praised her nerve, and had no laments for the fellow Lock, who had tumbled into a shallow grave.

Presence of Mind.

Captain Strong, of the Second Wisconsin Regiment, relates the following story of his capture and attempt to escape:

As I was passing through a thicket I was surrounded by six Confederate soldiers.

I shot down the two footmen nearest me.

They asked me various questions, all of which I refused to answer. They discussed among themselves whether to hang me there and then or take me to camp and hang me there. It was finally decided to take me to camp.

They marched me through an open place, two footmen in front, two in the rear, and a horseman on either side of me. I was armed with two revolvers and a sword. After going some twenty rods the sergeant, who was on my right, noticing my pistols, commanded me to halt and give them up, together with my sword.

I said, "Certainly, gentlemen," and immediately halted. As I stopped, they all filed past me, and, of course, were now in front of me.

At this time we were in an open place in the woods, but about sixty rods to the rear was a thicket of undergrowth; thus everything was in my favor. I was quick of foot and a fair shot, yet the design of escape was not formed in my mind until I had brought my pistols to the front part of my body and my hands touched the stocks. The grasping of the pistols suggested the cocking of them as I drew them out. This I did, and the instant I got command of them I shot down the two footmen nearest me—about six feet off—one with each hand. Quick as thought I turned and ran toward the thicket in the rear. The confusion of my captors was apparently so great that I had nearly reached the shelter of the friendly thicket before shots were fired at me. One ball passed through my left cheek, passing out of my mouth; another one, a musket ball, went through my canteen.

Immediately upon this volley the two cavalrymen separated, the one to my right, the other to my left, to cut off my retreat, the remaining two footmen charging directly toward me. I turned upon the horsemen and fired three or four shots, but the balls flew wild.

I still ran on until I got over a knoll, and had nearly regained one of the pickets of our line, when I was headed off by the mounted men. I was compelled by force of circumstances to again surrender, and was this time marched in triumph to their camp.

Hospital Treatment.

The following is a story related to me a few days since by an old "vet":

The hospital is at its best about as uncomfortable quarters as a soldier ordinarily finds, for several reasons: First, if he is in the hospital he is unable to be anywhere else, as a rule, which alone is not a very comfortable situation. But, to make a bad matter worse, if a man is in the hospital, he must take his regular "dose," which is dealt out to him by an ignoramus of a physician (?), without any regard to what his disease may be, very much oftener than by one skilled in his profession.

Such was the case in the hospital where I nursed for a while. And the poor suffering boys were saved many a bitter dose that could in no possible way do them any good (except, perhaps, by the enervating thought that they would not have to swallow it), and often did much harm. I had not the heart nor the will to enforce the doctor's orders when it was plainly evident that it was harming the poor fellows.

One great, strong, capable-looking man when well, John Allen by name, whom the doctors pronounced beyond recovery, begged hard to be allowed to die in peace. Medicine was still issued to him, but not a dose of it did I give him after the doctor was out of sight. I did all I could to make him comfortable while he might stay with us. But he did not die, and only last summer we shook hands, and he thanked me that he still lives.

Another case was of a boy who was apparently not long for this earth. He was sinking fast, and pleaded piteously for me not to make him take the medicine. Immediately on discontinuing the medicine he began to revive. Sometimes the doctor would fix up a dose and give it himself, then the poor fellow would relapse for several hours. But by careful management we did not allow that to happen very often, and in the course of time Tommy Clark was ready to report for duty. I have never since met him.

There were plenty of other cases nearly or quite as remarkable.

Reunions.

The survivors of the Eighth Illinois Cavalry will hold a reunion at the Sherman House, Chicago.

A reunion of the survivors of the One Hundredth Illinois will be held at Lockport, September 22. Comrades wishing information can obtain same by addressing George Sparry, Secretary, Lockport.

The annual reunion of the survivors of the Seventeenth Illinois Cavalry will be

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1860.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

CHARLEVOIX, AUG. 17, 1887.

Gov. Gordon, of Georgia, in a recent speech to ex-rebel veterans, said: "Whenever I admit that we were in the wrong may God blast me where I stand!" Great applause from the blasted rebels.

The republicans of New York will hold their state convention Sept. 14 at Saratoga and there seems to be a general feeling throughout the state that they will nominate a ticket that will win in November. A republican victory in New York this fall would give the party a grand start for the presidential persimmons next year.

A dispatch from Halifax says that "British war ships are to take a hand in protecting Canadian waters from the encroachments of American fishermen." If this sort of thing don't stop pretty soon, some American war ships will "take a hand." And when they do, our Canadian friends will be very likely to hear something drop.

Great Britain has decided to send over some cruisers to insure by the moral suasion of their presence the avoidance of any trouble over the fisheries question. The United States might join in the good work. Her cruisers are admirably adapted to such service, and, as long as none of the fishing-boat captains saw fit to rebel, would probably be quite effective.

It was once supposed that cigars were made from the leaves of the fragrant weed, tobacco. But now the chemists have found out that a cigar contains acetic, formic, butyric, veleric and proprionic acids, prussic acid creosote, carbolic acid, ammonia, sulphurated hydrogen, pyridine, virtoline, pleoline and rubidine. Still men will smoke. Cannot the chemists quit meddling with the necessities of enjoyable life?

The Canadian newspapers were boasting, a short time ago, that many Americans were going into the Northwest Territory to settle. It turns out that these "Americans" are Mormons from Salt Lake City, about one hundred of whom have invaded the dominion. The Canadian press now demands that these "American" colonists shall not be allowed to remain. Our neighbors are welcome to all that kind of American immigration they can get.

The District of Columbia Commissioners seem to have been fooling with the public money quite extensively. The first Controller, Mr. Durham, has found that they spent $125 for fine French chinaware, ostensibly for the Washington asylum, but really for use at the frequent costly dinners to which the Commissioners have been treating themselves at that institution. The Engineer Commissioner was found to have supplied himself with two blooded horses and fine harnesses at the public expense. Evidently there is need of some reform of the bouncing kind right around the National capitol.

The honest temperance men who have hitherto been identified with the third party movement cannot fail to see the inconsistency of their party leaders in denouncing local or county prohibition. Many of them do see it and declare that they will no longer be misled by those who show such a spirit of hostility to the temperance measures now before the people. The selfish course pursued by the state organ of the third party is severely denounced by the best temperance men in the state, as it deserves to be. It is to be deplored that the temperance sentiment of the state cannot be united, but so far as the influence of the Center and a few of the bosses extends, it goes to create divisions and dissensions.

The application of volcanic scoria of pumice to the construction of the vaulting of the corridors of the amphitheatre at Catania is worthy of observation, and bears witness to the constructive ability of the Roman builders. The springings and various main ribs are executed in very sound brickwork, while the interstices, spandrels and other parts of the vaulting are wholly executed with this light yet hard material, in its rough state, but run in solidly with Pozzolana cement. That this mode of construction is substantial is evident from the permanence of the work in these ancient corridors. The dome of the Pantheon at Rome is executed in the same manner, and has stood the sieges, earthquakes and all other causes of damage and decay for nearly 2,000 years. It is certainly worthy of inquiry whether a safe, permanent, perhaps economical, vaulting might not be similarly executed with coke, a material which has many of the properties of a volcanic scoria, is extremely light, and yet so hard as to be able, like the diamond, to scratch glass.

Northern Michigan News.

Acme is to have a large woolen mill.

J. B. Martin has just completed a bank block at East Jordan.

The sanitary convention to be held at Traverse City August 24th and 25th promises to be a very interesting meeting.

The work of expending $20,000 in dredging out the river at Cheboygan to a uniform depth of 16 feet has commenced.

J. S. Hunt has sold his Bear Lake mill to John Samby, of Hayes, who will remove it to the lake shore, six miles east of Charlevoix.

M. E. Byers, of Atwood, raised eleven acres of extra early peas that averaged twenty bushels per acre by measure. He also threshed 200 bushels of winter wheat last week from 10½ acres.

The amount necessary to secure the removal of the Butler woolen mills from Acme to Traverse City is fully subscribed, and work on the building, which will be of brick, will begin at once.

The State Teachers institute for Grand Traverse county will be held at Traverse City commencing August 29th. It will be conducted by Prof. Baker, of Big Rapids, assisted by Prof. Kelsey, of Marquette.

Traverse Herald: Mr. Hannah left for Chicago this afternoon, called by the death of his brother, Francis H. Hannah, who received accidental injuries some time ago, from the effects of which he never recovered.

Judge Fallass, Grand Master, assisted by eleven of the brethren of Grand Traverse Lodge No. 200 I. O. O. F., and an equal number from Spencer Creek Lodge, instituted Elk Rapids lodge last week. The lodge was instituted with five charter members, and the initiation of eleven new ones.

Traverse Bay Eagle: The Leland creamery is completed, and has commenced business. The building is 32x54 feet, with a boiler room 10x20 feet. It has a capacity for about 2,000 pounds per day of ten hours. The owners of the institution want all the milk that the farmers in the vicinity have.——Mr. J. G. Leiter, of Williamsburg, received a ten-horse power traction engine by rail last Wednesday, which he steamed up on our streets and run home. The engine is to be used to run a threshing machine which Mr. Leiter owns, and after the threshing season is over he intends to use the power to run some kind of wood-working machinery.

Bellaire Breeze: The prospects for the speedy completion of the railroad from Kalkaska to Charlevoix continue to brighten. As soon as the right of way can be secured, and the necessary contracts made, parties stand ready to advance the money and build and equip the road, when it is expected that it will become a link in the line of the Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad, which now, through the tireless energy of Gov. Ashley, is on a sound basis, with its bonds at a premium in the New York market. The Toledo & Ann Arbor for several years made slow progresss, but during the past year has built a large amount of road and is successfully operating it. The growing importance of the "Soo" makes it desirable to push its main line to Mackinaw as soon as possible, and with its contract to build to Cadillac this season, the present surveyed line of the D. C. & E., if secured, affords the T. & A. an easy, practicable route to the straits. Hence the willingness on the part of the friends of the road to undertake the construction of the D. C. & E. This project, if carried out, will place Bellaire on a main trunk line instead of on a "stub road." And the easy grade of the road will insure it a large share of the through freight.

Petoskey Record: At the railroad meeting last night, Mr. R. M. Cherrie laid before our people the proposition of the New York syndicate relative to the new road. The proposition boiled down is this: The people along the line to furnish profile and estimates from Kalkaska via Charlevoix and Petoskey, to Mackinaw straits, and secure right of way from Kalkaska to navigable waters on the straits within 90 days from Aug. 1st. These conditions met, the syndicate will furnish the money necessary to immediately construct the line as an extension of the Toledo & Ann Arbor system, taking first mortgage bonds on the line. The opinion prevails that unless their overtures are met with absolute indifference by the people most interested, the road will certainly be built. The surveyors are now six miles this side of Charlevoix. We understand that Engineer Beardslee, who is in charge of the survey, intends to run the line from Little Traverse Bay northward over the route first surveyed by the G. R. & I. through Pleasantview, Center and Bliss townships.——Mr. Watson Snyder's discovery of natural gas on the Bay View grounds has resulted in the organization of a stock company, and the rock from which it issues will be bored this fall.

East Jordan has perfected a driving park association, with W. F. Empey, President; James A. Keat Secretary, and J. B. Martin, Treasurer.

The third annual reunion of the Antrim county Soldiers' and Sailors' Association will be held in the village of Eastport, Sept. 14, 15 and 16.

Rev. and Mrs. S. Steele celebrated their golden wedding at the Occidental hotel in Petoskey, recently, by a reception to their friends. About 75 were present and passed a very enjoyable evening. Mr. Steele is the oldest minister in the Grand Traverse region.

Adam Shaum, living on section 28, in Melrose township, this county, has been prospecting for fire clay, and thinks he has found any quantity of it. He has also discovered traces of hard coal, and what he believes to be silver. The specimens have been sent to Ann Arbor for analysis.

Antrim county has 113 pensioners who are paid $938,66 per month; Benzie, 51 pensioners, $131.00; Charlevoix, 101 pensioners, $1,193.75; Emmet, 133 pensioners, $1,339.50; Grand Traverse, 116 pensioners, $1,072.00; Kalkaska, 32 pensioners, $271.00; Lelanaw, 31 pensioners, $292.00; Manitou, 1 pensioner, $4.00; Wexford, 148 pensioners, $1,342.56.

The Enterprise says this of the new Northport creamery: "Creamery consists of main building and engine room, the former 32x54 and the latter 10x20 feet. Main building is divided as follows: In the front or south end of the building are the office and cleansing rooms for steaming cans; working room 30x32, with three vats with a capacity of 1,100 gallons. Two churns of 550 gallons capacity. A butter worker that will work 5,000 pounds per day. Two rooms 14x14 each, for cold storage. The ceilings are 14 feet in the clear and well finished. Woodwork inside is all oiled, no paint allowed. Capacity is about 200 pounds per day.

Kalkaska Leader: Mr. W. H. Bockes informs us that arrangements have all been made for building the Elk Rapids and Kalkaska railroad and that the surveyors will be put on next week. He also states that the contract to build the line is let to a Muskegon man named McDonald, the same party who built this part of the G. R. & I., and who is ready to commence work the moment the surveyors get the route staked out for him. The road is to be completed in ninety days from the time it is commenced, which, allowing that the contractors get to work by September 1st, will be about December 1st. Mr. Bockes gets his information from Dexter & Noble.

The Reed City Clarion is out with its notices for the soldiers' and sailors' reunion at Reed City Sept. 6th, 7th and 8th, and says: "Soldiers and sailors of Northern Michigan: It is important that you begin to make calculations to be present at the 4th annual reunion of your association, to be held at Reed City, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 6th, 7th and 8th, if you would make it a grand success. Your officers are now diligently at work with that end in view, in securing half fare on all the railroads, and in securing leading and influential comrades to be present. The features of this reunion will be a grand sham battle, bombardment of Fort Sumpter, and six base ball games by celebrated clubs of the Northern Michigan League. Therefore take a three days' lay-off from your work and have a grand good time, by coming to Reed City, and we will do you good. State papers please copy.

East Jordan Enterprise: Col. O. F. Wisner is married! No more will his classical figure with its military cloak, or the courtly wave of his old white hand, conjure up to the mind of the beholder thoughts of a possibly romantic past, or invest with the sanctity of a dead and buried love the familiar figure of the author of Hadassah and the owner of Holy Island. When Boreas and his troopers howl down the wastes from Manitoba and the sand duns that Pa-pu-ke-wis heaped on the north shore of Lake Superior, rattling the casement, and rocking the roaring forest, to sit with feet in hot ashes of the open stove and read Homer in the original while the sonorous and stately lines cadence in rich unison with the storm fiends outside, will no longer seem the thing, for our idol is broken. When bright spring with gentle gesture waves back the vengeful and fierce winter, typifying the superiority of love to hate, of gentleness to force, and the snow departs, and the blue bird and robin return once more, how can we have the heart to again wander pensively under the shade of the melancholy hemlock, eating leeks and translating the German of Goethe while the Sabbath stillness of the forest primeval is broken only by the lone Indian with a twenty-cent plug of spear head tobacco in his hip pocket, whistling the latest from Sullivan's comic opera? We can't do it! O, Colonel, you have broken our heart!

Teachers' Examination.

[illegible]

Chancery Sale.

[illegible]

TIME CARDS OF STEAMERS

Charlevoix and East Jordan. — Str. NORTH STAR.

Boyne City and Charlevoix. — Str. CLARA BELLE.

Charlevoix and Boyne City. — Str. JOSEPH GORDON.

Harbor Springs, Charlevoix & East Jordan. — Str. THOS. FRIANT.

East Jordan, Charlevoix & Harbor Springs.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN LINE.

HANNAH, LAY & CO'S BOATS.

[illegible]

Bank of Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security

Its Officers

Security in Banking

This Bank Invites

This Bank Will

Parties Seeking

Investment Notes,

We Solicit Your Patronage.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S

LIVERY STABLE

CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

Farming Lands

500,000 ACRES of Splendid MICHIGAN LANDS for Sale by The G. R. & I. R. R.

50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.

By Water and Rail

Not a Wilderness by any Means.

Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold.

W. H. HUGHART, Commissioner, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

TITLE PERFECT.

Probate Order.

[illegible]

Probate Notice.

[illegible]

Sheriff Sale.

[illegible]

Mortgage Sale.

[illegible]

CHARLEVOIX

Savings Bank.

[illegible]

WAYNE COUNTY SAVINGS BANK DETROIT, MICH.

$300,000 TO INVEST IN BONDS

W. A. REYNARD,

Vegetables and Fruits OF ALL KINDS.

TO WHICH OTHERS WILL BE ADDED IN SEASON

I will also keep in stock a full line of Tobaccos and Cigars.

Butter and Eggs a Specialty.

CROSS & SONS,

Buy and Sell all kinds of Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.

Charlevoix, Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY, Photographer.

In Bradbeer's Gallery.

Photographs of all sizes taken.

Old Pictures copied and enlarged.

CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

New JEWELRY AND SILVER WARE.

Watches, Chains, Pins, Clocks, Silver-Ware, etc.

C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick, ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR, —ON— Chalevoix Summer Resorts.

Carpenters and Painters.

J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

Fox & Miller

Offer a Mammoth Stock OF BOOTS, SHOES and other FOOT WEAR, —AT— LOWER PRICES

Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a FIRST-CLASS SHOEMAKER, And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

The Kalamazoo "DAILY TELEGRAPH."

Take The Sentinel.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.

Charlevoix, Mich.

3 EXTRA GRADES OF FLOUR

Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

M. LITNEY. JOS. STEIMEL

Litney & Steimel

LIVERY, and Feed Barn

Charlevoix, Mich.

Good Rigs at Lowest Rates.

It Pays to Buy the BEST BOATS!

LEAST MONEY!

LEAVE ORDERS

J. BEAUVAIS.

BOOTS & SHOES

Have you seen our $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00 Gents Shoes?

These goods cannot be equalled in the county

Ladies Look Out

D. SHERWOOD & CO.

A. J. McLEOD,

Wholesale or Retail

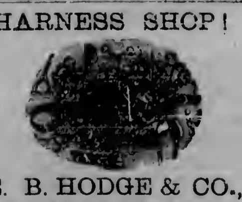
FRESH MEATS, SALT PORK, SMOKED & SALTED HAMS,

Dried and Smoked BACON, DRIED BEEF, Bologna, Head Cheese, Sausage.

Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.

A. J. McLEOD.

HARNESS SHOP!



E. B. HODGE & CO.,

Washburn & Ackert, FOUNDRYMEN, MACHINISTS,

Charlevoix Plow.

Take The Sentinel.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

SOCIETIES.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE, RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r. Charlevoix, Mich.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE.

NEWMAN HOUSE. W. C. Newman, Prop'r. Charlevoix, Mich.

FILE DRIVER.

SURVEYORS.

DENTIST

Land for Sale.

For Sale.

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R. "Mackinac Short Line."

[illegible]

Grand Rapids & Indiana R.R.

Time Card for Petoskey.

Michigan Central

The Direct Route Between Mackinaw City & Detroit Jackson, The South and East.

PALACE SLEEPING AND PARLOR CARS.

AN OPEN QUESTION.

Can a Husband Open His Wife's Letters?

That would depend, many would say, upon what kind of a husband he is. But it cannot be put aside in that flippant manner, for it is a legal right that is in question, and it has recently been decided in a Paris tribunal that the husband has the right to open the letters addressed to his wife. Of course in America an appeal would instantly be taken from this decision, and perhaps by husbands themselves; for in this world rights are becoming so impartially distributed that this privilege granted to the husband might at once be extended to the wife, and she would read all his business correspondence, and his business is sometimes various and complicated. The Paris decision must be based upon the familiar formula that man and wife are one, and that that one is the husband. If a man has the right to read all the letters written to his wife, being his property by reason of his ownership of her, why may he not have a legal right to know all that is said to her? The question is not whether a wife ought to receive letters that her husband may not read, or listen to talk that he may not hear, but whether he has a sort of lordship that gives him privileges which she does not enjoy. In our modern notion of marriage, which is getting itself expressed in statute law, marriage is supposed to rest upon mutual trust and mutual rights. In theory the husband and wife are still one, and there can nothing come into the life of one that is not shared by the other; in fact, if the marriage is perfect and the trust absolute, the personality of each is respected by the other, and each is freely the judge of what shall be contributed to the common confidence; and if there are any concealments, it is well believed that they are for the mutual good. If every one were as perfect in the marriage relation as those who are reading these lines, the question of the wife's letters would never arise. The man, trusting his wife, would not care to pry into any little secrets his wife might have, or bother himself about her correspondence; he would know, indeed, that if he had lost her real affection, a surveillance of her letters could not restore it.

Perhaps it is a modern notion that marriage is a union of trust and not of suspicion, of expectation of faithfulness the more there is freedom. At any rate, the tendency, notwithstanding the French decision, is away from the common-law suspicion and tyranny toward a higher trust in an enlarged freedom. And it is certain that the rights cannot all be on one side and the duties on the other. If the husband legally may compel his wife to show him her letters, the courts will before long grant the same privilege to the wife. But, without pressing this point, the Drawer holds strongly to the sacredness of correspondence. The letters one receives are in one sense not his own. They contain the confessions of another soul, the confidences of another mind, that would be rudely treated if given any sort of publicity. [That is one reason why some communications to the Drawer never see light.] And while husband and wife are one to each other, they are two in the eyes of other people, and it may well happen that a friend will desire to impart something to a discreet woman which she would not intrust to the babbling husband of that woman. Every life must have its own privacy and its own place of retirement. The letter is of all things the most personal and intimate thing. Its bloom is gone when another eye sees it before the one for which it was intended. Its aroma all escapes when it is first opened by another person. One might as well wear second-hand clothing as get a second-hand letter. Here, then, is a sacred right that ought to be respected, and can be respected without any injury to domestic life. The habit in some families for the members of it to show each other's letters is a most disenchanting one. It is just in the family, between persons most intimate, that these delicacies of consideration for the privacy of each ought to be most respected. No one can estimate probably how much of the refinement, of the delicacy of feeling, has been lost to the world by the introduction of the postal-card. Anything written on a postal-card has no personality; it is banal, and has as little power of charming any one who receives it as an advertisement in the newspaper. It is not simply the cheapness of the communication that is vulgar, but the publicity of it. One may have perhaps only a cent's worth of affection to send, but it seems worth much more when enclosed in an envelope. We have no doubt, then, that on general principles the French decision is a mistake, and that it tends rather to vulgarize than to retain the purity and delicacy of the marriage relation. And the judges, so long even as men only occupy the bench, will no doubt reverse it when the logical march of events forces upon them the question whether the wife may open her husband's letters.—Charles Dudley Warner in Harper's Magazine.

Solicitor McCue of the Treasury Department is said to have made $150,000 in real-estate speculations during the two years he has been a resident of Washington.

Sam Jones has invented a new and captivating title for the reporter who doesn't report his sermons exactly to suit the æsthetic preacher. He calls him a "pestiferous skunk."

The oldest resident of Philadelphia is Mrs. Rebecca Applegate, who is 104 years of age. She has her beer and whisky as regularly as ever, and has always chewed tobacco.

One of the spryest old gentlemen of Schoolcraft, Mich., is Godfrey Knight, who has passed the century mark. He is exceedingly fond of sports, attends horse races, and is still a great singer.

William Widick and Mr. S. Smith, in breaking and planting a quarter section of pasture land northeast of Bethany, Moultrie county, Ill., killed 160 rattlesnakes, some of them very large ones.

John Preston died recently at Browntown, N. J., aged 105 years. When he was 103 years of age he walked eight miles a day and cut cordwood. He never retired without his glass of applejack.

Mrs. Nancy Box, who died recently at her home near Lewiston, Mifflin county, Pa., aged 80, was the mother of fourteen children, and leaves 106 grandchildren and eighty-four great-grandchildren.

Bret Harte was a book agent in 1849-'50, and a good one when he would work, which was seldom. In 1855 he was writing "condensed novels" for the San Francisco Golden Era at $5 per column.

Curious Marriage Customs.

The associations connected with the marriage rites among the Kirghesu of the northern steppes of Toorkistan are most formidable, involving the payment of a "kalim" besides the giving of various presents. The first portion is paid by the match maker when negotiations are entered into, but the second not for twelve months, unless the bridegroom be wealthy. Should the bride-elect die during this period her parents must return all they have received or give their next daughter as a substitute, together with a fine of one or two horses and robes or furs. This same law applies in the event of the girl jilting her suitor. On the other hand, should the man die, his parents must either pay a fine and forfeit the "kalim," or take the girl for their next son. At the expiration of the term of betrothal the bridegroom, attired in his best, goes with his friends to the "aulg" or village of the bride, where a tent has been prepared for his reception. Throughout the ceremonies of betrothal the bride's brother has the right of pilfering from the bridegroom whatever he pleases; but at the wedding the bride's relatives, near and distant, come and take as presents almost everything he has. His hat, coat, girdle, horse, saddle, and all that he has are pilfered, each one taking an article, remarking that it is for the education of the bride. There is, however, some reciprocity in the matter, for when the relatives of the bride visit the "aul" of the bridegroom they are fleeced in exactly the same manner. On the payment of the "kalim" the parents of the bride are bound to give up their daughter, giving her as a dowry a "kibitka," or tent, a camel or riding-horse, and a number of cattle, according to their position in life; also a bride's head-dress called "asonkele," or, if poor, another called a "jaulonk," besides a bed, crockery and trunk of wearing apparel.—All the Year Round.

A Mistake Somewhere.

"Oh, you dear, darling old papa!" exclaimed the fair-haired daughter of a Nob Hill plutocrat. "You know how much I wanted those lovely sapphires, and it was so good of you to buy them."

"But, my darling, I have not bought any sapphires for you," said the fond papa, with a puzzled look on his face.

"Oh, you tried to keep it a secret, I know," replied the dear girl, "but I was down at ——, this morning, and he was packing them up, and he told me that they were to be sent to your office, so I knew they were for me, because mamma will only wear rubies."

The merchant smiled and left. The jeweler has lost one of his best customers, but he does not know why.—San Francisco Post.

Among the visitors at the Vassar college commencement was a graduate who has made $10,000 in an unique manner. Upon her graduation she was promised by her father a dollar for every cent she earned by working at anything. She accepted the offer, and, entering a factory where she obtained $6 a week, kept on working until her father had paid her $10,000 and broke the contract because his little joke was becoming too costly.

Parties Wishing to Purchase

Pianos or Organs

on easy terms, can now buy to advantage as our Mr. Williams will be in Charlevoix for a week and will be pleased to give prices, etc.

For information call at Dr. Crouter's drug store, or address Belvedere hotel.

Detroit Music Co.

Second hand Pianos or Organs taken in exchange for new instruments.

JOHN CONNOR, Fashionable

Boot and Shoe MAKER.

Hand Sewed French Calf Gaiters, $5; Men's Kip and Calf Boots, $4.50; Half-soling, 50 cents. Defy competition.

All Work Guaranteed.

JOHN W. KIRBY, BLACKSMITH & Horseshoer.

Having leased the Blacksmith Shop of D. C. NETTLETON, I am now prepared to do all kinds of Blacksmithing.

J. W. KIRBY.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN

Boiler Works!

BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.

Sheet Iron Work given special attention.

MARINE WORK a specialty.

HENRY BARTH, Prop. Charlevoix, Mich.

160 Acres in MARION

MONEY TO LOAN ON Approved Real Estate Security

THEODORE R. CHAPIN, Boyne City.

Good Results in Every Case.

D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, did so and was entirely cured by use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all Coughs and Colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this Wonderful Discovery. Trial bottles free at Dr. G. W. Crouter's.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c per box by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

"HACKMETACK," a lasting and fragrant perfume.

SHILOH'S CURE will immediately relieve Croup, Whooping Cough and Bronchitis. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

FOR DYSPEPSIA and Liver Complaint, you have a printed guarantee on every bottle of Shiloh's Vitalizer. It never fails to cure.

A NASAL INJECTOR free with each bottle of Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. F. G. Hines & Co.

Go to Scott's blacksmith shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

Land for Sale.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

W. H. FRANCIS

FURNITURE AND JOBBING SHOP.

Contracting & Building,

Shop on South Terrace,

MILLINERY,

FANCY GOODS, DRESS-MAKING,

We have just opened a large line of Spring and Summer Millinery and Fancy Goods.

ALDRICH SISTERS.

MERCHANT TAILORING.

I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.

Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.

C. H. Maddaugh.

CHARLEVOIX Manufacturing Co.

Charlevoix, Mich.,

Sash and Doors,

Blinds, Mouldings etc.

NEWELL Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails kept in stock.

Window & Door Frames made to order.

All Kinds of Building Material

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS.

Correspondence solicited.

MARVELOUS PRICES!

BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.

GRENADES.

"STAR" Tubular Fire Extinguisher.

HARDEN HAND GRENADE CO.

Take The Sentinel.

SOMETHING NEW.

WORLD RENOWNED CENTRE DRAFT PLOW

J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS, RACINE, WIS.

PAINTS!

STOVES, HARDWARE, TINWARE, FISHING TACKLE, NOTIONS, ETC., ETC.

THE BEST FORCE PUMPS, FARMING IMPLEMENS.

JOB AND TIN WORK.

L. D. Bartholomew & Co.

DRUGS and STATIONERY,

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

A Large and Complete New Line JUST RECEIVED.

EVERYTHING YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

The only News stand in town.

M. S. MOULTON, WATCHMAKER & JEWELER, Charlevoix, Mich.

Personal Attention given to Watch Repairing. Key-wind Movements changed to Stem-wind and warranted as good as the best.

JEWELRY Repairing done in the best manner.

FRANK E. WOODS Bath & Barber Rooms

Hot and Cold Baths at all hours.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS.

NEW SHOP!

Blacksmithing,

Shop in the Foundry Building.

Horseshoeing a specialty.

M. SCOTT.

WANTED! Potatoes, Onions, Apples, Peaches and Blueberries.

W. H. THOMPSON & CO. Commission Merchants, No. 166 South Water St, CHICAGO, ILL.

JAS. A. GELLICK, Dealer in Choice Wines, Fine Liquors, EXCELLENT CIGARS.

Old Kentucky Sour Mash WHISKIES.

Milwaukee Export and Lager Beer.

HUMPHREYS' HOMEOPATHIC SPECIFICS.

CURES Colds, Asthma, Tickling in Throat, Whooping Cough, Sore Throat, Consumption, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Diseases.

YOUNG'S COUGH SYRUP

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

WORDS BY WIRE.

The Latest News by Telegraph from All Parts of the World.

Political Gossip, Railroad Notes, Personal Mention, and Occurrences of Lesser Note.

LATEST DISPATCHES.

BIDDING FOR BONDS.

Secretary Fairchild Directs Anticipation of Interest and Offers to Purchase Bonds.

SECRETARY FAIRCHILD, of the Treasury, has issued a circular, of which the following are the essential features:

Secretary Fairchild said, in explanation of his action, that he did it simply because he regarded it as the best thing that could be done under the circumstances. The purchase of bonds, he says is for the purpose of providing for the sinking fund and in anticipation of interest for the purpose of getting rid of the surplus.

KENTUCKY ELECTION.

W. O. Bradley, the Republican Candidate for Governor, Claims to Be Elected.

AN Associated Press telegram from Lex-

IN Jersey City, Joseph Schlimmer murdered his 16-year-old wife, to whom he was recently married, because she refused to live with him. There had been an agreement with the girl's parents that the young couple should not live together for two years, on account of the bride's tender years.

WEST.

A BENDANE sensation was created in the great boodle trial at Chicago, on Friday, when defendant George C. Klehm, President of the Board of County Commissioners, withdrew his plea of not guilty, entered a plea of guilty, and threw himself upon the mercy of the court. This action, says a Chicago special, appears to have taken Klehm's fellow-boodlers completely by surprise. The fact that he contemplated such a step seems to have been a secret carefully guarded from his associates in crime. As may well be imagined, their dismay was profound. It is understood that Klehm will take the witness-stand and make a clean breast of all he knows about the conspiracy to plunder the county, in which he has played so conspicuous a part. Whether he has been promised immunity from punishment as a reward for turning State's evidence has not transpired.

THE Iowa tax assessments, as equalized, show a net increase over last year of $12,000,000. . . . The assessed value of Kansas taxables for the current year is $310,586,686, an increase of $33,173,363 over last year.

IN the omnibus boodle trial at Chicago, on Monday, the examination of witnesses for the defense began. A number of persons testified to the good reputations heretofore borne by several of the defendants, their evidence going to show that people often enjoy good reputations who do not deserve them. Four of the defendant County Commissioners took the witness stand and stoutly denied that they had ever received money to influence their official action. Their statements are generally discredited. Judge Shepard overruled the motion for a new trial in the case of Edward McDonald, and formally sentenced him to three years in the penitentiary in accordance with the verdict of the jury. When asked by the court if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him, McDonald quietly replied: "I have nothing to say, your Honor." "Without further ceremony, then, I will formally sentence you," said the court. "You are an intelligent man, and it would be mockery for me to explain to you the full import of the verdict. Therefore, I command that you be taken hence to the disbursing officer of the Interior Department, shows them correct to a cent. In the financial operations of this office, aggregating $90,000,000 during the last twenty years, the Government has never lost a penny.

THE President will leave Washington the last of September on his much-advertised tour, which will embrace St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Nashville, and Atlanta. He again requests to be spared any more visits from invitation committees.

POLITICS.

A SALT LAKE dispatch of Wednesday says: "Returns are not all in from the election, but the Gentiles elect two, and perhaps three, members of the Council branch of the Legislature in a total of twelve, and three, perhaps four, members of the lower house out of a total of twenty-four. The Gentiles consider this a victory, being far the best they have ever been able to do. The Deseret News, the church organ, says: "After all the schemes and tactics, the special legislation tricks, and quirks of the political cliques fused into one opposing the Mormons, the Leaguers, Liberals, Radicals, bogus Republicans, counterfeit Democrats, and turn-coat Mormons have, by pooling their issues, elected four of thirty-six members of the Legislative Assembly. If this is a great victory they are welcome to its honors."

THE Glenn bill, which makes it a penal offense to teach white and colored children in the same school, has passed the Georgia House, every white member voting for it. It will pass the Senate and become a law. The colored people will fight the law in the courts.

GENERAL.

DUN & CO.'s trade review says that large bank clearings and railroad earnings fail to reflect the present state of business, which is in many branches characterized by uncertainty and hesitation. Business failures during the week numbered for the United States 162, for Canada 23; total 185; compared with 172 the previous week, and 192 for the corresponding week of last year.

W. J. MCGARIGLE, the Chicago boodler, who escaped from the Sheriff of Cook County on the night of the 23d ult., is now safe in Canada. A dispatch from Sarnia, opposite Port Huron, Mich., says:

McGarigle landed here Sunday morning from the schooner Edward Blake. The Blake and the Marsh were in the same tow, and while in

SHERMAN IS THEIR CHOICE.

The Senator Unequivocally Indorsed for the Presidency by the Ohio Republicans.

A Sound Platform Adopted, Tariff and Pension Planks Being Given Places of Prominence.

Foraker Renominated with a Whoop—His Sharp Criticism of Cleveland.

The Ohio Republican State Convention, which was held at Toledo July 27 and 28, was a large, enthusiastic and harmonious gathering.

The Hon. Dan Ryan, of Scioto, was announced as temporary Chairman, and A. J. Donaldson as temporary Secretary.

On taking the chair Mr. Ryan made a fifteen-minute speech. He reviewed State finances, to show Democratic mismanagement and Republican capability; recounted the circumstances of the alleged bribery in the election of Senator Payne by the last Democratic Legislature, reviewed in condemnatory terms the Democratic platform adopted last week at Cleveland, and closed by a strong plea for union among Ohio Republicans in championing Senator Sherman for the Presidency next year. His references to Sherman were received with Catechism for Young Mugwumps.

Q. Who is President Cleveland?

ANARCHISTS' AWFUL WORK.

Insurance Men Astounded at the Heavy Losses Caused by Recent Conflagrations.

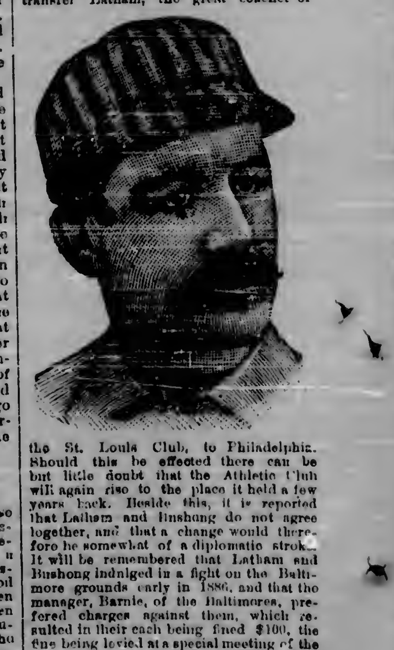
A Feeling that the Teachings of Most Have Prompted the Malignant Incendiaries.

[New York special.]

The Tribune says: "At the office of a firm of well-known insurance brokers, yesterday, it was said that the past six months had been the most disastrous in the fire record of any like period, save, of course, in that embracing the Chicago and Boston fires. So far as had been learned, only two companies had made any money in that six months. The matter has been discussed in every office and every association of underwriters.

There is one striking phase of this matter which has come to the fore prominently in a few days, and that is the relation of Herr Most and his sympathizers to many of these fires. As indicative of the extent to which insurance companies are being

A FAMOUS BALL-PLAYER.



TO JENNIE—FROM HER POOR FELLOW.

BY W. HAGERTON.

My Jennie is the fairest flower
That blooms in yonder town—
But well I know this twilight hour
She's gadding up and down.
Her breath is like the summer balm;
Her eyes are bonnie blue,
Yet full of care and grief I am,
For Jennie is a shrew.

And I could die for Jennie's sake,
Though false of heart is she.
Her laugh is like the rippling lake,
Her smile is witchery.
I sought her in the eventide,
And wore my best "boiled shirt,"
And found another at her side,
For Jennie is a flirt.

O, Jennie, Jennie! cease your wiles
Or give me back my heart.
Why should another share your smiles,
Why should we coldly part?
You played in mine, the by-gone year,
Your hand so white and small,
Then quit your gadding, Jennie dear,
Your flirting once for all.

I'll buy for you a silken gown—
But name the happy hour,
And not a maid in yonder town
Shall have a costlier dower;
Then hand in hand, up life's rough hill
We'll journey side by side,
And you shall be my lassie still,
My queen and bonnie bride.

HER MISTAKE;

—OR,—

Howard Thorndike's Loves.

BY BURT ARNOLD.

CHAPTER VI.

MR. THORNDIKE MAKES TWO HAPPY DISCOVERIES.

Those were sweet words to Howard Thorndike, the words he heard Marie Insley utter in her swoon after Mrs. Campbell had left the room to get some "cordial:"

"Oh, he does not know that I love him already!"

He took the liberty of printing a caress on one of her tiny hands with his lips when he had laid her on the sofa.

Slowly she opened her eyes; then, giving vent to a long sigh, she shut them again and shivered.

Her scattered senses gradually came back to her, and she opened them again.

A faint flush spread over her face as she asked, in a weakened voice:

"Will you kindly ask Mrs. Campbell to

She took Howard Thorndike's hand and pressed it against her cheek.

in the afternoon to be introduced to Mrs. Insley, and the specified time found him there. He brought with him a noted physician, a friend of his, that he might see what was best to be done for her.

After spending some little time with Mrs. Insley, Howard returned to the parlor with Marie, leaving the doctor alone with the patient.

The doctor joined them shortly afterward and asked several questions of Marie relative to her mother. He then told Howard that it was impossible for her to be removed then, and that chances were in every way against her recovery in either case—whether she remained where she was or was taken South. The crisis was near at hand, and her life was a question of merely a few weeks and days. It was a physical impossibility for her to live longer. She had quick consumption, and the only wonder was that she was still alive after suffering so long. If she had any friends it would be as well to notify them of her approaching death.

The crippled daughter, he thought, could be greatly benefited by treatment, and eventually regain the use of her limbs, although she might never be as strong and healthy as she would have been had she never been a sufferer from spinal affliction. What they both needed was the attention of an experienced nurse, one who understood the petty contrivances for relieving some of the sufferings of sick folks, and under whose care the cripple would surely begin to improve and feel more comfortable. It was too much of a strain for Marie, and she would be sure to break down if she undertook it.

Howard instructed the doctor to send a nurse around to the house as soon as he could, and to take both sufferers under treatment.

After the doctor had left Howard walked across the room to Marie, who had remained at the further end during his conversation with the doctor, and, taking both hands in his, he asked in a quiet, kind way, if she had ever thought of what she should do if her mother did not recover.

"Yes," she said, "and I knew fully as well as you can tell me that she can never get well. She is dying now. If I can keep my place at the florist's I can get along after a manner. I cannot say I shall be sorry when she is at rest; she suffers so much. I thought, perhaps, the end had come when I was sent for this morning. It hurts me to see her suffer so, although she is very patient and never complains. When she dies I will try to do the same by her daughter as she has done by me. My own mother could never have treated me with more kindness or cared for me with more motherly affection."

"What! is not Mrs. Insley your mother?" inquired Howard, in surprise.

"Why, no, indeed! I thought you knew she was not. I have no knowledge whatever of my parentage. I was picked up at

York, and no one who could have seen Mrs. Desmond and Marie side by side would have hesitated to pronounce them mother and daughter.

The chain of evidence was completed by Mrs. Desmond's recognition of a singular birth-mark on Marie corresponding to that borne by her lost daughter, and she claimed Marie for her own immediately.

Mr. and Mrs. Desmond remained in New York until after the death of Mrs. Insley, whose funeral expenses were borne by them, and then returned to Boston with Marie and her foster sister.

Howard went to Europe for a year and took Sandy with him.

Sandy was loath to leave the flower-store,

Both parents accurately described the contents of the box.

but by this time he had completed a compact with Mrs. Campbell for a "share in the profits," and on going away he left her in charge, feeling assured that he could not leave it in better hands, for she would be sure to look out for what would now be equally as much for her interest as his own.

At the end of the year all interested parties met at the house of Mr. Edouard Desmond, where Miss Marie Desmond became Mrs. Howard Thorndike.

Miss Insley had so far recovered from her spinal trouble that she was able to be first bridesmaid on the occasion.

Mrs. Campbell was there, and the morning after the wedding Howard was not at all surprised on Sandy's introducing her to him as Mrs. McPherson.

HEAVEN PORTRAYED.

What Those Who Have Gone Before Are Doing.

The Cathedral Bell of Heaven Heeded by All—Dr. Talmage Will Visit All of His Friends in Heaven—"I Give Them Fair Notice."

THE HAMPTONS, July 31.—The Rev. T. De Witt Talmage's sermon for this morning was on the "Employments of Heaven," and his text, Ezekiel i, 1: "Now, it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, in the fifth day of the month, as I was among the captives by the river of Chebar, that the heavens were opened."

Ezekiel, with others, had been expatriated, and while in foreign slavery was standing on the banks of the royal canal, which he and other serfs had been condemned to dig by the order of Nebuchadnezzar—this royal canal, in the text, called the river of Chebar—the illustrious exile had visions of Heaven. Indeed, it is almost always so that the brightest visions of Heaven come not to those who are on til the body, after a while, comes up in the resurrection, and then there will be an additional heaven. Cannot the soul hear? If it can hear, then it can hear music. Do not, therefore, let it be in your household, when some member leaves for Heaven, as it is in some households, that you close the piano and unstring the harp for two years, because the fingers that used to play on them are still. You must remember that they have better instruments of music where they are.

You ask me: "Do they have real harps and real trumpets and real organs?" I do not know. Some wiseacres say positively there are no such things in Heaven. I do not know; but I should not be surprised if the God who made all the mountains, and all the hills, and all the forests, and all the metals of the universe—I should not be surprised if He could, if He had a mind to, make a few harps and trumpets and organs.

Grand old Haydn, sick and worn out, was carried for the last time into the music hall, and there he heard his own oratorio of "The Creation." History says that as the orchestra came to that famous passage, "Let There be Light!" the whole audience rose and cheered, and Haydn waved his hand toward Heaven and said: "It comes from there." Overwhelmed with his own the wall that seems to divide the physical from the spiritual world, the thin wall of electricity, so thin the wall that ever and anon it seems to be almost broken through—broken through from one side by telephonic and telegraphic apparatus; broken through from the other side by strange influences which men in their ignorance call spiritualistic manifestations. All that matter cleared up. Agassiz standing amid his student explorers down in Brazil coming across some great novelty in the rocks, taking off his hat and saying: "Gentlemen, let us pray; we must have divine illumination; we want wisdom from the Creator to study these rocks. He made them; let us pray"—Agassiz going right on with his studies forever and forever.

But what are the men of the law, who in this world found their chief joy in the legal profession—what are they doing now? Studying law in a universe where everything is controlled by law from flight of humming-bird to flight of world—law not dry and hard and drudging, but righteous and magnificent law, before which men and cherub and seraph and archangel and God himself bow. The chain of law long enough to wind around the immensities and infinity and eternity. Chain of law. What a place to study law, where all the links of the chain are in the hand!

What are our departed Christian friends

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Notes on the Lesson for August 14—"The Beatitudes."

The lesson will be found in the first sixteen verses of the fifth chapter of Matthew. Time, in the summer of A. D. 28, about a year after the event of the last lesson. Place, Mount of Beatitude, Horns of Hattin, near Capernaum. See Special Mention.

SPECIAL MENTION.

(1). The Sermon on the Mount. Place of Its Delivery.—This is not known positively. According to tradition it is the hill called Mount of Beatitudes, "a ridge not far from Tell Hum, the site of Capernaum, about a quarter of a mile in length, running east and west." Stanley, in speaking of it, says: "The situation so strikingly coincides with the intimations of the Gospel narrative as almost to force the inference that in this instance the eye of those who selected the spot was for once rightly guided." Farrar describes it as follows: "It is a hill with a summit, which closely resembles an Oriental saddle with its two high peaks. On the west it rises very little above the level of a broad and undulating plain; on the east it strikes precipitately toward a plateau on

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

WORDS BY WIRE.

The Latest News by Telegraph from All Parts of the World.

Political Gossip, Railroad Notes, Personal Mention, and Occurrences of Lesser Note.

LATEST DISPATCHES.

BIDDING FOR BONDS.

Secretary Fairchild Directs Anticipation of Interest and Offers to Purchase Bonds.

SECRETARY FAIRCHILD, of the Treasury, has issued a circular, of which the following are the essential features:

By virtue of authority contained in Sec. [illegible] Revised Statutes of the United States, notice is hereby given that interest due Sept. 1 and Dec. 1, 1887, on 4½ per cent. bonds of the United States, and Oct. 1, 1887, and Jan. 1, 1888, on 4 per cent. bonds, and Jan. 1, 1888, on bonds issued in aid of the Pacific Railroads, will be prepaid on and after Aug. 15, 1887, with rebate at the rate of 2 per cent. per annum on the amounts prepaid. Coupons due on the above specified dates may be presented for prepayment at the Treasury of the United States at Washington, or at the office of any Assistant Treasurer of the United States. Notice is also given that in pursuance of the provisions of section 3694 of the Revised Statutes, proposals for the sale to the Government of the United States of 4½ per cent. bonds of 1891, acts of July 14, 1870, and Jan. 20, 1871, to be applied to the sinking fund, will be received and opened at the office of the Secretary of the Treasury in Washington at noon of Wednesday, [illegible]

IN Jersey City, Joseph Schlimmer murdered his 16-year-old wife, to whom he was recently married, because she refused to live with him. There had been an agreement with the girl's parents that the young couple should not live together for two years, on account of the bride's tender years.

WEST.

A GENUINE sensation was created in the great boodle trial at Chicago, on Friday, when defendant George C. Klehm, President of the Board of County Commissioners, withdrew his plea of not guilty, entered a plea of guilty, and threw himself upon the mercy of the court. This action, says a Chicago special, appears to have taken Klehm's fellow-boodlers completely by surprise. The fact that he contemplated such a step seems to have been a secret carefully guarded from his associates in crime. As may well be imagined, their dismay was profound. It is understood that Klehm will take the witness-stand and make a clean breast of all he knows about the conspiracy to plunder the county, in which he has played so conspicuous a part. Whether he has been promised immunity from punishment as a reward for turning State's evidence has not transpired.

THE Iowa tax assessments, as equalized, show a net increase over last year of $12,000,000. . . . The assessed value of Kansas taxables for the current year is $310,596,- 536, an increase of $33,173,363 over last year.

IN the omnibus boodle trial at Chicago, on Monday, the examination of witnesses for the defense began. A number of persons testified to the good reputations heretofore borne by several of the defendants, their evidence going to show that people often enjoy good reputations who do not deserve them. Four of the defendant County Commissioners took the witness stand and stoutly denied that they had ever received money to influence their official action. Their [illegible]

[illegible]

SHERMAN IS THEIR CHOICE.

The Senator Unequivocally Indorsed for the Presidency by the Ohio Republicans.

A Sound Platform Adopted, Tariff and Pension Planks Being Given Places of Prominence.

Foraker Renominated with a Whoop —His Sharp Criticism of Cleveland.

The Ohio Republican State Convention, which was held at Toledo July 27 and 28, was a large, enthusiastic and harmonious gathering.

The Hon. Dan Ryan, of Scioto, was announced as temporary Chairman, and A. J. Donaldson as temporary Secretary.

[illegible]

Catechism for Young Mugwumps.

Q. Who is President Cleveland?

A. He is a great and good patriot.

Q. Who are the members of the Grand Army of the Republic?

A. They are bummers, blatherskites, and unpatriotic persons.

Q. Who went to the front to fight the battles of the Union in 1861?

A. The members of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Q. Did President Cleveland also go to the front at that time?

A. He did not.

[illegible]

ANARCHISTS' AWFUL WORK.

Insurance Men Astounded at the Heavy Losses Caused by Recent Conflagrations.

A Feeling that the Teachings of Most Have Prompted the Malignant Incendiaries.

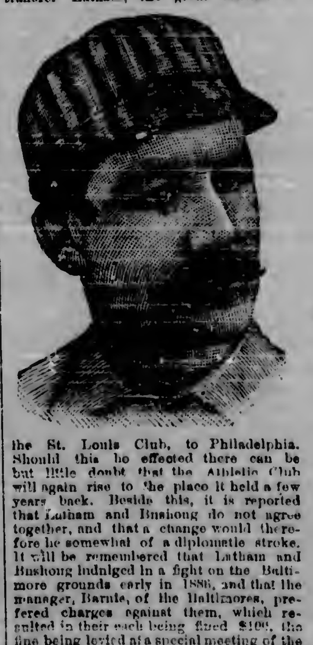
[New York special.]

The Tribune says: "At the office of a firm of well-known insurance brokers, yesterday, it was said that the past six months had been the most disastrous in the fire record of any like period, save, of course, in that embracing the Chicago and Boston fires. So far as had been learned, only two companies had made any money in that six months. The matter has been discussed in every office and every association of underwriters.

There is one striking phase of this matter which has come to the fore prominently in a few days, and that is the relation of Herr Most and his sympathizers to many of those fires. As indicative of the extent to which insurance companies are being aroused to this question, it is only necessary to call attention to a special meeting of the New York Board of Underwriters held yesterday, to discuss this very subject and adopt ways and means to meet the emergency. Herr Most's book bearing on the subject of dynamite and phosphorus as incendiary agents was considered at length, especially his claim that many recent fires were due to their use. Copies of newspapers, the book itself, and all available information upon the point were a week before handed over to the Committee [illegible]

[illegible]

A FAMOUS BALL-PLAYER.



[illegible]

TO JENNIE—FROM HER POOR FELLOW.

BY W. HAUGHTON.

My Jennie is the fairest flower
That blooms in yonder town—
But well I know this twilight hour
She's gadding up and down.
Her breath is like the summer balm;
Her eyes are bonnie blue,
Yet full of care and grief I am,
For Jennie is a shrew.

And I could die for Jennie's sake,
Though false of heart is she—
Her laugh is like the rippling lake,
Her smile is witchery.
I sought her in the eventide,
And wore my best "boiled shirt,"
And found another at her side,
For Jennie is a flirt.

O, Jennie, Jennie! cease your wiles
Or give me back my heart—
Why should another share your smiles,
Why should we coldly part?
You played in tune, the by-gone year,
Your hand so white and small,
Then quit your gadding, Jennie dear,
Your flirting once for all.

I'll buy for you a silken gown—
But name the happy hour,
And not a maid in yonder town
Shall have a costlier dower;
Then hand in hand, up life's rough hill
We'll journey side by side,
And you shall be my lassie still,
My queen and bonnie bride.

HER MISTAKE;

—OR,—

Howard Thorndike's Loves.

BY BURT ARNOLD.

CHAPTER VI.

MR. THORNDIKE MAKES TWO HAPPY DISCOVERIES.

Those were sweet words to Howard Thorndike, the words he heard Marie Insley utter in her swoon after Mrs. Campbell had left the room to get some "cor- [illegible] in the afternoon to be introduced to Mrs. Insley, and the specified time found him there. He brought with him a noted physician, a friend of his, that he might see what was best to be done for her.

[illegible]

After spending some little time with Mrs. Insley, Howard returned to the parlor with Marie, leaving the doctor alone with the patient.

The doctor joined them shortly afterward and asked several questions of Marie relative to her mother. He then told Howard that it was impossible for her to be removed then, and that chances were in every way against her recovery in either case—whether she remained where she was or was taken South. The crisis was near at hand, and her life was a question of merely a few weeks and days. It was a physical impossibility for her to live longer. She had quick consumption, and the only wonder was that she was still alive after suffering so long. If she had any friends it would be as well to notify them of her approaching death.

The crippled daughter, he thought, could be greatly benefited by treatment, and eventually regain the use of her limbs, although she might never be as strong and healthy as she would have been had she never been a sufferer from spinal affliction. What they both needed was the attention of an experienced nurse, one who understood the petty contrivances for relieving some of the sufferings of sick folks, and under whose care the cripple would surely begin to improve and feel more comfortable. It was too much of a strain for Marie, and she would be sure to break down if she undertook it.

Howard instructed the doctor to send a nurse around to the house as soon as he could, and to take both sufferers under treatment.

After the doctor had left Howard walked across the room to Marie, who had remained at the further end during his conversation with the doctor, and, taking both hands in his, he asked in a quiet, kind way, if she had ever thought of what she should do if her mother did not recover.

"Yes," she said, "and I know fully as well as you can tell me that she can never get well. She is dying now. If I can keep my place at the florist's I can get along after a manner. I cannot say I shall be sorry when she is at rest; she suffers so much. I [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

York, and no one who could have seen Mrs. Desmond and Marie side by side would have hesitated to pronounce them mother and daughter.

The chain of evidence was completed by Mrs. Desmond's recognition of a singular birth-mark on Marie corresponding to that borne by her lost daughter, and she claimed Marie for her own immediately.

Mr. and Mrs. Desmond remained in New York until after the death of Mrs. Insley, whose funeral expenses were borne by them, and then returned to Boston with Marie and her foster-sister.

Howard went to Europe for a year and took Sandy with him.

Sandy was loath to leave the flower-store,

Both parents accurately described the contents of the box.

[illegible]

HEAVEN PORTRAYED.

What Those Who Have Gone Before Are Doing.

The Cathedral Bell of Heaven Heeded by All—Dr. Talmage Will Visit All of His Friends in Heaven—"I Like Them Fair Sailing."

THE HAMPTONS, July 31.—The Rev. T. De Witt Talmage's sermon for this morning was on the "Employments of Heaven," and his text, Ezekiel i, 1. "Now, it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, in the fifth day of the month, as I was among the captives by the river of Chebar, that the heavens were opened."

Ezekiel, with others, had been expatriated, and while in foreign slavery was standing on the banks of the royal canal, which he and other serfs had been condemned to dig by the order of Nebuchadnezzar—this royal canal, in the text, called the river of Chebar—the illustrious exile had visions of Heaven. Indeed, it is almost always so that the brightest visions of Heaven come not to those who are on mountain top of prosperity, but to some John on desolate Patmos, or to some Paul in Mamertine dungeon, or to some Ezekiel standing on the banks of a ditch he had been compelled to dig—yes, to the weary, to the heart broken, to those whom sorrow has banished.

[illegible]

til the body, after a while, comes up in the resurrection, and then there will be an additional heaven. Cannot the soul hear? If it can hear, then it can hear music. Do not, therefore, let it be in your household, when some member leaves for Heaven, as it is in some households, that you close the piano and unstring the harp for two years, because the fingers that used to play on them are still. You must remember that they have better instruments of music where they are.

You ask me: "Do they have real harps and real trumpets and real organs?" I do not know. Some wiseacres say positively there are no such things in Heaven. I do not know; but I should not be surprised if the God who made all the mountains, and all the hills, and all the forests, and all the metals of the universe—I should not be surprised if He could, if He had a mind to, make a few harps and trumpets and organs.

Grand old Haydn, sick and worn out, was carried for the last time into the music hall, and there he heard his own oratorio of "The Creation." History says that as the orchestra came to that famous passage, "Let There be Light!" the whole audience rose and cheered, and Haydn waved his hand toward Heaven and said: "It comes from there." Overwhelmed with his own music, he was carried out in his chair, and as he came to the door he spread his hand toward the orchestra as in benediction. Haydn was right when he waved his hand toward Heaven and said: "It comes from there."

Music was born in Heaven and it will have its highest throne in Heaven; and I want you to understand that our departed friends who were passionately fond of music here, are now at the headquarters of harmony. I think that the grand old church tunes that died when your grandfathers died have gone with them to [illegible] the wall that seems to divide the physical from the spiritual world, the thin wall of electricity, so thin the wall that ever and anon it seems to be almost broken through—broken through from one side by telephonic and telegraphic apparatus; broken through from the other side by strange influences which men in their ignorance call spiritualistic manifestations. All that matter cleared up. Agassiz standing amid his student explorers down in Brazil coming across some great novelty in the rocks, taking off his hat and saying: "Gentlemen, let us pray; we must have divine illumination; we want wisdom from the Creator to study these rocks; He made them; let us pray"—Agassiz going right on with his studies forever and forever.

[illegible]

But what are the men of the law, who in this world found their chief joy in the legal profession—what are they doing now? Studying law in a universe where everything is controlled by law from flight of humming-bird to flight of world—law not dry and hard and drudging, but righteous and magnificent law, before which man and cherub and seraph and archangel and God himself bow. The chain of law long enough to wind around the immensities and infinity and eternity. Chain of law. What a place to study law, where all the links of the chain are in the hand!

What are our departed Christian friends who in this world had their joy in the healing art doing now? Busy at their old business. No sickness in Heaven, but plenty of sickness on earth, plenty of wounds in the different parts of God's dominion to be healed and to be medicated. You cannot understand why that patient got well after all the skillful doctors of New York and Brooklyn had said he must die. Perhaps Abercrombie touched him—Abercrombie, who, after many years' doctoring the bodies and the souls of people in Scotland, went up to [illegible]

[illegible]

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Notes on the Lesson for August 14—"The Beatitudes."

The lesson will be found in the first sixteen verses of the fifth chapter of Matthew. Time, in the summer of A. D. 28, about a year after the event of the last lesson. Place, Mount of Beatitude, Horns of Hattin, near Capernaum. See Special Mention.

SPECIAL MENTION.

(1). The Sermon on the Mount. Place of Its Delivery. This is not known positively. According to tradition it is the hill called Mount of Beatitudes, "a ridge not far from Tell Hum, the site of Capernaum, about a quarter of a mile in length, running east and west." Stanley, in speaking of it, says: "The situation so strikingly coincides with the intimations of the Gospel narrative as almost to force the inference that in this instance the eye of those who selected the spot was for once rightly guided." Farrar describes it as follows: "It is a hill with a summit, which closely resembles an Oriental saddle with its two high peaks. On the west it rises very little above the level of a broad and undulating plain; on the east it strikes precipitately toward a plateau on which lies, immediately beneath the cliffs, the village of Hattin; and from this plateau the traveler descends through a wild and tropic gorge to the shining level of the Lake of Galilee. It is the only conspicuous hill on the western side of the lake, and it is singularly adapted by its conformation both to form a place for short retirement and a rendezvous for gathering multitudes."

(2) Circumstances of Its Delivery.—Matthew makes no mention of the time of its delivery, but Luke tells us precisely when it was spoken. It would appear that shortly after returning to Galilee from the Passover (John 5: 1), which marks the beginning of the second [illegible]

[illegible]

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

CHARLEVOIX, AUG. 17, 1887.

BASE BALL.

The Charlevoix Team Suffer a Temporary Set-Back at the Hands of Petoskey.

On Saturday Petoskey came down with a new battery from Detroit, and considerable blood in their optic, swearing by all that was great and glorious that they would no longer have it said that the quiet little village by the lake could ornament their belt with the scalp-locks of Pe-tu-se-ga. They won the game fairly by the following score:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Petoskey	0	3	1	0	3	0	0	0	*	7
Charlevoix	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	4	5

Thursday the Charlevoix team were to Boyne City and changed off five of their best men for a like number of the Boyne City club, and played an exhibition game. It was hard to work up any sympathy, under the circumstances. But the boys wearing the Charlevoix uniforms won the game 4 to 3. Vogel umpired.

NOTES.

Jahus seems to be the favorite among the ladies. Gish has received some hard knocks lately, but manages to make his bases with alacrity.

Charlevoix has three batteries any one of which we are proud of. Hoskins and Gage take the cake, however.

The Charlevoix team go north this week. They played Petoskey Saturday, and will play them again to-day. They play Cheboygan also this week.

Everybody concedes that Charlevoix has by far the best base ball team in Northern Michigan. Thrift, Horatio! Thrift!

GENERAL.

In a recent game Carsey, of the Eccentrics, beat his previous records by striking out nineteen men.

For long hits Thompson leads the Detroit team. He has in seventy-one games made twenty-two doubles, fifteen triples and six home runs.

When Horace Phillips, on behalf of the Pittsburg club, in the winter of 1885, paid somewhere about $6,000 for the whole Columbus team the price was thought to be enormous. Now one player alone will bring more than was paid for the whole Columbus team.

Philadelphia is now closely pressing the New Yorks in the team batting. In seventy-four games the latter sent 3,006 men to the bat, who made 1,054 base hits, with a percentage of .350, while in but seventy-three games the Quakers were only at the bat 2,833 times and made 961 hits, with a percentage of .339. Detroit and Chicago are closely following these two clubs.

Caruthers, of the St. Louis Browns, seldom mixes with his associates of the diamond while off the field. He arrives at the grounds frequently unaccompanied and immediately dons his uniform and goes out for practice. After the game is over he retires to the dressing room and in less than ten minutes he leaves the grounds with his hat and valise in his hand.

The Boston Courier's choice for the best three general players of the League is Morrill, Williamson, Richardson. Each of these three men can fill any position in the nine, even to pitching. For the best three base runners, M. J. Kelly J. M. Ward, William Sunday. For the best batsmen, Anson, Thompson, Kelly.

Farmers Attention.

We, the undersigned, desire to make a change in the present system of gristing or exchanging wheat for flour.

The present system has so many faults and objections that it is high time to remove it and adopt a better one. It is as old as our great, great grandfathers, and it has outlived its usefulness. Under it the miller has a world-wide reputation for dishonesty among the farmers, and the farmer is looked upon by millers as a chronic grumbler and fault-finder.

This is all wrong and should not be so. We ask the farmer to adopt the modern plan now generally coming into use in the East, viz: Sell your wheat at going cash price, and buy your flour at wholesale prices.

You are then inthe same position as the dealer, and the miller is doing merchant milling. He is not robbing the poor farmer by stealing his grist and giving him the toll. The farmer takes any grade of flour he desires, and it will do away with this imaginary stealing. It will make the farmer and the miller better friends. The farmer can devote more of his time to his crops and family instead of cursing the miller; and last but not least, there will be some hopes of a miller entering the Golden Gates with our good farmer friends.

Now we ask all farmers to join us in giving this new system of gristing a trial and let us see if we cannot remove the objections now existing.

C. F. Hankey,
Petoskey Cable Mills.
H. V. Rifenburg,
Rifenburg Milling Co.

John Taylor, Brigham Young's successor as president of the Mormon church, died at Salt Lake City on Thursday morning. He was over 80 years of age and was in hiding at the time of his death, a warrant for his arrest having been issued in 1885.

In Sweden and Norway the liquor traffic is regulated by what is known as the "Gothenburg System," which provides that liquors shall be sold only at places where refreshments are kept for sale, and then all liquors shall be sold at cost. Tea, coffee and eatables may be sold at a fair profit, but not one cent of profit can come from the sale of intoxicating liquors. This is a rather novel temperance measure, but it certainly takes away the inducement to sell if not to drink.

S. Parker of Charlevoix, has a 40 acre farm, 30 cleared, opposite Ironton which he wishes to exchange for a house and lot in Charlevoix.

Chicago Resort.

Rev. Prof. H. M. Scott and family are at the Curtiss cottage.

Mr. C. F. Gates has arrived at his cottage to spend the balance of the season with his family.

People give Charlevoix the "go by" rather than get off the Vernon on the end of the long dismal pier late at night.

The children of the resort assisted by Mrs. Blatchford gave a very enjoyable "Mother Goose" entertainment Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Burr and Mr. C. H. Burr have returned from a week's stay at Mackinaw. They say they are glad to get a square meal again.

Among the recent arrivals: Miss Lulu Bogue, Chicago; Rev. Prof. C. F. Bradley and wife, Evanston, Ills.; Mrs. Frank Douglas, Chicago; Miss Grace S. Douglas, Chicago; C. S. Weatherby, Grand Rapids; F. P. Fisher, Chicago; M. W. Tarbox, editor and proprietor, Jackson Evening Star, and his wife and son.

The Congregational Theological Seminary of Chicago is well represented at the Chicago resort by Professors Curtiss, Scott and Bradley, who seem to be thoroughly enjoying their summer vacation with their families. We hope the students under their care will not only receive the benefit of their eminent learning but catch something of their genial kindly spirit.

The parlors of the Chicago Club House were crowded last Friday evening, the occasion being an entertainment by Mother Goose and Jack.

The entertainment opened with a song by Miss Tuthill, "The Story Land." Then Mrs Blatchford as Mother Goose assisted by Mr. Willis Krum as her son Jack, introduced the following characters:

Old King Cole, Timis Hubbard; Daffidown Dilly, Miss Edith Munger; Bachelor and wife in wheelbarrow, Will Hubbard, Miss Pauline Curtiss; Miss Muffett, Miss Martha Wilson; Jack Spratt and wife, James Smith, Miss Lotta Krum; Nancy Ellicotte, Miss Annie Bradley; A diller a dollar, Frank Harkness; Jack be nimble, John Wilson.

Piano solo, Miss Charlotte Smith.

Boy Blue, Sprague Rockwood; Little Bo Peep, Miss Lillian Miller; Piper's Son, Frank Blatchford; Old woman under the hill Miss Annie Kerr; Jack Horner, Fred Rockwood; Old woman in basket, Miss Agnes Mead; Simple Simon and Pieman, Johann Curtiss, Luther Blatchford.

The entertainment concluded with a song by Miss Tuthill, "Auntie."

The entertainment was decidedly a brilliant success and the committee on entertainment, Mrs. Mead, Miss Ada Smith and Mr. H. R. Smith have the hearty thanks of the club for the labor they have spent in giving the people a pleasant evening.

Honor to Whom Honor is Due.

The burning of the propeller Champlain, with the terrible loss of life attending it, is still fresh in our minds.

When we recall the heart-rending scenes of that horrible catastrophy, we cannot fail to remember the personal heroism of Miss Mary Wakefield, of this place, in saving the life of the little adopted daughter of Capt. Kehoe and his lamented wife.

The brave act was heralded throughout the length and breadth of the Union, as an instance of feminine courage and coolness seldom equalled.

The Sentinel, therefore, this week, opens a subscription for the purpose of securing for Miss Wakefield a gold medal, which shall bear an appropriate inscription to commemorate the event.

Capt. John Beatty, of New Orleans, heads the list with $5. Let us publish the names of others who desire that such acts of bravery shall be rewarded.

Labors Annual Holiday.

Organized labor of Northern Michigan having determined to celebrate Labor Day, September 5th, we call on you to lay aside your implements of toil on that day, and to join with us in celebrating this grand national holiday of labor, and make it the greatest feature of the year. The new holiday will be duly celebrated all over the United States and Canada, and the members of labor organizations here are determined not to be behind, therefore we urge all the labor organized in this vicinity to come forward and take part in this exhibition of strength and unity of labor forces in this section of the state. The main feature of the celebration will be a grand English barbeque for which a large roast ox will be offered. No date on the calendar is so important, so dear to the people as Labor Day. Other holidays—reminders of sectional hate and bloody wars and human sacrifices—pale in the light of this harbinger of peace and good will.

Let us commemorate the day in a befitting manner, with a display of enthusiasm and glorification appropriate for such an occasion; and let it be for labor's hosts the practical inauguration of an era of recognition, reconciliation and reward.

The co-operation of every division of labor is earnestly requested—Knights of Labor, trades unionists, all protective and benevolent organizations of working men and women.

Shoulder to shoulder we will march before the strongholds of capitalism, a mighty legion, with lofty aspirations, clear and rational purposes, due intelligence and determination unconquerable; hand to hand we will enjoy the pleasure of the fraternal festival, and when the day closes it will find us vowing unflagging fellowship on all issues and occasions of common interest.

Senator C. I. Deyo, of Oxford, will deliver his celebrated lecture, "The Commonwealth of Industry." Mrs. Christina S. Barghorn, of Luther, the talented lady orator, will also address the people, subject: The true aim of the present reformers. Local speakers are also to be present. The days festivities will close with a grand labor ball at opera hall or the skating rink. Each delegation are invited to bring bands and American flags.

By order of the Committee.

Marine Jottings.

The Lawrence is doing a heavy passenger business these days.

The steam yacht Truant, owned by the millionaire widow, Newberry, of Detroit, has been in the harbor during the week.

The steamer Sanford was in Sunday on an excursion from Frankfort. Capt. Penfold, and several other prominent Frankfort people, were passengers.

H. D. Wood went to Harbor Springs Saturday to take charge of the engine on the steamer Grace Barker. Horatio Young, the former engineer, having gone as engineer of the Cummings.

The propeller Vernon, of the Northern Michigan Line, came to the outside pier on Wednesday evening, bound up. She was drawing 13½ feet of water and could not enter the harbor. The Vernon is a fine steamer, 25 feet longer than the Lawrence, has fine commodious cabins, and is first-class in all her appointments.

The new steamer which the Detroit & Cleveland steam navigation company will build for the season of 1889 will cost between $125,000 and $150,000. The City of Cleveland cost $300,000. The new boat will be of the exact model of the Cleveland and will have a tier of staterooms above the hurricane deck. The hull will be of steel, divided by water-tight compartments and in all respects it will be the finest boat ever put on the chain of lakes.

Seymour Bros., of Manistee, have closed a contract with H. B. and G. B. Burger, of Manitowoc, Wis., for a new passenger boat, length of keel 175 feet; breadth of beam 30 feet; depth of hold 12 feet. The hull to be diagonally strapped, edge bolted and square fastened; cabin full length of boat. The engine will be of fore and aft compound condensing cylinders, 24 and 44 inch bore, 36 inch stroke; speed 13½ miles per hour. She will form a route between Chicago and Harbor Springs, making two trips per week, touching at Ludington, Manistee, Frankfort, Petoskey, Charlevoix, Elk Rapids and Traverse City. The boat will be placed on this route at the opening of navigation in 1888. —Manistee Broad Axe.

Norwood Notes.

It is very dry and crops of all kinds are suffering for want of rain.

Blossom Goodrich left for Illinois, Monday.

Mr. Ferguson and brother-in-law Mr. Miller, and Mr. Mason all of Chicago arrived last Friday.

George H. VanPelt came Saturday. He lost fifteen pounds on his last trip and looks rather peaked; but the Norwood air will soon brace him up again and he will be as smiling as ever.

Mocking Bird Davis gave an exhibition at the town hall on Saturday and Monday evenings. The exhibition in some parts was fair.

John Bugby has gone to Traverse City to work as an attendent in the Insane Asylum.

Quarterly meeting services will be held at this place on Saturday and Sunday of this week.

Mr. Ferguson will give his annual picnic at Stigar's grove on Wednesday, it being the birthday of his youngest son who was born in Norwood. The Sunday school and others will take part making it a joint affair and a fine time is expected.

Ezra Meech, Robert Chamberlain, Dar Meech and E. R. Harris have gone on a fishing excursion to Rapid river.

Rachel Wheaton and Edward Clark were married on Sunday.

On Friday evening of this week the young ladies will give an ice cream social and lawn party in the yard of Willard Spaulding if the weather permits and if not at the town hall. Proceeds for the benefit of the pastor.

Pleasure Boat for Sale.

The "Petrel," sloop rigged, remarkably commodious, handy and safe. Built by Rankin of St. Ignace, in 1882. Price $100 now, or $75 at the end of the present season.

Apply to G. C. Mahon, Charlevoix.

Fresh Butter at lowest price, at Jefferies' Bakery.

To Rent. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent, Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

For Sale—A heavy yoke of oxen. Must be sold immediately. Apply to A. Stewart, Charlevoix. 2w

Call shingles and lumber for sale cheap, or will exchange for farm produce. Apply at Burns & Scroggie's livery barn. tf

Wanted—A steady man to work one of Perkin's one block shingle mill. Apply to Smithson's Lumber Co., Charlevoix.

For Sale—One span of horses, one yearling colt, two spring colts, one yoke of oxen, two two-year old heifers, two yearling heifers; must be sold soon. Terms reasonable. Inquire at this office.

Headlight and Little Daisy Soaps. They are strictly pure. They are the cheapest soaps sold for the mony. Try then and get a ladies' water-proof gossamer free. For sale by Emrey Brothers.

Parties wishing their pianos tuned or repaired can have them attended to by leaving orders at Dr. Crouter's drug store, as our Mr. C. M. Williams will be in Charlevoix for a week.

Detroit Music Co.

The ladies are cordially invited to call and examine the large display of millinery including pattern hats and bonnets together with novelties in ribbons, gauzes, flowers, etc. As it is to be a season of novelties it will pay you to call now and often, upon Mrs. Litney & Carr.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the money secured by a certain mortgage, dated the 2d day of August, 1883, executed by Levi House, and Emily House, his wife, of the Township of Hayes, county of Charlevoix, and State of Michigan, to Edwin M. Clark, of Charlevoix, Michigan. Said mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for said county of Charlevoix, in Liber Eight (8) of Mortgages, on page one hundred and ninety-one (191) on the 25th day of August, 1884, and said mortgage was, on the 25th day of October, 1884 duly assigned by said Edwin M. Clark to Martha J. Ayers, of Plattsburg, Clinton county, New York; said assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said county, on the 25th day of October, 1885, in Liber ten (10) of Mortgages, on page four hundred and eighty-five, (485) and said mortgage is now due and owned by the said Martha J. Ayers. And, whereas, the amount claimed to be due on said Mortgage at the time of this notice, is the sum of Two Hundred and Nineteen Dollars and sixty-two cents, ($219.62) of principal and interest, and no proceedings having been instituted at law or in equity, to recover the debt now remaining due, or any part thereof: Now therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the said power of sale in said mortgage contained, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises in said mortgage described, as all of those certain pieces or parcels of land situate in the Township of Hayes, in the county of Charlevoix, and State of Michigan, and described as follows, to-wit: Lot three, (3) and the south-west quarter of the north-east quarter, of Section Nineteen, (19) in Township Thirty-four, (34) North, of Range Seven (7) West, containing seventy (70) acres, more or less, according to the United States survey, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due on said mortgage, with the costs of this foreclosure, and the stipulated costs therein mentioned, which will be sold at public vendue to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House, in the Village of Boyne City, in said county of Charlevoix, that being the place where the Circuit Court in and for said county is held, at one o'clock in the afternoon, on the 16th day of November, 1887.

Dated, August 17th, 1887.

MARTHA J. AYERS, Assignee.
J. M. Clark, Attorney for Assignee.

ICE CREAM PAR EXCELLENCE.

We would respectfully inform the public that we have at considerable expense, prepared and suitably furnished our Band Pagoda as an Ice Cream parlor, and have placed it at the head of all similar institutions in Charlevoix. It will be open for the use of the public at all times save on Wednesday evenings, when there will be a Grand Concert by the Band. Our cream will be as good as can be made. Just received a large lot of Ice Cream Packages holding from one quart to one or more gallons, which will be loaned to customers for safely carrying cream to their homes. The quality of our cream speaks for itself. Our stock of foreign and domestic Fruits is always large and of the best quality. We carry as fine a line of confectionery, nuts, etc., as can be found in town.

Respectfully,
O. W. SMITH.

NOTICE.

The late Champlain disaster has placed me in close financial circumstances. Therefore it is necessary for me to collect all outstanding indebtedness. All Owing me will please call and pay.

GEO. W. MILLER.

POSITIVELY THE FINEST LINE OF

CLOTHING

AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS YOU EVER SAW IN CHARLEVOIX,

JUST RECEIVED FOR SUMMER WEAR.

Prices are unusually low this Spring and if you need anything in my line, just step in.

Now is a Grand Time To Obtain Bargains.

GEO. W. MILLER.

A. T. WASHBURNE AND CO.

WE HAVE RECEIVED

OUR FIRST INVOICE OF YARNS,

And invite a close inspection to prove that we have taken time by the forelock and in buying early can offer our friends a much better article than ever.

LEADERS!

And in all STAPLES, as well as FANCY GOODS we are leaders. We do not sell 'at cost,' for no one can legitimately do so and keep open doors, but we do buy for cash and in quantities large enough to get lowest rates.

WE CHEERFULLY REFUND MONEY FOR ALL GOODS NOT SATISFACTORY.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

REFITTED!

Our store is fully completed and we cordially invite our friends and patrons to call and inspect a choice assortment of new

DRY GOODS & GROCERIES

new Goods arriving nearly every day. Our stock of Groceries is the Largest, Choicest, Cleanest, and our Prices the Lowest. We're busy and haven't got arranged yet, but we want to see you just as we are.

J. L. HURD & CO.

BARGAINS!

In the largest stock of NEW GOODS ever before received in Charlevoix.

FOR THE PUBLIC BENEFIT

We have purchased our stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS a week or so earlier than usual. While other stores are advertising Clearance Sales of their old stock we are advertising Bargains in an unusually elegant stock of Dry Goods, Carpets & Clothing.

Our Stock is HERE,

AND AWAITING YOUR INSPECTION. WE ARE PROUD TO SAY TO THE LADIES THAT WE HAVE AS FINE A LINE OF DRESS GOODS AS CAN BE FOUND IN ANY CITY.

FALL AND WINTER SUITS FOR MEN, YOUTHS & CHILDREN,

of all the latest styles.

In Ladies Furnishings & Bazaar Goods we have a long list of Bargains.

Before purchasing elsewhere, give our store a call,

ALICK ROSENTHAL,
LEWIS BLOCK.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XIX. NO.—16 CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 24, 1887. WHOLE NO. 926

NEW NEW Drugs, Stationery, Confections, Cigars,

F. G. HINES & CO.

Druggists.

EMREY BROS.

Boots and Shoes for almost nothing, to close out.

We have a number of pairs of Boots and Shoes which we will almost give away as we are closing them out.

We are also going out of

CROCKERY

and have a complete assortment which must be sold

WE WILL NOT TAKE A BACK SEAT ON

SUMMER DRY GOODS.

PRICES ALWAYS LOW.

IN GROCERIES and Provisions we can suit you, as we receive Fresh Goods weekly.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

B A R K

WANTED!

We Hold our Custom because our Prices are Always Low.

OUR SUMMER ASSORTMENT OF

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

now being received is the finest we ever offered

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in

FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN

BOOTS and SHOES.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces

EVERYTHING

usually found in a General Store.

Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours,

Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

A Word with YOU!

IF YOU WILL COME TO OUR STORE WE HOPE TO BE ABLE TO CONVINCE YOU THAT WE TRY TO ENABLE YOU TO

Save Your Dollars

BY BUYING ANYTHING IN THE HARDWARE LINE

OF US.

YOU KNOW WHO "US" IS BY THIS TIME OR

IF YOU DON'T YOU SHOULD

WE ARE HARDWARE, IRON, AND NAIL MERCHANTS. SELL LOTS OF GOODS AND SELL 'EM CHEAP.

It's money in your pocket to buy of S. & I. and Don't You For------- ----!

Resp'y, STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

The Best Groceries At The Lowest Prices

ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF

A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

New Furniture

AT S. M. SEE & SONS!

We have just received an entirely new stock of Furniture of every discription.

Dealing exclusively in Furniture we are confident we can make it an object to all wishing to buy to call and inspect our stock.

UNDERTAKING A Specialty.

J. MILO EATON'S

REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE, AND LOAN OFFICE.

The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice

WANTED!

Everyone to know that we are here and doing Business, and will do just as we agree to by one and all. We keep GROCERIES and PROVISIONS, FLOUR AND FEED, CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

Choice Butter and Fresh Eggs a Specialty. Call on us or order by Telephone.

WILL SEE & CO.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY

SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, - Michigan.

Address all business correspondence to the Firm

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year - $1 00 | Six months - $ .70
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—Anna Berger Concert Co. Friday and Saturday evening.

—Miss Alice Cochran resumes her old place in the school this fall.

—F. G. Hines & Co. speak to their patrons in a new advertisement this week.

—Mrs. Mannie Nicholls Paddock is visiting among her Charlevoix relatives.

—The base ball management give a dance at Opera Hall to-morrow evening.

—Read J. L. Hurd & Co.'s new advertisement in this issue. It contains a special announcement.

—The Labor organizations of the county are making preparations for a big time on "Labor Day," Sept. 5th.

—John A. Auld, of Amherstburg, Ont., has been a guest of his brother-in-law, Dr. G. W. Crouter. He returns to his home to-day.

—Kalkaska papers, which have been at war with Mancelona for some time over railroad matters, have suddenly changed front and are unmercifully belaboring Charlevoix over base ball.

—The timber at Smithson's camp will be lumbered this winter by contracts. N. A. Shores, C. M. Fear, Lewis Gravelin and J. Yettaw, all of Norwood, have taken jobs. The company will also buy cedar and hardwood from the farmers in the vicinity.

—Would it have Petoskey stop the wheels of progress and wait the snail like gait of Charlevoix and similar towns?—Petoskey Democrat. The day will come when the "wheels of progress" that are rolling around this vicinity will reverse their movement. Every dog has its day.

—Surveyors are now at work on the Mt. Pleasant and Big Rapids branch of the Toledo, Ann Arbor and Northern Railroad. The new Saginaw, Toledo and Mackinaw on its way north will form a connection with both the main line and the Big Rapids branch of the T., A. A. & N. R. R.

—Byron See, for many years one of our most popular merchants, and who retired a few years ago owing to ill health, has again resumed business in his line store building, and has opened out a new and fresh line of dry goods. Mr. See is well known throughout this region, and there is no doubt of a renewal of his old-time trade.

—The Rifenburg Milling Company are manufacturing and introducing a new brand of flour, known as the "Bridal Veil, which is, in our opinion, fully as good as the "Iron Duke," and that is a sufficient recommend. It is on sale at all the stores, and is already becoming quite popular. The increasing sales of the Rifenburg flour is evidence of its growing popularity.

—D. S. Way is coming to the front with rapid strides as not only a view but a portrait artist. His photographic views are pronounced by all to be the finest ever taken here—many of them being produced by the instantaneous process, of steamers under motion, "carrying a bone in their mouth." His collection is very large and increasing, and we note the fact that his work, of all classes, gives universal satisfaction.

—First class in geography, stand up. Now spell "Skillagalee." Ans. —I-s-l-e A-u-x G-a-l-e-t-s, Skillagalee. Correct! Now spell Point Betsy. Ans-P-o-i-n-t A-u-x B-e-c-s-c-e-s. Point Betsey. That's right, Now spell Shy Carty. C-h-e-u-a-l E-c-e-a-r-t-e, Shy Carty. Correct! Go out and rest your brains now.—Detroit Journal. Now try again. Spell Bobolo. B-o-i-s, Bob, B-l-a-n-c, olo, Bobolo. Good! Now give us Snow Islands. C-h-e-n-e-a-u-x, Snow, and anybody can spell islands. Correct. —Grand Traverse Herald.

—Last week Perry Weed sold his drug business to Cochran brothers—C. R. Cochran, of Pennsylvania, and F. A. Cochran, of this place. The new firm, to be known as F. A. Cochran & Co, will continue the business at the old stand. Mr. Weed retains the soda fountain and news and stationery business, and will open out in new quarters soon. Mr. Fred A. Cochran, who is well known here, is a graduate in pharmacy, a registered pharmacist. Success to the new enterprise.

It is estimated from threshing done in several southern Michigan counties that the average yield of wheat per acre will be eleven bushels; oats, forty. Owing to the long continued drouth, corn and late potatoes will result in a comparative failure. The hay crop was unusually good. Many of the pastures have so far dried up that feeding of hay and unproductive corn has been found necessary. The woods and parched fields are on fire, and ruin and dismay may be seen on every side. The fruit is shriveled and falling, and the crop will be comparatively light and worthless. Northern Michigan farmers never had better crops.

—Rev. C. F. VanAuken is laboring in the Upper Peninsula.

Premium lists of the Charlevoix county fair can be procured at this office.

The Loyal Legion will meet next Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the M. E. church. All members are invited to be present.

The Board of Directors of the Charlevoix County Agricultural Society, have appointed Wm. Black, of Marion; L. D. Bartholomew, of Charlevoix, and A. E. Hayes, of Eveline, to represent this county at the State Fair. It is desired that all having products to exhibit there should leave them with these gentlemen.

Section eight of the Michigan statutes defining the duties of Overseers of Highways, which is section 1,419 of Howell's annotated statutes, page 414, contains the following clause: "Every overseer shall cause the obnoxious weeds within the limits of the highway, within his district to be cut down and destroyed twice a year, once before the first day of July, and again before the first day of September, and the requisite work shall be considered highway work. * * * Any overseer who shall refuse or neglect to perform the duties required by this section shall be liable to a fine of twenty-five dollars."

—The Anna Berger Concert Co. will appear at Opera Hall Friday and Saturday evening of this week. The name of the famous Anna Berger is sufficient to insure full houses. The Resorter says of them: "Mr. Leigh Lynch, for nine years manager of the Union Square Theatre in New York, and Mrs. Langtry's manager last season, has brought together a number of the best musicians in the country for a recreation tour of the resorts. It is called the Anna Berger Concert Co., that gifted lady, the greatest lady cornetist in the world, being at the head. Miss Eleanor Beebe and her brother, J. Fred Beebe, are the soprano and tenor. The contralto is Miss Nellie Goodwin, late of the Bennett Opera Company, whose voice is wonderful in its range, power and sweetness, as well as its cultivation. Miss Kate Helmer, the pianist, is an artist in every sense of the term, and in order that every one should be happy, Mr. Alvah Heywood, the great musical humorist, was secured." The programme will be the greatest of its kind ever presented in Charlevoix. Tickets at Weed's.

—Reed City Clarion. Joe Hyland has recently completed and patented a new heating furnace, which is now on exhibition at his boiler works. It is claimed for this new invention that it is far superior to any heating furnace heretofore made, viz: That they can be manufactured to any size without patterns, as they are all made from the very best quality of boiler iron or steel; they are so peculiarly constructed that there is no danger from breaking by contraction or expansion of heat, or from any other cause, as there is no cast iron used in its entire construction. All joints of the heater are put together in such a manner as to entirely prevent it from smoking. In fact, it is not only smoke tight but water tight. It also has more than double the radiating surface of any other furnace, hence being a greater saving in fuel, and at the same time burning the smoke. The dampers are so arranged that they can be regulated from any part of the house most convenient, thus doing away with the inconvenience of going into the cellar for that purpose, and doing away with dampers in the hot air pipes. This invention relates to a certain new and novel improvements in heating furnaces. The invention consists in the peculiar construction and arrangement of the fire box or combustion chamber in combination with external flues, and in the construction, arrangements and combination of the various parts.

—The following from the Daily Resorter concerning the marriage of Mr. A. Rosenthal, at Petoskey last week: One of the most notable social events of the season took place at the residence of S. Rosenthal, on Lake street, this city, the occasion being the marriage of his son, Mr. A. Rosenthal, to Miss Minnie Wunderlich, of Chicago. The ceremony was performed at 5.30 p. m., in the presence of the relatives and a few invited guests, by the Rev. Dr. Daner, of Chicago, in a very impressive manner. The bride and groom received the many congratulations showered upon them by their friends in a graceful manner, the blushing lady acknowledging all compliments in a charming and gracious manner. A sumptuous repast was served, all the delicacies of the season satisfying the cravings of the inner man. The presents were numerous and costly, over half being at Charlevoix awaiting the arrival of the happy couple, who will hereafter make that place their home. Among the presents at the house was a $300 check from Mr. S. Rosenthal, a beautiful silver water set, silver table sets of various and elaborate designs, books by favorite authors, handsomely bound, and, indeed, everything which could be used to ornament and furnish their home. Vocal and instrumental solos by Miss Brill, of Alpena, Mrs. Gardner and Mr. Arner, of this city, entertained the company through the evening. A very large number of congratulations from all parts of the country were received from their many friends, who are prominent members of the communities in which they live. The plans of the newly wedded couple are as yet immatured, but they will probably go to Charlevoix in a few days, where they will be pleased to receive their friends.

—A. T. Washburne & Co., the favorite dry goods firm, have a large new advertisement in this issue. It will pay to read it. Their display of goods is exceptionally fine.

—"Whenever you hear a man sneering at the county newspapers, set him down as a donkey who 'brayed' in a mortar would still be the same. Some country papers are pitiful enough, but most of them are as good as circumstances permit, and do more for their town and section than all the growlers from Beersheba to Botany Bay. You cannot print a million dollar newspaper in a ten cent town, and the publisher of a first-class country newspaper does more work and gives more for the money and encouragement offered than any class of workers we know of. The respectable country press exerts a wide influence, and is one of the greatest forces in this country."

Charlevoix Summer Resort Items.

Mrs. Geo. Hannah, of Traverse City was the guest of Mrs. Bardeen.

Mrs. S. DeMain and daughter, of St. Louis, came Monday.

Dr J. B. Russell, of Detroit, Sundayed on the resort.

Miss Grace Barnes, of Greenville, is a guest at Breezy Point cottage.

Geo. H. Luther, the Grand Rapids manufacturer, is at the Belvedere.

Regent E. O. Grosvenor, of Jonesville, was on the resort Wednesday.

Mrs. Begole, wife of ex-Governor Begole, was at the Belvedere last week.

T. F. Giddings, county clerk, Kalamazoo, arrived at the Belvedere, Monday.

A large party of C. Y. Cook's boarders enjoyed a fish in Mill Creek, Monday.

The first baby having the honor of being a native of the resort arrived at the W. B. Moore's cottage, last week.

Miss Maud Ledyard, daughter of President Ledyard of the Michigan Central, is a guest at Gen. King's pleasant cottage.

The Belvedere expects to remain open until Oct. 1st., to accommodate a large number of hay feverites who have engaged rooms.

Mrs. Robert Tons, of Detroit, with Mrs. Emory Owen and Mrs. Emery Wendell and daughters, returned to Detroit Monday.

Mrs. J. J. Fisher and family, and Mrs. Hugh Rogers and family, of St. Louis, are at the Belvedere for the halcyon hay fever season.

Emery Wendell, president of the 1st National Bank of Detroit, spent the Sabbath on the resort. He is highly pleased with Charlevoix.

Every room at the Belvedere is full and the managers are exercising their pedal extremities upon themselves because they did not build a larger hotel.

Manager Holmes' fame as a resort landlord has spread so far that he has been offered the management of two well-known resort hotels for next season.

Bay View has sold 75 lots this summer, yet the amount received for the whole number was no more than that received on the Charlevoix resort last week for two lots.

The Baptist ladies of the resort presented the town society with a purse of $100 last week, Mrs. O. S. Gulley with her characteristic generosity donating one half the amount.

Religious.

M. E. Church.

Tuesday evening bible reading at the usual hour. Thursday evening, general prayer meeting, all come. Friday evening teachers meet, important business on hand. Sunday morning service at the usual hour. Sermon by the pastor, W. H. McCartney.

Baptist Church.

Rev. Kendall Brooks, D. D., will preach at the Baptist hall next Sunday morning, the pastor being called away by the illness of his brother, Rev. L. G. Clark, of Northville. Sunday school immediately after the morning service. Study of the Sunschool lesson Tuesday evening. Thursday evening prayer meeting as usual.

The Ladies' Aid Society gratefully acknowledge the receipt of $100 from their friends on the south side resort.

Elsewhere.

The last quarterly service will be held at the Ironton M. E. church next Saturday and Sunday. Preaching on Friday night, to be followed by the usual Saturday and Sunday services. All are invited.

Social time expected on Thursday evening August 25, at the Ironton M. E. church. A regular supper from 6 o'clock to 10 o'clock. Ice cream will be served, proceeds to go to aid in the church work.

There will be a box social at Black's school house, Friday evening, Sep. 2d, for the benefit of church work. Everybody invited to come, and thus insure success.

Positively the largest and most complete lines of confectionary and stationary ever received in Charlevoix county, just received at F. G. Hines & Co's.

Smokers will consult their own interests by buying imported and Key West cigars, of Hines & Co's. New stock just received.

Mr. Charles Swallow is painting L. E. Allen's house with the Sherwin Williams paint. Good job and best paint.

The best 5c cigar in 17 states, is the A. O. U. cigar, at Hines & Co's only.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN

THE FAULTS OF PREACHERS.

Some are too weak, and some are too strong;
Some are too short, and some are too long;
Some are too stout, and some are too thin;
Some always out, and some always in,
Some are too good, and some are too bad;
Some are too grave, and some are too glad;
Some in their clothing are too exquisite,
Some never study, and some never visit;
Some are too fine, and some are too plain;
Some preach the same sermons again and again,
Some, spite of whatever the critics may say,
In the midst of their solemn sermons look gay;
And some, howe'er pleasing the fact they rehearse,
Are unable to smile, but look grave as a hearse.
Some in their business transactions are nulls,
Some can't keep their temper, but get into h[illegible]
Some are too high, and some are too low.
And some in their first sermon tell all they know.
Some are too humble, and some are too proud;
Some are too faint, and some are too loud.
Some have many faults, some have but one;
But I never heard tell of one that had none.

THE SAD LIFE OF A RECLUSE

A Story for Old and Young.

BY JAMES FRANKLIN FITTS.

The story of Old Crotty was the delight and wonder of my boyhood. Like my later communing with the Arabian Nights and Robinson Crusoe, it was something that never grew old; and it would be useless for me to try to number the times that I heard it, at second-hand and from the original narrator. The latter was one of our neighbors, Wesley Bender by name, a grave family-man when I knew him, with children of his own—but one of those hearty, happy, young-old men, who always [illegible] salutation, and walk on. He had no friends, no visitors, no employment but to walk about in an aimless way. He was generally regarded as a harmless old lunatic. Much of his time in fair weather was passed on the bench in front of his cabin, and here I found him on this morning. He smiled as I came up, took my hand, and made me sit down beside him.

[illegible]

"I know you would come," he said. Then he took off my cap, and smoothed my hair away from my forehead, looking fixedly into my face; but presently an absent look came into his eyes, as though his thoughts were far away. When he recalled himself he asked my name again, and inquired who were my parents, and where I lived.

"Have you a knife, John?" was his next question. Knives were scarce in those days, before Americans had learned much of the art of working in steel; and my reply was that I never had owned one. He took from his pocket an exquisitely-finished Sheffield pocket-knife with four blades, and placed it in my hand. I looked at him with amazement; such an article as that could not be found in the village.

"I have had it many years," he said. "It is yours now.

My heart was full; I broke down completely.

"I don't deserve it, sir, I sobbed. "I treated you badly yesterday—"

"Never mind that, John. You'll be kind to me after this. Tell your good mother that I thank her for letting you come, and sometime it would please me to have you come again. Good-bye, now."

He stooped and kissed my forehead. His eyes followed me as I went away, and until the trees hid him from me I saw that he looked after me.

I told my mother the particulars of [illegible]

[illegible]

NUMBER 10; —OR,— ANOTHER MAN'S CRIME.

—BY—

The Author of "The Rokewood Tragedy," "The Fenton Girls," "At Sixty," Etc.

CHAPTER I.

[illegible]

[illegible]

Java.

[illegible]

PITH AND POINT.

[illegible]

Virginia Characters.

[illegible]

The Modern Spirit of Napoleon's Legislation.

[illegible]

PRESIDENT PIERCE IN ENGLAND.

[illegible]

THE ELECTION OF THE FUTURE.

[illegible]

A Hard Case.

[illegible]

Ancient Mining Operations.

[illegible]

The Old Collins Line.

[illegible]

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF

PATENTS

OPIUM

DETECTIVES

JONES PAYS THE FREIGHT

MEMORY

PENSIONS.

WIZARD OIL FOR PAIN

FRAZER AXLE GREASE

PILES

Good Health

Hood's Sarsaparilla

RHEUMATISM

LIVER, BLOOD AND LUNG DISEASES.

"THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

CONSUMPTION, WEAK LUNGS, SPITTING OF BLOOD.

Golden Medical Discovery

WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors, No. 663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times." Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

CHARLEVOIX, AUG. 24, 1887.

It is said that an effort will be made next year to discard the annual encampment of the state troops, and have the boys take a trip to Gettysburg to participate in the annual reunion of the old veterans who took part in that great battle. The idea is an excellent one, and should be carried out.

The New York Sun says that if Kentucky were to choose between Blaine and Cleveland to-day the former would stand a fair chance of carrying the state. The Sun also says: "Mr. Cleveland's view of the election of 1884 has been that there was but one victor, Grover Cleveland. The spoils seem to belong to him and to him only." And the New York Sun is a democratic paper, too.

Prohibition prohibits where public sentiment asserts itself in favor of prohibition. It does not prohibit where public sentiment is not in favor of it. This is a statement of fact demonstrated so many times and so fully as to admit of no contradiction. Abraham Lincoln spoke truly when he said in one of his debates with Stephen A. Douglas: "With public sentiment nothing can fail; without it nothing can succeed." What better argument than this can be advanced in favor of local option, which is only another name for public sentiment?—Detroit Tribune.

The Marquette Mining Journal explains on the authority of a man prominent in the local management of the Lake Superior Iron Company, that the reason that company does not at once proceed to develop the gold find recently discovered is that the company is authorized to explore for, mine and sell iron only, and hence must be authorized to do so before it can engage in any other enterprise. Furthermore, it is said the Eastern stockholders are skeptical about the existence of gold. The Journal is assured, however, that the gold mine will soon be developed, whether it be by the Lake Superior Company or another distinct from it.

The bids for the two new cruisers and three gunboats the other day were made by only three parties, and no bids came from south of the Delaware river. The best facilities for doing such work exist at Philadelphia and New York, and there the vessels will be built. The cruisers are to be finished in two years, and the gunboats in eighteen months. When these are completed we shall have, with the vessels now building, including the five monitors, a fleet of twenty two vessels of iron and steel of modern build. Only two of them, however, will probably compare with the English and French type of battle ships.

Queen Victoria costs the British nation $20,000,000 a year. No wonder that she is dear to the average Englishman. When we consider for a moment, however, how many of her poverty stricken subjects that vast sum would make happy, the natural question arises, is it right for one human being to literally roll in wealth while millions of others know not where the next meal will come from? And again, how long will the masses of the English people be ground into the dust by the most abject poverty, in order that a swarm of so-called royal personages may be kept in luxury and idleness? The tension is becoming too great, and one of these days something will break.

In the June number of the English magazine, "Nineteenth Century," Jas. Keith, in an article on "Our great competitor," says the United States, is now our best customer, but how long this will continue it is hard to say, seeing she is already supplying our colonies and ourselves with many of our own manufactures. The United States, again, can grow everything in the shape of food which she may require, within her own borders, and could supply all our wants in that respect besides. The only advantage we have over the United States is, as I have said, that we have cheap labor, and because of our cheap labor, and that only, can we send into her market raw materials and manufactured goods despite her heavy import duties. The import duties of the United States, however, are being gradually lowered, and she is tending toward the adoption of free trade. When the United States adopts free trade, or anything approaching it, the price of American labor will come down, and the American people will then be able to compete with us in our country and run us out of the race, unless we in the interim develop our resources, stir ourselves up, and show ourselves as progressive and far advanced as she undoubtedly is in the industrial arts and sciences."

Northern Michigan News.

The South Arm hoop factory cuts 37,000 per day.

J. M. Wadsworth has moved from Bellaire to Kalkaska.

Trackiaying has commenced at Cadillac on the Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad.

Mrs. Gov. Alger pay $193 per week for a suit of rooms at Plank's Grand Hotel, Mackinaw.

The Kalkaska Leader asks that county to vote on local option and believes the measure would carry.

The steamer French will run on Bear Lake hereafter, connecting at Clarion with the morning train from Petoskey.

Perkett, Lardie & Co., of Traverse City, take all the fruit on the Ellis farm, on the peninsula, paying $3,000 for it on the tree.

A hunting party left Clarion with a dog, which soon went mad and was killed. A good many more dogs will be killed this fall.

Mrs. Julia A. Moore, the "Sweet Singer of Michigan," is deputy postmistress at Haire's Siding, a station on the G. R. & I. railroad, between Walton and Manton.

The Progress complains of a law and order defying element in Elk Rapids and says John Dewitt has been appointed policeman to subdue the fighting, brawling and drunken element with which they have to contend.

Resorter: The property on which the saw mill at the head of the bay stands, has been purchased by the Bay View association and is to be laid out in lots which are to be sold for building lots for summer residences.

Petoskey Record: Three weeks from to-day the Michigan conference opens its annual session at Bay View —the first time northern Michigan was ever so honored. The farmers should hold their yellow-legged chickens for a rise in the market about that time.

The Mancelona Herald will publish the tax lists for Antrim, this year, the Frankfort Express for Benzie, the Charlevoix SENTINEL for Charlevoix, the Harbor Springs Republican for Emmet, the Grand Traverse Herald for Grand Traverse, the Kalkaskian for Kalkaska, the Leland Enterprise for Lelanaw, the Petosksy Record for Maniton, the Sherman Pioneer, for Wexford.

The largest lumber raft ever towed in the world, reached Bay City Wednesday afternoon from Au Train, Lake Michigan, in the wakes of the Gladiator and Mocking Bird. It contained about 8,000,000 feet and was worth a cool $100,000. The logs were brought down in a bag boom. The raft was so large that when it entered the river it blocked the channel. It was permitted to be blown to the west in the vicinity of the light-house, and to be handled it will have to be taken apart in sections. No wonder this northern country grows; 'tis up here that things are done on a big scale.

Over in Petoskey, Mich., a lady rubbed phosphorus on her bunion, presumably, to ease the pain, and then retired to her downy couch. Along in the night her husband, who was a drinking man, by the way thought he saw a fiery eye looking at him. He imagined that he saw a frightful winged monster with one blazing eye, staring at him; and after standing it as long as he could, he decided to kill it. Slowly he reached under the bed till he found his bootjack, and after spitting on his hands, he whaled away. The next moment his poor wife gave a yell that nearly lifted him out of the bed, and when he found out the true state of affairs, he was immensely relieved, even though his wife has been obliged to walk on crutches ever since.—Peck's Sun.

East Jordan Enterprise. The school board have hired Prof. Waldron, of Boyne Falls, for the ensuing year, and Miss Ada Cooper and Miss May Papineau as assistants.——Supervisor Frank Banney was seriously hurt in his accident recently. It is possible that he will be crippled for life, his back being injured.——Postmaster Henry B. Stohlman, of South Arm, is seriously ill.——The fair, which will be held on the grounds of the East Jordan Driving Club, promises to be the most successful of any ever held at this place. Great interest is manifested by the farmers, who will have something to exhibit, and the townspeople hope to make their share of the exhibits surpass that of any previous years.——Word was received early Wednesday morning that Vances mill which is located about four miles out of town on the state road had been burned at 12 o'clock Tuesday night. Fire had communicated to the refuse of the mill from the surrounding fires in the woods, and the flames could not be stayed. A part of the machinery is uninjured but the loss is great and there is no insurance. Mr. Vance has been unfortunate in his business this being the second time he has been burned out within two years.

The T. & A. railroad between Mt. Pleasant and Cadillac it is said will be completed within the next sixty days.

It is reported that a surveying party of the C. & W. M. R. R. is at work north and east of Baldwin in Lake county.

The old depot at Petoskey has been removed and the rubbish cleared away, which makes a good improvement to that part of town.

The many Traverse City friends of Rev. A. P. Moors, of Ionia, Presiding Elder, will be pained to learn that he has been stricken with paralysis and that his recovery is doubtful.

Boyne Citizen: Dr. E. F. Allen has purchased and moved to Boyne City, the abstract books belonging to Upright Bros., the only set in the county, and will hereafter be able to furnish corrected abstracts.

Kalkaska Leader. At a meeting held Saturday, August 13, the Kalkaska Game and Fish Protective Association was organized.——Director Alf. G. Drake is out this week securing the right of way for the D. C. & E. R. R.

Boyne Falls correspondence Citizen: Mr. Fitzgerald, of the G. R. & I. railroad, passed through here this week, and on his way back informed the agent here that he expected to locate the furnace at this place and would be up and make arrangements to that effect soon.

Elk Rapids Progress: We have a town of about 1,200 inhabitants and one of the best sites for a town in Northern Michigan.——We have been asked once or twice where the depot would be. We do not know. If the road ever reaches here undoubtedly the depot will be up Elk river, near the mouth of Elk lake, where the G. R. & I. people can place their docks. Will let you know after a while.

The Salvation Army struck Cadillac several weeks ago, and the local press of the city speak in high terms of the way Captain Leidy and her assistants are managing matters. "Since their first appearance they have conducted themselves in such a manner as to gain the respect of all fair minded people; and are doing a work which has been left undone by the churches, and which greatly needed to be done.

Detroit Tribune: William O. Hughart and Thomas O'Brien, of Grand Rapids, and Daniel A. Waterman, Henry Russel, David Carter and Lafayette Owen, of Detroit, filed articles yesterday as the Mackinac Island Hotel Company with the county clerk. The purpose set forth is to acquire by purchase, gift or lease such real estate as may seem desirable on the island of Mackinac, and to own, construct, operate or lease a hotel building, together with such stores and offices and other buildings in connection therewith as may seem for the best interest of the corporation. The capital stock is fixed at $300,000, divided into shares of $100 each. Each of the incorporators holds 150 shares of the capital stock. The principal office of the company will be located in Detroit. The incorporators all figure as directors for the first year. The new hotel will be better in every respect than the Grand, and will be ready early next season. It is reported that the location will be on the beach near the steamboat landing.

A correspondent of the Grand Rapids Democrat closes his letter for the Sunday edition in the following prophetic words: "What will another 10 years do for this Nice of North Michigan? The shores of Little Traverse bay from Petoskey to Harbor Point at least, will be an almost continuous line of cottages, many surrounded by large finely-kept grounds. There will be a broad driveway along the beach around the head of the bay and resorters from everywhere, almost, will bring their teams up here and one of the leading pleasures, as is the case at almost every fashionable eastern summer resort, will be a drive around the head of this beautiful bay. The cottages will, many of them, be large and expensive, and evening entertainments, dances, concerts and the like will not be confined to the hotels as they are now. The summer population will be four times what it is now, and all, or at least the large majority, will have more pleasure and remain north longer, as the resort population increases. The New Jersey coast, which is now lined with cottages almost all the way from Sandy Hook to Cape May, cannot compare with northern Michigan in the relief and pleasures it can afford to summer resorters, when this region has been made as attractive by drives, lawns, beautiful, verandahed cottages, parks and fountains, as it can be made at but relatively little expense. The time is not far distant when, in the summer, the houses of the well-to-do and wealthy in the thousands of cities and villages between the Alleghenies and the Mississippi will be as deserted during the torrid term as are the fashionable mansions of Fifth avenue today, and most of these exodusters will find their way to this northern section of Michigan.

ICE CREAM PAR EXCELLENCE.

We would respectfully inform the public that we have at considerable expense, prepared and suitably furnished our Band Pagoda as an Ice Cream parlor, and have placed it at the head of all similar institutions in Charlevoix. It will be open for the use of the public at all times save on Wednesday evenings, when there will be a Grand Concert by the Band. Our cream will be as good as can be made. Just received a large lot of Ice Cream Packages holding from one quart to one or more gallons, which will be loaned to customers for safely carrying cream to their homes. The quality of our cream speaks for itself. Our stock of foreign and domestic Fruits is always large and of the best quality. We carry as fine a line of confectionery, nuts, etc., as can be found in town.

Respectfully,
O. W. SMITH.

TIME CARDS OF STEAMERS

STANDARD TIME.

Charlevoix and East Jordan.
STR. NORTH STAR, ... CAPT. MEL THOMPSON
Leaving Charlevoix at 6:30 a m and 1:30 p m and returning leave East Jordan for Charlevoix at 9:30 am and 4 p m, touching at intermediate points both ways.

Charlevoix and Boyne City.
STR. JOSEPH GORDON .... CAPT. LEWIS GEARE
Leave Charlevoix at 6:30 a m. and 1 p. m., and Boyne City at 9:30 a.m., 4 p. m., touching at way ports

Harbor Springs, Charlevoix & E. Jordan.
STR. THOS. FRIANT, ... CAPT. H. VANGENHOLT.
MORNING: Leave Harbor Springs, 7:30; Petoskey, 8:00; Charlevoix, 9:30; arrive, East Jordan 11:30
AFTERNOON: Leave East Jordan 1:30; Charlevoix, 4:00; Petoskey, 5:30; arrive, Harbor Spring, 6:00

NORTHERN MICHIGAN LINE.
PROP. LAWRENCE, ... Capt. Geo. Thorp.
Going North, Chicago, Fridays 8 p m; Charlevoix, Sundays 3 p m; Cheboygan, Mondays 9 a m.
Going South, Cheboygan, Mondays 4 p m; Charlevoix, Tuesdays 8 a m; Milwaukee, Wednesdays 4 p m; Chicago, Thursdays 12 m.
Emrey Bros., agents, Charlevoix.

HANNAH, LAY & CO'S BOATS.
CITY OF GRAND RAPIDS, ... Capt. O. E. Wilbee
Going North, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays: Leave Traverse City 7 a m; Northport 9:30; Charlevoix 11:30; Petoskey 1:30 p m; Harbor Springs 2; Cross Village 4:30; Mackinac Island 7:45 arriving at St Ignace 8:20
Going South, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, Leave St. Ignace 8 a m; Mackinac Island 7; Cross Village 10:15; Harbor Springs 12:45 p m; Petoskey 1:05; Charlevoix 2:45; Northport 5:15 p m, arriving at Traverse City at 7:45 p m.
J. L. Hurd & Co., Agents, Charlevoix.

Bank of Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security
Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers
Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to Speculate with ones own money, is folly; that to do so with the money of others, is criminal

Security in Banking
Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors, and, believing that it furnishes an usual guarantee, therefore,

This Bank Invites
People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will
Borrow Investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking
Productive employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes,
Now earning Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S
LIVERY STABLE
CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.

Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

Farming Lands

500,000 ACRES
Of Splendid
MICHIGAN LANDS
For Sale By The
G. R. & I. R. R.

50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.

These lands are timbered with beach and maple elm and other wood and are accessible to best markets

By Water and Rail

And are in a state unequalled for health, well watered and contiguous to the great fruit raising section of Michigan

The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad runs through the center of the grant. The part of Michigan in which these lands are situated is

Not a Wilderness by any Means.

It contains a population of 250,000 souls and is rapidly filling up with settlers from almost every state in the Union

Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold.

Send for English or German Pamphlet, Address

W. H. HUGHART, Commissioner,
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.

TITLE PERFECT.

Itch, Prairie Mange and Scratches of every kind cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Use no other. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix

Teachers' Examination.

The Board of School Examiners of Charlevoix county will hold a special meeting for examination of teachers at Boyne City on Friday, the 26th day of August, 1887. Examination to commence at 8:30 a. m. and end at 6 o'clock p. m. This will be the only examination held under the old law. Time and place of other examinations will be given as soon as determined upon by the Board.

WILLIAM HARRIS,
Sec'y Board of Examiners

Chancery Sale.

State of Michigan, in the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, David Carpenter complainant, vs August Steubing defendant. In pursuance and by virtue of a decree in the above entitled cause bearing date May 26, 1887, I, the undersigned, a Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Charlevoix County, State of Michigan, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House, in the village of Boyne City, in said County of Charlevoix (that being the place of holding the court for said county), on Saturday, the 3rd day of September, at 12 o'clock noon of said day, the premises described in said decree, viz: The west half of the south east quarter of section 30 in township thirty three (33) north, range four west, Charlevoix County, State of Michigan.

WILL N. MOORE,
Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Charlevoix County, Michigan.
DART & CALL, Solicitors for Complainant.
Dated July 20, 1887.

Sheriff Sale.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of a writ of fieri facias issued out of the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, in favor of Hiram V. Rifenburg, against the goods and chattels and real estate of Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emrey, in said County, to me directed and delivered, I did, on the 26th day of June, 1887, levy upon and take all the right, title and interest of the said Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emrey, in and to the following described real estate, that is to say Lots 126, 127, and 81, in Upright & Hurlbut's Addition to the Village of Charlevoix, the undivided ½ of Lot 2, Section 23, Town 34 North, of Range 8 West, North ½ of South East ¼ of Section 29, Town 34 North, of Range 7 West, Charlevoix Co., Michigan; also 20 shares of stock in the Charlevoix Manufacturing Company, a corporation existing in accordance with the laws of the State of Michigan, said shares representing $25 each. All of which I shall expose for sale at public auction to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House in Boyne City in said county, on the 21st day of September A. D. 1887, at ten o'clock in the forenoon.

Dated, Aug 4, 1887.

D. D. JERRUE, Sheriff.
By Wm. Schoonover, Deputy Sheriff.
CRUICKSHANK & GRIER,
Attorneys for Plaintiffs. [1067]

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the money secured by a certain mortgage, dated the 2d day of August, 1883, executed by Levi House, and Emily House, his wife, of the Township of Hayes, county of Charlevoix, and State of Michigan, to Edwin M. Clark, of Charlevoix, Michigan. Said mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for said county of Charlevoix, in Liber Eight (8) of Mortgages, on page one hundred and ninety-one, (191) on the 25th day of August, 1883, and said mortgage was, on the 25th day of October, 1883, duly assigned by said Edwin M. Clark to Martha J. Ayers, of Plattsburg, Clinton county, New York, said assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said county, on the 25th day of October, 1883, in Liber ten (10) of Mortgages, on page four hundred and eighty-five, (485) and said mortgage is now due and owned by the said Martha J. Ayers. And, whereas, the amount claimed to be due on said Mortgage at the time of this notice, is the sum of Two Hundred and Nineteen Dollars and sixty-two cents, ($219.62) of principal and interest, and no proceedings having been instituted at law or in equity, to recover the debt now remaining due, or any part thereof: Now therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the said power of sale in said mortgage contained, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises in said mortgage described, as all of those certain pieces or parcels of land situate in the Township of Hayes, in the county of Charlevoix, and State of Michigan, and described as follows, to-wit: Lot three, (3) and the south-west quarter of the north-east quarter, of Section Nineteen, (19) in Township Thirty-four, (34) North, of Range Seven (7) West, containing seventy (70) acres, more or less, according to the United States survey, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due on said mortgage, with the costs of this foreclosure, and the stipulated costs therein mentioned, which will be sold at public vendue to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House, in the Village of Boyne City, in said county of Charlevoix, that being the place where the Circuit Court in and for said county is held, at one o'clock in the afternoon, on the 15th day of November, 1887.

Dated, August 17th, 1887.

MARTHA J. AYERS, Assignee.
J. M. CLARK, Attorney for Assignee.

Mortgage Sale.

Five certain mortgages, to-wit: one bearing date, December fifth, 1878, executed by Marion Woolf and Martin Woolf to David Carpenter, recorded in the office of Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Mich, December 7th, 1878, in Liber 3 of Mortgages, at pages 271 and 272, upon which the whole amount is due and unpaid, to-wit: The sum of Three hundred and twenty-seven dollars and twenty cents, ($327.20), one bearing date Sept. 13, 1879, executed by Marion Woolf and Martin Woolf to David Carpenter, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Mich., Sept. 29th, 1879, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, at page 87, upon which the whole amount is due and unpaid to-wit: One hundred and eight dollars and thirty-two cents ($108.32), one bearing date April 6, 1880, executed by Marion Woolf and Martin Woolf to David Carpenter, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Mich, April 15th, 1880, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, at page 149, upon which the whole amount is now due and unpaid, the sum of Two hundred and four dollars and thirty-two cents [$204.32], one bearing date April 1, 1882, executed by Martin Woolf and Mariam Woolf to Clay E. Call, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Mich., April 11th, 1882, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, at page 513, which Mortgage was duly assigned by Clay E. Call to David Carpenter, September 26, 1882, by deed of assignment, which is recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Michigan, September 12, 1884, in Liber 10 of Mortgages, at page 375, upon which the whole amount is now due and unpaid, to-wit: Eighty-seven dollars and forty-eight cents [$87.48]; also a mortgage dated September 21, 1884, executed by Martin Woolf and Mariam Woolf to David Carpenter, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Charlevoix county, Michigan, Sept. 26, 1882, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, on page 610, upon which the whole amount is due, to wit: Six hundred and twenty four dollars and eleven cents, [$624.11]; for the recovery of the sum secured by said mortgages or either of them, no suit or proceedings at law having been instituted, will be foreclosed under the power of sale therein contained, by a statutory sale of the premises therein described as the North half of the north-west quarter of section thirty-three, Town thirty-four, North of Range six West, Charlevoix county, Michigan, to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House, socalled, in the village of Boyne City, in said County, that being the place where the Circuit Court for said county, is held, at 12 o'clock noon, September 22, 1887.

DAVID CARPENTER, [illegible]
DART & CALL, Attorneys for Mortgagee.
Dated, June 25, 1887. [1003]

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Henry Bennett, John Nicholls, A. R. Upright, O. D. Wood, A. Buttars, A. Fox, F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL,	$25,000
SURPLUS,	2,000

The liabilities of stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art. 3174, Sec. 40 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:

NATIONAL PARK BANK	NEW YORK.
COMMERCIAL NAT. BANK	CHICAGO.
NAT. CITY BANK	GRAND RAPIDS.
DETROIT NAT. BANK	DETROIT.

WAYNE COUNTY SAVINGS BANK
DETROIT, MICH.
$500,000 TO INVEST IN BONDS
Issued by Cities, counties, towns and school districts of Michigan. Officers of these municipalities about to issue Bonds will find it to their advantage to apply to this Bank. Blank Bonds and blanks for proceedings supplied without charge. All communications and inquiries will have prompt attention.
May 87. S. D. ELWOOD, Treasurer.

W. A. REYNARD,

Has just received at his Fruit Store in the Lewis Block, a choice line of

Vegetables and Fruits
OF ALL KINDS,
TO WHICH OTHERS WILL BE ADDED IN SEASON.

I will also keep in stock a full line of

Tobaccos and Cigars.

Butter and Eggs a Specialty.

CROSS & SONS.,
Buy and Sell all kinds of
Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.
Charlevoix, - Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY,
Photographer.
In Bradbeer's Gallery.
Photographs of all sizes taken.
Old Pictures copied and enlarged.
CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

New JEWELRY AND SILVER WARE.

I have just received a very fine stock of
Watches, Chains, Pins, Clocks, Silver-Ware, etc
which I will sell at Prices lower than the same goods can be purchased outside.

Did it ever occur to you that by patronizing home Merchants you were benefiting yourselves?

All classes of Repairing done quickly.

C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,

ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR,
—ON—
Chalevoix Summer Resorts.

I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.

I employ only first-class workmen, both

Carpenters and Painters.

Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention

J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

Fox & Miller

Offer a

Mammoth Stock

OF

BOOTS, SHOES

and other

FOOT WEAR,

--AT--

LOWER PRICES

Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a FIRST-CLASS SHOEMAKER, And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

The Kalamazoo
"DAILY TELEGRAPH."
Contains the Associated Press Dispatches
Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.

Charlevoix, Mich.

Manufacturers of and Wholesale and Retail Dealers

3 EXTRA GRADES OF

FLOUR

Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

M. LITNEY. JOS. STEIMEL

Litney & Steimel

LIVERY, And Feed Barn

Charlevoix, Mich.

Good Rigs at Lowest Rates.

It Pays to Buy the
BEST BOATS!

The large number of boats I have built for resorters, are advertisements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.

I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the

LEAST MONEY!

All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.

LEAVE ORDERS

with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.

Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.

J. BEAUVAIS.

BOOTS & SHOES

Have you seen our $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00 Gents Shoes?

If not do so at once. They are made solid throughout even to the counter. You'll have no trouble with these goods running over at the heel.

These goods cannot be equalled in the county

Either in style, quality or price. We will take pains this season to have in stock goods that will suit all. New ad. soon on Ladies' Fine Shoes of latest styles New York, Common Sense, and London Toes.

Ladies Look Out

For the new line of latest style goods that is on the road for

D. SHERWOOD & CO.

A. J. McLEOD,

Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at

Wholesale or Retail

All kinds of

FRESH MEATS,
SALT PORK,
SMOKED & SALTED
HAMS,
Dried and Smoked
BACON, DRIED BEEF.
Bologna, Head Cheese,
Sausage.

Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.

Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.

A. J. McLEOD.

HARNESS SHOP!

E. B. HODGE & CO.,

Are prepared to do all classes of work in the shape of HARNESS MAKING.

Light or Heavy Harnesses made as good and as cheap as can be gotten in any city.

Give us a call, we are located on Bridge Street, next to Bellinger's jewelery store. E. B. HODGE & CO.

Washburn & Ackert,
FOUNDREYMEN,
MACHINISTS,
And Manufacturers of The
Charlevoix Plow.

Take The Sentinel.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED. W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich

J MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law. Office in Buttars' Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PAILTHORPE GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

J A. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office at residence, Main st. Charlevoix, Office hours 6 to 10 a m; 6 to 8 p m.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 119, meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows' hall,

MASONIC.—Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M. Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Postoffice.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake Lodge No. 291, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

K. O. T. M.—Resort Tent No. 138, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' Hall.

L. O. L.—True Blues No. 157, meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. 104, R. A. M., meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No 156, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of the members, during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.

President—Byron See.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller.
Recording Secretary—Chas. J Strang.
Financial Secretary—B. Sutfield.
Treasurer—Albert E. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. D. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. Lee Iddings, W. A. Brown and C. Y. Cook.
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, M. J. Stockman, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, E. W. Miller, S. M. See, W. C. Newman, E. M. Clark, H. Berdan.

All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequalled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the travelling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids Stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,
Lorenzo Cook, Manager
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only 100 feet to Steamboat Landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE.
W. C. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Fitted up with a view to the Comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central Location

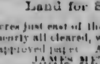
PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and Dock work solicited at any point between Traverse City and Mackinaw. L. E. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. R. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. [Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.]

DENTIST.



N. J. PERRY, Dentist.
Office in Weed's Drug Store,
Charlevoix, Mich.

Land for Sale.

I have 5 acres just east of the cemetery, one mile from town, nearly all cleared, which I will sell cheap for cash, or approved paper. Address
JAMES METCALF, Charlevoix.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix tf

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R.

"Mackinac Short Line."

Only direct line between the east and south and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Going West read down			Going East read up
	5 45 p m	Detroit	11 10 a m
7 00 a m	6 50 a m	St Ignace	8 30 p m	5 55 p m
10 25	8 52	Newberry	9 21	2 05
12 20	9 40	Seney	5 15	12 35
	10 42	Reedsboro	4 15
3 25	11 57	Au Train	3 25	9 05
5 30	12 40	Marquette	2 15	7 00
	12 50 p m	Marquette	2 00 p m
	1 55	Ishpeming	12 58
	4 10	L'Anse	10 40
	5 30	Houghton	9 20
	6 35	Calumet	8 15

Connections made with M T Cos boats, M C & G R & I R R & M R & O
E. W. ALLEN, Gen Pass Agt, Marquette

Grand Rapids & Indiana R.R.

Time Card for Petoskey.

IN EFFECT, JULY 1887.

Leave Going North *6 05 a m, 5 02 p m, 8 05 p m
Leave Going South 8 50 a m, 2 15 p m, †10 55 p m
* daily. † daily except Saturday.

Michigan Central

The Direct Route Between Mackinaw City & Detroit Jackson, The South and East.

Trains leave Mackinaw City 8 a m daily except Sunday and 10 p m daily arriving at

Detroit	9 10 p m and 11 a m
Jackson	10 30 p m and 11 20 a m
Toledo	10 55 p m and 4 45 p m
Buffalo	6 15 a m and 8 07 p m
Cincinnati	5 35 a m and 5 40 p m

WAGNER PALACE SLEEPING AND PARLOR CARS.

D W JOHNSTON, Mich. Pass Agt, Grand Rapids
O W RUGGLES, G. P. & T. Agt, Chicago

Amusing Metaphors.

George Stephenson was once asked by a scientific lady what he considered the most powerful force in nature. "Oh," said he in a gallant spirit, "I will soon answer that question; it is the eye of the woman for the man who loves her; for if a woman look with affection on a young man, and he should go to the uttermost ends of the earth, the recollection of that look will bring him back. There is no other force in nature that can do that."

Equally ready with a similitude was the negro, who, when giving evidence in court, was asked about the honesty of a neighbor. "I know nothing against him," was the reply; "but if I was a chicken I would roost high when he was hanging around."

A thoughtful writer describes one-eyed travelers who see a great deal of some particular class of objects and are blind to all others, and adds: "The Irish jaunting car, in which the passengers sit back to back, is a sort of type of what befalls many tourists in Ireland. Each sees a great deal, and reports faithfully what he has seen on one side of the road, and the other on the other. One will have seen all that is green, and the other all that is orange."

"A cunning knave can form no notion of a nobler nature," says the same writer. "He is like the goats on Robinson Crusoe's island, which saw clearly everything below them, but very imperfectly what was above them, so that Robinson could never get at them from the valleys; but when he came upon them from the hilltop, he took them quite by surprise."

Ridicule, says a German critic, is like a blow with the fist; wit, like the prick of a needle; irony, like the sting of a thorn; and humor, the plaster which heals all these wounds. All of these qualities may be found in some metaphors.

Man is said to be an animal that has a mania for getting up societies and making himself president. If the presidency has been already claimed, he contents himself with the position of treasurer. In a cynical old bachelor's opinion, ideas are like beards—men only get them when they are grown up, and women never have any. It was probably another old bachelor who said: "Nature shudders when she sees a woman throw a stone; but when a woman attempts to split wood, Nature covers her head and retires to a dark and mouldering cave in temporary despair." A spinster says old bachelors are frozen-out old gardeners in the flower-bed of love.

To say that a coquette is a rose-bush from which each young beau plucks a leaf, and the thorns are left for the husband, is not very complimentary. Compliments are the coin that people pay a man to his face; sarcasm what they pay him out with behind his back.

A farmer said: "One thing I don't like about city folks—they be either so stuck up that yer can't reach 'em with a haystack pole, or so blamed friendly that they forget to pay their board."

A rural old poet said of his lady love, "She is graceful as a water-lily, while her breath is like an armful of clover." An American poet wrote a eulogy of Washington, whose glorious life should compose a volume as Alps immortal, spotless as its snows. The stars should be its types, its press the age, the earth its binding, and the sky its page. Truly, some American poets go in for marvels of metaphor.—Chambers' Journal.

Good Advice to New-Comers.

You come into this country to earn your living and a little more; give it your heart in exchange for what it gives you. Become Americans, and that as quickly and as thoroughly as possible. Cherish the Netherlands in your memory, but do not immediately condemn everything that you see, hear, and experience in this country. Do not be too hasty in your judgment, for after you have lived here several years you will then see that at first your knowledge was too limited to judge correctly.

Help yourself. Do not think that somebody else will prepare your bed for you. No, you must look for yourself that you may find for yourself. You must work for yourself in order to enjoy for yourself. Therefore, do not rely upon others; rely upon your arms and legs, and a little upon your head. If you do your best then you can rest assured that you will receive help if you need it.

People must find out what is in you. If you have a "job" stick to it until you find something better. Do not let anybody persuade you that your wages are too low, and that you ought to get much more for the same work. Let strikers strike and howlers howl, keep yourself a little in the background. You know nothing of affairs here as yet, and it is rather presumptuous, to say the least, to judge things about which we know nothing. If things do not go as well as you would like, do not forget the condition of the majority of your friends in the old Fatherland. It is deplorable, but true, that those who shout the loudest here about the wages being too small would, in the Netherlands, have thanked God upon their knees if they had things but half as comfortable as they have here. Strive always for more, but do it with a thankful heart for what you now have.

Do not allow yourselves to be misled by disaffected persons. They will give you many evil reports about Chicago —about the employers in general, and about "slavedrivers" among our own nationality in particular. Do not believe such reports; wait until you have some experience of your own.

Cast off all provincialism. We are here all Dutch-Americans, no matter in what province of the Netherlands we were born. But do not cast off your sterling qualities. Preserve your honesty, your diligence, your economy, your prudence, your religious convictions. These qualities have given our countrymen in this grand Republic a good name, and this must be still better.—De Nederlander (Chicago).

They Were Both Losers.

"Yes, speculation ruined me," he sighed, as he bit off another chew of cheap plug. "In my last deal in stocks I lost my elegant home on Fifth avenue."

"Was it No. 0946," asked a man on the box.

"It was."

"Then I was the man who got it."

"Possible? But you also seem to be in bad luck."

"I am. The wages of the servants in that house for six months bankrupted me, and I haven't been able to brace up again."—Wall Street News.

Pleasure Boat for Sale.

The "Petrel," sloop rigged, remarkably commodious, handy and safe. Built by Rankin of St. Ignace, in 1882. Price $100 now, or $75 at the end of the present season.

Apply to G. C. Mahon, Charlevoix.

Fresh Butter at lowest price, at Jefferies' Bakery.

TO RENT. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

A house and 5 lots for sale or rent, inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

FOR SALE. A heavy yoke of oxen. Must be sold immediately. Apply to A. Stewart, Charlevoix. 2w

Cull shingles and lumber for sale cheap, or will exchange for farm produce. Apply at Burns & Scroggie's livery barn. tf

WANTED—A steady man to work one of Perkin's one block shingle mill. Apply to Smithson's Lumber Co., Charlevoix.

FOR SALE—One span of horses, one yearling colt, two spring colts, one yoke of oxen, two two-year old heifers, two yearling heifers; must be sold soon. Terms reasonable. Inquire at this office.

HEADLIGHT AND LITTLE DAISY Soaps. They are strictly pure. They are the cheapest soaps sold for the mony. Try them and get a ladies' water-proof gossamer free. For sale by Emrey Brothers.

PARTIES wishing their pianos tuned or repaired can have them attended to by leaving orders at Dr. Crouter's drug store, as our Mr. C. M. Williams will be in Charlevoix for a week.

DETROIT MUSIC CO.

The ladies are cordially invited to call and examine the large display of millinery including pattern hats and bonnets together with novelties in ribbons, gauzes, flowers, etc. As it is to be a season of novelties it will pay you to call now and often, upon Mrs. Litney & Carr.

NOTICE.

The late Champlain disaster has placed me in close financial circumstances. Therefore it is necessary for me to collect all outstanding indebtedness. All Owing me will please call and pay.

GEO. W. MILLER.

JOHN CONNOR,
Fashionable
Boot and Shoe MAKER.

Hand Sewed French Calf Gaiters, $5; Men's Kip and Calf Boots, $4.50; Half-soling, 50 cents. Defy competition.

All Work Guaranteed.

JOHN W. KIRBY,
BLACKSMITH & Horseshoer.

Having leased the Blacksmith Shop of D. C. NETTLETON, I am now prepared to do all kinds of Blacksmithing. Satisfaction guaranteed. Horseshoeing a Specialty,

J. W. KIRBY.

I have leased my blacksmith shop on Bridge Street to JOHN W. KIRBY. Mr. Kirby is well-known here having been in the shop for nearly 3 years past, consequently there will be no change of workmen. He is an expert in his line and worthy of a liberal patronage.

D. C. NETTLETON.

For Finest
JOB WORK,
Patronize The Sentinel.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN
Boiler Works!

Builder and Manufacturer of

BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.

Sheet Iron Work given special attention.

MARINE WORK a specialty.

HENRY BARTH, Prop.
Charlevoix, Mich.

160 Acres in MARION
Township For Sale at a Bargain, Terms to suit.

MONEY TO LOAN ON
Approved Real Estate Security
THEODORE H. CHAPIN.
Boyne City.

Never Give Up.

If you are suffering with low and depressed spirits, loss of appetite, general debility, disordered blood, weak constitution, headache, or any disease of a bilious nature, by all means procure a bottle of Electric Bitters. You will be surprised to see the rapid improvement that will follow; you will be inspired with new life; strength and activity will return; pain and misery will cease, and henceforth you will rejoice in the praise of Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Miraculous Escape.

W. W. Reed, druggist, of Winchester, Ind., writes: "One of my customers, Mrs. Louisa Pike, Bartonia, Randolph Co., Ind., was a long sufferer with Consumption, and was given up to die by her physicians. She heard of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and began buying it of me. In six months' time she walked to this city, a distance of six miles, and is now so much improved she has quit using it. She feels she owes her life to it." Free Trial Bottles at Dr. G. W. Crouter's

THE REV. GEO. H. THAYER, of Bourbon, Ind., says: "Both myself and wife owe our lives to SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE."

ARE YOU MADE miserable by Indigestion, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Yellow Skin? Shiloh's Vitalizer is a positive cure. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

WHY WILL YOU Cough when Shiloh's Cure will give you immediate relief. Price 10 cents 50 cts. and $1.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY—a positive cure for Catarrh, Diptheria, and Canker Mouth. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

Land for Sale.

I offer for sale the south half of the south-east quarter of section seventeen, (17) in Township Thirty-three (33) North, of Range Eight (8) West, known as the "Wetzel place" in Marion. Apply to
THOMAS WEST,
1267 457 Lafayette St., Grand Rapids

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter.

W. H. FRANCIS
FURNITURE
—AND—
JOBBING SHOP,
Will also do
Contracting & Building,
In Charlevoix, and Summer Resorts.

I keep in my shop a full set of hand and foot power machinery which enables me to do jobbing, repairing etc. on short notice.

Shop on South Terrace,
Opposite Sheriff Benton's residence.

MILLINERY,
FANCY GOODS,
DRESS-MAKING.

We have just opened a large line of Spring and Summer Millinery and Fancy Goods to which we invite your attention.

DRESS-MAKING done on the TAILOR SYSTEM. The best work done at the lowest rates.

ALDRICH SISTERS.
Ingleside Building.

MERCHANT
TAILORING.

I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.

Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.

Call and see me, Satisfaction Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,

C. H. Maddaugh.

CHARLEVOIX
Manufacturing Co.
Charlevoix, Mich.,
Manufactureres of
Sash and Doors,
Blinds, Mouldings etc.
NEWELL
Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails
kept in stock.
Window & Door Frames made to order.
All Kinds of
Building Material
Kept constantly on hand.
PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS,
Furnished on application.
Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building
Correspondence solicited.

"MARVELOUS PRICES!
BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away. The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, and all are printed from good type upon good paper. They treat of a great variety of subjects, and we think no one can examine the list without finding therein many that he would like to possess. In cloth bound form these books would cost $1.00 each. Each book is complete in itself.

1. The Widow Bedott Papers. This is the book over which your grandmothers laughed till they cried, and it is just as funny to-day as it ever was.
2. Winter Evening Recreations, a large collection of Acting Charades, Tableaux, Games, Puzzles, etc., for social gatherings, private theatricals, and evenings at home.
3. Back to the Old Home. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Hidden Perils."
4. Dialogues, Recitations and Readings, a large and choice collection for school exhibitions and public and private entertainments.
5. The Standard Letter Writer for Ladies and Gentlemen, a complete guide to correspondence, giving plain directions for the composition of letters of every kind, with innumerable forms and examples.
6. The Frozen Deep. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
7. Red Court Farm. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne," etc.
8. The Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott. "The Lady of the Lake" is a romance in verse, and of all the works of Scott, none is more beautiful than this.
9. In Cupid's Net. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
10. Amos Barton. A Novel. By George Eliot, author of "Adam Bede," "The Mill on the Floss," etc.
11. Lady Gwendoline's Dream. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
12. The Mystery of the Holly Tree. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
13. The Budget of Wit, Humor and Fun, a large collection of the funny stories, sketches, anecdotes, poems, and jokes
14. John Bowerbank's Wife. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
15. The Gray Woman. A Novel. By Mrs. Gaskell, author of "Mary Barton," etc.
16. Sixteen Complete Stories by Popular Authors, embracing love, humorous and detective stories, stories of society life, of adventure, of railway life, etc., all very interesting.
17. Jasper Dane's Secret. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Aurora Floyd," etc.
18. Fancy Work for Home Adornment, an entirely new work upon this subject, containing easy and practical instructions for making fancy baskets, wall pockets, brackets, needle work, embroidery, etc., etc., profusely and elegantly illustrated.
19. Grimm's Fairy Stories for the Young. The finest collection of fairy stories published. The children are delighted with them.
20. Manual of Etiquette for Ladies and Gentlemen, a guide to politeness and good breeding, giving the rules of modern etiquette for all occasions.
21. Useful Knowledge for the Million, a handy book of useful information for all, upon many and various subjects.
22. The Home Cook Book and Family Physician, containing hundreds of excellent cooking recipes and hints to housekeepers, also telling how to cure all common ailments by simple home remedies.
23. Manners and Customs in Far Away Lands, a very interesting and instructive book of travels, describing the peculiar life, habits, manners and customs of the people of foreign countries.
24. 87 Popular Ballads. Same size as sheet music. Words of all the old and new songs.
25. Called Back. A Novel. By Hugh Conway
26. At the World's Mercy. A Novel. By Florence Warden, author of "The House on the Marsh," etc.
27. Mildred Trevanion. A Novel. By "The Duchess," author of "Molly Bawn," etc.
28. Dark Days. A Novel. By the author of "Called Back."
29. Shadows on the Snow. A Novel. By B. L. Farjeon, author of "Bread and Cheese-and-Kisses," etc.
30. Leoline. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Brenda Yorke."
31. Gabriel's Marriage. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "No Name," etc.
32. Reaping the Whirlwind. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Old Middleton's Money," etc.
33. Dudley Carleon. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Lady Audley's Secret," etc.
34. A Golden Dawn. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
35. Valerie's Fate. A Novel. By Mrs. Alexander, author of "The Wooing O't," etc.
36. Sister Rose. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
37. Anne. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne."
38. The Laurel Bush. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
39. Robinson Crusoe. A thrilling narrative by Daniel De Foe, describing the adventures of a castaway in the South Pacific Ocean.
40. How to Make Poultry Pay. A practical and instructive series of articles by Mr. P. H. Jacobs, Poultry Editor of "The Farm and Garden," Phila.; illustrated.
41. Parlor Magic and Chemical Experiments, a book which tells how to perform hundreds of amusing tricks in magic and instructive experiments with simple agents.
42. Gems of the Poets, containing charming selections from Tennyson, Longfellow, Whittier, Byron, Shelley, Moore, Bryant, and many others.
43. Building Plans for Practical, Low-cost Houses. A full description and plans of Eight modern houses, ranging in price from $500 to $4500. Illustrated.
44. Anecdotes of Public Men—Washington, Franklin, Webster, Clay, Tilden, Lincoln, Scott, Grant, Garfield, Gladstone, Butler, Hancock, Lee, and all the leading men of the century.
45. Æsop's Fables. The work of an ancient genius. Children have read them for centuries, and grown people quote them every day.

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.

We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $2.00; or we will send any five for 25 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of "SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

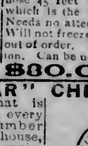
GRENADES.
Two Sizes—Pints and Quarts.
Over Sixty Millions Sold.
PRICES.
Pints. - Per Doz., $10.00.
Quarts. - " " 15.00.

"STAR"
Tubular Fire Extinguisher.
Glass Tube, 19x2½ in. Holds 1 quart.
In this device we combine the BEST QUALITIES of our famous Grenades with the NEW feature of having an article that can be used by Sprinkling. It is designed especially for use in Passenger Coaches and Dwellings. It is elegant in ornamentation. It is cheap and reliable. No rust; no corrosion possible.
Plain, $12.00 per doz.
Ornamt'd, 15.00 per doz.



The "Star" EXTINGUISHER
Holds 5 gallons, and will force a stream through 6 feet of hose 45 feet with our pump, which is the best ever made. Needs no attention until used. Will not freeze, explode or get out of order. No rust or corrosion. Can be used by anyone.
Price, $80.00 Each.

"STAR" CHEMICAL.

Just what is needed in every village, lumber yard, warehouse, etc. Fully equipped with Hose, Ax, Crow Bar, Lantern, etc. It is cheap, and reliable. Wt 450 lbs.
PRICE.
$200.00 EACH.

Four years of practical use have demonstrated these to be the only reliable and thoroughly efficient Hand Fire appliances made. We use the same chemical liquid in all, and guarantee fully. Liberal discounts to agents. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The HARDEN HAND GRENADE CO.
51 & 53 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Take The Sentinel.

SOMETHING NEW.
WORLD RENOWNED,
CENTRE DRAFT PLOW

The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are, that it
1st. NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d. TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.
The Beam is not bolted to the landside, but—by means of a steel frog—is set directly in the Centre of the Line of Draft, making a steady light running plow and one that cannot be Clogged. See one before you buy.
If your Agent has none, write us for price.
J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS,
RACINE, Wis.

PAINTS!

STOVES, HARDWARE, TINWARE, FISHING TACKLE, NOTIONS, ETC., ETC.
THE BEST FORCE PUMPS,
FARMING IMPLEMENS.

JOB AND TIN WORK.

L. D. Bartholomew & Co.

JOB AND TIN WORK.

DRUGS and STATIONERY,
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

A Large and Complete New Line
JUST RECEIVED.
EVERYTHING
YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

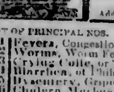
The only News stand in town.

M. S. MOULTON,
WATCHMAKER & JEWELER,
Charlevoix, Mich.

Personal Attention given to Watch Repairing.
Key-wind Movements changed to Stem-wind and warranted as good as the best.
JEWELRY Repairing done in the best manner.
Having had 30 years experience I am confident I can give the best of satisfaction

Pan-Zama Balm
THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES
The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Trouble to which womankind is heir—$1 per box of one month's treatment. Reliable Lady Agents can make money for themselves and become benefactors to their race by engaging in the sale of this remedy. For medicine and particulars, Address
PAN-ZAMA MED. CO.,
Frankfort, Ind.

HUMPHREYS'



DR. HUMPHREYS' BOOK
Cloth & Cold Binding
144 Pages, with Steel Engraving,
MAILED FREE.
Address, P. O. Box 1810, N. Y.

LIST OF PRINCIPAL NOS.	CURES	PRICE.
1	Fevers, Congestion, Inflammations	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Crying Colic, or Teething of Infants	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
5	Dysentery, Griping, Bilious Colic	.25
6	Cholera Morbus, Vomiting	.25
7	Coughs, Cold, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache	.25
9	Headaches, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25

HOMEOPATHIC

10	Dyspepsia, Bilious Stomach	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Cough, Difficult Breathing	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Fever and Ague, Chills, Malaria	.50
17	Piles, Blind or Bleeding	.50
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.50
20	Whooping Cough, Violent Coughs	.50
24	General Debility, Physical Weakness	.50
27	Kidney Disease	.50
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.50
32	Diseases of the Heart, Palpitation	1.00

SPECIFICS.

Sold by Druggists, or sent postpaid on receipt of price.—HUMPHREYS' MEDICINE CO. 109 Fulton St. N. Y.

CURES
Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, Whooping Cough, Quinzy, Sore Throat, Consumption, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Diseases.

YOUNG'S COUGH SYRUP

Dansville, Mich., Aug 15, 1874.—I was attacked with a severe cold and threatened with lung fever while on a visit to Hudson, Mich., about a month ago, so much so that I was unable to fill an appointment to preach on account of my severe coughing, but managed to get home, and immediately took some of Dr. E. A. Young's Cough & Lung Syrup (had in the house), and my cough left me as soon as I commenced taking it, and I found permanent relief when I am attacked by cough or lung complaint.
REV. ROBT. COPE.

Howell, Mich., Oct. 28, 1871.—I have tried Dr. E. A. Young's Cough and Lung Syrup for more than a year, as I had occasion, as a remedy for Colds and Coughs, and found it a reliable medicine. I have used his Ague and Liver Syrup in my family with the best of success, curing my mother (whose age was over seventy years) of one of the hardest attacks of Fever and Ague, after the second chill and fever. I take pleasure in recommending the above remedies to all who need them.
REV. S. B. FENNELL.

Sold by all druggists. Price, 25c., 50c. and $1.00. Large bottles sent free on receipt of price.
W. JOHNSTON & CO.,
DETROIT, MICHIGAN

FRANK E. WOODS
Bath & Barber Rooms
Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd fellows Block.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS.
Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.
If you want a quiet place to get a shave, hair dress or bath call and see me
JAY L. PRICE.

NEW SHOP!
All kinds of Blacksmithing,
At the
Shop in the Foundry Building.
Horseshoeing a specialty.
ALL WORK GUARANTEED.
M. SCOTT.

WANTED!
Potatoes, Onions, Apples, Peaches and Blueberries.
We have an old established trade and can place stock to best advantage. Consignments solicited. Correspondence invited from shippers. Stencil and shipping tags furnished.
W. H. THOMPSON & CO.
Commission Merchants,
No. 166 South Water St.
CHICAGO, - - Ill.
Reference: Fobsenthal, Gross & Miller, Bankers, Chicago, Ill. 2m

JAS. A. GELLICK,
Dealer in
Choice Wines,
Fine Liquors
EXCELLENT CIGARS.
We call Special Attention to our
Old Kentucky Sour Mash WHISKIES.
We also keep continually on draught
Milwaukee Export and lager Beer.
Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

THE NEWS.

Intelligence Gathered In by Wire from Every Quarter of the Nation.

Also a Few News Sandwiches from Lands Beyond the Broad Ocean.

LATEST DISPATCHES.

THE PACIFIC ROBBERY.

Lloyd Tevis Tells How Wells, Fargo & Co. Got Exclusive Express Business.

LLOYD TEVIS, President of the Wells-Fargo Express Company, testified before the Pacific Commission, at San Francisco, that by the terms of the consolidation of the express companies the Central Pacific Company received no consideration, but one-third of the Wells Fargo stock was transferred to Stanford, H. D. Bacon, Charles Crocker, Hopkins, Huntington and himself. Tevis also stated that since the consolidation the Wells Fargo company had the exclusive express business over the Central Pacific. Tevis admitted that he was asked to take stock in the Central Pacific and in the Contract and Finance Company, but declined. "Why did you not accept?" was asked. "I looked at it from a business point of view," said he, "because I thought it would lead to embarrassments, and further, I was apprehensive that if the road did not go through I would be liable to my pro rata for debts."

MOB LAW.

A Tramp Summarily Dealt With by Exasperated Iowans.

JAMES REYNOLDS, a tramp who assaulted a woman near Leon, Iowa, was pursued by a party of armed men for two days. He was captured near Decatur City and lynched, after confessing the crime. Miss Conger was met by a tramp, who made insulting proposals, at the same time drawing a revolver. The frightened girl started to run, but was knocked insensible by the tramp, and assaulted. A mob of 100 men ...

first, that the jury would not be long in arriving at a conclusion, but as the hours drew on and 8 o'clock was reached and still no verdict, people began to think that there would be a long siege and the jurors would have some difficulty in making up their minds. The officers were just beginning to prepare for an all-night session when Chief Bailiff Cahill ran into Judge Jamieson's private room and shouted: "You'll all have to get out of here. Make room for the jury." In a moment every seat in the court-room was occupied. Judge Jamieson ascended the bench, the defendants came in slowly and occupied their seats one after the other, and finally the jury was led to its seats, Foreman A. I. Brown preceding his colleagues with a scroll of paper in his hand. Judge Jamieson turned to the jury: "Gentlemen, have you agreed upon a verdict?" "We have, your Honor," replied Mr. A. I. Brown. Chief Bailiff Cahill took the verdict from Mr. Brown's hands and handed it to the Clerk. "Read the verdict, Mr. Clerk," ordered the Judge. And amid breathless silence Clerk Lee read in a voice that it required all his will power to make audible: "We, the jury, find the defendants Adam Geils, Michael R. Leyden, James J. McCarthy, Daniel J. Wren, John E. Van Pelt, Michael Wasserman, Harry A. Varnell, Richard M. Oliver, Christian Casselman, Christian Geils, Richard S. McClaughry, guilty of conspiracy as charged in the indictment, and fix the penalty: Richard S. McClaughry, at two years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. Adam Geils, at two years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. Michael R. Leyden, at two years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. Harry A. Varnell, at two years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. John E. Van Pelt at two years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. Daniel J. Wren at two years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. Michael Wasserman at two years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. James J. McCarthy at a fine of $1,000. Richard M. Oliver at a fine of $1,000. Christian Casselman at a fine of $1,000. Christian Geils at a fine of $1,000."

A SMALL excursion steamer having a party of locomotive engineers on board capsized in Lake Manawa, near Council Bluffs, Iowa. Five bodies have been recovered, but it is believed that two or three others also perished.

A MILWAUKEE dispatch gives particulars of a distressing accident at the launching of the huge steamer Wm. H. Wolf, at Wolf & Davidson's ship-yard, in that city, by which three persons were killed outright, several fatally injured, about twenty badly hurt, and a large number of others less seriously injured.

About one thousand people had gathered to witness the launch. The docks were lined, vessels were crowded, and every scow and lumber-pile was black with spectators. Directly opposite the cradled vessel was the large coal dock of the Northwestern Fuel Company. It is a roofed dock, with huge derricks for unloading coal. Upon the roof of this coal-shed a large number of people had assembled. The view from that point was a fine one, as the vessel moved directly toward the dock. As the Wolf struck the water her port bulge was buried deeply in the black water of the slip, then she recovered and rolled heavily to port. The water displaced by her hull rose like a tidal wave and swept over the coal dock and up toward its roof, causing a cloud of coal dust and spray. The supports of the dock were insufficient to withstand the force of the wave, and about forty feet of the shed went down with its living freight. Instantly the shed went down there was wild excitement on the deck of the steamer. A scene of indescribable ...

[illegible]

NO CLEVELAND IN HIS.

A Hoosier Democratic Editor "Tells the Truth" About the Administration.

The feature of the recent Indiana Democratic Editorial Association's meeting was the speech of W. S. Ray, of the Shelbyville Democrat, who criticised the administration unreservedly, and showed how weak a card Cleveland would be in 1888. Here are some extracts from his breezy address, which had for its title "Tell the Truth:"

"As between Mr. Cleveland and a Democrat contesting for the nomination, I want to record my preference for the Democrat. Since inauguration day the great heart of the Democratic party has throbbed with quick and feverish pulsations. Its restless eye has been turned toward the nation's capital eager to realize the fruition of its grandest hopes. Day after day it has scanned the public prints in search of proofs that a Democratic President had not forgotten his obligation to those who had elevated him to power, eminence, and fame, but hardly a kind word, a nod of recognition, a friendly smile, a pleasant howd'ye do, a Democratic idea, a word spoken, a line written, or an act done have they heard or seen to cheer them to renewed action in the political con- ...

[illegible]

Department Commander Burke, who is a Democrat, but it had no effect. It is understood that the Senate Committee on Printing will institute a thorough investigation of Printer Benedict's methods and action in regard to employes. Such an inquiry will expose indignities and cruelties which will be sure to excite public indignation, and will reveal a system of petty tyranny as contemptible as ever existed in any branch of the public service. But, in the meantime, Benedict can execute his own will and cause great distress among needy and deserving persons who are in every respect competent to do the work of which he has deprived them.—Washington dispatch.

ANYTHING TO GET VOTES.

President Cleveland Trading with the Spoilsmen—Concessions to the Maryland "Gang."

[Washington special to Chicago Tribune.]

The Democratic spoilsmen are gleeful over the way Mr. Cleveland is coming around to Jacksonian notions. They think there is something like a mad chase after a second term which will not leave much room hereafter for any disappointed interests to indulge in a mad clamor. The time when the Massachusetts Mugwumps sat on the box and drove the administration is past. "Seven-Mule" Barnum and Senator Gorman now hold that place, and when they crack the whip the President strikes a real Jacksonian gait. ...

[illegible]

CLEVELAND'S VETOES.

[illegible]

Printer Benedict's Petty Tyranny.

[illegible]

PARCHED FIELDS.

The Corn, Hay and Oat Crops of Illinois and Indiana Badly Scorched.

Pastures in Several States Dry Enough to Burn and Daily Taking Fire.

[Chicago telegram.]

The Times of this city gives reports from various points in the Western States showing the condition of the crops, which is thus summarized:

The drought has been uncommonly severe in most of the territory covered by these advices, and the sum of the information obtained is not favorable. While some States have escaped with little loss, others have suffered very seriously. In Illinois the "dry spell" has been especially disastrous. The yield of hay has been light, the crop of oats is considered below the average, while the prospects for corn are decidedly discouraging. From present advices it is reasonable to state that about half the usual yield will be obtained. Many counties report prospects for considerably less than half a crop, while only a very few especially favored localities report an average. About 50 per cent. of the usual yield would seem to be indicated by the advices from the State. In the great corn center in the middle of the State many of the farmers are cutting up the stalks for fodder, believing that rains, if they come at all, will come too late to do any good.

In Indiana, also, the drought has done much damage. Rain has not fallen in many places for more than four weeks, and the recent showers have been of little benefit. In some localities the corn crop is a total failure, and in no portion of the State is the ordinary yield expected. From one-third to one-fourth of a crop is the tenor of the reports from this State. Hay is but a poor crop, and oats are short of the usual pro- ...

[illegible]

OHIO.

Foraker and Powell, the Rival Candidates for Governor of the Buckeye State.

J. B. Foraker, the Republican Standard-Bearer.

[illegible]

Thos. E. Powell, the Nominee of the Democracy.

[illegible]

FORESTRY.

[illegible]

THE GREEN DIAMOND.

Detroit and Chicago Running a Neck-and-Neck Race for the Base-Ball Championship.

New York and Boston Close at Their Heels—Notes of the National Game.

[CHICAGO CORRESPONDENCE.]

The present week is the sixteenth week of the League pennant race, and with remarkable tenacity and determination the four clubs which took the four leading positions in the race are hanging on to first, second, third, and fourth positions respectively, with only a streak of daylight between themselves and their nearest neighbors. It is certainly a remarkable struggle, and, barring the collapse of some one or more of the big teams, promises to result in a remarkable finish. Chicago and Detroit still continue at the top of the string, and Detroit is playing better ball than she was playing two weeks ago, but that the champions will ultimately beat the Wolverines out in the race seems to be the firm conviction of lovers of the game hereabout. That the two clubs will go East abreast is almost certain. By playing steady ball the Chicagos will hold their own until the latter part of the present week, when the Detroits will come here for a series of three games. It will then be an easy matter to whittle down the small lead now held by ...

[illegible]

ARMY ANECDOTES.

Bold Boys of Both Belligerents Tell of Battles, Bullets, Bayonets, and Boiled Beans.

Soldiers and Sailors' Stirring Stories of Solid Shot and Screaming Shells.

Missing.

BY MRS. [illegible]

When morning wakes to all its glory
And earth is filled with golden light,
The heart wakes to its sad old story—
More sad when all the world is bright.

And we ask is the same sun shining
Where our lost soldier's grave was made,
And are the flowers and vines entwining
The spot where the unknown one was laid?

[illegible]

looked familiar. I ought to have remembered that you were married somewhere down here."

He promptly availed himself of the privilege that belongs to cousins, the world over—he kissed her. A good many years after she told him that when he had done that she no longer had any doubt about his being her cousin.

He wished to have a long talk with her, but she stopped him. She brought him his musket and bade him get away with all possible speed.

"I hope to see you again and talk over old times," she said, "if this dreadful war don't use us all up; but if you don't want to go straight to Richmond, you'd better hurry along after your people. General Early will be following close along; it's time for his scouts to reach here now. My husband is one of them, but I don't believe he could save you. Maybe I'm not doing just right to warn you. I'm a good deal of a rebel myself, you must know."

She smiled. Shaw looked very doleful.

[illegible]

gan to tell upon the horses in both commands. Especially was this the case with the horses ridden by the enemy, as they were not inured to forced marches, made on empty stomachs, as were to some degree our horses.

On reaching Blue River we were much chagrined to discover that the enemy had crossed before us and had fired the bridge, the timbers of which were falling into the stream when the main body of our already depleted force arrived.

At this juncture a Miss W——, whose parents resided in the vicinity, came to our rescue and offered to pilot the General to a ford but a short distance above.

This offer was gladly accepted, and we crossed the stream in the face of a battery placed by the enemy to interrupt our march.

Forcing the passage, we compelled the artillery to vacate their position, and were soon in full chase, sweeping aside small detachments left by the enemy to retard our pursuit of the main force.

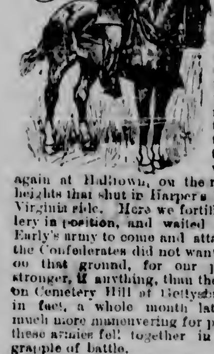
It now became of the most vital importance that we should close with the enemy at the earliest moment, for our command had dwindled down to a mere handful.

The enemy felt the necessity of pressing on, and if possible to gain a few ...

[illegible]

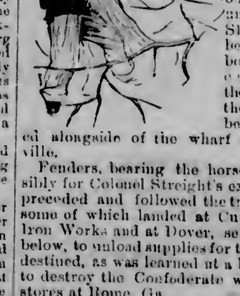
The Soldier's Bible.

BY JAMES FRANKLIN FITTS.



[illegible]

Colonel Streight's Attempt on Rome, Georgia.



[illegible]

Story of a Confederate Flag.

[illegible]

INSURE YOUR LIVES.

Discourse by the Rev. T. De Witt Talmage.

Advice to Those Engaged in the Business of Insurance—He Who Fails to Provide for His Own Household is Worse than an Infidel.

THE HAMPTONS, Aug. 7.—The Rev. T. De Witt Talmage's sermon for to-day was on the important subject of "Life and Fire Insurance: the Christian Principles Involved." His text was: "Let him appoint officers over the land, and take up the fifth part of the land of Egypt in the seven plenteous years." Genesis xli. 34.

These were the words of Joseph, the President of the first life insurance company that the world ever saw. Pharaoh had a dream that distracted him. He thought he stood on the banks of the River Nile, and saw coming up out of the river seven fat, sleek, glossy cows, and they began to browse in the thick grass. Nothing frightful about that. But after them, coming out of the same river, he saw seven cows that were gaunt and starved, and the worst looking cows that had ever been seen in the land, and in the ferocity of hunger they devoured their seven fat predecessors. Pharaoh, the king, sent for Joseph to decipher these midnight hieroglyphics. Joseph made short work of it, and intimated the seven fat cows that came out of the river ...

[illegible]

That is, He provides for them through public charity. As for myself, I would rather have the Lord provide for my family in a private home, and through my own industry, and ... faithfulness. But says some man: "I mean in the next ten or twenty years to make a great fortune, and so I shall leave my family, when I go out of this world, very comfortable." How do you know you are going to live ten or twenty years? If we could look up the highway of the future, we would see it crossed by pneumonias, and pleurisies, and consumptions, and colliding rail trains, and runaway horses, and breaking bridges, and funeral processions. Are you so certain that you are going to live ten or twenty years, you can warrant your household any comfort after you go away from them? Beside that, the vast majority of men die poor! Two only out of a hundred succeed in business. Are you very certain you are going to be one of those two? Rich one day, poor the next. A man in New York got $2,000,000, and the money turned his brain and he died in a lunatic asylum. All his property was left with the business firm, and they swamped it; and then the family of the insane man was left without a dollar. In eighteen months the prosperity, the insanity, the insolvency, and the complete domestic ruin. Beside that, there are men who die solvent, who are insolvent before they get under the ground, or before their estate is settled up. How soon the auctioneer's mallet can knock the life out of an estate. A man thinks the property is worth $15,000; under a forced sale it brings $7,000. ...

by scientific principles orderly companies extinguish the fire, instead of the old-time riots which used to extinguish the citizens! And we are indebted to you for the successful demands you have made for the repeal of unjust laws, for the battle you have waged against incendiarism and arson, for the fatal blow you have given to the theory that corporations have no souls, by the cheerfulness and promptitude with which you have met losses, from which you might have escaped through the technicality of the law. I do not know any class of men in our midst more high toned and worthy of confidence than these men, and yet I have sometimes feared that while your chief business is to calculate about losses on earthly property, you might without sufficient thought go into that which, in regard to your soul, in your own parlance might be called "hazards," "extra hazards," "special hazards." An unforgiven sin in the soul is more inflammable and explosive than camphene or nitroglycerine. However the rates may be—yea, though the whole earth were paid down to you in one solid premium—you cannot afford to lose your soul. Do not take the risk lest it be said hereafter that while in this world you had keen business faculty, when you went out of the world you went out everlastingly insolvent. The scientific Hitchcocks, and Sillimans, and Mitchells of the world have unified with the sacred writers to make us believe that there is coming a conflagration, to sweep across the earth, compared with which that of Chicago, 1871, and that of Boston in 1872, and that of New York in ...

[illegible]

The Horse Not an Intelligent Animal.

[illegible]

How to Remove Ink Stains.

[illegible]

It Wasn't.

[illegible]

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Notes on the Lesson for August 21—"Jesus and the Law."

The lesson for August 21 will be found in the third chapter of Matthew, from the seventeenth to the twenty-sixth verses. Time, in the summer, A. D. 28. Place, Mount of Beatitudes, near the Sea of Galilee.

SPECIAL MENTION.

1. Law and prophets. By the law and the prophets we understand the whole Old Testament, of which the teaching and the life of Christ were the genuine fulfillment. In him were accomplished the types and prophecies of the Old Testament, not only, but an incomplete revelation was made complete, and for the first time the law was honored by a never-failing obedience. As Meyer so well says: "He fulfilled the whole law, not the smallest ceremonial or national ordinance being destroyed in its ultimate idea, while everything that the law enjoined, and of which the ancient ordinances were only the elements, was carried out in its full idea." (Examiner.)

2. Christ and the law. It is important to observe in these days how the Lord here includes the Old Testament and all its unfolding of the divine purposes regarding himself, in his teaching of the citizens of the kingdom of heaven. I say this because it is always in contempt and setting aside of the Old Testament that rationalism has begun. First, its historical ...

[illegible]

NO, OH NO!

"YOU WILL NEVER SELL THEM" IS WHAT SOME FOLKS SAID ON SEEING OUR MAMMOTH STOCK OF BASKETS, OVER 12,000 IN NUMBER. BUT WHERE ARE THEY TO-DAY? Our Cash Drawer answers, SOLD!

The same skepticism prevailed when we opened our magnificent Spring stock of goods, replete in all the Novelties and Styles one could find on city counters or all that city trade could ask for. Where are they to-day? Again our Cash will answer, SOLD!

OUR LADY FRIENDS APPRECIATE JUST SUCH A CLASS OF GOODS AS WE CARRY. THEY APPRECIATE IT BECAUSE WE CARRY SUCH A VARIETY OF NO TWO ALIKE PATTERNS IN DRESS GOODS. WE CARRY THEM BECAUSE WE HAVE THE UNRIVALLED MEANS OF DOING SO, AND ALWAYS WILL. IT TAKES GRIT TO DO IT AND NOW WE ARE PREPARING TO RECEIVE OUR MAMMOTH FALL STOCK ABOUT SEPT. FIRST.

We are in grand shape to show them because we have cleaned nearly out on staple goods.

Our Eastern Buyer is only watching the markets and soon all the latest novelties will be received by the importers. Do not be induced to buy too early as it is a fact undisputed by anyone familiar with the laws of trade that the market days of retail buyers commence about Sep. 1st.

REMEMBER Friends, that we are watching the markets and study your every want, and we'll soon convince you of this. A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

BASE BALL.

Charlevoix Gains a Victory over Petoskey, and Loses Two Games.

The Charlevoix team went north last week, playing at Petoskey against that club on Wednesday, scoring a victory.

Charlevoix presented Jahn 3b., Grogan 2d., Gage c., Gish ss., Klock 1b., Bradley rf., Kraft cf., Haskens p. and Burnette lf. The score by innings was as follows:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Charlevoix	1	1	2	2	6	0	4	3	*	—19
Petoskey	0	1	0	2	1	0	1	2	0	—7

Base hits—Charlevoix, 18; Petoskey, 8.

Thursday and Friday they played at Cheboygan, against that club. In the meantime Cheboygan had "laid for" our boys, by securing Detroit and Big Rapids players, and this in addition so the fact that Burnett was disabled and other players sick, resulted in a Waterloo for Charlevoix on Friday. The scores as follows:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Charlevoix	0	2	2	2	6	0	1	1	*	—14
Cheboygan	0	0	0	0	0	1	2	1	0	—4
Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Charlevoix	1	1	1	0	0	5	1	1	1	—9
Cheboygan	1	0	4	0	0	0	0	1	*	—14

Returning the Charlevoix team played Petoskey Saturday and were defeated again as follows:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Charlevoix	0	0	1	0	3	1	2	*	*	—7
Petoskey	0	1	5	2	4	7	2	*	*	—21

The latter results were due to adverse circumstances. The boys however will redeem themselves later.

Base ball has become the great American game. It is a manly and healthful sport, both for performer and auditor. The rivalry created between towns is an honorable one, and we see nothing in it that is not commendable. But there is a feature of the games between these northern clubs that should be frowned upon by the managers, and that is the gambling. We grant that the clubs are not to blame for it, but they should adopt the same rules regarding it that the league clubs do,—forbid any betting on their grounds. Under the rules of the national league, any person detected in betting is expelled from the grounds. There are many people who delight in the game, that will not patronize it if gambling is countenanced. We know the Charlevoix managers do not approve of it, and we should be glad to see them, together with the other two clubs of the new northern league put themselves on record against it.

Last weeks Kalkaska Leader flies back at the Charlevoix papers for telling the truth concerning the recent base ball game here in which their club and their umpire walked over our boys. There is a feature of the base ball situation that bears us out in our assertions, and that is that the Kalkaska club is blacklisted among northern clubs. Neither Charlevoix, Petoskey nor Cheboygan will play them on any grounds. Their conduct has justly outlawed them. The Leader's assertion that they were offered fifty dollars for the game is a falsehood, and a very foolish one. Gamblers may have made the proposition, but no member of the organization did. With an honest man for an umpire Charlevoix can defeat Kalkaska three games out of five, if not better.

The recent defeat of the Charlevoix club by the Petoskeys, at Dixon park, gave rise to some lively criticism on the streets, in which it was charged that for certain reasons the game was thrown. When it is known the effect of such an act reacts on the club doing it, its falsity becomes apparent. No professional dare indulge in that sort of a joke, as the penalty is the "blacklist" which debars him forever from playing in a league. The defeat was due to circumstances which attach to the best clubs occasionally, and are inavoidable. The fact still exists that Charlevoix has the best team in northern Michigan.

YESTERDAY'S GAME.

Petoskey played Charlevoix at Dixon Park, yesterday afternoon. Charlevoix was victorious by the following figures:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Petoskey	0	0	1	1	0	1	0	*	*	—3
Charlevoix	0	1	3	0	2	1	0	*	*	—7

Base hits—Charlevoix, 12; Petoskey, 0. Struck out—Charlevoix, 13; Petoskey, 5.
Batteries—Hoskins and Gage, Marker and Booth.

Only seven innings were counted. Charlevoix made 5 runs on the first half of the 8th innings, when Petoskey got enough and quit.

Ironton.

Miss Mary Friel a well known and popular young lady, who has lived here for four years, died in Detroit, Aug. 8, at the home of her grandparents where she had been taken with a hope of being cured. Mary was an only child, and the friends of her parents extend their hearty sympathy in this deep affliction. Her illness lasted about six months.

A SAD SEQUEL.

The Sorrowing Parents of Tom Burke, a Champlain Victim, in Charlevoix.

On Friday, a well dressed gentleman, wearing a broad band of crape around his hat, entered the SENTINEL office, and announced himself as Patrick Burke, residence at Elgin, Ill., and car inspector at Milwaukee for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad. He said: "I am the father of Tom Burke, whom you good people here knew as Jack Hartley, 2d cook on the propeller Champlain, and whom you so kindly gave a Christian burial. I cannot find words to express our thanks for your kindness." —and the bereaved father choked up with suppressed feeling.

Continuing, he explained that his son went sailing contrary to the wishes of his parents, and, that they might not discover the fact, he shipped under the name of Jack Hartley. On June 15th they received a letter from him, dated Frankfort, June 12th, stating that he was playing ball. On the 17th the disaster occurred, and not until two weeks ago did he know that Jack Hartley, who was lost, and buried in the Potter's field at Charlevoix, was their loved son, Tom Burke.

So long time elapsing without hearing from him, inquiry was instituted, and circumstances threw him into the company of some of the officers of the Champlain at Milwaukee, to whom he showed his son's picture. They at once recognized the features as those of "Hartley," and the terrible truth became known to him.

He and his wife at once took the Lawrence for Charlevoix, where they arrived Friday morning. They disinterred the body, enclosed it in a sealed case, and took it home with them Sunday.

We clip the following concerning young Burke, from the Elgin Daily News: "It has just been learned that Tom Burke, whose whereabouts have for some time been unknown to his distracted parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Burke, was drowned at the burning of the steamer Champlain on Lake Michigan. Tom, it is said, went down while trying to save the lives of a couple of children. This was perhaps two months ago—we have forgotten the date. Tom was second cook on the boat. He was quite well known here, although Elgin was not his abiding place. He was a strapping young man of 22 or thereabouts, straight as a sapling, and an expert with the boxing gloves. His admirers in Elgin used to be proud of telling of his prowess. His parents, not hearing from him, concluded he must have gone down, but the certainty of his sad fate nearly broke their hearts. A picture of him was sent to them by one of the survivors, so that identification was complete."

Death of Hugh Miller.

On Saturday, the 20th, at 3 o'clock p. m., at his residence in Charlevoix township, Hugh Miller departed this life. Another old settler has gone to his rest.

Hugh Miller was born March 3d, 1820, in Ballawalter, County Down, Ireland. He came with his parents to America in 1824, and spent the years of his youth and early manhood in the town of Oswegatchie, St. Lawrence county, N. Y. In the spring of 1858 he removed with his family to the Pine Lake region, when it was but a wilderness, but few white settlers preceeding him. Of his family, four daughters and his wife preceded him across the dark river, while one daughter and two sons yet remain. Of his father's family, an aged stepmother, three brothers and one sister survive him.

He was never connected with any church organization, for the reason that he was a firm believer in the "Fatherhood of God, and the Brotherhood of Man," and the final happiness of all mankind.

His integrity never was questioned, and "Uncle Hugh" was respected by all who knew him. In an acquaintance with him of nearly nineteen years, we never heard an evil word spoken of him.

His funeral occurred at the family residence on Sunday afternoon, and was largely attended. Rev. W. H. McCartney officiating.

Notice.

For certain reasons I am compelled to make the following announcement: All persons having business to transact with me as County Clerk will find me, or a deputy, ready and willing to wait upon them from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m., if they so desire. It is what I am here for.

S. B. THATCHER, Co. Clerk.

Horse for Sale.

A six year old gray mare, weight 1,200 pounds; good, sound, kind and gentle. A good work horse, and a perfect horse for ladies' driving. Inquire at this office.

ONCE MORE TO THE FRONT!

WITH AN ENTIRELY New STOCK OF DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS,

Which I have just purchased for CASH, getting the lowest prices best discounts.

And I propose to give my Customers the benefit of all bargains.

No shelf-worn or old goods for you to select from. I hereby extend an invitation to all my friends and old customers to call and examine my goods and get prices.

Cor. Bridge & Main sts.

VERY RESP'Y,
B. SEE.

POSITIVELY THE FINEST LINE OF CLOTHING

AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS YOU EVER SAW IN CHARLEVOIX,

JUST RECEIVED FOR SUMMER WEAR.

Prices are unusually low this Spring and if you need anything in my line, just step in.

Now is a Grand Time To Obtain Bargains.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Marine Jottings.

The propeller Dewar was here Sunday with an excursion from Frankfort and Manistee.

The steamer Gazelle is running on a route between Mackinaw and the Snow Islands, and is said to be coining money.

The steamers Faxton and Grand Rapids had a trial of speed in the straits the other day, and the broom was awarded to the former.

S. S. Burke, manager of the Northern Michigan Line, was here Monday. He informs us that work is progressing on the propeller Champlain. She will be 38 feet longer on deck, and four feet wider, besides being deeper. Her carrying capacity will be more than double that of the old boat. Mr. Burke will not state what the new boat's name will be.

Norwood Notes.

The schooner M. L. Collins, took the last of Guyles & Nash's hardwood lumber on Saturday.

Richard Supernon, while at work in the saw mill, had his hand drawn into a friction pully and badly hurt, but no bones were broken, and is now doing well.

The social given by the young ladies on Friday evening last was a decided success, socially and financially. The net receipts were 32 dollars and 5 cents.

The presiding elder failed to put in his appearance at quarterly meeting on Saturday, and on Sunday morning the pastor was taken suddenly ill, so the whole thing would have proved a failure if Mr. Ellis, the local preacher from Bay View, had not come to the rescue, and though the notice was short, in the opinion of many, did as well as the Elder would. At the conclusion of service two collections were taken, one for the Elder, the other for the pastor. The collection for the Elder was $2.05, that for Mr. Whitman $6.19.

Religious.

Episcopal Church.

The church people at Charlevoix have secured eligible lots for a church edifice, on which they have paid nearly enough to release one of the lots so as to erect a church thereon. Services have been held at intervals for two or three years, by the Bishop, the general missionary, and other clergymen. These services have been principally in the summer. There has been a number of baptisms, infant and adult, and lately I confirmed 14, nearly all adults. The work has reached a stage where the erection of a chapel is necessary for its continuance and success. The diocese is so missionary in its character, that we can afford but slight aid in church erection. I have requested Mr. W. P. Brown, who has been very zealous in the work of the mission, to place the matter before members of the church, who, visiting here in the summer, receive the benefit of the services, and to any others interested in the work of the church.

I shall be personally grateful for any aid. GEO. D. GILLESPIE,
Bishop of Western Michigan.

New Fall Dry Goods

NOW ARRIVING.

We were never before in such good condition to offer BARGAINS. Our stock is CLEAN, FRESH, and being Constantly Replenished.

We offer the choicest and most complete stock of GROCERIES!

and our PRICES are LOWEST For BEST GOODS.

Our stock of CROCKERY is being overhauled. Special drives in WHITE GRANITE EARTHENWARE, This Week.

J. L. HURD & CO.

BARGAINS!

In the largest stock of NEW GOODS ever before received in Charlevoix.

FOR THE PUBLIC BENEFIT

We have purchased our stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS a week or so earlier than usual. While other stores are advertising Clearance Sales of their old stock we are advertising Bargains in an unusually elegant stock of Dry Goods, Carpets & Clothing.

Our Stock is HERE,

AND AWAITING YOUR INSPECTION. WE ARE PROUD TO SAY TO THE LADIES THAT WE HAVE AS FINE A LINE OF DRESS GOODS AS CAN BE FOUND IN ANY CITY.

FALL AND WINTER SUITS FOR MEN, YOUTHS & CHILDREN,

of all the latest styles.

In Ladies Furnishings & Bazaar Goods we have a long list of Bargains.

Before purchasing elsewhere, give our store a call,

ALICK ROSENTHAL,
LEWIS BLOCK.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XIX. NO.—18 CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 31, 1887. WHOLE NO. 927

NEW Drugs, Stationery, NEW Confections, Cigars,

F. G. HINES & CO.
Druggists.

EMREY BROS.

Boots and Shoes for almost nothing, to close out.

We have a number of pairs of Boots and Shoes which we will almost give away as we are closing them out.

We are also going out of

CROCKERY

and have a complete assortment which must be sold

WE WILL NOT TAKE A BACK SEAT ON

SUMMER DRY GOODS,

PRICES ALWAYS LOW.

IN GROCERIES and Provisions we can suit you, as we receive Fresh Goods weekly.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

DON'T

BUY FALL GOODS TILL YOU SEE OURS.

WE Hold our Custom because our Prices are Always Low.

OUR FALL ASSORTMENT OF

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

now being received is the finest we ever offered

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee to suit you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in

FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN

BOOTS and SHOES.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces

EVERYTHING

usually found in a General Store.

Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours.

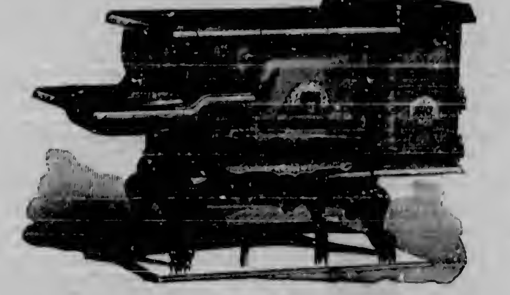
Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

YOU'D BETTER HEAR US!

LISTEN!

We take pleasure in informing you that our stock which you know is always at the head was never in such fine shape for your inspection as at the present time.

REMEMBER YOU SAVE YOUR $ $ $ BY BUYING YOUR HARDWARE, STOVES & IRON OF STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.



HERE we show one of our New stoves. One of the finest Kitchen Stoves ever made. Yes, we can safely say the finest. But we leave you to judge, come and see for yourselves. Make our store your stopping place, you are always welcome, and your welcome does not depend on your buying anything. Price and quality guaranteed on everything.

Resp'y, STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

The Best Groceries At The Lowest Prices

ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF

A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

New Furniture

AT S. M. SEE & SONS!

We have just received an entirely new stock of Furniture of every discription.

Dealing exclusively in Furniture we are confident we can make it an object to all wishing to buy to call and inspect our stock.

UNDERTAKING A Specialty.

J. MILO EATON'S REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE, AND LOAN OFFICE.

The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice

WANTED!

Everyone to know that we are here and doing Business, and will do just as we agree to by one and all. We keep

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS, FLOUR AND FEED, CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

Choice Butter and Fresh Eggs a Specialty. Call on us or order by Telephone.

WILL SEE & CO.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY

SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, - Michigan.

Address all business correspondence to the firm

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year - $1.50 | Six months - $.75
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—Amos Fox is building a handsome iron fence around his new residence.

—E. E. Miller and family, spent Sunday in town with Geo. W. and Lewis Miller.

—Mr. Ford and wife, of Horton's Bay, spent Sabbath in town, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Downer.

—C. H. Maddaugh, the tailor, calls your attention this week to a fine line of tweeds and overcoatings.

—Leslie Giddings, Jas. Beauvais, Ernest Beauvais and Patsey Flanagin are home from the upper peninsula.

—One thousand members of organized labor will participate in the grand street procession on Labor day, Sept. 5.

—F. A. Cochran & Co., the new druggists have a new advertisement this week to which we invite your attention.

—Farmers, mechanics, tradesmen and laborers, don't fail to attend the basket picnic and barbecue, at Charlevoix Sept. 5th.

—E. M. Clark and E. D. Moore caught nine brook trout, the total weight of which was over five pounds, in McGeagh's pond, Monday.

—Mr. Peale, the jolly Kentucky gentleman, is at his old quarters at the Fountain City house, enjoying himself as he always does here.

—Capt. Vanderhoef, of the Thomas Friant, has rented the house of Neil Gallagher at Harbor Springs, and his family will spend the winter there.

—Evart first dropped out of the Northern Michigan league. Big Rapids followed suit, and now Ionia has quit. The latter will keep its club together, but will not finish the schedule.

—Allen P. May of Kalamazoo, a former resident of Charlevoix, was examined Monday on a charge of insanity, at the request of his father. He was arrested for burglary at Jackson last week.

—Judge Dryden of St. Louis, is a welcome guest at the Fountain City House once more. His wife, and son Henry, with Dr. Valle and wife are in Europe. They promise to be on hand next season at Charlevoix however.

—The Legislature of 1887 passed a law compelling highway and corporation authorities to provide gates for draw bridges, to be used when said bridges are open. Charlevoix should attend to this matter, and have a gate put in at the south end of our bridge.

—The Masonic school of instruction held here Friday under the direction of Right Worshipful Grand Lecturer A. M. Clark, was the most successful one ever held in this region. The Lodges represented were Charlevoix, East Jordan, Harbor Springs, Torch Lake and Petoskey. Suttons Bay was expected, but did not appear. The attendance of membership was large.

—A Sunday special to the Grand Rapids Democrat from Cadillac says: Rev. O. A. Downs, pastor of the Congregational church closes his ministry here to-morrow. He will be greatly missed by our people, to all of whom he has endeared himself, regardless of sect. He has been engaged at Charlevoix, but before assuming his new charge he will spend a few weeks at his old home on Long Island, for which place he will leave Tuesday.

—It was announced last week that Perry Weed would soon open another establishment as soon as suitable quarters were secured. Last week arrangements were made whereby L. D. Bartholomew & Co. are to erect a building for his use on the vacant lot adjoining Odd Fellows' building. It will be 17x26 and two stories high. Mr. Weed expects it to be ready for occupancy Sept. 15th. It was begun Monday morning. He will remove his soda fountain thereto, and establish a business embracing books, stationery, confectionery, holiday goods, and a news stand.

—With a few exceptions those who own property along the line of the D. C. & E. railroad, in this county, have cheerfully given the right of way across the same, fully appreciating the benefit to be derived from the road, both by themselves and the people of the county generally. They are, however, a few, who either lack enterprise or public spirit, or conceiving this the opportunity of a lifetime, ask an exorbitant price and expect impossible things for the right of way across their property. There may be cases where a railroad across a man's premises might be not only a nuisance but also a considerable damage to the property, and in such cases he should be well paid for the same; but if a right of way is a direct benefit and enhances the value of his property, he should not attempt to stop the wheels of progress by unreasonable demands and from purely selfish motives.—Kalkaska Leader.

—Mrs. Lewis Miller and Mrs. Geo. W. Miller, went to Traverse City Monday, on their way to Cadillac on a visit.

—E. C. Newton of Batavia, Ill., that genial Prince of Bay Feverites, arrived last Wednesday with his son Harry.

—The base ball boys give a farewell dance at Opera Hall next Monday evening. Turn out and give them a lift.

—Married in Charlevoix by Rev. J. T. Iddings, August 24, Mr. William Koglin, of Chicago, and Miss Lizzie Whitley, of Charlevoix.

—Geo. W. Miller has just received a handsome line of clothing and furnishing goods. Read what he says about it in his new advertisement.

—The fishing tug "Ethel J." owned by Connable & Son of Petoskey, made a haul of 1,700 pounds of fish Monday. One trout weighed over 25 pounds.

—Engineer Beardslee and his corps were in over Sunday. They have one line run to a point within sight of Petoskey, and have begun the survey of another.

—The Charlevoix harbor work is finished for this season, and Inspector Collier has gone to take charge of the construction of a life saving station at Green Bay.

Invitations are out for the marriage in Detroit, next Monday evening, of Mr. Al. T. Washburne, of Charlevoix, and Miss Jennie Matthews, of Detroit.

—A. Rosenthal and wife, of Petoskey, were here over Sunday, the guests of their son Alick and wife, who are snugly ensconced in their pleasant little home on Clinton street.

—Mackinac Island will have a beach drive entirely around the island next year. This fall a sidewalk will be made on the lake shore from the Mission House to Planks Grand.

—The yacht "Jennie J." left Harbor Point Monday morning for a Charlevoix cruise. Fifteen gentlemen from the Point made up the party, which arrived here at noon.

—The village schools will open for the fall term on Monday, Sept. 19th. An examination for the classification of pupils expecting to enter the 5th department, and who were not present at the close of last term, will be held at the High school room on Friday, Sept. 16th, at 9 o'clock a. m.

—Boyne Citizen: The stage route to Boyne Falls in connection with the Clara Belle, is well patronized.—The many friends of Chas. A. Shepard were surprised and sorry to learn on Monday, that his handsome store had been closed on chattle mortgage held by Grand Rapids parties, and that he probably would not resume business. Dull times and too large an incumbrance are assigned as the cause of the failure.

—The concerts given at Opera Hall Friday and Saturday evenings of last week, were the finest entertainments ever given from that stage. Four voices of greater culture are seldom heard than those of Misses Beebee and Goodwin and Messrs. Beebee and Averill. The baritone of Mr. Averill ranks among the best in New York. Mr. Heywood the comedian, was encored four times Saturday evening. His impersonations are what the ladies call "simply killing." But Anna Berger the cornet virtuoso, with a record of triumphs, and a blaze of medals upon her breast, is the greatest lady cornetist in the world, and although she has practically retired as the wife of Leigh Lynch, the Langtry manager, she has forgotten none of her skill and has the same charming stage presence as when she was the star of the Berger Family. Mr. and Mrs. Lynch are captivated with Charlevoix and will come again next summer.

—The Petoskey Record says that it is now evident that next year will witness a remarkable increase in the passenger facilities lake-wise. We are informed from a reliable source that the Detroit and Cleveland Steam Navigation Company will put two boats on between Chicago and Mackinac Island, to run in connection with the City of Alpena and City of Mackinac, each boat to make two round trips a week, touching at Milwaukee, Ludington, Manistee, Charlevoix and Petoskey only. This will give the company a fast passenger line from Chicago to Cleveland, and the Lake Michigan end of the line will, like the Lake Huron and Lake Erie boats, make freight a secondary condition. The new passenger boat now under contract at Manitowoc will make two round trips between Chicago and Little Traverse bay, thus giving us a fast passenger boat from Chicago six days in a week. There is no reason why these boats should not do the same immense business done by the City of Alpena and City of Mackinac, and if so they will add thousands of tourists and resorters to the thousands who come every summer, and give a great impetus to all the resorts that cluster around Little Traverse bay. People now living in Petoskey will sometime see the shores of the bay lined with villas from seven to nine mile point, and forty miles of boulevard, shaded with trees and level as a floor, connecting the resorts and summer homes which line the bluffs. This region is only in the infancy of its development now; and the time will come when a number of railroads and boat lines will be taxed to their full capacity to carry the summer population of northern Michigan to and fro.

Charlevoix Summer Resort Items.

Fifteen rooms at the Belvedere still occupied.

Over 100 boarders linger at the Belvedere.

This week witnesses the exodus of resorters.

E. D. Moore and family returned to Toledo, yesterday.

D. A. Waterman and family returned to Detroit yesterday.

H. B. Wier and wife came last week to remain until October.

Jas. P. Martin, of Hot Springs, Ark., has quarters at the Belvedere.

D. DenBlyker, W. S. Dewing and O. M. Allen, closed their cottages yesterday.

Dr. S. C. Graves, wife and Mrs. T. P. Eddy, of Grand Rapids, are at the Belvedere.

C. N. Holden and W. H. Holden and their families returned to Chicago, yesterday.

David Fisher and wife, well-known Kalamazoo citizens, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stockbridge.

Mrs. D. E. Bradley, who has been the guest of Miss Fannie Allen for the past week, goes with the family for a visit at Kalamazoo.

A prominent member of the Charlevoix Resort association, who is well posted in geology and botany, said to the Resorter yesterday that the geologist and botanist could not find a richer field for research than in the region of Pine Lake, and that already scientists are beginning to realize this fact.—Daily Resorter.

Rev. A. E. Mather, who has been summering at "Solid Comfort" cottage, Charlevoix, has a domestic way of treating the lesser maladies which bother human kind. His services in this direction have been called into play this summer at the Point, and his "patients" yesterday presented him with a handsome reclining chair for the cottage.—Daily Resorter.

Daily Resorter: The steam yacht Thistle, Henry Warring of Chicago owner, arrived at Harbor Springs Saturday with quite a large party of ladies and gentlemen on board. When cleaning the machinery and brass works about supper time, several small but important pieces of the engine were laid on a pail, upon which the cook threw potato parings and then threw them overboard into the lake. Their recovery delayed their departure until Sunday morning, when the yacht steamed away to Charlevoix.

Thursday was the 60th anniversary of the birth of Mrs. Mather, wife of Rev. A. E. Mather, pastor of the Battle Creek Baptist church, and who is now summering at the resort. In the evening about 20 friends disguised by costumes of pillow cases and masks called, and first presenting an original poem which they demanded should be read aloud before they spoke a word. The poem was congratulatory in tone, and stated that the maskers had come prepared for a candy pull which they began at once. The friends were largely those acquired in Detroit during Mr. Mather's pastorship there, and the occasion was very pleasant.

—Henry Aldrich is home from Cadillac.

—Sault Ste. Marie is to have a new $75,000 hotel.

—Traverse City will submit prohibition to her voters.

—M. J. Stockman went to St. Ignace on business, Monday.

—Stockman & Iddings advertise a fine line of stoves in this issue.

—An effort is being made to establish a hospital at Manistee similar to the one located at Big Rapids. The plan is to raise by subscription $50,000, of which $20,000 is to be used for buildings and the balance to constitute a permanent endowment fund. About $25,000 has already been subscribed by the leading lumbermen of Manistee.

—Boyne Citizen: Shay's new steam yacht, the Eva, made her appearance this week, and with her peculiar cabin, and calliope whistle will create a sensation anywhere.—The Clara Belle towed the hull of the old Nellie Booth down here on Thursday. The engine will be removed and will be used in a barge that will be built here this winter.—Dan'l Joles, living in the eastern part of the county, was agent for selling a horse but neglected to make a proper return of the money, and so became a temporary resident of the county building. Objecting to the atmosphere and general surroundings of his quarters (adjoining the county offices) he, on Wednesday, with some little trouble to himself, took his departure, and sought a more secluded spot. His desire for seclusion was so great that he hasn't been discovered as yet, but undersheriff Hurd is on his track and there is no doubt of his ultimate recapture. Joles was not confined in a cell, but was allowed the freedom of the corridor, and during the day the outside door was left open for the better circulation of air, leaving but the straight bars and door which divide the corridor, between him and liberty. These bars he was able to pry apart with a stick of wood and squeeze through the opening. With the outer door shut escape would have been impossible, but during the summer it would be almost cruelty to shut off the free circulation of air. The bars dividing the corridor should be replaced with heavier lattice work, which would avoid a repetition of this escape and make the jail safe.

SECTARIANISM.

Dr. Talmage's Sermon at the Hamptons.

Bigotry and Sectarianism Disgust People with the Christian Religion and Hinder the Triumph of the Gospel—Intolerance Never Put Anything Down.

The Hamptons, August 11.—To-day the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage's sermon is "Concerning the Bigot;" and the text, "Then said they unto him, say now Shibboleth; and he said Sibboleth, for he could not frame to pronounce it right. Then they took him and slew him at the passages of Jordan."—Judges xii, 6.

Do you notice the difference of pronunciation between shibboleth and sibboleth? A very small and unimportant difference, you say. And yet that difference was the difference between life and death for a great many people. The Lord's people, Gilead and Ephraim, got into a great fight, and Ephraim was worsted and on the retreat came to the fords of the river Jordan to cross. Order was given that all Ephraimites coming there be slain. But how could it be found out who were Ephraimites? They were detected by their pronunciation. Shibboleth was a word that stood for river. The Ephraimites had a brogue of their own, and when they tried to say shibboleth always left out the sound of the "h." When it was asked that they say shibboleth they said sibboleth, and were slain. "Then said they unto him, Say now Shibboleth; and he said Sibboleth, for he could not frame to pronounce it right. Then they took him and slew him at the passages of Jordan." A very small difference, you say, between Gilead and Ephraim, and yet how much intolerance about that small difference. The Lord's tribes in our time—by which I mean the different denominations of Christians—sometimes magnify a very small difference, and the only difference between scores of denominations to-day is the difference between shibboleth and sibboleth.

The church of God is divided into a great number of denominations. ...

GOVERNOR FORAKER.

Ohio's Governor on "The Return of the Republican Party to Power."

Excerpts from an Able Article in the August Number of the "Forum."

So far as platform declarations are concerned, all parties agree that the right of suffrage should be maintained inviolate. Nevertheless, the fact is that the Democratic party is in power to-day only because, by the most shameful offenses, it has overthrown this right in many places and States of the South, and, emboldened by its successes there, it has sought to succeed elsewhere by like means, as at Chicago, Indianapolis, Columbus, and Cincinnati. This is said to be an old question ...

... I am prepared to state, as the result of my own observation, that he is better housed, better fed and clothed than his brethren on the continent of Europe. Love the land which God has given you. It is the best on earth."

In the presence of such facts at home, and such testimony from abroad, enough is shown as to the nature of this question (and only that, and not its discussion, is intended) to warrant the assignment of the Republican view with respect to it as another reason for change of political control. If it be said that no harm has come to the policy, or injury, in consequence, to the business of the country, from a Democratic administration, the answer is, that a Republican Senate has made that impossible. Had it not been for this hindrance, Democratic tendencies to free trade would have assumed definite form in legislative enactments, as they have in other respects. The Republican party should be restored to power, therefore, in order that there ...

A Fact and a Theory.

In considering what he shall do in life and whether he shall do anything, it is comparatively seldom that a man considers properly how the question should be influenced by his relations to his friends. He usually takes into the account the material calls they are entitled to make upon him, and he not infrequently gives some thought to their hopes, ambitions, and wishes in his behalf. With the subtler question of how they will be affected by the development of his character, there is not one man in a thousand who concerns himself for a moment.

If friendship and kinship have any claims, however, or indeed if our relations to our fellows should ever be considered, it is certainly not only reasonable but imperative that in deciding upon a course of life, a man should reflect upon the changes likely to result to himself from any given choice, and that is his relation to others especially. If he decides that he will pursue a ...

PITH AND POINT.

An act to amend—sewing buttons.

A spanking team—a pair of wet nurses.

Divorce is the safety valve of marriage.

When punishing a child never strike it above the belt.

"Conviction is the conscience of the mind," and an abstraction of a jury.

One of the anomalies of life is the usurer; he exacts interest from principal.

The reason figures won't lie is because they always stand for something.

If a vixenish wife ever takes back her words, it is in order that she may use them again with redoubled effect.—Texas Siftings.

Lawyers used to be known as men of the robe. Many of them are men of the robe still with the e omitted.—Texas Siftings.

Scene: Grammar class. Dialogue between teacher and Johnnie. Teacher: ...

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

BY BEN: PERLEY POORE.

Senator La Fayette Foster, of Connecticut, told a story about Gov. Trumbull of his State, who, on the occasion of a grand riot, ascended a block and attempted by a speech to quiet the people, when a random missile hitting him in the head felled him to the ground. He was badly hurt, and as his friends were carrying him into his house his wife met him at the door and exclaimed: "Why, my husband, they have knocked your brains out." "No, they haven't," said the Governor. "If I'd had any brains I shouldn't have gone there."

When Senator Ben. Wade was a circuit judge in Ohio, one of his decisions was reversed by the Supreme Court of the State, and the case came back to him on mandate. He disregarded the mandate and followed his first decision. ...

On one occasion he was sitting in a crowded street-car and held his boy Charlie in his lap. A handsome and elegantly-dressed lady got into the car, and for a minute or two nobody offered her a seat. Mr. Travers took in the situation, and said to his son, "Get up, Charlie, and give the lady your seat." There was a roar of laughter, and the blushing and smiling lady was offered a dozen seats at once. It was Mr. Travers who, at a dinner presided over by Mr Stewart, the merchant prince, became a little noisy. At least he made the people around him noisy by his witticisms. Mr. Stewart rapped on the table to call him to order. Immediately Travers called out in a feminine voice. "Ca-a-a-sh," and the howl of laughter that followed obliged Mr. Stewart to drop his frown and smile, though he did not like it a bit.

Patience.

...

EVILS OF PRESENTING GIFTS.

A Beautiful Custom That Is Greatly Abused.

[Good Housekeeping.]

Sham and show, perplexity, annoyance, and extravagance have crept into the custom of gift-giving. Though one may make a gift out of the depth of the heart, and do it becomingly and unassumingly, yet it seems as if a dozen influences were bearing on him to force him into a greater expense than he can afford, or to give where he is reluctant to do so, or where he must make a show of the article given. Quiet, unostentatious, spontaneous giving shines brightly, when we find it amid the dreary heartlessness, the gaudy show, and the heartburnings that often accompany the formal giving that is a part of social life.

The reader may call to mind some wedding or birthday anniversary that she is invited to help celebrate. The ...

HAUNTS OF THE POLAR BEAR.

Habits of the Great Animal in Its Icy Northern Home—A Huge One Killed.

Sustenance of life forms the chief care of the Mute race of Alaska; the struggle to obtain a food supply is the absorbing thought throughout the entire cycle of their existence, says the San Francisco Chronicle. Nature seems to have provided certain animals peculiarly adapted to the hyperborean region, and eminently fitted to afford sustenance to the race which has to withstand the exigencies and severe climatic changes of an arctic zone. The principal animals inhabiting the waters of northwestern Alaska are the various members of the seal family. Seal meat as cooked by the natives is of a dirty brick-red tint, owing to the fact that when killed the seal is simply skinned, the blood remaining in the carcass, acting as a coloring matter to the meat. To unaccustomed stomachs ...

The Importance of Forests.

With the relatively modern development of civilization we are coming to the third state of the relation of man to forests; a stage when he finds that this tree covering of the lands is necessary for the maintenance of those conditions of climate and timber-supply on which the utility of the earth to him in good part depends. The frontiersman, that essence of the practical man, is still a slayer of woods, and believes that he serves the god of progress by the sacrifice of the forest. But, as knowledge advances, the thoughtful classes become more and more concerned as to the conditions of this earth during the centuries to come, when this swift-advancing ruin of our woods shall have been completed. Most persons will heartily agree that it is our bounden duty to transmit the inheritance which we enjoy in the earth unimpaired to the ...

become perfectly sound. I can recommend Piso's Cure for the horse as well as for man.

N. S. J. Strider.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

25 CTS

Sold by Druggists. 50 cts. Song Book mailed free. Address WIZARD OIL COMPANY CHICAGO.

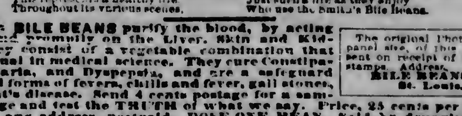
Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

C. N. U. No. 34—87

When writing to advertisers, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.



This represents a healthy life. Throughout its various scenes,

Just such a life as they enjoy Who use the Smith's Bile Beans.

Smith's BILE BEANS purify the blood, by acting directly and promptly on the Liver, Skin and Kidneys. They consist of a vegetable combination that has no equal in medical science. They cure Constipation, Malaria, and Dyspepsia, and are a safeguard against all forms of fevers, chills and fever, gall stones, and Bright's disease. Send 4 cents postage for a sample package and test the TRUTH of what we say. Price, 25 cents per bottle, mailed to any address, postpaid. DOSE ONE BEAN. Sold by druggists.

The original Photograph, panel size, of this picture sent on receipt of 10c. in stamps. Address, BILE BEANS, St. Louis, Mo.

J. F. SMITH & CO., PROPRIETORS, ST. LOUIS, MO.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times."

Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

CHARLEVOIX, AUG. 31, 1887.

Texas has a sweeping democratic majority. No wonder, about 100,000 majority was rolled up against prohibition.

The last crop report just issued shows a great shortage in the wheat crop and almost a total failure in the potato crop.

It is rumored from foreign sources that Henry M. Stanley, had been killed, after having been deserted by his escort, by the natives.

Quito, in South America, is the only city in the world on the equator, and the sun rises and sets there at six o'clock the year round.

The republicans of Pennsylvania held their state convention at Harrisburg on the 17th, and nominated their state ticket. They endorse Mr. Blaine for president in 1888.

The largest steamboat in the world is about to be built for the Fall River line. It is to be called the Puritan, and will be 404 feet long, containing 335 state rooms. She will cost $500,000, and will be finished in May 1889.

It is stated that "the President is laboring to establish his party in the respect and confidence of the country." The twelve labors of Hercules were as nothing compared to the task to which the President has addressed himself.

Wiggins may thank his stars that he don't live in Mexico. The Mexican weather seer, Miranda, has been put in jail for frightening the people by his prediction of a dreadful earthquake to have come off last week, but which failed to materialize.

The republican state convention of New York will be held Sept. 14th. The campaign in New York this fall will be of great importance, not only in and of itself, but it will derive an increased significance as the prelude to the national struggle of 1888. The prospects are very flattering for Republican success in that state.

Gov. Luce bought the finest watermelon to be found in the Lansing market one day last week, and ordered it sent to the executive rooms in the capitol. As it was being sent up in the elevator two lady clerks in the auditor general's office gobbled it, and the govenor has been "spitting cotton" ever since.

Democracy is still hunting down every republican in the land who happens to hold a little position under the government and it matters not whether he has any arms or legs; he is a partisan and has to go. None escape. The postmaster at Manistique away up in the north woods, has to give way for a bourbon.

Russia declares that she will not recognize Prince Ferdinand as King of Bulgaria. Russia made the same declaration in regard to Alexander, and he very accommodatingly left his country for the country's good. Ferdinand proposes to show fight, and evidently counts on outside assistance to support his claim. The plot thickens.

Two hundred and thirty murders were reported as committed in the United States during July. Doubtless there were many more which have not come to light. The figures are suggestive. These murders can't be charged to the hot weather. Charge the increase rather to the tender and lenient way in which arrested and tried murderers are treated in this country.

A worn out meadow or pasture, if given to sheep, and they are kept in it any length of time, will be restored to its pristine fertility. It is said that one thousand sheep, run on a piece of ground one year, will make the soil capable of yielding grain enough over and above the capacity of the soil without the sheep manure to support 1,035 sheep an entire year.

During the big mill fire at Carleton, the other evening, the huge engine which had been used to drive the machinery of the concern continued to run long after the mill and engine room had burned down. The engine was running when the fire broke out, and as no one checked it, kept on doing business at the old stand. The pumps supplying the boiler were fortunately running and they kept the stock of water up, preventing a boiler explosion. The engine made a queer sight as it churned away at full speed after all the buildings were destroyed, leaving it in the open air. However, the motion saved it from the flames, and it was the only part of the machinery not a total loss.

Northern Michigan News.

The Bellaire M. E. church is nearly completed.

A Good Templar's lodge was organized recently at Cross Village.

More and continued trouble with Petoskey's electric light. Not power enough.

Mrs. C. H. Kehl, of Northport, who has for some time been lying at the point of death, is improving.

The new brick blocks of Farnham, Rodenbaugh, Cosford and Handy of Mancelona, are nearly completed.

Breeze: Antrim county has 937 horses, 1,187 milch cows, 1,668 cattle other than milch cows, 970 hogs 1,783 sheep.

The Oddfellows of Spencer Creek dedicated their new hall last week Wednesday. Neighboring towns were well represented.

The Occidental, the pioneer hotel of Petoskey, was purchased recently by Mr. Gregory, of Detroit, who will take possession October 1.

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Association meets at Eastport September 14, 15 and 16. An interesting programme has been prepared.

The fair of the Kalkaska county Agricultural Society for this year will be held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, September 28, 29 and 30.

The Harbor Springs Republican tells of the discovery of a cave, several rods out in the bay; the mouth is 8x14 and walled up with solid masonry.

Traverse City has secured the woolen mill of Buller Bros., and now they are crowing over getting the wood manufacturing establishment of Wm. Beitner.

After September first mail matter from Undine to Boyne will be extended so as to embrace and begin at Charlevoix, increasing the distance eleven miles.

The Old Mission and Traverse City base ball clubs played a game at Old Mission last Saturday. The score at the close stood, Old Mission, 17; Traverse City, 21.

There will be a commercial department connected with the Traverse City schools next year. Students can enter at any time and come and go as they please. If there is sufficient demand for it, a night school will be opened.

A party of well-known East Jordan young men are making arrangements to go camping on Intermediate as soon as the season opens. They will take an entire outfit and will do the whole chain of lakes, remaining several days.

Outside parties are already making arrangements to purchase potatoes at Petoskey, Traverse City and other points in Northern Michigan. The indications are at present that the crop will command a better price than for years.

The latest "rich find" at Mackinac Island is that of five jugs of whiskey which were recently unearthed while digging on the grounds of the John Jacob Astor house. The proprietor professes to believe that this whiskey is at least 75 years old.

The Evening News says: "A sea serpent has been seen on Intermediate lake, near Bellaire. It's four-foot head looked like a pig's, its tail was three feet across, it was 30 feet long and it bellowed like a bull, while it swam like a fish and dove like all get out."

The Friant heretofore has had a heavy freight trade from Petoskey to Charlevoix and East Jordan, but has carried nothing back. This season the tide has turned however, and Capt. Vanderhoef has now one hundred car loads of cedar shingles and elm hoops to bring from South Arm for delivery to the G. R. & I. at Harbor Springs. These contracts with his usual heavy fall trade in merchandise will keep the boat exceedingly busy till the close of navigation. —Record.

The Grand Rapids Democrat of last Friday says: "Mr. G. S. Johnson, chief engineer of the G. R. & I., returned yesterday from Kalkaska, where he has just completed an inspection of the proposed route between that town and Elk Rapids. The railroad officials have not yet decided to build the branch, but President Hughart and General Freight Agent Gill will soon go to Pittsburgh to consult with the managers of the system there, and settle the subject finally."

Eveline Cor. Enterprise: It is being currently reported that Freddie F. Bedwin, who formerly resided with the family of Mr. J. B. Cater, in this place, but who moved to Grand Rapids over a year ago with Mr. Cater's folks, was taken very sick at Grand Rapids at Cater's about two weeks ago. A brother from New York came to take him home last week, but died [We presume Freddie is meant.] on the train before reaching home. Fred came to Eveline in the spring of 1884 and for a short time he resided with his uncle, Robert Bedwin, now deceased. In 1885 he bought 10 acres of land in section 16, but afterwards sold it. The cause of his death was dropsy of the heart. The deceased was twenty-five years of age, and leaves a large circle of friends in this place and New York city to mourn his loss.

Record: There will be a sweeping change in the pulpits of Petoskey this fall. Rev. G. W. Sherman has completed his full term of three years and a new man will come to the church next month. Rev. H. E. Davis leaves the Presbyterian church September 5th to take charge of the church at Homer. Rev. Geo. Johnson has been ordered by his physicians to abstain wholly from pulpit work, and his place in the pulpit of the Evangelical church must be filled soon. We are also informed that Rev. Mr. Bowles of the United Brethren church will retire from the Petoskey pastorate when the conference meets. All these ministers are good and true men, enjoying the confidence of the of the community, and wielding great influence therein. It is greatly to be hoped that they may be succeeded by equally able and good men.

The Intermediate lake correspondent of the Breeze has seen a sea serpent, and thus describes it: "When we came within a short distance of the monster we discovered its head was toward us, and its mouth, or what we took for its mouth, was open, but it soon closed. When open it appeared to be about three feet from the edge of the upper jaw to the edge of the lower jaw. Its head appeared to be about four feet across the top and was flat. Its back, the part we first saw, protruded from the water about three feet and had the appearance of a black, slimy log. It was, I should say, about thirty feet in length. Its tail, which resembled a fish's tail, was fully six feet across from tip to tip. He says, also, on our questioning that the monster, whatever it was, moved very rapidly and they tried to follow it. At last it went out of sight, with a great splash of its tail, throwing the water in the air to the height of fifty feet. Mrs. Washburn saw the same object three days before and took it to be a boat until it disappeared, but there being at that time a light ripple on the lake, she thought she might have been deceived. She also saw the same thing on Monday and became frightened when it disappeared, thinking it was her husband's boat, and had through some cause capsized."

Petoskey Democrat: J. E. Davis, of Resort township, Charlevoix county, one day last week while looking over his place, discovered a genuine "cache." It is about ten feet deep and seven or eight feet in diameter, being larger at the top than at the bottom. There is no visible traces of any of the removed dirt on the outside. Mr. S. S. Sheppard furnishes the following account of it: "I found an opening at the top about as large as a woodchuck hole. After enlarging the opening sufficiently to allow my body to pass through I descended into the "cache." I found an almost perfectly round opening some seven or eight feet in diameter, and could just touch the ceiling by standing on my tiptoes, the walls were smooth—mostly rooted over with fine roots—there is no question in my mind but what it is a genuine "cache." The pilgrims when they first landed found numbers of "caches" in some instances filled with provisions. They were used by the Indians for the purpose of storing their food, to protect it from the stealing proclivities of other tribes. The dirt removed from the excavation was carried off to lakes or streams and thrown in, so that no trace was left behind to discover its location to others.

Mails in the olden time.—The difference in the transmission of mails in early days and now is clearly shown by the records of the Fur Company at Mackinac Island. March 17th, 1817, an employe of John Jacob Astor wrote him as follows: "Dear Sir—Yours of January 20, 1817, reached here to-day," etc. Showing fifty-six days of mail passage from New York. The same point is now reached inside of three days.—Cheboygan Tribune. January 20, 1817, was a good while ago. The writer will give a later experience. In December, 1853, and in January, 1854, two letters were written and mailed to him from Dexter, Washtenaw county, Michigan, to Elk Rapids. We used to get a mail in those days once a month, through the woods on an Indian's back from Grand Rapids, or a point reached by stage a little further north. In February, 1854 we footed it through on snow shoes to Grand Rapids—six days between settlements—and thence by stage to Kalamazoo, where we took the cars for Dexter. Here we remained until the opening of navigation, when we went to Chicago and returned to Elk Rapids by a schooner reaching there the last of April. The next mail that reached Elk Rapids after our return, brought us the two letters referred to above. Thus it took over 90 days, in this instance, no longer ago than 1854, to bring letters from 50 miles west of Detroit to Grand Traverse; now it requires about 12 hours.—Traverse Bay Eagle.

ICE CREAM PAR EXCELLENCE.

We would respectfully inform the public that we have at considerable expense, prepared and suitably furnished our Band Pagoda as an Ice Cream parlor, and have placed it at the head of all similar institutions in Charlevoix. It will be open for the use of the public at all times save on Wednesday evenings, when there will be a Grand Concert by the Band. Our cream will be as good as can be made. Just received a large lot of Ice Cream Packages holding from one quart to two or more gallons, which will be loaned to customers for safely carrying cream to their homes. The quality of our cream speaks for itself. Our stock of foreign and domestic Fruits is always large and of the best quality. We carry as fine a line of confectionery, nuts, etc., as can be found in town.

Respectfully,
O. W. SMITH.

Chancery Sale.

State of Michigan, in the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, David Carpenter complainant, vs August Stenkling defendant. In pursuance and by virtue of a decree in the above entitled cause bearing date May 26, 1887, I, the undersigned, a Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Charlevoix County, State of Michigan, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House, in the village of Boyne City, in said County of Charlevoix (that being the place of holding the court for said county), on Saturday, the [illegible] day of September, at 12 o'clock noon of said day, the premises described in said decree, viz: The west half of the south east quarter of section 30 in township thirty three (33) north, range four west, Charlevoix County, State of Michigan.

WILL N. MOORE,
Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Charlevoix County, Michigan.
DART & CALL, Solicitors for Complainant.
Dated July 26, 1887.

TIME CARDS OF STEAMERS

STANDARD TIME.

Charlevoix and East Jordan.
STR. NORTH STAR, ... CAPT. MEL THOMPSON
Leaving Charlevoix at 6:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. and returning leave East Jordan for Charlevoix at 9:30 a. m. and 4 p. m., touching at intermediate points both ways.

Charlevoix and Boyne City.
STR. JOSEPH GORDON, ... CAPT. LEWIS GEARD.
Leave Charlevoix at 6:30 a. m. and 1 p. m., and Boyne City at 9:30 a. m., 4 p. m., touching at way ports.

Harbor Springs, Charlevoix & E. Jordan.
STR. THOS. FRIANT, ... CAPT. R. VANDERHOEF.
MORNING: Leave Harbor Springs, 7:30; Petoskey, 8:00; Charlevoix, 9:30; arrive, East Jordan 11:30.
AFTERNOON: Leave East Jordan 1:30; Charlevoix, 4:00; Petoskey, 5:30; arrive, Harbor Springs, 6:00.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN LINE.
PROP. LAWRENCE, ... Capt. Geo. Tudor.
Going North, Chicago, Fridays 8 p. m.; Charlevoix, Sundays 4 p. m.; Cheboygan, Mondays 9 a. m.
Going South, Cheboygan, Mondays 4 p. m.; Charlevoix, Tuesdays 8 a. m.; Milwaukee, Wednesdays 4 p. m.; Chicago, Thursdays 12 m.
Emrey Bros., agents, Charlevoix.

HANNAH, LAY & CO'S BOATS.
CITY OF GRAND RAPIDS, ... Capt. O. E. WILLETS.
Going North, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays: Leave Traverse City 7 a. m.; Northport 9:30, Charlevoix 11:30; Petoskey 1:30 p. m.; Harbor Springs 2; Cross Village 4:30, Mackinac Island 7:15 arriving at St. Ignace 8:20.
Going South, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays: Leave St. Ignace 6 a. m.; Mackinac Island 7; Cross Village 10:15; Harbor Springs 12:45 p. m.; Petoskey 1:15; Charlevoix 2:45; Northport 5.15 p. m., arriving at Traverse City at 7:45 p. m.
J. L. Hall & Co., Agents, Charlevoix.

Bank of Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security
is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers
Never Speculate. Their leading creed is, That to Speculate with ones own money, is folly; that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking
Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors, and, believing that it furnishes unusual guarantees, therefore,

This Bank Invites
People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will
Borrow Investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking
Productive employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes,
Now paying Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

Farming Lands

500,000 ACRES
Of Splendid
MICHIGAN LANDS
For Sale By The
G. R. & I. R. R.
50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.

These lands are timbered with beech and maple elm and other wood and are accessible to best markets

By Water and Rail

And are in a state unequalled for health, well watered and contiguous to the great fruit raising section of Michigan.
The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad runs through the center of the grant. The part of Michigan in which these lands are situated is

Not a Wilderness by any Means.

It contains a population of 250,000 souls and is rapidly filling up with settlers from almost every state in the Union.

Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold.

Send for English or German Pamphlet. Address
W. B. HUGHART, Commissioner,
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.

TITLE PERFECT.

WAYNE COUNTY SAVINGS BANK DETROIT, MICH.
$500,000 TO INVEST IN BONDS
Issued by cities, counties, towns and school districts of Michigan. Officers of these municipalities about to issue Bonds will find it to their advantage to apply to this Bank. Blank Bonds and blanks for proceedings supplied without charge. All communications and inquiries will have prompt attention.
May 87. S. D. ELWOOD, Treasurer.

ONCE MORE TO THE FRONT!

WITH AN ENTIRELY NEW STOCK OF
DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS,
Which I have just purchased for CASH, getting the lowest prices & best discounts.
And I propose to give my Customers the benefit of all bargains.
No shelf-worn or old goods for you to select from. I hereby extend an invitation to all my friends and old customers to call and examine my goods and get prices.
Cor. Bridge & Main sts.
VERY RESP'Y,
B. SEE.

Sheriff Sale.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of a writ of [illegible] issued out of the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, in favor of Hiram V. Rifenburg, against the goods and chattels and real estate of Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emrey, in said County, to me directed and delivered, I did, on the 25th day of June, 1887, levy upon and take all the right, title and interest of the said Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emrey, in and to the following described real estate, that is to say lots 126, 127, and 91, in Upright & Hurlbut's Addition to the Village of Charlevoix, the undivided ½ of lot 2, Section 29, Town 34 North, of Range 8 West, North ½ of South East ¼ of Section 29, Town 34 North, of Range 7 West, Charlevoix Co., Michigan; also 20 shares of stock in the Charlevoix Manufacturing Company, a corporation existing in accordance with the laws of the State of Michigan, said shares representing $25 each. All of which I shall expose for sale at public auction to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House in Boyne City in said county, on the 21st day of September A. D. 1887, at ten o'clock in the forenoon.

Dated, Aug 4, 1887.

D. H. JERRUE, Sheriff.
By WM. SCHMIDT, Deputy Sheriff.
CRUICKSHANK & GRIER,
Attorneys for Plaintiffs. [1017]

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the money secured by a certain mortgage, dated the 2d day of August, 1883, executed by Levi House, and Emily House, his wife, of the Township of Hayes, county of Charlevoix, and State of Michigan, to Edwin M. Clark, of Charlevoix, Michigan. Said mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for said county of Charlevoix, in Liber Eight (8) of Mortgages, on page one hundred and ninety-one, (191) on the 25th day of August, 1883, and said mortgage was, on the 25th day of October, 1883, duly assigned by said Edwin M. Clark to Martha J. Ayers, of Plattsburg, Clinton county, New York: said assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said county, on the 25th day of October, 1883, in Liber ten (10) of Mortgages, on page four hundred and eighty five, (485) and said mortgage is now due and owned by the said Martha J. Ayers. And, whereas, the amount claimed to be due on said Mortgage at the time of this notice, is the sum of Two Hundred and Nineteen Dollars and sixty-two cents, ($219.62) of principal and interest, and no proceedings having been instituted at law or in equity, to recover the debt now remaining due, or any part thereof. Now therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the said power of sale in said mortgage contained, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises in said mortgage described, as all of those certain pieces or parcels of land situate in the Township of Hayes, in the county of Charlevoix, and State of Michigan and described as follows, to-wit: lot three, (3) and the south-west quarter of the north-east quarter, of Section Nineteen, (19) in Township Thirty-four, (34) North, of Range Seven (7) West, containing seventy (70) acres, more or less, according to the United States survey, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due on said mortgage, with the costs of this foreclosure, and the stipulated costs therein mentioned, which will be sold at public vendue to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House, in the Village of Boyne City, in said county of Charlevoix, that being the place where the Circuit Court in and for said county is held, at one o'clock in the afternoon, on the 15th day of November, 1887.

Dated, August 17th, 1887.

MARTHA J. AYERS, Assignee.
J. M. CLARK, Attorney for Assignee.

Mortgage Sale.

Five certain mortgages, to-wit: one bearing date, December 10th, 1878, executed by Mariam Woolf and Martin Woolf to David Carpenter, recorded in the office of Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Mich., December 7th, 1878, in Liber 3 of Mortgages at page 271 and 272, upon which the whole amount is due and unpaid, to-wit: The sum of Three hundred and twenty-seven dollars and twenty cents, ($327.20), one bearing date Sept. 14, 1879, executed by Mariam Woolf and Martin Woolf to David Carpenter, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Mich., Sept. 29th, 1879, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, at page 87, upon which the whole amount is due and unpaid to-wit: One hundred and eight dollars and thirty-two cents [$108.32], one bearing date April 6, 1880, executed by Mariam Woolf and Martin Woolf to David Carpenter, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Mich., April 15th, 1880, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, at page 149, upon which the whole amount is now due and unpaid, the sum of Two hundred and four dollars and thirty-two cents [$204.32]; one bearing date April 1, 1882, executed by Martin Woolf and Mariam Woolf to Clay E. Call, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Mich., April 11th, 1882, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, at page 514, which Mortgage was duly assigned by Clay E. Call to David Carpenter, September 26, 1882, by deed of assignment, which is recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Michigan, September 1[illegible] 1884 in Liber [illegible] of M[illegible] page 575, upon which the whole amount is now due and unpaid, to-wit: Eighty-seven dollars and forty-eight cents [$87.48]; also a mortgage dated September 23, 1882, executed by Martin Woolf and Mariam Woolf to David Carpenter and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Charlevoix county, Michigan, Sept. 26, 1882, in Liber 4 of Mortgages, on page 610, upon which the whole amount is due, to-wit: Six hundred and twenty four dollars and eleven cents, [$624.11]; for the recovery of the sum secured by said mortgages or either of them, no suit or proceedings at law having been instituted, will be foreclosed under the power of sale therein contained, by a statutory sale of the premises therein described as the North half of the north-west quarter of section thirty-three, Town thirty-four, North of Range six West, Charlevoix county, Michigan, to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House, socalled, in the village of Boyne City, in said county, that being the place where the Circuit Court for said county, is held, at 12 o'clock noon, September 22, 1887.

DAVID CARPENTER,
Mortgagee and Assignee of said Mortgages.
DART & CALL, Attorneys for Mortgagee.
Dated, June 25, 1887. 1013

CHARLEVOIX Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Henry Bennett, O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls, A. Butters,
A. R. Upright, A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL, ... $25,000
SURPLUS, ... 2,000

The liabilities of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art 3174, Sec. 40 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.
Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:
NATIONAL PARK BANK - - - NEW YORK.
COMMERCIAL NAT BANK - - - CHICAGO.
NAT. CITY BANK - - - GRAND RAPIDS.
DETROIT NAT. BANK - - - DETROIT.

CROSS & SONS.,
Buy and Sell all kinds of
Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.
Charlevoix, - Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY,
Photographer.
In Bradbeer's Gallery.
Photographs of all sizes taken.
Old Pictures copied and enlarged.
CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,
ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR,
—ON—
Chalevoix Summer Resorts.
I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.
I employ only first-class workmen, both
Carpenters and Painters.
Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention
J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

Fox & Miller
Offer a
Mammoth Stock
OF
BOOTS, SHOES
and other
FOOT WEAR,
--AT--
LOWER PRICES
Than can be found elsewhere in the County.
We have just secured a FIRST-CLASS SHOEMAKER,
And will make Repairing a specialty.
We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.
NOTHING SHODDY.
Fox & Miller.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.
Charlevoix, Mich.
Manufacturers of and Wholesale and Retail Dealer
3 EXTRA GRADES OF
FLOUR
Feed, Corn Meal, Graham
We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

M. LITNEY, JOS. STEIMEL
Litney & Steimel
LIVERY,
And Feed Barn
Charlevoix, Mich.
Good Rigs at Lowest Rates.

It Pays to Buy the
BEST BOATS!
The large number of boats I have built for resorters, are advertisements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.
I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the
LEAST MONEY!
All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.
LEAVE ORDERS
with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.
Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.
J. BEAUVAIS.

BOOTS & SHOES
Have you seen our $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00 Gents Shoes?
If not do so at once. They are made solid throughout even to the counter. You'll have no trouble with these goods running over at the heel.
These goods cannot be equalled in the county
Either in style, quality or price. We will take pains this season to have in stock goods that will suit all. New ad. soon on Ladies' Fine Shoes of latest styles New York, Common Sense, and London Toes.

Ladies Look Out
For the new line of latest style goods that is on the road for
D. SHERWOOD & CO.

A. J. McLEOD,
Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at Wholesale or Retail
All kinds of
FRESH MEATS,
SALT PORK,
SMOKED & SALTED
HAMS,
Dried and Smoked
BACON, DRIED BEEF,
Bologna, Head Cheese, Sausage.
Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.
Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.
A. J. McLEOD.

Washburn & Ackert,
FOUNDREYMEN, MACHINISTS,
And Manufacturers of The
Charlevoix Plow.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN
Boiler Works!
Builder and Manufacturer of
BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.
Sheet Iron Work given special attention.
MARINE WORK
a specialty.
HENRY BARTH, Prop.
Charlevoix, Mich.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix Mich.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law Office in Bolton's Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PAILTHORPE & GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office at residence, Main st. Charlevoix, Office hours 6 to 10 a. m., 6 to 8 p. m.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 119, meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

MASONIC.—Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M. Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Post-office.

I. O. O. F.—Round lake lodge No. 233, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

K. O. T. M.—Resort Tent No. 138, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' Hall.

L. O. L.—True Blues No. 157, meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. 101, R. A. M., meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 150, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of the members, during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.

President—Byron See.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strang.
Financial Secretary—B. Sutfield.
Treasurer—Albert E. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. D. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—M. Lee Hedges, W. A. Brown and C. Y. Cook.
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, M. J. Stockman, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, R. W. Miller, S. M. See, W. C. Newman, E. M. Clark, B. Berdan.

All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine lake Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequalled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the traveling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids Stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,
Lorenzo Cook, Manager
Charlevoix, - - Mich.
The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only 100 feet to Steamboat Landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE.
W. C. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - Mich.
Fitted up with a view to the Comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central Location.

PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and dock work solicited at any point between Traverse City and Mackinaw. L. E. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. R. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. [Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.]

DENTIST

N. J. PERRY, Dentist.
Offices in Weed's Drug Store,
Charlevoix, Mich.

Land for Sale.

I have 5 acres in 1 east of the cemetery, one mile from town, nearly all cleared, which I will sell cheap for cash, or approved paper. Address
JAMES METCALF, Charlevoix.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix. tf

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R
"Mackinac Short Line."
Only direct line between the east and south and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Going West read down				Going East read up
	6.45 pm	Detroit	11.10 am
7.00 am	6.50 am	St Ignace	8.30 pm	5.55 pm
10.25	8.52	Newberry	6.21	2.05
12.20	9.40	Seney	5.15	12.35
	10.42	Reedsboro	4.15
3.25	11.31	Au Train	3.25	9.05
5.30	12.40	Marquette	2.15	7.00
	12.50 pm	Marquette	2.00 pm
	1.55	Ishpeming	12.58
	4.10	L'Anse	10.40
	5.30	Houghton	9.20
	6.30	Calumet	8.15

Connections made with M C Co boats, M C & G R R & M R R.
E. W. ALLEN, Gen Pass Agt, Marquette.

Grand Rapids & Indiana R.R.
Time Card for Petoskey.
IN EFFECT, JULY 1887.
Leave Going North *6.05 a. m. 3.02 p. m. 8.05 p. m.
Leave Going South 8.50 a. m. 2.15 p. m. †10.35 pm
* daily. † daily except Saturday.

Michigan Central
The Direct Route Between Mackinaw City & Detroit Jackson, The South and East.
Trains leave Mackinaw City 8 a. m. daily except Sunday and 10 p. m. daily arriving at

Detroit	9.10 p m and 11 a m
Jackson	10.30 p m and 11.20 a m
Toledo	10.55 p m and 1.45 p m
Buffalo	8.45 a m and 8.07 p m
Cincinnati	6.35 a m and 6.40 p m

WAGNER PALACE SLEEPING AND PARLOR CARS.
D. W. JOHNSTON, Mich. Pass Agt. Grand Rapids. O. W. RUGGLES, G. P. & T. Agt. Chicago.

Help for the Kitchen.

Says the New York Commercial Advertiser, the complaint of difficulty in securing competent cooks, housemaids, and so forth is chronic, of course, but there can be no doubt that the actual difficulty is greater at present than ever before. Even the managers of unintelligence offices—who habitually omit the negative prefix when speaking of their shops—declare that it was never so difficult as now to secure competent servants for their customers.

The search for a reason has been diligent, but the searchers seem to have overlooked one fact which probably plays an important part in the matter—namely, the general prosperity of the country and that activity in all branches of industry which is popularly called the "boom." We are living in a period when work is ready to the hand of the workman, whatever his craft may be, and wages are high. The bricklayer, who a few years ago was glad of a job at almost any price, is now sought out by the builder and kept busy at full wages throughout the year. The digger is equally busy preparing the way for the mason's work; the carpenter, joiner, plasterer, painter, and all the rest rejoice in full work and fair pay. They live better than usual, too, which gives the grocer and the shoemaker and the tailor a share in their prosperity.

The result is that every mother's son of them looks about him for a wife, and who so attractive in that respect as the neat-handed Phyllis, who, besides being comely, and fresh-faced with youth and health, knows how to get a good dinner, and delights to keep her surroundings brilliantly clean and refreshingly tidy? Is it any wonder that the butcher or grocer who finds his business good, looks longingly upon the pretty and smart serving maid who gives him his orders in modest or coquettish fashion at his customer's area door every morning? Is it surprising that he sees visions of a home of his own, with some such maid converted into a matron for its mistress?

The plain truth is, that good girls are scarcer in the kitchen just now than ever before, because the very qualities that make them desirable as servants in the houses of the well-to-do render them attractive to men of their own class as wives, and the condition of industry enables such men to marry much more freely than they were prudently able to do a few years ago. Most of the good girls get married, and the fact speaks well for the good sense of the thrifty fellows who marry them and make homes for themselves, and for the prosperity of the times in which we live.

Meantime householders are terribly put to it to get the help they need, and the economic law which provides that excess of demand over supply shall cause the price to advance, has made itself very plainly apparent, and will in time, perhaps, bring relief. With advancing wages the inducement for good girls to go into domestic service must become steadily greater and ultimately it must create a larger supply. So will hard times, if hard times fall upon us.

"There Were Great Men."

An opinion was current in the last century that our ancestors, at some time in the past, were the equals or superiors in size to the largest men now to be found. M. Henrion presented to the Academie des Inscriptions, in 1718, a memoir on the variations in the size of man from the beginning of the world to the Christian era, in which Adam was given 123 feet 9 inches, and Eve 118 feet 9¾ inches. But after the first pair, the human race, in his imagination, suffered a regular decrease, so that Noah was only 100 feet high, while Abraham shrank down to twenty-eight feet, Moses to thirteen feet, the mighty Hercules to ten feet eight and a half inches, and Alexander the Great to a bare six feet and a half. The communication, it is said, was received with enthusiasm, and was regarded, at the time, as a "wonderful discovery" and a "sublime vision."

The complaint about the degeneracy of the human race is not new, but dates as far back as the time of Homer, at least; for the men of his day were not like the heroes of whom he sang. It is not confirmed, but is contradicted by all the tangible facts, and these are not a few. Human remains that are exhumed, after having reposed in the grave for many centuries, as in the catacombs of Paris, have nothing gigantic about them. The armor, the cuirasses, and the casques of the warriors of the middle ages, can be worn by modern soldiers; and many of the knights' suits would be too small for the cuirassiers of the European armies; yet they were worn by the selected men, who were better fed, stronger, and more robust than the rest of the population. The bones of the ancient Gauls, which are uncovered in the excavations of tumuli, while they are of large dimensions, are comparable with those of the existing populations of many places in France.

The Egyptian mummies are the remains of persons of small or medium stature, as are also the Peruvian and Mexican mummies, and the mummies and bones found in the ancient monuments of India and Persia. And even the most ancient relics we possess of individuals of the human species, the bones of men who lived in the tertiary period, an epoch the remote antiquity of which goes back for hundreds of centuries, do not show any important differences in the sizes of the primitive and of the modern man.—Popular Science Monthly.

Medical Officers in India.

The grievances of medical officers in India have more than once formed the topic of conversation and comment, but there is evidently one appointment in the east the incumbent of which ought to be satisfied with, if a statement published in one of the Bombay papers just to hand be true. That appointment is the post of residency surgeon with the nizam of Hyderabad. The horse-keeper of a native official of the state having died under suspicious circumstances, the residency surgeon was asked to inspect the body, but this he refused to do (so the report goes) unless he received an honorarium of fifty gold mohurs, equivalent to a fee of 800 rupees, which was paid. The reason given for the charge being put at that figure was that the day was Sunday, and the medical gentleman declined to disturb his sabbath calm for a less amount.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Governor Foraker has purchased a fine old homestead near Madisonville, Ohio.

Additional Local News.

Come to Charlevoix "Labor day" Sept. 5th.

Alick Rosenthal and wife are pleasantly located in the O. I. Wheat residence.

—Hodge & Co., harness makers, of this place, have decided to remove their shop to Alba. They go this week.

—The Fourth annual reunion of the soldiers and sailors association of Northwestern Michigan, will be held at Reed City, Sept. 6th, 7th, and 8th. Major E. H. Green, of Charlevoix, is Commander and delivers the response to the address of welcome. A number from Baxter Post will attend.

—Hon. D. C. Leach, of Traverse City, is engaged in cranberry culture near Walton, and sample berries we have seen from his fields indicate that he is making a success of it in spite of the drawbacks and disappointments attendant upon his first efforts. The experiment in that line in Excelsior township, will be confined to about an acre and a half, at present, but experts who have looked the ground over, consider the conditions exceedingly favorable for success in raising cranberries. We shall watch the outcome with interest.—Leader.

—The presents at the Rosenthal Wunderlich wedding, held at Petoskey recently are valued at over $2,000. Among them were an elegant bronze clock and vases, Mr. M. Freeman, Chicago; silver water pitcher and tray, Mr. and Mrs. Hoew, Chicago; beautiful silver and cut glass fruit dish, Mr. and Mrs. J. Carlson, Chicago; solid silver breakfast castor, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Chicago; elegant upright piano, from bride's mother; handsome silver butter dish, Mr. and Mrs. Green, Chicago; silver pickle castor, J. Steinberg, Traverse City; beautiful embroidered plush sofa cushion, toilet set and jug, Mr. and Mrs. Kleinan, Chicago; decorated lemonade set Mr. and Mrs. Wolf, Chicago; check for $300, from groom's parents; silver butter dish, Mr. Julius Roman; elegant large Lamoge vase, Miss Ray Eartsman; cut glass lemonade set, Jake Apple, Chicago; elegant kitchen range, Mr. and Mrs. Saulson, St. Ignace; handsome silver water set, Mr. and Mrs. Steinberg, Traverse City; exquisite silver berry dish, Max and Ben Yalomstein, Calumet; handsome coal stove, Moses Blumrosen, Manistique; beautiful marble clock, Charlie Rosenthal, Newberry; silver nut set in pale blue plush case Mr. and Mrs. Yalomstein, Traverse City; hand-engraved silver jewel case, Mrs. Gumbiner, solid silver cream pitcher, Mr. and Mrs. Reinhart, St. Ignace; elegant hanging lamp, Mr. and Mrs. Goldman, Detroit; handsome silver tea set and butter dish, Mr. and Mrs. Wolf, New York; solid silver tea spoons and butter knife, Mr. and Mrs. Phil. Goldman, Chicago; pair of exquisite French bisque statuettes, Mr. and Mrs. Finch, Chicago; pair of dainty flower vases, Mr. and Mrs. Hess, Chicago; peach-blow and silver berry dish, Mr. and Mrs. Tumin, Alpena; elegant silver cake dish, Mr. Reinbach, Petoskey; silver castor, Mr. and Mrs. Wilensky, Mancelona; handsome vase, Mr. and Mrs. Peterson, Chicago; tinted china and silver fruit dish, Moses Rosenthal; handsome china dinner set, Barney Blumrosen, Manistique, decorated French china tea set, Jennie Rosenthal; one-half dozen heavy solid silver table spoons (an heir-loom of the family,) from groom's mother; handsome crimson plush embroidered table scarf, bride's sister; dainty gold toilet case, Mrs. Haufe; three elegant Limoge vases, Mr. and Mrs. Meyer, Cincinnati; elegant fox fur rug, Mr. Newberger, Chicago; volume of Browning's poems, Mrs. Ida Newberry; lovely hand painted plaque Minnie Gardner and Miss Gould; pretty peach-blow vase, Hattie Wilson and Julius Levek, and numerous other presents of which we were unable to secure a list.

Pleasure Boat for Sale.

The "Petrel," sloop rigged, remarkably commodious, handy and safe. Built by Rankin of St. Ignace, in 1882. Price $100 now, or $75 at the end of the present season.

Apply to G. C. Mahon, Charlevoix.

Fresh Butter at lowest price, at Jefferies' Bakery.

To Rent. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent, Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

For Sale—A heavy yoke of oxen. Must be sold immediately. Apply to A. Stewart, Charlevoix. 2w

Cull shingles and lumber for sale cheap, or will exchange for farm produce. Apply at Burns & Scroggie's livery barn. tf

Wanted—A steady man to work one of Perkin's one block shingle mill. Apply to Smithson's Lumber Co., Charlevoix.

For Sale—One span of horses, one yearling colt, two spring colts, one yoke of oxen, two two-year old heifers, two yearling heifers; must be sold soon. Terms reasonable. Inquire at this office.

Headlight and Little Daisy Soaps. They are strictly pure. They are the cheapest soaps sold for the mony. Try them and get a ladies' water-proof gossamer free. For sale by Emrey Brothers.

The ladies are cordially invited to call and examine the large display of millinery including pattern hats and bonnets together with novelties in ribbons, gauzes, flowers, etc. As it is to be a season of novelties it will pay you to call now and often, upon Mrs. Litney & Carr.

160 Acres in MARION
Township For Sale at a Bargain.
Terms to suit.

MONEY TO LOAN ON
Approved Real Estate Security.
THEODORE R. CHAPIN,
Boyne City.

An Enterprising, Reliable House.

Dr. G. W. Crouter and Crouter & Harris, Ironton, can always be relied upon, not only to carry in stock the best of everything, but to secure the Agency for such articles as have well-known merit, and are popular with the people, thereby sustaining the reputation of being always enterprising, and ever reliable. Having secured the Agency for the celebrated Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, will sell it on a positive guarantee. It will surely cure any and every affection of Throat, Lungs, and Chest, and to show our confidence, we invite you to call and get a Trial Bottle Free.

An Answer Wanted.

Can any one bring us a case of Kidney or Liver Complaint that Electric Bitters will not speedily cure? We say they can not, as thousands of cases already permanently cured and who are daily recommending Electric Bitters, will prove. Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Weak Back, or any urinary complaint quickly cured. They purify the blood, regulate the bowels, and act directly on the diseased parts. Every bottle guaranteed. For sale at 50c. a bottle by Dr. G. W. Crouter

"HACKMETACK," a lasting and fragrant perfume. Price 25 and 50 cents.

SHILOH'S CURE will immediately relieve Croup, Whooping Cough and Bronchitis. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co.

FOR DYSPEPSIA and Liver Complaint, you have a printed guarantee on every bottle of Shiloh's Vitalizer. It never fails to cure.

A NASAL INJECTOR free with each bottle of Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. F. G. Hines & Co.

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

Land for Sale.

I offer for sale the south half of the south-east quarter of section seventeen, (17) in Township Thirty-three (33) North, of Range Eight (8) West, known as the "Weitzel place" in Marion. Apply to
THOMAS WEST,
12m3 137 Lafayette St., Grand Rapids

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. Crouter

W. H. FRANCIS
FURNITURE
—AND—
JOBBING SHOP,
Will also do
Contracting & Building,
in Charlevoix, and Summer Resorts.
I keep in my shop a full set of hand and foot power machinery which enables me to do jobbing, repairing etc. on short notice.
Shop on South Terrace,
Opposite Sheriff Berdan's residence.

MILLINERY,
FANCY GOODS,
DRESS-MAKING,
We have just opened a large line of Spring and Summer Millinery and Fancy Goods to which we invite your attention.
DRESS-MAKING done on the TAILOR SYSTEM. The best work done at the lowest rates.
ALDRICH SISTERS.
Ingleside Building.

C. H. Maddaugh,
MERCHANT TAILOR.
I have just received a fine line of Samples of first class Fall & Winter Tweeds. Call and look them over.
Fine Samples of OVERCOATINGS!
now awaiting your inspection.
Call and see me, Satisfaction Guaranteed.

CHARLEVOIX
Manufacturing Co.
Charlevoix, Mich.,
Manufacturers of
Sash and Doors,
Blinds, Mouldings etc.
NEWELL
Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails
kept in stock.
Window & Door Frames made to order.
All Kinds of
Building Material
Kept constantly on hand.
PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS,
Furnished on application.
Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building
Correspondence solicited.

New JEWELRY AND SILVER WARE.
I have just received a very fine stock of Watches, Chains, Pins, Clocks, Silver-Ware, etc which I will sell at Prices lower than the same goods can be purchased outside.
Did it ever occur to you that by patronizing home Merchants you were benefitting yourselves?
All classes of Repairing done quickly.
C. R. BELLINGER.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S
LIVERY STABLE
CHARLEVOIX.
The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.
Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.
Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

W. A. REYNARD,
Has just received at his Fruit Store in the Lewis Block, a choice line of Vegetables and Fruits
OF ALL KINDS,
TO WHICH OTHERS WILL BE ADDED IN SEASON.
I will also keep in stock a full line of
Tobaccos and Cigars.
Butter and Eggs a Specialty.

JOHN CONNOR,
Fashionable
Boot and Shoe
MAKER.
Hand Sewed French Calf Gaiters, $5. Men's Kip and Calf Boots, $4.00. Half-soling 50 cents. Defy competition.
All Work Guaranteed.

For Finest
JOB WORK,
Patronize The Sentinel.

HUMPHREYS'
DR. HUMPHREYS' BOOK
Cloth & Gold Binding
144 Pages, with Steel Engraving,
MAILED FREE.
Address, P. O. Box 1810, N. Y.

HOMEOPATHIC
SPECIFICS.
Sold by Druggists, or sent postpaid on receipt of price.—HUMPHREYS' MEDICINE CO. 109 Fulton St. N. Y.

GRENADES,
Two Sizes—Pints and Quarts.
Over Sixty Millions Sold.
PRICES.
Pints, Per Doz., $10.00.
Quarts, 15.00.

"STAR" Tubular Fire Extinguisher,
Plain, $12.00 per doz.
Ornam't'd, 15.00 per doz.

The "Star" EXTINGUISHER
Price, $30.00 Each.

"STAR" CHEMICAL.
PRICE, $200.00 EACH.

The HARDEN HAND GRENADE CO.
61 & 53 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

PAINTS!
STOVES, HARDWARE, TINWARE, FISHING TACKLE, NOTIONS, ETC., ETC.
THE BEST FORCE PUMPS,
FARMING IMPLEMENS.

JOB AND TIN WORK.
L. D. Bartholomew & Co.
JOB AND TIN WORK.

F. A. COCHRAN & CO.,
(Successors to PERRY WEED.)
Druggists and Pharmecists,
A FULL LINE OF Drugs and Medicines
For Prescription Use.
PATENT MEDICINES, SOAPS, PERFUMES,
TOILET ARTICLES, CIGARS, STATIONERY.
Pure unadulterated Liquors for medical purposes.
We buy for LOWEST CASH rates and sell as low as the lowest.
Your Patronage Respectfully Solicited.

M. S. MOULTON,
WATCHMAKER & JEWELER,
Charlevoix, Mich.
Personal Attention given to Watch Repairing.
Key-wind Movements changed to Stem-wind and warranted as good as the best.
JEWELRY Repairing done in the best manner.
Having had 30 years experience I am confident I can give the best of satisfaction

"MARVELOUS PRICES!"
BOOKS FOR THE MILLION
Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away.

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.
SENTINEL, Charlevoix, Mich.

FRANK E. WOODS
Bath & Barber Rooms
Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd fellows Block.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS.
Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.
JAY L. PRICE.

NEW SHOP!
All kinds of Blacksmithing,
At the
Shop in the Foundry Building.
Horseshoeing a specialty.
ALL WORK GUARANTEED.
M. SCOTT.

WANTED!
Potatoes, Onions, Apples, Peaches and Blueberries.
We have an old established trade and can place stock to best advantage. Consignments solicited. Correspondence invited from shippers. Stencil and shipping tags furnished.
W. H. THOMPSON & CO.
Commission Merchants,
No. 166 South Water St.
CHICAGO, - - ILL.

JAS. A. GELLICK,
Dealer in
Choice Wines,
Fine Liquors
EXCELLENT CIGARS.
We call Special Attention to our
Old Kentucky Sour Mash WHISKIES.
We also keep continually on draught
Milwaukee
Export and lager Beer.
Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

BY SMITH & PARMELEE.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

THE WIDE WORLD.

A Catalogue of the Week's Important Occurrences Concisely Summarized.

Intelligence by Electric Wire from Every Quarter of the Civilized World.

LATEST DISPATCHES.

NEBRASKA PROHIBITIONISTS.

They Hold a Convention, Nominate a Ticket, and Adopt a Platform.

The Nebraska State Prohibition party held its convention at Lincoln on the 17th inst. Forty-four counties, with 316 delegates, comprised the gathering that was the largest Prohibition convention yet held in Nebraska. H. W. Harvey, the Prohibition candidate for Governor last fall, presided. Speeches and resolutions took up the greater part of the day. The platform adopted declares constitutional and statutory prohibition to be the vital question of the day. It denounces license, high and low, as public bribery and crime, favors pensions, favors woman suffrage, declares for the Government control of railroads and telegraphs, and demands the repeal of the law that admits foreigners to vote in municipal elections upon declaration of intention and before naturalization. The convention nominated as their candidate for Supreme Judge J. F. Abbott, of Crete; and for Regents of the State University the Rev. J. H. Newell, of Salem, and the Rev. S. H. Hilton, of Central City. The delegates from the Second Judicial District nominated Mrs. Ada M. Bittenbender as their ...

... lowed is thus told in a dispatch from that place:

The balloon arose about 1,000 feet in the air and sailed away in a north-west direction. Soon after starting it was discovered to be on fire, smoke rolling from the top in clouds. By this time it had sailed about one mile away. Then it began to come down faster and faster, until it approached the earth with a rush. Professor Talbert escaped severe injury only by his good luck, which has followed him in several ascensions before. About all that was left of the balloon was the rings on the bottom. The excitement of the people was intense. Professor Talbert was brought into town in a buggy with the remains of the balloon. He was only slightly hurt.

The list of dead from the Chatsworth wreck, as revised and corrected by men on the ground, gives a total of eighty-five. Of these the name and residences of seventy-six are known, leaving nine bodies yet to be identified. In addition to the killed there were 120 persons dangerously injured. Two hundred more received minor cuts and bruises, making a total of over 400 killed or wounded in the wreck. About a dozen more are expected to die of their wounds. The funerals of many of the victims of the disaster took place Sunday at their late homes. I. O. Baker, professor of civil engineering in the State University at Champaign, who has made a careful examination of the engineering problems of the disaster, concludes that the incendiary theory is without foundation. He believes the culvert caught fire from the grass burned by the section men in the vicinity on the afternoon of the accident.

A special dispatch from Chicago says: "The State's Attorney's assistants are preparing a review of the McGarigle-St. John case for presentation to Gov. Oglesby as the basis of a request from the Governor to the Secretary of State that this Government ask the Canadian Government to ship back McGarigle. The two sailors from the Blake who are at present in Chicago have made affidavits implicating St. John and Capt. Irving in the escape.

The wheat crop of Dakota is now estimated at 60,000,000 bushels, an increase of 2,000,000 over last year. The quality is excellent. The Illinois Board of Agriculture reports that there has been no improvement in the condition of corn throughout the State during the past week, notwithstanding the rains. ...

THE CHATSWORTH HORROR.

Additional Incidents of the Toledo, Peoria and Western Railroad Disaster.

Thrilling Stories of Survivors of the Awful Wreck—Miraculous Escapes.

Shocking Scenes—The Mysterious Suicide—Robbing the Dead and Wounded.

At the Scene of the Wreck.

A close inspection of the wreck causes one to wonder how a single person escaped death. The momentum of the train must have been appalling. The cars not only telescoped but in some cases were crushed down into the earth. In the flooring of one car the bulkhead of the rear car had torn the boards up for a distance of ten feet. Iron work had been torn and twisted to a formless mass, and chairs, parti- ...

... been injured. These five, together with two others, were all that were rescued from that car.

"When the label-keeper came down I asked him how it happened that he was not killed. He replied that when the crash came his wife was sitting in one seat and himself and the baby were in the one just behind, near the front of the car. The baby was knocked off the seat and he stooped to pick her up as they shot into the mass of ruins ahead. Just at that moment, he said, a timber penetrated the car, shooting across the place where he had been sitting and struck a young lady who sat opposite in the neck. He was thus pinned down by the timber, which also protected him from being smashed and saved his life. He looked across the aisle and saw the young lady's head had fallen over on the back of her seat and hung only by the skin.

"The sight of the dead and wounded lying in the adjacent fields was horrible. They were lying in little heaps of about a dozen, all having been killed in a different manner. The entire side of one man's face would be mashed in, while a hole as large as your fist in the forehead of another would show where a timber had penetrated. Three-fourths of the dead never knew what killed them. It was a sight I never want to look upon again. There were young ladies in picnic dress, with their white skirts saturated with blood and the front of their faces mashed beyond recognition. One young-looking mother had held her baby in her arms, when a timber, striking the child in the back, impaled both victims in instant death. The mother's face did not bear a scratch, but the expression upon it will haunt me to the grave."

Mr. Church said that the action of the railroad ...

... I lifted her was to beg me to find her mamma, and I promised to do so, though I was hopeless as I could see three dead women in the car. I then stumbled upon a woman whose legs were twisted together in the timbers, though they did not seem to be broken. I leaned her back against a cushion while I helped a boy out, and when I turned back to release her she was dead. I subsequently found that my sleeves were bloodied when I had touched my arm around her neck to raise her, and I suppose her head must have been crushed, though I did not notice it. There was simply no end to such scenes and such experiences."

Plundering the Dead.

Mrs. Charles Carlton, of Oneida, one of the survivors, corroborated the stories of robberies committed, and says that there were instances in which the vandals cut off the fingers of imprisoned women to secure the rings. Four men are stated to have swarmed to the front immediately after the disaster, and to have engaged in the awful sacrilege of stripping the desolate dead under cover of darkness and confusion. That such impious pillage prevailed is not to be denied. Mr. H. D. Gould, General Freight and Passenger Agent of the road, caught one of the devils in the act and kicked him within an inch of his life, forcing him to desist. Another scoundrel caught in the act said he was merely securing a memento of the wreck. J. D. McFadden, one of Peoria's dead, was robbed of $200. Mrs. Beal's rings were stripped from her fingers. Mrs. Potthoff, of Third street, was robbed, though unhurt. F. H. Weinelle's pockets were turned inside out when his body was found and his watch and $250 were gone. The wife of Capt. Blake, the harbor master, swears that her husband was stripped of $4,755, and there are other cases. The entire Zimmerman family, three in number, were robbed.

The Mysterious Suicide.

Inquiries regarding the identity of the man who shot himself to be rid of his agony are without avail. The best information concerning him was obtained Sunday from a man from ...

FIGHTING FOR THE PENNANT.

The Contest for the Base-Ball Championship of the National Game.

A Neck-and-Neck Race Between Detroit and Chicago—Notes of the Game.

[CHICAGO CORRESPONDENCE.]

What a fight the League clubs are having, and what a magnificent race they are enjoying for the League pennant of 1887. When they started out at the commencement of the season the indications for a race after the procession order seemed plainly discernible. Chicago, the champions of other years, seemed to have gone to pieces, and an assertion that they would be in the race at this stage of the struggle would have received the laugh from nine out of ten lovers of the national game.

The end of the seventeenth week of the season, however, finds Detroit (the present leaders) and Chicago neck and neck in the most remarkable pennant fight the League has yet known, while Boston and New York, although a bit lower down in the string than are Chicago and Detroit, are still in the race, and either of them may go to the front before the season closes. Both are being whipped and spurred to their supremest efforts by their ...

NUMBER 10;

OR,

ANOTHER MAN'S CRIME.

A BIOGRAPHY.

BY PERTINAX.

Roll back the curtain from my hidden life,
Show men the plain, unvarnished truth;
Expose the motives that have caused the strife,
Back through my manhood to my early youth;
Show to mankind why I have always fought,
When peace and comfort others so aptly sought.

I had been taught no compromise with wrong,
Stern and unyielding in the cause of right;
To take the weak man's cause against the strong,
In naught but justice ever take delight;
Who hath been taught precepts like unto these
Must be a coward, or give up his ease.

Why, I have met with multitudes of men
That for things expedient sacrificed the true;
They always spoke of things that might have been,
Could their ways meet with favor through and through;
And then, in ways transparent but thought clever,
They sold the just and blundered worse than ever.

Men in their nature are to evil prone—
That is asserted by the inspired scribes;
Treason is often nearest to the throne,
And truth may linger beneath diatribes.
But men that are reformers must be just,
No man will take their platitudes on trust.

Well, I fought error wherever it was seen;
Of course I blocked the schemes of many friends;
I was called theorist, denounced as green,
At last I was a man no one defends—
I worshiped justice and denounced laws
Made for the rabble, made to gain applause.

With the majority I always vote—
Their motives sometimes seem to be correct;
Official hands are always at my throat
Because I wish their conduct to inspect.
He who examines close his party's ways ...

"It must have been extraordinary if it concerned me," said the prisoner, wildly.

"At precisely four o'clock yesterday," went on the Warden, unheeding the interruption, "I received this packet, with instructions to place it in the hands of Convict No. 10, at six o'clock on Christmas morning."

A deep sonorous sound broke the stillness.

One!

It was the prison clock, striking the hour.

"Unknown to you, No. 10, after that outbreak last fall, when you so bravely helped the officials to quell the worst——"

Two!

"Worst rebellion that ever took place inside of prison walls——"

Three!

"I determined to do something for you, so I gathered the fragments of your story together, and laid the matter before his excellency the Governor——"

Four!

"What?" gasped the prisoner.

"With this result. Late last night I received a telegram that a prisoner known on our prison rolls as Convict No. 10——"

"Five!" said the clock.

"Meaning me? Oh, God!"

"Was pardoned. Pardoned! Now, then, what kind of a Santa Claus do you think I am, and how's this for a merry Christmas?"

The Warden slapped the prisoner briskly on the back, with a jovial laugh.

No. 10 had settled sideways on the bed. The room was whirling curiously round and round; even the jolly Warden seemed ...

... stance. But—to go back. Let me begin with the year 18—. In that year on the morning of December 8, I entered this cell to visit a prisoner then serving a life sentence on the charge of murder. He was a bold and desperate villain but well as I knew him I had no idea of the things he was capable of doing. I was interested in a certain life-insurance case that had figured in the courts for some years, and by the merest chance I discovered that the prisoner, known as 'Convict No. 10,' was connected with it. Accordingly, armed with a permit signed by the highest prison officials, on the morning of December 8 I visited his cell. I had been granted an hour's time alone with him. His previous good behavior had gained some concessions from the regular prison discipline, and I found him without irons. He listened to what I had to say perfectly unmoved. But all the time I was talking to him I had noticed a peculiar light in his eyes, and that he gradually approached me so close that we finally stood shoulder to shoulder. But I never dreamed of his horrible purpose. Without a word of warning he suddenly grasped me by the throat with both hands.

"I could not cry out—could not shout to the guard at the far end of the corridor. Silently that human tiger clung to my throat, choking my very life out. My blows struck the empty air, my struggles were useless. Sight and sense left me.

"When I came back to consciousness I lay on the prison floor in a prison cell with the prison clothes upon my body. My assailant was gone. Attired in my garments, with my collar pulled well up about his ears, and my hat set well down upon his ...

SHOT AND SHELL.

Old Veterans' Reminiscences of the War of the Rebellion.

Embracing Anecdotes of Actual Experience and Colloquial Acquisition.

In Hampton Roads.

BY JAMES FRANKLIN FITTS.

There she comes, the monster black,
The mysterious Merrimac,
Sweeping down to Newport News!
Beat to quarters! man the guns!
Here's a fight no seaman shuns,
And no patriot will refuse.

Down she bears, the dreadful foe;
Wooden walls beneath her blow,
Torn and rent with ghastly seam.
Stout Congress and Cumberland,
Flaming with destruction grand,
Sink together in the stream.

Where's the force can stay her back?
Who will meet that dire attack—
Stand those iron sides before?
Where's our champion?—Lo! she's here!
